State press group honors SDN with 'Community' prize

The series of articles published in the SDN regarding the effort to secure a Texas Department of Corrections prison for Scurry County, stories dating back to February of 1987, were recognized Friday morning by the Texas Press Association.

TPA awarded the newspaper first place for Texas dailies in its Community Service Contest. A plaque was presented to SDN publisher Roy McQueen at the TPA awards breakfast, held in Austin.

At the same event, the advertising and composition staff for the newspaper was announced as the third place winner in TPA's advertising contest this year.

This award was for Division 2, daily newspapers under 8,000 circulation.

The Community Service Contest included entries from all sizes of daily newspapers with membership in TPA, head quartered in Austin.

For its entry, the local newspaper submitted a scrapbook of articles and photographs which included more than 200 pages.

The second place winner in the Community Service Contest announced Friday was the Beaumont Enterprise for articles related to an industrial development effort in that community.

In addition, third went to the Midland Reporter Telegram, for articles related to the problem of unplugged well holes, which followed the Jessica McClure rescue incident, and fourth went to the McKinney Courier, for articles related to a human services project called the Samaritan Inn.

With the coming year, McQueen will serve as first vice president of TPA and, in 1989, will begin service as president of the statewide press organization.

A It is estimated the distance can be traveled in approximately 22 minutes.

In Brief

3 banks fail

DALLAS (AP) — Three Texas banks reopened today under new management after officials closed them, increasing to 38 the total number of bank failures in the state this year.

The Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. was named receiver after Northwest Bank and Trust of Houston, Texas National Bank, Victoria, and Tri-Cities Bank and Trust in Glenn Heights were closed.

Bank regulators said Northwest Bank and Trust, with total assets of $100.9 million, would reopen in the same location as a newly chartered bank called Northwest Bank.

Derailed train

CROFTON, Ky. (AP) — Heat-sensitive phosphorus inside a derailed CSX tanker reignited as workers righted it, spewing more toxic smoke a day after 15,000 people were evacuated from eight western Kentucky counties, authorities said.

Thursday night's cloud, however, was not as severe as the one the previous night, which forced one of the largest evacuations in the state's history, officials said.

"The situation at this hour is they feel it will burn itself out," Don Armstrong, spokesman for the state Department of Disaster and Emergency Services, said late Thursday night.

AIDS testing

DALLAS (AP) — A strong shift in policy by a Dallas gay rights group has prompted the organization's AIDS Resource Center to sponsor on-site testing for the deadly disease for the first time.

The Dallas Gay Alliance had previously voiced strong opposition to AIDS testing, but changed its position because of improvements in the procedure.

"Originally, we said, 'Don't take the test' because there were no guarantees of confidentiality and the test was highly inaccurate," alliance president William Waybourn said Wednesday.

Official: Pentagon reform not backed

Lack of reform results in 'national crisis'

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan and former Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger failed to support efforts to reform the multibillion-dollar Pentagon weapons-buying system, and the result is a "national crisis," says the Pentagon's former acquisitions czar.

Richard P. Godwin says he quit his job last September because Reagan and Weinberger showed an "unwillingness to make some hard decisions."

Godwin is likely to be among the witnesses when Congress begins hearings next week into Pentagon purchasing, the subject of a mushrooming criminal investigation.

The investigation focuses on whether private consultants, many of them former defense officials, bribed Pentagon employees for inside information and then sold the details to contractors. The secret information could have given the recipients the advantage in winning contracts worth billions of dollars.

Congress wants to know how many "rotten apples" are among the people buying weapons for the Pentagon and whether the military purchasing system itself is to blame, leaders said Thursday.

The hearings will be held separately by the House and Senate Armed Services Committees and will not review the ongoing criminal investigation into whether private consultants bribed Pentagon officials for inside information about contracts.

The House Armed Services Committee will go first, with a hearing next week, said Warren

Nelson, a spokesman for the Democratic-controlled panel.

"We are not investigating the criminal case," Nelson said Thursday. "What we are looking at are the by-products of the case, such as what happens to the contracts that are under a cloud."

The Senate Armed Services Committee has tentatively scheduled hearings July 12-13, said chairman Sam Nunn, D-Ga. The panel met behind closed doors Thursday afternoon with Navy Secretary William Ball.

The hearings will be "on the general procurement system," he explained, "to find whether there are a few rotten apples or many rotten apples or basic flaws in the procurement system."

Godwin said in an interview with The Associated Press that he quit in frustration last fall after spending 18 months as the Pentagon's top procurement official, a position created in the wake of earlier defense spending embarrassments such as the purchase of $400 hammers.

ER operations, doctors on call profiled to board

By DONNY BROWN
SDN Managing Editor

Complaints which have arisen regarding the length of time required for emergency room treatment for "non-emergency" cases at Cogdell Memorial Hospital prompted a presentation and explanation to the hospital board Thursday.

Administrator Tom Hochwalt offered the comments, noting that the problem often surfaces because these type of medical problems in reality should be treated at a local physician's office rather than the ER.

Hochwalt estimated 50 percent of the patients brought to the ER are suffering from problems "non-emergency in nature."

"The solution to this problem really involves educating the community," he told the board.

Hospitals such as Cogdell classify true "emergency" cases as those which are "life or limb threatening illnesses or injuries" which require a doctor's immediate attention.

At the local ER, he noted, individuals often use it for illnesses which could as easily be handled the next day at a doctor's office.

The situation is compounded, he noted, since a large share of persons using the emergency room often constitute indigent care.

He said a study of the local facility indicates that 30 to 40 cents of every $1 billed will likely never be collected because of either indigent care or bad debt.

As a result, he said, the local physicians who volunteer their time for medical staffing of the ER Monday through Friday often do it realizing they are, in his words, "donating their time."

Regarding this, Hochwalt also took the opportunity to explain how physician staffing of the ER is handled during the week.

Five local doctors volunteer for this staffing for a 24-hour period between 7 a.m. Monday and 7 p.m. Friday. This constitutes being "on call" from their home or office during this time.

The hospital is not billed for this service. The physician does bill any patient he sees in the ER, but Hochwalt emphasized that local surveys indicate that the doctor must realize that for every 10 emergency room calls he makes, six to seven of these will result in no pay.

"I believe this is a significant contribution from our medical staff," the hospital administrator said.

The physicians involved in the weekday ER staffing include Drs. Jim Bursleson, Bid Cooper, Neil Gibson, Mark Pate and Paul Thompson.

In addition, Pate is on call seven days a week for emergency cases involving surgery and Dr. Stan Allen is on similar call for cases involving orthopedic injuries.

Board members noted to Hochwalt that the complaints about ER service are likely something the hospital, in the words of board member Jackie Smith, "will more or less have to live with."

Hochwalt ended the presentation by noting that hospital officials "encourage the use of the patient's family doctor."

In a related board vote, a contract for weekend medical staffing of the ER was let to Emergicare System Corporation of Abilene. For a fee of $35 per hour, the company will provide weekend physician staffing at the ER from 7 p.m. Friday until 7 a.m. Monday.

Emergicare is now providing this service under a tentative agreement and will officially be under full contract for a one-year period effective Aug. 1.

Dancers headline fair entertainment

Entertainment for the 23rd annual Scurry County Fair is being finalized as the fair committee begins its summer planning sessions.

Heading the entertainment this year will be dancers representing the Lone Star Ballet company of Amarillo. The group, which will include some 15 dancers, will be under the direction of Neil Hess, who also choreographs the dance numbers for the outdoor musical-drama "TEXAS."

They are set to perform on the Saturday night ending the fair, which is scheduled Sept. 22-24.

New events will be added this year to include a cobbler cooking contest, horseshoe pitching and goat dressing.

Returning to the fair will be Mule Show events and competitions. Also returning will be the daily magic acts of Flower the Clown.

Kent Mills, president of the fair association again this year, said Fair Books will be printed soon.

Planners for the potted plant competition remind entrants also that plants must have been in their possession a minimum of 90 days before the fair to be eligible.

Keeping tabs on our neighbors.

It just may be the tight economy, but folks seem too serious these days. Even with the presidential elections just a few weeks away, the whole country needs to loosen up and rethink priorities.

James Roberts, in the Andrews County News, had just such thoughts and was reminded of a story of the ole boy who had trouble sleeping at night.

His doctor advised him to address each part of his body individually and talk them to sleep.

He'd concentrate on his toes, stretch and relax them, and croon "Go to sleep toes." He would then proceed to address his ankles, his shins, his knees, his thigh muscles, stomach, chest and arms, stretching, relaxing and crooning, "Go to sleep."

Just about the time he had all the various parts relaxed and was about to concentrate on his eyes, the television channel switched and on the screen came a colorful chorus line right out of Las Vegas. He sat upright in the bed and commanded,

"Hey, everybody, wake up, wake up!"

Many people take life too seriously, but most fishermen have mastered the art of avoiding stress.

Fort Worth's George Dolan told about the fisherman who had run out of bait and was heading his boat back toward shore. Near the bank, he saw a big fish leap out of the water. He searched everywhere, but no bait could be found.

Then he happened to spot a snake on the bank with a frog in its mouth. The fisherman jumped out, grabbed the snake and wrenched the frog from its mouth.

Then to sedate the snake, he took out his flask and poured a couple of nips into its mouth. He quickly affixed the frog to his hook and began casting out where he'd seen the fish surface.

Soon, the fisherman felt a thump, thump, thump against a pants leg.

He looked down and there was that snake with another frog in its mouth.

City and county officers Thursday appear to have solved a two-year-old rural burglary in which a large number of antique items were stolen and apparently destroyed.

They said Friday that an informant led them to question a 17-year-old suspect Thursday afternoon in the Aug. 15, 1986, burglary of the Harrell Sisters Ranch house, northeast of Snyder.

"The suspect gave a statement to the above mentioned officers, confessing that he burglarized the house," they said.

The deputy and city detective said, however, that the youth told them the missing property, including antique plates and glasses, a pewter teapot, cups and saucers and an antique hurricane lamp, was destroyed.

Two dead, 20 injured...

3 huge gasoline tanks burn

GUADALUPE, Mexico (AP) — A raging fire with temperatures up to 5,400 degrees burned out of control today after three gas tanks exploded, killing two people in this northeastern industrial city, officials said.

Officials said the heat of the blaze melted several cars and the fire's glow could be seen up to 10 miles away.

The blasts and the fire also injured 20 people. Authorities said six of them were in very serious condition early today.

The blaze started after three tanks exploded one after another at the San Rafael tank farm belonging to Pemex, the state petroleum monopoly.

The flames, shooting more than 100 feet in the air, forced the evacuation of more than 10,000 people from nearby homes.

Nuevo Leon state judiciary police director Hernan Guajardo Garza, who visited the site, said at times the fire reached 5,400 degrees Fahrenheit, or 3,000 degrees Celsius, and turned several nearby vehicles into molten metal.

Firemen, rushed in from all around the area, were finally able to douse the flames in two tanks late Thursday using special equipment with 50-foot pipes that can shoot chemical foam at a great distance. A third tank continued to burn.

The equipment was flown in from Ciudad Madero, 280 miles away on the Gulf of Mexico coast, Pemex spokesman Guillermo Guevara said. He said firemen expected to control the flames in the third tank early today.

Guevara and Nuevo Leon state press secretary Raul de la Garza, who spoke at a joint news conference Thursday night in Monterrey, said there were no immediate clues as to what started the fire on the 23-tank farm but that an investigation was under way.

The private television network Televisa quoted Pemex officials as saying the explosions and fire were caused by stray sparks from welding equipment being used nearby.

An explosion and fire May 24 at Pemex's gas and kerosene supply depot in the northern city of Chihuahua was blamed on a spark set off during the installation of firefighting equipment. No one was hurt then, but more than 100,000 people were forced to evacuate their homes for a day.

Guevara said the 23 tanks were loaded with a total of 2.26 million gallons of gasoline and diesel oil when Thursday's disaster occurred.

The tank-farm, employing 250 workers, is used as a retail distribution center for Monterrey and the northeastern region. Monterrey is the country's third largest city with a metropolitan population of 2.8 million people and one of its main industrial centers.

The explosion and fire set off panic among residents of Guadalupe, a small city on Monterrey's outskirts about 440 miles north of Mexico City.

People fled their homes even before the state government ordered the area evacuated at mid-afternoon Thursday. About 10 government and private shelters were packed with an estimated 8,000 people who spent the night there, some looking for lost relatives.

Raquel Garcia Monrial, 35, begged for help finding her 7-year-old daughter.

"We heard the explosion and ran from the house," she said, with tears streaming down her cheeks, searching through one shelter.

"The street was full of people, and my daughter got away from me," Ms. Garcia said. "It was terrible. People were screaming and crying. The flames were so big."

Antonio Bernal, 36, searched frantically through an auditorium packed with about 300 people at the Guadalupe Exposition grounds. "I can't find my son. He's 10 years old," he said. "All the children were in the house, and I guess he ran out. It was pure panic."

"People left their houses wide open and just ran," he added.

Severe reaction is hereditary

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT: My uncle was diagnosed with hereditary angioedema after he experienced several attacks of stinging and tightness in the throat. Can you discuss this condition?

DEAR READER: Hereditary angioedema (HA) is a condition characterized by periodic attacks of painful skin swelling in irregular, unpredictable patterns. The attacks often are triggered by injury or viral illness and may be aggravated by stress. Sometimes the intestinal tract is involved, producing nausea, vomiting and bowel obstruction. Occasionally, the upper respiratory tract may be affected, causing suffocation.

The disorder is due to an inherited deficiency of an inhibitor that blocks a cascade of protein reactions, called complement, that make up the body's immune response. In a phrase, HA is the consequence of the body's inability to shut off an allergic reaction. The ailment can be diagnosed by a blood test: the serum level of C1 esterase inhibitor.

Acute attacks often are treated with cortisone and epinephrine to blunt the allergic reaction. Patients facing surgery can be pretreated with transfusions of fresh frozen plasma; this substance provides the protein that patients lack.

Long-term prevention of HA attacks can be obtained by using male hormones, particularly stanozolol; for unknown reasons, these medications increase the levels of protein in which patients are deficient.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I recently saw a TV program on headaches. I was shocked at the number of children who get them. Is this a new phenomenon?

DEAR READER: I doubt that more children are getting headaches now than they were decades ago. What is a new phenomenon is that ailments of various types are being more publicized in the media. People are interested in health issues; therefore, reports, documentaries and other medical information are gaining greater attention than before. In addition, people are less inclined to put up with symptoms than they were years ago. This has resulted in a lot of emphasis (too much, some experts claim) on physical ills. I suppose all of this is part of the information explosion, which shows no signs of abating.

However, as to the specific question you raise — headaches are a common medical ailment. To give you more information, I am sending you a free copy of my Health Report, "Headaches." Other readers who would like a copy should send $1 and their name and address to P.O. Box 91369, Cleveland, OH 44101-3369. Be sure to mention the title.

Judge okays branch banking for Texas

WACO, Texas (AP) — A federal judge has ruled that national banks in Texas have the right to expand across county lines throughout Texas.

The ruling Thursday by U.S. District Judge Walter S. Smith Thursday struck down the state's limit on branch banking.

The ruling could end an 84-year tradition against branch banking in Texas, which voters modified just two years ago to allow branching within individual counties.

Smith's decision, which will be formally filed in Austin today, came in a suit brought earlier this year by Texas Attorney General Jim Mattox against the U.S. comptroller of the currency, Robert L. Clarke, who late last year approved two applications to branch across county lines, exceeding the state's branch banking limits.

The judge ruled in favor of the comptroller after an oral hearing earlier this week in Austin, his law clerk said Thursday.

"He basically agreed that national banks can branch anywhere in the state," said clerk Jeffrey Manske.

The judge's ruling essentially said that banks should have the same branching powers as savings and loans, which can operate offices anywhere in the state and can offer services similar to those of conventional banks, Manske said.

The ruling largely followed a previous ruling by the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in New Orleans that upheld a challenge to a similar limit on branch banking in Mississippi.

If the ruling stands, the judge's decision in Texas could end the constitutional provisions that originally banned, and then were modified to limit, branching by banks.

Limits on branch banking have persevered in some parts of the nation, particularly in the Midwest, because of fears that small rural communities would lose control over their deposits to large, out-of-town banks.

In 1915, the German army used poison gas for the first time in World War I.

Indictment of Patton Village judge quashed

CONROE, Texas (AP) — The Patton Village City Council has voted to request the resignation of the municipal judge despite the lifting of his suspension by the Texas Commission on Judicial Conduct.

Members of the City Council voted Thursday night to request the resignation of Judge Floyd H. Duval, who had suspended after he was indicted on a charge accusing him of trying to solicit sex from a woman in exchange for paying her fine.

Council members also approved a resolution barring Duval from his Chambers, where Mayor Bob Devaney said records suggest possible improprieties.

State District Judge Lynn Coker quashed the indictment against Duval Wednesday, saying it "did not state facts sufficient to constitute an offense against the state of Texas."

Coker's decision prompted the judicial commission to lift its suspension of the 77-year-old judge.

The council also voted Thursday night to rescind a 1986 salary increase for Duval that Devaney said was improper. Devaney said the increase from $800 per month to $1,400 violated the city charter and that there was no record of council approval.

"He's been overpaid to the tune of nearly $11,000 and the City Council wants it paid back," Devaney said.

Duval said Thursday night that he has no intention of resigning and dismissed as false all allegations brought against him by the City Council.

"They don't have the authority to do it," Duval said of the vote asking him to resign. "I'm an elected judge and I have no intention of going by what these people say."

"It's not that I need this job," he said. "But there's a principle to this thing too. I think the principle is that I'm going to be a man and I'm not going to lay down and let them walk over me."

But has other things to do...

Reagan praises George Bush

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan put in a plug for Vice President George Bush during this week's economic summit, but getting Bush elected as his successor apparently isn't the president's top priority.

In fact, it was 15th on a list of items on Reagan's agenda that was put together by a Reagan aide.

Reagan obviously hopes to witness the inauguration of the Republican vice president as his successor next Jan. 20. But just how much he will do in the Bush campaign remains a question mark.

Reagan went out of his way during the Toronto summit to bring Bush into the picture, lauding the vice president's role in the fight against drugs during his concluding speech to members of the Empire and Canadian clubs.

"Drugs have only once before been on our agenda" at an economic summit, he said. "A North American dialogue between Prime Minister (Brian) Mulroney and Vice President Bush put them there this time."

"Over breakfast in Washington in April, the prime minister and the vice president exchanged thoughts on how our countries could work together to fight the drug kingpins," Reagan said. "One area they discussed was appropriate for the talks at this summit — how to prevent the laundering of money across international borders."

"Canada's strong support for the Bush initiative is reflected in the historic commitment endorsed by the summit leaders in the Toronto communique," he said. Canada agreed to stepped-up cooperative efforts to stop drug money laundering.

Later, as the president flew back to Washington on Air Force One, reporters sent a note forward asking to speak with Kenneth Duberstein, the deputy chief of staff who is taking over from retiring chief of staff Howard H. Baker Jr. They said they wanted to talk about the president's post-summit agenda.

What they got in return was a note from White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater listing, in this order:

- Strategic arms reduction talks.
- A United Nations resolution enforcing a cease-fire in the Persian Gulf.
- Peace in Nicaragua.
- Efforts to get a trade bill acceptable to the administration.

— Welfare reform.

— Signing of a bill providing catastrophic illness insurance.

— A fair housing bill that the president supports.

— Help for farmers hard-pressed by the drought.

— Approval of the U.S.-Canadian free trade agreement.

— Peace in the Middle East.

— The work of the president's drug task force.

— The budget and appropriations bills.

— The investigation of Department of Defense procurement.

— The Republican convention.

Finally, in 15th place, came support for the Bush campaign. It was followed on the list by official visits by leaders of Turkey and Australia, a forthcoming trip to Miami and several other items.

The impression was that the president would campaign for Bush when he got the time, but that he's still president and has other things to do.

Editor's Note: W. Dale Nelson has covered the White House since the beginning of President Reagan's second term.

Drew Cannell of Canada and Panama is not afraid to bid. In today's deal, he got into the bidding early. When his partner showed considerable playing strength with a cue-bid, Drew introduced his second suit. Although the opponents could not come close to making four spades, it was better to play five diamonds doubled if it could be made. That required a bit of luck, as well as declarer ingenuity.

East won the heart ace and returned the queen of hearts. Declarer played the king. West ruffed and led a spade. Declarer ruffed, drew two rounds of trumps and led the queen of clubs. When that held, he continued with the jack, happily noting the fall of East's 10. But there was more work. Declarer ruffed a heart, ruffed a spade from dummy and led his last heart. If you were West, what would you discard?

If West threw a spade, declarer would ruff a spade, and the jack in dummy would become a winner. If West let go a club, declarer would cash dummy's club ace before ruffing a spade to his hand so he could cash the good nine of clubs. Either way declarer Cannell had 11 tricks and his doubled contract.

LAFF-A-DAY

THERE'S NOTHIN' LIKE A GOOD BELT OF KETCHUP TO PICK YA UP ON A HARD DAY, JOEY.

Angry mob chases down man

HOUSTON (AP) — Police had to rescue a man after an angry mob of about 100 people chased down and beat up the man who was wanted for questioning in the drug-related slaying of a neighborhood teen-ager, authorities say.

Officers said many of the people said they took the action Thursday because they are tired of the crack cocaine traffic in their neighborhood.

The 33-year-old man had to be rescued by investigators who had gone to the area to arrest another man in a separate drug-related killing.

Officers said that a crowd that had gathered to watch that arrest and spotted the man wanted for questioning in the beating death of James Kenneth Moore, 17.

Moore's nude body was discovered by a security guard in a vacant unit at an apartment complex on June 12. He had been beaten with a brick, and his face was so disfigured that his mother didn't recognize him, authorities said.

Moore was described by acquaintances as "a likable youngster who survived in the streets as a cocaine runner," but that he was "too young to die a lowdown and cold-blooded death" because he infringed on the wrong territory.

A mob of angry youths jumped on the man Thursday, beating him with fists, kicks and even an aluminum crutch until police came to the rescue.

Some of the crowd then led police, including a SWAT team, to a nearby location where they found the bloodied and crying 33-year-old man pleading for his life, Homicide Sgt. Danny Moorman said.

It took several minutes for police to get the crowd under control, and people were still trying to get to the man after he was placed in a patrol car, Moorman said.

There were no arrests in connection with the incident, police said.

Moorman added that he was not surprised by the crowd action although police investigations are often stymied by the street code of silence in similar slayings.

"He (Moore) grew up out here, and people out here are getting fed up with crack," Moorman said. "They arrested him. We didn't have to do anything."

One participant in the attack said he had been wanting to get the man since learning he may have been involved in Moore's slaying.

"He better be glad I didn't get to him first," said Raydale Jones, 19. "Kenny didn't deserve to die like that."

Another youth who caught the man said everybody who knew Moore wanted to avenge his death.

"Those crackheads have no regard for life, and I'm tired of them just taking over the neighborhood," said King Lewis, 18. "I just wish they (police) would have let us have him (the suspect). We'll take care of him."

Moore's mother, Melba, said she was touched to learn her son's friends had attempted to avenge his death.

Pet Owner Discovers Tobacco Smoke Is Not the Cat's Meow

By Abigail Van Buren
 © 1988 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: Someone asked if secondhand tobacco smoke can affect pets. Here's my personal experience: Michael Francis, one of my Abyssinian cats, itched and scratched himself raw. His fur came out in great patches and his stomach was bald. My other cat, Alexandra Sugarmouse, sneezed and coughed all her short life. My veterinarian didn't know what was wrong, and he didn't try very hard to find out.

Then I found another veterinarian. Vet No. 2 asked if I smoked. (I did.) She then asked me to scrub my walls, shampoo my draperies, carpets, upholstery, etc. to get rid of the smoke deposits. And to quit smoking! I quit smoking and followed her instructions. Michael Francis was miraculously cured, but my little Sugarmouse died before she was 2 years old.

When people ask why I quit smoking, I tell them. Some laugh. Others say they'd have gotten rid of the cat instead. Most make it clear that they don't think a cat is worth "all that trouble." But I see it differently. I had a choice. My cats didn't.

Vet No. 2 said she has other clients whose cats are allergic to tobacco smoke, but I'm the only one who stopped smoking.

This tends to support your statement that if smokers don't consider their children, they are not likely to be concerned about a pet.

ELIZABETH THOMPSON,
BATON ROUGE

Bonnie McEwan, the director of media information. When I told her about your uniform, she said, "What timing! We would love to have Millie's uniform! We've just established a Preservation Center for just such historic items. Perhaps if you mention it in your column, others will contribute other archival items for the Girl Scout museum."

So, Millie, dear, please send your uniform, belt and hat to: Girl Scouts of the USA, National Historic Preservation Center, 830 Third Ave., New York, N.Y. 11002.

DEAR ELIZABETH: Hooray for you. Lest my readers assume that I am implying that all cats are allergic to tobacco smoke, let me make it perfectly clear — I am not. (P.S. Sorry about Sugarmouse.)

DEAR ABBY: In response to the party who wrote about the expression "I could care less," which I agree should be, "I couldn't care less," I want to add that there are many words used in today's conversation that are grossly misused. To mention a few:

People say, "We kept going back and forth." It should be "forth and back." (We don't say, "fro and to" — we say, "to and fro.") When we back a car out of the garage, we go "back, then forth," but ordinarily, we go "forth and back," right?

Another common error is calling a water heater a "hot water heater." There is no such thing as a hot water heater — no one can heat hot water; hot water is already hot and cannot be heated.

Also, most people use the word "indefinitely" incorrectly. They say, "This item will last indefinitely," meaning that it will last forever. Actually "indefinitely" means "unsure, uncertain, an indefinite amount of time," but it is used incorrectly to mean "forever."

DICK ZONNEFELD,
ARTESIA, CALIF.

DEAR ABBY: Would anyone be interested in my old Girl Scout uniform? I also have the hat and belt that go with it. I am now 72 years old, which makes my uniform 50 years old. (I guess you could call it an antique.)

I thought maybe some Scout organization might want it. I'd gladly send it to anyone who would give it a good home!

MILLIE FROM

DEAR DICK: Interesting? Definitely!

Victory Baptist Church has announced that the Rev. Pat Githens has returned as pastor of the church. He established Victory Baptist in his home in 1974. The church moved to the East Elementary School where services were held until a new church building could be built on Apple Street across from the Scurry County Coliseum.

The attendance under Githens' leadership grew from 13 to more than 100 by the time he resigned as pastor in 1978 to establish a new church in Big Spring.

Contract award authorization due

Authorization of a contract award for the Stacy intake substructure after a July 21 bid opening is on tap for the Colorado River Municipal Water District directors meeting at Stacy reservoir June 29.

This will set the stage for the probable signing of supporting contracts for pump station and pipeline facilities. The district has been in negotiations with the cities of San Angelo and Midland regarding the contracts which will spell out conditions and timetables for building the facilities, and the division of costs based upon dedicated maximum daily quantities for the cities and the district.

Directors will also consider authorizing the general manager to file for an amendment to the U. S. Corps of Engineer 404 Permit for Stacy, changing the location for the intake and pipeline alignment. Other routine matters are selected for the meeting. Affected city officials will be guests of the district along with those of member cities.

Moscow threatens further retaliation in spy squabble

OTTAWA (AP) — In a second round of expulsions for alleged spying, Canada has kicked out a senior Soviet diplomat, bringing to 19 the number of Soviet officials banned from Canada this week.

The Soviet Union promised to retaliate in a move indicating little hope for an end to the tit-for-tat expulsions.

Foreign Minister Joe Clark on Thursday ordered Col. Grigori Stepanovich Roublev, the senior military attache in the Soviet Embassy, out of the country by Monday.

Clark also said Sergei Mikhailovich Kashtanov, a former second secretary at the embassy who served in Canada from 1981-1985, was no longer welcome in Canada because of "espionage activities."

In addition, the total Soviet diplomatic contingent in Canada was cut from 63 to 60.

The move brought to 19 the number of Soviet diplomats and officials expelled or declared "persona non grata" since Tuesday. Nine have been thrown out and 10 formerly assigned here have been told not to come back since Canadian authorities announced the break-up of a spying ring that was seeking military secrets.

The Kremlin retaliated Wednesday by expelling two Canadian diplomats in Moscow, and banning re-entry for three other Canadians not presently in the country.

Soviet Embassy spokesman Viatcheslav Bogdanov termed Thursday's action "indecent revenge" and said: "There is no doubt whatsoever that there will be retaliation. It is going to happen."

Canadian officials accused the Soviets of trying to obtain highly classified military and civilian technology.

But Defense Minister Perrin Beatty denied reports the targets included U.S. naval communications and weapons systems made by Paramax Electronics of Montreal. The company is a subsidiary of Unisys Corp. of Detroit and a major contractor for new Canadian frigates under construction.

"We have no indication at all of any connection between these expulsions and the (frigate) program," Beatty said.

Disclosure of such naval espionage could be highly embarrassing to Prime Minister Brian Mulroney's government which has asked the United States to approve the transfer of nuclear submarine propulsion technology to Canada.

Canada is currently negotiating the $6.6 billion purchase of its first fleet of eight to 10 nuclear-powered submarines, and the options include a British-designed boat using the U.S. technology.

Clark also accused the Soviets of trying to infiltrate the Royal Canadian Mounted Police security service and its successor, the Canadian Security Intelligence Service.

"We are confident that Canadian security was not compromised," he told Parliament.

Snyderites get ASU degrees

SAN ANGELO—Six Snyder students at Angelo State University were among 390 students to receive degrees during spring commencement at the university.

Susan Gail Brim received a bachelor of science degree, cum laude, with a major in pre-medicine; James Edward Melott received a bachelor of science degree with a major in pre-medicine; Jon Alan Smith received a bachelor of business administration degree with a major in management; Kathryn Landra Stout received a bachelor of business administration degree with a major in marketing; Linda Rose Walker received a bachelor of science degree with a major in elementary education; and Calvin Henry Wimmer received a bachelor of arts degree with a major in drama.

on Wednesday. He said a Soviet translator at the International Civil Aviation Organization in Montreal, Yuri Smurov, had defected to Canada after providing intelligence on the Soviet Intelligence Service spokesman Jerry Cummings said the expulsions stem from Soviet spying operations going back five years.

Asked if they were connected with the arrest earlier this month of Stephen Ratka, a Canadian of Hungarian descent charged with trying to pass U.S. military secrets to the Soviets, Cummings said he could not comment because the case is before the courts.

Eicke given recognition by Who's Who Teka Frances Eicke, daughter of Mrs. J. Seabourne Eicke and student at Oklahoma Christian College, has been selected as one of the country's outstanding campus leaders by the "Who's Who Among Students in American Universities and Colleges" editorial staff.

She will be included in the 1988 edition of "Who's Who Among Students in American Universities and Colleges," an annual directory of outstanding students first published in 1934.

Soviet observers won't see top secrets

KARNACK, Texas (AP) — Soviet observers will be allowed to watch the burning of medium-range nuclear missiles at an East Texas military installation, but officials say the visitors won't see much else.

Tall pine trees surrounding the plant will shield sensitive operations from the team of up to 20 observers, who arrive in mid-August under terms of a joint U.S.-Soviet treaty, officials said.

"On-site inspection does not mean that the Soviets will get a free look at our secrets," said Lt. Col. Allen L. Germain, commander of the Longhorn Army Ammunition Plant.

Morton Thiokol Inc. won a $1.1 million contract to burn 74 of about 800 rocket motors being eliminated under the agreement. The work will be done at the plant about 170 miles east of Dallas, one of two sites the Army selected to burn Pershing missiles banned under the INF treaty.

Morton Thiokol officials said state and environmental officials have given their approval to burn the missile motors through static firings and by open-air ignition.

"We are pleased to be associated with the Pershing motor eliminations," said Hal Cornish, Morton Thiokol general manager. "We think it only fitting that the plant that was associated with building the motors can also aid in their elimination. We manufactured many of the rocket motors that will be eliminated."

Soviet observers, mandated by the treaty to watch the burnings, will arrive at the Gregg County Airport, stay at area motels and dine in local restaurants during their stay, but will interact little with residents, company officials said.

"We plan no special events or contacts with the community for the Soviets," Germain said. "Our contacts will be professional — a charge we take seriously. We have a detailed security plan."

The two superpowers must, under the terms of the treaty signed by President Reagan and Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev, reduce their medium-range nuclear missiles within three years.

The other Army-authorized burning site, in Colorado, has raised the ire of some environmentalists.

Dave Harris, spokesman for the Army Missile Command in Huntsville, Ala., said Colorado officials want the military to answer questions about the project.

"They (state officials) have had no previous experience with rocket motor testing," Harris said.

More than 200 Pershing rocket motors have been fired at Longhorn in quality-assurance testing over a 27-year period, officials said.

The Army conducted a static missile firing in late May for Colorado officials "to establish whether we can meet their requirements," he said.

Data from that firing will be analyzed and released next month, said Harris, adding he was confident the Army's application for missile burning at the Pueblo Army Depot would be approved.

Missiles to be burned in Texas would be transported by rail or truck from several locations, primarily Pueblo, said George L. Huffman, Morton Thiokol plant engineering manager for the Longhorn Division.

At the Longhorn plant, reporters were taken by bus down tree-lined roads to a signal testing area, where missile motors will be fired, then to a circular field where solid rocket propellant will be burned in open-air cages.

"This is the exact route the Soviet visitors will be taking when they come for on-site inspection," Huffman said.

"All they can see, with any significance, is we have a lot of trees," said Huffman.

At the static test site, the two Pershing stages — each about nine feet long and 40 inches in diameter, will be locked in turn horizontally on a metal-and-concrete stand and ignited.

The stages contain thousands of pounds each of granular pro-pellant. Static firing takes about 45 seconds, while open-air burning of the fuel requires 10-15 minutes, Huffman said. But he added static firing is environmentally preferred because the combustion is more complete.

The plant's pine forests will help to muffle noise from the rocket motors, Cornish said.

"State and local communities support the plant and its operations," said Cornish. "There's also a vivid need for elimination of the rocket motors."

Area communities could benefit from ripples produced by Morton Thiokol expenditures by about $9 million, Cornish said.

In protest...

Convoy circles the White House

WASHINGTON (AP) — Buses adorned with slogans in English and Spanish circled the White House to the cheers and whistles of protesters when the Veterans Peace Convoy arrived from a border deadlock at Laredo, Texas.

The 30 dilapidated buses were turned away by U.S. Customs officials at the Mexican border during a mission of delivering the vehicles and tons of food, medicine and clothing to Nicaragua.

"We have come to take care of the children of Nicaragua," convoy organizer Gerry Condon of San Francisco said Thursday. "We intend to lobby and gain support for this convoy to pass. We want to feed the children, not the war."

Customs officials in Laredo last week seized four vehicles and barred the group from crossing into Mexico without posting bond and signing an agreement that the aging school buses and pickup trucks would be returned to the United States.

The Treasury Department contended that to let the vehicles remain in Nicaragua would violate a trade embargo. But Rep. Mickey Leland, D-Texas, expressed support for the group and vowed to pursue a compromise.

Leland introduced a resolution in Congress on Wednesday that the treasury secretary should regulate the donation of articles to relieve human suffering in Nicaragua.

"It's wrong to thwart the humanitarian impulses of the American people. This tradition has sustained us and made us leaders throughout the world," Leland said in a statement Thursday.

"How ironic it would be to deny assistance to our own neighbors in the Western Hemisphere. There are hungry and wounded children awaiting this aid. People of good will wish to help them. We must and we will find a resolution."

Condon said Reagan administration fears that the vehicles would land in the military's hands are unfounded. Four of the convoy's original 38 vehicles did not survive the long trip from Laredo to Washington because of mechanical problems. The rest, Condon said, are unworthy of military service because of the many miles they have on them — or would have on them by the time they reached Nicaragua.

Convoy spokesman Craig Merriam said the group, which is made up mostly of Vietnam veterans, would continue its protest across the street from the White House "as long as it takes." But the contingent may take the convoy to the State Department if Elliot Abrams, assistant secretary for international affairs, refuses their demand that he meet with them by Friday afternoon.

Two groups are arrested

Police arrested two groups of men for DWI and public intoxication within an hour of each other around midnight Thursday.

A 32-year-old man was taken into custody for DWI and his companions, 30 and 34, were arrested for PI at 11:38 p.m. Thursday at 37th St. and the East Hwy.

A 31-year-old man was arrested for DWI, a 25-year-old man for PI and a 19-year-old for PI and resisting arrest at 12:25 a.m. Friday in the 2700 Block of Ave. W.

Two 12-year-old boys were taken into custody for shoplifting at a College Ave. store Thursday night.

One of them left the store before officers arrived but was apprehended later and brought to the police station. Both boys were released to their parents.

Pickup rolls, hits flowers

An unattended 1984 Chevrolet pickup owned by Mobil Oil Co. rolled into rose bushes owned by Mr. and Mrs. Leo Heath of 2409 28th St. at 8:50 a.m. Thursday, causing an estimated $50 in damages, police said.

Lawnmower, sign taken

Deputies are investigating the theft of a "Lindy's Dog Grooming" sign from Lindy Fuller's place of business a mile west of Snyder on the Lamesa Hwy.

Fuller told officers that she only opens for business on Thursdays and Fridays and discovered the sign missing when she came to work Thursday.

The sign has a pink background with a picture of a black poodle on it.

City police are investigating a stolen lawnmower report from Dale Lavender of 1307 24th St., No. 1.

Lavender told officers at 3 p.m. Thursday that he had discovered the lawnmower missing from in front of his apartment.

Engine theft said part of national investigation

CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas (AP) — About $9 million worth of stolen military property has been recovered in a multi-state investigation that an FBI agent said involves one of the largest amounts of stolen government property seized in recent years.

Part of the inquiry includes the recently announced theft of 10 turbine helicopter engines from the Corpus Christi Army Depot, said FBI Agent Joe Wolfinger.

"The information discovered during this investigation has identified a large number of thefts in government property at various military installations throughout the United States," and given rise to further additional investigations, Wolfinger told the Corpus Christi Caller-Times in an interview from his office in Norfolk, Va.

The $9 million net worth of military items seized during the investigation was "one of the largest recoveries of stolen (military) property in recent years," Wolfinger said.

The FBI last week revealed the continuing investigation into the 1986 theft of the engines from the Corpus Christi depot.

The inquiry also involves stolen turbine engines from Fort Eustis near Newport News, Va., and Fort Campbell in Kentucky. Army turbine engines and their parts have been seized in Texas, Virginia, Oklahoma, Florida, New Jersey, Nebraska, Kentucky and Washington, FBI Agent Joe Wolfinger said in an interview.

The FBI revealed last week that it was investigating the theft of 10 T-55 turbine helicopter engines stolen from the depot in 1986. CCAD's stolen engines were seized by federal agents in the last month in Washington, Kentucky and Texas, the FBI said.

Engines stolen from Corpus Christi would have cost about $430,000 if bought new, said Col. William J. Blair, the CCAD commanding officer.

CCAD is the nation's largest helicopter repair facility and Corpus Christi's largest industrial employer with 3,800 workers. It repairs helicopters from all branches of the military.

The depot discovered the engine thefts during an inventory review in late 1987, after the arrival of Blair as commander of the helicopter repair facility, the colonel said.

Hospital okays ER room contract

—Approve two capital equipment requests to include renovation of the registration desk in the ER, estimated to cost $1,115, and a concrete wheelchair ramp and concrete outdoor patio for long term care residents, estimated at $3,220.

—Heard a report on a leadership conference in Santa Barbara, Calif. attended by board member Janet Hall. She went as the guest of the Sisters of St. Joseph with which St. Mary of the Plains Hospital in Lubbock is affiliated.

AIDS-infected people...

Tracing sexual contacts worthwhile

CHICAGO (AP) — Tracing the sexual contacts of people infected with the AIDS virus can be a tricky but cost-effective way to slow the spread of the disease as long as health workers don't disclose names, say authors of a new study.

"We tried very hard to develop a positive, empathetic and compassionate relationship with the people we worked with," said Dr. Randolph E. Wykoff, co-author of a study that found contact-tracing to be worthwhile, contrary to the predictions of many health officials.

"I could see very clearly where this would have been a miserable failure if they hadn't trusted us," Wykoff said of the study published in today's Journal of the American Medical Association.

The study conducted in a rural South Carolina county in 1986 turned up 82 men and one woman who possibly had been exposed to the virus, researchers said.

The cost of the tracing worked out to about $105 per person tested for AIDS or $810 for each infected person located. That's a small price compared with the cost of treating a single case of AIDS, which is estimated at between $40,000 and $100,000, Wykoff said Wednesday.

"If we prevented one case at $40,000, that's 400 people we can educate," said Wykoff, a district director for the South Carolina Department of Health and Environmental Control.

Educating and counseling both infected and uninfected people led them to greatly reduce the number of their sexual partners, as shown by a check six months later, the researchers said.

After counseling, most of the individuals started using condoms at least some of the time, although none had used them before, the researchers said.

The virus that causes acquired immune deficiency syndrome is believed to be passed mainly through sexual intercourse, shared hypodermic needles and from infected mothers to their infants before or during birth.

"The study suggests that at least in rural areas, there is a sizable population that has not been reached by other education efforts," Wykoff said. "Our study gives a preliminary suggestion that we can produce a positive behavior change in this population.

"I don't think the study says contact-tracing will work everywhere or that it will always be effective. But it does suggest it will work in some communities," he said.

But an editorial accompanying the study said contact-tracing should not become the main weapon against AIDS, although the strategy would be appropriate in areas where the disease is less common.

help provide an attendance increase during the summer months.

A music ministry has been established and the key words that best describe this restoration effort are excitement and enthusiasm. Victory Baptist Church is a Fundamentalist Baptist Church, believing the Bible to be the inerrant word of God.

The church is located at 3303 Apple Street, and everyone is invited to come and worship.

Githens and his wife, Elaine, have two children at home: Chrystal, 11, and Eric, 4.

USDA criticized for lack of drought relief

DALLAS (AP) — A state agriculture official issued a plea to federal officials to provide drought-stricken farmers and ranchers with money, land use and other assistance.

"We estimate right now that farmers and ranchers are losing $1 million each day as long as this drought goes on," Deputy State Agriculture Commissioner Mike Moeller said Thursday.

"We're trying to find ways to help the farmers and ranchers in our state survive the situation we're in."

U.S. Department of Agriculture officials, on the same day, notified 98 Texas counties that they may use hay from lands set aside for conservation use.

Federal officials said the USDA is moving as quickly as possible to assist those farmers and ranchers hurt by the drought, and that the agency is already pursuing several of the actions suggested by Moeller.

"It's easy to criticize when you don't have the responsibility for administering something like that," said Donnie Bowman, assistant director of the Texas office of the U.S. Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service.

Moeller had earlier complained that the USDA is not moving quickly enough in responding to the needs of farmers in drought-plagued areas of Texas.

Moeller urged federal officials to immediately halt farm foreclosures by government agencies. And he said more Texas counties should be admitted into the Emergency Feed Assistance Program, which allows federal officials to sell stored, lower-quality corn and grains to qualified farmers and ranchers.

He also criticized the USDA for failing to move more quickly in providing drought relief.

"Ten minutes is all it should take to convince anyone in the Department of Agriculture that Texas is the anchor on the worst drought to hit this nation in 50 years," Moeller said.

A spokesman for U.S. Sen. Phil Gramm said Thursday that most farmers would disagree with Moeller's suggestion that the USDA cease federal farm foreclosures.

"They realize that if old loans aren't collected, new ones can't be made," spokesman Larry Neal said from Washington.

Duplicate records may reopen cases

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Veterans Administration is launching a massive review of rejected disability claims following the discovery of 10 million military medical records that duplicate some lost in a 1973 fire.

Veterans groups say thousands of veterans from World War II and the Korean War could be affected by the discovery. They say the newfound records would provide verification for claims denied because there were no records to substantiate them.

Thomas K. Turnage, the VA administrator, announced the discovery on Thursday and called it a "very important" development.

"It opens up new vistas for us. It means that these people who before had difficulty establishing a basis for their disability compensation, or the degree of it... it means we can have another chance to look at it and, in effect, may come up with a different result," Turnage said.

The VA said that it would immediately begin going through the new data and reviewing claims rejected because of lost records. The agency urged veterans seeking information about their claims to contact their VA regional offices.

Turnage said the VA had become aware of the information last week, and it was too early to say how many people would be affected. He also did not have figures on how many claims were denied because of lost records.

Officials cautioned against overestimating the impact of the discovery. R.J. Vogel, the VA's benefits director, said that most veterans who made disability claims did so during their initial years after service and would likely have filed claims before 1973.

But John Sommer, director of the American Legion Veterans Affairs and Rehabilitation Commission, whose office helps veterans with their disability claims, said there was no doubt the development could affect thousands.

"You'd be amazed at the number of people, World War II veterans in particular, who waited until they retired to file a claim with the VA, and then found the records had been destroyed," he said.
