MOSCOW (AP) — Mikhail S. Gorbachev and President Reagan concluded four days of summit talks today with an impasse on a major nuclear arms agreement but muted differences on human rights.

handshakes, Gorbachev said. Reagan had disavowed his description of the Soviet Union as an "evil empire," and noted with satisfaction that he did it "within the walls of the Kremlin."

ment policy. Asked at a news conference if he wasn't letting Gorbachev off a little too easy on that score, Reagan replied, "I just have to believe that in any sort of government some of us do find ourselves bound in by bureaucracy."

The president said he hopes for an arms control agreement by the end of his term in January to supplement the INF treaty that was formally ratified during his four days in Russia. But, he quickly added, "I am dead set against deadlines."

"The conversations are still going on and they are still being discussed and I say progress is still being made or we wouldn't be talking as we are," he said.

Ask Us

Q. — In the recent elections, why did the SDN wait until three days before the election to print the candidate's information since people were urged to vote absentee and yet had no information on the candidates until absentee voting was over?

A. — The planning for the candidate's questions and answers is done several weeks prior to the actual vote. When candidate filing ended March 23, the SDN sent out letters to the candidates asking them to return their questionnaires prior to April 29. This was sufficient time to allow for the tradition of running these replies the week before the election. The call for a greater use of absentee voting was made on April 24 almost one month after these letters were mailed and the deadlines already set.

Drowning victim search continues at Lake Thomas

A dragging operation continued Wednesday in search of the body of a Big Spring man who apparently drowned on a Memorial Day outing on Lake J.B. Thomas.

fort to find the body of 38-year-old Hilario "Lalo" Silva. Memorial Day winds continued over into Tuesday and kept the searchers off the lake until after noon. The afternoon and early evening search on the north side of the lake produced no sign of a body, a sheriff's office spokesman said Wednesday morning.

Lake supervisor Richard Halfmann said Tuesday that Silva's body may be from a half-mile to three quarters of a mile off the north shore between Bull Creek and the dam. Silva and two companions, Armando Franco and Domingo Soto, both also of Big Spring, were in a motorboat that capsized. See VICTIM, page 9.

Spending curtailed... WTC tax rate likely to rise

Administrators for Western Texas College were directed Tuesday to effect deeper cuts in the proposed 1988-89 budget and to essentially keep the college tax bite for the coming year "within the effective tax rate."

residents living in and outside the college district. The proposal is to increase the charge for in-district students from $8 per semester hour to $10. For out-of-district residents, the tuition fee would go from $8 to $12.

Extension center enrollment jumps

An increase of more than 100 students at Western Texas College extension centers is expected to increase the total enrollment for the WTC summer term this year.

students were counted. This year, 800 were noted following the first day of registration Tuesday.

are now enrolled, according to WTC Registrar Dan Dever. This center normally has 100 students during the summer term.

Put another way, college officials are proposing to keep the local taxes required in the 1988-89 budget at the same level as last year, approximately $1.6 million. Due to a declining tax base, however, keeping the total amount of taxes "the same" would still mean some increase on the WTC tax rate, now set at approximately 15 1/2 cents per $100 valuation.

The increase for tuition and fees would generate an estimated $110,000 for the fall, spring and summer terms combined. Even with this increase, however, the projected income offered Tuesday is some $5.2 million compared to the projected expense of some $5.4 million.

City votes canvassed

The Snyder City Council Tuesday night canvassed votes in the recent District 1 council runoff election and declared Vernest Tippens the winner over Walter Cox, with totals of 72 votes for Tippens to 36 for Cox.

Refusenik says...

28 refusenik cases solved

MOSCOW (AP) — Twenty-eight refusenik families will be allowed to emigrate from the Soviet Union from among 400 cases which U.S. officials raised during summit discussions with the Soviet Foreign Ministry this week, a prominent Jewish source said today.

Yuli Kosharovsky, who has been denied permission to emigrate for 17 years, said in a telephone interview that his name was not on the list of 28 prospective emigres that he received from Assistant Secretary of State Richard Shifter.

Neither were the names of other prominent refuseniks who met with President Reagan at a reception Monday at Spaso House, the U.S. ambassador's residence, where Reagan gave assurances of support to nearly 100 Soviet political dissidents, human rights activists and refuseniks — Jews whose applications for exit visas have been denied.

Kosharovsky said Shifter was given a list of 400 refuseniks on Saturday.

"The Americans made a presentation about these 400 cases, and on 28 of them they received positive answers," Kosharovsky said.

He said the favorable decisions appeared to be more the result of a careful, case-by-case review than of pressure on Soviet officials.

Kosharovsky refused to make the names of the 28 families public, and U.S. officials could not be reached for comment.

Other Jewish refuseniks said today that more than a dozen families who previously had been denied permission to emigrate were told immediately before and during the Moscow summit that they could leave.

Refusenik Bella Gulko said the Boris Weinshtock and Iosif Pilmenshtein families of Moscow had received permission to emigrate this week, as well as a retiree she only could identify by the last name Brave.

She said seven Leningrad families also had received permission to emigrate within the past week or 10 days.

The Soviet decisions seemed to have been related to Reagan's visit, Mrs. Gulko said, adding that "usually there are only one or two" approvals of exit visas in that length of time.

It was not known whether any of the names mentioned by Mrs. Gulko were on Kosharovsky's list. Another refusenik leader, Sergei Mkrtchyan, said he was summoned to the Moscow visa office on Saturday and was given permission to emigrate on Monday.

Mkrtchyan is a leader of the "poor relatives" group of family members who refuse to waive financial claims to allow them to emigrate.

Mkrtchyan, his wife and year-old daughter demonstrated daily in downtown Moscow last week. He said he was called to the Moscow visa office after the last demonstration on Saturday.

Mkrtchyan said he believed that Reagan's visit "absolutely" influenced the Soviet authorities' decision to allow him to leave the country after he was denied permission for three years. He said pressure from other Westerners and his own activities also helped.

Kosharovsky said his list apparently did not include Yuri and Tanya Ziemian and their daughter, Vera. The president had considered visiting the Ziemians on Sunday, the day he arrived for summit talks with Soviet leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev, but decided against it.

Woman's Weight Figures In Decision Not to Smoke

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1988 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: I am currently dating a good-looking, 33-year-old woman who has a medium frame and a shapely figure. She smokes and would like to quit, but she's afraid if she quits she will gain weight. I do not want her to lose her shapely figure, nor do I want her to smoke.

Can you list some possible solutions to win in both departments?

ordinance prohibiting the parking of vehicles in one spot for more than 72 hours. Also inform them that their pets have become a neighborhood nuisance — and suggest that maybe it's time they moseyed down the road. Harsh? Perhaps, but consider the alternative: The meek stand to inherit some insensitive guests, and a long list of inconveniences.

DEAR ABBY: My family tells me I'm abnormal because I eat only one item at a time. I dish out three or four items on my plate and eat them separately. Just because I don't take a few bites of this and a few bites of that, they say I'm abnormal and peculiar. My family is always putting me down and degrading me for the way I eat.

So what's wrong with the way I eat? Please put your answer in the paper so they can see it. They maybe they will get off my back. Thank you.

J.M.B., MARYLAND

DEAR ABBY: We have a problem. Some close relatives sold their home, bought an expensive RV, and told everybody that they were going to travel.

In three months they have taken two short trips. The rest of the time — you guessed it — the "monster" sits on the street in front of our house, connected to our electricity! These "travelers" also have pets that are a nuisance. Our neighbors do not appreciate all this and neither do we, although we do love these relatives.

There is a city ordinance that prohibits a vehicle from sitting for more than 72 hours in one place. We haven't been bothered yet, but we are getting nervous.

How does one handle a problem like this? I hope you put this in your column. Maybe they will see it and take the hint.

Jet flipped during landing

CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas (AP) — An F-16 Falcon fighter jet pilot from Kelly Air Force Base in San Antonio remained hospitalized today after his jet ran off the end of a runway and flipped over during an emergency landing at Corpus Christi Naval Air Station, officials said.

Capt. Victor H. Simon of San Antonio and a Navy rescue worker were held overnight at the base hospital after inhaling fuel vapors from the jet, said Lt. Col. Ed Cooke, public affairs officer at Kelly. Another 13 rescue workers were treated and released from the hospital.

Simon, a 10-year veteran Air Force pilot, flew one of two F-16s on a training mission over the Gulf of Mexico Tuesday, said Frank Weatherly, another Kelly spokesman. The two are part of the 149th Tactical Fighter Group assigned to the Texas Air National Guard at Kelly. The pilots left San Antonio about 2:30 p.m.

Drug enforcement officials could use help of military

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — Armed services personnel could be used to help fight narcotics traffickers, but military hardware would be more welcome, drug enforcement officials say.

Customs, Border Patrol and Drug Enforcement Administration leaders grudgingly told a House subcommittee Tuesday that they could use military help to fight the drug war, but that soldiers shouldn't be given arrest powers.

The Border Patrol could use motion sensors, drug-sniffing dogs, weapons such as M-16s, night vision devices and air transportation from the military, Border Patrol sector chief Mike Williams told the House Defense Policy Panel and Investigations Subcommittee.

But he and other officials agreed with Michael Mack, U.S. Customs district director, that military personnel aren't trained to make arrests.

The panel met in this border city partly because drug traffickers seem to be moving much of their operations from the tightly guarded Florida coast to the U.S.-Mexican border, which is tougher to patrol.

Mack said, for example, that it takes 21 months to train a Customs officer how to inspect a vehicle properly.

"On the surface, it appears that all he has to do is tell the people to get out of the car," Mack said. "But you have to follow due process in this country, and that requires training.

If due process isn't followed in criminal cases, criminals can be freed on technicalities.

Committee chairman Rep. Bill Nichols, D-Alabama, assured the witnesses that Congress is unlikely to repeal the posse comitatus law, a Reconstruction-era statute which forbids military personnel from making civilian arrests.

Committee member Rep. Duncan Hunter, R-California, whose district includes the border between Tijuana and San Diego, repeatedly pressed Mack and others on their reluctance to use military personnel.

"Would it be acceptable for the military to use tracker planes and fly a Blackhawk helicopter to where a drug trafficker's plane has landed and discharge Customs agents?" he asked.

Al Sousa of Customs air operations grudgingly conceded the agency could use such help.

Committee member Rep. Marvin Leath, D-Waco, said using the military is a good idea because the Soviet Union is considered "a perceived threat, while here we're facing a real threat."

Hunter suggested paying bilingual National Guardsmen bonuses to help the Border Patrol and Williams conceded the Guardsmen could be used in surveillance, detention and transportation. He stressed they should not be empowered to arrest. Larry L. Orton, special agent in charge at the El Paso Intelligence Center said the center — which collects information about drug trafficking and coordinates with law enforcement agencies — would like the military to share any classified information that could be of some help in the drug fight.

Papillon is named in lawsuit

DALLAS (AP) — The mother-in-law of Walker Railey filed suit accusing psychologist Lucy Papillon of seducing the former minister and depriving Peggy Railey of his affection before and after the choking attack that left her in a coma.

Billie Jo Nicolai filed the alienation of affection lawsuit Tuesday in state district court in Dallas, seeking unspecified damages for the "loss of the positive benefits flowing from the love, comfort, companionship and society of her husband," as well as exemplary damages.

"It was the result of the factual investigation of the case that turned up facts to the extent of the relationship between Lucy Papillon and Walker Railey," said Bill Arnold, who is representing Mrs. Nicolai.

Mrs. Papillon was notified of the lawsuit Tuesday evening as she ended deposition testimony in another civil suit filed earlier by Mrs. Nicolai that accused Railey of the April 21, 1987, attack on Mrs. Railey.

Railey, by failing to respond, was found liable for that attack by a state district judge in April.

Railey has said out of court that he was not guilty of the attack.

Mrs. Railey, 39, remains in a coma in a Tyler nursing home.

Railey, 40, is former senior minister of First United Methodist Church in Dallas. He has since moved to a California apartment rented by Ms. Papillon.

Mrs. Nicolai, who was appointed her daughter's legal guardian last fall, filed the lawsuit against Railey to cover Peggy Railey's past and future medical expenses, court costs and compensation for loss of earnings.

Arnold said he had Ms. Papillon served with the lawsuit and two subpoenas following her Tuesday deposition. She had been required by a judge to turn over any paperwork or evidence of her relationship with Railey.

Perot urges police to meet ministers

DALLAS (AP) — Dallas billionaire H. Ross Perot says Dallas police officers need to meet with black ministers and their congregations in an attempt to get to know them better.

Perot made the remark Tuesday after meeting with more than 100 black ministers.

The police officers want a chance to get to know the ministers and their congregations better, Perot said.

"We think it's important for police officers who work in this part of town to know the ministers, to know the congregations, to know the people they serve," Perot said.

Perot has worked for more than three months with Dallas Police in an effort to represent their concerns.

The ministers agreed following a two-hour, closed-door meeting that they should work together to help improve strained relations between the police and minority residents.

"This is just the time when we have a lot of misunderstanding," said the Rev. S.M. Wright, pastor of the Peoples Missionary Baptist Church, site of the meeting. "We've got to put Dallas first. We want to make certain that he (Perot) can relay to them (police) what is on our hearts so there won't be any miscommunication."

"The time is right for diplomacy," he said.

Members of the Black Ministerial Alliance will invite officers to attend churches within their beats so they can get to know better the people they serve, Wright said.

Turner's syndrome can't be treated

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT: Our 12-year-old granddaughter is tiny. The pediatrician says she has Turner's syndrome. We've been told she'll never reach puberty. What else can you tell us about this disease?

DEAR READER: Turner's syndrome, also known as gonadal dysgenesis, is an untreatable genetic disorder caused by the complete or partial absence of one of the two X chromosomes in the female. Children with this condition show short stature, webbing of the neck, failure of sexual development and anomalies of the skeleton, skin, blood vessels and kidneys. Mental deficiency is rare, and, except for spatial disorientation, Turner's syndrome children achieve average or above-average scores on IQ tests. Patients with gonadal dysgenesis can function appropriately in society, although they remain short and can never reproduce.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I teach in a small town. In my class is a sweet quiet girl who is always polite, but I felt there was something wrong with her. One of her classmates told me that she often vomits involuntarily, especially after exercise. I'd like to get her help, but am not sure how to do this in a tactful way.

DEAR READER: Because the basis of the girl's vomiting is unclear, she should have a thorough medical examination. She could have a physical cause for the vomiting or it could be due to an emotional disorder, such as bulimia. I suggest that you approach her parents and share your concerns about her health. You might urge them to take her to her pediatrician. Another option is to call the doctor directly.

As you point out, tact is vital in this sort of situation, particularly since you are acting on the basis of unverified information given by a classmate. Nevertheless, I am sure that most concerned parents would welcome input such as yours, since it involves the health of their child. I think that you could explain to the parents that you have no firsthand evidence of their daughter's inappropriate vomiting, yet you care for her and want to make sure that she is not developing a problem. In this way, you will fulfill your obligation as a teacher, at the same time giving the parents the responsibility to investigate further.
