

WTC board okays new administrator

A new administrative position for Western Texas College was officially approved by trustees Monday. The position of instructor and division chairman Mike Thornton promoted to the dual post of director of adult education and extension services at WTC.

Thornton's duties will actually involve five areas to include serving as the college's liaison with the Texas Department of Corrections.

In addition to heading up the adult education program—coursework which is state approved and state funded—he will be in charge of "community services" classes, those which are essentially non-credit in nature.

as well as the college's GED program.

The new administrative-level post includes a salary of $41,100. Thornton joined the teaching faculty as an art instructor in 1972, one year after the college opened.

For the past 10 years, he has served as chairman of the fine arts division at WTC.

He is a native of Rotan and holds a BA degree in art from East Texas State University and a master of fine arts from Texas Tech University.

He accepted his teaching post at WTC after earning his masters degree in 1972.

His wife Rebekah is an elemen-

School for prison to create 33 education-related jobs

Some 33 jobs for professional educators—22 involving teachers—will be created here with the completion of the Texas Department of Corrections prison unit.

These staff positions will be employed through TDC's Windham School System, which offers a variety of classroom instruction to inmates.

These facts and others were related Monday by Western Texas College's new director of adult education and extension centers, Mike Thornton, who will serve also as WTC's liaison staffer with TDC.

Thornton noted the Windham School units provide programs for basic literacy through the high school level which includes vocational as well as recreational training for eligible inmates.

This instruction includes such areas as language arts, social studies, science, mathematics, health, physical education, music and art.

For these secondary education level courses, it is projected some 16 academic teachers and six vocational staffers will be employed, he said.

In addition, the system would newly employ a principal to oversee the operation, a recreational consultant, three substance abuse personnel counselors, three vocational counselors, one librarian and two secretaries.

Regarding the new posts,

Thornton said TDC pays these staffers a competitive rate based upon surrounding school district pay levels.

In addition to these secondary education-level classes, continuing education courses will be available to the inmates as well. These are expected to be offered using existing staff at Western Texas College.

Through such programs, the inmates can earn college credit and ultimately college degrees.

In addition to this academic training, WTC staffers will be involved also in vocational classroom instruction.

These are to give the inmates "sellable skills" for "reintegration."

Baker slated to resign job

WASHINGTON (AP) — Howard Baker will resign as White House chief of staff and be replaced by his deputy, Kenneth Duberstein, on July 1, it was announced today.

In addition, White House communications director Thomas C. Griscom intends to leave his post, but has not said when he will leave, said White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater.

Although Baker had promised Reagan to stay until the end of the administration next January, he asked the president to be excused from that commitment, citing the ill health of his wife and stepmother, who are both hospitalized, Fitzwater said.

Baker joined the White House staff on Feb. 27, 1987, in the aftermath of the Iran-Contra scandal. In a statement read by Fitzwater, Reagan said he accepted Baker's resignation with deep regret.

"Sen. Baker has been a close friend and adviser who has guided my staff deftly and effectively for the last 16 months," Reagan said. "He held a steady hand in the operation of the White House while the Iran-Contra investigations were underway."

Raises for merit proposed

By DONNY BROWN
SDN Managing Editor

The possibility of merit pay raises for some staffers was discussed Monday as a trimmed operating budget for Western Texas College was presented to trustees, one which reflected income in excess of expenses amounting to some $63,000.

This excess would be reduced by some $38,000 if the merit raises are ultimately granted. These were recommended for 32 faculty members and 18 maintenance and clerical personnel.

The pay adjustments were sought Monday by WTC President Dr. Harry Krenke. "I know a lot of people in the community aren't getting pay raises," he told the board. "But the facts are our business is up, our people are working harder and many of them were overloaded."

As an example of this, he noted the average load of a community college instructor statewide is from 12 to 13 hours in the classroom per week. Some staffers at WTC had seen this load rise to 22 hours.

Krenke said he personally preferred the merit pay raise system rather than an across the board percentage increase for all personnel.

The salary increase would involve some $700 per year for the 22 faculty members involving a total of some $22,000. For the five maintenance workers and 12 clerical staffers, the pay adjustment will equal a total of some $15,000.

Sales tax return shows hopeful sign

Sales tax returns for Snyder continue to show hopeful economic signs as the latest monthly return indicates a plus 19.4 percent, bringing the year-to-date total to a plus 10.9 percent.

The trend of increased sales was noted across the state with the June report from State Comptroller Bob Bullock. The figures statewide indicated a 23.5 percent increase over June of last year, a growth rate too high to attribute to the broadened sales tax base, it was noted.

Bullock predicted the economic outlook for Texas should continue to improve, barring a national recession or a collapse in oil prices.

He projected the local sales tax revenues statewide will continue to increase at an average rate of more than 8 percent a year through 1991.

Snyder's 1 percent sales tax return now stands at $370,829 as compared to $334,177 last year. The monthly return was $54,258 this year compared to $45,435 last June. The year-to-date return for Seury County was reported also at $121,227, an amount which is to be applied to offset ad valorem taxes for the county this coming fall.

A sampling of area sales tax returns include:

—Lubbock: A plus 11.6 percent with $6.8 million returned to date compared to $6.1 million last year.

—Abilene: A plus 9.1 percent with $3.7 million returned to date compared to $3.4 million last year.

—San Angelo: A minus 1 percent with $2,730,794 returned to date compared to $2,759,431 last year.

—Big Spring: A plus 2.7 percent with $717,313 returned to date compared to $698,118 last year.

—Snyder: A plus 10.9 percent with $370,829 returned to date compared to $334,177 last year.

City regulations ok'd for plumbing, water

City councilmen Monday night passed two new ordinances on first readings, both of them related to the construction of the Texas Department of Corrections unit northeast of town.

A plumbing ordinance, in part to ensure that water and sewer extensions to the TDC are made according to modern standards, and a water conservation ordinance, which is required for state funding of the revenue bonds that will finance the extensions, were passed unanimously.

Mayor Troy Williamson appointed Philip Kimmel, who recently spoke against a proposed no smoking ordinance at a city council meeting, and Fire Chief with the city staff in drawing up such a proposed ordinance for the council to discuss.

The mayor said last week that he would appoint a smoker and a non-smoker to help write the ordinance, which could be changed, passed or rejected by the council.

An ordinance was passed on first reading to change the zoning in the 2300 Block of Gilmore Ave. from residential to commercial to allow Keny Miller of Snyder Signs to erect a billboard.

City Engineer Don Osborn noted that the area just north of 2300 Gilmore is commercially zoned.

The feller on Deep Creek says, "If you can keep a secret, make sure you don't tell it to some body who can't."

It's enough to cause a mid-life crisis. There's talk of a class reunion, and ole Charlie is likely to be there again driving his red Porsche with a standard equipment blond.

There is a solution, however. If you fail to eat for the next eight weeks, you may be able to save enough cash to rival ole Charlie—at least for one quick appearance.

Even if you can't afford to own the car of your dreams, it is possible that you may be able to drive it to the class reunion.

A New Jersey luxury car rental office offers a red Ferrari for $199 a day. Porsches, Jaguars, Alfa Romeos, and Corvettes cost a little less. If you really want to impress former classmates, $400 will put you behind the wheel of a Mercedes for one day.

There is a catch, however. The minimum rental period is four days. The fasting to afford the luxury rental car has a side benefit: you won't have to practice holding in that tummy.

If you happen to live in Texas and have to drive the car from New Jersey for a class reunion in West Texas, the cost would probably come close to $3,000.

One second thought: a four door sedan equipped with heavy duty jumper cables will work just as well at middle age.

Did you hear about the dirty old man who showed up at his class gathering with a gorgeous 20 year old?

His buddies were eager to learn all the romantic details but he finally confessed: "The doc let me have a prescription," said the old fellow.

How did it work?

Just true. The doc said he couldn't do anything about that. But then, she had asked for it.

Safeway is selling 99 stores

HOUSTON (AP) — Safeway Stores Inc. is selling the 99 stores in its Houston region to a local investment firm, sources close to the company say.

"Safeway, of course, is going through a restructuring. There has to be a sale of assets related to our leveraged buyout. Until now, it's been business as usual in Houston," Safeway spokesman John Shepherd told the Houston Chronicle Monday.

Safeway sold 140 stores in its North Texas region last year.

The grocery chain has struggled to survive in the competitive Houston marketplace in recent years, and at one time the grocery giant obtained wage concessions from its unions to make the Houston Safeways more profitable.

The sale of the Houston stores has been rumored for months. H.E. Butt Grocery Co. of San Antonio and a group of Safeway employees were mentioned as possible buyers.

The managers of the Houston Safeways were called to a meeting Monday and given a statement from the company that said, "Today's announcement of an agreement to sell our stores in the Houston region to Duncan, Cook & Co. brings to an end all speculation regarding the future... Duncan, Cook & Co. intends to operate the division using the current management and work force."

Shepherd and other Safeway employees refused further comment Monday and said questions would be answered during a news conference today in Houston.

Debbie Rog, public affairs manager for Safeway in Houston, did not return phone calls to The Associated Press Monday evening. Officials at Safeway headquarters in Oakland, Calif., also could not be reached for further comment.

Safeway's Houston region stretches from the Austin to Waco to Beaumont area. About 50

Safeway stores are located in the Houston region.

Safeway has sold hundreds of its stores in an effort to raise money to pay off debts from a $4 billion leveraged buyout in 1986.

Safeway pulled out of the North Texas market about a year ago and sold its 140 stores to a number of different grocers.

Safeway reportedly was not completely satisfied with the prices it received for its North Texas stores and figured selling the Houston units as a package would gain a better sales price, the Chronicle reported.

Locals named to honor rolls

Spring quarter honor rolls have been announced at Texas State Technical Institute in Sweetwater.

Among those listed on the President's Honor roll were James Baldwin and Bryan Walton, both of Snyder. Baldwin is studying emergency medical services/paramedics and Walton is studying computer maintenance technology.

Carie Peterson of Snyder is listed on the Dean of Instruction Honor Roll. She is majoring in automation robotics technology.

Water usage reported up

During the past month cool weather and downright chilly nights retarded water demands, but this week's heat wave released the brakes.

Monday, according to reports from the Colorado River Municipal Water District, Snyder had its season's peak at 5,858,000 gallons; Tuesday Odessa hit its year's best at 31,061,000 gallons and Wednesday Big Spring peaked at 8,688,000 gallons. Midland, the fourth member of the major municipal consumers, takes water at a constant rate of about 13.6 million gallons per day.

Monday the four cities took 54,444,000 gallons; Tuesday 57,6176,000 gallons; and Wednesday 58,457,000 gallons.

Treat hypertension without drugs

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I'm male, with good health and not overweight. I do not smoke. Before my retirement at 60, my blood pressure was 160/90. My normal pressure is now 180/100 and goes higher under stress. A cardiologist does not feel that I need blood-pressure medicine, but my doctor disagrees. As a result, my doctor has tried numerous anti-hypertensives on me. They all give me terrible side effects and do nothing to lower my pressure. I'm in a dilemma, caught between feeling miserable and facing the risk of stroke.

DEAR READER: This is a hard question to answer. Low-grade hypertension in men over 60 is considered a "gray area." Some doctors will treat, others won't — for the very reasons you give. In my opinion, 180/100 is too high; therefore, I side with your doctor and disagree with the specialist. I think that you could try several non-drug approaches to your problem before resorting to medicine.

First, limit salt in your diet. Salt tends to elevate high blood pressure. Second, begin a program of exercise under your doctor's supervision. Physical activity often lowers blood pressure. Next, eliminate alcohol, which, in many people, may cause hyper-tension. Fourth, purchase a blood-pressure machine and learn to take your own readings. This way, you will be able to monitor your condition, your pressure at home may be significantly lower than the pressure in the doctor's office. In fact, you may not have hypertension at all; your elevated readings could result from stress. Fifth, try taking a calcium supplement, 1,000 to 1,500 milligrams of the mineral a day. Some people's blood pressures tend to fall when additional calcium is added to the diet. Finally, look into ways of reducing tension and stress, meditation or biofeedback are sometimes useful for this purpose.

Any or all of these methods may help lower your blood pressure without the use of drugs. Continue to check with your doctor and try to work with him — and, by all means, let me know if my suggestions are effective.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I hunt bird and small game. Sometimes I accidentally swallow the lead shot that I use in my shotgun. Will this harm me? Should I switch to steel shot?

DEAR READER: Lead shot probably will not harm you, because it will ordinarily pass through the intestinal tract rapidly enough to prevent significant absorption of the mineral. Nonetheless, there is a potential hazard. This is why conservation groups and hunting organizations, such as Ducks Unlimited, recommend that hunters change to steel shot.

Realities of Man's Job Crush Woman's Dreams of Marriage

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1988 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: I am truly in love with a man who is in training to be a police officer. We've gone together for three years and I am ready for marriage, but "John" says he doesn't want to get married — ever.

He tells me he loves me, but because of the risks involved in his job, he doesn't want to bring sorrow to a wife and family in case something happens to him in the line of duty. I've tried to tell him that if anything happened to him, it would still cause the same amount of sorrow whether we were married or not. I try to reason with him, but he refuses to discuss the subject, and gets upset every time I bring it up.

I want to get married, have a family and spend the rest of my life with John, but none of this seems to matter to him. He is even against the idea of living together!

Abby, the thought of not being able to marry the man I love is very depressing. Different friends are giving me advice. One says, "Give him a scare by making him think there is somebody else in the picture and if he doesn't marry you, he could lose you."

Another friend says, "Don't give up — hang in there and eventually John will change his mind."

Another friend has advised me to forget him. What do you say, Abby?
LOVES JOHN

DEAR LOVES: I vote with the friend who advised you to forget him. John deserves high marks for acknowledging that he doesn't want to get married — ever. Accept it as a clear message that if you want marriage, you can't count on John.

DEAR ABBY: Please offer suggestions to this problem. There are many ex-spouses in similar situations who could benefit from your advice. When a divorced person has remarried, should that person and his former spouse continue to phone each other? (I am told it's about the kids, but the "kids" are in their 20s and 30s.) Is it considered ethical and proper for a remarried person to visit the ex-spouse alone in that person's house? I always believed it was common courtesy, out of respect to the present spouse, never to meet alone with the ex-spouse. Am I wrong?

WONDERING IN SAN DIEGO

DEAR WONDERING: Your "questions" indicate a great deal of insecurity on your part. You obviously feel threatened when your spouse meets alone with his ex-spouse. Straight talk with your spouse about your feelings (and suspicions) will do more to clear the air than my answers to questions regarding "ethics and propriety."

DEAR ABBY: In our office, someone is always collecting for a birthday, wedding, baby or get-well gift for one person or another. I have always been more than happy to participate because I know when we all go in together, we can buy one gift that will be extra nice.

The amount we each pay varies from $2 to $15 per person. Now my complaint: On one occasion, we sent a get-well floral arrangement. I happen to know it cost $19.95, delivered, and $25 was collected. So what happened to the leftover $5.05? We are never shown the bill, and no one mentions how much it cost. If there's a party, the gift is opened and we all see it, but we never see the bill.

Would I be out of line if I asked the collector to show us the bill? Please print this, Abby. There must be many other offices where this is going on. Just sign me ...
PETTY RIP-OFF

DEAR RIP-OFF: When collections are made, the collector usually circulates the bill among the contributors, and if this is not done in your office, it's time to suggest it.

What a difference a lead makes! After South's four-spade bid closed the auction, West, who was on opening lead, had nothing particularly attractive to choose from. He finally hit upon the five of spades, a particularly good choice in our view. North did not figure to be rich in high cards, so presumably his spade raise was based upon shortness someplace. If that was the case, the best defense would probably be to cut down on dummy's ruffing power. Declarer won the first trick and got to dummy with the ace of clubs to lead a diamond. West won the ace and continued with the ace and another spade. Ultimately declarer had to lose two more diamond tricks and his contract. Needless to say, with any lead other than a trump, South could easily make 10 tricks.

South could have gained in the bidding. Since he is accepting the game invitation in any event, there is no reason he should not offer an alternative game contract. Rather than bid four spades, he should bid four hearts. This is a simple message: "Partner, I am glad you could invite game. I have a good hand and I am accepting. However, I also have hearts, either four or five of them, and perhaps that will provide a more secure trump suit for us. What do you think?" Obviously, since North's heart support is better than his spades, he should be happy to pass four hearts. Incidentally, 10 tricks are there for the taking with hearts as trump, regardless of the defense.

Putting on the pounds is big job

NORTH LEWISBURG, Ohio (AP) — A prize-winning boar lost a few of his 1,205 pounds when he went on a late night television show last summer, but a diet that includes beer has helped him gain it back, and then some.

Farmer Bob Corbett won't reveal the weight of his boar, named "Chief," but he's taking precautions to make sure the boar can set a world weight record for pigs next August. To do that he'll have to beat the record of 1,338 pounds.

"You don't know what's in the bushes," Corbett said recently as he washed down Chief on his farm near this Champaign County village. "You gotta play the game cool. All I'll say is that he's better than 1,205 pounds."

That was Chief's weight when he appeared on "Late Night With David Letterman" in New York Aug. 28, 1987. Corbett said the trip along with winter weather cost Chief some pounds, making December's weigh-in disappointing.

Since then, Corbett said the six-year-old boar has been on the rebound.

"We're building back the weight he lost," Corbett said. "I still think I can make it (the world championship weight)."

Corbett has changed some of his training and feeding tactics to help Chief toward the record.

Instead of daily half-mile walks, he now walks Chief about one quarter-mile per day. And he's added beer to Chief's regular diet of such high-protein foods as barley, alfalfa and molasses.

He said the beer gives Chief a better appetite.

"The first time I offered it to him, he went right after it," Corbett said of Chief's quaffing. "He hasn't turned it down yet."

Chief usually gets three bottles of Red, White and Blue beer in the morning and a few more in the evening.

"It would probably take 50 or 60 bottles to make him tipsy," Corbett joked.

Aside from being high in protein and calories, Corbett said the beer thins Chief's blood and allows his heart to work easier.

Corbett will go to Indianapolis Aug. 16 for the world championship at the Indiana State Fair.

Humble Smith collects old newspapers and cans for fundraising. The school also has a garage sale each Tuesday and

Incoming members welcomed

The Scurry Charter Chapter of American Business Women's Association met May 26 at Martha Ann Woman's Club for its monthly dinner meeting with 22 members present.

Faye Layne led in the invocation and Pledge of Allegiance to the flag.

Barbara Scrivner, program chairman, introduced the guest speaker, Jeri Aikin.

Aikin is the new owner of Quilters, formerly Memories Made. She displayed samples of the wedding ring quilt and a broken star pattern.

Aikin demonstrated speed quilting and strip piecing. She offers quilting classes at $20 per month. A new class will begin in June and an individual may take as many classes as desired.

Aikin and her family have lived in Snyder since 1980. She was formerly employed at Memories Made before purchasing the quilting shop.

Irene Brooks, Martha Ann Woman's Club member, gave a report of club activities.

Janet Brown, vocational chairman, introduced Carlene Darrieulat as the vocational speaker.

Darrieulat has been employed at Humble Smith School for four months. There are 11 adults attending school there where they learn to read, cook, clean and many other tasks.

Humble Smith collects old newspapers and cans for fundraising. The school also has a garage sale each Tuesday and Thursday from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. at 2504 Ave. W. They are happy to accept any contributions including clothing, furniture, and all types of odds and ends.

Faye Layne announced that Becky Bynum will represent the club in the July 4th queen contest. She also welcomed new members, Shirley Miller, Judy Moss, and Charlotte Hester.

Scrivner was presented with the friendship star charm and Pat Faver was given the intercircle bracelet.

Layne dismissed the group with the benediction.

Brown accepts

job with Spurs

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) - Larry Brown, who led the Kansas Jayhawks to the NCAA title last season, resigned Monday to accept a five-year, $3.5 million pact with the San Antonio Spurs.

Brown, whose ABA teams played the San Antonio Spurs in the mid-1970s, said he will do everything he can to make the Spurs exciting.

"I think the important thing is the fans supported the team before and hopefully we'll put the type of team out there that they'll want to come back. That's my goal," Brown said.

Roughstock riders fare well at national finals early-going

BOZEMAN, Mont. - Western Texas College roughstock riders were making a run at the finals after first-day action of the College National Finals Rodeo here, but the Snyder, Texas, college was less fortunate in the timed events.

"We're sitting in the middle in the riding events. If we can score some 70s in the second round I think we'll make it back (to Saturday's finals)," said WTC Coach Bob Doty.

Brewster and Canadian's Denny McLanahan scored 68s to tie for fifth in the early-going of the bareback. Wesley Henderson scored a 66 to take over eighth place in the saddle bronc and Shane Goemmer tallied 63 points for 10th.

Perhaps having the best outing was WTC freshman Michael Gaffney, who went into today's action tied for third in the bull riding with a 21. Gaffney, from Cloudercraft, N.M., is not a member of WTC's designated six-man team and cannot win points for the squad. Gaffney qualified for the national finals rodeo by placing second in the bull riding in the Southwest Region.

Western's Ray Brown had mixed results. The North Platte, Neb., native timed an 11.1 to finish 22nd in the first round of the calf roping, which ended Monday. He also placed 25th in the steer wrestling with a 9.4.

"Ray had a real stout steer in the steer wrestling and it was hard to throw. He made a good run in the calf roping," noted Doty. "Ray probably needs to be around 10 (seconds) in the second-go of the calf roping to make it back to the finals. It will be tough for him to make it back in the steer wrestling."

Other WTC results weren't as positive. Henderson and Shawn Odom clocked a long 28.1 in the team roping and the teams of Clyde Himes and Barry Byrd, and Brown and Thad Springer, both took no-times. Himes also no-timed in the calf roping and the steer wrestling.

"Clyde just missed his calf and his steer set up on him and he didn't have a chance," mused Doty. "That knocks him out of the finals but hopefully he can pick up some go-round points in the second round."

Points are awarded to the top four places in each round. The top 10 places after two rounds advance to Saturday's finals.

"It's really too early still to tell, but I'd say we look pretty good in the roughstock events if we can have a good second round. And hopefully, as I said, we can pick up some go-round points, too," said the coach. "Adam is still out (yet to compete) in the bull riding. Hopefully he'll do well."

Brewster, the region's champion bull rider this season, was to compete in the bull riding today.

WTC graduate Mike Carrillo, now competing for Sul Ross State University, took over third place in the bareback event here with a 71 Monday. Don Eddieman, another WTC ex now attending Tarleton State University, no-timed in the calf roping.

Other Southwest Region students competing here include Karen Cochran of Texas Tech, who timed a 2.5 to place second in the breakaway roping. Bubba Flores of Odessa, who clocked a 9.6 for fifth in the calf roping, and Terry Kitchens of Vernon, who had a 9.9 for ninth in the calf roping.

Louisiana executes murderer

ANGOLA, La. (AP) — A 28-year-old man went silently to his death early today in the electric chair for the hammer slaying of a cashier he had romanced, then robbed, becoming the nation's 100th person executed since capital punishment resumed in 1977.

Edward R. Byrne Jr. had argued that he did not intend to kill the woman during the 1984 gas station robbery. But he said Monday he had dated her with the intent of robbing her, knowing she handled large sums of money. And he said when he tried to knock her unconscious, "It didn't work. She didn't become unconscious. I just kept hitting her until she died."

Eighteen of the 100 executions since the U.S. Supreme Court reinstated the death penalty have been in Louisiana, which is tied with Florida for the second-highest number nationally. Texas has put 27 people to death.

Thirty-seven states enacted capital punishment laws after the 1976 Supreme Court ruling.

A coroner pronounced Byrne dead at 12:12 a.m., said Jim Morris, deputy secretary of the Louisiana Department of Public Safety and Corrections.

Three state and federal courts Monday refused requests by Byrne's lawyers to block the execution. Louisiana's Pardon Board also refused to recommend a commutation of his sentence to life imprisonment.

Six pro-capital punishment demonstrators waited outside the prison for confirmation of Byrne's death. One held a sign reading "Thanks, Sam Jones," alluding to the pseudonym used by officials to protect the anonymity of the executioner.

The sign-carrier identified himself as Johnny Reece of Pineville. He said he felt deprived because the man who killed his 16-year-old stepdaughter was sentenced to life imprisonment.

"It gives us a sense of justice to see this done to him (Byrne)," Reece said. "It doesn't make me happy to see someone die, but it gives me a sense of satisfaction to see justice served."

Byrne showed no emotion when he entered the death chamber. Asked if he had any final words, Byrne smirked, shook his head and replied: "Nope."

After he was strapped into the electric chair and masked, Byrne drummed his fingers while awaiting the first of four surges of electricity.

Byrne insisted he never intended to kill Roberta Johnson, 25, who was bludgeoned with a hammer during the $7,000 robbery at the Bossier City service station.

"I don't know exactly what it is that I can say to y'all. I was planning to rob this woman all along. It was all set up. There were no flaws that I could see," Byrne said in a pardon board hearing Monday at the penitentiary.

Defense attorneys and a university professor who came to know Byrne portrayed him as a penitent killer and as a sensitive, articulate jailhouse poet who helped other inmates write letters to loved ones.

"It was a premeditated robbery, but not a premeditated murder. This was a robbery that went sour," defense attorney Nancy Baumgartner said.

But District Attorney Henry Brown called Byrne manipulative, cunning and cruel.

Brown said Byrne was caught in a hotel room the morning after the killing, with a barmaid he had picked up at a tavern and proposed marriage to. Parked outside was a car Byrne had stolen from the woman he lived with before getting involved with Johnson, the prosecutor said.

Landmark victory orders tobacco company damages

NEWARK, N.J. (AP) — A landmark jury verdict gives a smoker's widow $400,000 in damages, the first time a tobacco company has been ordered to pay money for disease caused by cigarettes.

But the three tobacco companies sued called the verdict a victory and the jury's award a vote of sympathy for the bereaved husband of Rose Cipollone, who died of lung cancer after smoking 1 1/2 packs a day for 40 years.

The U.S. District Court jury Monday exonerated the cigarette makers Liggett Group Inc., Lorillard Inc. and Philip Morris Inc. of conspiring to mislead the public about smoking's dangers, and rejected punitive damages.

Instead, it decided Liggett failed to warn about the dangers of cigarettes and violated its promise, or "express warranty," to produce a safe product.

It awarded Antonio Cipollone damages on the warranty claim but not for the failure to warn the public because it found his wife was 80 percent responsible for contracting the disease that killed her in 1984 at age 58.

Liggett faced additional charges because it manufactured the Chesterfields and L&Ms that Mrs. Cipollone smoked before 1966, when Congress ordered health warnings on cigarette packs. Mrs. Cipollone later used brands by Lorillard and Philip Morris, smoking even after having part of her lung removed in 1981.

Liggett attorneys promised an appeal. Cipollone's lawyers said they would ask the judge to overturn the decision not to award posthumous damages to Mrs. Cipollone.

The $35 billion tobacco industry mounted an elaborate defense — one analyst put the cost at $50 million — to avoid a judgment that might unleash a flood of multimillion-dollar lawsuits.

Reaction to the verdict, which followed five days of deliberations, focused on its potential impact on hundreds of such cases pending around the nation.

"Any time a jury awards a $400,000 verdict, I don't think you can take it too lightly, particularly in a situation where five years ago people thought we were crazy and when for the past 30 years people have failed," said Marc Z. Edell, Cipollone's lawyer.

Fewer than a dozen of about 300 smoker lawsuits have gone to juries and the tobacco industry has not paid a dollar in damages.

"All I know is that we're not another notch in their gun," said Edell.

But some said the damages awarded might not be enough to encourage other lawsuits.

"Are you going to sue if all you're going to get is $400,000?" asked tobacco industry analyst Allan Kaplan of Merrill Lynch in New York.

"Plaintiff attorneys cannot be encouraged by the small size of the award, which pales in comparison to the $3 million they spent in time and money to try this case," said a joint statement from Peter Bleakley of Philip Morris and Robert Northrip of Lorillard, both New York based.

"The fact that the jury awarded no damages to Mrs. Cipollone was a clear signal from the jury that smoking is a matter of personal choice and responsibility," said Alan Hilburg, spokesman for Durham, N.C.-based Liggett.

Liggett attorney Donald Cohn said he regarded the award as "sympathy" for Cipollone, a 64-year-old retired cable splicer from Lakehurst who pursued the lawsuit he had filed with his wife in 1983.

The jurors in the four-month trial would not discuss the verdict other than to say the process was "emotional" and "nerve wracking."

Anti-smoking groups viewed the verdict as a first step.

It "destroys the myth of invulnerability" and should lead to an increase in such lawsuits, said Richard Daynard, a Northeastern University law professor who runs the Tobacco Products Liability Project, a support group for litigation against tobacco companies.

To support the contention that Liggett violated its promise to consumers of a safe product, Edell introduced advertisements for Liggett's cigarettes from the 1950s.

One featured actress Rosalind Russell with the text reading: "Rosalind Russell says L&M Filters are Just What the Doctor Ordered!" Others said: "Nose, Throat and Accessory Organs Not Adversely Affected By Smoking Chesterfields," and "Play Safe, Smoke Chesterfields."

Cipollone's attorneys also introduced numerous secret corporate documents they said chronicled the inner workings of the industry. For many anti-smoking forces, disclosure of these documents into evidence was a victory.

The documents spoke of a "gentleman's agreement" not to do cancer research, of an industry "strategy" to create "doubt about the health charge without actually denying it" and of a research program designed "so that (the) results cannot harm" the industry.

The companies denied the statements in the documents, saying they represented the views of individuals and were taken out of context.

They contended that Mrs. Cipollone knew the risks but chose to smoke anyway. They also argued that smoking is not a proven cause of cancer, and that her type of cancer hasn't been linked to cigarettes.

A 50-year-old man was arrested for DWI and a 47-year-old man for public intoxication at 10:50 p.m. Monday in the 400 Block of College Ave.

A 34-year-old man was taken into custody for public intoxication at 1:24 a.m. Tuesday in the 3000 Block of 38th St., and the Department of Public Safety highway patrol reported arresting a 41-year-old man for DWI and outstanding Department of Public Safety warrants at 1:20 p.m. Monday at an unreported location.

Backpack sprayers can be used for a variety of home and commercial applications. Many of these sprayers are light in weight and have one to five gallon tank capacities. Solo Inc. says they are ideal for general plant protection, pest and growth control in gardens, hot beds and greenhouses, or for disinfection and sanitation in warehouses, hospitals, public buildings and stables.

Missing truck said recovered

Sheriff's officers Monday afternoon recovered a pickup truck that was reported stolen Sunday.

A male called the sheriff's office at 6:45 p.m. Monday and told a jailer that the pickup, a 1978 Chevrolet belonging to Don Smith of Rt. 2, was parked at a business off the Lamesa Hwy. in western Snyder.

A 20-gauge shotgun and the vehicle's gas cap and hubcaps were missing, but two toolboxes with about $800 in tools in them were recovered, deputies said.

Area students on honor lists

LUBBOCK—More than 2,000 Texas Tech students qualified for the academic honors lists at the end of the 1988 spring semester.

Students on the President's Honor List earned a perfect 4.0 (A) grade-point average while enrolled in 12 or more semester hours of classwork. Students finishing 12 or more hours with grade-point average of 3.5-3.9 qualified for the Dean's Honor List.

Students making the President's List include Benjamin Timothy Curfman, psychology; Sean Patrick Kennedy, chemistry; Leslie Jann Light, merchandising; Barbara Jean Murray, mathematics; Janetta Jill Pylant, secondary education; Tracee Ann Stahl, elementary education.

Students making the Dean's List include Lisa Lynn Franklin Beck, elementary education; Mark Lynn Duke, accounting; Marilyn Amy Lancaster, secondary education; John Loren Sullivan, accounting; Nolan M. von Roeder, petroleum engineering; and Timothy Ray Kotrla, accounting.

Depression may mask fatigue

By Dr. Richard N. Podell

In "A Winter's Tale," Shakespeare wrote: "A merry heart goes all the day — a sad one tires in a mile."

An estimated 9 million people in the United States suffer from depression, a disease affecting both the mind and the body; almost all are dispirited or tired.

If you are chronically tired, you should ask yourself seriously whether depression might play a part. The most valuable method is discussing your situation with a mental health counselor.

The essential features of depression are a mood of ill-feeling or dissatisfaction, together with loss of interest or pleasure in usual activities. In the classic case, one feels sad, hopeless, discouraged, worthless, and guilt-ridden. But many people with depression feel only a vague dissatisfaction or loss of energy.

Depression in older persons is often mistaken for senility. Any time an older person appears to be losing mental power, a physician should search for treatable physical and mental causes.

In any age group, it can be the underlying problem that causes excessive consumption of alcohol or other mood-altering drugs. Or the drugs themselves can cause the depression. Either way, overuse of alcohol or other drugs should be a red flag for depression.

Almost everyone who is chronically ill from a physical disease becomes discouraged to a degree, often sufficiently to trigger a genuine depression. Or you might be depressed and fatigued by a physical illness that has not yet been diagnosed.

Medications are among the most common physical causes of depression. The most important of these include the anti-high blood pressure drugs clonidine, reserpine, methyldopa, and the beta blockers. Others include birth control pills, tranquilizers, anti-ulcer drugs, anti-inflammatory pain medicines, diet pills, and the increasingly popular calcium-channel blocking agents.

Occupational or environmental pollutants such as mercury, lead, solvents, or pesticides can also be a fac-

TV said stolen in house break-in

Police are investigating a burglary at the 2304 Huffman Ave. home of Robbie Nolan in which a television set was stolen.

Nolan told investigators at 11:46 a.m. Monday that someone had broken into his home and the television set was missing.

Steve Campbell of 301 34th St. told police Monday afternoon that his son's 20-inch Freedom II bicycle had apparently been stolen.

The manager of an East Hwy. motel told officers at 9:53 a.m. that a former employee had damaged a room, and a criminal mischief report was taken.

Births

James and Dianna Bohannon are the parents of a baby boy weighing six pounds eight and one-quarter ounces born at 3:25 a.m. Sunday in Cogdell Memorial Hospital.

Ronny and Judy Irwin are the parents of a baby girl weighing seven pounds three ounces born at 6:31 a.m. Monday in Cogdell Memorial Hospital.

Area students get Tech degrees

LUBBOCK—More than 1,650 students at Texas Tech University received degrees in the spring 1988 commencement exercises.

Degree recipient included Robin Deniese Downing, bachelor of science in elementary education; Mary Joyce Hatter, bachelor of fine arts in interior design; Belita McCravy Nelson, bachelor of science in secondary education, summa cum laude graduate; and Jacqueline DeeAnn Pylant, master of business administration in general business.

Others are Joe Ronald Talley, master of science in sports health; Jay Britt Vincent, bachelor of science in hotel management; Nolan M. von Roeder, bachelor of science in petroleum engineering and Joyce Faye Wallace, bachelor of arts in journalism.

Others include Floy Maureen Willingham Green, bachelor of science in microbiology, magna cum laude graduate; and Kimberly Ann Wills, bachelor of business administration in accounting, cum laude graduate.

WTC budget session held

clerical staffers would receive an additional pay adjustment to bring them better in line with others with similar job responsibility.

No administrative-level staffers are included in the pay raise request.

The board did not take an official vote on the projected merit pay raises Monday, but indicated no strong preference to remove them prior to a final budget vote before the end of June.

The administration's budget presentation still stayed within board-directed guidelines, a direction to keep the amount of tax dollars plugged into the operating budget at the same level as last year.

Because of a decline in the local tax base, maintaining this same level will require an estimated 1 1/2 cent increase on the college rate, according to figures provided by the Scurry County Appraisal District.

This would see the college's charge per $100 valuation go from 15 1/2 cents to 17 cents.

Also meeting with the board for the budget session were Gay Hickman, vice president for business, and Bettie McQueen, dean of instruction.

The college budget total now proposed is in the range of $5.2 million, below last year's total of $5.4 million. The college is expected to carry forward approximately $80,000 to $90,000 of unspent budget funds from last year.

Any proposed tax increase for the college district next year has been held down by increases in "user fees," to include upward adjustments for tuition and fees at the local campus and, for the first time, a different cost level for non-residents of the district.

Also Monday, the board discussed possible increases in green fees and cart rentals at the WTC golf course. It was noted the course was "in the red" by some $40,000 at the end of last fiscal year.

It was proposed to increase the daily green fees from $6 to $7 and to up the weekend green fee from $9 to $12. Cart rental fees might go from $5 to $6 for nine holes and from $10 to $12 for 18 holes.

The board discussed leaving the membership fee—which allows members to play as often as they like—at the same level of $100 to join and $32.25 monthly.

Regarding tuition fees at WTC, the budget proposal would see the charge for in-district students go from $8 to $10 per semester hour. For out-of-district students, the cost per semester hour would go to $12.

In another academic-related change, summer fees would increase from $10 to $15 for in-district residents and to $17 for those out of the district.

A rise in student services fees, from $1 to $3 per semester hour, is also proposed.

In all, the increase in tuition charges and fees is projected to generate some $110,000 in added income.

The board now has a third and final budget session tentatively set for next Tuesday.

Attending Monday's session were Bill Wilson, who presided as president, Bob Hargrove, R.C. Patton, John Fagin and Howard Sterling. Roy Baze and John Gayle were absent.

In other college-related business, the board:

—Authorized the administration to receive bids for new roofs for the Learning Resource Center and the WTC dormitory, projects initially included in a Phase II roof repair project on campus to be completed as needed. The board authorized also possible repairs to two other campus buildings to be contingent on cost estimates for this work to be presented later. The Abilene-based firm of Lydick-Hooks has now completed new roofs for five campus buildings.

—Accepted the lone bid of $17,920 for paving repairs to some 16,000 sq. ft. of campus roadway. The bid was submitted by Southwest Construction of Abilene. The work will include filling "potholes" with concrete and topping this with asphalt.

—Renewed the college's contract for administrative services to operate the Scurry County Museum.

—Tabled pending further discussion with museum board members the administrative contract for the Diamond M Museum.

—Approved the small class report, those which involve fewer than 10 students, for the summer term now underway.

—Approved the low bid of $3,540 submitted by Nationwide Paper Company of Arlington for 160 cases of multi-purpose paper. The purchase is a joint bid involving the college and the three county school districts.
