Some Family Quarrels Can't Be Buried With the Deceased

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I can certainly father to initiate contact. This hurt relate to that woman who had a falling out with her brother. She hadn't spoken to him for seven years, and when he died, she didn't go to his funeral. She said, "I'm no hypocrite."

Three years ago, I learned that my brother had stolen from our elderly parents. When I confronted him with the evidence, he asked me to lie to cover up for him. I refused. That's when he hit me in the temple with a full can of beer, beat me up, took all my cash and left.

The day he did that to me, my love for him died. As far as I am concerned, I no longer have a brother, and if he were to drop dead tomorrow, I wouldn't attend his

Abby, you said: "Funerals are for the living. The deceased will not know who was there, but the grieving family will. Perhaps if that woman had attended her brother's funeral and buried her grievances, it might have made her feel better."

I rarely disagree with you, but this time you were wrong. Some grievances can never be buried. NO HYPOCRITE NO. 2

DEAR NO HYPOCRITE NO. 2: I was clearly outnumbered on this one. Read on for a typical dissenter:

DEAR ABBY: Regarding your recent letter from the woman who didn't attend her brother's funeral because she wasn't a hypocrite, I think your answer was way off.

A funeral may well be for the living, but the living should apply first to the immediate family of the deceased, i.e. wife, husband, children - not brothers and sisters.

My father had a brother who ignored him in his later years despite repeated attempts by my my father deeply, but there was no falling out - they just never spoke. Then my uncle showed up at my father's funeral.

His presence upset my mother and me because we both knew how much one short visit from this brother would have meant to my father when he was alive.

You'll probably say that we shouldn't carry a grudge, and maybe my uncle was trying to make up for what he had failed to do before, but nothing could make up for the hurt he caused my father in his final years.

Bitter? You'd better believe I'm

TOO LITTLE, TOO LATE

DEAR ABBY: Speaking of hypocrites and funerals, when my won-derful mother died at 81, many of her friends came to her funeral. Did it give me pleasure to see such a turnout? No, it didn't.

Where were all these "friends" when my poor mother lay partially paralyzed in a nursing home for six years? Mother would have so enjoyed a visit from these so-called friends, but none of them came.

When I saw them "paying their last respects" at my mother's funeral, I wanted to say: "It's too. late now. Where were you when she needed you?

Mute boy might be runaway

TAMPICO, Mexico (AP) -Mexican social worker identified a mysterious boy found wandering in Ciudad Juarez as the same child brought to her by police last year and who ran away an hour

That's him," Juana Brazal de Galindo said after examining a photo of the hearing and speech impaired boy called Sabbath, the El Paso Times reported in today's editions.

Ms. Galindo is a social worker with the Integrated Family Development program a social service agency that has offices throughout Mexico and is known by its Spanish initials of DIF.

She said the child in the picture is the same boy who was taken to her office with a cut on his left leg just above the knee about a year ago, and that boy indicated with gestures he was injured in a motorcycle accident. Sabbath, about 8 years old, has been living in a DIF center in Juarez since he was found walking along a highway Nov. 7. He has a scar on his left leg, just above the knee. Mexican and U.S. officials have failed to identify the boy.

The child cannot read or write and uses gestures to speak. Officials have interpreted his drawings and gestures as indications he may have been a survivor of a plane crash that killed his parents and sister.

"I think (the police) brought him here because they found him on the streets late at night. Now that I remember, I don't think he even saw the doctor for very long because he ran away." Galindo said.

Analysts say expansion likely for new Braniff

DALLAS (AP) - The new leadership of Braniff Inc. pledges to become a competitive force in the airline industry, but at least one analyst says reaching that goal will take time.

Airline analyst Louis A. Marckesano of Janney Montgomery Scott Inc. in Philadelphia said Sunday that Braniff's market position, between the commuter airlines and the major carriers, makes survival difficult.

"That doesn't mean that they can't succeed," Marckesano said, adding he doesn't expect any rapid expansion or downsiz-ing of the airline. "I don't think we'll know the answer to that for a while. They still have to find themselves a niche that they can survive in long term.

quire Dallas-based Braniff in a deal with an estimated value of $111 million.

Although Braniff posted a net loss of $8.1 million in the first quarter of this year, the airline has doubled its number of flights at Kansas City International airport since the beginning of the Outgoing Braniff chairman J. Patrick Foley said the new management will continue the expansion. The airline is performing well in Kansas City, a hub it shares with financially ailing Eastern Airlines, Foley said.

"It's our understanding that they're going to leave everything in place for the immediate future," said Foley, who headed Braniff for the past year.

BIA agreed to buy Braniff from Dalfort Aviation Inc., which is owned by the Pritzker family of Chicago.

Community Calendar Plan ignites environmentalists

KELSO DUNES, Calif. (AP) -It's 112 degrees in the shade in parts of the Mojave Desert these days. But the political heat is rising as folks from here to Washington fight over a plan to set aside 7.5 million acres as wilderness

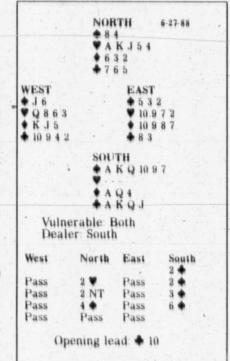

The battleground is a starkly beautiful land of brushy desert and craggy mountains, stretching from Death Valley to the Mexican border, from the snowcapped Sierra Nevada and coast ranges to the sandy borders of Nevada and Arizona.

The rugged 35,000-square-mile sweep is home to shy bighorn sheep, the threatened desert tortoise and a few hard-working cattle ranchers. It has two national parks, rich lodes of gold and minerals and a sprinkling of independent comfiercely munities.

Beware of gifts from the enemy

A recent important contribution to bridge literature is "Tips for Tops." by Dr. George Rosenkranz (Devyn Press). The thought-provoking deals featured are culled from Rosenkranz's wide experience as player and theorist, and the tips are expressed in language that can be understood by expert and beginner alike. Today's deal has a simple theme: When an intelligent declarer presents you with a gift, think twice before accepting it.

The auction was simple - artificial, strong two-bid by South, positive response in hearts by North, spades bid and rebid by South and supported finally by North, jump to slam by South. With the opening lead of the club 10. declarer wins his ace of clubs and immediately leads the 10 of spades. For West, sitting there with the J-6 of spades, what now

Of course, looking at all four hands. we can see that taking the spade jack allows declarer to later reach dummy with the spade eight so that he can shed two diamonds on the A-K of hearts. To prevent that from happening. West must simply allow the 10 of spades to win the trick. How can that be determined at the table, without seeing all 52 cards? The answer is that the defender must assume that declarer wishes the 10 of spades to lose to the jack. If that's what the declarer wants. it must be best for the defense to avoid taking the jack of spades. Simple psychology - South offers West the jack of spades, and West says, "No. thanks.

Hazards posed by chemicals

DEAR DR. GOTT: For more than three years. I have worked in a college print shop. There's no ventilation in my basement office, although I do have a dehumidifier going, and there's an air conditioner in one window. Would the chemicals I use (alcohol, kerosene, potassium ferrocyanide, hydrogen cyanide) cause the problems I have: trouble focusing, saying things wrong, tingling

DEAR READER: Exposure to industrial solvents and fumes can cause toxicity characterized by the symptoms you describe. However, I cannot blame the materials you work with unless you have had an environmental assessment made to measure the potential toxins in the print shop. I suggest that you see a doctor and also request a workplace analysis by the proper authorities. A municipal building inspector can perform this function, as can a representative of the U.S. Occupational Safety and Health Administration.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I cry very easily. It's embarrassing for me and other people. It infuriates my husband, but I can't control my tears. What sort of help is available?

DEAR READER: Many people cry easily, they are moved by beautiful music, sad thoughts and so forth. This is a personal peculiarity that I do not view as abnormal.

If you believe that your temperament is getting in the way of leading a normal life, you might be aided by counseling. A psychologist or trained social worker may help you to work through some of the emotional peaks and troughs that you have, in order to enable you to control yourself more effectively. Ask your doctor for a referral I am sending you a free copy of my Health Report. Mental and Emo-tional Illness. which also tells how to find appropriate counseling. Others who would like a copy should send $1 and their name and address to P.O. Box 91369. Cleveland, OH 44101-3369. Be sure to mention the title.

DEAR DR. GOTT: A child I know had a short loss of oxygen at 8 months What problems could this cause? At what age would these problems show

DEAR READER: The answer to your question depends on how long the child was deprived of oxygen and to what extent. Complete loss of blood oxygen causes irreversible brain damage after about three minutes. However, nervous tissue can often adapt spectacularly to short-term ox-ygen debt — and children seem to be especially resistent to this type of trauma. For example, there are numerous reports of drowned children who were pulled from cold water and revived without damage. The cold temperature and the constituents of the water (salt or fresh) appear to play an important role in allowing the brain to survive without long-term consequences.

Ordinarily, after oxygen depletion. patients show immediate malfunction of the nervous system (unconsciousness, weakness or seizures); with time, the disability may improve. The patients may return to normal in a

System must open up, poll says

MEXICO CITY (AP) -- A majority of Mexican voters say the political system must allow the opposition to win more often. although few expect the ruling party will lose the presidency in this century, a poll shows.

About 63 percent of those who said they planned to vote in Mexico's July 6 general elections said Mexico's political system must change to allow the opposition to win more frequently, according to a Gallup Poll released Sunday.

Only 28 percent said they felt the existing system should not be changed, the poll said

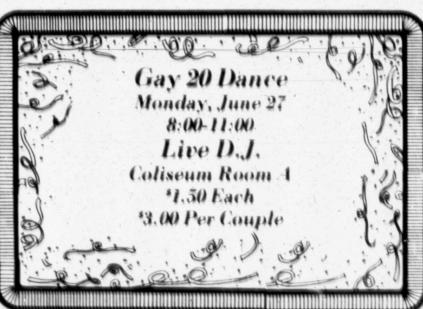

The governing Institutional Revolutionary Party, or PRI, has not lost a presidential, gubernatorial or senate election since it was created in 1929. Its presidential candidate, Carlos Salinas de Gortari, is certain to win on July 6.

Salinas de Gortari was favored by 56 percent of voters in the first results of the Gallup survey, released on June 20.

Fifty percent of those who said they planned to vote for Salinas de Gortari felt the system must open up, while 43 percent of his supporters said the system was fine as it is.

But 54 percent of all voters felt an opposition presidential victory on July 6 would disrupt the "social peace" of the country

Nelson holds on for Atlanta crown

Nelson wants to remember, although it was just good enough to give him the 10th victory of his PGA Tour career.

"It was not as easy as I thought it would be when I woke up this morning," Nelson said Sunday after blowing a four-shot lead and then getting the birdie he had to have on the final hole to claim a one-shot triumph in the $700,000 Atlanta Golf Classic.

"I'll forget this round, but I'll remember the drive and the second shot" on the 18th. "Under the circumstances it was the best drive I ever hit in my life. It's amazing how far you can hit it when you're scared."

His drive carried down the middle of the fairway, setting up a 4-wood approach shot that stopped 35 feet from the pin. He twoputted for his birdie-4 to finish with a 1-over-par 73 and a 20under 268 total.

In the fourth round, Foreman stunned Hernandez early with a right hand, then landed a combination of four head punches that buckled Hernandez' legs and put him into the ropes.

At that point, Hernandez spit out his mouthpiece and Foreman stopped fighting, complaining to referee Paul Venti about the mouthpiece lying on the canvas.

When Venti motioned for the fight to resume, however, Foreman landed another rightleft combination that sent Hernandez reeling backwards. Venti moved in and waved the fight to a halt, despite loud protests from Hernandez. Foreman ran his record to 55-2,

Women fare best in Sweden; U.S. ranks 3rd

WASHINGTON (AP) -Women have yet to reach equality with men in any country, but they come closest in Sweden, followed by Finland and then the United States, a study by a private population group con-

At the other end of the scale, women's status is lowest in poverty-stricken Bangladesh, according to the report by the independent Population Crisis Committee.

The world's poorest women are not merely poor. They live on the edge of subsistence. They are economically dependent and vulnerable, politically and legally powerless," said Sharon L. Camp, vice president of the committee which studies population

Scoring well in many categories, particularly in social equality and employment opportunities, Sweden was ran! ed first in women's status.

Finland was listed as No. 2, while the United States placed third, doing particularly well in providing educational opportunities for women.

No country managed to be listed as "excellent," however. Sweden led the "very good" section and was joined by Finland, the United States, East Germany, Norway, Canada and Bangladesh finished a distant last, with Mali, Afghanistan, North Yemen and Pakistan rounding out the bottom five.

The ratings are based on measures of women's status in health, marriage and children, education, employment and social equality.

Nowhere do women enjoy equal status with men, the report

"But in the least developed countries of Africa, the Middle East, Asia and Latin America, crushing poverty overlaid with longstanding patterns of discrimination create living condition for women almost too harsh to imagine," the report

The United States scored 19, tied with Australia, Belgium, Canada, West Germany, Hungary, Italy, the Netherlands, Norway, Poland, Portugal, Sweden and Switzerland.

Last was Afghanistan at only

-Marriage and Children: This ranking was based on the percent of women who marry while still adolescents, national fertility rate, prevalence of contraceptive use and ratio of widows and divorced women heading households.

Australia and New Zealand were the only countries to score a full 20 points. Scoring 19.5 were Sweden and Taiwan, while Belgium, Finland, Netherlands, Norway and the United Kingdom all scored 19.

The United States scored 18.5, as did Canada, China, Czechoslovakia, Denmark, France, East Germany, Germany and Switzerland.

Last was Saudi Arabia at 4

Alien juvenile detention centers opposed illegal minors, many fleeing conscription, has prompted immigration officials to open juvenile centers to hold the youths until they can be deported or released to relatives.

But the home-style juvenile detention centers have been criticized by immigration advocates, who say federal authorities are just trying to make the idea of confining children more palatable to the public.

"Most people feel that it's a move in the direction of increased control and increased detention of minors," said Jonathan Moore, a paralegal with Proyecto Libertad in Harlingen. "But immigration is trying to sugarcoat it and I think a lot of people are fooled.

Over the last three years, increasing numbers of children have poured over the U.S. border as conditions in their countries worsened, said Mary Ruth Calhoun, detention programs specialist for the Immigration and Naturalization Service in Washington.

The INS takes custody of unaccompanied, undocumented children up to age 17, many of whom are traumatized by poverty and war.

On any given day, there are from 150 to 170 juveniles in INS detention in this country, not counting those who are picked up and released the same day. Most of the minors held are Central American boys 14 to 16 years old who come to this country alone in flight from conscription in the ar-

Head injury results from thrown wire

A Commissioners Pci. 3 employee was listed in satisfactory condition Monday at Methodist Hospital in Lubbock following surgery to remove a piece of wire from his brain, having sustained the injury while operating a grass shredder near Ira last Thursday

Donnie Ray. Goswick, 36, of 2606 Ave. V was mowing at 10 a.m. Thursday about three miles north of Ira when the shredder picked up the wire and threw pieces of it through two protective wire shields, hitting Goswick in the arm and just back of his right temple.

Pct. 3 Commissioner C.D. Gray Jr. said a fellow employee brought Goswick to Cogdell Memorial Hospital, from which he was transferred to undergo surgery at Methodist Friday

Reports indicate the wire entered a relatively non-critical area and Goswick is expected to return to work in about four

Gorbachev's opening speech is The Kremlin sets the tone for to be carried live by East bloc scurrying out in the morning to buy Soviet dailies that now sell out fast at the news stand.

With Moscow now insisting publicly that its allies are free to dictate their own reforms at their own pace, East bloc officials are reluctant to admit openly that the outcome of the Soviet party conference will have any bearing on their own policies.

But in Prague, for example, officials privately admit they are waiting to see whether Gorbachev will strengthen his hand.

If the Kremlin leader gets a mandate for more radical reform, it will put the heat on Czechoslovakia's leaders - installed after Massau crushed Gorbachev-like reforms with tanks 20 years ago — to allow some liberalization.

Similar pressure might also arise in Bulgaria, where the wily Todor Zhivkov, 76, has been in power since 1954 and skillfully pays lip service to reforms while making changes in the economy that have been chaotic.

Poland and Hungary have gone furthest in matching or even exceeding Gorbachev's reforms in the economic and political realms.

In Budapest, officials openly boast now of great support from the Soviets for their reforms, and accordingly have voiced the greatest concern that Soviet proponents of change are not wellplaced to prevail at this week's conference.

"The fact is, the supporters of the new line cannot feel that their position is safe at the party conference," the Hungarian govern-

An opposition platform partially published by the independent Catholic weekly Tygodnik Powszechny two weeks ago noted considered as growing" as Gorbachev's campaign crystalizes and "will weaken the position of conservative elements" among Poland's ruling Communists.

Soviet reforms have received scant attention in the official media in East Germany and Romania, whose Communist leaders so far have rejected any need to follow suit.

Romania's 23 million citizens are largely preoccupied in coping with severe food shortages. But they paid close attention to a visit televised speech by the Soviet ly on Eastern Europe.

As Warsaw Pact allies embroiled in a fierce dispute over the treatment of ethnic Hungarians in Romania, Hungary and Romania are likely to take a special interest in the ethnic unrest that has recently flared in the Soviet Union.

Your medicine may make you tired

Since Americans fill two billion prescriptions each year and 75 million of us take one or more medicines ach week, medication-induced fatigue is a major national problem. But the side effects of medicine can be difficult to recognize because, if they develop gradually, you may not be aware of them until after you stop taking the drug.

Some medicines are very likely to cause fatigue: antihistamine cold medicines, sleeping pills, anti-ulcer drugs, and many high blood pressure

Others cause tiredness less often or only in special circumstances. They include birth control pills, diuretics, diet aids, and anti-inflammatory pain

Consider the situation of Tim Jones, 35-year-old school guidance counselor. Two years ago, immediately following his divorce, he became tired and depressed. His family physician placed him on antidepressant medicines and referred him for counseling.

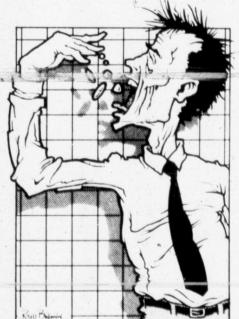

His depression improved, but his fatigue continued. His doctor thought this meant he was still depressed, so he increased the dose of the antidepressant medicine. However, Tim became more fatigued - and more frustrated. One day he threw his pills away; within a week, his fatigue had

It was the antidepressant medicine that made him tired.

When reviewing all your medicines with your doctor, keep this specific question in mind: Is it possible that my medicine is contributing to my fatigue? For at least half the most commonly taken medicines, the answer could be yes. The "official" information sheet for a typical drug may list 50 or more potential side effects, often including fatigue

Most prescription drugs come to the pharmacist with this detailed leaflet describing the drug. He or she should give you a copy if you ask for

Be especially suspicious of any medicine you began taking within a few months of first noticing fatigue. However, question every drug - even those you started long before or long after your problem began.

But don't simply drop a medicine that you suspect may be causing fatigue. That could be extremely dangerous. Decide with your doctor whether you can afford a medicinefree holiday or whether a less-tiring drug might serve as a substitute. Alcohol is our most pervasive drug problem. Authorities estimate that between 5 and 10 percent of our adult population might be affected to a degree. Fatigue caused by alcohol abuse is more common than most imagine. If you have too much to drink, you can't think clearly that day and may sleep poorly that night

Most of us can drink moderately with no major harm. But many people sleep less if they drink before

If you drink regularly, part of an evaluation of your fatigue should be a several-week holiday away from alcohol. If that thought seems upsetting offense or ridiculous, ask if this might itself be a sign that something is wrong. One caution, though: If you become nervous or jittery when you omit or postpone an accustomed drink, your already be addicted. In that case, talk to your physician before doing anything. Sudden withdrawl from alcohol can cause serious problems. Alcohol aside, the National Institute of Drug Abuse estimates that there may be 2 million cccaine addicts and that up to half of Americans aged 25 to 30 have sampled cocaine. Cocaine is like caffeine multiplied a million times - it boosts you meteorically and drops you absolutely, exhausting your nervous system. This cause of fatigue should be obvious despite the immense power of selfdelusion

Marijuana smokers recognize pot's acute powers of sedation but may not realize that this drug remains in the body for many days after it is taken. If you smoke marijuana two or three times a week, don't be surprised if you are tired all the time.

Tobacco is another route to mild stimulation, followed by a letdown that calls for yet another pick-me-up the next cigarette or coffee or both. This stress-fatigue seesaw can wear you out by itself. But tobacco also constricts blood vessels, so the heart must pump harder. It compromises the respiratory system, demanding more effort to breathe, and pushes the entire metabolism into high gear. Ex-smokers sometimes marvel at how alive they feel once they kick their habit The list of abusable drugs is long and includes prescription drugs such as diet pills and sleeping pills, as well as such illegal drugs as heroin and LSD. Many users think they can handle them. Chronic fatigue can be the first indicator that their judgment

Judiciary pay likely issue for Legislature

AUSTIN (AP) - Lawmakers need to make sure Texas judges $71,000 annually, said the and their helpers aren't short—"economic disparity between the and their helpers aren't shortchanged in the legislative zeal to save money court officials say.

The pay issue has been underscored by the recent resignations of Justices Jim Wallace from the Supreme Court and Richard N. Countiss from the 7th Court of Appeals in Amarillo.

Wallace, a former state senator from Houston, said "plain old money" prompted his decision to resign, the Dallas Times Herald reported. Supreme Court justices earn about $79,000 annually, which is about half the income of a partner in a major law firm.

And last week, an opinion by Justice Franklin Spears of the Texas Supreme Court on a case carried a scolding of the Texas Legislature for its pennypinching concerning an equal branch of government.

"In this day and time, with ever-increasing dockets,' Justice Franklin Spears wrote, "modern word-processing equipment, computers and skilled personnel to assist with the workload may often be as critical as heating stoves."

U. S. sales to Japan...

Plan expands opportunities and Japanese officials acknowledge that their latest agreement to increase sales of American consumer products in Japan is just one step on a long road to more balanced trade.

"This is just a dent in the trade deficit," Commerce Secretary C. William Verity said after officials from the two countries announced the pact over the weekend. "It's going to require we make a lot of different dents."

The program is aimed at giving a boost to Japanese sales of U.S.made sporting goods and leisure products, jewelry, furniture, pet foods and processed foods.

Those items accounted for almost $1.6 billion in American exports to Japan in 1987. But the U.S. trade deficit last year was $170 billion, and fully $60 billion of that came from an imbalance with Japan.

U.S. government and business officials have long complained that American products are not allowed fair access to Japan's rapidly expanding market.

Under the agreement, trade officials from both countries will help American manufacturers locate potential customers in Japan. Verity said he would meet soon with U.S. business executives to discuss the program.

Japan's Ministry of International Trade and Industry will help remove obstacles that have hindered U.S. sales in Japan, the officials said.

'MITI will work with them in opening opportunities to get the products on the shelves," Verity said. Now, he said, in depart Japanese.'

international trade and industry. Hajime Tamura, announced the pact at a news conference Saturday and said they hoped that additional industries would soon be added to the initiative. Verity said officials from the two countries had discussed the eventual inclusion of about 20 products, including medical and computer equipment.

Verity and Tamura declined to estimate what effect the agreement would have on sales of the American products in Japan. They acknowledged, however, that the initial results would not be dramatic.

"We don't have flowers immediately when we try to sew the ment stores, all products are seeds," Tamura said through a translator. "We have to sow the tional trade surplus, which peak-Verity and Japan's minister of ed in 1986, has been dropping in recent months while domestic demand has been growing sharply. He said that in the first five months of this year, U.S. imports to Japan increased 43 percent over the same period in 1987.

"Now is the best possible opportunity for market entries," he

U.S. exports to Japan last year totaled $204 million in sporting goods and leisure products, $34 million in furniture, $217 million in jewelry, and $1.1 billion in processed foods and pet food.

This is the second trade agreement between the United States and Japan in a week. Last Monday, the two countries reached a trade pact that would result in large increases in U.S. imports of beef and citrus fruits to Japan by phasing out or reducing quotas and tariffs.
