TDC cost-overrun projected to have beneficial effects

The apparent cost overrun from initial budget estimates for the Snyder Texas Department of Corrections prison unit may have a positive effect locally with an additional $3 to $3.5 million in construction monies spent here. Larry Fickel, TDC construction manager for the Snyder 1,000-man unit and the Amarillo 2,250-man prison, said Thursday he expects the total cost of the prison to be in the range of $18.5 million. Some $15 million was originally budgeted. The $18.5 million projection includes some $15 million for actual construction, up from the initial estimate of $11.5 million. The remainder of the cost is involved with such items as architectural fees, construction material testing and items furnished by TDC. Fickel noted Thursday that there still has been no official word from TDC board members as a result of a meeting Tuesday to discuss the higher-than-projected bid estimates. But he echoed comments made Wednesday by David Ritter of HCB Contractors of Dallas, whose firm will serve as the on-site construction managers for all four of the 1,000-man units. Both expect the bid for the Snyder prison to be let at the July See TDC, Page 11

National drought to linger

WASHINGTON (AP) — The hot, dry weather plaguing America is likely to shift East and South in the next month, and forecasters offer little hope that the widespread drought will be broken. The 90-day outlook issued by the National Weather Service on Wednesday does indicate a chance of more rain than normal in some western sections of the Great Plains by the end of September. But in the nearer term, the watchwords were for more of the same weather that has been parching fields and reservoirs, stalling river traffic and baking crops and livestock. The 6 to 10-day outlook is "very close to holding stationary the pattern of the last few weeks," Donald L. Gilman, head of the Long Range Predictions Group at the National Weather Service, said at a news conference. And the 30-day prediction shows "only subtle changes," Gilman added.

POSSIBLE HAZARD — Firemen spray the back wheels of a Complete Services Inc. water truck Wednesday night seven miles north of Snyder on the Clairmont Hwy. The firemen were involved with the fire, which was confined to the back wheels and caused by the brakes overheating, from 8:45 p.m. to 10:15 p.m. Initial reports were that the truck might be hauling hazardous and possibly flammable material, although this turned out to be unfounded. # Regulation of oil wastes nixed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Environmental Protection Agency has decided against regulating oil and gas drilling waste as hazardous material, saying another layer of regulation is impractical for the hundreds of thousands of wells across the country.

But the agency is promising to get tough on states that fail to enforce existing regulations governing the disposal of such wastes as brine and drilling muds, and ensuring abandoned wells are capped. "It was a tough decision but I think we made the right decision," said J. Winston Porter, EPA's assistant administrator for solid waste and emergency response. "We were concerned about layering on another level of regulations."

The biggest problem found by the EPA at the nation's wells was the disposal of brine — salt water that is extracted from wells in the drilling process. Porter said regulations already exist to cover that problem. An environmental group criticized the decision as contrary to the public interest. "These substances do not See OIL WASTES, Page 11

United Way ups budget to $85,000

The budget committee for the 1988 United Way campaign has approved an $85,000 budget for the coming drive, an increase of $5,000 over last year. The 1987 campaign saw Scurry County United Way "On the Rebound," as it reached a goal of $80,000 despite a downturn in the local economy and a fund raising effort which occurred simultaneously the $1 million-plus drive which purchased land for the Texas Department of Corrections prison site. This coming year, increased funding has been pledged by United Way for the Snyder Child Day Care Center and the Noah

Project. "This was where the committee perceived the greatest need," said Jack Gorman, United Way president this year and head of the budget committee. The day care center, which offers working parents a place to leave their children based on their ability to pay, received an increased pledge of some $2,000. The Noah Project, a temporary haven for battered women and their children, received an added pledge of $1,500. Most other agencies received slight increases, as did the "local expense" allocation which funds the campaign itself. With $5,500 earmarked for local expenses, the campaign is still projected to finance itself using 6.4 percent of its total earnings. This is done by utilizing a volunteer force which numbers in the hundreds. The campaign is traditionally completed during the month of October.

The United Way agency allocations this year include: Boys Club, $27,500; Noah Project, $12,500; Snyder Child Day Care Center, $12,000; Boy Scouts, $9,300; Girl Scouts, $9,300; Oil Patch Foster Parents, $4,500; Red Cross, $2,400; Salvation Army, $1,500; West Texas Rehab Center, $500; Local expenses, $5,500.

Girl's State participant returns here

Snyder High School senior Christy Quintela has returned from a Girls State meeting at Texas Lutheran College in Seguin at which she conducted two trials as a city attorney, a post she was elected to at the event. Christy, 17, was one of 580 girls at the session June 14 through 24 and took part in governing one of 11 "cities" that were set up as part of the exercise in how to run a government. She was the only participant from Snyder, being sponsored by the American Legion. The girls also went to Austin, met as a House and Senate all one day and were addressed by Gov. Bill Clements.

The SDN Column

By Roy McQueen

The feller on Deep Creek says, "Human nature is what makes a man prefer to give advice rather than take it."

The first month of summer is rushing to a conclusion — and already national retailers are fouting "back-to-school" merchandise. In fact, we saw our first "back-to-school" ad about two weeks before school ended. Advertising plays an important role in America, and we sometimes forget that those brand names which have become household words are actually associated with real people. If you have Bigelow carpet, if you eat Kraft's products, if you shave with a Gillette or Schick, if you drive a Ford or Buick, if you sew with a Singer, or type on a Remington, shoot with a Winchester or Kodak — then you've benefited from a person whose name adorns one of these products. Levi Strauss was a real person whose product in recent years has become the universal garment for people of all ages. It all started with a single pair of pants carved out of a piece of tent canvas during the California gold rush.

Closer to home, the misery of hungry children prompted Gail Borden to invent a process to keep milk sweet. Herbert Steinway was the head of a family which created the concert piano. Gustavus Franklin Swift had his own butcher shop by the age of 10, but really became famous when he made the refrigerated railway car a commercial reality. Lewis Bergman Maytag was into ag equipment, but his company changed the domestic washing machine for ever. By 1923, the firm abandoned all other manufacturing altogether and within five years had cornered 60 percent of the U.S. market. David Buick was a plumber whose great invention was the process of fusing porcelain into cast iron. A car company still bears his name, but he died a poor man. Louis Chevrolet was a race car driver, and became so unhappy with the car he designed, that he abandoned the project. Walter Chrysler began his career as a railroad man. Our favorite is still indoor plumbing — thanks to John Head.

In Brief

Drug probe

WASHINGTON (AP) — Prosecutors are reviewing possible criminal charges stemming from a cocaine investigation in which two National Security Council employees have been fired and three members of the uniformed Secret Service placed on leave. Evidence has been turned over to the U.S. attorney's office and the investigation is still going on, Robert R. Snow, spokesman for the Secret Service, said Wednesday.

Phone probe

AUSTIN (AP) — State Sen. Richard Anderson said he will cooperate in the Travis County district attorney's investigation of his telephone records, which were subpoenaed after reports that his office charged taxpayers for long-distance political calls. Anderson, who has repaid the state $2,200 for calls, also told a Wednesday news conference he has made changes at his office, and he blamed questionable calls on inadvertent errors. He said he believes his office will be exonerated.

Riot in jail

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Ten Bexar County sheriff's deputies and several inmates clashed when guards attempted to put three captured escapees in isolation cells, authorities said. The riot started at 8:30 p.m. Wednesday on the sixth floor of the new Bexar County Adult Detention Center, but was quelled within about 30 minutes. Jail guards, who asked not to be identified, said the incident began after inmates in a large room protested the prisoner transfers.

Minister's arrest 'nightmare'

DALLAS (AP) — Friends and relatives of a Southern Baptist minister say they were stunned when he was charged with five cases of sexual assault in connection with a string of attacks blamed on the so-called Village Rapist.

Gregory Charles Goben, 28, was jailed on $453,500 bail on four counts of sexual assault, one of aggravated sexual assault and in an attempted burglary, Dallas County Sheriff's spokesman Jim Ewell said Wednesday.

Goben was arrested late Monday in an attempted burglary of an apartment, said police Sgt. Larry Lewis. Unidentified sources told the Dallas Times Herald that Goban was linked to assaults in the area through fingerprints.

The Village Rapist is believed responsible for as many as 20 attacks since 1986 in the sprawling apartment complexes known as The Village.

Friends described Goban, pastor of Outreach Baptist Church in suburban Garland as a man devoted to his church, his and wife and two sons.

"He's always been one of the finest, kindest young men I've ever known," said the Rev. John Sullivan, pastor of Broadmoor Baptist Church in Shreveport, who has known the suspect since Goban was a teen-ager and football star in Shreveport.

"This is just unbelievable; it's a nightmare," said Jerry Jones, Goban's brother-in-law, who is a lawyer in Shreveport, La. "He didn't do it. We just hope and pray it's something that will be resolved."

"He never drank, he never smoked and he never used bad language. This is just a grand plan by Satan to destroy someone who helps others find the Lord through the gospel," said Gladys Teer, Goban's 79-year-old grandmother.

"She said Goban told his parents that he was out on a nightly run when he was stopped by the security guard. "There were two men who had just been robbed who saw him run by and thought he (committed) the robbery. So, they took after him," Ms. Teer said. "He ran through this apartment complex, and the security guard saw him running and put handcuffs on him."

The Outreach Church is one of 28 mission churches sponsored by First Baptist Church of Dallas, which provides funds to pay the minister's salary and help the church get started.

Goben had been pastor of the five-year-old church for two years, said the Rev. Lanny Elmore, Goban's supervisor.

The Village Rapist wore a ski mask and generally tied his victims' hands with a belt or other article of clothing, according to police. In at least two cases, the assailant expressed remorse, police said.

Police reports said the assailant told one victim, "At times he would like to shoot a bullet into his head because he wished that he could stop doing this," The Dallas Morning News reported.

Goben, who graduated from Trinity Heights Christian Academy in Shreveport in 1978, enrolled in Louisiana Tech University in nearby Ruston. He planned to be a doctor, but turned to the ministry in his senior year.

Independent counsels get green light from high court

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court's resounding endorsement of the special prosecutor law dispels any doubt about the authority of independent counsels investigating alleged wrongdoing by past and present Reagan administration officials.

The high court's 7-1 decision Wednesday removes a cloud from the Iran-Contra conspiracy case, and it clears the way for the sentencing of former White House aide Michael K. Deaver for lying under oath about the lobbying business he formed after leaving President Reagan's staff.

The ruling also removes the special prosecutor issue from former White House political director Lyn Nofziger's challenge to his 90-day sentence and conviction for illegally lobbying former administration colleagues.

And the court's decision revives independent counsel Alexia Morrison's long dormant investigation of allegations that former Assistant Attorney General Theodore B. Olson lied to a congressional committee investigating the Superfund scandal at the Environmental Protection Agency.

Challenges by Olson and two other former high-ranking Justice Department officials to grand jury subpoenas obtained by Morrison led to the high court's ruling on the independent counsel provisions of the Ethics in Government Act.

"Obviously we are very pleased with the opinion and particularly at the fact that it was reached nearly unanimously by the court," said Morrison, whose investigation has been stymied for nearly a year.

The high court, in a decision written by Chief Justice William Rehnquist, rejected arguments that appointment of independent counsels by a special court violated the Constitution's doctrine of separation of powers.

Rehnquist wrote that the special prosecutors did not encroach on the power of the executive branch to investigate crimes.

Inflammation and breast surgery

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT: Four years ago I had a non-malignant lump removed from one breast. It healed properly, but for the past year I've had pain and fullness. The doctor says that my mammograms are OK, but that I have mastitis. He says he will check it again in three months, but it is quite painful. What is the modern treatment for mastitis?

DEAR READER: Mastitis means breast inflammation. Following surgery, mastitis usually indicates infection that could be treated with antibiotics, surgical drainage or both. A common non-surgical breast inflammation, called fibrocystic disease, is not an infection at all; it is periodic lumpy swelling of breast tissue that can be ignored or treated with pills containing female hormones.

To give you more information, I am sending you a copy of my Health Report, "Breast Cancer and Disorders." Other readers who would like a copy should send $1 and their name and address to P.O. Box 91369, Cleveland, OH 44101-3369. Be sure to mention the title.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I have developed what my doctor refers to as a varicose vein in my penis because of my vasectomy. It's uncomfortable all the time, and worse after intercourse. I'm considering having my vasectomy reversed because I've remarried. Will this correct my problem?

DEAR READER: The development of a swollen vein in the penis would be an extremely rare consequence of vasectomy, because the operation does not ordinarily affect the veins of the reproductive tract. Therefore, I doubt that reversal of the vasectomy — in itself, a technically difficult procedure — would solve your problem. I suggest that you seek a consultation with a urologist, who could advise you whether the vein should be removed, thereby returning you to a more normal state.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I really feel silly asking you this: My bones crack when I walk, bend down, exercise or whatever. My friends tease me about getting old, but I'm only 31. What could be causing this?

DEAR READER: Our joints are held in place by supporting tissue, primarily tendons and ligaments. In some people — either because of injury or genetic inheritance — some joints may be lax. This can cause cracking with movement because the bones of the joints tend to move excessively.

As we get older, supporting structures tend to weaken; hence, joint cracking is a normal part of the aging process. Painless joint cracking is a common occurrence in people of any age, however; it does not necessarily indicate disease, nor does it require treatment. You can reassure your friends that (1) you are in good health, (2) you are getting older, and (3) so are they.

Steelworkers says reforms not working

MOSCOW (AP) — In a stinging critique of the Soviet reform program, a steelworker told the Communist Party conference today that three years after it was launched his town still doesn't have meat and consumer goods have vanished.

Veniamin A. Yarin, a middle-aged mill operator at a huge industrial complex in the Ural Mountains, told his 5,000 fellow delegates at the extraordinary gathering that despite promises to reward workers for increased productivity the government has cut housing subsidies.

And although Soviet leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev's program of "perestroika," or restructuring, is supposed to provide incentives by making enterprises operate on their own finances, the government still takes his factory's profits, Yarin said.

"Workers are asking straight out: 'Where is the perestroika?'" he said. "For example, in stores, the way it was before with food products is the way it still is. On top of that, they have introduced rationing for sugar. There wasn't any meat, and we still don't have any. Consumer goods have vanished completely."

Addressing the third day of the conference Gorbachev called to assess his reform program and set a course for the future, the steelworker from the city of Nizhny Tagil, 900 miles east of Moscow, demanded that top officials be held accountable for the failure of programs under their control.

Directing his remarks to the top Soviet leadership, whose members were sitting behind him on a dais in the Kremlin's Palace of Congresses, Yarin said, "It's high time the Central Committee should apply its power."

In his speech, broadcast by Soviet television from the closed conference hall, Yarin said, "People tell us straight out: we don't know what issues individual members of the Politburo are responsible for."

The exact duties of individual Politburo members are not announced, although each of the 13 members of the ruling body are understood to be assigned specific areas of responsibility.

Yarin said all people should be given reports on "how things are going, who must be thanked for successes and who must be made accountable for failures."

Gorbachev, who was among those listening to Yarin, has complained repeatedly that the entrenched bureaucracy is stalling his reform drive, and despite the Soviet Union's concept of collective leadership, he has demanded that individuals be held responsible for their own actions.

Don't whisper if you can shout

In "Tips for Tops," George Rosenkranz advises players to be as clear as possible in their suit-preference signals. Today's example hand is not a classic, in that West's pre-empt of three hearts might not be made by many players. (They would view West's hand as too strong for an opening three-bid.) Nevertheless, the bid occurred as reported, and South duly arrived at four spades.

West led his ace of hearts, hoping that his partner might be able to ruff a second heart and then give him a diamond ruff. That thinking was all right, but see what happened subsequently. After the heart ace, West continued with the heart seven, intending for East to lead back a diamond if he could ruff the second heart. East did ruff the second heart, but looking at his king of diamonds and the dummy's A-Q, he simply could not bring himself to lead back a diamond. He still could not see the queen or the nine of hearts, and so he was not absolutely convinced that West was void. When he led back a club, declarer had no trouble drawing trumps and giving up a diamond to make the contract.

What should West have done? There was no reason for West not to play the heart queen at trick two. And now if East could not get the message to lead a diamond for West to ruff, he should take up another game.

Music awards are presented

Bethel Studio of Music recently held an awards luau in the home of Alicia and Brooke Kubena. Co-hostesses were Melissa Harris of Jayton, Shanna Wade, Scarlet Vorn Kahl of Rotan, Amy Armstrong, Nicki Riggs of Colorado City, Lana Cline, and Hope Papay.

Instructor Lynn Bethel presented awards and recognitions at the event.

Jody Webb of Colorado City and Judson Morrison received high school diplomas in piano. To be granted the diploma, a student must pass five musicianship phases plus 10 selections of great difficulty.

In their respective schools, Webb and Morrison served as drum majors and were senior class valedictorians. Each completed a senior recital and each received a $100 scholarship from Vivace Jr. Music Club.

Early Bird awards, presented to those attending music lessons before school, were given to Amy Armstrong, Julie Zeck, Emily Zeck, Laura Hamby, Shanna Wade, Michelle Holmes, Michele Anderson, Regina McNair, Thad Myers, Lana Cline, and Scarlet Vorn Kahl of Rotan.

The Practice award, counted on Saturday and Sunday practice time, went to Cole Latimer with 136 hours. Brooke Kubena with 77 hours and Alicia Kubena with 76 hours and 25 minutes ran a close race for second place.

Andrea Helm, first place, and Amy Armstrong, second place, received Memory award trophies for the most measures memorized in the year.

Jason Warren received the Hymn award after learning 19 sacred songs. Andrea Helm ran a close race but was out-distanced the last week of competition.

Repertoire trophies were awarded in three groups with first place winners being Brooke Kubena, Andrea Helm, and Melissa Harris. Those winning second ratings were Ellen Strayhorn, Laura Hamby, and Christopher Fuentez.

Karomy Drum won the talent trophy for her performance in the North Elementary Talent Show.

Technic Awards were given as follows: elementary scales, Hope

Papay; elementary chords and cadence, Michelle Banta; intermediate scales and cadence, Andrea Helm; preparatory scales and cadence, Judson Morrison.

M Awards, earned by accumulated points for recitals, public performances, Guild UIL events, attending live concerts, and other learning activities, were presented to 37 pupils. The first place trophy went to Laura Hamby with 12,150 points and Jason Warren received the runner-up trophy with 12,125 points.

Karomy Drum won the Jazz Award with Hope Papay and Andrea Helm earning a tie in second place.

Students rating in the top 10 scores of the National Piano Guild auditions are Judson Morrison, first place; Katie Perkins and Jody Webb, second; Amy Armstrong, third; Christopher Fuentez, Shanna Wade, Ellen Strayhorn, Andrea Helm, Melissa Harris, Cole Latimer, Kristie Perkins, Scarlet Vorn Kahl, fourth; Michelle Holmes, Karomy Drum, Lauren Perkins, fifth; Myste Malone, Kyle Martin, Alicia Kubena, sixth; Laura Hamby, seventh; Paige Bell, Carrie Perkins, Brooke Kubena, eighth; Jason Warren, Hope Papay, Maribeth Dillaha, ninth; Carol Strayhorn, Kasi Campbell, Michelle Banta, Chad Keith, Regina McNair, tenth.

Composer pins were awarded to pupils entering Guild auditions with 10 memory selections for five or more years. Judson Morrison received the 10-year pin and the Paderiski Gold Medal. Eight-year pins were given to Myste Malone, Michelle Holmes and Christopher Fuentez. Other winning pins were Amy Armstrong and Carrie Keith, seven years; Kasi Campbell, Laura Hamby, Kyle Martin and Katie Perkins, six years; Alicia Kubena, Shanna Wade and Jody Webb, five years.

Whitlock Theory awards are given by Texas Music Teachers Association and Bethel Studio. Special attention is given to the state theory exams given twice yearly with medals awarded to those earning grades of 90-100.

Gold medalists with scores of 98-100 are Karomy Drum, Carol Strayhorn, Lisa McNair, Michelle Banta, Chad Keith, Emily Zeck, Cole Latimer, Andrea Helm, Katie Perkins, Amy Armstrong and Judson Morrison.

Earning silver medals with scores of 95-97 are Maribeth Dillaha, Brooke Kubena, Kasi Campbell, Lauren Perkins, Julie Zeck and Jody Webb.

Bronze medalists with scores of 90-94 are Kristie Perkins, Blanden Chisum, Nicki Riggs, Regina McNair, Hope Papay, Cynthia Stansell, Alicia Kubena and Michelle Holmes.

The Odessa Music Teachers Association sponsors the yearly Pauline Slater competition. Winners were Christopher Fuentez, Maribeth Dillaha, Carrie Keith and Katie Perkins, first place; Jason Warren, second place; Cynthia Stansell and Kyle Martin, third place.

Some 464 pupils from West Texas and New Mexico competed at the Lubbock Piano Contest. Bethel Studio students receiving first place were Blanden Chisum, Cole Latimer, Karomy Drum, Alicia Kubena and Michelle Banta. Second place winners were Julie Zeck, Andrea Helm and Emily Zeck. Coming in for third place were Ellen Strayhorn, Brooke Kubena, Lisa McNair, Laura Hamby and Michelle Holmes.

Receiving excellent and superior ratings in the contest were Kasi Campbell, Paige Bell, Hope Papay, Carol Strayhorn, Regina McNair and Myste Malone.

Alicia and Brooke Kubena were recognized for first place honors in the White Buffalo Day Celebration talent award.

Melissa Harris placed first division in piano solo UIL. She and Jody Webb will compete in Austin at the state level.

The Progress award, given to the pupil with the most advancement for the year, was earned by Amy Armstrong.

Lauren Perkins received the Most Courteous Pupil award, earned for being kind and friendly toward others in the studio.

The Music Spirit award is given to a pupil showing in a quiet way the true spirit of team effort, boldness and warmth toward others. Christopher Fuentez displayed these qualities by showing appreciation for other pupils' talents, looking to others for help and advice, and by congratulating his competitor on winning first place at a contest.

Chewy fudge-nut cookies

By NANCY BYAL
 Better Homes and Gardens Food Editor

These cookies are so moist and chewy, no one will ever guess you started with a cake mix.

FUDGE-NUT COOKIES

1 package 1-layer-size dark fudge cake mix

One 8-ounce carton dairy sour cream

½ of a 6-ounce package (½ cup) peanut butter-flavored pieces

¼ cup coarsely chopped walnuts

In a small mixer bowl beat cake mix and sour cream with electric mixer on medium speed about 2 minutes or until smooth and creamy. Stir in peanut butter-flavored pieces and nuts.

Drop by rounded teaspoonfuls 2 inches apart onto a greased cookie sheet. Bake in a 350-degree oven 10 to 12 minutes or until set. Cool on cookie sheet for 1 minute; remove and cool thoroughly on wire racks. Store in tightly covered container. Makes about 36.

Nutrition information per serving: 61 cal., 2 g pro., 7 g carbo., 3 g fat, 3 mg chol., 70 mg sodium.

Dear Abby

Couple's Thieving Son-in-Law Steals Daughter Away As Well

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1988 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: We need help. Our son-in-law is a thief. When he and our daughter visit us, invariably after they leave we discover that several objects are missing. (They live in another town.) If we confront them, we will lose our daughter's visits. In the past she isolated us for a couple of years at a time because she felt we did not treat her husband "right." They have been married for 17 years, and the only really good part of their marriage is our one and only grandchild.

We love our daughter, but her husband is a liar and a thief. This last visit, he took three items from our home — one is something that is very precious to me. We do not want to do anything as drastic as notifying the police. Please tell us how to handle this.

WHITE PLAINS, N.Y.

DEAR WHITE PLAINS: Call your daughter and tell her what is missing — particularly the piece that is very precious to you. Then see how she responds.

She surely knows that her husband is a thief, but if he steals from her own parents, and she accepts it, she is no better than he is.

Perhaps it would be better if you didn't entertain them in your home if you have to go through the emotional turmoil and fear of wondering what will be stolen next.

***

DEAR ABBY: As a 47-year-old man who does not feel or think he looks older than he is, I resent clerks in stores asking me if I am entitled to a senior citizen's discount. Perhaps they think I look elderly, but I think it is impertinent of them to ask a question that implies that they think I am.

Some businesses offer discounts to "senior citizens," but it would be more tactful and better business for managers to provide clear, conspicuous signs explaining their senior citizens policy — then leave it up to the customer to decide whether or not to volunteer his (or her) age as a means of obtaining a discount. What do you think?

Please air this in your column, Abby, and see if other readers agree with me.

CHARLESTON, S.C., READER

DEAR READER: I like the sign idea. In a society that values youth, as evidenced by the many products that promise to make us feel and look younger, it is not surprising that many people would be offended to be asked, "Are you entitled to a senior citizen's discount?" — especially those who look as though they are, but aren't. Readers?

***

DEAR ABBY: The phrase, "innocent until proven guilty" has been around for a long time and the wording really bugs me.

Wouldn't "innocent unless proven guilty" have a more positive effect on one's subliminal thinking?

R. BLOOMFIELD, POMONA

DEAR R.: Yes. "Until" implies that the person ultimately will be proven guilty. "Unless" suggests that the person may remain innocent forever.

22 persons take part in tour group

Twenty-two local and area residents participated in a New York City Theatre Tour June 16-20 with Lynn Bethel and Ellie Dryden as hostesses. Joe Strickland of Arts and Entertainment Tours of Plano served as tour guide.

Shows which various members of the group attended were "Les Miserables," "Starlight Express," "Chess," "Me and My Girl," "Cats," "Fences," and the off Broadway show "Steel Magnolias."

Other special features of the tour included tours of NBC Studios, Statue of Liberty, South Street Seaport, Lincoln Center with a unique opportunity to tour backstage at the Metropolitan Opera, Greenwich Village, Chinatown, Little Italy, St.

Patrick's Cathedral and Rockefeller Center.

Some group members also visited Central Park, the New York Stock Exchange, the Metropolitan Museum of Art, the Museum of Modern Art, the Staten Island Ferry and other points of interest.

Fifth Avenue was a popular place for shopping and looking at such stores as Saks, FAO Swartz, Bergdorf Goodman, Tiffany's and Van Cleff and Arpels.

The group dined at several popular restaurants including the View Restaurant atop the Marriott Marquis at Times Square, Mama Leone's Restaurant, the Russian Tea Room, Tavern-on-the-Green at Central Park, and Windows on the World atop the World Trade Center.

Snyder residents in the tour group included Barbara McGee, Rosie Floyd, Peggy Hardin, Jane Neely, Maxine Falls, Francene Allen, Jim, Luann and Jamie Burleson, Max, Valerie and Karomy Drum, Lyn Bethel and Ellie Dryden.

Others participating included Margaret Latimer and Leola Anderson of Colorado City, Frances Wheat of Big Spring, Cody Allen of Abilene, Martha Holloway of Dallas and Margie McNitt, Cathey Nickles and Cindy Potts of Garden Grove, Calif.

This is the third group to be hosted by Arts and Entertainment Tours. Jim Rambo, theatre director at Western Texas College, hosted the first group in June of 1986. Barbara Perkins and Ellie Dryden hosted a group in August, 1987.

Three Texans make list of top recipients

WASHINGTON (AP) — Three Texas congressmen were among the top 26 of all House members for honoraria received from the defense industry, a public issues group says.

Reps. Marvin Leath, D-Waco, Charles Wilson, D-Lufkin, and Mac Sweeney, R-Wharton, were the Texas delegation's top money-earners in defense honoraria, according to a report by Common Cause released Wednesday.

Leath, a member of the House Armed Services Committee, took home $18,500 in defense-related honoraria last year, putting him in sixth place among all congressmen. Wilson, with $17,000, tied for seventh place with Robert Davis, R-Mich., and Sweeney, with $14,000 was tied for 14th place with Rep. Robert Livingston, R-La.

Wilson is a member of the defense appropriations subcommittee of the House Appropriations Committee and Sweeney is a member of the House Armed Services Committee.

The Common Cause study was based on financial disclosure reports required annually of members of Congress.

"The nation's top defense contractors have been paying substantial fees to key members of Congress who control defense decisions to buy their influence, not their oratory," said Fred Wertheimer, president of Common Cause.

"The honoraria fees system has become a special-interest vehicle for sticking money directly into the pockets of senators and representatives."

Aides for Wilson and Sweeney said the congressmen aren't influenced by the fees. Leath could not be reached for comment.

Wilson spokeswoman Elaine Lang said the honoraria "doesn't make him beholden to any group and if they request him to speak, he's happy to do it."

"He speaks to them on Afghanistan as well as answers any question they might have on defense issues," Ms. Lang said.

Sweeney spokeswoman Laura Epstein said the congressman stands by his record on the committee and that "nobody fights harder for a strong, cost-effective defense than he does."

The three congressmen received honoraria from companies whose offices have been searched or named as being under investigation in the probe of alleged defense-contract bribery.

AMA, nurses clash over health workers

CHICAGO (AP) — The American Medical Association has called for a new field of hospital workers to handle bedside chores, blaming nursing leaders for a "bankrupt policy" that has contributed to a severe shortage of nurses.

The AMA's House of Delegates on Wednesday rejected stiff arguments from nurses and recommended training "registered care technologists" who would take vital signs, bathe patients and perform other types of patient care.

The delegates also approved two major policies calling for a new direction in the nation's war on drugs and an overhaul of the government's Medicaid insurance program for the poor.

The decisions by the policymaking arm of the nation's largest doctors organization, with 295,000 members, were made by voice vote.

The delegates were scheduled to adjourn the annual policymaking session today after taking action on a series of proposals on AIDS.

One proposal calls for mandatory testing of all prison inmates to see if they're infected with the virus that causes the deadly disease. Another recommendation calls on states to trace the sexual partners of all AIDS victims.

In an attempt to offset the nursing shortage, the AMA's governing board of trustees will develop pilot programs for training the technologists to help nurses care for patients.

TSTA officers attend meeting

District XVIII of the Texas State Teachers Association (TSTA) held a newsletter and leadership conference at the Willow Park Inn on June 25.

Annette Contas, TSTA communication specialist from Austin, conducted the workshop with representatives from Midland, Odessa, Big Spring, Lamesa, Pecos and Snyder.

Local officers and association representatives in attendance were Jim Rosson, Ollie Peek, Carole Haynes, Helen Mock and Judy Barkowsky.

The technologists would receive from two months to 18 months of training and work under the direction of nurses, handling such chores as changing bandages, making beds and dispensing some medications.

The American Nurses' Association strongly opposed the proposal, contending the answer to the nursing shortage is to raise salaries and improve working conditions, not create a new category of worker.

"I really am appalled that in the face of opposition from all of organized nursing that medicine has gone ahead with this decision to test the creation of a new category of care-giver," said Judith Ryan, executive director of the American Nurses' Association, which represents 188,000 nurses.

Ms. Ryan contended that the new technologists wouldn't have enough training and would duplicate the work of nursing assistants, licensed practical nurses and technical registered nurses.

AMA leaders lashed out at the nursing officials for failing to fill out their ranks and turning people away from the profession by working to require all nurses to have four-year college degrees.

"It's a bankrupt policy," declared Dr. William Hotchkiss, who completed his term as AMA president on Wednesday.

Prosecutors say papers destroyed in bribery probe

WASHINGTON (AP) — People implicated in the Pentagon bribery probe have destroyed documents on at least two occasions in the past two weeks, according to prosecutors who say making key information public would trigger a coverup by "major felons."

"In the short time since the execution of the search warrants became public (June 14), the government has already become aware of several incidents of destruction of documents related to this case," U.S. Attorney Henry Hudson, who is coordinating the probe, said in a court brief released Wednesday.

In an affidavit, Assistant U.S. Attorney Joseph Aronica said prosecutors have learned of two incidents of document destruction.

On Capitol Hill, members of Congress called on Defense Secretary Frank C. Carlucci to make a "dramatic move" such as halting new Pentagon contracts to win back public credibility in the wake of the bribery probe.

"We're fighting a credibility problem here and it seems as though tough action is required," said Rep. John Kasich, R-Ohio.

Hudson, in his court brief, discussed the possibility of further document destruction in arguing against release of sealed court documents.

"Revealing the precise contours of the government's intentions and current information may well encourage document destruction and other acts" which "would have the practical effect of putting major felons beyond the reach of justice," said Hudson, the U.S. attorney in Alexandria, Va.

Newsday Inc. is asking U.S. District Judge Edward Korman in Brooklyn, N.Y., to lift the seal on several search warrants and supporting affidavits in the probe: for Unisys Corp.'s plant in Great Neck, N.Y.; Charles Gardner, a defense consultant to Unisys and former Unisys vice president Dennis Mitchell, an employee at the Great Neck Unisys plant; and the Hazeltine Corp. in Greenlawn.

Newsday said the seals should be lifted because the investigation has been extensively reported in the media, but Hudson said previous news stories haven't disclosed significant portions of the material, "particularly the wiretap information."

Hudson also said disclosing the affidavit in support of a search warrant at Hazeltine would reveal the identity of a confidential source cooperating in the investigation.

Hudson did not provide any details on who destroyed what types of documents, how they were destroyed or how they might have been related to the probe of alleged bribes to Pentagon personnel in exchange for confidential information funneled to consultants and defense contractors.

In Washington, the Pentagon's top purchasing official, Robert B. Costello, testified before Congress and said he would talk with Carlucci today about a suggestion to halt Pentagon contracts.

Rep. Les Aspin, D-Wis., said Carlucci should order "absolutely no contracts signed for 60 days (or) six weeks" with companies involved in the criminal investigation.

"Carlucci could make a dramatic move," Aspin told Costello, the undersecretary of defense for acquisition policy.

"We're going to write some tough language into these contracts so that we can recoup some of this stuff and make sure that all contracts that are let from here on out," are legal, said Aspin.

Aspin noted that contractors and weapons involved in the investigation include McDonnell-Douglas and the F-A-18, the top-line Navy fighter.

New state laws effective Friday target AIDS disease

By The Associated Press

Rhode Island will tax rolling papers to discourage marijuana use under new laws effective Friday, while Georgia and Washington state will begin testing sex offenders for AIDS, and Colorado will require tests even before conviction. Washington state, Indiana, Idaho and Georgia are making it a felony for an AIDS carrier to knowingly transmit the disease.

In other legislation effective July 1, motorists will pay higher fuel taxes in Connecticut and New Jersey, Georgia will bar executions of murderers who are mentally retarded, Indiana, Mississippi and Georgia will impose regulation on sports agents, and many Kansas taxpayers will begin paying lower rates.

Georgia's new law requires AIDS tests of anyone convicted of crimes involving sex or drug abuse and, eventually, of all inmates in state prisons. Beginning Friday, an AIDS carrier who engages in AIDS-transmitting behavior in Georgia without informing his or her partner will be guilty of the felony of reckless conduct.

Washington state's law, which also extends anti-discrimination protection to persons infected with the AIDS virus, requires testing and counseling for those convicted of sex crimes, prostitution or intravenous drug use. Violent prison inmates could be subjected to AIDS tests against their will under the statute.

Persons who intentionally infect others with AIDS would face a 10-year prison sentence in Washington.

Colorado's AIDS-testing law applies to suspects in sex crimes even before the case has gone to trial. Results would be available "to any victim of the sexual offense who requests such disclosure," according to the law, but those victims would face fines or jail terms if they disclosed that information to unauthorized people.

New legislation in Indiana will require AIDS education for health care workers, teachers, public-school students and marriage-license applicants.

Each school corporation in Indiana will be required to have a community advisory committee to screen AIDS education materials.

Indiana also is making it a crime to knowingly donate AIDS-contaminated blood or to fail to notify state officials when a person tests positive for the AIDS virus. The maximum penalty for donating contaminated blood would be eight years in prison, or 50 years if someone becomes infected by the donated blood.

The law also allows Indiana judges to order the temporary detention of AIDS victims who persist in high-risk behavior.

Starting Friday, applicants for marriage licenses in Idaho will have to state they have read a pamphlet on AIDS provided by the county clerk. Another law provides for testing for the AIDS virus in organs and fluids to be transplanted and of people donating organs or fluids for transplant, and makes it a felony to knowingly transmit the disease to another.

Georgia is also creating a new option for juries in murder cases. They will be allowed to find a defendant "guilty but mentally retarded." Such convicts would not be subject to capital punishment.

Indiana, effective Friday, will require agents who recruit athletes with remaining amateur eligibility to notify schools 10 days in advance of signing. An agent who fails to disclose recruitment and then signs an athlete could face up to four years in prison and a $10,000 fine.

Mississippi will require sports agents to register with the state, and has established guidelines for contracts and business relationships between college athletes and agents.

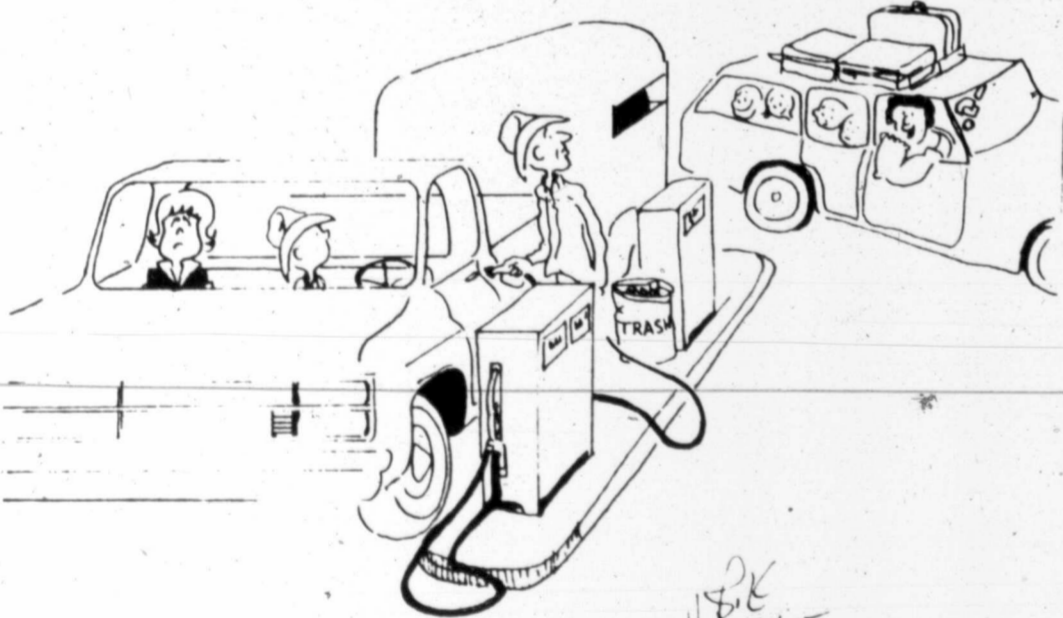

Georgia's Athlete Agent Regulatory Commission, also intended to curb abuses by athletic agents, will come into existence Friday.

Defending champ Cash's out

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) - As he watched the chances of retaining his title zip by, Pat Cash glanced high up into the grandstands where, 12 months ago, he clamored to embrace his family in an outburst of happiness.

This time, it was too late for inspiration.

The 23-year-old Australian, whose aggressive serve-and-volley game carried him like a whirlwind to last year's Wimbledon title, was himself blown away on Wednesday by Boris Becker, the man who won the title in 1985 and 1986 and is hungry to get it back.

"It's a matter of winning the big points and I couldn't do that," Cash said after his 6-4, 6-3, 6-4 defeat on Centre Court. "When he had the chances, he got them."

Today's action focused on the women's semifinals, with Martina Navratilova pursuing her bid for a record ninth Wimbledon singles title and Steffi Graf trying to succeed where Mats Wilander failed, and capture the third leg of the Grand Slam.

Both matches were repeats of last year's semifinals, with Navratilova, the defending champion, up first against Chris Evert for 78th time in her career, and Graf taking on Pam Shriver afterwards.

Navratilova almost didn't get there, rallying from 4-2 deficits in the second and third sets of a delayed fourth-round match Wednesday to beat unseeded Roz Fairbank.

"I was playing on instinct and guts," Navratilova said after the 4-6, 6-4, 7-5 victory that put in the last four for the 11th straight year.

In Friday's men's semifinals,

Becker, a 20-year-old West German, will play Ivan Lendl in a repeat of the 1986 final.

Lendl, the world's top-ranked player but still searching for a first Wimbledon title, for once had a straightforward victory.

After a couple of gruelling five-setters, the 28-year-old Czechoslovak downed American Tim Mayotte 7-6, 7-6, 6-3.

The other semifinal will be between Stefan Edberg of Sweden and Miloslav Mecir. Edberg ousted unseeded Patrick Kuhen of West Germany 6-3, 4-6, 6-1, 7-6, while Mecir dashed the Grand Slam hopes of another Swede, Wilander, 6-3, 6-1, 6-3.

After being outscored for two sets, Cash got back into the match when he broke Becker for a 4-2 lead in the third. But he couldn't hold on and immediately dropped his own serve.

Then came the crunch.

With his title slipping away on a muggy afternoon on Centre Court, Cash saved three break points in the ninth game as his fans cheered.

On the fourth, he sent a forehand deep into the backcourt and positioned himself perfectly at the net to cut off the return.

But the ball had flicked the net on its way and gave Becker just enough time to pound a backhand down the line past the lunging Cash.

SMU expected to hire basketball coach today

DALLAS (AP) - Assistant Notre Dame coach John Shumate will be named as new head basketball coach at Southern Methodist University, two Dallas newspapers reported today.

Both the Dallas Morning News and Dallas Times Herald reported that Shumate will be named as replacement for Dave Bliss, who left the team May 18 to become the head coach of the University of New Mexico.

The other finalist was Stu Starner, head coach at Montana State.

The Morning News reported that Starner said he will not be coming to Dallas for the news conference where the new coach will be introduced.

The Times Herald reported that Shumate met Wednesday with SMU Athletic Director Doug Single, SMU President A. Kenneth Pye and a committee of students, players and faculty members.

Starner was interviewed Tuesday.

Ed Wisneski, sports information director for SMU, said Wednesday the selection would be announced today. "We've had 175 applicants, a good many of which were Division I head coaches," Wisneski said.

Shumate is in his second stint as an assistant coach with Notre Dame.

He became an assistant for Notre Dame coach Digger Phelps as a volunteer for the first time during the 1981-82 season. After two seasons at that job, he became the head coach at Grand Canyon College in Arizona, where he posted a 58-33 record in three years.

He joined the Irish again in 1986-87.

"I saw his team play at Grand Canyon and he is a good young coach," said Dallas Mavericks coach John MacLeod.

MacLeod, who coached Shumate when he was a player in the NBA, added, "He loves the game and he loves to teach."

Starner was an assistant at Minnesota and Montana State before becoming Montana State's head coach in 1983. His record in five seasons there is 79-68.

Tyson calls it quits

NEW YORK (AP) - Mike Tyson has had enough.

Tyson, who turned 22 today, apparently has turned his back on boxing. After his 91-second knockout of Michael Spinks in their heavyweight championship bout Monday night, Tyson warned that it might be his last fight.

He complained about the treatment he and his family received from the media before the fight.

On Wednesday, saying he is "burned out," told the New York

Post, "You can't never say never. But as of today, I am retired."

Considering his youth and the riches boxing has brought him - including more than $20 million for his quick knockout of Spinks - it's difficult to believe Tyson won't be back in the ring.

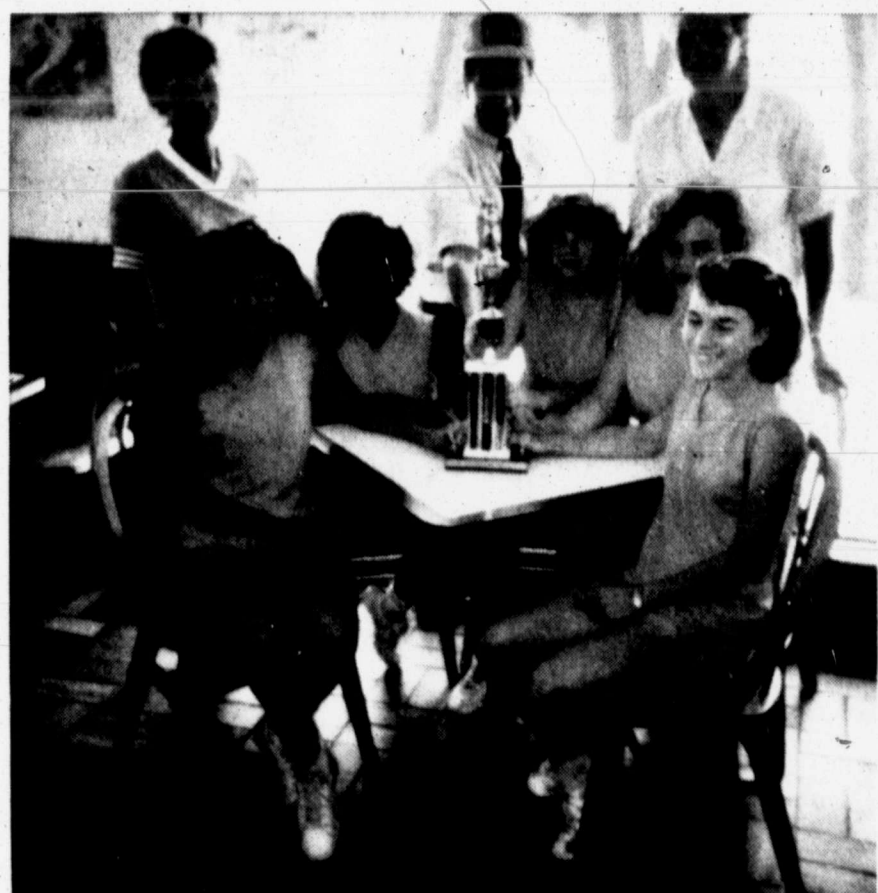

"I'm willing to sacrifice, to give up boxing to save my family..." he said. "I just feel it's the best thing to do."

During a news conference after the Spinks fight, Tyson, who married actress Robin Givens on Feb. 7, blasted reporters for their treatment of himself and his wife. He cursed out many members of the media, saying they tried to "disgrace my family."

"I'm inexperienced in handling things like that. I've put my wife through a lot of stress."

To avoid future troubles, Tyson insists his boxing career is over.

Hough hurls Texas to another shutout

SEATTLE (AP) - Texas Rangers' pitcher Charlie Hough and his Seattle Mariners counterpart Mike Moore staged a classic pitchers' duel, and when it was over, the durable veteran had outlasted his younger opponent.

The 40-year-old Hough, 8-7, on Wednesday night pitched the longest outing by a major league pitcher in 1988 to overshadow the brilliant four-hit effort of Moore and lift the Rangers to a 1-0 victory, their second straight shutout over the Mariners.

"That's a tremendous baseball game for baseball fans," Texas manager Bobby Valentine said. "That wasn't a lack of hitting, it was outstanding pitching."

Hough endured 11 innings, surpassing the season's previous major league best of 10 2-3 innings by Chicago Cubs ace Greg Maddux.

"I struggled with my knuckleball early in the game, but threw some better ones later in the game," said Hough, who lasted through the ninth inning for the sixth consecutive game.

"When you pitch that many innings, they're going to get some hits."

Hough struck out eight and walked three en route to his first shutout. He left in favor of reliever Mitch Williams after yielding a lead-off single to Glenn Wilson in the 12th inning.

Williams retired the next three batters to earn his 11th save.

Moore held the Rangers hitless for 4 1-3 innings before Larry Parrish's single. He struck out five and walked one in nine full innings.

After the game, the 28-year-old Moore received praise from his adversary.

"He threw as good as I've ever seen him throw over nine innings," said Hough. "I wish he would have just quit though and made it easier for me."

Seattle pitching coach Billy Connors was surprised at Hough's success with the knuckleball inside the Kingdome.

"He's the first knuckleballer who's thrown well in this park and had success," Connors said.

Hough responded that the Kingdome is a great ballpark for knuckleball pitchers.

"I like throwing indoors," said Hough, who posted his third straight Kingdome victory. "You don't have to worry about the wind inside. The wind usually blows my knuckler all over."

Barbaro Garbey put an end to the scoring drought in the 12th inning with a sacrifice fly off reliever Rod Scurry that scored Scott Fletcher with the game-winning run.

"I was just trying to hit the ball out of the infield," said Garbey. "He (Scurry) gave me a fastball away and I got ahead of it."

Fletcher led off the 12th inning with a single off Mike Schooler, advanced to third base on Pete O'Brien's one-out single and scored on Garbey's sacrifice fly to right field.

Dodgers 2, Astros 0

Los Angeles' Orel Hershiser pitched a two-hitter for his fifth consecutive victory, outdueling Houston's Nolan Ryan.

For Hershiser, 12-3, it was the fifth two-hitter of his major league career. The right-hander walked one, struck out six and allowed only a single to rookie Craig Biggio in the bottom of the third and an infield hit by Billy Hatcher in the fifth.

Ryan lost his fourth straight decision despite allowing only four hits and striking out 10 batters.

Woman: victory in supreme court 'worth it'

EULESS, Texas (AP) — Clara Watson says her lawsuit charging she was passed over for promotion because she was black cost her some friends at the bank where she worked, but a victory in the U.S. Supreme Court was worth the struggle.

"I'd do it again and again and again if I had to," Ms. Watson said Wednesday, after the court ruled 8-0 that Watson, a former bank employee in Fort Worth, was improperly barred from using statistics in trying to prove she was discriminated against in 1980 and 1981.

Ms. Watson, who uses a wheelchair because of her illness, said filing the lawsuit cost her "dear friends" at work and she and her husband were divorced after he refused to support her suit.

"They thought I shouldn't make waves, that I should let it be," Ms. Watson said of her co-workers. She and her lawyer talked about the case Wednesday at Harris Methodist-HEB Hospital, where she has been treated for kidney trouble.

The justices expanded the way employees can use statistical evidence to prove bias, making it easier for workers to prove their bosses are guilty of illegal discrimination.

Ms. Watson's lawsuit now will return to a federal trial court.

"It is really an important, landmark case in the area of civil rights and discrimination," said Art Brender, Ms. Watson's lawyer, "because it says that you don't have to prove intent to discriminate — that discrimination can be based on stereotypical views that people make without actually proving intent."

Unable to find work at other Fort Worth banks, Ms. Watson took a job cleaning cabins for American Airlines. She has been unable to work since last year, when she began dialysis for kidney failure.

Although it involves a complicated aspect of federal anti-bias law, the decision carries a significant, direct impact on numerous lawsuits filed by women and members of racial minority members who say they have been treated unfairly.

After seven years' at Fort Worth Bank & Trust, four times in 1980 and 1981 Ms. Watson applied for supervisory jobs and was passed over in favor of people with as little as six months experience, Brender said.

Ms. Watson started at the bank in 1973. In 1976 she was promoted to a drive-in teller and in 1980 was promoted to be a commercial teller in the bank's main lobby.

Ms. Watson sued in 1981, saying in part that the bank discriminated against all blacks in its hiring practices.

The part of the Civil Rights Act of 1964 known as Title VII bars on-the-job discrimination based on race, gender and other factors.

The Supreme Court ruled in a key 1971 decision that Title VII violations can be proved by using statistics to show that some practice or policy, although not intended to be discriminatory, unduly hurts minorities or women.

The Court in 1971 said a company's use in hiring of written aptitude tests and its requiring high school diplomas, although intended to be racially neutral, was illegal because the practices "disproportionately excluded blacks from employment."

The court in that case said the tests and diploma requirement had no "demonstrable relationship to successful performance on the jobs" for which the tests were used.

In most cases, such "disparate impact" is far easier to prove than showing "disparate treatment" or intentional discrimination.

But the 1971 ruling dealt with so-called objective practices such as examinations and diploma requirements.

Ms. Watson's lawsuit challenged her employer's subjective decision-making regarding promotions.

The 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals ruled that people who challenge an employer's subjective practices must prove "disparate treatment," not "disparate impact" — and so Ms. Watson could not rely on statistics to prove her case.

Wednesday, the justices said the 5th Circuit court was wrong.

"(Now) it's sufficient to show that minorities or women were hired less frequently than were, say, white males," Brender said. "The employer has to come in and justify their selection procedures."

Ms. Watson's lawsuit now will return to a federal trial court, where Brender said they would seek undetermined amount of lost pay. Ms. Watson resigned from Fort Worth Bank & Trust, now known as MBank, after she filed the suit in 1981.

Her lawsuit said that the same white supervisors who hire only 3.5 percent of black applicants while hiring 14.8 percent of white applicants rate blacks an average of 10 points lower than whites on annual salary evaluations. They also promote blacks from one salary grade to another slower than they promote whites, the lawsuit said.

In the court's main opinion Wednesday, Justice Sandra Day O'Connor said the 1971 decision allowing the use of statistics in attacking illegal employment policies would be rendered ineffective if statistics could not be used to challenge subjective management decisions as well.

The court's 1971 decision came in a case called Griggs vs. Duke Power Co.

Justice Anthony M. Kennedy didn't participate in the decision.

Committee acts on funding for habitat

WASHINGTON (AP) — Conservationists trying to preserve a ribbon of thorny subtropical forest along the Rio Grande, habitat for hundreds of species of birds and the endangered jaguarundi and ocelot, have begun their fourth year of wrangling for land acquisition funds on Capitol Hill.

A House panel voted recently to spend $12 million or buying up land in far South Texas, but backers of the wildlife corridor between Falcon Dam and the mouth of the Rio Grande may have to settle for less by the time the bill winds its way through Congress, officials say.

Bob Schumacher, refuge manager for the Lower Rio Grande Valley National Wildlife Refuge, says the area along the river encompasses four types of ecosystems, making it the richest and most diverse spot in the continental United States for plants, animals and birds.

The land along the river includes Chihuahuan desert to the west, the coast to the east, a temperate influence to the north and a tropical influence to the south. The result is thorny brush lands where the mesquite trees and the Texas ebony are laced with Spanish moss and where hundreds of birds find their northernmost range.

As many 445 species of birds could theoretically be found in the Lower Rio Grande Valley of Texas, Schumacher said, along with dozens of animals and other fowl.

"There's a long list (of species) that we pay special attention to and we're trying to take care of that long list by managing their ecosystem," he said.

"It's very important because our area in South Texas in the beginning was a paradise, with all kinds of species of birds and waterfowl and the javelina," said Rep. Kika de la Garza, a Mission Democrat who has been leading efforts in Congress to obtain funds for the land purchases. "But just recently, you look around and realize — 'Where has all the cover land gone?'"

The U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service has proposed 107,500 acres be purchased for the wildlife corridor, but conservationists believe that isn't enough.

Cyndy Chapman of the Frontera Audubon Society says a total of 250,000 acres is the minimum needed to preserve the Valley's rich ecosystem. That total would include the federal acreage, two existing national wildlife refuges — the Santa Ana and the Laguna Atascosa, and other parks and privately held acres set aside for conservation.

What has been acquired already is only about one-third of what the Audubon Society and other conservation groups estimate is needed, she said.

Of the 107,500 acres authorized for purchase by the government, Schumacher said 27,283 acres had been acquired as of June 22.

Congress appropriated $8 million toward the project this fiscal year, and $6 million in both 1986 and 1987 fiscal years.

The House Appropriations Committee decided recently to set aside $12 million for the fiscal year that begins Oct. 1, and the full House was scheduled to take up the matter Thursday.

"I believe that Congress should take fast action to protect this unique ecological area which is home to 56 types of birds and animals facing possible extinction," said Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, a Valley native and chairman of the Senate Finance Committee.

"I think it is important that Congress move quickly to expand this refuge while land prices are a good buy for the taxpayers."

This is a unique ecological area which includes the only remaining natural habitat with a subtropical climate in the United States," Bentsen said.

But officials concede it is doubtful the entire $12 million will be approved by Congress this year, with de la Garza saying it may be pared back.

Schumacher said dozens of birds and animals will have no where else in the United States to go if their habitat in the Valley is imperiled.

"If these creatures are going to be here in perpetuity we need to do something," he said.

The ocelot and jaguarundi, two endangered species of cat, need a safe corridor to travel under cover of brush.

Kirby offers $2 billion plan

AUSTIN (AP) — State funding of public schools would rise $2 billion a year and state money would be used to build new schools under a proposal unveiled by Education Commissioner W.N. Kirby.

The plan was offered to State Board of Education members on Wednesday as a possible response to a court ruling last year that the state's $11 billion-a-year public school finance system is unconstitutional.

Although Kirby acknowledged that his "blue sky" proposal probably requires more money than the Legislature would be willing to spend, he said the plan "would go a long way toward meeting the requirements of the court order" by State District Judge Harley Clark.

Clark ruled the state's finance system unconstitutional because it denies equal access to funds by all districts.

Asked by board chairman Jon

Brumley whether it would get the state out of court, the commissioner said: "If we adopted this, the lawsuit would have to start all over again ... and the findings would be quite different."

The 4-year-old lawsuit was brought by a group of poor school districts, which charged that the state's finance system favors wealthy districts and discriminates against their students. Clark gave the state until the fall of 1989 to overhaul the system.

The state has appealed Clark's decision to the 3rd Texas Court of Appeals, and the matter is expected to wind up before the Texas Supreme Court.

Brumley did not immediately endorse the 40 percent increase in state education aid suggested by Kirby. But he said there is little doubt that Clark's order will require "a lot of money" from the state treasury.

The plan drafted by Kirby and his staff calls for:

— State funding of new schools and other construction beginning with the 1989-90 school year. More than $200 million a year would be provided by the state, which now pays nothing toward the capital improvements made by local school districts.

— A one-time $100 million building program that would aid poor school districts in serious need of new classrooms and other facilities. The money would be distributed during the 1989-90 school year, using a priority list of projects across the state.

— An increase in the basic grant for public school students, from the current $1,350 per pupil to $1,720 in 1989-90, and $1,796 the following year. Kirby and his staff cited a state study indicating that amount is needed to guarantee an adequate educational program in every school district in the state.

— A new incentive program that provides bonus state funding for school districts whose students improve their test scores over the previous year.

Legislative leaders were reluctant to comment on the proposal: Glenn Smith, spokesman for Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby, said Hobby had not seen the plan and would not comment on it until he has.

Conference brings discord to light

MOSCOW (AP) — The Communist Party's first conference in 47 years, though far from the wide-open battles of Western conventions, is exposing discord rarely seen since the turbulent decade after the Bolshevik Revolution.

For two nights in a row, Soviet television viewers have seen members of their nation's only political party disagree with one another and with Mikhail S. Gorbachev.

Only selected segments of the conference are being shown on television and foreign and most Soviet reporters are barred from the conference hall.

But accounts in the state-run media and comments from delegates make clear this is not a routine Kremlin gathering of tame, stone-faced delegating and voting in unison.

The squabbles and splits over everything from the economy and ethnic issues to the press and politics signal the kind of break with vestiges of the Stalinist past that Gorbachev advocated in his keynote address Tuesday.

In the early 1920s, internal party battles were fierce and obvious. But Josef Stalin took the fighting behind tightly shut doors, then eliminated it in a gruesome wave of show trials and executions.

When Nikita S. Khrushchev denounced Stalin in 1956, he did so in a "secret speech" that still has not been published in the Soviet Union.

Even the new Soviet openness has not fully penetrated the infighting in the party leadership. In November, Boris N. Yeltsin was fired from his job as Moscow party chief for attacking the slow pace of reform.

His speech remains unpublished.

Gorbachev made it clear Tuesday that his drive for "glasnost," or openness, should not become weighted in favor of liberals.

Professional singer to entertain for 4th

A professional singer, Donna Jo Barnes, will be part of the musical entertainment provided free of charge next Monday during the final day of Snyder's three-day July 4th celebration in Towle Park.

She will be singing throughout the day on Monday. The stage for musical entertainment will be set up at the Cottonwood tree area across from the National Guard Armory.

July 4th events will begin here Saturday and continue both Sunday and Monday.

Barnes' professional career to date has included serving as the opening act for such singers as Jani Fricki, Reba McEntire, Jimmy Dean and the Kendalls.

Her musical range includes hits from the 60s, country-western and Broadway show tunes.

After her appearance here, she is slated to perform in Atlantic City, where she will be the opening act for the Del Vikings. She is scheduled to go on a nationwide tour with them, the Drifters and the Shirelles in November.

She is associated with Sing America Studios.

Break-in noted at Concrete Inc.

Police are investigating a burglary, discovered Wednesday morning, of Concrete Inc. at 2300 Ave. Q in which small bills and change were stolen.

An officer said entry to the building was gained by breaking out a southside window.

In another case, a 33-year-old man was reported identified as a suspect Wednesday night in a Sunday criminal mischief incident.

The man is believed to have damaged a car and an apartment door in the 4400 Block of Ave. U, and a detective said the case would be forwarded to the county attorney for consideration.

Perot's firm given victory

DALLAS (AP) — A General Services Administration contract appeals board has turned down a request to temporarily suspend a $500,000, no-bid consulting contract awarded by the Postal Service to Perot Systems Corp., a Washington-based management company owned by Dallas billionaire H. Ross Perot.

The review panel's decision Wednesday handed Perot a partial victory in his defense of a consulting contract that had been contested by his former company, Electronic Data Systems Corp. Administrative Law Judge Leonard J. Suchanek signed a ruling ruling by the three-member contract appeals panel that denied a request to temporarily suspend the contract.

"It remains that there is insufficient evidence in the record as it stands at this time to suspend this procurement," Suchanek wrote.

The protests over the no-bid contract, which has prompted a separate congressional investigation, were the latest turn in a bitter relationship among Perot, EDS and its General Motors Corp. parent, to whom Perot sold the company in 1984.

Perot, reported to be traveling and unavailable for comment Wednesday, earlier had accused EDS and GM of trying to "crush" his fledgling company.

The contract calls for Perot Systems to spend 90 days finding ways of streamlining the Postal Service on an expense-only basis up to $500,000.

Oil wastes decision reported

tain hazardous wastes with names 14 syllables long," said Mike Matz, Alaska representative of the Sierra Club. "Clearly the EPA once again is favoring big oil and big business and is shunning its responsibility to protect the public health and the environment."

Congress in 1976 gave EPA authority to decide what waste needs to be covered by the strict handling and disposal regulations that apply to hazardous wastes, but it required a study before decisions could be made about oil and gas production wastes.

EPA in December completed the study and then allowed public comment before drafting its recommendations. The final report was to be presented to Congress today.

EPA estimated in its report that oil and gas production would be cut up to 12 percent if drilling wastes were treated as hazardous. The cost of the program would have been at least $1 billion and could have ranged up to $6 billion, Porter said.

The American Petroleum Institute had put those costs much higher — up to $37 billion the first year and $7 billion annually thereafter.

EPA said—stripper wells — those that generally produce less than 10 barrels a day — could not have easily absorbed the additional costs for hazardous waste management.

Oil-state lawmakers such as Rep. Jim Chapman, D-Texas, opposed any new treatment requirements. He said compliance would have been virtually impossible from an economic standpoint and in many instances unnecessary.

Laws dealing with hazardous wastes are "not very flexible and just didn't seem to fit this industry very well," Porter said.

TDC overrun will be beneficial

11 meeting of the TDC board with actual construction to begin by the last week in July.

Regarding the $18.5 construction cost, Fickel said he doubted it could be cut any further.

"We've cut out of it all that can be cut," he commented Thursday from his Huntsville office.

The apparent low bidder for the work is Argee Corp. of Denver. When bids were opened June 9, the company's estimate for completing the work was $14,449,500.

Disturbance prompts arrest

A 28-year-old man was arrested for Class C assault following a 7:54 a.m. Wednesday disturbance call to a home in the 2000 Block of Ave. K.

Police were told that the man had assaulted another individual at the residence.

Two boys, 13 and 16 years of age, were arrested for being minors in possession of alcohol at 3:55 p.m. Wednesday at the old city landfill.

Drought costs many but a lucky few profit

WASHINGTON (AP) — Prices of grain and soybeans jumped sharply this month, a bittersweet reminder that drought can deal a stacked deck to farmers — those whose crops survive can rake in their winnings as others leave the game broke.

Overall, prices farmers got for raw products rose 3.7 percent from May, a jump that carried the overall index up 6.9 percent from a year ago, the Agriculture Department said Wednesday.

Higher prices for soybeans, corn and wheat contributed most to the June increase, the department's Agricultural Statistics Board said. Lower prices for cattle and peaches partly offset the rise in other commodities.

"Most grain prices moved up sharply in June, reflecting the widespread drought," the report said. "The average soybean price was at the highest level since May of 1977 and the fifth highest on record. Corn and wheat also moved up sharply to the highest levels since August of 1985 and May of 1984, respectively."

Consumer food prices are expected to rise 3 percent to 5 percent this year, compared with a 4.2 percent average increase in 1987. Before the drought took hold, USDA was predicting a 1988 food price hike of 2 percent to 4 percent.

No forecast has been made by the department for 1989.

According to the preliminary June figures, based mostly on mid-month averages, the index for crop prices was up 10 percent from May and averaged 18 percent more than a year ago.

The livestock price index dropped 2.6 percent from May and averaged 1.3 percent below the year-ago level.

In a related action, Agriculture Secretary Richard E. Lyng announced that Mexico will be able to buy $40 million worth of U.S. meat under a special credit arrangement designed to help drought-stricken American livestock producers.

It was the second action this week by Lyng to help bolster livestock market prices. On Monday he announced $50 million has been authorized to buy an estimated 45 million pounds of frozen bulk ground beef for donation to school lunchrooms in the fall.

As a commodity group, prices of feed grains and hay — in great demand for livestock in the stricken drought areas — rose 20 percent from May to June, averaging 40 percent above a year ago.

Prices of food grains, mostly wheat but also including rice, rose 14 percent during the month and averaged 14 percent higher than in May. The June index was up 49 percent from June 1987. All of the May-June rise was due to higher wheat prices, while rice prices declined during the month.

The index of prices for oil-bearing crops, which mostly involves soybeans, jumped 19 percent from its May average and was 48 percent more than in June 1987. Preliminary figures showed soybean prices averaged $8.56 per bushel, up $1.57 from May.

Lower prices for cattle and calves were mostly responsible for the June decline in the livestock price index. Prices of beef cattle, generally, fell to an average of $65.20 per hundredweight in June from $69.30 in May. Calf prices dropped $6.70 to $86.70 in June.

Many farmers and ranchers have been forced by drought to send cattle to slaughter or to feedlots as pastures and ranges continue to burn up. That has put extra animals on the market and depressed prices.

The price index for poultry and eggs, collectively, rose 7.5 percent from May to June and averaged 11 percent more than a year ago.

Jim Bakker joins four others seeking to buy the PTL Club

COLUMBIA, S.C. (AP) — Jim Bakker presented a $100 million offer for the failing PTL ministry during a bankruptcy court session in which his wife, Tammy, sobbed when the judge ordered the sale of the Bakkers' former parsonage.

PTL trustee M.C. Benton, who said he has received four offers, one for $200 million, to buy the ministry, promised that the former television evangelist's proposal "will be considered along with everyone else" if he can back it up.

"We are ready to go forward with earnest negotiations," Bakker told reporters Tuesday outside U.S. Bankruptcy Court. But he refused to identify who provided him with the $100 million line of credit to buy PTL.

The appearance of the Bakkers sensationalized an otherwise routine, 2½-hour bankruptcy hearing. They received a standing ovation when they entered the courtroom, Tammy wearing a linen dress studded with pearls and Bakker with a crisp, double-breasted gray suit.

"Look how pretty she looks," whispered Bee Huffman, who said she supports the return of the Bakkers to PTL.

Judge Rufus Reynolds gave initial approval to PTL's reorganization plan, which calls for sale of the 2,300-acre Heritage USA religious theme park in Fort Mill. He ordered the plan sent to creditors for a vote next month.

Mrs. Bakker broke into tears and sobbed for several minutes after Reynolds initially agreed to sell the PTL parsonage where the Bakkers lived while running the ministry.

Reynolds later rescinded the order and said PTL could auction the mansion to one of two proposed bidders — neither of them connected to the Bakkers — on Tuesday.

Bakker, with the letter of credit in his uplifted hand, said he was "committed to the restoration (of PTL) as a Christian retreat center, to pay all creditors 100 percent on the dollar, to restore all lifetime partner benefits ... everything restored and all the people back happy and caring and ministering one to another."

Benton said he hopes to decide which proposed buyer to present to the court by mid-August. Informed of the $200 million offer from a group Benton would not identify, Bakker told reporters he doubted its legitimacy.

"So far all we see is smoke," he said, adding that his lender was "prepared to go higher" than his $100 million offer.

Asked why he was not willing to provide more details of his financial backing, Bakker's attorney, James Toms, interjected, "That's all we're prepared to say at this time."

The reorganization plan outlines the sale of Heritage USA to pay creditors and the formation of a debt-free, non-profit ministry.
