Big Spring man drowns at lake as winds capsize boat

A 37-year-old Big Spring man apparently drowned on the north side of Lake J.B. Thomas about 3 p.m. Sunday when a boat in which he and two companions were riding capsized in high winds and rough water.

Officers of the state parks and wildlife department and the Colorado River Municipal Water District Tuesday morning were considering efforts to recover the body of Hilario Silva.

It is believed he drowned between Bull Creek and the dam at an unknown distance from the shore.

A water district official said Silva and two companions, Armando Franco and Rosa Silva, were all in the boat with lifejackets on.

Silva's jacket was later found washed up on the north shore and it is speculated it was not securely fastened or he lost it after the boat capsized.

Lake officials said Rosa Silva drifted or swam to the shore.

A rescue party led by Lake Thomas superintendent Richard Hoffmann found Franco floating in the lake more than an hour after the boat sank.

Rod Lewis of Big Spring, assistant manager for the water district, said efforts to recover the body were being led by Hoffmann, state game warden Mel Reed and officers of the Scurry County sheriff's office.

Lewis said continuing rough weather Tuesday morning had

Q. — Has the building permit for Wal-Mart been issued yet?

A. — No. A replat of the property must first be finalized, and this is now scheduled for the June meeting of the city council due next Monday.

Local

Jury selection

Potential jurors were being interviewed Monday morning for a civil lawsuit scheduled in 132nd District Court.

The case is styled Paxton and Lisa Beauchamp vs. Monterey Homes Inc., a California corporation.

The plaintiffs allege a "kit home" sold to them by the company was defective.

City session

The Snyder city council will meet to canvass election results from Saturday's runoff Tuesday.

The council will meet at 6:30 p.m. at city hall.

WTC meet

A called meeting of the Western Texas College board is slated Tuesday, a session which will include a work session for the 1988-89 budget.

The meeting will begin at 5:45 p.m. in the administration building.

The board will also canvass results of Saturday's runoff election and administer the oath of office to new board member John Fagin.

Other items on the agenda include two personnel items, a resignation and a retirement, and approval of two policy changes related to the organization of the board and the election of officers.

Vet plans

The Scurry County Vietnam Veterans will finalize their July 4th plans at a meeting Tuesday to begin at 7:30 p.m. at St. John's Episcopal Church.

WTC signup

Registration is scheduled from 6:30 until 9 p.m. Tuesday for evening classes offered during the Western Texas College summer term.

Evening registration will be in the Student Center. Classes will start Wednesday for both day and evening classes.

Gorbachev tells Reagan...

Arms treaty needed

MOSCOW (AP) — Soviet leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev told President Reagan today it may be time to bring our fists on the table to prod negotiators to conclude work on a treaty cutting strategic nuclear arms stockpiles by 50 percent.

"I'll do anything that works," the president told Gorbachev.

The Soviet leader expressed new hopes for completing a major arms treaty, but it was not clear whether he was talking about getting it done by summit's end — or merely before Reagan's term concludes next January. Soviet and American officials have said repeatedly they do not expect a strategic arms pact (START) to be concluded here.

On their third day of talks, Reagan and Gorbachev met in the Soviet leader's Kremlin office, sitting beneath a portrait of Karl Marx. After their discussions, they took an unscheduled stroll on Red Square past the tomb of Lenin and shook hands with surprised tourists.

The leaders also watched and joined in the applause as Secretary of State George P. Shultz and Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard A. Shevardnadze signed several secondary agreements, including a pair of arms accords. Under one such pact agreed to in Moscow, the superpowers will notify each other of the time, place and intended target of intercontinental-range missile tests.

At the Kremlin meeting,

Reagan appeared to dig in his heels on his Strategic Defense Initiative missile defense plan, one of the key obstacles to agreement on a strategic arms treaty. "It's never been a part of the negotiations," he said in response to a question.

Without addressing Star Wars, Gorbachev said he was confident there would be progress on arms issues.

"And I'm sure that if the president makes good use of his time that we have remaining, I'm sure that we will be able to prepare the treaty," Gorbachev said.

At that point, a reporter asked Reagan if he, too, thought a treaty could be concluded. "Yes, I'm very pleased to hear what they're saying." Asked again if a treaty was possible, Gorbachev stepped in to answer, saying, "If that question is to me, yes I think a START treaty is possible."

The Soviet leader recalled that he and Reagan, at their first summit in Geneva in 1985, had reached an impasse at one point. He said that at that point, "the president said, 'Well, let's stamp our fists on the table.' I said all right, and by morning everything was agreed, the Geneva negotiations were successfully completed."

"Maybe now it is again a time to bang our fists on the table once again," Gorbachev said.

Dr. Jim Palmer...

WTC staffer gains Cogdell board seat

Scurry County commissioners Tuesday appointed Western Texas College faculty member Jim Palmer to fill Rex Robinson's unexpired term on the Cogdell Memorial Hospital Board of Managers.

Palmer, head of the WTC social sciences division, will serve about 1½ years in place of Robinson, who recently resigned after 13 years on the hospital board.

Pct. 1 Commissioner Duaine

Davis nominated Palmer for the open seat and the motion was passed unanimously.

Palmer is one of the original faculty members at Western Texas College, recently finishing his 17th year with the school. He has served as a division chairman since 1972.

He is also the original instructor for the Century II Leadership Scurry County class here, supervising that program since its inception in the fall of 1983.

Locally, he also serves as one of five board members for the Industrial Area Foundation board.

He is also a deacon with Colonial Hill Baptist Church.

Palmer grew up in the Silver area and graduated from high school at Colorado City. He holds both an undergraduate and a graduate degree from West Texas State University. He earned his PhD in economics-geography in 1975 from the University of Oklahoma.

He and his wife, Patti, a first grade teacher at West Elementary, have two sons. J.K. is a sophomore at Snyder High School and Josh is a sixth grader at West.

In other county business Tuesday, the court discussed Wal-Mart's plan to build a new store adjacent to Towle Park.

The commissioners voted to direct County Attorney Michael Line to contact the company with a proposal for Wal-Mart to pay for the construction of additional culverts on Towle Park Rd. where it enters and exits the park, for improved flood control.

Job totals increase to lower Scurry's unemployed count

An increase of more than 100 persons said working was responsible for an unemployment estimate for Scurry County in the 5 percent range during April, according to the latest figures released by the Texas Employment Commission.

The exact percentage was 5.7 percent, the lowest recorded for all of 1988. During March, the figure was 6.4 percent.

The number of persons employed was listed at 8,582 during April, up from the March figure of 8,477.

In a corresponding figure, the number of persons said seeking employment dropped also. In March, this was listed as 577, and it went down to 522 in April.

The TEC figures the county's civilian labor force by combining the number of persons employed and the number "actively seeking employment" through the state commission.

For April, Scurry County's civilian labor force was set at 9,104.

In addition to the local figures, TEC reported employment statistics for five other surrounding counties.

The feller on Deep Creek says, "More senators and representatives should run for president-campaigning keeps 'em out of Washington."

There's a lot of speculation concerning who will be each presidential candidate's running mate.

Considering what we've read, the selection of a running mate may be the most important decision made during the course of a campaign.

Presidential candidates normally want somebody that provides geographical and ideological balance to the ticket.

John Nance Garner once said, "The vice presidency isn't worth a pitcher of warm spit."

It's been our observation that presidential timber does not necessarily choose presidential timber for the number two spot on the ticket. That's despite the fact that the veep's office provides a definite advantage four years down the road.

Few presidential aspirants want a co-president, they want someone to be a deputy.

stay out of the way when not attending a funeral for some head of state.

Some believe that Bob Dole would be a strong running mate, but a poor vice president since the outspoken critic of Bush during the primaries would likely continue to have an opinion. A more likely choice is Dole's wife, Elizabeth, but GOP folks remember the disaster when Geraldine Ferraro was on the Demo ticket with Walter Mondale.

The Demos are suggesting names like Sam Nunn, Lloyd Bentsen, Richard Gephardt, Thom Foley and Albert Gore. Other possible GOP picks for VP are Nancy Kassebaum, Sandra Day O'Connor, Lamar Alexander and George Duekmejian.

Our pick is CIA spokesman William Baker who made the following statement while trying to explain a recent agency investigation:

"In a general way, we try to anticipate some of your questions so that I can respond 'no comment' with some degree of knowledge."

Ligachev's resignation sought

MOSCOW (AP) — Boris N. Yeltsin, the ousted capital Communist Party chief, took the unprecedented step of using Western news media to insist that the party's No. 2 man, Yegor K. Ligachev, resign because he is blocking reform.

Never before has a fallen Soviet leader so sharply and publicly criticized a high-level party official still in power.

In interviews Monday with CBS News and the British Broadcasting Corp., Yeltsin said it was a mistake to say Mikhail S. Gorbachev's efforts to remake Soviet society are going according to plan.

"This is a dangerous thing to say," said Yeltsin, an outspoken advocate of reform.

He told the BBC that Ligachev should resign because he is the main impediment to "perestroika," the Russian word for Gorbachev's restructuring.

Yeltsin also said he was upset that Gorbachev did not rally to his defense when he was shunted aside.

The interviews shed light on Yeltsin's fall from power that culminated in his removal Feb. 18 as a candidate, or non-voting, member of the ruling Politburo. They also were the most extensive he has granted the Western media since he was ousted as Moscow party leader in November 1987.

In addition, Yeltsin chose to speak out as Gorbachev seeks to boost his standing at home through his five-day summit with President Reagan.

Yeltsin told the BBC that Ligachev should go "because processes in the party are too slow, because the party is still lagging behind, because the process of democratization in the party is not developing ... and Comrade Ligachev is the main person responsible for this."

Ligachev, 67, formally oversees Communist Party ideology. In an interview published in Paris last year, he said he presides over the meetings of the Central Committee Secretariat, which runs this vast country from day-to-day.

Yeltsin, 57, told CBS the style of Ligachev's leadership "contradicts the spirit of perestroika."

"He's one of the opponents when it comes to questions of social justice," Yeltsin told the BBC. Pressed by the interviewer, he said he thought Ligachev should resign. Yeltsin said Gorbachev's reforms have met stiff resistance.

"In the first period of perestroika, there was an excessive euphoria about how quickly change would come," he said. "But three years have passed and there have been no basic changes. If there haven't been any changes in another three years, then people's faith in perestroika will decline."

The stunning statements came as the Communist Party is embroiled in fierce struggles between conservatives and reform advocates in preparation for a party conference that opens June 28, the first such session since 1941.

It was not known whether Yeltsin's comments were sanctioned, or even supported, by other high-ranking party members.

Hurricane watchers face the start of another storm season

CORAL GABLES, Fla. (AP) — The National Hurricane Center ushers in the official start of the 1988 Atlantic hurricane season Wednesday faced with the likelihood that one of its two storm-tracking satellites soon will die.

"It's quite possible this year that we could lose GOES-West at anytime," hurricane specialist Bob Case said of the Geostationary Earth-Orbiting Environmental Satellite, which records atmospheric conditions over the Pacific Ocean and part of the Western Hemisphere.

Just as in 1984, when GOES-East expired and temporarily deprived meteorologists of Atlantic atmospheric photographs, the expected death of the western satellite would be inconvenient, but not catastrophic, Case said.

The new eastern satellite would have to be moved by remote control from its equatorial orbit over Brazil to a stationary orbit south of the Texas Gulf Coast. The new position would again provide a view of the Western Hemisphere with limited vision in the hurricane-spawning eastern Atlantic, he said.

"Nineteen eighty-eight was the year (GOES-West was expected to burn out). Anything we have beyond that right now is gravy," said Case.

As the season approached, National Hurricane Center Director Bob Sheets traveled from the Gulf of Mexico states to Maine urging coastal residents to take the danger of hurricanes seriously.

"Since hurricanes are such rare events for any given location there is a significant lack of experience on the part of almost everyone, including officials," Sheets said.

The Gulf and Atlantic coasts of the United States have been lulled into a false sense of safety during the past several years, Case said last week from the operation's nerve center, which collects and distributes information from the satellites, radar and Air Force reconnaissance flights.

"We don't have any idea what this (hurricane) season will hold," Case said. "We're not soothsayers."

But, Sheets said, "In terms of potential loss of life, I'd say New Orleans would have to be at the top of the list given the fact that it's below sea level and the traffic."

A typical Atlantic hurricane season, from June 1 to Nov. 30, sees 10 named tropical storms with rain and winds exceeding 39 mph, six of which become hurricanes with drenching rains and winds over 74 mph, Case said.

In 1987 there were only three hurricanes and four tropical storms in the Atlantic.

Hurricane Emily slammed into the Dominican Republic on Sept. 22, causing three deaths with winds gusting up to 110 mph. It recovered enough punch to belt Bermuda with 116 mph winds three days later.

"Emily was the fastest moving hurricane of any known in this century," Case said.

Hurricane Arlene meandered through the Atlantic in mid-August with top winds of 75 mph. Hurricane Floyd hit Key West with 75 mph winds but fizzled out over the Everglades and Miami in mid-October.

"It's not a game," Case said of hurricane preparation. "If you live near the coast and you're not prepared, you're a fool."

"It's too late (to start planning) when the hurricane watch and warning goes up," said Case. "You're playing with a deadly thing."

Dear Abby

Orphan Brother Wants to Keep Long-Lost Family at Distance

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1988 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: My husband (I'll call him George) is 62. He learned four years ago after his "father" died that he had been adopted when he was 3 years old. It was a shock to us, and it took us several years to decide whether we wanted to find his biological parents. Curiosity about his "roots" won out, and we finally found his family in Illinois. George was the youngest of 11 siblings who had been placed in an orphanage, but he was the only one who was legally adopted. The other 10 grew up in the orphanage. They all said they had been looking for George all these years, as he was the "baby" of the family.

None of his siblings have had any education—or opportunities. My husband's adoptive parents were upper-middle-class people who gave George a wonderful life, college education, etc.

Our problem: After a huge family reunion, his relatives have inundated us with love letters, and there are so many of them we don't know what to do.

We are satisfied to know my husband's roots now, but our lives have taken different paths; we don't want an intimate involvement with them. We attended a reunion with hundreds of shirttail relatives. We were overwhelmed, and are now sorry we pursued this.

I have subtly indicated in our thank-you letters to all nine of his living siblings that we have our own family—children, grandchildren, etc., but the letters keep coming, inviting us to weddings, graduations, christenings, birthdays, anniversaries, etc.

What should we do? How obligated are we? They all want to come to visit us. We do not have guest accommodations, as my elderly mother lives with us.

Please help us handle this "relatively" large problem.

OVERWHELMED IN CALIFORNIA

DEAR OVERWHELMED: You are as "obligated" as your conscience allows you to be. Obviously you're not able to send gifts to hundreds of relatives, but congratulatory cards for weddings, engagements, graduations, christenings and anniversaries are definitely in order if you receive invitations or announcements.

Also let them know why you are unable to accommodate guests, and hope they'll understand.

DEAR ABBY: My parents divorced when I was 9. In the years that followed, I lived with my mother for the most part, but the time I spent with my father was wonderful. My mother had a lot of ill feelings toward my father. She put him down constantly and told me some very personal things about their love life. I didn't want to hear these intimate details, but more important, I didn't want to hear negative things about my father.

All this time, he never said a negative word about my mother. He never failed to pay child support, and was far more generous to me and Mother than he had to be.

As a father, he did not fall short. Aside from meeting his financial obligations, he was kind, gentle, supportive and just strict enough for my own good. He still is. My mother continues to bad-mouth him, which leaves me feeling angry and sad.

Why am I writing you all this, Abby? Because I want you to tell other divorced parents that if a parent has faults, the kids will notice them—they do not need to be pointed out.

Thanks for letting me get this off my chest.

A DAUGHTER

DEAR DAUGHTER: I'm glad you wrote. Perhaps those who need to be reminded of your message will read it, and heed it.

CONFIDENTIAL TO 'WRONG SIDE OF THE TRACKS' IN SACRAMENTO: If after all these years her parents refuse to accept you, quit trying. It would be easier to move the tracks.

DiMaggio asked Reagan, Gorbachev to sign ball

NEW YORK (AP) — Joe DiMaggio, who has signed plenty of baseballs in his life, says it took a trip to the White House for last year's superpower summit before he asked someone to autograph one.

And the baseball, bearing the signatures of President Reagan and Soviet leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev, is one of the New York Yankee Clipper's most prized possessions.

"I was a witness to history," DiMaggio said in an interview published Monday in The New York Times. "I have done a lot of things in my time. But that day became one of the nicest days of my life, and one of the most meaningful."

"In my life, that's the only time I ever asked anybody to sign a baseball," said DiMaggio, 73, who made history himself during his 13 seasons and 10 World Series with the Yankees.

"I would have liked Babe Ruth's," he added, during a recent interview at his home in San Francisco.

DiMaggio said he had to scramble to make it to a state dinner for Gorbachev during the December summit. His tuxedo was in Miami, he had no formal shirt, no place to stay in Washington, no airline reservation and no transportation.

He worked out the details with the help of his friend, Edward Bennett Williams, owner of the Baltimore Orioles. Bennett's driver even bought DiMaggio a formal shirt and the baseball he carried to the White House.

DiMaggio enlisted the help of Maureen Reagan, the president's daughter, who played a key role in obtaining the autographs.

"Reagan's signature is very precise and readable. Gorbachev signed it the way a doctor writes a prescription," DiMaggio said. "But the mission was complete."

Weighing the sacrifice

By James Jacoby

If the opponents are going to make a vulnerable small slam, it's fine to make a sacrifice bid when you are non-vulnerable, but you should know how to judge the opponents' bidding so that you can play your contract for a minimum loss. South had opened with a very weak hand and wisely remained quiet after West had over-called two diamonds and East had bid two spades. But then the bidding progressed. West made a powerful splinter bid showing heart shortness and massive spade support, and East asked for aces. So South bid five clubs, both to get in the opponents' way and to suggest a save. When West jumped to six spades, North rightly reasoned that West was void in hearts, so he bid seven clubs. Unfortunately declarer did not give full import to that jump to six spades by West.

When the spade ace was led, declarer ruffed and casually led a heart. West ruffed and played a low diamond. East took the ace and returned another heart. West ruffed and cashed the K-Q of diamonds before playing another spade. Now exasperated declarer ruffed and angrily played the ace of clubs. East's trump king was now established, so the contract was down six — 1400 in the tournament penalty scale and a very poor save against 1430. What happens if declarer realizes that West is void in hearts, and plays ace and a club? He will still be down four, but that's only 800, a reasonable loss when compared to East's potential score of 1430.

Penwomen's club meets

Scurry County Penwomen met May 18 in the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Killgo. Christine Killgo, chaplain, offered the invocation. Officers chosen to lead the next club year are Garnet Quitt, president; Janelle Burk, vice-president; Dorothy Cox, secretary; and Killgo, chaplain. Appointed officers are Burk, telephone chairman and Quitt, publicity.

Appointed to the yearbook and program committees are Burk, chairman, with Mary Westmoreland and Sherry Bryant.

Quitt presented the program for the session entitled, "Basic Ingredients — Spices and Flavorings," from Ruth Grundy's book, "The Poetic Cake Baker." Quitt discussed different kinds of rhymes and some dos and don'ts in writing poetry.

During the prose and poetry reading session, Westmoreland read two short articles, "Pot-pourri" and "Ultimate Flight." Bryant read her poem, "Broken Hearts and Mended Pieces" and her story, "Night of the Hunter." Betty Kellum read "Easter Treasures" which was also read at her church Easter Sunday.

Killgo read an item from the Abilene Reporter News, a letter honoring Lucy Mayes from her daughter, Flora. Killgo also read a poem by Helen S. Rice, "What is a Mother?"

Quitt read her poem, "Playmate," and her article, "Mr. Vernon, More Than a Mail Carrier." Cox offered grace for the refreshments.

The June 4th meeting will be held in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Franklin Bryant. The Odessa Poetry Society will be guests. Writers and visitors are welcome.

Diet BW Sweeping U.S.

New Super "FatBuster" Lose Weight - No Dieting

SALT LAKE CITY, UT - An amazing new super "FatBuster" diet pill trademarked Cal-Stop has recently been perfected that reportedly "guarantees" weight losses of 10, 20, 30 pounds or more while allowing you to "eat as much as you want of your favorite foods until you achieve your ideal weight and figure!"

Absolutely safe with no reported side effects, the FatBuster does all the work with NO starvation "diet menus" to follow, NO calorie counting, NO exercise and NO hunger pangs.

In a carefully controlled "double-blind" clinical study, doctors found that every single person who took the FatBuster formulation lost a substantial amount of weight without changing their ordinary eating patterns. These scientifically verified results have been published in the prestigious British Journal of Nutrition as follows:

"Bodyweight was significantly reduced during the study even though patients were specifically asked not to alter their dietary habits."

Dr. J.H. Dorcus, a public health M.D., states: "The FatBuster binds with food preventing absorption of a substantial portion of the calories, forcing the body to burn fat, fib and cellulite for energy."

Here is what some of FatBuster's delighted customers have to say:

"Your product is the only one that's worked for me. And before me I've tried many. With the FatBuster, I lost 32 pounds without dieting!"
Mrs. E.C., Louisville, MS

"I've lost 52 lbs. and I'm still losing. Mr. R.C., Long Beach, CA

"I lost 32 lbs. in 32 days."
Mrs. M.L.W., Jacksonville, TX

"They said I was too fat to be a flight attendant, but with the FatBuster I've lost 42 lbs. and achieved my goal!"
Ms. R.V., Las Vegas, NV

"I lost 60 lbs. with the FatBuster. You are the greatest!"
Mrs. J.C.A., Los Angeles, CA

"I lost 29 lbs. with the FatBuster. Now my husband doesn't want me out of his sight!"
Mrs. C.H., Carol, IL

Join the group of happy weight losers. Call and order FatBuster 24 hours a day 7 days a week TOLL FREE: 1-800-433-8811 and use your VISA, MasterCard or American Express. Even playoff series at 2-2...

Celtics win 'holiday' game

PONTIAC, Mich. (AP) - The Boston Celtics and Detroit Pistons played like the holiday was meant for them.

Most working Americans were off on Memorial Day and so were the Celtics and Pistons who turned in the lowest-scoring first quarter in NBA playoff history.

But Boston's Dennis Johnson, making one of two free throws with eight seconds remaining, gave the Celtics a 79-78 lead that held up as Detroit's Joe Dumars' 12-foot jumper was short at the buzzer.

The victory evened the Eastern Conference finals at 2-2 and returned the home-court advantage to the Celtics who have won 16 titles and gone to the NBA finals each of the past four seasons.

"They have survived another scare just like they did against Atlanta (in the semifinals)," Detroit coach Chuck Daly said.

"They are in position to hold home-court advantage. We've got a chance, but they've got the home court. This is what it comes down to."

Game 5 will be played Wednesday night at Boston Garden and Game 6 will be Friday night back in the Silverdome. Game 7, if needed, will be played Sunday in Boston.

"We'll come to battle them," Daly said. "We're going to fight and scrap. At least I am. I'm going to drive these players right into the ground and see if we can respond. You can only worry about the next game."

Larry Bird, who led Boston with 20 points on Monday despite missing most of the third quarter with foul trouble, said the Celtics were "troubled of winning the series."

"Now we've got the opportunity to go home, win and come back here and close it out," Bird said.

Both teams seemed tight in the first half, although Daly and Boston coach K.C. Jones preferred to credit the low-scoring affair to tight defensive pressure at both ends.

Boston led 16-10 after the first quarter, making it the lowest-scoring start in NBA playoff history. The previous low first quarter, 30 points, also involved the Pistons who led Chicago 17-13 in 1974.

The Pistons missed 20 consecutive shots in a 10:11 span of the first half, but the Celtics couldn't cash in, leading only 46-36 at halftime.

"They didn't handle the ball very well in the first half," Jones said. "The second half, we didn't handle it at all."

"It was one of the wierdest games, wierdest turnarounds, I've ever been in."

The Celtics shot only 40 percent, but that was better than the Pistons' woeful 33 percent.

"It was a hard game," said Boston's Danny Ainge, whose 12 points included 3-of-6 shooting from 3-point range.

Laimbeer, who scored half of Detroit's first-half points, scored seven more as Detroit opened the second half with a 17-6 run. Isiah Thomas, with six points during the spurt, finished it with a steal and layup, giving the Pistons a 53-52 lead with 6:13 left in the period.

Laimbeer finished with 29 points, while Thomas had 12 and Adrian Dantley 13 for the Pistons.

Detroit scored the last eight points of the third quarter, the first six on free throws, to lead 68-60 going into the final 12 minutes.

Bird, refreshed from his long rest in the third quarter, scored the first seven points of the fourth period, narrowing the deficit to 68-67. But Dennis Rodman scored on a fast-break layup, drew Bird's fifth foul and converted the free throw for a four-point lead.

Boston responded with six consecutive points for a 73-71 edge before both teams went into another scoring drought. Neither team scored for three minutes until a dunk by John Salley tied the score 73-73 with 4:25 left.

Johnson, who finished with 18 points, tied it for the last time, 78-78, on a jumper with 1:13 remaining.

Snyder Rangers top field at Bull's Eye soccer event

LUBBOCK -- Snyder's Rangers topped the field in the Under-8 League of the Bull's Eye West Texas Cup soccer tournament, held here last weekend.

The Rangers, playing in the White Division, beat Lubbock Scorpions 2-0, defeated the Lubbock Lil' Raiders 4-0, and locked 1-1 with the Lubbock Lil' Rascals.

They were forced to play Snyder's Sonics in the quarter-finals, and won 3-0 in a shootout, after tying during regulation and overtime.

In the finals, they beat the Lubbock Blue Sharks in a shootout 3-0 to win the championship.

The Blue Sharks took second, Lubbock Lil' Rascals third and Snyder Sonics fourth. The Sonics opened play in the Red Division, where they beat Lubbock Pumas 4-0, beat the Lubbock Bad News Bears 3-0, and tied the Lubbock Bandits 1-1.

Snyder's Rockets played in the Blue Division and beat the Lubbock Knight Riders 1-0, lost to the Blue Sharks 1-0, and tied with the Lubbock Crushers 1-1.

Snyder did not send teams to the finals in the Under-10 or Under-12 division, though the players received good experience.

Snyder's Rowdies lost 5-0 to Midland Fighting Irish, beat the Lubbock Knicks 4-0, and beat the Lubbock Dukes 2-1 in the Under-10 Red Division. The Irish won the division and the Rowdies did not advance.

In the Under-10 White Division, Snyder Lazars lost to the Lubbock Tigers, 3-0, beat the Lubbock Cowboys 5-0 and beat the Lubbock Texas Rebels 4-0. The Lazars finished second in the division to the Tigers.

Snyder's Titans missed the playoffs by one point. Playing in the Under-10 Blue Division, they beat the Lubbock Cobras 2-0, beat the Lubbock Dukes 6-1 and lost to the Lubbock Knight Riders 3-0.

Snyder's 12-Under entry, the Pacesetters, lost to Carlsbad, N.M. Broncos 7-1, were defeated by the Lubbock Cobras 2-1, and whipped the Lubbock Dust Devils 5-0.

Russell sparks Texas to victory over Twins

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) - Jeff Russell saved his best pitches for the most critical situations, and it was enough to make an impression on Minnesota Twins manager Tom Kelly.

"The guy was a good pitcher. He really battled out there. He made a couple of good pitches the only times we got something going," Kelly said Monday after Russell pitched the Texas Rangers to a 6-1 victory over Minnesota, ending the Twins' winning streak at eight.

Making his third start of the season, Russell, 4-0, yielded six hits in eight innings. He walked three and struck out five before Dale Mohoric came in to pitch the ninth.

One of the situations Kelly had in mind came in the sixth inning. Minnesota had runners on first and third with one out when Russell got Gary Gaetti to hit into a double play.

"He made a great pitch to Gaetti," Texas manager Bobby Valentine said. "And that wasn't the only great pitch he made."

Bert Blyleven, 3-5, lasted only 4 1-3 innings but struck out five to move past Phil Niekro into seventh place on the all-time strikeout list with 3,343.

In his last three starts, Russell has allowed five earned runs in 23 1-3 innings to lower his earned run average for the season to 2.37. Russell has started only five games in his last 101 appearances.

"I'm just concerned with pitching a solid six or seven innings and turning it over to the bullpen," said Russell. "I'm trying to gain confidence, that's all."

Ross' homer came with two outs in the bottom of the ninth inning.

Cal State-Fullerton improved to 41-16 on the season, while Texas A&M finished 52-15.

The NCAA World Series begins June 3 in Omaha, Neb.

'Horns fall to California

AUSTIN (AP) - The Texas Longhorns baseball team will be in an unusual place when the College World Series opens next month. They will be in Austin.

The Longhorns, top-seeded in the NCAA Central Regional Tournament, lost to the California Golden Bears for the second time in as many days Monday.

They had been seeking to return to the CWS in Omaha for the eighth time since 1979.

Mike Mathews limited the Longhorns to only four runs in seven innings to lead the Golden Bears into the CWS with a 6-5 victory over Texas in the championship game before a partisan crowd of 7,168.

Mathews gave up 11 hits, but limited Texas to only four runs in his mound stint. He is now 7-1.

It will be the fourth trip to the CWS for the Golden Bears, who finished third in the southern division of the PAC 10 and last went to the World Series in 1980. California swept through the Central Regional undefeated and heads into the College World Series with a 40-23 record.

The Longhorns end up 58-11 after the second loss to California. The Golden Bears had handed Texas its first tournament loss on Sunday 8-7.

WTC tourney dates altered

Western Texas College golf course has postponed its annual two-man scramble until June 11 and 12, Dave Foster has announced.

The event was originally slated for this weekend.

The date change is the only alteration made to the two-day tournament. Entry fee is $100 per team. The field will be limited to 60 teams, pre-flighted into four flights.

Handicaps will be verified and flighting will be based on lower handicap of the two team members.

Practice rounds will be held June 10. Shotgun starts will initiate tournament play at 8:30 a.m. and 1:30 p.m. on Saturday, June 11, and Sunday, June 12.

First place awards will be irons, second place will receive metal woods, third place will receive a golf bag, and golf balls will be awarded for fourth place.

Reservations may be made by calling the WTC pro shop at 573-9291.

Denison girl is picked for role

DENISON, Texas (AP) — If Denison's Jennifer McGill doesn't know the famous lines by now, she'll be singing them in her sleep by the end of the summer ...

M-I-C "See you real soon."
K-E-Y "Why? Because we like you."

M-O-U-S-E...

Jennifer, 9, is one of the new Mouseketeers, who will play the old Mouseketeers in a Walt Disney Studios movie scheduled for release this fall.

"I'm a Mouseketeer," Jennifer says, trying out the word.

For almost two months, Jennifer has thought of becoming a Mouseketeer.

Through three auditions, Jennifer belted out songs, tapped her toes, performed jazz routines and read scripts.

Finally, Disney officials called her mother, Joy, a couple of weeks ago. Joy called Jennifer at school with the news.

"When I was walking down there (to the school office) I kept thinking 'What have I done now?'" Jennifer said. "I heard Mom's voice and when she mentioned Julie's name (the talent agent) and I felt really excited ... I'm a Mouseketeer."

"She was very down to earth about it," Mrs. McGill said. "The first thing she asked was if I was really sure so she could tell her teacher."

"Jennifer loves to perform, and this is an opportunity she's always wanted. We're extremely grateful."

Jennifer said she was never really scared during her tryouts.

"I kept thinking, 'this could be my whole future,' she said. "I was nervous but I wouldn't really call it scared."

Jennifer's father, John, is a training supervisor with Conair. She also has a 6-year-old brother, Justin.

Mrs. McGill said her daughter is a "pageant child."

"She loves to sing, and the only place she had to sing was in a pageant," Mrs. McGill said.

Jennifer's latest pageant, the Royal American Miss in Dallas, set her Disney career in motion.

One of the judges was a children's talent agent. After the show, she approached the McGills and talked with them about representing Jennifer.

Within two weeks, the agent arranged a private audition for Jennifer with Disney representatives who had selected her photo from 500 submitted from the Dallas area. She then auditioned — singing and dancing. When she made the third cut, Disney representatives filmed Jennifer singing, dancing and acting.

The McGills don't know what part Jennifer will play in the upcoming movie.

Disney probably will film the movie this summer in California. Mrs. McGill said the movie will be spun off into a series. Whether Jennifer will be in the series hasn't been discussed, she said.

While teaching seventh and eighth grade English at B. McDaniel Middle School, Mrs. McGill found the time to coach her daughter.

"When Jennifer was a baby, she sang with my mother," Mrs. McGill said. "By the time she was 4, we knew she was exceptional, and at 7 she expressed an interest in contests."

Mrs. McGill is also a singer and was in the 1967 Miss Texas pageant. She also studied music as an undergraduate.

Jennifer's pageants have taken her to various states and committee meetings, county fairs and stage shows. She is the reigning Miss Pre-Teen Denison and the Junior Miss Fannin County Music Association.

Thunderstorms follow night of funnel clouds and hail

By The Associated Press
Strong thunderstorms roared across the Texas Panhandle early today and forecasters warned of flash flooding, high winds, dangerous lightning and hail.

The thunderstorms, being triggered by a low pressure system, followed a series of thunderstorms that spawned funnel clouds and baseball-size hail in the Panhandle Monday night.

A flash flood warning was in effect early today for Deaf Smith, Hansford, Hutchinson, Moore, Oldham and Palmer Counties in the Panhandle.

In addition to the strong thunderstorms in the Panhandle early today, scattered showers were reported in South Texas from the middle Rio Grande plains to the Coastal Bend.

Forecasters said there were strong thunderstorms indicated on radar along a line from just northeast of Skellytown to Amarillo to East of Clovis, New Mexico. The strongest thunderstorms were located near Skellytown, just west of Dimmitt and southeast of Muleshoe.

The National Weather Service placed Bailey and Lamb counties under a tornado warning Monday night after sheriff's deputies reported a tornado touching down about 7 p.m. near the Needmore community, 15 miles south of Muleshoe and about 60 miles northwest of Lubbock.

Peggy Bates, a jailer at the Bailey County Sheriff's office at Muleshoe said there were reports of baseball-size hail in the Muleshoe area.

Several funnel clouds were sighted about 9:45 p.m. Monday night in Deaf Smith County, west of Hereford and just south of the Westway community.

Tornado warnings were issued also for Parmer and Castro counties, which are west and south of Hereford.

Skies were mostly cloudy across the state as strong winds are bringing moisture into the state from the Gulf of Mexico.

Forecasters warn that heavy rain is possible with the storms because of an abundance of moisture across the state.

Forecasts called for mostly cloudy skies, warm temperatures and humid conditions across the state through tonight except in extreme West Texas where skies will be clear.

Scattered thunderstorms, a few possibly reaching severe levels, will move across the Panhandle through tonight. There will be scattered showers and thunderstorms through tonight across many portions of the state.

Lows tonight will be in the 60s and 70s.

Highs Wednesday will be mostly in the 80s and 90s, ranging from the mid 70s in the Panhandle to the upper 90s in the Big Bend area of Southwest Texas.

Early morning temperatures were mostly in the 70s except in the Trans-Pecos region where readings were in the 60s. Extremes ranged from 55 at Amarillo to 79 at Corpus Christi.

Other early morning temperatures around the state included 73 at Wichita Falls and Fort Worth, 74 at Waco, 73 at Austin, 76 at Houston, 77 at Brownsville, 62 at San Angelo, 67 at Lubbock, 70 at Midland and 62 at El Paso.

Soviet media highlights U. S. human rights abuses

MOSCOW (AP)—Soviet media are highlighting cases the Kremlin perceives as U.S. human rights abuses, in an apparent bid to counterbalance President Reagan's meeting with dissidents and refuseniks.

The official news agency Tass carried a critical commentary in advance of Reagan's meeting Monday at Spaso House, quoting Deputy Foreign Minister Vladimir Petrovsky as saying such an action "is hardly aimed at improving understanding between the Soviet Union and the United States."

The Communist Party newspaper Pravda told its readers that although the United States is a land of scientific and technological marvels, it is also a land of homelessness, hunger and repression of minorities.

On a day when news of the summit meeting dominated the pages of the newspaper, it printed a photograph of blacks in shabby clothes lining up for a free Thanksgiving Day meal at Lafayette Park in Washington, D.C., noting it was across the street from the White House.

On the bottom of the same page, it printed a story about Leonard Peltier, an American Indian convicted of killing two FBI agents in 1975 at the Pine Ridge

Indian Reservation in South Dakota.

Peltier's case has been cited by Soviet officials as an example of U.S. human rights violations. Civil rights lawyer William Kunstler said recently that the treatment of American Indians in the United States should be raised as a human rights issue at the summit.

Radio Moscow in one of its newscasts Monday mentioned a May 23 report by a panel of 40 prominent Americans that said minorities in the United States were failing to make progress in efforts to achieve full participation "in the life and prosperity of the nation."

Tass also publicized a news conference Monday by four Americans who came to Moscow to speak about alleged U.S. human rights abuses involving minorities. The four "wanted to make human rights part of the agenda" at the Moscow summit and provide "a balanced view."

Probe leads to three arrests

DALLAS (AP)—A major offensive has been launched against an Asian criminal organization involved in gambling, prostitution, extortion and murder, sources say.

The Dallas Times Herald reported today that the arrests come after more than a year of overt and covert investigation into the local operations of the Hip Sing Tong, a Hong Kong-based crime syndicate that federal authorities say has exported its violent activities to Asian communities across the United States.

The Dallas area investigation has been directed by a task force of agents from the FBI and officers from the Dallas, Addison, Richardson, Garland and Arlington police departments.

Arrested on charges contained in sealed indictments returned by the federal grand jury were Le Tho Duong of Rowlett, 29, his common-law wife, Debra Harsha, 34, and Arlington restaurant owner Wai Man Lam, 41.

The newspaper reported that the arrests came in a sweep that began Friday night. All three were being held in the Lew Sterrett Justice Center on unspecified federal charges without bail.

They were to appear before a federal magistrate today.

County jail officials said that Lam, who also is known in Dallas' Asian community as Raymond Lam, is charged with making a false credit application.

Sources told the newspaper that the arrests signal the beginning of an action phase in which the seven-member task force will seek criminal charges against more than two dozen people suspected either of being directly involved or having aided the Tong.

The list of targets, the sources say, include some well-known members of the Asian community, people who reportedly operated prostitution rings, extortion rackets daunted the plan somewhat. Almost exactly a year ago, on May 15, 1987, 15-year-old Richard Garcia of Lamesa drowned about 2 a.m. when he and a companion abandoned a boat in deep water and tried to swim ashore on the south side of the lake.

Four days later, the body was found floating 300 to 400 yards southwest of the main boat ramp in South Side Park by Reed and Scurry County Deputy Joe Cheyne.

Silva would be the lake's 28th drowning victim.

New immigration law draws mixed review

NEW YORK (AP) — Hyatt Hotel Corp. executives are basking in government praise for compliance with the new immigration law, which makes it illegal to knowingly hire undocumented aliens.

But with Wednesday's enforcement deadline looming, a Mexican fast-food chain in Texas fears raids by the Immigration and Naturalization Service.

And in Southern California, a waterbed-frame factory is challenging what it calls abusive and arbitrary INS inspection tactics, in the first significant court test of the law's sweeping employer-sanction provisions.

Some say the agency has shown extraordinary tolerance and the new documentation requirements for employees are only a minor nuisance. Others contend immigration officers have failed to educate businesses, and the paperwork is horrendously confusing.

"My sense is that many employers aren't complying with the law," said Ilene F. Lainer, an immigration specialist at a Roseland, N.J., law firm.

Stuart H. Bompey, an immigration lawyer here, said large employers are complying because they have the resources to efficiently keep records.

"The little guy who runs the small garment shop or something like that, probably isn't in compliance and won't be in compliance," he said.

Some like Ronald Klasko, president-elect of the American Immigration Lawyers Association, predict the INS will stage zealous enforcement raids after Wednesday's expiration of the 11-month phase-in, during which it only issued warnings to first offenders and stressed voluntary compliance.

The November 1986 Immigration Reform and Control Act requires the nation's 8 million employers to document the legal status of employees hired after the law was signed, with a form called the I-9. Employers must fire those who cannot prove work eligibility.

Employer penalties range from $250 to $2,000 per worker for first offenses, to $10,000 per worker and 6 months in prison for repeated violations. Failure to do the paperwork can result in $100 to $1,000 fines per violation.

INS spokesman Duke Austin said visits to employers nationwide suggest that about 90 percent are in compliance or nearly so.

"We're encouraged by that, because we know the only way this law is going to work will be to have compliance," Austin said. "We don't have the resources to visit 8 million employers."

Despite earlier grumblings about an additional bureaucratic nuisance, some large employers are now praising the INS for explaining how the law works.

The INS, in turn, has sought to establish good relationships with many businesses and publicly compliments model followers of the law.

For example Chicago-based Hyatt lost its initial fear about its ability to employ qualified workers after it asked for INS assistance. Hyatt, which like other big hotel chains historically has attracted undocumented aliens for low-pay positions, even received an award from the agency.

Some smaller businesses also have found it relatively easy to comply after initial complaints.

Murray Rosenzweig, president of Linden Maintenance Corp., a New York taxi company, once said the law would be a nightmare because of his constantly changing work force.

"It hasn't developed into a major problem anymore," he said recently. "It's become more of a routine, not a burden as I see it."

At El Pato Mexican Food Enterprises in McAllen, Texas, manager Ralph Nunez worries about surprise inspections at the fast food chain.

"We've been trying our darndest to comply," he said. "But what if they come in unannounced while a recently hired person is working for us and we still don't have the proper documentation in our office? If they're going to pounce on us, then we're in trouble."

INS tactics have been the focus of a court case in which Mester Manufacturing, a 70-worker waterbed-frame maker in El Cajon, Calif., challenged the agency's determination that it knowingly and repeatedly hired illegals.

Arguments before an administrative law judge revealed that INS officers who searched the factory might have abused their authority and ignored earlier company requests for help in complying with the law.

"The judge was pretty disgusted with a lot of this stuff," said attorney Peter Larrabee. "They're trying to stick it to employers. It takes an employer like my client that gets incensed to fight Big Brother."

Poll finds dissatisfaction with system

NEW YORK (AP) — Most Americans favor major changes in the selection of presidential nominees, with six in 10 saying they would eliminate political conventions and let voters choose the candidates directly, a Media General-Associated Press poll has found.

As the primary season winds down, with the final contests June 7, the survey found broad dissatisfaction with the selection system. A majority of respondents said they did not follow the campaigns regularly and only half believed the races provide a good discussion of the issues.

Sizable minorities said the best candidates generally lose their bid for the nomination, particularly on the Democratic side.

Fifty-two percent of the 1,204 adults in the national poll favored major changes in the way the parties pick nominees, while only 38 percent said the system works well enough now. Ten percent didn't know.

The dissatisfaction evenly spanned ideologies and political affiliations. The most striking split was in age: The youngest adults, ages 18-29, thought by a narrow margin that the system works well enough, while the oldest, those older than 64, broadly favored major changes, by 56-28 percent.

The age split was mirrored in levels of attentiveness to the races. Just 27 percent of the youngest group said they had been following the primary campaigns regularly, compared with 54 percent of the oldest group.

There was majority agreement on another way to select candidates. Fifty-nine percent said they would prefer to have voters select the nominees, without any delegates to party conventions.

Only 31 percent favored the party convention system. Though rules vary by state, generally voters select some delegates, the party selects others and the delegates meet to choose the nominee at conventions, where under some circumstances delegates can switch their allegiance.

Just 3 percent liked the idea of letting party leaders select the nominee on their own.

In another measure of unhappiness with the presidential nomination process, sizable minorities of Americans said the parties generally do not nominate their best candidate from among those running.

The Democrats fared worse, to the point that a plurality of the men in the poll said the Democrats do not choose their best candidate.

Overall, 46 percent of respondents said the Democrats generally do pick their best candidate from those who seek the nomination, and 40 percent said not. But while women by a 51-33 margin said the Democrats do take their best candidate, men by a 47-41 split said not.

More respondents overall, 52 percent, said the Republicans nominate their best candidate from among those running, while 36 percent said not.

Respondents who identified themselves as Republicans or Democrats tended to favor their party's choices. But the Democratic respondents said by 51-38 that the Republicans make their best choice, while the Republicans and the independents were split on whether the Democrats make their best pick.

Profits have come to the Soviet Union

MOSCOW (AP) — You fly in on the state airline, Aeroflot, make your way through KGB passport and customs control and catch a ride downtown with a driver from the state travel monopoly, Intourist GUM, the huge state-owned department store, is packed — but not because there's a sale on. There are no sales, the prices are fixed by ... that's right, the state.

That's life in the USSR. This is, after all, a communist state.

But less so, it seems, every day that perestroika survives.

If the buzzword of the 1980s in America has been entrepreneurship, the key word here is cooperatives.

Under the banner of perestroika, the Gorbachev campaign to restructure the nation's stagnant economy, authorities last week acted on new laws that will encourage the expansion of cooperatives, economic units akin in many ways to the small business sector of the United States, except that all employees are co-owners and thus share in the profits.

Profits? Profits have come to the Soviet Union and thus profit motive.

AP analysis

Soviet Premier Nikolai Ryzhkov said last week that 14,000 cooperatives were formed in the first 18 months they were permitted, with another 6,000 formed in the past three months. The cooperative system, he said optimistically, "in a short time can solve the most severe problems of perestroika, the demand of the population for goods and services."

For the past six months, the way to the Vavilova market has become lined with wooden stalls and card tables, as vendors sell whatever they can make or get their hands on. One young lady is modeling a red-and-white striped apron and has a dozen on the table starting at 30 rubles (about $50). A fellow across the way has got his hands on some stylish Western blue jeans — for sale, he says, at 130 rubles ($200, a month's pay for many Muscovites).

This turn in the local economy is not without controversy or opposition, and many are the residents who recall Khrushchev-era reform efforts and expect this go-round to go-round, too. The current edition of the Moscow News has a piece whose front-page teaser says, "Worker Demands A Revision of the Law on State Enterprise."

The worker, identified as steelmaker Mikhail Koptev, complained in an open letter to the Supreme Soviet that there are people putting roadblocks before the cooperative economy. Last week, the Supreme Soviet — always your basic rubber stamp in this one-party society — rebelled against a proposal to encourage cooperatives and insisted on a shift in the tax laws that would allow employees to keep a greater percentage of the profits.

That's right, they were considering tax breaks.

Tax breaks? It seems like curious business for Soviet communists.

Clotting can be controlled

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I've had thrombophlebitis for two years, had veins stripped in one leg and am scheduled for similar surgery on the other. My grandfather had thrombophlebitis, and I was on birth control pills for 12 years, had my ovaries removed so am on hormones, and smoke. As you can see, I'm a prime candidate for clotting. What causes clots?

DEAR READER: You are certainly a prime candidate for something, and blood clots may be at the top of the list. In general, three factors accelerate blood clotting within the body: too sluggish a bloodflow, too many blood cells and increased stickiness of blood. Admittedly, this is an oversimplification, but it is the clear way to answer your question.

Bloodflow can be reduced by a variety of means. If veins become dilated, as is the case with varicosities and hemorrhoids, the bloodflow within them slows down. As blood tends to stagnate, it is more likely to clot. This phenomenon is analogous to running water in a sub-freezing environment, rushing brookwater does not turn to ice as readily as does water in a pond. You probably have inherited a weakness in the walls of your leg veins. As the veins balloon out, bloodflow stops and clots may form, causing thrombophlebitis.

Some diseases, such as polycythemia and leukemia, are associated with an overabundance of blood cells. This predisposes to clotting, perhaps because as the viscosity increases, the blood flows less briskly, so stagnation may develop.

Finally, an increased stickiness of blood cells — particularly the tiny cells called platelets — will increase the risk of intravascular clotting. Smoking causes increased platelet stickiness. Therefore, it predisposes to accelerated blood clotting in people who use tobacco products. Smoking also can reduce the amount of oxygen in the blood, leading to increased production of red blood corpuscles, enhanced viscosity and stagnation of bloodflow. Some medicines, such as birth-control pills, add to the danger of smoking.

In summary, your genetic inheritance and smoking habit are working together to increase the risk of inappropriate vascular coagulation. Since you have no control over your predisposition to varicose veins, you will have to take measures to reduce the other risk factors. Therefore, I suggest that you stop smoking, use elastic support hose, have the most troublesome leg veins stripped and follow your doctor's advice about exercise and elevation of your legs.

In addition, you may be a candidate for chronic anticoagulant therapy, during which you take a daily pill or two of a drug, such as Coumadin, to prevent your blood from clotting. Despite the chronic aspects of your problem, you and your doctor can do a lot to help the situation.

It's important that you find a doctor who suits your needs — and Dr. Gott tells how in his new Health Report, CHOOSING A PHYSICIAN: MAKE A DECISION FOR GOOD HEALTH. For your copy, send $1 and your name and address to P.O. Box 91369, Cleveland, OH 44101-3369. Be sure to mention the title.

YOUR CHILD COULD USE ANOTHER POINT OF VIEW.

It's not because there's a lack of information out there. Your child is getting plenty — from the kids at school, from friends in the neighborhood, from older kids, and from countless other sources.

The problem lies in the kind of information your child is getting. What kids hear too often is that drugs are OK. What they need to hear is the truth.

This is where you, as a parent, can help. By talking frankly with your child, you can, first of all, learn where your child stands on drugs—what he thinks about them, what he knows, and what he doesn't know.

Then, once you understand your child's perspective, you'll be in a better position to offer your own. You'll be able to talk about the dangers of various drugs. And what your child can do to avoid them.

Of course, speaking to your child like this takes a lot of courage. And to do it effectively takes a lot of homework—like reading articles, attending meetings, and talking to other parents. This way, your child will see you as a well informed source.

Your child is going to talk to someone about drugs.

Who's it going to be?

To make sure you have the right answers, contact your local agency on drug abuse.
