Scholarships go to 56 Snyder grads

Graduation ceremonies conducted Friday in coliseum

Scholarships were announced Friday for 56 Snyder High School seniors during commencement exercises for the graduating class of 1988.

Some 157 SHS seniors received their diplomas in ceremonies at the Scurry County Coliseum. Commencement speaker was Ken Branam, minister of First Baptist Church and a member of the Snyder school board.

Also recognized Friday were the 30 honors graduates for this year's class.

The list of scholarships includes:

—Judson Morrison: Highest

ranking student in the graduation class, a tuition granted by the legislature of the state of Texas. A scholarship certificate from the Texas Council of Church Related Colleges. Also, the $400 T.D. Wiman Memorial scholarship given in memory of T.D. Wiman, Jr., principal of Snyder High School from 1940-61. Also, the $200 Sally O'Rear Scholarship awarded by the Music Coterie. And the $1,500 Robert C. Byrd Honors Scholarship created by the federal government to promote student excellence and achievement and to recognize exceptionally able students who show promise of continued excellence. In addition, a $100 music scholarship from Vivace Jr. Music Club. Also, a $100 music scholarship from National Piano Guild and American College of Musicians. Also, a $1,000 scholarship from West Texas State Bank to the college of his choice.

—Staci Dunn: Second highest ranking student in the graduating class, a scholarship certificate from the Texas Council of Church related colleges. Also, Angelo State University awards a $2,000 Carr Scholarship.

Pool will be open Monday

The Towle Park swimming pool will be open Monday for Memorial Day.

Regular pool hours will begin Sunday. On Sunday and Wednesday each week, the pool will be open from 2 until 6 p.m. On Tuesday, Thursday, Friday and Saturday, the hours will expand to 2 until 6:30 p.m. The pool will be closed each subsequent Monday.

The price of admission will be $2 for those 18 years and older and $1 for those under 18.

Manager of the pool this summer for the second year is Ramsey Rodriguez.

Lifeguards will be Pete Rodriguez, Louise Cates, Shea Fenoua, Becky Bynum and Lori McFarland.

Flag raising slate due with holiday

Memorial Day on Monday will prompt flag raising ceremonies and a memorial service plus general closings of public facilities throughout the city.

The flag raising events will be at the VFW at 8:30 a.m., then at the American Legion as well as Snyder Cemetery and Hillside Memorial Gardens.

At 10 a.m., the memorial service will be conducted on the courthouse lawn. The day will close with a 6:30 p.m. barbecue dinner at the VFW Post.

The only public facility to be opened on Monday will be the Towle Park swimming pool. Other county facilities, as well as city, hall and state and federal offices, will be closed.

There will be no home delivery of mail, but mail will be put up in boxes at the post office.

The Western Texas College campus will be closed Monday, also.

Most banks will be under complete and banking institutions here.

The Snyder Daily News will publish its regular schedule, but the newspaper office will be closed during the afternoon.

WTC sets signup for summer term

Registration for summer classes at Western Texas College will begin Tuesday following the three-day Memorial Day weekend.

On Tuesday, the class signup schedule will run from 9 until 11 a.m., then from 1:30 until 4 p.m. The registration for evening classes will follow from 6:30 until 8 p.m.

Students registering during the day hours are to go to the administration building. Evening registration will be in the Student Center.

The first day of class will be Wednesday, June 1.

All classes will meet Monday through Thursday, giving students a three-day weekend.

The day classes will meet for six weeks, ending on July 8. Evening classes will run for nine weeks and end of July 29.

The college bookstore will be open from 8 a.m. until 5 p.m. and from 5:30 until 8 p.m. Tuesday for registering students.

The bookstore will be open Wednesday and Thursday next week from 7 a.m. until 2 p.m. and from 5:30 until 7 p.m.

The college offices will be closed Monday for Memorial Day. Beginning Tuesday, more information may be obtained by calling 574-8511.

The SDN Column

By Roy McQueen

The teller on Deep Creek says, "The irony of life is that the young don't know what to do and the old can't do what they know."

Bill Lowmy, associate minister at 37th Street Church of Christ, recently lost his wallet. After searching all the possible places, Lowmy spent considerable time canceling credit cards and replacing important papers.

He even advertised for the lost billfold, and offered a reward if found. "Keep the money and return the billfold and its other contents."

That was more than six weeks ago, and Lowmy had resigned himself that the billfold was gone forever.

Junior High Principal Charles Anderson and his wife, Marge, were having some people over for dinner on Friday evening, and Marge was using the large dining room table.

Hidden under one of the legs of the table was Lowmy's billfold. That night dinner guests had plenty of advice for return of the wallet.

The suggestion was to anonymously mail Lowmy one credit card each day. Using Anderson quickly rejected that idea, reminding the group that letters now cost 5 cents.

Somebody suggested that the contents be divided up, and that different folks return the items over a period of time, but again Anderson took matters into his own hands.

Anderson called the preacher, and asked if the offer was still good of keeping the money, but returning the billfold. Lowmy hesitated, but said "Sure."

Anderson handed him the billfold minus the cash. Lowmy was stunned. After numerous questions Anderson finally pushed the cash.

The reward was forthcoming, however, as Lowmy bought lunch for the Andersons on Sunday. Anderson said Marge really shouldn't be rewarded for returning the wallet, because she had plenty of advice for return of the wallet.

Antique autos

Antique autos will be in Snyder Sunday afternoon, participating in driving "games" at the parking lot area of the Scurry County Coliseum.

Automobile owners from throughout the area have been invited by members of the Snyder Wheels antique auto club. The cars will be displayed at the Purple Sage Motel beginning around 1:30 p.m. and the driving games will begin about an hour later at the coliseum.

HHS library

The Hermleigh High School Library will be open to the public three days each week during the summer months.

The regular schedule will see it open from 8 a.m. until 3:30 p.m. on Monday and Tuesday and from 8 a.m. until 2:30 p.m. on Wednesday.

Canning clinic

Consumers with canning equipment such as pressure canners, pressure cookers and pressure sauce pans can have the equipment checked Tuesday at the county extension office, 3004 Ave. M.

Kathy Roberts, county extension agent for home remedies, will be available from 9 a.m. until 3 p.m. to check the equipment and to answer questions related to food preservation.

The clinic is free to the public.

Jury called

Summonses have been issued for prospective jurors in 14th District Court to hear a Snyder couple's lawsuit Tuesday against the manufacturer of a "kill home."

The suit claims that Fayton and Lisa Beachamp bought a defective home in Monterey Homes Inc., a California corporation in the summer of 1984.

Shoplifting...

Ex-Miss America arrested

WILLIAMSPORT, Pa. (AP) — Former Miss America Bess Myerson was arrested when she left a department store with $44 worth of unpurchased items, resulting in her arrest on shoplifting charges, her attorney says. Miss Myerson, who was arrested and charged with shoplifting on Friday, said she left Hill's Department Store with the nail polish, earrings and other items because she realized she had left her car unlocked. "She has been distracted by the pressure of recent circumstances," said Miss Myerson's attorney, Frederick A.

Hafetz. He declined to explain what those circumstances were. Miss Myerson, the former cultural affairs commissioner in New York City, is scheduled to go on trial in September on charges that she tried to influence the judge hearing the divorce case of her reported lover, Carl A. Capasso. Capasso, who along with Miss Myerson was indicted by a grand jury in October, is serving a sentence for tax evasion at nearby Allenwood State Prison Camp. Miss Myerson, 63, of New York City, appeared before District Justice John M. McDermott and was released on $150 cash bail. In accordance with state law, she was fingerprinted and photographed, said South Williamsport Police Chief Charles Smith. She denied police allegations that she tried to leave the department store without buying six bottles of nail polish, five pairs of earrings, shoes and flashlight batteries stuffed in her purse and shopping bag. "I was leaving the store to lock my car and come back and pay for the merchandise," she told the magistrate. Miss Myerson said she would not return for a June 27 hearing and would pay her fine and costs "under protest" through the mail, if court documents affirm her contention that this is her first such arrest. The maximum penalty, according to the court, would be a $300 fine. Earlier this month, the New York Daily News, citing unidentified sources and records, said Miss Myerson was charged in 1970 with shoplifting from a London department store and settled the case by paying a fine of no more than $100 in 1987.

Congress authorized in 1864 the use of the phrase "In God We Trust" on U.S. coins.

Talks used by Noriega

PANAMA CITY, Panama (AP) — Ousted President Eric Arturo Delvalle said the United States was tricked into negotiating with Gen. Manuel Antonio Noriega, who used the talks to cement his position as Panama's de facto ruler.

From hiding, Delvalle also said Friday that Noriega exploited the negotiations on the general's eventual removal from power to embarrass the Reagan administration.

He said Washington erred in not bringing Panama's opposition and the region's democracies in the talks.

"I have always thought that (the talks) were a ploy to delay matters, to give (Noriega) time to strengthen his inner circle within the Panamanian Defense Forces and at the end, yes, to ridicule President Reagan and the United States," Delvalle said.

"I don't think (Noriega) was sincere, and I told the (Reagan) administration that what happened would happen. That wasn't very difficult. I told them about three weeks ago," he said.

Secretary of State George P. Shultz on Wednesday announced that talks had collapsed and blamed the failure on Noriega.

Noriega on Friday blamed U.S. Ambassador Arthur Davis and the State Department's Elliott Abrams for the breakdown.

Delvalle spoke with several correspondents Friday at a location the reporters agreed not to identify. He was ousted by Noriega on Feb. 26, one day after he tried to fire the general, who heads the nation's 15,000-strong Defense Forces and is the power behind the Panamanian presidency.

The United States continues to recognize Delvalle as Panama's legitimate president.

Noriega was indicted in the United States in February on drug trafficking charges, which he denies.

"I am disappointed at the fact that they did not use to their advantage our knowledge of Noriega," Delvalle said, criticizing the United States for attempting to remove Noriega without help from other Latin American countries.

He suggested the United States permit Latin American democracies to take the lead in mediating the crisis, a move the Reagan administration is exploring.

Asked if there were circumstances under which he might renounce his claim to the presidency, Delvalle responded: "Why should I? This is one of the basic factors, respect for the constitution by the military."

Texaco rejects offer by Icahn; proxy fight starts

NEW YORK (AP) — Texaco Inc.'s directors repudiated a $60-a-share takeover offer from investor Carl C. Icahn, who responded by extending the deadline for acceptance and promising a full explanation of how he would finance the deal.

Icahn, Texaco's biggest shareholder with a 14.8 percent chunk, also pressed ahead with a proxy fight for five seats on the oil giant's board.

The developments on Friday escalated a fight between the takeover strategist and the nation's No. 3 oil company, which has been struggling to return to normal since emerging from bankruptcy a month ago.

In a brief statement a few hours before his 5 p.m. EDT reply deadline, the Texaco directors as expected said no to Icahn's offer, which values the company at $14.6 billion. They called it a "non-offer" pressure tactic and questioned whether he could arrange the financing.

Icahn reacted by extending the offer until the company's annual meeting June 17. He said he would add a 60-day extension after the meeting if his slate of board nominees wins.

"It is a sad day when a board says it's 'too late' to give the owners of a company a chance to vote on a premium proposal to all stockholders," he said in a statement.

The investor has been pressuring Texaco's management in recent months to boost the value of the company's stock, if necessary by breaking it up and selling off the pieces.

Icahn spokesman Neil Call said there were no plans to sweeten the offer, and "that leaves us with no alternative but to go forward with the proxy contest."

In a further effort to bolster his credibility, Icahn said details of how he planned to finance the offer would be presented at a security analysts meeting Thursday in New York.

Even before the board spurned him, Icahn was stoking the fires of his fight with the company. Late Thursday he mailed ballots to shareholders urging them to elect his slate of candidates at Texaco's annual meeting.

Texaco and Icahn also expanded their war of words to full-page ads in selected newspapers Friday, with Texaco asking shareholders if they could trust the company's future to Icahn, and the takeover strategist urging them to take up his offer.

Icahn's side of the battle is expected to be an uphill one.

Analysts have speculated that his offer was intended to flush out other bidders for Texaco. The consensus on Wall Street is that he is looking to boost Texaco's stock price rather than end up running a huge energy concern.

Investors remained unenthusiastic about the offer Friday. Texaco stock closed down 37.5 cents a share to $49.82½ in composite trading on the New York Stock Exchange.

Although his $60 offer values Texaco's 243 million common shares at $14.6 billion, Icahn would not have to pay out that much if he decided to pursue such a bid.

He would have to pay $12.4 billion for the 207 million shares he does not already own, and he paid about $1.2 billion for his existing stake of 36 million shares.

Dukakis hits administration for not saying no to Noriega

by The Associated Press
Democrat Michael Dukakis is blasting the Reagan administration for failing to 'say no' to Panamanian leader Manuel Noriega. Republican George Bush, after sniffing the Maine air, declared, "I'm the underdog and I like it."

Dukakis, the front-runner in the race for the Democratic presidential nomination, ridiculed the administration over reports emerging in congressional hearings that the CIA allegedly made $200,000 payments to the military leader, who has been indicted in U.S. courts on drug charges.

Campaigning Friday in Albuquerque, N.M., Dukakis called on President Reagan, Bush or "someone in this administration" to provide an explanation of the CIA's alleged link to the Panamanian.

"We've been paying the guy what we pay the president of the United States," Dukakis said. "You can't be serious about waging a real war against drugs when you have an administration that can't say no to Noriega."

Bush, who is spending the week of the U.S.-Soviet summit meeting at his vacation retreat in Kennebunkport, Maine, urged new negotiations to persuade Noriega to leave Panama, even though he earlier opposed those talks.

He denounced as "an outrageous lie" what he said was a reported suggestion that the administration held the talks to help his campaign.

"I don't like it being injected by Michael Dukakis and Jesse Jackson either. If they have some proof, or they have something other than insinuation, let them speak out," he said at a news conference Friday on the lawn of his family home.

Bush, who is meeting over the next week with advisers and prominent Republicans in an effort to renew his campaign, said he wasn't worried about polls showing him running behind Dukakis.

"I'm the underdog and I like it," he said. "It is May and the election is in November. Do I worry about it? I don't worry about it. I like fighting back. ... I remember Iowa."

He was referring to his loss to Sen. Bob Dole, R-Kan., in the Republican primary in Iowa, which Bush followed with a victory in New Hampshire.

The latest ABC News-Washington Post poll said Dukakis was leading Bush by a 53-40 percent margin among registered voters.

With the Atlantic surf pounding in the background, Bush told reporters, "It's the Maine air. When I get up here I feel — it's not feistiness — but I feel very relaxed. I don't feel troubled by somebody pointing out that I'm behind in the polls."

In 1915, the German army used poison gas for the first time in World War I.

Rev. Pat Githens will be preaching both services at Victory Baptist Church May 29, 1988. Bro. Githens established the church in November of 1974 and pastored for 4 years.

Ghandi's son preaches self-help to aid movement

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — Arun Gandhi says civil rights laws are a big stick, but one that has failed to beat racism out of the social fabric of the South.

Instead, he is using a soft voice like the one his grandfather, Mohandas K. "Mahatma" Gandhi, used three generations ago to help free India from British rule.

Gandhi, a 53-year-old freelance journalist, is living in Mississippi to conduct research for a book and hopefully rejuvenate what he calls a stalled civil rights movement.

Gandhi's only weapon is his almost-whisper and a long list of speaking engagements, during which he promotes the self-help programs he once employed to aid India's poor. Gandhi says he never points fingers — only talks and offers suggestions.

"We have enough hatred in this world, and we don't want to add to it," he says.

So far, the quiet presentations by Gandhi and his wife, Sunanda Gandhi, have caught the ear of dozens of political, religious and business leaders. The Gandhis have been crisscrossing the state since their arrival from Bombay last August. "I think the name opens some doors and gives them some opportunity for dialogue that may not be open to someone else," says state Rep. Leslie King of Greenville, head of the Mississippi

Oil prices drift lower

NEW YORK (AP) — Trading in the oil futures market has slowed to a crawl in advance of the next OPEC meeting.

On the New York Mercantile Exchange Friday, contracts for July delivery of West Texas Intermediate, the benchmark U.S. crude oil, fell 11 cents to $17.43 per 42-gallon barrel.

Among refined products, the near-term contract for wholesale unleaded gasoline advanced, rising 0.20 cent to settle at 52.55 cents a gallon. But wholesale heating oil for June delivery closed at 47.78 cents a gallon, down 0.41 cent.

"The market is getting flat," said Richard Redoglio of Merrill Lynch Energy Futures. "People are finding no reason to take a position."

The analysts said traders appeared reluctant to establish positions in advance of the next meeting of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries, scheduled for June 8 in Vienna, Austria. The OPEC ministers are expected to resume their ongoing debate over production and pricing at the meeting.

pi Legislature's Black Caucus. Black and white Mississippians new dine together, ride the bus together, vote together, and go to school and work together. But they don't socialize together, Gandhi said in an interview.

"There is no real acceptance, there is just toleration," he said. Gandhi plans to live in Mississippi a year gathering material for his book, which will compare the treatment of blacks in the South with the treatment of the "untouchables" in India's Maharashtra state, his home for the past 30 years.

Although Indian laws have banned the old caste system, which relegated the untouchables to the bottom of the social strata, he said discrimination remains — just as it does for blacks in the United States.

"In both cases we have legally solved the problem, but not socially," Gandhi said. "If we don't do it at an individual level, it will never happen. The government can't do it."

Top Meese aide to leave position

WASHINGTON (AP) — Charles Cooper, a top aide to Attorney General Edwin Meese III, handed in his resignation Friday, but said his decision to join the exodus of officials from the Justice Department was "wholly unrelated" to Meese's legal troubles.

Cooper, the assistant attorney general who heads the office of legal counsel, said he is "just now beginning" to look for work with a private law firm. But he said his decision to leave was not based on the fact that independent counsel James C. McKay is expected to issue a report in several weeks raising questions about Meese's ethical conduct.

Cooper, whose resignation is effective July 8, praised Meese as being "almost exclusively responsible" for advancing a number of issues on the Reagan administration's conservative agenda by focusing debate on interpreting the Constitution and the principles of federalism and non-discrimination.

In an interview, Cooper said he has "an extraordinary admiration" for Meese's "ability to withstand the controversy that prevails at this time" in connection with McKay's year-old criminal investigation of Meese.

Cooper said "I have not formed any judgments" about Meese on the matters McKay has been examining.

Meese thanked Cooper in a letter for his "loyalty, support and special vote of confidence."

The independent counsel launched an investigation on May 11, 1987, that has focused on Meese's ties to scandal-plagued Wedtech Corp. and a $1 billion Iraqi oil pipeline project.

Cooper acknowledged he had doubts briefly about remaining at the department two months ago when the No. 2 department official, Deputy Attorney General Arnold Burns, and criminal division chief William Weld resigned in protest over Meese's continued tenure as attorney general.

Cooper said he at first thought Burns and Weld might know something about the "circumstances surrounding Ed," such as a possible determination by McKay that Meese had engaged in wrongdoing. But three days after Burns and Weld resigned, McKay announced he had insufficient evidence at that time to seek an indictment of Meese.

In a letter to Meese, Cooper said he long ago decided to leave this summer and that "I am carrying through with plans formed in a calmer time and based on a host of personal and professional considerations wholly unrelated to the controversy of today."

Cooper, 36, took the legal counsel post in November 1985 after serving as deputy assistant attorney general in the department's civil rights division, where he worked closely with William Bradford Reynolds.

Cooper played a leading role in trying to win a Supreme Court seat for federal Judge Robert H. Bork last year. But the Senate rejected Bork, a vocal conservative, by a wide margin.

Cooper recently traveled to Panama to participate in negotiations to try to remove Panamanian Gen. Manuel Antonio Noriega from power. He also was among a handful of political advisers chosen by Meese to conduct a weekend inquiry in November 1986 into the administration's secret arms sales to Iran.

The inquiry uncovered the diversion of some of the arms sale proceeds to the Nicaraguan rebels, triggering the Iran-Contra scandal.

There has been a complete turnover of personnel in key sections of the Justice Department in the past two months. Five of Burns' deputies left following his resignation, virtually emptying the deputy's office, and two of Weld's aides quit when he did.

Last week, Meese's chief spokesman, Terry Eastland, said the attorney general had fired him for not defending him strenuously enough. The head of Meese's speechwriting unit resigned within hours of Eastland's disclosure.

Antique reported stolen from house

The sheriff's office is investigating a burglary near Hermleigh in which an antique dresser, more than 100 years old, was taken.

Lisa Bowman of Rt. 2, Box 51, told officers Friday that someone entered an unoccupied home owned by Billy Joe Clifton just southeast of Hermleigh between May 16 and Wednesday, May 26, and took the dresser.

The dresser was described as brown, four feet high by four feet wide and having a mirror and drawers that are rounded on the outside.

Friday has two arrests

A county deputy arrested a 23-year-old man for public intoxication and unlawfully carrying a weapon at 1:05 a.m. Saturday at an eastern Snyder apartment complex.

The weapon was a .44 caliber Smith and Wesson magnum revolver, the deputy said.

A city patrolman arrested a 25-year-old for public intoxication at 2:02 a.m. Saturday in the parking lot of the same apartment complex.

Golf clinic slated for two weeks here

The first annual Snyder Golf Clinic will be held for two weeks this summer at Western Texas College.

Instructors will be local pros Dave Foster and Rick Mamolite and Milton Ham.

The clinic will be held in two sessions, June 6-10 and June 13-17. Cost is $100 for both weeks, or $65 for a single week of instruction. Golfers will receive instruction for one hour each day.

A 9-hole tournament will conclude the clinic with first, second and third place trophies awarded in each division.

Age group and instruction times include, 8-12 years old from 8 a.m. to 9 a.m., 13 to 15 years from 9:30 a.m. to 10:30 a.m., and 16 to 18 years old from 10:45 a.m. to 11:45 a.m.

To enroll, or for more information, contact the Snyder Country Club Pro Shop at (915) 573-7101 or the WTC Pro Shop at 573-9291.

Scramble set early in June at college

Western Texas College golf course will sponsor its annual two-man scramble June 4-5.

Entry deadline is June 2. Fee is $100 per team. The field will be limited to 60 teams, pre-flighted into four flights.

Handicaps will be verified and flighting will be based on lower handicap of the two team members.

Practice rounds will be held

June 3. Shotgun starts will initiate tournament play at 8:30 a.m. and 1:30 p.m. on Saturday and Sunday.

First place awards will be irons, second place will receive metal woods, third place will receive a golf bag, and golf balls will be awarded for fourth place.

Reservations may be made by calling the WTC pro shop at 573-9291.

Irwin holds 2nd-round lead at Memorial by single stroke

DUBLIN, Ohio (AP) - Hale Irwin got an eye examination earlier this week. But he didn't need it to see that they don't write checks to the second-round leader.

"It's too early to feel good," Irwin said after taking a one-stroke lead through 36 holes in the Memorial Tournament.

Irwin, a two-time U.S. Open champion, hasn't won since capturing his second Memorial title three years ago.

"I know it's only halfway and you know it's only halfway," said Irwin, in his 21st year as a touring pro. "People congratulate you and it feels good because it's been a while. But I've been around long enough to know it's just the halfway mark."

Irwin followed a first-round 70 with a 4-under-par 68 Friday for a 36-hole total of 6-under 138 on the 7,104-yard, par-72 Muirfield Village Golf Club.

A shot back, at 5-under 139, were rookie John Huston, David Foster and Tom Kite.

Dorsett deal appears good

DENVER (AP) - The Denver Broncos appear to be moving closer to a deal for Dallas Cowboys running back Tony Dorsett.

Team officials say that could leave the other running back they are interested in, George Rogers, out in the cold.

Rogers' agent Jack Mills met yesterday with Broncos general manager John Beake, but later said he was disappointed with the outcome.

That puts Dorsett on the front-burner again in Denver's bid for a game-breaking running back.

Broncos owner Pat Bowlen says the team is having serious, ongoing discussions with Dallas. Bowlen says Dorsett probably fits better into the Broncos scheme of things.

Mills says the Broncos have not retracted their offer for Rogers, but says a deal for Rogers has been put on hold.

Conference series now at 2-1...

Mavs control boards, Lakers

DALLAS (AP) - The Dallas Mavericks finally stalled out the Lakers' fast break and controlled the boards but Mavericks center James Donaldson was gracious in victory.

Dallas outrebounded Los Angeles 62-40 and Kareem Abdul-Jabbar was held to four rebounds as the Mavericks won 106-94 to pull to 2-1 in their NBA Western Conference finals playoff series.

"He's (Jabbar) going to have some good games and bad games and tonight he had a bad game," Donaldson said. "He could come back Sunday and have a great game. Everybody's talking like I'm some kind of great defensive player."

Roy Tarpley, who had 21 points, dominated the boards with 20 rebounds. Donaldson got only five rebounds but clogged the middle and helped shut down Abdul-Jabbar.

"We didn't shoot well in Los Angeles so we wanted to come home and show the Lakers what the Mavericks are all about," Donaldson said.

"But I didn't play any different from the first two games. We just got back quicker on defense and tried to push Kareem a little off his spot. He just had a bad game."

The Mavericks were overrun by the Lakers' fast break tactics in the first two games. Game 3 was different.

"They were a lot more physical, a lot!" Abdul-Jabbar said. "We expected them to come out and play harder. They did a great job on the offensive boards."

"They got up on us defensively and forced us to take bad shots."

Dallas' Mark Aguirre was the game's leading scorer with 23 points, but he also contributed 10 rebounds.

"I wasn't thinking about just getting rebounds, I wanted them to think of our presence on defense. It really helps when everyone is crashing the boards," he said.

The Mavericks finally broke away from the Lakers in the final 6:39, starting with a basket by Aguirre on a goaltending call.

"It was obvious it turned out to be a seven-minute ballgame," Lakers coach Pat Riley said. "The reason we couldn't get over the hump is they wouldn't allow it. They made a firm stand and did a great job."

Basketball camp planned at WTC

June 13-17 are the dates for the Tony Mauldin Basketball Camp at Western Texas College.

The camp, for residents or commuters, will be held June 13-17 at the college and is for boys in the sixth through the 12th grade. UIL rules prohibit campers with varsity experience from participating, however.

Fees are $180 for resident campers and $100 for commuters. A $50 deposit is required. Campers will receive a basketball, camp T-shirt, certificates and a report card. Special awards and trophies will be given for contests and competition. Among the coaches working with Mauldin will be Leslie Broadhurst from Morton, Severne Smith from Johnson City, Ralph Mason from Gilmer and Mike Genarelli from Mt. Pleasant. All are highly successful high school coaches.

Teaching sessions will be divided into fundamentals of basketball. Rebounding and defensive techniques will also be stressed. Team games will also be played.

For further information, contact Janice Mauldin at (915) 573-5900.

Cedeno arrested

WEBSTER, Texas (AP) - Former Houston Astros player Cesar Cedeno was arrested on charges of assault, causing bodily injury and resisting arrest after an attack on a woman police identified as his girlfriend and the mother of his child.

The former centerfielder was intoxicated and apparently angry over custody of his 4-month-old girl who is living with the woman, said Webster Police Chief Reyes Sonora.

Pam Lamont, 32, called police to her apartment about 4:30 a.m. Friday and reported that Cedeno had beaten her and taken the million. McCombs, whose family earlier owned a 35 percent interest, said he plans no immediate personnel changes and soothed city officials' worries by saying the team will stay in the Alamo City if fans support it.

"This is a very, very big step for my family," McCombs said. "To a boy from Spur, Texas, who was raised during the Depression era, it is a very serious investment. I feel it is a very good investment and our goal is to make the Spurs the absolute very best."

McCombs, who also has interests in oil, ranching and an automobile business, was among several investors who bought interests in the team when it was American Basketball Association's Dallas Chaparrals.

Among the challenges facing McCombs is fan attendance, which was the league's lowest last year. Gate revenue was $78,000 per game, compared to a league average of $170,000, and McCombs said he would be looking at ways to increase the average to $120,000.

He said he wants to keep the team in San Antonio, but that the fans must also do their part.

"We will be doing everything that we know how to do to see those fans fill the rafters," McCombs said. "We understand that we have to put a product out that people will want to come and see and that is our responsibility."

"Our goal is to get the ring on the floor and to be the very best as an entertainment center for San Antonio and South Texas," he said. "We are not going to win every game, but we have to realize that the fans are those that we have to please."

On Jan. 25, 1988, Mickey Green of the Utah Jazz scored the 5 millionth point in NBA history on a three-point play.

Penske cars favored at Indy but tradition is not with him

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) - Given the bizarre history of the Indianapolis 500, it seems improbable that one of Roger Penske's super-sleek PC17's will take the checkered flag at the end of Sunday's race.

Yet it seems equally improbable that at least one of the three fastest cars at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway won't be leading the pack when the 200th lap is completed.

Year after frustrating year, Indy pole winners have crashed, had mechanical problems or been plain ol' outrun in the race. Only 12 went from pole to winner's circle.

Penske has two-time winner Rick Mears sitting on the pole, thanks to a record qualifying speed of 219.198 mph. And Mears is one of the dozen who've won the race from the No. 1 starting position. He's also one of those who've lost from the pole - in his case, twice.

There is added insurance for Penske across the front row: 1985 winner Danny Sullivan in the middle, four-time winner and defending champion Al Unser outside.

Yet, even that doesn't guarantee victory. Only 29 of the 71 races have been won by cars starting from the first row. That's the highest winning percentage for any of the 11 rows, but certainly doesn't guarantee Shakes off Valentine twice...

Guzman, Rangers edge KC

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) - Texas Manager Bobby Valentine can take no for an answer from pitcher Jose Guzman. Guzman twice resisted efforts by Valentine to relieve him and went on to post his first career victory over Kansas City on Friday, going the distance in a 3-2 win.

"I was feeling great late in the game. He came out to the mound and I said, 'See you later,'" said

Guzman, who sent the Royals to their sixth loss in a row and the 12th in their last 14 home games. "I was feeling good. I was getting my curve and changeup over and I wanted to stay in there," Guzman said.

Guzman, 5-3, survived wildness early in the game to hold the Royals to single runs in the sixth and eighth innings. He finished with four walks and seven strikeouts while scattering seven hits. "He kept telling me to get off the mound," Valentine said. "Every time I went out there he was shooting me. He was shooting me just like I was a shoo-fly. He was terrific. He's just had quality stuff every time he has gone out."

Guzman was 0-3 in five previous starts against Kansas City. He was 0-2 in three starts at Royals Stadium with a 9.69 earned run average.

"Every time I go out there, I learn something and gain experience," the 25-year-old right-hander said. "I've just been trying to keep the other team from scoring too many runs. I'm just trying not to make mistakes."

"Early in the game, I got in bad situations. When I get in a bad situation, I just try to make my best pitch. If I am going to make a mistake, I want to make it inside or outside, not down the middle."

Guzman's worst situation was the fifth when the Royals loaded the bases with one out on a single and two walks. But Guzman got Willie Wilson to pop out, and George Brett was retired when first baseman Pete O'Brien gloved his sharp grounder behind the base and won a footrace to the

bag. "He hit the ball hard and that's all you can expect," said Manager John Wathan. "You can't put a guide on it. All you can do is hit it hard somewhere and that is what he did."

"We are having a tough time scoring runners. Our batting average with runners on base is around .200 in this stretch. We have hit the ball well on the homestand, but we're not getting the hits to fall with runners in position."

Royals starter Floyd Banister, 6-4, started the game by retiring the first nine batters. He struck out the side in the second inning, and the first six batters did not hit a fair ball.

Texas had only two hits through five innings when Scott Fletcher and Ruben Sierra hit back-to-back singles with one out in the sixth. Mike Stanley followed one out later with a smash that caromed off third baseman Kevin Seitzer's glove as he tried to backhand it and rolled into foul territory in left for a double as both runners scored.

Jerry Browne tripled with an out in the seventh and scored on Fletcher's single on the first pitch from reliever Gene Garber for a 3-1 Rangers lead.

Penn nips Southern; UT-New Orleans vie

AUSTIN (AP) - Junior shortstop Joe DelliCarri had three hits and scored three times Friday night to lift Pennsylvania past Southern 10-6 and eliminate the Jaguars from the NCAA Central Regional tournament.

In the other tournament game earlier, Steve Finken's 2-run home run in the bottom of the ninth inning lifted Michigan past New Orleans, 6-4.

Saturday, Michigan was to play California, a 13-3 victor over Pennsylvania on Thursday, and New Orleans was to face top-seeded Texas, which beat Southern 7-3 on Thursday.

Penn's Quakers, 28-10 and winners of the Eastern Intercollegiate Baseball League, will now play the winner of the Texas-New Orleans contest on Sunday.

frustration at this track. A major reason for Andretti's speed this year is the Chevy engine. It powers his Lola as it does the three PC17's of the Penske team, and the Marches of Al Unser Jr. and Emerson Fittipaldi. Those six qualified among the top eight positions. Only Arie Luyendyk of the Netherlands, sixth with a Cosworth engine, and Scott Brayton, seventh with a Buick, elbowed into the show.

Mechanical breakdowns among the leaders is the only realistic hope most of the field will have. And that includes such luminaries as four-time winner A.J. Foyt, relegated to the 22nd starting position, and three-time winner Johnny Rutherford, who'll start ahead of only three cars.

Andretti had a handling problem during his qualifying run but, with that corrected, he went back to running at a speed only Mears has approached. Many people, in fact, favor Andretti to outrun the Penske entry, despite Andretti's storied history of success. Yet Penske has won this race six times, including five times in the last nine years. Based on that remarkable record, who but Penske could be favored on Sunday? Certainly no other team can match his three-car stable.

"Being able to start three cars up front at this race certainly is a plus," Penske said. "Through the first 100 or 125 miles, if you are competitive, you're pretty much at that point going to show the rest of the field that you're going to be the people to beat."

"What happens after that - reliability, racing luck, bad pit stops - anything can put you behind."

Mario Andretti traded laps above 220 mph with Mears day after day, only to "slump" to a 214 average in qualifying. That forced him to start on the inside of the second row.

Reading, writing, risk makes bloody week for teachers

NEW YORK (AP) — After a week in which New York City teachers were bludgeoned, slashed, pummeled and blasted, their union leader called Friday for increased security and tougher sentences for teacher assaults.

"One attack against a teacher is outrageous and to have four in one week is just intolerable," said United Federation of Teachers President Sandra Feldman. "And we're afraid that this is just the tip of the iceberg."

Though schools officials insisted the number of attacks on teachers had actually decreased in three years, Mayor Edward I. Koch said the city was concerned about teacher safety and he called a "summit meeting" Tuesday of the chancellor, union leaders, the five district attorneys and police commissioner to discuss the problem.

The latest act of violence occurred Thursday afternoon when a physical education teacher came upon an intruder rifling through students' gym bags outside a Bronx school and was beaten unconscious with a baseball bat.

Gary Smith, 37, who remained unconscious Friday, was the fourth teacher assaulted. Douglas De Marco was knifed more than a dozen times by a mugger in the bathroom of a South Bronx grammar school.

The other incidents included a teacher who was beat up by a student, the student's brother and sister, and a 71-year-old teacher who was injured when an M-80 firecracker was tossed into her classroom.

De Marco, speaking from his hospital bed, said the assailant got a few subway tokens and a couple of dollars; he got kicked in the ribs, abdomen and groin and stabbed in the ear, neck, shoulder, side and back.

The Board of Education said the number of assaults in city schools have increased, mainly because of an increase in security guards in elementary schools.

There were 1,322 assaults in the city's 1,000 schools in 1985-86 and 969 this year, said board spokesman Bob Terte.

That included 337 teachers assaulted in 1985-86 and 198 so far this year, he said. The rest were on students or other personnel, including custodians and cafeteria workers. An assault could be anything from a shove against a wall to more serious incidents, Terte said.

In addition, Terte said 350 security guards have been added in the last two years, and the operating budget for school safety increased from $31.8 million to nearly $43.2 million. There are currently 2,081 guards in schools.

But the UFT insists there were about 1,000 physical attacks against teachers both last year and this year. Edward Muir, chairman of the UFT School Safety Committee, said about 20 percent required emergency-room treatment.

Though Ms. Feldman acknowledged a decrease in teacher assaults and a rise in security personnel, she said "it's obviously not good enough."

She praised new schools Chancellor Richard Green for his proposal to put metal detectors in five violence-prone schools this fall and said she felt he was anxious to stem violence. But she said the changes can't come quick enough.

The UFT wants guards in every school and police officers in troubled neighborhoods. The union also is pushing for legislation to make any physical attack on a teacher a felony offense, no matter how minor. A bill is pending in the state Senate.

J.C. Penney's forecasting continued earnings decrease

DALLAS (AP) — J.C. Penney Co. should see continued sluggish short-term earnings but can expect a recovery later this year as the retailing giant settles into its new home, company officials said Friday.

The nation's fourth-largest retailer and newest major member of the Dallas-area corporate landscape will step up emphasis on women's apparel while discontinuing sales of home electronics, photographic equipment and some sporting goods, Penney directors said.

Officials also reported at the annual stockholders meeting Friday that moving the company's headquarters from Manhattan to the Dallas suburb of Plano was ahead of schedule and under budget.

"The reality is that come July, the relocation for all practical purposes will be accomplished," said board chairman William R. Howell.

Penney began moving its headquarters last year. By next month, there will be 7,300 Penney employees in the area. Of the 3,200 employees in New York, 1,200 made the move, officials said.

After a spirited exchange with shareholder activist Evelyn Y. Davis, who said Howell orchestrated the move to become "a big fish in a small pot," Howell told reporters that relocating the headquarters has gone smoothly and will bring the company closer to its markets.

"We're absolutely convinced we've got the team for the future," he said.

Company officials say they hope to complete construction of a new headquarters by 1992. Earlier this week, Penney announced the sale of its old headquarters, a 45-story building in midtown Manhattan, for $350 million.

While conceding sluggish sales in the current quarter, Penney officials were upbeat about the future of the nation's fourth-largest retailer.

"We are progressing steadily toward becoming the dominant retailer for middle-income and upper middle-income America," said David F. Miller, vice chairman of the board and chief operating officer.

Miller said the company is continuing its transformation from "Main Street USA to the suburbs."

In the last quarter, Penney's earnings decreased 4 percent to $131 million as compared with $136 million in the same 1987 period.

High-level aerobics set

A high level aerobics class will be offered for summer students at Western Texas College. Instructor will be Debbie Landa and Donna Hamilton. Both are certified instructors through Totally Fit, Inc.

Classes will meet on Monday, Wednesday and Friday nights from 5:45-7:15 p.m. Lab times will be scheduled by the instructors if needed.

The high level aerobics class is geared to those persons who already have some level of fitness. It includes a warm-up portion, the aerobic section and a cool down. A variation of arm and leg work with rubber bands and weights will be included in the workouts. The class will be self-paced, adhering to aerobic principles.

The class is listed on the schedule as HPE 111 402. For more information call Landa at 573-3163; Hamilton at 573-9712 or Lee Burke at WTC, 573-8511.

Registration for summer classes will be held on Tuesday.

Police help 2,000 protest

BUDAPEST, Hungary (AP) — Police stood by peacefully as about 2,000 people protested a Danube River power project, a sign of Communist authorities' increasing tolerance of dissent that does not challenge them directly.

A participant in Friday's demonstration said police refrained from interfering and even cleared the way for marchers as they went their way through downtown Budapest to the Austrian Embassy.

The project in Nagymaros, Hungary, is being financed largely by Austria.

Because of the liquidation of some sales items, a slump in the apparel industry and a pervading conservative mood on the part of consumers, any recovery may have to wait until the second half of the year, Howell said.

Howell said consumers have become more hesitant since the Oct. 18 stock market crash.

"Psychologically something changed in everybody's mind about what's going on in America," he said.

In addition to the increased effort in clothing sales, the company is promoting itself through an association with an upcoming movie, titled "The Land Before Time," which is a collaboration

Swimming pool hours reported

The Western Texas College Swimming pool will begin its summer schedule Tuesday.

A summer swim pass is available for persons who would like to swim frequently and these passes are $50 per person or $150 for families. The daily charge is $2 per person.

Swimming classes for children and adults are scheduled beginning Tuesday. Call 573-8511, ext. 240 for more information.

The pool will be open to the public for open swimming from 2-5 p.m. Monday through Thursday. It is open for lap swimming from 6:30-8:30 a.m. The pool will be in use from 8:30 a.m. to 2 p.m. each day and will not be open for swimming. All WTC students except those enrolled in swimming or diving classes will be subject to the regular fee. Persons who wish to swim at times other than when in class will also be subject to the regular fee.

Family, man reunion set

IRVINGTON, N.J. (AP) — More than 40 years ago, a Ukrainian farmer risked his life to hide a Jewish family from Nazi soldiers. Now that family, who lives in New Jersey, plans to thank him in person.

Five members of the Zeiger family, originally of the Ukraine, left Friday for the Soviet Union to visit Antoh Suchinsky, who still lives on the farm where the family hid beneath a barn for two years.

Michael Zeiger was 8 years old when he went into hiding.

Drug fighting power included

BEST ALL AROUND—Amy Shoultz and Kyle Sorrells were voted best all around at Ica. (SDN Staff Photo)

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate untied a 2-week-old knot Friday and passed a Pentagon budget bill that grants the Pentagon wide-ranging new powers to enter the war against illegal drug smugglers.

The nearly $300 billion bill was approved on a voice vote in a mostly empty Senate chamber, after Sen. Alfonse D'Amato, R-N.Y., dropped his amendment that would have permitted the death penalty to be imposed on drug dealers who are convicted of killing someone.

That amendment had stalled the measure for two weeks because the bill's supporters said the proposal would never be accepted by the House. D'Amato's proposal will be considered as a separate bill after the Senate returns next month from its Memorial Day recess.

Friday's vote sends the bill to a House-Senate conference committee to reconcile differences between the Pentagon budget measures passed separately by each chamber.

D'Amato had offered his plan as an amendment to the Pentagon bill because Senate opponents had previously threatened to filibuster his proposal if it was offered as a separate piece of legislation.

For two weeks, D'Amato refused to drop his amendment, arguing that lacking it onto the Pentagon bill was the only way to get a vote. D'Amato's plan is popular, as evidenced by an earlier 68-27 vote rejecting a move to kill it. But Senate rules protect the rights of the minority, meaning D'Amato's opponents could have filibustered.

Senate Democratic leaders pressed D'Amato to withdraw his amendment, arguing it was delaying the conference consideration of the Pentagon bill and could thus damage national security.

The bill authorizes $299.5 billion in Pentagon spending, the same total proposed by the House bill. The current defense budget is $291 billion.

The $299.5 billion figure was approved by President Reagan last December as part of the agreement between the White House and Congress to put together a budget package aimed at reducing federal budget deficits.

That was $3 billion less than the Pentagon had expected to receive in the fiscal year starting Oct. 1, and Defense Secretary Frank Carlucci ordered wide-ranging cuts to meet the lower figure. The reductions include laying off 34,000 civilian personnel and the early retirement of 16 aging Navy frigates.

The most controversial provision of the Senate bill was an amendment giving the military new authority to help the fight against illegal drugs, including arrest powers for Navy officers aboard warships which stop suspected drug boats on the high seas.

The anti-drug provision in the Senate bill is not as far-reaching as that proposed by the House, which overwhelmingly voted to order Reagan to have the military essentially seal off the U.S. borders against the smuggling of illegal drugs.

The Senate bill, as does the House measure, contains money for a vast array of weapons. Among those in the Senate measure are another Trident missile-firing submarine, two more 688-class attack subs, the first of the new "Seawolf" class of attack subs, three destroyers, 72 F-16 fighters, 36 F-15s, 180 F-16s and 72 Apache attack helicopters.

Parents sue club that served driver

DALLAS (AP) — The parents of a Dallas man killed by an intoxicated driver have filed suit saying two nightclubs are liable in the death because employees served drinks to a drunk customer.

A suit filed Friday by the parents of Arthur O. Holmes, 26, who was killed after his car was hit May 31, 1986 by a vehicle driven by Steven K. Leatherwood is one of the first under the state's new "dramshop law."

The "dramshop law" passed by the Legislature in June 1987, holds establishments that sell or serve liquor liable when they serve a customer who is "obviously intoxicated to the extent that he presents a clear danger to himself and others."

Gen. Arthur Holmes Jr. of Michigan and Alice Holmes of Virginia allege in the suit that Leatherwood had visited Deja Vu and/or Baby Dolls Topless Saloon for about six hours that night. Leatherwood, who ran a stop sign at the scene of the accident, was not named in the suit.

Roy Hale of the Texas Alcoholic Beverage Commission said that he is aware of only one case that has gone to trial to test an establishment's liability and that that case was filed before the dramshop law went into effect.

In that case, the parents of Larry Poole, killed in a traffic accident in Houston, filed suit against an El Chico restaurant. The trial court judge determined the restaurant could not be held liable for the actions of a drunken driver who hit and killed Poole. However, the Texas Supreme Court overruled that decision and sent the case back to the state district court, where it is still pending.

The Holmes' suit, which also alleges negligence of the two Dallas bars under "common law" in force before the dramshop act, says the bars continued to serve Leatherwood even though servers should have known he was drunk. The suit also alleges the bars did not provide Leatherwood alternate transportation.

Owners of the nightclubs were not immediately available for comment.

Hale, seller training coordinator for the state beverage commission, said similar cases are pending in Dallas, Houston and Bryan-College Station.

Kathryn Floyd is named chamber manager at Post

Kathryn Ann Floyd, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robbie Floyd of Snyder, has been named manager of the Post Chamber of Commerce. She will begin her new duties on June 1.

She received her B. A. in Human Communication from Abilene Christian University in May 1987 and her M. A. in Human Communication from ACU in May of 1988.

Floyd has worked as a substitute teacher in Abilene and as a graduate teaching assistant at Abilene Christian University.

In the fall of 1987, she did a semester of graduate work in Jerusalem, Israel.

Senior Center will be closed on Monday

The Senior Center will be closed on Monday for Memorial Day. It will resume its regular schedule on Tuesday.

Swimastics for senior citizens will begin its summer schedule on Tuesday. The class will meet from 12:30-1:30 p.m. on Tuesdays and Thursdays. Participants may enter the pool at 12:30 on those days. Senior citizens and the general public may use the pool at specified hours Monday through Thursday during the summer by buying a swim pass or paying $2 per visit.

Miniature golfers meet at Westerner Golfland at 8:30 a.m. on Thursdays. More golfers are needed for this activity and new players are invited to join the group on Thursday. The group plays at a reduced rate through the courtesy of the golfland management.

At 11:30 a.m. Thursday, Gingham Williamson will present a program on "Thomas Education" in the center's dining room. The textile painting class meets at 9 a.m. on Thursday.

A reducing exercise class for women meets at 3 p.m. on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays. Stretching and bending exercises are stressed in a class meeting at 11 a.m. each morning.

Success seminar slated June 9

Western Texas College will hold the first of its 1988 summer Success Seminars on June 9.

The seminars offer students the opportunity to pre-register for the fall semester, meet with academic advisors who will help with the selection of classes, and to get a view of various aspects of campus life.

All students who will be entering WTC as full-time freshmen for the first time in the fall semester must attend one of the summer Success Seminars. Dr. Duane Hood, Dean of Student Services, said this includes students who will be taking summer classes.

Students planning to attend the seminar are to inform the Admissions Office by mail or telephone. This information is important so plans for the luncheon and testing can be made.

There is no charge for attending the seminar. Students who do not have an ACT or SAT score on file at WTC will take the ASSET test and there is a $5 fee for that test.

Students who pre-register will be billed in August for tuition, fees and housing charges.

The June 9 Success Seminar will begin at 8:30 a.m. in the Student Center and students are to be there at that time to complete the required documents. Refreshments will be served.

Students who have ACT or SAT scores on file will pre-register, receive information on financial aid and tour the campus. Students without test scores on file will take the ASSET test starting at 10 a.m. and pre-register after completion of the test.

Parents are encouraged to attend the seminar along with the student and they are invited to join the student for a complimentary lunch starting at 11 a.m. in the Student Service cafeteria.

Students who have completed pre-registration by 1 p.m. are invited to swim, play golf or racquetball or are free to go.

Additional Success Seminars are planned on July 14 and August 2 and reservations for those sessions are now being accepted. Call the Admissions Office for more information.

The 1988 economic growth rate of 2.3 percent of the seven main industrial countries — Canada, France, Germany, Italy, Japan, the United Kingdom and the United States — was the weakest since the recession year of 1982. This has meant that developing countries in Latin America have not found much help in fostering their own economic growth, which is considered essential to manage their debt problems, according to the Inter-American Development Bank.

Reagan lauds performance of Soviets on human rights

HELSINKI, Finland (AP) — President Reagan, underscoring a key theme for the superpower summit, said Friday that reforms championed by Soviet leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev are "new and good" but that the Kremlin still falls short of meeting international standards on human rights and freedom.

Two days before his arrival in Moscow, Reagan said, "Soviet practice does not — or does not yet — measure up to Soviet commitment" under the 1975 East-West agreement known as the Helsinki Final Act.

The Senate gave Reagan a big pre-summit boost Friday when it ratified by an overwhelming 93-5 vote the treaty outlawing medium-range nuclear missiles which the president and Gorbachev signed at their

Washington summit last December.

Reagan issued a statement saying he was "very pleased" with the Senate vote, which he said "clearly shows support for our arms reduction objectives."

Senate Majority Leader Robert C. Byrd, D-W.Va., and Minority Leader Robert Dole, R-Kan., who telephoned the president in Helsinki with the news, accepted Reagan's invitation to fly to Moscow Tuesday to witness a ratification ceremony the following day.

Reagan made his human rights speech before an invited audience of about 1,200 people in the austere marble auditorium of Finlandia Hall, where the Helsinki accords were signed by 35 nations, including the Soviet Union and United States.

Under the agreement, the Soviets pledged to provide more liberty for their people and those in Eastern Europe. And yet, 13 years later, Reagan said, the cases of divided families and blocked marriages remain on the East-West agenda, while Russians trying to emigrate are subjected to artificial quotas and arbitrary rulings.

"And what are we to think of the continued suppression of those who wish to practice their religious beliefs?" Reagan asked.

At the same time, he said Gorbachev's twin campaigns of "glasnost," or openness, and "perestroika," the restructuring of the economy, are "words that to our ears have a particularly welcome sound."

Parents think they influence their kids more than they do

DALLAS (AP) — Some parents may have the wrong idea thinking they have a big influence on what movies their children watch, according to a 28-state survey released Friday.

When questioned in a parent-child poll, 58 percent of the adults said they determine what movies their children see all of the time, but only one-third of the children felt adults exercised that much control.

The poll surveyed almost 6,000 adults and children — 2,941 adults and 2,972 children chosen randomly in shopping malls in 250 cities across the United States.

Conducted May 21 as part of National Research Day, the survey poll was coordinated by Dallas-based M-A-R-C Inc., a research and marketing information services company.

Despite the parent-child differences, the survey found that children clearly understand what their parents object to their watching.

Five of every eight parents — 63 percent — identified horror movies as being unacceptable viewing for their children, while 57 percent of the children said they recognized that their parents felt that way.

Following horror films, the most opposed subjects were war and detective movies, a spokesman for the research firm said. The survey found little objection by adults to action-adventure, comedy, musicals, western or animated movies.

Animated features and comedy films clearly were the adults' preferred viewing fare for their children. Of the parents surveyed, 73 percent endorsed the choice, while action-adventure movies drew only 12 percent parental approval and horror movies had only 2 percent parental support.

Among the children surveyed, 50 percent preferred animated or comedy films, 17 percent favored action-adventure movies and 15 percent liked horror movies best.

Officials said the disparity between adult and children perceptions of viewing control might be explained by children's movie viewing partners.

Eighty-five percent of the adults seemed to feel their children watch TV movies most often with a parent or other family member, but more than one-third of the children said they usually watch movies alone or with a friend.

M-A-R-C executive vice president Pete Bogda said the survey's goal was to counter negative views of opinion and marketing research surveys by showing the key role that survey research plays in today's society.

Although the survey was not a technically valid probability sample, similar research could be used to determine the kind of films produced in the future, he said.

Several other topics were covered in the survey:

- 80 percent of the participating families said they own a videocassette recorder, and almost all were used to record movies.
- 59 percent of the adults agreed with the legal prohibition against copying rental movies.

By Shirley A. Gorman

After working as a pharmacist for the past 54 years, Roy Burgess of Snyder has finally decided to call it quits. Technically, he has been retired for the past 10 years since selling his interest in what was then known as the Burgess Pharmacy.

In reality, he has been "pinch hitting" as a relief pharmacist in several surrounding towns including Rotan and Sweetwater. He has worked also part time in Big Spring for the past three to four years.

He also substituted in Snyder on an emergency basis, but that happened only rarely since he said it would not have been fair for him to continue working as a pharmacist in Snyder after he had sold out his interest in his pharmacy.

Recently, the Texas Board of Pharmacy honored him with a 50 year certificate.

Burgess obtained his pharmacist's license in 1934 and he and his brother, Rayburn, opened Burgess Pharmacy on Jan. 1, 1957 at the present day site of Eddie Peterson's Pharmacy. They were at that location five years before buying the property where the present Burgess-McWilliams Pharmacy is located today. They also built that building.

Some 10 years ago, Burgess sold his interest in the pharmacy to the late Jerry McWilliams who was then working for them and was a recent pharmacy school graduate.

Burgess said that eventually his brother also sold out his interest in the pharmacy. Presently, Rayburn is working in Colorado City for a pharmacy which the Burgess brothers helped get started with Eddie Piland. Rayburn Burgess is 15 years younger than his brother, Roy. Both are registered pharmacists.

Roy Burgess noted this is the first year he did not renew his license. He decided not to do so because he said he "really wanted" to retire this time.

Burgess' father was also a pharmacist and that is where both brothers got a taste for the profession that they would one day make their own, Burgess said.

Burgess was born in Eufaula, Okla., but he lived in Texas all of his life. When Burgess was a few months old, his parents moved back to Texas. They lived at Big Spring where his father, E.E. Burgess, was a pharmacist for "Shine" Phillips Drug Store.

His father put in the first pharmacy in Quitaque in 1919. Burgess grew up there and he recalls working for his father in that store.

When Burgess decided to become a pharmacist, the requirements were different than they are today.

Burgess started out attending West Texas State Teachers College, now West Texas State University in Canyon. He was taking pharmacy-related courses and had planned to get his degree when he found out that in the state of New Mexico you could become a pharmacist if you could pass the state board examination.

He then decided to attend the Danforth School of Pharmacy in Fort Worth in order to prepare for the examination. He attended that school for about six to nine months, learning, among many other things, the metric system.

In 1934, he passed the New Mexico test and became a licensed pharmacist. Through a reciprocal agreement, Texas also honored this license.

"I was lucky. I got in under the wire because the rules were changed shortly thereafter," Burgess explained. "But by do-

LONGTIME PHARMACIST HONORED-- Recently Roy Burgess, longtime Snyder pharmacist before he retired, received a 50 year certificate from the State Board of Pharmacy. In actuality, he had been a pharmacist for 54 years, before retiring this year. At one time he and his brother, Rayburn, owned what was once known as the Burgess Pharmacy (now Burgess-McWilliams Pharmacy) (SDN Staff Photo)

ing it that way I saved myself about two years of college."

Burgess explained his brother attended Oklahoma State University for four years to earn a degree in pharmacy. He became a pharmacist after serving in the U.S. Navy.

In the year 1934, Burgess also met and married his wife, the former Janella Hollis. She was living in Quitaque at the time with an older married sister and her family.

Throughout the past 54 years, Burgess has worked in many towns in Texas including Lubbock and Amarillo.

Since he became a pharmacist during the Depression and the income from the Quitaque store was not enough to support two families, he said he obtained a job in Amarillo as a pharmacist. Their first child was born there, a girl they named Lou Nell.

Later, they moved to Crowell where he worked for about a year before the town was almost destroyed by a tornado. Burgess and his wife had just left the drug store where he was working when the tornado destroyed it.

They then moved to Lubbock where he went to work for John Halsey Drug. Sometime later they moved to Quitaque because of the failing health of his parents. Later Burgess was joined by his brother Rayburn. Since things were still "quiet business wise," he said they took turns serving as relief pharmacists over a wide area.

In time they decided to sell the Quitaque store and open a pharmacy in Lubbock. They were going to be located in a small shopping center on 34th Street. They picked out a lot for the store and even had a sign erected saying "Future Home of Burgess Pharmacy."

The builder's plans fell through, however, and they decided to take the advice of a pharmaceutical salesman who told him that Snyder would be a

Ancient baldness 'cure'

NEW YORK (AP) — Years ago, yogurt was thought to be an aphrodisiac and a cure for baldness by some folks in parts of Europe.

Today, preliminary research suggests yogurt does offer health benefits, according to Dannon.

Yogurt with live, active cultures, may play a role in lowering serum cholesterol, protecting against certain cancers, boosting the immune system and helping fight gastrointestinal infections, say researchers.

CONSUMERS CAN RESOLVE COMPLAINTS

When you have a problem with a product or service, what do you do? Forget about it, complain to your friends or seek recourse?

Few people try to get satisfaction when they have a complaint. Unfortunately, consumers often believe their complaints won't be heard, or they don't know who to contact.

In general, the best place to start is at the place where you bought the item or service. If you aren't satisfied with the response in a reasonable amount of time, however, don't give up, since you have other options for resolving the problem.

There are many sources available for resolving consumer complaints.

Many national companies have corporate consumer affairs offices to answer questions or handle complaints. Often these offices will have a toll-free 800 number for consumers to call.

If you can't resolve a problem with an automobile dealer, check with the manufacturer since most have regional offices for handling consumer complaints. There are 17 non-profit Better Business Bureaus in Texas. Many of the BBBs accept written complaints and will contact a firm on your behalf.

In addition, the Consumer Protection Division of the Attorney General's Office operates offices in Austin, Dallas, El Paso, Houston, Lubbock, McAllen and San Antonio. Dallas and Harris Counties have Consumer Fraud Divisions and the cities of Dallas and Ft. Worth have Consumer Affairs offices.

Local libraries typically have reference materials that can guide you in your efforts to resolve consumer complaints. For example, they will have books listing trade associations and occupational and professional licensing boards, many of which handle consumer problems.

One of the best sources of assistance, the "Consumer's Resource Handbook," is published by the U.S. Office of Consumer Affairs and is available free by writing the Consumer Information Center, Pueblo, Colo. 81009.

PECAN CASEBEARER

Many pecan growers in Scurry County have contacted my office regarding when to treat for the Pecan Nut Casebearer. At this time, indications are that the best time for applying a spray for this insect will be around June 4. This is still an estimated date and the pecan growers should be prepared to treat their trees a few days earlier if needed.

To time spray applications for casebearer control, first check for eggs on a daily basis. Eggs are usually found on the tips of nutlets and are about the size of the ball in a ball-point pen. The eggs are white when first laid, then turn red over a three- to five-day period before turning white again after they hatch.

Apply an insecticide the third day after the eggs hatch so as to kill the larvae before they enter the nutlets. Since the larvae will hatch over a week-long period or more, a second spraying may be necessary.

Insecticides recommended for casebearer control include Zolone, Sevin, Guthion and Malathion. Homeowners may want to include a fungicide such as Benomyl for scab control and NZN should be added for growth and control of rosette.

A good mixture for the homeowner would be four tablespoons Zolone, three tablespoons Benomyl and six teaspoons NZN for three gallons of water. Other insecticides can be substituted for Zolone according to the manufacturers label recommendations.

The most important part of this mixture, of course, is the insecticide for the control of the pecan nut casebearer. The other ingredients can be added at the discretion of the homeowner. But the timing of the application should be delayed until after the eggs have hatched.

Remember the Pecan Nut Casebearer is a perennial pest that can completely destroy a pecan crop if not controlled. Also, remember the casebearer has three generations per year and they are approximately 42 days apart. The total nut loss is usually greater during the spring generation because an individual larvae may destroy a complete nut cluster. Later generations usually destroy one or two nuts in the cluster.

SUMMER READING PROGRAM

It's time to address the children again, but adults need to read this to find out what your child may be involved in this summer.

Our Summer Reading Program sign-up begins May 31. Children may register any time during the summer; however, if they sign up between May 31 and June 4, they may purchase a balloon for 25 cents and be a part of the balloon launch scheduled on June 9.

The balloon launch is the first of many summer activities that will take place at the Scurry County Library. We want as many children as possible to participate in the reading program entitled "Trailblazers, Stargazers." Our hope is that the children will "trailblaze" through our library into the many adventures books offer.

We are proud to say we have received some of the Texas Bluebonnet winning books and plan to have them ready for the summer reader. There are also new books for the younger reader in the Easy Section of our library.

Parents, don't let your child complain about being bored this summer. Reading at the library can be fun, inexpensive and informational. Help your child develop a good habit — READING!

Burgess reflects on career as pharmacist

good place to locate a pharmacy. Both Burgess and his wife, Janella, made several trips to Snyder before they decided to open Burgess Pharmacy here.

Burgess said that during their business days in Snyder he and his brother purchased the stock and prescriptions of three other pharmacies in Snyder.

Through the years, Burgess said he kept up with new drugs by reading the pamphlets provided by the drug companies and by meetings with pharmaceutical representatives whose job it was to keep pharmacists informed of new drugs.

Burgess admits to struggling sometimes with reading the handwriting of most physicians who usually "scribble" out prescriptions. He said he learned from experience and repetition to decipher the handwriting. He even said that there were times he had to go to the back of the store and just sit down until he could figure it out. And sometimes he would even call the doctor's office to verify a prescription. He said his rule of thumb was that if he had any doubts at all he was to call and double check.

"I liked knowing and associating with my customers," Burgess said. "Sometimes even now I hear from former customers who tell me they still miss me. Some even call me at home about a prescription."

"I think one of the greatest things is to earn the respect of your customers," he said.

Burgess said he also maintained good relations with the doctors as well.

He said he also found it interesting to keep up with new drugs and learn what they can and cannot do.

Throughout these past 50-plus years, Burgess has seen many changes in pharmacy. For one thing he said that when he started more than 50 years ago there were only a handful of drugs on the market. The first big change was antibiotics. He said laws have changed also. Drugs are more potent now and you have to be very careful how drugs are mixed because of possible interactions.

He said it is also necessary for pharmacists to carry liability insurance. To protect themselves he said pharmacists shouldn't even recommend an over the counter medicine because of the possibility of a lawsuit should someone fail to read the warning label and develop a problem.

But one of the biggest changes and blessings, according to Burgess, was the advent of the computer which simplified record keeping and saves times and helps prevent errors.

Burgess has two daughters. The oldest is a registered nurse in Austin. The other, Sue Ann, is helping her husband run the family business in Newcastle, Okla.

He also has four grandsons and one granddaughter.

Reflecting on his long career, Burgess said "I feel that I did a good job."

Now that he is officially retired, Burgess said he plans to continue golfing, which he loves.

The Burgesses are members of Colonial Hill Baptist Church.

Hill, McCowen repeat vows

MR. AND MRS. SHAWN BLAIR MCCOWEN

SWEETWATER — Anniesa Carol Hill became the bride of Shawn Blair McCowen April 23 in the First United Methodist Church. Officiating the double-ring ceremony was the Rev. Lane Boyd of Sweetwater.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Hill of Sweetwater and Mr. and Mrs. Clint McCowen of Snyder. Grandparents are Leona Voss and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Lee Hill of Winters.

Vows were repeated before an altar centered by two white wrought-iron candelabra, each holding nine hurricane lamps with candles and white carnations. An arrangement of white gladioli, roses and daisies completed the altar decor. Pew markers lit the bride's path to the altar.

Bonnie Walter provided prelude and wedding music for the ceremony.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown created of snowy peau de soie and Schiffli embroidered lace. The traditional gown featured a high Victorian collar and a lace bodice.

The full skirt was embellished by a lace-appliqued front. The back trailed into a cathedral-length train topped by a large self bow with long flourishes. The gown was designed and fashioned by the bride.

A three-quarter wreath of rosebuds, stephanotis, pearls and ribbon adorned the bride's hair. She carried a cascade of rosebuds, stephanotis and English ivy.

Following tradition, the bride wore a 1904 wedding ring belonging to her maternal grandmother, the late Mrs. A.G. Hoppe, as something old. Something new was her dress. Something borrowed was a pair of diamond earrings from Clinta Lester, sister of the groom. Her blue garter was made by Leona Voss, the bride's grandmother. White ropers held pennies minted in the birth years of the couple.

Angie Strickland of Snyder, sister of the bride, served as matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Neika McCowen and Clinta Lester, sisters of the groom, and Jereme Lester, his niece.

The attendants were attired in tea-length dresses of sapphire blue satin.

The groom was attired in a silver grey western tuxedo.

Scott Warren of Snyder was best man. Groomsmen were Curtis Stepe and Darrel Lester. Ushers were Mark Strickland and Bill Wilson. All wore black tuxedos in western design.

Guests were registered by Andrea Morris of Lubbock.

Following the ceremony, the bride's parents hosted a reception in the fellowship hall of the church.

The bride's table was covered with a white cloth and a blue overlay. The table was centered by a three-tiered white wedding cake accented by blue streamers and topped with a miniature bride and groom. A silver punch bowl also complimented the table. The bride's bouquet served as the centerpiece arrangement.

Servers at the bride's table were Ahlona Dahlberg of Lynch, Neb. and Mrs. Allan Carter of San Angelo.

The groom's table featured a centerpiece consisting of cotton, maize and wheat. The table was covered with a beige cloth and blue overlay. Cotton bolls tied with brown ribbon accented the table. A chocolate cake decorated with a cotton boll was served. A beige enamel coffee set completed the country look.

Servers were Aimee Walker of Ira and Susie Scott of Snyder.

Rice bags were distributed by Jereme Lester.

Following a wedding trip to New Mexico, the couple is at home in Snyder.

Bridge champion Alphonse "Sonny" Moyses (1898-1973), at one time editor and publisher of The Bridge World magazine, was a staunch advocate of opening four-card majors and of supporting with only three trumps. Consequently, he played many contracts in a 4-3 trump fit, a practice not recommended for the fainthearted, but one that produces some interesting results. Today's upside-down spade partial is a good example of the so-called Moysian fit.

South's spade response to his partner's diamond opening was a bit bizarre, but in his system, a two-club response was forcing to game. His other choices — a no-trump response and a premature diamond raise — seemed equally unattractive. North naturally raised spades, and South stuck to his guns and passed.

The opening club lead cleared up that suit. South won and fired a low trump, won the club continuation with dummy's king and led a heart. He ruffed the next round of hearts, played the trump ace, crossed to a diamond and played yet another trump, discarding a diamond. When the trumps clattered, South happily claimed the rest of the tricks. The normal contract, of course, was a club partial, usually producing 10 tricks unless East and West were inspired enough to build their diamond trick before declarer could establish the 13th spade for a discard. However, the spade partial seemed a better option.

Conservatives, purists and rubber-bridge players will no doubt shudder or sneer at the North-South contract, but swashbucklers like Sonny Moyses win a lot of tournaments.

Proper back support is 'needed in chairs for the office

NEW YORK (AP) — Many of five workers who feel their chair is important to their comfort are not satisfied with their present seating arrangement, according to a recent Louis Harris survey.

Ergonomic studies that examine how people relate to machines and other objects have found that the back experiences more strain from eight hours of sitting than from eight hours of standing.

One recommendation resulting from the studies is the use of a high-back chair in the office to help reduce back strain and minimize discomfort. High-back chairs provide greater back support so the muscles do not have to work as hard to hold up the spine, ergonomists point out.

Until recently, the only such chairs generally available were oversized designs for male executives. Now, a company has developed a chair available both in high- and mid-back models in three different sizes for male and female office workers of all body types.

The chair was designed to support back muscles in many positions, and responds automatically when the sitter moves, according to Steelcase Inc., the manufacturer.

4-H club kids raising puppies for guide dogs

TOPEKA, Kan. (AP) — Four Labrador retriever puppies arrived recently in Neosho County, headed for homes with area families.

But these puppies will be in Kansas only a year. Then the dogs will go into a rigorous training program in Ohio, where they'll learn how to guide blind people through stores, into restaurants and across streets.

The dogs are part of an agreement reached in 1986 by Marta Laylander, the county's agricultural extension agent, with Pilot Dogs Incorporated of Columbus, Ohio.

Under the agreement, area 4-H children raise dogs bred by Pilot until the dogs are big enough to start training. Most of the nine guide dog schools in the nation arrange with 4-H programs to raise the puppies they breed, Laylander said. But Kansas was always too far away from any of the schools, until Laylander persuaded Delta Airlines to fly the dogs from Columbus to Kansas City for free.

For the children and families who take the dogs, "It's an opportunity for them to have contact with one of these dogs that is so superior in temperament and intelligence," Laylander said.

For the dogs, it's part of a necessary process to help them get used to people.

"They have to be raised in a family environment and socialized to the world in general," Laylander said.

To participate in the program, children must be at least 14 years old and have two years of dog training experience, usually through a county 4-H program. They also have to promise to take care of the dogs for a year — and then give them up.

"They have to say that yes, they'll raise the puppy in the house, take it to the veterinarian and complete an obedience course with it," Laylander said. "They also have to give it up at the end of the year, and sometimes that's hard."

But, Laylander said, the children know the dogs will help blind people.

"We try to remember what we're raising them for," Laylander said.

Fran Clay's 18-year-old daughter, Jodi, has raised two of the dogs — a Labrador named Pollyanna and a boxer named Wiggles.

"They're very sweet-natured," Fran Clay said, although otherwise very different. Pollyanna was "super-intelligent," Clay said. "She just waited, seeming to say, 'Show me what you want to do and I'll do it.' Wiggles was more, 'You really want me to do that?'"

Pollyanna is now with a 21-year-old blind woman in Ohio, and Wiggles is still in the training program. Trainers there have told Clay they'll have to find a shorter person for Wiggles, the runt of the litter.

While the dogs are in Kansas, Laylander has strict rules about their upbringing. For example, the dogs are not allowed to eat anything but dog food.

"You don't want them taking something off a blind person's plate," Clay said.

The dogs also are taught obedience, including not to jump on people and to obey basic commands.

"We don't do anything tricky," Laylander said. "We leave that to Pilot."

The families of the 4-Hers who take the dogs pay for the dogs' food but receive compensation for all veterinary expenses.

When they go to Pilot, the training for the dogs becomes tougher. First, they are in quarantine for two weeks, to determine if they're healthy. Then they spend four to six months working with a trainer. Then they're matched with a blind person, and spend another month learning to live with that person.

So far, the dogs in the Neosho program have done well. The first four Labradors successfully completed the training and are now with blind people. Three of the four boxers the group received next are still in the training program, but one was excluded because of a hip deformity.

SEW EASY WEDDING ACCESSORIES

In even the best-planned wedding, it's the "small" accessories that often wreck the schedule and the budget. Andrea Nynas of Viking Sewing Machines was organized enough to sew her own beautiful and elaborate wedding gown. But a few days before the wedding, when she went shopping for a garter and wedding ring pillow, her budget went into a spin at the thought of $30 for a pillow, $10-15 for a garter, $1-20 for a lace handkerchief, and well over $100 for a veil. So she designed and made her own! Using bits of fabric, lace and ribbon, she created highly personal accessories. "It was surprisingly easy to do and required very little time," she reported, "although I wish I'd started before the rehearsal dinner." Nynas feels that sewing is the most rewarding of hobbies, and being able to personalize her wedding the way she did made it so much more special. She's put together easy-to-follow instructions for her garter, wedding ring pillow, lace handkerchief, and hand-made veil (call that "custom-made," says Nynas), in a free booklet.

Garter Instructions

Supplies:
20" scallop-edged lace (any width)
20" of 1/2" or 5/8" satin ribbon
8" of 1/2" wide ribbon for bow
12" of 3/8" wide elastic (to fit your thigh snugly)
optional: purchased small flower applique for center of bow Stitch ribbon to flat edge of lace along long edges using machine straight stitch, to form elastic casing. Optional: before attaching ribbon to lace, sew a row of machine decorative stitching on ribbon. Insert elastic and pull to desired circumference. Stitch across ends to secure. Right sides together, stitch garter seam, taking a 1/4" seam. Attach bow and floral applique at center.

Wedding Ring Pillow Instructions

Supplies:
10" x 10" foam pillow form
2 11" x 11" squares satin fabric
2 3/4 yards scallop-edged lace (wide)
2 yards 1/8" wide decorative ribbon, cut into 18" sections (to tie at pillow corners)
8" of 1/8" wide ribbon for bows in center of pillow
7" of 1/16" wide ribbon to tie wedding rings on pillow
Fabric marker (water soluble)
Sewing machines embroidery thread and size 70 needle
Tear away stabilizer

Draw heart-shaped motif on right side of one satin fabric square using water soluble marker. Machine embroider heart motif (or program Pictograms if you have Viking model 990). Place tear-away stabilizer behind fabric while sewing; tear away excess when finished.

Gather lace: machine stitch with long straight stitch along flat edge. Adjust lace to fit around square of fabric, right sides together, lining up rad edges. Pin.

Place other satin square on top of lace and fabric, right sides together, so lace is sandwiched between. Pin. Machine stitch around square with 1/2" seam, leaving a 5" x 6" opening on one side. Turn fabric inside out and insert pillow form.

Turn, insert form, slip stitch opening. Tie bows and tack at pillow corners and center of pillow.

Cut down those high wedding costs

By "Changing Times" The Kiplinger Magazine

If you're planning a wedding, you probably know prices are astronomical. Even though the reception, food and caterers will be your biggest wedding expenses, photography, flowers, music and dresses can really run up the bills, too. But there are ways to cut costs.

After food, photography is the one other wedding component that the experts always say you should never skimp on. Perhaps you've seen an ad in a bridal magazine or elsewhere offering a photo studio's "entire package" for $149. You'll get what you pay for.

Arthur Stern, editorial director for the trade group Wedding Photographers International, says the average bride budgets about $700 for photography, and consultants say you should prepare to spend $800 or more for professional work.

As with caterers, shop the ads, talk to friends, check references and look at work samples. Keep in mind that part-time wedding photographers can do as good a job as full-timers can.

If you want pictures that express the unconventional side of your personality, use a photographer who specializes in still lifes, candid or corporate photography. "These are the people you can hire on a time rate, $200 a day and up, and they give you either contact sheets and the negatives or just the film," says New York City wedding consultant Marcy Blum. "Then you take care of the printing. There's an enormous amount of money to be saved there." Proceed cautiously with this option: If you change your mind about the unconventional look once the proofs come back, you can't rerun your wedding.

Nearly a third of first-time brides order video coverage of their weddings in addition to still photos. "I've heard prices for videos that range from $250 all the way up to $2,000," says Bob LeBar in Hartsdale, N.Y., who sells taped wedding graphics such as hearts coming together and stars exploding — to videographers. "There is a wide range of quality. The less you pay, the less you get."

LeBar's advice: Look at a videographer's demo reel and ask to see something more. "A lot of times," LeBar explains, "the demo will be a knockout, but the wedding video it was taken from has two hours of boring shooting and just a few minutes of exciting stuff that was used for the demo reel."

Ask if there's editing involved and if it is included in the price. "In-camera editing," by the way, merely consists of turning the camera on and off while filming. Do you get the master tape? And how many copies? How many cameramen will shoot the event? Will the person you talked to be at the wedding? "There are companies that, on a Saturday in June, have booked 20 weddings," LeBar says. "And so they send out beginners to shoot your wedding."

These chocolate and macadamia bars are rich and heavenly. Our test kitchen found that they're easier to remove from the baking pan if the pan is lined with wax paper.

CHOCOLADAMIAS

1/2 cup margarine or butter
4 ounces white baking bar or pieces with cocoa butter
2 eggs
1 cup sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 cup all-purpose flour
1/4 teaspoon salt
1/2 cup chopped macadamia nuts
1/2 cup milk chocolate pieces

Grease a 9- by 9- by 2-inch baking pan; line bottom and sides with wax paper. Grease wax paper. In a small saucepan cook and stir margarine and baking bar or pieces over low heat until melted. (Mixture may separate.) Set aside.

In a small mixer bowl beat eggs. Gradually add sugar, beating until light. Add margarine mixture and vanilla. Add flour and salt; mix well. Stir in nuts and chocolate pieces. Turn into prepared pan. Bake in a 325-degree oven for 35 minutes or until top is golden. Cool in pan on wire rack. Loosen edges and invert. Remove wax paper; invert again. Cut into bars. Makes 36.

Plant faces hurdles

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Gov. Mario Cuomo, who persuaded a Long Island utility to abandon a $5.3 billion nuclear plant, still has to sell the deal to Wall Street bankers and a host of federal, state and local officials. Cuomo, who announced the tentative agreement on the Shoreham nuclear plant Thursday, also wants the plant 55 miles east of Manhattan dismantled, but said there may be problems winning approval from the U.S. Nuclear Regulatory Commission.

"I expect the NRC to do everything it can to kill us and open the plant," the governor said. "I don't trust the NRC." If the agreement with the Long Island Lighting Co. goes through, it would mark the first time a completed U.S. nuclear plant was abandoned before opening. For LILCO, which was driven to the edge of bankruptcy by the plant, the deal averted a threatened takeover by the state.

The accord drew applause from Shoreham opponents, even though it concedes LILCO a rate hike of more than 50 percent over the next decade to pay for the shutdown.

"This makes my whole year!" said Linda Schantz, who lives in the town of Shoreham with her husband and two children.

But it was the latest bad news for the troubled nuclear industry. More than 100 nuclear plants have been canceled since LILCO began building Shoreham in 1973 and no plants have been proposed in the last decade.

"The pact 'is a bad agreement for the nation as a whole,'" said Edward M. Davis, president of the American Nuclear Energy Council, an industry group in Washington. "The agreement could threaten energy security, as well as national security, by increasing oil prices in the face of predicted brownouts in the Northeast this summer."

Cuomo said the plant must be torn down to prevent future state leaders from resurrecting it.

Just mothballing it, he told an Albany news conference, "would be very much like taking a loaded rifle and storing it in the closet."

U.S. Rep. George Hochbrueckner, whose district includes the plant, agreed.

"We've shown Shoreham the cross, but we have to put a stake through its heart," he said.

However, if the plant were dismantled, the fuel rods would have to be disposed at a nuclear waste facility. There are no facilities for high-level, commercial nuclear waste in the United States, NRC spokesman Frank Ingram said earlier this month.

The Shoreham project, begun in 1965, ended up 10 years behind schedule and 80 times more expensive than predicted.

The plant was completed in 1984 but never opened because state and local officials refused to participate in preparing emergency evacuation plans, arguing that Long Island couldn't be safely evacuated in a nuclear accident. Lacking such a plan, the NRC refused to issue more than a low-power testing license.

Under the agreement, LILCO would pay to decommission the plant, which Cuomo aides said could cost $200 million, while the state would buy it for a token dollar so that LILCO can claim a tax loss.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Strive to be self-reliant today instead of depending too much on others. Your judgment is a little questionable, and you may misplace your trust. LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) If you expect family members to obey your every wish and command today, you could be sorely disappointed. Think twice before throwing your weight around.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Don't sign any documents today unless you are completely at ease with the terms. Commitments you make will be binding, so be careful. LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) Others can't be expected to help with your financial needs today. You'll have to take care of matters yourself or wait until another time.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 22) Unless you and your mate's aims are in total harmony today, things you attempt to do collectively could turn out rather poorly. SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) It's Sunday, and for you it is better to make it a day of rest. Your heart and mind won't be in your work, and the results will reflect this.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You're not likely to be in the mood for small talk today, and there is a possibility you might say something without thinking that will make a bad impression. AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) Guard against tendencies to overreact today if someone does something that displeases you. Be especially careful how you treat family members or relatives.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) Usually you're a rather open-minded and receptive person, but today you might be highly resistant to the ideas and suggestions of others, even if they are good ones. ARIES (March 21-April 19) In your financial involvements today, you must strive to be logical, not emotional. If your feelings dominate, you might do something foolish.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Today, if you encounter someone who holds strong opinions that are opposed to yours, don't enter into a debate. It could get serious.

Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Today, you'll team up with someone to handle an assignment you can't do on your own. However, this person might be too independent to be a good co-worker. LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Don't misinterpret a friend's concern about his/her own interest as a sign of disloyalty today. Your pal may be merely trying to keep his/her priorities in order.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Disruptions on the homefront today could be due to family members' willingness to properly cooperate with one another. You may be a principle offender. LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) Usually you're a rather tactful person, but today you might say something without thinking that could irritate someone else, especially if you're tired or under stress.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 22) Your financial picture looks pretty good for now, but there's a leak that should be plugged up. The culprit is your extravagance on nonessential items. SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You may be more tolerant with outsiders today than you will be with your mate. If you start snapping at your spouse, expect the same treatment in return.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) A companion's behavior may anger you today. However, you're likely to keep it to yourself instead of bringing it out in the open and resolving your differences. AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) Be extremely careful in involvements today that require a cash outlay, even if the arrangement is with close friends.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) In career situations today, be careful not to be too aggressive once a prospect is convinced your wares are worthy. ARIES (March 21-April 19) Your assessment of what needs doing today will be reasonably good, but you might come up short when executing your ideas. Follow your game plan.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) A friend may be a little too curious today about something you consider personal and want to keep secret. Be on guard to fend off this person's prying.

Heart disease rate highest in northeast, lowest in west

ATLANTA (AP) — If you live in New York, your chances of dying from a heart attack may be twice as great as in New Mexico, according to a study that finds "significant" geographic differences in heart-disease death rates.

The national Centers for Disease Control reported Thursday that heart-disease rates were generally highest in concentrated, urbanized areas of the Northeast or Midwest, while the West had the lowest rates.

"We're talking about thousands of deaths difference between the low states and the high states," said Dr. Patrick L. Remington, a CDC researcher.

Heart disease is the leading killer in the United States, taking more lives each year than all other causes combined, according to the American Heart Association. In 1985, 340,800 Americans died of ischemic, or blocked-artery, heart disease — most commonly heart attacks, according to CDC statistics.

Remington said the stress of urbanization itself is probably not to blame for the high rates in the densely populated Northeast and Midwest, but many people in those regions probably have lifestyles that could lead to more heart attacks.

"Just living in a big city doesn't appear to be a risk factor," he said. "But more desk jobs, and greater reliance on automobiles, all are part of a sedentary lifestyle that contributes to greater risk of a heart attack."

He said lack of exercise contributes to weight gain, higher cholesterol levels, stress and high blood pressure — all factors in heart disease.

"Lack of exercise can be directly connected to all these factors," Remington said.

Another likely cause of significant state-to-state discrepancies, Remington said, is the prevalence of cigarette smoking. "These (Northeast and Midwest) states are the states that have high rates of cigarette smoking," he said. "And we do know that cigarette smoking is the most important preventable cause of heart disease. Most deaths from smoking are heart attacks — not lung cancer."

In contrast, "the lowest rates of smoking are in the West," he said.

The five worst states for men and heart disease — New York, New Jersey, Rhode Island, Michigan and Ohio — are all in the Northeast or Midwest, where other states with the highest rates were clustered, the CDC reported.

The best rates are clustered near Chesapeake Bay and in the West. The five lowest heart disease death rates for men were in the District of Columbia, Hawaii, New Mexico, Maryland and Utah.

Similar geographic patterns were shown for women, although males historically suffer most from heart disease.

New York had the nation's worst rate, with 320 out of every 100,000 men dying of ischemic heart disease in 1985. The national average was 249 per 100,000; in New Mexico, the rate was 151.

Remington said other possible causes for the geographic disparities include cholesterol levels and differences in medical care, for which no firm state-by-state data are available.

Sociodemographic differences and population shifts also might play a part, the Atlanta-based CDC said in its weekly report.

However, heart disease death rates for all ages and geographic areas have decreased in the last two decades, the CDC said, citing previously reported research.

Remington noted that much of the nation had similarly high heart disease death rates in the 1950s, "then California and the Western states began declining. There's something about it. . . in certain states, it started earlier."

The museum in Mao Zedong's birthplace in Shaoshan, China, omits any mention of the Cultural Revolution or the Red Guards, and a recent visitor was unable to buy a picture of the late dictator or any of his writings, says National Geographic.

Soviet Union residents unsure of changes effects

NEW YORK (AP) — Muscovites polled on the eve of the summit between President Reagan and Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev showed a lingering mistrust of U.S. policies and found Reagan a puzzle, according to a poll published Friday.

Of the 839 Moscow adults surveyed this month for The New York Times and CBS News, 52 percent said "U.S. policies present a threat to the security of the Soviet Union." Twenty-nine percent said they did not.

Residents of the Soviet capital find Reagan puzzling, according to the telephone poll. More said their impressions were favorable than unfavorable, 24 percent to 18 percent, but about half did not venture an opinion.

Gorbachev and Reagan are to meet next week in Moscow.

The respondents were firmly behind Gorbachev's drive to improve the Soviet Union. Seventy-eight percent supported his domestic policies completely, and 19 percent less than completely.

However, many of those surveyed reacted warily to telephone questions from strangers in a country where historically a freely expressed opinion could mean time in a Siberian labor camp, the Times said. Others seemed to reply mechanically with responses they deemed politically correct.

The interviews were conducted by The Institute of Sociological Research of the Soviet Academy of Sciences on May 7, 8, 14 and 15. The margin of error for the poll was 4 percentage points, meaning results could vary 4 points either way.

Respondents especially liked Gorbachev's calls for greater democracy and openness. Many said they wanted liberalization to include competitive elections, private publishing and tolerance of public demonstrations, the Times said.

However, only about half said they have seen tangible benefits from his program of economic reform.

Only 40 percent said they expected their families' standard of living to improve in the next five years. Eighteen percent predicted it would worsen, would worsen.

Some Antarctic squid species are known only from their indigestible breaks found in whale stomachs — and they include the largest animals in the world still unseen by man.

Can hair color change suddenly?

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT: You say that no one has ever turned white overnight? On June 15, 1910, my aunt was operated on. As the ether was given, the nurses and doctors watched as her hair turned white. She was 28. My brother was a towhead until, at age 4, his hair turned black in four days. One morning when he looked in the mirror to shave, it had turned milk-white. So it can happen.

DEAR READER: I appreciate your comments, but can offer no scientific explanation for the events you describe. It is my understanding that hair pigment is laid down in the hair shaft during growth and, once there, it cannot be removed or modified by natural means. I welcome comments from dermatologists who can explain the unusual phenomenon of rapid change in hair color.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I'm 35, male and a vegetarian, non-smoker and non-drinker. I just had an adenocarcinoma removed from my upper palate. Is it possible to graft skin over the hole, which is about the size of a quarter?

DEAR READER: I think so. Most patients who have a surgical defect of the palate from removal of tissue can be helped by a graft or by other types of operation to close the abnormal opening.

However, in some cases, repair may not be appropriate. For example, if some microscopically small nests of cancer cells remain after surgery, a graft may simply cover up the continuing disease and make later investigation more difficult. In addition, the use of X-ray therapy may alter the tissues of the palate so that a graft would not "take." The surgeon who operated on you is the most qualified person to answer your question. Ask him to advise you.

To give you more general information, I am sending you a free copy of my Health Report on "Surgery." Other readers who would like a copy should send $1 and their name and address to P.O. Box 91369, Cleveland, OH 44101-3369. Be sure to mention the title.

DEAR DR. GOTT: Recently you answered a question about how a child might contract infant botulism. I've worked in the packaging field for 17 years and have some suggestions. First, don't purchase any vacuum-sealed products that have a bulge. Second, before opening, wash the tops of cans and bottles to remove any dust, insect eggs or droppings that can build up during warehouse storage, shipping, store display and home storage.

DEAR READER: Thank you for sharing your suggestions. They are apropos for general hygienic measures, as well as for preventing food contamination by botulism.

When should death be final

In one respect, turn-of-the-century medicine was easier than today's doctoring. Patients either died or recovered. Sometimes the physician could prevent death; more often, he couldn't, so he learned to be content with comforting those he could not help.

The demarcation between life and death has become blurred in the past 25 years, as healers with remarkable new skills are able to transplant organs, tame infection and replace diseased tissue with synthetics. In fact, the very definition of death has required revision. Scientists now consider death to have occurred when the brain ceases functioning. The traditional criterion of death-equals-heart-stoppage is no longer appropriate. Discontinuation of heartbeat has become a plebeian and routine part of some medical care. For example, when a surgeon performs a cardiac operation, the patient's heart is electrically shocked to a standstill, the procedure is performed and, later, the heart is reshooked into action.

Despite the many mechanized techniques to prolong life, the bread-and-butter first step in most emergencies is cardiopulmonary resuscitation.

Modern CPR, initially described in 1960, consists of rhythmic external chest compressions to stimulate blood circulation, coordinated with mouth-to-mouth breathing to maintain oxygen concentration. CPR has been taught to thousands of people, both in and out of the health profession. It is standard procedure in hospitals when patients' hearts and respirations cease.

In assessing the effectiveness of CPR, several investigators have reported results of long-term (as well as short-term) survival in patients who underwent resuscitation. The scientists' conclusions are grim: Less than 15 percent of patients lived long enough to be discharged from the hospital. Repeated studies have documented that although 30 to 40 percent of victims responded to initial resuscitative efforts, almost all of them succumbed within a few days. Single-digit survival rates — zero to 6 percent — were common in patients with bloodstream infection (sepsis), acute stroke, cancer, pneumonia, gastrointestinal hemorrhage, severe heart disease or renal failure. In many disease categories, the number of patients who ended up in a vegetative state (requiring total life-support systems) approached the number who survived CPR.

Clearly, survival after CPR is directly dependent on the underlying illnesses that cause cardiac arrest. This observation has forced practitioners to reconsider their enthusiasm for CPR and to be more reflective in performing the procedure. Since CPR may be a futile, uncomfortable and cruel exercise in many cases, what purpose will be served by engaging in a resuscitative effort of no benefit?

Dr. Leslie Blackhall, writing in the New England Journal of Medicine, pleads for common sense in deciding which patients should be resuscitated. People who suffer cardiac arrest from acute injuries, drug overdose, heart attacks or reactions to anesthesia, should be resuscitated; their survival rates are good. On the other hand, CPR for people with certain diseases, such as cancer or stroke, may be just a high-tech placebo: ineffectual meddling without hope of survival.

Furthermore, Blackhall cautions, most non-medical persons do not comprehend the invasive, painful and dehumanizing aspects of CPR. Lay people may view CPR simply as a chance for life over certain death. This is not the case. CPR usually produces pain (because of the support devices required), always produces dependence and disability (at least temporarily) and frequently requires long-term commitment to total life support. Therefore, CPR does not mean life over death but, rather, a midpoint or gray area between living and dying.

Actually, if you think about it after reviewing the data, CPR is more likely to prolong death than to prolong life. This realization should give us all pause as we ponder our own thoughts on the matter. Speaking for myself, I would not want to be resuscitated if I had a serious chronic illness that was interrupted by an untimely cardiac arrest. For those individuals who think that CPR is life over death, look at the research results — and think again. Whatever your decision, make it now, before someone else has to make it for you.

Send your questions to Dr. Gott in care of this newspaper at P.O. Box 91369, Cleveland, OH 44101-3369. Due to volume of mail, individual questions cannot be answered. Questions of general interest will be answered in future columns.

An Investment Decision: Own or Loan?

There are two ways to make money. You can work for money or you can have money work for you. If you put money to work, that's investing, and to invest well you must work on taking care of your money. Although this may sound like the eternal circle, investing isn't as difficult as it appears. If you have extra money you want to invest, you have only two choices: 1) loan that money to someone in return for "rent" or 2) own something and share in any possible growth. There are pluses and minuses to both.

Loaning money is done in various ways. You can make a personal loan to a friend or business associate or you can formally loan money to a bank, insurance company or major corporation. In either case, the borrower pays you an agreed amount of interest to use your money and agrees to a time when this money will be repaid. The interest you earn on this loan should compensate for the risk they may not be able to repay. Loans are made in the form of Certificates of Deposits, bonds, treasury bills, savings accounts, insurance cash value and annuities.

Your other investment choice is owning. Here you decide to place your confidence in the future success and growth of a business venture, a corporation or property. There's no guarantee with ownership, only opportunity.

There always remains the question of which investment direction to take. Unfortunately, there's no guarantee your decision will be correct. Since few of us have the ability to predict the future, our only source of information is the past.

A major fund that has invested both public and private funds since 1904 recently published their annual report, which includes a comparison of investment results of owning versus loaning over the past 60 years. Keep in mind, this mutual fund invested in both, so the results were factual and impartial.

The study covered the period of 1928 through 1985. Ownership was measured by common stocks composing the Standard & Poor's Composite Index. Other statistics were taken from STOCKS, BONDS, BILLS AND INFLATION: 1986 YEARBOOK; FEDERAL RESERVE; SALOMON BROTHERS; and CONSUMER PRICE INDEX, U.S. DEPARTMENT OF LABOR. The study was done by The Center for Research in Security Prices at the University of Chicago.

An investment in the ownership of common stocks over the past 60 years gave an average rate of return of 9.8 percent. During that same period, inflation eroded buying power by 3.1 percent annually. After the adjustment for inflation, ownership in common stocks still gave a net annual return rate of 6.7 percent (9.8-3.1=6.7). Common stocks represented the ownership side of investing.

How did the loaning side compare? Long-term corporate bonds gave an average annual return of 4.8 percent or 1 percent after inflation. Government bonds generally represent the most secure way to loan your money for investing. During a much shorter period, 1967 through 1986, $10,000 in a typical passbook, savings or certificate account would have grown to $35,025 with inflation eating up $34,369. That leaves a profit, after inflation, of $656.

Remember, ownership promises no guarantees, just opportunity. If you're willing and have the time to assume the risks ownership offers, these 60-year results make a strong case for owning common stocks.

By Donny Brown

"How can I enjoy my meal when you're going 'clickety-click' with that stupid calculator?"

"I'm not supposed to be enjoying the meal. I'm supposed to be losing weight. That's what I'm trying to do. Getting fat is God's way of telling you you've had too much fun. Now it's time to get down to business."

"What has gotten into you this time?"

"I've read that for every 10 years you grow older you lose 15 percent of your ability to burn off fat. I just hit the big 'four-ohh' and, as far as I'm concerned, that 15 percent factor became effective immediately."

"Overnight?"

"Right, and I'm fighting back. I'm devising a mathematical formula for losing weight. Simple really. You add up all the calories you've eaten as compared to how many you're supposed to have."

"And?"

"Then, you pull out your handy exercise guidebook. Look here, it says that by jogging 1.7 miles in 30 minutes you'll burn up 160 calories."

"Any other options?"

"Sure. You can swim for 20 minutes, with breaks, and lose 125 calories. Or you can walk one mile in 30 minutes and lose 90 calories. And if all that sounds too tough, you can ride a bicycle for 3.3 miles in 30 minutes and, bingo, you've just gotten rid of 160 calories."

"You're sure about this?"

"I've got it all right here. For my weight and height and based on the fact that I have to sit at a godawful desk all day, I'm supposed to have about 2,100 calories. I figure I'm on a diet, so I'll make it an even 2,000 tops."

"You think 100 calories a day is really going to lose you some weight?"

"Nope, 100 calories a day is bologna."

"You're losing me again."

"One slice of bologna is about 100 calories. Two slices of whole wheat bread is 140 calories. Figure a little mayonnaise and lettuce thrown in, and you've got a bologna sandwich at about 300 calories. That means I could eat seven of them a day and not gain any weight."

"That's 2,100 calories. Seven times 300 is 2,100. You said you were going to call it quits at 2,000."

"You're not hearing me. All I've got to do is run 1.7 miles and I've lost 160 calories. That way I'm still on the minus side."

Country Life By Deanie Francis Mills

It ain't easy being married to a travelin' man. The reason is: nothing ever goes wrong when he's home.

I figured it out: all the little snafus of the world simply lurk about in dark corners, waiting until they are certain the time is right, then they all gang up and spring out at me, laughing, because they know I am...A Woman Alone.

I've gotten to where I make my plans around it, on my husband's next trip, that's when I'll have car trouble, thank you, or coiled rattlers on the front porch, or plumbing plug-ups, or tornado warnings.

The first year he was On the Road, I was completely unequipped for it. For two years, he'd been self-employed as a horse trainer, home all day, every day. Times got tough, and he went to work for Ezell-Key Grain Company as a sales representative with a service area of over 60,000 square miles to canvass. Suddenly he was gone, without so much as an office to call, unless I was willing to send the DPS out searching the highways and biways in order to ask him to please bring home a loaf of bread, next time he swung by the house. When he'd drive away, I'd stand on the front porch with my babies in my arms, watching his fading dust trail, and bawl.

That was six years ago. I'm all grown up now. Shoot, these days I eat two-by-fours for breakfast and pick my teeth with the nails. Being A Woman Alone makes you tough. Being A Woman Alone Out in the Country makes you downright mean.

Take this week. No sooner, I swear, no sooner did he get halfway across the state than the horses stomped on three of the kids' favorite kittens. (Lucky, Buster and Cutie. I swear to God those were their names.) First, I had to bury their poor little pitiful bodies, and then I had to comfort two hysterical children all night long.

---THEN it rained. First time in six months. Mind you, I was thrilled to see the rain, but who do you think got soaking wet? Flags, Rags and Calico, that's who. (Lucky's, Buster's and Cutie's siblings.) So, the middle of the night, cold driving rain, I got shoved out the door with a flashlight on a rescue mission. And no sooner did I get them all fixed up on the front porch, all snuggly-warm with their mama on an old blanket, when the roof fell in.

You think I'm kidding, don't you? Ha! We've got a little enclosed back porch called a mud room, and with all the rain, huge chunks of sheetrock fell from the ceiling. Buckets were useless. Plus, we had to haul in all the winter coats and boots and pile them around the kitchen.

Next morning, I discovered the horses had managed to squeeze through a narrow gate and get into an off-limits area of the barn and eat up all the dog food. (The Great Kitten Tragedy had made us careless, you see.) Getting them back out through that gate darn near wrecked the barn, not to mention me.

Finally I went back into the house, trying to collect myself so I could write Chapter 28 of my novel. It's a pivotal chapter, very near the end, and I was trying to block everything out when, guess what? The storm did it for me. No electricity for two hours. No computer, either.

I knew it. I EXPECTED it. After all, my husband was out of town, wasn't he?

Ah well, I'm at the point now that I don't think I could stand having the guy around all the time any more.

It'd be too boring.

"What about something to drink? What about something to go with your seven bologna sandwiches?"

"Okay, okay. It's only an example. I'm really not going to add stuff up like that anyway. The way I figure it, if it's really not something you want to eat, it's 250 calories. If it's something you like medium, it's about 600 calories and if it's something you absolutely love, it's about 1,200."

"Does that include dessert?"

"Nope. One cup of ice cream can tilt the meter at 400 calories. Of course, you can always eat five cups a day and nothing else."

"Has it also occurred to you that to get rid of that one cup of ice cream you'll have to run...what is it again?"

"According to my calculations, 4.2 miles."

"What about swimming?"

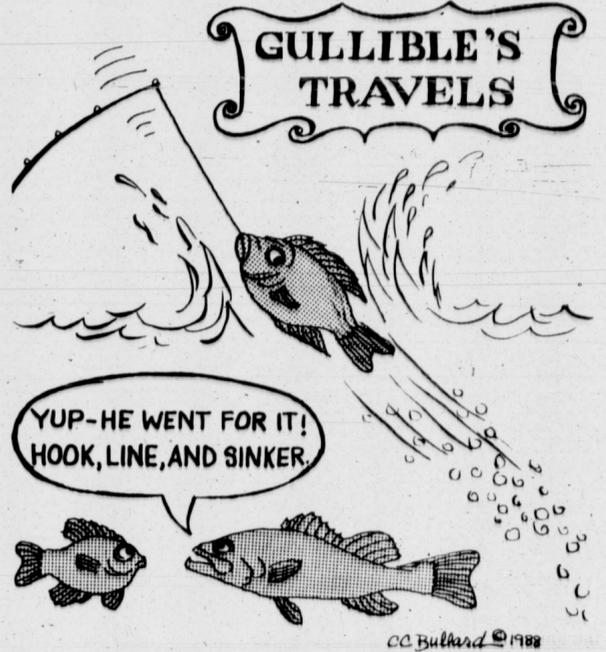

"Uh, let's see. To lose 400 calories you'd have to swim approximately .64 minutes. Of course, they allow you to take breaks here."

"What about an apple instead of the ice cream? Apples are supposed to be healthy."

"An apple is 80 calories. That means I can walk one mile in 30 minutes and lose that."

"Got any other bright ideas?"

"Yea. Going back to the kitchen. I'm starved."

SDN Week in Review

SUNDAY May 22

Last weekend's fiery bus crash and the death of 27 in Kentucky, being called one of the worst bus accidents in U.S. history, has stirred memories of this area's own tragic bus wreck, the incident involving McCaulley High School students almost 10 years ago, it was reported Sunday.

That wreck—which occurred on Dec. 8, 1978—eventually claimed the lives of five McCaulley teenagers and has left its permanent mark on the Fisher County settlement which surrounds the McCaulley School.

Actor and Snyder native Barry Tubb was in town recently during a change of locations in the filming of "Lonesome Dove," his 10th movie and one in which his background as a rodeo cowboy has proved an asset, it was reported Sunday.

"It's coming real handy right now, on those horses," he said.

The cast had finished the Del Rio segment of the shooting and was moving to Angel Fire, N.M., to complete the made-for-television film.

The 1987 conviction by a 132nd

District Court jury and 99-year sentence of a Snyder man for aggravated sexual assault has been upheld by the 11th Court of Appeals in Eastland, it was reported Sunday.

Jaime Ortegon was convicted on May 20, 1987, in the Jan. 11, 1987, rape of a woman here. Testimony indicated the suspect had been drinking with the woman's husband at a separate location prior to the early-morning rape.

MONDAY May 23

A second Snyder ISD budget workshop conducted Monday revealed approximately $350,000 in cuts to date for next school year as trustees and administrators work to keep the school tax rate at or under the $1 mark.

A major cost cutback outlined Monday during the 3½ hour afternoon session was a reduction in Level I teacher aides for next school year with seven to be eliminated.

A savings of $48,000 is expected as a result of the reductions.

Transfer students living outside the Snyder school district will be assigned to elementary campuses next year on a "where needed" basis, school officials noted Monday.

Superintendent Dalton Moseley asked for permission to assign these students to campuses with sufficient classroom space rather than to the campus in closest proximity to their place of residence.

TUESDAY May 24

City councilmen Tuesday night discussed in detail the proposed new city plumbing ordinance, which incorporates most of the existing ordinance while adding numerous features to take modern industrial and commercial buildings and multi-story dwellings into account.

City Engineer Don Osborn said the city's impending extension of water and sewer lines to the Texas Department of Corrections unit near Snyder is providing much of the impetus toward instituting a new ordinance.

An "action plan versus keg parties" was proposed Tuesday by a group of some 15 individuals attending a meeting called by the Scurry County Council on Alcohol and Drug Abuse.

Cliff Smith, council chairman who moderated the session, admitted some of the proposals are "shifting gears" away from an earlier stated philosophy of the council to "not catch and prosecute" juvenile offenders of drug and alcohol laws.

Voter interest is being indicated by the absentee ballot which ended Tuesday for two runoff elections scheduled here Saturday involving the Snyder city council and the Western Texas College board of trustees.

The council absentee vote—which involved only residents of single member district 1—ended with 29 votes cast, and what is considered to be a heavy absentee turnout for the college runoff was reported also with 74 absentee votes counted.

WEDNESDAY May 25

While the vote count was still unofficial, this region's winners in Tuesday's Silver Haired Legislature election were projected Wednesday morning, a list which included Snyder's Delbert Downing for his second SHL term.

The only contested race for local voters was the at-large seat on the SHL between Jerome Ray of Comanche, the incumbent, and Gordon Wood of Brownwood. As of Wednesday morning, the election showed Ray to be the winner with 1,309 votes. Wood had received 1,038.

FRIDAY May 27

Effective Friday, the city's water treatment plant switched to a new process designed to control too high levels of trihalomethanes in the drinking water received from Lake J.B. Thomas.

Equipment has been installed at the plant which will add a combination of chlorine and ammonia—called chloramines—to the raw lake water.

The combination prevents the chlorine from combining with organic material naturally occurring in lake water to form trihalomethanes.

Some 157 Snyder High School seniors received their diplomas Friday night as commencement exercises were held in Scurry County Coliseum for the Class of 1988.

Topping the list of graduates were Valedictorian Judson Morrison and Salutatorian Staci Dunn.

Look Back

By Lilith Smith

FIVE YEARS AGO
The Sun Gas Plant received an accident prevention award commemorating no time-loss accidents for two years, over 200,000 man hours.

For the second time, Scurry County Jail received a two-year accreditation from the American Medical Association for its superior medical care offered to inmates. It was the first such facility in Texas to receive a consecutive two-year accreditation.

10-YEARS AGO
Brian Goodwin and Donna Smith were named Mr. and Miss Rotan High School for 1978.

Tammy Lou Gober was the valedictorian and Sandra Gordon earned salutatorian honors at Hobbs High School.

Jennifer Shands was the Buddy Poppy Girl for the year with sale of poppies sponsored by the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

Roby honors students were Vanessa Hardwick, valedictorian, and Lana Hall, salutatorian.

Howard Limmer, Lions Club representative, handed the keys to a miniature "Tin Lizzie" to Mrs. V.L. Fleming, winner of the vehicle.

15-YEARS AGO
William E. Stone of Abilene was named Snyder Police Chief following Bobby Goodwin's resignation from the post.

Robert McFaul, son of Mr. and Mrs. Mairl McFaul, accepted a golf scholarship at WTC.

20-YEARS AGO
Silas Davenport, principal at Northeast Elementary School, retired following 38 years of service in education. A reception was given in his honor with people from the seven school districts he served invited to the event.

Bill Dryden, recalcitrant Jaycees member, had to walk a goat around the square until he had recruited a new member for the club.

SDN Letters to the Editor

To the editor,
Concerning Jenna Vee Miller, County Clerk of Scurry County, we would like to thank and congratulate her for the prompt manner in which she records and returns instruments sent to her for recording.

On May 18 we mailed an instrument from this office for recording. We received it back May 21. Now, that is real service and I think her constituents in Scurry County should know what a good job she is doing for them. We have filed many instruments in the past several months, and the service from Ms. Miller has been the same in each instance.

In your sister county to the north, we file an instrument for recording and have no idea when we will get it back. They are no busier than Scurry County is.

Ray J. Diekemper Jr.
President
RJD Management Co., Inc.

To the editor,
This past Thursday, my senior daughter and some friends went to the lake at Colorado City to celebrate the end of school. Many other Snyder High seniors were at the lake also. On the way back to Snyder, my daughter and her friends were pulled over and threatened with jail by a Liquor Control Board employee. This LCB employee intimidated, bullied and harassed the girls, even though they had broken no law. They were not speeding and they had their seat belts on.

They were detained for a length of time far exceeding prudence and were late for the steak supper as a result. The LCB man finally let them go, at which time they started on back to Snyder. Within a few minutes, the highway patrol pulled them over and they were again questioned. The patrolman told the

Gale Titus attends confab in Dallas for Ace dealers

Ace Hardware Corp.'s Spring Exhibit in Dallas April 30-May 3 used the slogan: "The Ace Team, Better Than Ever."

Gale E. Titus, manager of Snyder Lumber and Ace Hardware, was a part of that "Ace Team" which set a new attendance record.

More than 1,200 exhibitors displayed their newest merchandise and displays, offering show special prices and low rates to over 2,500 Ace dealers and their personnel. In all, some 11,000 persons were affiliated with the convention, not only a record for Ace, but also recognized as the largest convention ever held in Dallas.

Ace Hardware Corp. is a cooperative wholly owned by its more than 5,000 dealers with headquarters in Oak Brook, Ill. Sales in 1987 were $1,198,000,000, up 12.9 percent from 1986.

Snyder Lumber/Ace Hardware, owned by Henry D. Lindley III, has been an Ace Hardware dealer since 1981. They offer an extensive line of hardware, paint, plumbing and lumber and building material.

Snyder Lumber/Ace Hardware also offers a special order program through Ace's Dallas warehouse on items not stocked locally. They receive regular weekly shipments on Tuesdays.

FDA wants company to depict deformed infant

NEWARK, N.J. (AP) — In an unprecedented move, federal regulators ordered the makers of the anti-acne medicine Accutane to warn customers of potential birth defects by using a picture of a deformed baby on the drug's packaging.

"It is an attempt to emphasize to people that we're not talking about a remote risk of some minor birth defect... but a very high risk of extremely severe birth defects that can, in effect, make the child unable to function," says U.S. Food and Drug Administration spokesman William Grigg.

Among other requirements, the FDA will force female patients to sign a consent form stating they understand the risks associated with the powerful drug, according to Carolyn R. Glynn, a spokeswoman for the drug's manufacturer, Hoffman-La Roche of Nutley.

Grigg says the requirements were prompted by 62 reported cases of birth defects caused by the drug since it was introduced in 1982, though the FDA believes the actual number is much higher. The FDA says the risk of a pregnant Accutane user having a deformed child is one in four or greater.

The requirements follow a recommendation by an FDA advisory panel of outside experts that the prescription drug remain on the market. It is considered the only effective treatment for severe, scarring acne.

Grigg said the requirement that Hoffman-La Roche include a photograph of an infant deformed by the drug was "unprecedented."

Ms. Glynn said the company basically agrees with the FDA's order, which does not stray much from the advisory panel's recommendations, but Hoffman-La Roche believes the photo "may be more appropriate" to use on the patient consent materials "signed in the doctor's office."

"It's not an issue of using the picture, it's where you use the picture," she said.

The spokeswoman said Hoffman-La Roche received the FDA's requirements Wednesday in a letter dated May 19. The FDA left it to Hoffman-La Roche to release the order or keep it confidential, she said. The company released the letter Thursday.

Grigg said Thursday that "there's still some negotiating room" if Hoffman-La Roche seeks to alter some of the requirements.

The advisory panel and the FDA embraced a proposal by Hoffman-La Roche to sell Accutane only in a package in which explicit patient warnings including a sketch of a pregnant woman with a red X through it — would be sealed under clear plastic at the factory to make sure the patient would see them.

Ms. Glynn said the company, which must respond to the FDA's letter within 15 days, hopes to have the patient consent kit on the market by late June, and have the so-called blister packaging in drug stores no later than September.

girls he stopped them because it shoulder harness was not tight enough.

I think Gestapo tactics are out of place in Scurry County. The group of Snyderites who have launched a witch hunt for real and imagined alcohol violations have overstepped the bound of common sense in their zeal. All of the parents I've talked to do not condone teenage drinking. Unfortunately, there is a lunatic fringe which seems determined to want to stop at nothing in enforcing the law here, and if a few innocent kids get hassled in the process that's just too bad.

Good Samaritan Has Second Thoughts on Rest-Area Charity

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I often travel by car around the country. On our last trip, as on previous ones, we ran into people at rest areas asking for money.

The first person was trying to get to a family reunion in St. George, Utah, in January because he couldn't get home for Christmas. He offered to sell us anything he had, or return our money. (He had used up his money on car repairs.) Not wanting to give out our address, we just gave him the money.

The second one was about two hours west of Phoenix. A woman and her husband were trying to get to Phoenix. They had run out of gas and were broke. She was in her 50s — she stood by the restroom door asking for money. I gave her $5 and asked how much she had collected. She said $8. I said, "Well, that should buy enough gas to get you to Phoenix" — then suggested she get in touch with Travelers Aid. She continued to ask others for help.

In a third instance, we were asked for money for gas and food. This time there was a young child and a couple of ragtag-looking adults. The car hood was up, the man was sitting on the curb and the woman was sitting in the car. This time we did not make a donation.

My problem: If I don't help out, my conscience bothers me. If I donate, I wonder if I'm being suckered.

Abby, do you think rest areas are just a convenient place to panhandle, and I'd decide how to handle it very much the way most people do. I'd size up the situation, then act on my hunch.

THE PERFECT PASTOR
(from the Christopher Book "Three Minutes a Day," Vol. 22, 1983)

"The perfect pastor preaches exactly 10 minutes. He condemns sin, but never hurts anyone's feelings. He works from 8 a.m. until midnight, and is also the church janitor.

"The perfect pastor makes $40 a week, wears good clothes, drives a good car, and donates $30 a week to his parish. He is 29 years old and has 40 years' experience.

"The perfect pastor makes 15 house calls a day and is always in his office.

"If your pastor does not measure up, send this to six other parishes that are also dissatisfied with their pastor, then bundle up your pastor and send him to the church at the top of the list. In one week you will receive 1,643 pastors — and one of them should be perfect.

"Have faith in this letter. One parish broke the chain and got its old pastor back in three months."

DEAR ABBY: I took part in your operation, Dear Abby III last Christmas, which led to my corresponding with several wonderful men I actually met one of my pen pals, who is stationed five hours from where I live. Through phone calls, letters and weekend visits, our relationship has grown and become very important to both of us. (We are the same age and both divorced).

My problem: His ship is leaving for a six month tour. So far we have not slept together, and he thinks we should experience this before he leaves. (He says it will "strengthen our commitment.") I don't know whether I should or not.

He's a caring, sensitive man and I trust him completely, but I really don't know what to do. Since you were responsible for bringing us together, I thought you might be able to help me decide.

TO SLEEP OR NOT TO SLEEP

DEAR TO SLEEP: Do not go to bed with a man because he's shipping out for six months. If you were ready for that kind of relationship, you wouldn't be asking me what to do. Tell this caring, sensitive man whom you trust completely that you will let him know when you're ready to "strengthen your commitment." My advice: Put this very important step on "hold."

DEAR LOSING: Much depends on what else a man has going for him. (Hair alone does not a lover make.) Further, sexiness lies in the eye of the beholder. It's always been my conviction that a man owes his sexiness to what's in his head — not what's on it.

DEAR ABBY: Which ring should I give my fiancée for her engagement ring? My mother offered to give me a nice diamond ring that belonged to her mother. My fiancée's mother also offered me her diamond ring, which has been handed down to her from her mother.

Should I accept both rings and have my fiancée wear the appropriate ring — depending on whom family we are visiting?

Or should I accept both rings, sell them, and buy a new ring of my choice?

ALL RINGS OUT

DEAR RING OUT: It would seem more appropriate for her mother to give her daughter the ring as a family heirloom — not as an engagement ring. On the other hand, your mother's diamond would be an heirloom from your side of the family — which would be more appropriate for an engagement ring.

Were you to accept your fiancée's mother's diamond and present it as an engagement ring, it would in actuality be a gift from her mother — not from you.

CHARITABLE BUT SKEPTICAL

DEAR CHARITABLE: Rest areas are an ideal place to panhandle, and I'd decide how to handle it very much the way most people do. I'd size up the situation, then act on my hunch.

DEAR ABBY: For the last four or five years, my family has been plagued by a question that has started many arguments. Even though it's really a dumb question, my sister, brother, mother and I argue about the answer.

OK, here it is: Do chimpanzees have lips? Abby, for the sake of family peace, please give us an answer.

FAMILY FIGHT IN KENTUCKY

DEAR F.F. IN KY: My staff nearly went bananas researching the animal anatomy literature, and then I got the bright idea of phoning my friends at the San Diego Zoo.

The answer is: Yes, chimpanzees do have lips!

State is charged for calls

AUSTIN (AP) — State Sen. Richard Anderson of Marshall billed taxpayers more than $1,000 for hundreds of campaign telephone calls, an analysis of his state phone records reveals.

The Dallas Morning News reported Friday that Anderson apparently placed hundreds of calls before the March 8 primary election to his political consultants, a campaign ad agency and the office of Democratic presidential candidates.

Anderson defeated Mickey Smith of Kilgore in a heated and bitter election battle for the Democratic nomination in March.

State law makes it a felony for public officials to use state equipment or taxpayer money for personal or campaign purposes.

Anderson, who was recuperating from back surgery Thursday, denied making any of the calls personally, but said they may have been placed mistakenly by some of his staff members.

Oil Patch innovators come up with new idea

ODESSA, Texas (AP) — Dick Maxwell thought the whole process was too time-consuming and not very cost effective to boot. So he booted it.

After four years, an oil patch gone bust and a few skeptics along the way, Maxwell, along with his partners Jack Nunnally and David Pinnell are pushing their new company — Paratech Inc. — to new heights.

Well, to America's cooling towers, anyway.

Maxwell, a former industrial chemical salesman, just couldn't figure out why the oil and gas industry was wasting its time and money sending out well treatment service trucks to remote field locations in West Texas.

Maxwell, 50, told his employer — then Philadelphia-based Betz Laboratories Inc. — good-bye after 20 years and began working on his own to develop an automated chemical treatment system.

The trouble was convincing operators to switch from every day well operating procedures to something a little radical — letting the system babysit the producer.

"I thought, how I can apply to this? So I just started working on a chemical feed system ... I got hooked. I had something different to offer the oil patch that was economically feasible," he said.

While Maxwell had the concept, he said he didn't have the electronic know-how to make the system work, so he tapped the expertise of Pinnell, an electronics technician.

"His initial reaction was this guy is in the ozone," said Maxwell. "But after 1½ years we began visualizing how all this would come together."

Not long after the first unit was built in 1981, Maxwell was able to convince a couple of operators to let him experiment by attaching his $4,200 unit to their wellheads. Paratech would later reduce its per-unit cost to $2,500 using solar panels.

The system, which operates off a pumpjack electric motor, worked. Maxwell and Pinnell were in business. "I thought it was more amazing than childbirth."

So did Getty Oil Co., the eventual beneficiary of the company's chemical feed system — it's first commercial success.

It seems Getty (now Texaco) had a problem with hydrogen sulfide-related corrosion, forcing the oil company once a month to pull its sucker rod strings.

"They had a truck come by two or three times a week, but it didn't solve the problem ... our system shut the corrosion down," said Maxwell.

While Paratech was able to interest others in the unit, the boom went bust with the fortunes of the oil patch. "We started mass marketing in late 1984, early 1985 ... it was exceptionally bad timing," he said.

Paratech embarked on modifying its system for industrial application, with particular emphasis on cooling towers used in the chemical and refining industries.

After a year of research and development, Maxwell said he was elated by the results at a Getty Oil gas processing plant in Odessa. The testing, he said, had been a huge success.

It wasn't long after that Maxwell invited Nunnally to join the company as a partner in 1985. The two had been friends and acquaintances for 25 years.

Nunnally said it was a natural match. Maxwell said Nunnally's industrial exposure as a salesman at Betz was a definite plus for the small Odessa upstart.

In turn, the two went back to Betz on the idea, which later agreed to test market 15 of the company's units at a number of refinery operations, including Amoco's Texas City operation.

The same principle that Paratech had used to reduce downhole corrosion now had stronger industrial implications.

Paratech had found a new market.

Instead of relying on costly, maintenance-operated pumps, Nunnally said Paratech could now offer a reliable, economical system capable of precise chemical measurement to ensure product quality. However, unlike its pumpjack units, this system was powered by a plant's air conditioner.

"Cooling towers are our forte entry right now in the industrial area, but I'm already seeing a lot of spinoffs to that," said Nunnally. "We don't have the maintenance problems associated with pumps."

And pumps, he noted, are used in every industry from textiles to paper, especially where environmental and operational processes are of prime concern.

Maxwell said Paratech has plans to increase its employment on a limited basis. While the company subcontracts the bulk of its work locally in Midland and Odessa, it does have its own finishing shop.

Lead times that once ran less than two weeks are now running around two to three weeks — an indication that Maxwell said means Paratech is slowly starting to make its mark.

"We've installed these all over the place in refineries and chemical plants along the Texas and Louisiana coasts," he said. "And we're discussing doing the same in the oil fields with some of the majors."

While success has been slow in coming, Maxwell said it's just a matter of time.

Paratech officials say they have one advantage, at least in the short term — there are no competitors.

"In an industrial market, if we make an impact, I think we're going to see other people compete with us ... it's a natural evolution of the marketplace and product ... if it's good, someone will get around to producing a better mousetrap," he said.

However, if the company can move as fast as its creators want, Maxwell sees an unlimited potential.

"If we're successful in negotiating contracts with distributors and sales representatives, I expect our sales will take off accordingly," he said. "The cooling tower market is just now really starting to boom."

Three more bank failures raises state's count to 29

AUSTIN (AP) — The combination of poor management and a weak Texas economy caused the failure of three more banks, all of which were merged with stronger institutions, officials announced.

The Thursday closures brought the state's pace-setting failure rate to 29, and increased the national total of bank failures this year to 68.

The First State Bank in the Dallas-area town of Rockwall and Lone Star Bank in Baytown near Houston were both shut down on Thursday afternoon by Texas Banking Commissioner Kenneth W. Littlefield. Also closed was the First National Bank of Kingwood in Kingwood.

The Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. was appointed receiver for the three banks.

Deposits and fully secured liabilities of Lone Star Bank were assumed by Citizens Bank and Trust Company, of Baytown; First National Bank of Kingwood was acquired by Interstate Bank-North of Houston; and insured deposits of The First State Bank were transferred to Community Bank, of Rockwall, a newly chartered subsidiary of Community Bankers Inc. of Granbury.

Lone Star Bank's one office would not reopen, but customers could transact business at any office of Citizens Bank beginning Friday, said FDIC spokesman Bill Olcheski said.

Lone Star Bank, with about $13 million in assets, is the second Baytown bank to be declared insolvent this year. Citizens Bank will assume about $12.5 million in 2,300 deposit accounts, and will purchase $5 million of the failed bank's assets, including $505,000 of the bank's small loans at a discount of $60,000, Olcheski said.

A recent examination of the Baytown institution found losses that greatly exceeded the bank's capital, Littlefield said. The bank also had operational losses because of a high level of overhead and legal expenses, he said.

The one office of First National Bank of Kingwood was to reopen Friday as a branch of Interstate Bank-North, Olcheski said.

Surgeon operates on livers outside body

PITTSBURGH (AP) — A West German surgeon believed to be the first in the world to repair livers outside the body says the procedure offers a temporary reprieve for victims of one of the bleakest forms of cancer.

"It's the best possible retaliation (against cancer) for these patients, and they are improved dramatically," said Dr. Rudolf Pichlmayr of the University of Hannover Medical School.

Pichlmayr said Thursday he has performed out-of-body liver operations three times, including twice this month. There was no other option for the patients, two women and a man suffering from malignant liver tumors, he said.

In each case, Pichlmayr removed the liver, worked on it for four to five hours, then put it back in tumor-free.

All three patients are doing well, although it's likely the tumors will reappear, Pichlmayr said.

"It's the fate of all tumor patients. But we surgeons have to do our utmost to take care" of them, he said in a telephone interview from West Germany.

Pichlmayr said he is giving the patients time and perhaps a chance for a longer life. He said he's also giving them hope.

Until Pichlmayr's efforts, so-called bench surgery had involved only kidneys, a well-established procedure to correct vessel problems or remove cysts and benign tumors. Kidneys are less delicate than livers and a patient can do without them longer.

It represents a very interesting and positive step," said the University of Pittsburgh's Dr. Thomas E. Starzl, who performed the world's first liver transplant in 1967.

"My hat's off to him. It's a monumental effort," said Dr. John S. Najarian of the University of Minnesota.

Najarian said he has transplanted donor livers into four patients with cancerous liver tumors. Only one is still alive. Unlike Pichlmayr's patients, there was no evidence the cancer had spread at the time of surgery.

"You're just buying time," Najarian said.

Liver cancer is among the more deadlier forms of the disease, said Frank Mahaney, a spokesman for the National Cancer Institute.

Pichlmayr first performed out-of-body liver surgery Feb. 5 on a 40-year-old woman whose liver had more than doubled in weight because of tumors.

He considered transplanting a new liver into the woman, but ruled it out because he believed her cancer had spread, and that it would have been a waste of one of the scarce donor organs.

Pichlmayr also decided against the conventional method of removing the cancerous sections of the liver while it remained in the body because of the tumor's size and central location.

Naturalist and artist John James Audubon was born in 1785.
