

107 degree high is 'first' for 1988

The first 100-degree-plus reading of the summer—which does not officially begin for 12 more days—was recorded here Wednesday as the mercury shot up to an official 107 degrees.

Across the state, more hot, summer-like weather was expected Thursday, although forecasts called for the possibility of showers and thunderstorms across East Texas.

A slight cooling trend is expected here Friday, however sunny skies are again predicted, but the high is expected to be in the lower 90s.

Snyder wasn't the only location with 100-plus readings Wednesday. It was 108 at Wichita Falls and 106 at Childress.

Locally, the mercury has approached the century mark only one other time so far in 1988. Last Thursday, June 2, the reading hit 99 degrees here.

Summer officially begins June 21.

Recommendation expected to name assistant principal

A new assistant principal for Snyder Junior High is to be recommended to the school board Thursday, school officials say.

Superintendent Dalton Moseley said he will recommend a candidate at the regular June meeting of the board, set to begin at 7 p.m. at the school administration building.

His choice is to be discussed in executive session prior to any board votes, he noted.

The post will come vacant with the retirement of Bill Hartsfield, who is completing 33 years with Snyder ISD and 35 years in public education. Hartsfield has been assistant principal since 1979.

Also Thursday, the board is to consider 26 appointees to career ladder status for the district.

In other personnel related matters, trustees will also review the resignation of five school staffers and the employment of two others.

Also due consideration is a program for "at risk" students—those identified as potential drop-outs. The program will also be designed to improve academic performance and attendance of these students.

A report related to asbestos abatement litigation is planned also. On April 27, trustees voted to join with 68 other Texas districts in a lawsuit against a manufacturer of asbestos products.

The suit is an attempt to regain some of the expenses already incurred and expected to be incurred by the district in relation to asbestos "encapsulation" and

NEW YORK (AP) — Gasoline prices finished higher, but other oil prices were little changed ahead of the upcoming OPEC meeting this weekend.

On the New York Mercantile Exchange, contracts for July delivery of wholesale unleaded gasoline settled up 0.14 cent on Wednesday at 50.34 cents a gallon, but off from midday peaks.

The near term contract for West Texas Intermediate, the benchmark U.S. crude, fell 4 cents per 42 gallon barrel to finish at $17.33.

Six are killed

GREENVILLE, Miss. (AP) — A military transport plane was practicing touch and go landings before it crashed and burned in a fireball, killing the six Air National Guard men aboard, authorities and witnesses said.

Four bodies had been recovered from the wreckage of the C-130 turboprop as of late Wednesday, said Col. Dennis Wood, a spokesman for the Air Force Base in Little Rock, Ark., where the plane was based.

The plane was about a mile short of the Greenville Municipal Airport runway when it crashed Wednesday afternoon. Workers were using lights to search through the night for the bodies of the two others.

Meeting ends

HOUSTON (AP) — An Arab-American business conference here went off so successfully organizers hope to arrange regular meetings in the future.

Suggestions include a conference in a year in one of the Persian Gulf states, said Michael Saba, conference organizer. "We're looking at different locations. Bahrain was discussed as one."

Medicare expansion clears Congress

WASHINGTON (AP) — The first major expansion of Medicare in 23 years is headed to the White House for the expected signature of the conservative president who started the ball rolling last year with his call to protect America's elderly from the financial pain of serious illness.

Although the catastrophic illness bill given final legislative approval Wednesday by the Senate is more ambitious than the proposal laid out by President Reagan, the administration's No. 1 health official has said he will ask the president to sign it.

There was no reaction from the White House to the Senate's 86-11 approval of the measure, which came a week after the House voted in similarly overwhelming fashion for the compromise worked out in months of negotiations among House and Senate conferes and administration observers.

"This gives additional peace of mind to millions of Americans," Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, the Finance Committee chairman who guided the measure in the Senate, said just before final approval.

Sen. Bill Bradley, D-N.J., a member of the conference committee that worked out the final compromise last month, said the legislation "is not perfect, but it will vastly improve the lives of millions of elderly Americans who have high health care bills."

"This can truly be called landmark legislation," said Sen. Max Baucus, D-Mont., another conference committee member.

But Sen. Bill Armstrong, R-Colo., one of the 11 who voted against the measure, complained that it "is going to cost everybody and help very few."

Indeed, proponents never argued that the bill will have an automatic benefit for each of the nation's 42 million Medicare beneficiaries, 29 million of them past age 65. The other 13 million qualify for the federal health program because they are medically disabled.

Senate action on the catastrophic health bill came shortly after the House killed a separate measure that would have provided extensive home benefits for people not sick enough to require hospitalization or nursing home care.

Even though it was not intended primarily as a vehicle for improving long-term care benefits, the new Medicare legislation does make some improvements in that area as well.

For example, it extends the coverage available for people who need skilled nursing care in nursing homes from 100 days a year to 150. It also will enable an elderly person left at home to keep more money when his or her spouse has to go into a nursing home for an indefinite stay paid for by Medicaid, the government health program for the poor.

Leaders in both the House and Senate have said long-term care will head the domestic agenda in the next Congress.

In essence the new legislation provides a safety net for Medicare beneficiaries faced with extraordinary expenses from acute illnesses such as cancer.

Beyond that, it introduces a general prescription drug benefit into the Medicare program for the first time — albeit only for those who run up more than $500 a year in drug bills.

The bill is drawn with the idea that potential beneficiaries will foot the entire cost of the expanded benefits, which are estimated to cost $32.6 billion over the next five years.

Each of the 42 million will be assessed $4.00 a month in that Medicare premiums to pay for the additional coverage.

In addition, the estimated 10 percent of the recipients with enough income to make them subject to federal income taxes about $10,000 minimum a year for an individual will be charged a supplemental premium that amounts to a surtax on their income tax liability.

3 youth headed overseas

Three Snyder teenagers are heading for foreign lands this summer as part of the Rotary International Youth Exchange program. Two of the youth will be going to West Germany and one to Spain.

D'Lyn Lloyd is going to Hoyer, West Germany. Matt Haynes to Tarragona, Spain, and Royce Hataway to Duelen, West Germany.

D'Lyn is the daughter of Weldon and Billie Floyd of Fluvanna. Matt the son of Jimmy and Barbara Haynes, and Royce, the son of Emmett Hataway and Cindy Nix.

By the weekend, all three will be departed. They will stay with their host families for five weeks and then return with a teenager from that family for their new friends to spend five weeks in Snyder.

The exchanges were arranged through a local Rotary Club committee headed by Jack Gourman Jr.

GOP delegation heads to state meet

A group of Scurry County Republicans are scheduled to be in Houston this weekend attending as delegates to the state GOP convention.

The group was named at the county Republican convention held here March 19.

Those chosen as county delegates were Rod Waller, Annette Waller, Barbara McCormick, Homer Godard, Shirley Jones, Bill Jones, Donnie Burk, Mary Strelecki, Stan Paregien, Sally Walton and Jeanne Bullard.

The Texas GOP convention was to open Thursday with adopted Texan and presidential candidate George Bush scheduled to deliver the keynote address. State Republican Chairman George Strake, who is stepping down after five years as chairman, estimated that between 10,000 and 12,000 people would be attending the convention.

Speaking to the State Republican Executive Committee, Strake said this year's gathering is "the largest convention we've ever held."

We are on track to become the majority party in the state of Texas by the middle of the 1990s, he said. "If we just keep our noses to the grindstone and don't self-destruct, we can really become the majority party."

The peak of mail delivery at our house came during his senior year. Colleges, universities, trade schools and the armed forces sent enough literature to put the postal service in the black for years to come.

We remember a similar experience during our senior year in college where we received no fewer than 15 unsolicited credit cards.

Students here collect cans to aid battleship

Seventh grade Texas history students in Dale Hamby's class at Snyder Junior High School collected a pickup truck full of aluminum cans during the past school year. Toward the end of the school year, the cans were redeemed for approximately $170.

The funds from the class's major project of the school year were donated to the Battleship "Texas" which is in the process of being restored.

The project is being coordinated by the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department and students throughout the state were asked to contribute.

Hamby received a letter from the TPWD acknowledging the contribution a few days after school had dismissed for the year.

"Texas" was known as the "Mighty T" to her crew contributions from the schoolchildren of Texas brought the battleship to San Jacinto in 1948. The letter notes that today's school children are still supporting the battleship and that the complete restoration project for the ship will be long and difficult.

After the contribution was sent to the battleship, additional cans were collected and proceeds from those will be donated to the restoration of the Dermott School.

Donations to the effort should be sent to: Save the Battleship Texas, Texas Parks and Wildlife Department, 4200 Smith School Road, Austin, Tx 78744.

Fisheries plan is celebrated

DUTCH HARBOR, Alaska (AP) — Russian sailors danced in this remote American outpost during a shore-leave blowout celebrating the recent U.S.-Soviet fisheries agreement.

More than 600 Soviet sailors, many clutching fistfuls of dollars, arrived late Tuesday in this Aleutian Island town of about 1,000 people 800 miles southwest of Anchorage.

They were treated to rock music, mounds of food and gallons of various beverages, welcome sights and sounds for Soviet sailors who had been at sea more than six months.

"This is the first time I meet Americans," said Alexander Cherkov, first mate aboard the vessel Nemiozernoye. "Americans are very nice people."

"These people are real people," an American fisherman who identified himself only as Captain America slurred as he staggered off, his arms around two Soviet seamen. "Just like you and me. Can you believe it?"

The party was held partly to celebrate the fisheries agreement President Reagan and Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev signed during last week's Moscow summit meeting. The agreement allows U.S. vessels to fish in Soviet waters and use Soviet ports, and joint fishing and conservation in the North Pacific.

Soviet seamen have been coming here for the past three years or so, but Mayor Paul Fuhs said he could not remember when more Soviets had visited at one time.

"This is great, just great," said a beaming Fuhs, who also played with one of the rock bands. "Where else could this happen?"

Fuhs finished the evening with a red carnation tucked behind his ear. "It was one of those nights," he said.

As the party picked up steam, a Soviet maritime officer in full uniform tried to make his way across the windblown town dock jammed with hundreds of dancing people, but was besieged by giggling children. He stopped, put down his coat and began playing games with them.

Soviet sailors showered toys, candy and other gifts on any child in sight.

Americans and Soviets struggled to converse, and traded pins, hats and anything else not nailed down.

By night's end, the sailors had to help one another back aboard their vessels, many townspeople were in no better shape.

"The party was a success," Harbormaster Gary Daily said early Wednesday. "Everybody seems to have survived."

"This is the greatest thing that's ever happened to Soviet-American relations," said Dian-na Matthias, lead observer of the Soviet fleet for the National Marine Fisheries Service. "I never, never again want to hear that these people and Americans can't get along."

The Soviets started coming ashore at Dutch Harbor for crew rests around 1965, said Mark Dudley, Dutch Harbor manager of Maritime Resources Co. International, a joint U.S.-Soviet fishing venture.

He said his company expects its Soviet vessels to make about 30 port calls by year's end. Town officials said they expect perhaps 10 additional Soviet ships.

Each ship's crew is given up to $20,000 to spend here, Dudley said.

The sailors come ashore to buy American and Japanese goods. Before the party, they descended on stores to stock up on such goods as music tapes, portable radio-tape decks, solar powered watches, ice cream and gum — lots of gum.

"My kids call it hooba booba," said Alexander Mokhov, captain of the Mys Chassavoi, a 285-foot fish processor.

Rewards do not end when president's term concludes

WASHINGTON (AP) — A little more than seven months from now, Ronald Reagan will leave behind the pomp and power of the White House and become just an ordinary American citizen.

Well, sort of. He won't have Air Force One or his Marine helicopter, but that doesn't mean he will have to drive himself up the dirt road to his California ranch — or any place else for that matter.

"He will get government protection 24 hours a day, very similar to what we do now," Jane Vezaris, spokeswoman for the Secret Service, said. Ms. Vezaris won't go into detail about what this means, but Secret Service protection routinely includes chauffeurs to drive the protected person safely from place to place.

Former presidents also receive pensions, which amounted to $94,838 each last year for Nixon, Ford and Carter. They get funds for office expenses, which, according to the General Accounting Office, totaled approximately $1.3 million in 1987.

It was not always so. Harry Truman opened his own mail, bought his own stamps and drove his own car after he returned to Independence, Mo. Congress began covering such expenses with the Former Presidents Act in 1958.

Lifetime Secret Service protection was extended to former presidents and their wives in 1965, after President Kennedy was assassinated, although Theodore Roosevelt is the only former president in history to be attacked, and that was when he was running for president again.

Projects approved by panel

WASHINGTON (AP) — A northeast Texas lake that has been under construction since 1958 is on a list of 13 water development projects approved for funding by a Senate subcommittee.

The Cooper Lake project, in Delta and Hopkins counties on the South Sulphur River, was allocated $22.8 million of a $123 million funding package approved Tuesday by the Senate Appropriations subcommittee on energy and water development.

"These projects are essential to my state's economic vitality," said Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, who earlier had testified in favor of the projects.

The House energy and water development appropriations bill includes the same amounts for each of the 13 projects, making it likely final legislation will include the full amount.

The funding is to be used during the fiscal year that begins Oct. 1.

Cooper Lake has been under construction since 1958 and was in litigation from May 1971 through July 1984, Bentsen's office said.

The federal cost of the project is $133 million, while other costs amount to $227,000, said Bentsen's office.

The project is 28 percent complete, and through September, $49 million in federal funds will have been allocated toward the lake's construction.

The lake will cover about 32,153 acres and will serve as a reservoir for drinking water, for flood control and recreation, Bentsen's office said. It is scheduled to be completed in September 1992.

Mormon leader Joseph Smith was killed by a mob in Carthage, Ill., in 1844.

Wife Has to Shut Her Eyes To Husband's Toothless Grin

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1988 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: For years my husband neglected his teeth because he was afraid of dentists. Of course, he lost all his teeth, and now he has dentures, which he never wears unless he has to appear in public.

Abby, looking at him without teeth is offensive, and watching him eat is unbearable! He is 60 years old and still goes to work every day, but I dread the day he retires because he never wears his dentures at home.

His father was the same way — he refused to put his teeth in around the house. His mother finally gave up nagging him because they had a fight every time she mentioned how terrible he looked without his teeth.

My husband's dentures are beautiful, and he says they fit fine, so that's no excuse for not wearing them. I sometimes wonder if he goes without teeth just to irritate me.

I hope you have some good advice for me because this problem is making me crazy. Thank you.

REVOLTED IN MAINE

time at work carving decoys or playing cards, I would be fired. However, I can spend 80 percent of my time on our computer just for the sheer joy of it and be highly valued, even if I never produce anything really worthwhile.

The boss of the woman who wrote to you has discovered that "working" on the computer is more fun than any other part of his job (or life?). He will not simply computerize the operation and back off. He will continue to spend all his time reading about computers, talking about computers, studying and buying new hardware and software, programming, reprogramming, running off unnecessary memos and statistics, and visiting other people's computers.

When you give a 4-year-old a hammer, suddenly a lot of things need hammering. When you give a burned-out worker or administrator a computer, a lot of things need computerization.

HAL

DEAR REVOLTED: I think your husband is lying through his toothless mouth when he tells you that his dentures fit fine. (If they did, he'd wear them when he eats because eating without teeth is no pleasure.)

Why is he lying to you? Because he's still afraid of dentists and doesn't want to go back to have his dentures adjusted — which is exactly what he should do.

DEAR HAL: There is no denying that computers have become the "in" toys for those who can afford (and understand) them. In fact, they are so "hot" that next year a more sophisticated model will come out and make the latest obsolete. Readers?

Officers are installed at B&PW dinner meet

Members of the Business and Professional Women's Club met at Martha Ann Woman's Club May 24 for a dinner meeting and officer induction.

Jo Erwin, MAWC board member, served as installing officer in a candle lighting ceremony. As she handed each officer a different colored candle, she commented about the office and its responsibilities in the year ahead.

Frances Brown and Fay McCollum were hostesses for the occasion. A May pole centered the table and individual favors of Western hats complemented each setting.

Jimmie Cooper shared highlights of a recent tour of the azalea show in Oklahoma City.

She also told about the growth and processing of the candelaria plant found in south Texas. She commented that the wax from the plant is used in fine furniture polish and candle making.

Ruby Butts, president, conducted the business session. Members voted to continue support of the Foreign Exchange Program and also paid dues for the coming year.

A large get-well card was signed by members to send to Nellie Smith.

Incoming President Brown presented a gift to Ruby Butts in appreciation for her service to the club as president.

The club will not hold regular sessions until September, but members plan a summer picnic.

Eating kin makes for healthy lives

GAINESVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Biologists have found that individual members of more than 1,300 species of animals are not above making meals out of their kin.

Recent studies have shown that everything from birds to termites will eat their own species when food is scarce. These cannibals also seem to benefit from their unusual diet. When tested, mosquito larvae reproduced faster and tree frog tadpoles grew bigger by eating their own kind.

Don't oblige the declarer

Sometimes the bidding suggests that the hand is going to play very well, even when partner has virtually no high-card strength. That's a good time to push to a skimpy game, especially if you think that the defenders will fall into your trap.

South bid spades and hearts, and doubled three diamonds. When North removed the double to three spades, South figured partner for spade support and shortness in diamonds. Deciding that game could be made if East, the opener, held the heart king, South bid four spades. Sure enough, with a diamond lead, declarer was able to ruff his third diamond. He then took a heart finesse and played ace and a heart. No one could stop him from ruffing the last losing heart with the spade jack in dummy, and that was 10 tricks — a tribute to aggressive bidding. But should anything have been different?

West should realize that declarer has length in spades and hearts, and of course diamonds, since he doubled three diamonds for penalties. Isn't it obvious that South expects a diamond lead when he bids four spades? So why oblige him? If West plays ace and queen of clubs originally, the hand collapses. If declarer wastes the jack of spades to get to dummy to lead a diamond, he will no longer be able to ruff his fourth heart safely, and the game contract will fail.

Mosquito offers a deadly bite for dogs

WASHINGTON (AP) — A mosquito bite is just a nuisance to most people, but it can kill your dog if the mosquito is carrying the heartworm larva, says the American Heartworm Society.

In fact, canine heartworm disease is the biggest killer of dogs in the country, after automobile accidents.

Current data shows only about 10 million dogs of the estimated 50 million in the U.S. are protected against heartworms. Until recently, the only preventive treatment required daily dosage but now a new swallowable tablet, available only through veterinarians, needs to be given just once a month.

Penwomen host Odessa Society

Scurry County Penwomen hosted the Odessa Poetry Society June 4 with a luncheon at The Shack. Following the meal, the group toured the Diamond M Museum then met in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Franklin Bryant.

Garnet Quiett, president, called the meeting to order and welcomed guests. Chaplain Christine Killgo offered the invocation.

Gayle Brisco, Odessa president, led the program. She told about a recent trip to Dallas where the Odessa chapter gave the April program for The Poetry Society of Texas.

Members shared original works as follows: Bryant, "Naomi" and "Ebbtide"; Alice Greenwood, a sonnet to her mother, "Legacy," and one to her father, "Inheritance"; Beth Hopwood, "A Losing Battle" and "Rondelet of Politics"; Janelle Burk, "How Long" and "Almost."

Others reading were Denise Stallcup, "One Last Time" and

"A Change of Heart"; Gayle Brisco, "Summer Heat" and "On Viewing Dolly's Persistence of Memory"; Ruth Todd, "A Stranger" and "Just for a Little While"; Mary Westmoreland, an article, "Everybody Is Somebody."

Also sharing works were Quiett with "Insomnia" and "Homeward Bound," a blank verse poem; Priscilla Frake, blank verse entitled "Lessons from the West Texas Landscape" and "Time."

Brisco passed copies of "Hints in Blank Verse" and "An Activity Summary for 1988," a schedule of the Odessa Society's activities.

The Odessa members had sent poems to Burk to be critiqued and judged. She announced the winners at the meeting.

Cox and Westmoreland won honorable mentions in Abilene Writers Guild contests with Cox's poem, "The Ancient Fence," and Westmoreland's article, "American Junior Rodeo Association National Finals."

Burk won third place in the "Critic Judge" monthly contest of The Poetry Society of Texas.

The meeting adjourned and refreshments were served. The local club will not meet during summer months.

City council shouting match erupts

DALLAS (AP) — The volatile debate over the police review board flared into a tense shouting match punctuated by charges of racism between black council members and white police supporters.

The council was hearing public testimony on a compromise in the controversy over the Citizens' Police Review Board, an issue which has divided the city along racial lines, when the shouting match erupted.

The compromise plan, later approved 8-3, would lessen the subpoena and investigative powers the board was granted in December.

The debate intensified during Wednesday's council meeting after Terri Kicinmeier, president of the Citizens Offering Police Support spoke in favor of the

Deputy Mayor Pro Tem Diane Ragsdale, the city's highest elected black official, then questioned the timing of COPS' formation.

"Many of my constituents, legitimately, as well as some black officers came to me and asked the question, 'Why did COPS originate after the shooting of Officer (John Glenn) Chase, why not after the shooting of Officer (James) Joe?'" said Ms. Ragsdale.

Joe, who was black, was shot January 14 as he investigated a burglary at an apartment complex where he moonlighted as a security guard. Chase was shot Jan. 23 in a downtown parking lot by a homeless, mentally-ill black man.

North, Poindexter & Co.... Gesell orders separate trials

WASHINGTON (AP) — Legal experts say Iran-Contra prosecutors were handed a "worst case scenario" when a judge ruled that Oliver L. North and three co-defendants must each be tried separately.

"It's like kissing a rattlesnake," said former federal prosecutor E. Lawrence Barcella Jr. of Washington, describing the ordeal of conducting what is essentially the same case over and over again. "It's not fun and usually injurious to your health."

The ruling Wednesday means Independent Counsel Lawrence E. Walsh must conduct four consecutive trials, tipping his hand on prosecution strategy in the initial case.

U.S. District Judge Gerhard A. Gesell — granting defense motions — ordered four trials so the defendants could use each other's immunized congressional testimony to defend against the charges, including a broad conspiracy count.

The immunized testimony would likely be inadmissible in a single trial, thus denying defendants their normal right to cross-examine each other on their prior statements.

The defendants have said the immunized testimony of the other defendants before the congressional Iran-Contra committees would show their innocence. Prosecutors cannot introduce the immunized testimony of the specific defendant on trial as part of their case against that defendant.

North, former national security adviser John M. Poindexter, and businessmen Richard V. Secord and Albert Hakim are charged with conspiring to illegally divert profits from U.S. arms sales to Iran to the Nicaraguan Contras when such assistance was banned.

Gesell said either North, a former National Security staffer, or Poindexter must be tried first. North is charged in 16 counts of the 23-count indictment, while Poindexter is named in seven. The judge gave the prosecutor until Friday to decide the order.

The independent prosecutor declined to say whether he would try North or Poindexter first.

The judge also said he had not made final decisions on whether the congressional immunity, given to all defendants except Secord, posed such a serious problem as to preclude trying the cases at all.

The judge said he would decide that and other major pre-trial issues by July 1 so he could set a date for a prompt trial.

One legal source familiar with the case who would comment only on condition of anonymity said the ruling could have one beneficial effect for the prosecution.

He said Walsh would have the right to call anyone convicted in an earlier trial as a witness in a subsequent trial. If the four had been tried together, the prosecution could not call one defendant to testify against another.

But Barcella, who handled major anti-terrorism cases as an assistant U.S. attorney in Washington — and his former boss, ex-U.S. Attorney Joseph diGenova — agreed that on balance, the ruling went against prosecutors.

"This ruins the prosecution's entire strategy," diGenova said. "It's what every prosecutor dreads. It's the worst case scenario for the independent counsel."

"Prosecutors wanted all four in the courtroom together," he said. "They wanted the entire conspiracy before the jury, which could look at them, see the evidence against all of them, and weigh the conspiracy against them."

diGenova said a thorough legal analysis must determine whether the cases are "winnable" if tried separately.

But he said: "When you have them all in the courtroom together, evidence admissible against one will be admissible against the others. Statements can be admitted as evidence which (incriminate) the other defendants."

Walsh, who had urged a joint trial of the four defendants, declined to comment on the judge's decision, saying only that "everyone realizes that four trials are more burdensome than one, but the judge feels that that's a necessary requirement to protect the constitutional rights of all four defendants."

Brothers drown in small lake

LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) — Two young brothers who drowned while playing in a small lake had ignored warnings not to swim there, said witnesses to the event.

Jason Matthew Ivey, 7, and Phillip Wayne Ivey, 8, drowned Wednesday in the shallow, murky lake marked with "no swimming" signs.

"I kept telling them not to play in the lake, and they kept playing in the lake," said Larry Lincoln, who had been fishing at the lake, which borders on a residential area.

The children's mother, Clara Ivey, was cleaning a house in the neighborhood and had given her children permission to go outside and play, according to police Sgt. D.L. Brown.

Lincoln said he looked up to check on the children and they were gone.

Ponder needle proposal

NEW YORK (AP) — The nation's first test of distributing hypodermic needles to drug users for curbing AIDS will begin next month in Portland, Ore., and the prosecutor says it's worth a try.

"I'm saddened we have a population that warrants such a program, but I see there are valid public health and public policy reasons for such a program, or at least putting it in place," said Multnomah County district attorney Michael Schrank.

"To me, the AIDS prevention and the drug treatment counseling for each participant is really the key to it," he said in a telephone interview.

Such counseling may reach people who would not otherwise get it, so it "may well benefit the community," he said. "I'm willing to gamble the counseling will be good."

But Schrank, who said he believed in a firm drug enforcement policy, declined to say whether the program would break laws. "Those are things we'll have to work through," he said.

Legal opposition has been holding up a similar program in New York City. In Massachusetts, state lawmakers on Wednesday debated a needle distribution program in Boston.

The Oregon project will be conducted by Outside-In, a social service agency, under a $67,000 grant from the American Foundation for AIDS Research, said Kathy Oliver, Outside-In's executive director.

The yearlong program, in which 125 drug abusers will get counseling and exchange used needles for new ones, is designed to study whether such programs can reduce the spread of the AIDS virus among drug abusers, said project consultant Don Des Jarlais of Narcotic and Drug Research Inc., a non-profit New York foundation.

A needle used by an infected person can infect the next person who uses it. Besides providing sterile needles, exchange programs provide opportunity for counseling about drugs and AIDS, said Des Jarlais, who is also coordinator of AIDS research for the New York State Division of Substance Abuse Services.

"It does carry an implied message that government is condoning the drug use, which we think is an inappropriate message for youth," said Allan Randall of the National Federation of Parents for Drug-Free Youth, based in Silver Spring, Md.

To qualify for the Portland program, a person will have to admit intravenous drug use, show identifiable injection marks and have a needle to exchange for a new one. But no used needle will be required the first time they get a new one.

Official: can't stop smuggling because people want drugs

WASHINGTON (AP) — Federal efforts to halt illegal drug smuggling haven't been successful because "Americans want drugs and they are willing to pay a high price to get them," says the nation's comptroller general.

Charles Bowsher says it is time "to reassess federal drug abuse policy and strategy" and the goal should be decreased demand rather than increased efforts to halt the supply.

His assessment came as the Senate began work on a bill that would provide the death penalty for large-scale drug dealers whose organizations are involved in killing policemen. The Senate was scheduled today to vote on a motion to conclude debate on the bill.

Bowsher's pessimistic message came in testimony to the Senate Armed Services Committee, which is holding hearings on proposals to increase the role of the military in drug interdiction efforts.

The House last month voted to have President Reagan order the Pentagon essentially to seal U.S. borders against drug traffickers. The Senate's anti-drug measure didn't go as far, but it would give new power to the Navy to arrest drug traffickers seized in international waters.

The proposals were attached to separate Pentagon budget bills approved by the two chambers. A House-Senate conference committee will resolve the differences.

Sen. John Warner, R-Va., noted the increasing chorus of congressional demands for action to halt the nation's drug problem. "Congress is on a stampede and we need some direction," he said. "We need to try to corral this stampede and point it in the right direction."

Using the military isn't the right direction, said Bowsher, who heads the investigative arm of Congress, the General Accounting Office.

"I do not suggest that efforts to control the supply of illegal drugs are useless and should be reduced," he said. "I do suggest, however, that the Congress and the executive branch should exercise great caution before deciding to devote more resources and more emphasis to supply reduction programs."

From 1977 to 1987, federal drug interdiction efforts increased by 1,500 percent, he noted.

But "if we measure success by the number of drug users and the amounts of drugs being smuggled into our country, we must unfortunately conclude that our present strategy and policies are not working," he said.

On the opposite side of the Capitol, a government informant testified that drug smugglers using small planes can easily evade federal rules requiring the registration of aircraft and pilots.

The witness testified from behind a screen and was identified only as the former bookkeeper of an international drug ring.

Wreck vehicles both driverless

An unoccupied 1978 Oldsmobile two-door owned by Jeff D. Rogers of 4100 Brick Plant Rd., No. 13, apparently came out of gear and rolled into a parked 1986 Ford pickup owned by Max Jones of Fluvanna at 2:30 p.m. Wednesday in the 2400 block of Ave. 1, police said.

A 1986 Ford pickup driven by Rose Marie Bailey of 604 34th St. hit a parked 1986 Mercury four-door owned by Pearl L. Schwartz of 320 34th at 3:15 p.m. Wednesday in the 600 block of 34th.

Radiator water burns individual

A 24-year-old man was treated and released at Cogdell Memorial Hospital Wednesday afternoon after he was scalded by hot radiator water at a College Ave. and U.S. 94 convenience store.

Snyder EMS Ambulance Service took Walter Brown, whose address was listed as the 2300 W. 10th, to the hospital at 2:30 p.m. after he reportedly removed a car radiator cap and the boiling water exploded onto his face and chest.

He told the House Public Works Committee that the rules were "very easy to beat. Nothing to it."

Bowsher, meanwhile, told the Senate panel that throwing the military into the drug war "would probably result in more drug seizures and arrests, but it may not significantly reduce supplies."

He said traffickers can increase the volume of drugs shipped to make up for those seized, and they also vary shipment routes to avoid detection.

"As long as the demand stays high, sealing the borders probably isn't realistic," Bowsher said.

"Since our current approach is not working, it is time to consider devoting more emphasis and more resources to activities aimed at reducing demand — prevention, treatment, and research on the causes and extent of drug abuse," Bowsher said.

The United States now spends about $3 billion a year to reduce supply and only $1 billion annually to reduce demand, he said.

Until Nicaraguan aid is permitted...

Peace group says it plans to stay on the border

LAREDO, Texas (AP) — The Veterans' Peace Convoy to Nicaragua was stalled at the Mexican border by trade restrictions, but the 94 people in the caravan said they won't budge until their shipment of food and medical supplies is allowed to cross the Rio Grande.

"Right now, we're prepared to stay here until we are allowed to leave our own country," said Gerry Condon, a Vietnam veteran from Santa Cruz, Calif. "We feel like we are being held hostage with this humanitarian aid."

The convoy, which opposes the U.S. government's trade restrictions on Nicaragua and aid for the rebels that have fought to overthrow the Marxist Sandinista government, had planned to cross the Mexican border Wednesday morning.

But on Tuesday night, federal officials advised them that although the 30 tons of food, clothing and medical supplies would be allowed to be taken to Nicaragua, the 37 vehicles they planned to leave in the Central American nation would violate a trade embargo.

The Nicaraguan Trade Control Regulations of the Treasury Department's Office of Foreign Assets Control prohibit the unlicensed export of goods to Nicaragua, except for "donated articles such as food, clothing and medicine, intended to be used to relieve human suffering."

In order to take the five buses, 30 trucks and two cars to Nicaragua, however, the Treasury Department said the convoy would have to post bonds equal to the value of the vehicles, as assurance they would be returned to this country.

The group also would have to return them to the United States within 30 days or face forfeiture of the bonds and other federal penalties, under the International Emergency Economic Powers Act, according to a notice the Treasury Department handed out to the group.

"We do not plan to bring them (the vehicles) back," said convoy member Dave Silk, from Stonington, Conn. "That's part of our humanitarian aid."

Convoy organizers say the vehicles are needed in Nicaragua to distribute the donations.

Customs officials said they took the initiative Tuesday night to tell the convoy about the regulations the Treasury Department requires them to enforce, and disagree with the group's contention that the government is harassing them for political reasons.

"It's a very usual, ordinary and customary procedure," said Charles Conroy, a Customs spokesman in Houston. "All they are doing is going through our usual export control procedure."

The convoy started on May 21 from points in the West Coast, Rocky Mountain, Midwest and East Coast regions of the country.

By the time it reached the Mexican border Tuesday night, the convoy included 55 veterans from the World War II, Korea and Vietnam eras, as well as 39 non-veteran supporters.

"As long as the Reagan administration wants to have veterans sitting here with baby food on the border, that's how long we'll be here," Condon said.

The aid was earmarked for Nicaraguan children, organizers said.

The group held a closed meeting Wednesday night at its Laredo base, the KOA Campground to plan actions "that would be dramatic, that would up the ante," Condon said.

They marched through Nuevo Laredo, Mexico, just across the river Wednesday carrying signs and chanting "Ninos si, Contras no," and other slogans, then briefly blocked one of the international bridges with Mexican supporters.

Brooklyn, N.Y., attorney Stephen Somersheim, traveling with the convoy, said attorneys with the New York-based Center for Constitutional Rights are representing the convoy in its negotiations with the Treasury Department.

Demonstrators said the protesters' demonstrations of support from around the country, including a planned protest Thursday at the federal building in San Francisco.

cisco. Actor Paul Newman and his wife, actress Joanne Woodward, shipped 10 cases of lemonade to the group in Laredo, where the temperature reached 107 degrees Wednesday, said Kathy Engel, executive director of Madre, a New York-based pro-Nicaragua organization.

"Senators and congressmen are calling us now wanting to know what they can do to help, so I think we're going to proceed on," said Bob Liveney, a veteran from Dorchester, Mass. "It's just a matter of when."

Monsanto okays $1.2 million chemical poisoning payment

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (AP) — A 7-year-old chemical poisoning lawsuit ended with Monsanto Co. agreeing to pay $1.2 million to six of the 173 former workers who sued, but one who will share the award said the money doesn't make up for his cancer.

As part of the agreement announced Wednesday, Monsanto will pay $200,000 each to the six retired employees who said their exposure to a rubber additive at the company's Nitro plant gave them bladder cancer.

As part of the settlement, 127 dioxin-related claims and 34 other chemical poisoning claims will be dropped.

In addition, the St. Louis-based corporation agreed to drop its $300,000 court-costs claim against six other retired workers who unsuccessfully claimed the company recklessly exposed them to highly toxic dioxin at the plant. Monsanto had attached liens to their homes to guarantee payment.

"I'm pleased with it," said retired worker John Hein of the $200,000 he will receive.

But the Nitro resident said the money "doesn't make up" for his illness, which sends him to a hospital twice a year for treatments. He also said he was unhappy that the other plaintiffs were left out of the settlement.

"There's a lot of them that the statute of limitations ran out on. I don't like that," Hein said.

Hein was one of the 173 former Monsanto workers who filed suit in 1981.

He was awarded $200,000 in 1985 after proving in an 11-month trial that exposure to PAB, a rubber additive, caused his cancer and that Monsanto knew the risk. However, it wasn't until Wednesday's settlement that Monsanto agreed to pay the award.

But he and six other retirees in the marathon trial lost their dioxin poisoning claims, and the 4th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals rejected their appeal.

It was after that trial that Monsanto sought to recover $304,000, a fraction of its court costs, from the retirees. The workers faced losing their homes if the chemical company prevailed.

The settlement was reached a week before the scheduled U.S. District Court trial of Hein and the five other bladder cancer victims who will split the money.

Attorney Stuart Calwell, who filed the original lawsuit against Monsanto, said the six PAB-related claims were "really all that's left of the case."

"I am very pleased for my clients," he said. "I think for them it's a very good settlement."

Added Monsanto lawyer Charles Love III: "We're relieved, of course, that it's over. We do not believe we injured these people intentionally. However, rather than go through this again, we decided to settle the matter."

Monsanto manufactured PAB at its Queeney plant in St. Louis and shipped it to Nitro for manufacture into rubber chemicals. Calwell said other Nitro workers exposed to PAB "have a precancerous condition" but were not part of the lawsuit.

Until 1983, West Virginia law allowed employees to sue their employers for job-related injuries if workers could improve willful and reckless disregard for their safety.

Trade veto stands

Senate's trade war rages on

WASHINGTON (AP)

Powerless to override President Reagan's trade veto, the Senate is promising to push on in the frustrating, three-year quest for a bill to sharpen America's edge in the global marketplace.

The Senate fell five votes short Wednesday of the two-thirds majority required to make the measure law despite Reagan's objections.

Finance Committee Chairman Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, said he is willing to draft a new trade measure that Reagan might be willing to sign, but he acknowledged that "it's a little late in the day to be talking about a second bill."

Senate Majority Leader Robert Byrd, D-W.Va., took another tack. Although he strongly supported the trade bill, at the last parliamentary maneuver that could later allow him to ask for reconsideration of the 1,000-page bill.

"This is insurance that the American people can still have a trade bill this year," said Byrd, who argued that efforts to draft a new measure could become hopelessly bogged down in debate over complex amendments.

The centerpiece provisions of the bill Reagan vetoed would revamp the government's system for imposing import curbs to aid U.S. industries and retaliate against trade violations.

Others range from sizable farm export subsidies to repeal of the 1980 windfall profits tax on oil-industry earnings.

But those were overshadowed in recent weeks by Reagan's objections to a provision to require companies with 100 employees or more to provide 60-day notice of plant closings and large-scale layoffs.

Republican critics objected to what they called special-interest provisions and lingering protectionism in the bill, while supporters in both parties claimed it was vital to farmers and heavy industries suffering from trade upheavals.

The House voted overwhelmingly to override the veto last month, and some of the administration's supporters have said they would feel more comfortable if they could get a second crack at the issue before having to face the voters in the fall elections. Democrats made no effort to disguise their belief that the trade issue can be translated into votes.

Diet pills have side effects

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I've been taking Prolamine for 10 years and it has helped me to get control of my life. Is there any long-term health problem this medication could cause?

DEAR READER: Prolamine, one brand of "diet pill," contains phenylpropranolamine, an over-the-counter drug that is marketed as an appetite suppressant. This active ingredient is also present in other appetite-suppressant preparations — such as Appedrine, Control and Dexatrim (which has been heavily advertised on national TV).

The four brands named above are manufactured by the same company. The manufacturer cautions against using Prolamine for more than three months. It should not be taken by anyone with a serious illness, such as hypertension, diabetes, heart or kidney disease, depression or thyroid disorder. The drug also causes dry mouth, but is also associated with headaches, dizziness, nervousness, sleeplessness and palpitations.

In my opinion, this — and any drug like it — is not appropriate for use in weight control. It represents a short-term stopgap solution to a chronic problem. When used as directed, Prolamine may cause weight loss for limited time — but with an unacceptable risk of side effects. Without a support group or a sound dietary program, people almost always regain weight after they stop taking appetite suppressants.

If you have taken Prolamine for 10 years, you have substantially exceeded the manufacturer's limit for therapy. I suggest that you stop the medicine and check with your doctor for a more suitable method of weight control.

To give you more information about a balanced approach to weight loss, I am sending you a copy of my Health Report, "Weight Control Through Calorie Control." Other readers who would like a copy should send $1 and their name and address to P.O. Box 91369, Cleveland, OH 44101-3369. Be sure to mention the title.

DEAR DR. GOTT: My aunt has been told that something is wrong with the veins in her throat and this is the cause of her small strokes. The doctor told her she could drop dead at any time (or would die on the operating table if she chose surgery), but would never know what hit her. Some comfort! Can anything be done to help her?

DEAR READER: I think that you misunderstood the doctor. If your aunt has had small strokes, she probably has arteriosclerosis and partial blockage of the arteries in her neck; these blood vessels are the major supplying the brain. (The veins drain downward, back into the heart, so venous clots could not cause strokes.) Arterial blockage is a problem, because strokes are a common consequence of this condition. However, surgery to unplug the arteries carries risk, too. During or after the operation, debris from the arterial lining (or new clots) can break off and be carried to the brain, causing stroke.

If your aunt is not an appropriate candidate for arterial surgery, she might be helped by using anti-coagulant medication to reduce the risk of further clots being carried to her brain. Ask her doctor about this.

Texas has highest rate of suicides in prison

WASHINGTON (AP) — Prison experts say the "double-edged sword" of jail overcrowding may have influenced results of a federally funded study that found the Lone Star State had the highest incidence of jail suicides for two years running.

Texas had 48 jail suicides in 1985 and 46 in 1986, for a total of 94, the National Center on Institutions and Alternatives reported.

"When there are more inmates, there are more eyeballs to watch someone commit suicide," said Lindsay B. Hayes, who directed the study. "It's more apparent. There's little or no privacy."

"But overcrowding also breeds violence, depression, acting-out behavior, all of which breeds suicide," Hayes said.

California came in second with a total of 69 for the two years, followed by New York with 56 and Illinois with 51. Ohio rounded out the top five with 39.

Texas's reporting system, one of the best nationally, may have boosted the state's suicide totals, Hayes said.

Hayes also noted Texas has more jails than any other state except Pennsylvania, and incarcerates more people than elsewhere, with the possible exception of California.

Texas jails have been required since September 1983 to report any suicide or death to the state attorney general's office.

About 200 people died in a 1940 dance hall fire in Natchez, Miss.

Officials wait out blast, fire

PORT ARTHUR, Texas (AP) — Firefighters could do little but watch and wait for a massive fire at a Chevron refinery plant to burn itself out.

The fire, which began Wednesday morning, sent bulging black clouds swelling skyward throughout the day, and continued to burn into the night.

"It's not out but it's definitely under control," said plant spokesman Art Spencer.

Firefighters, virtually powerless against the fury of the fire, held back, kept the fire isolated, and waited. By Wednesday afternoon, crews had located a valve believed to be feeding the fire with unfinished gasoline, and closed it off, Spencer said.

After burning off what was in the pipes, it was hoped the fire would sputter and die, he said.

The fire began in a pump station at the refinery west of Port Arthur about 9:40 a.m. and spread to some small storage tanks nearby.

Later Wednesday, some of the burning fluid began spreading along the ground and into nearby ditches, but was kept isolated in the area where the blast took place, Spencer said.
