Downed Iranian airliner...

Reparations sentiment grows

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Pentagon says the Iranian airliner shot down by a Navy ship in the Persian Gulf was broadcasting on a military channel, although officials privately acknowledge the jet was in commercial airspace at the time of the incident.

The Reagan administration said Tuesday that Capt. Will C. Rogers III of the cruiser USS Vincennes thought his ship was under attack in part because of conflicting identification signals sent from the Iran Air A-300 Airbus.

Pentagon spokesman Daniel Howard said some of the signals were on a military frequency identified with F-14 fighter jets.

But while the administration was defending the decision to fire on the airliner, sentiment grew for U.S. reparations to relatives of the disaster's victims and officials were being buffeted by calls for a speedy gesture of conciliation on the world stage.

On the record, administration officials said there had been no discussion of awarding reparations. But sources who spoke only on condition of anonymity said the idea was under active consideration at the State Department, the Pentagon and the White House.

Reagan did not rule out such reparations, saying it "is a matter that has to be discussed" once a U.S. investigative team dispatched to the gulf completes its work.

Iran has accused the United States of intentionally shooting down the wide-bodied jet which was flying over the Persian Gulf with 290 people aboard. President Reagan and other U.S. officials have described it as a tragic accident.

One congressional source said administration officials are recommending that Reagan quickly make an offer of compensation on a humanitarian basis, in part to differentiate the United States from the Soviet Union, which rebuffed all requests for reparations following its 1983 destruction of a Korean Air Lines jetliner with 269 people aboard.

Some U.S. officials, however, noted that the Iranian government has used the incident as an anti-American rallying point and said it might be reluctant to cooperate with any U.S. humanitarian effort.

In other developments: — A man purporting to speak for Islamic Jihad claimed the pro-Iranian faction would kill one of two American hostages it was holding in Lebanon.

New manager, loan officer report to Snyder PCA office

A new branch office manager and a new loan officer are now in place at Snyder's Texas Production Credit Association, formerly Sweetwater Production Credit.

Forrest Lloyd, an assistant vice president with Texas PCA, is the new branch office manager. Joining him as a loan officer is David Althof.

Lloyd had been associated with Sweetwater Production Credit for 5½ years.

He is relocating to Snyder from Stanton, where he was the branch office manager.

Previously, he was in Sweetwater PCA's central office for 2½ years and served an earlier stint in the Stanton office before returning there as manager.

He grew up on a farm and ranch near Dalhart.

Lloyd graduated from Texas Tech University in 1982 with a degree in agricultural economics.

He and his wife, Cindy, have one son, Chase, age 3.

David Althof, Texas PCA's new loan officer, is a native of Roscoe who has been associated with other state PCA's since 1981.

He has previously been associated with Canadian PCA, from 1981-84, and at San Angelo's Texas PCA from 1985-87, serving as a loan officer at each place.

He was most recently a part-time staffer at Sweetwater, where he was also engaged in farming and ranching in Nolan County. He now lives in Roscoe, where he graduated high school in 1977.

He holds a business degree from Texas Tech, graduating in 1981.

He and his wife, Debbie, have one son, Michael, age 14 months.

The Snyder branch office of Sweetwater PCA merged with the San Angelo-based Texas Production Credit Association effective Jan. 1, 1988.

At that time, Sweetwater and Marfa PCA joined with Texas PCA.

There are currently 23 PCAs in Texas making short and intermediate-term agricultural loans.

The Farm Credit Bank of Texas, 44 Federal Land Bank Associations and 23 Production Credit Associations are part of the nationwide Farm Credit System which has more than $55 billion in loans outstanding to U.S. farmers and ranchers.

Locally, Lloyd and Althof replace former branch manager Charlie Bell and loan officer Hollis Mize.

The feller on Deep Creek says, "Your biggest mistake is your best teacher."

The best or worst thing about the English language, depending on your point of view, is that it constantly changes.

During our public school years, a debate raged about whether to include "ain't" in the modern dictionary. Now a similar controversy is brewing over the word "duh."

Dictionary editors are divided, and if that famous word of hesitation is included, a flood of protest letters are expected.

Once was a time when any English teacher worth her funk and Wagnalls would have gasped at the use of duh in a sentence by one of her students.

In our region of the country, duh was one of those words that bought precious time while one stalled to figure out the answer to a teacher's question. In California, the word can be used to describe someone intellectually below par.

Lexicographers whose job is to compile dictionaries get most complaints, not from English teachers, but from people upset that their hometown isn't listed.

Special interest groups such as the Flat Earth Society complain that the dictionary definition of the earth is wrong. Some occupational groups also take issue with their job definition.

English teachers rank third in dictionary complaints. In the case of "ain't," teachers tried unsuccessfully to prohibit its incorrect use. Now most educators had rather have a dictionary with all the words than to pretend they're not used.

That liberal attitude among grammarians ain't gonna cause no frustration or concern between the boys down at the coffee shop.

For many proper language is a tainted problem—it taint yours and it taint mine.

Painting episode has 3 suspects

County deputies have identified three juvenile boys as suspects in the weekend spray-painting of a car on North Ave. M and in a similar incident that was reported Tuesday at Nalco Chemical at Dorsey Ave. and Ave. M.

A deputy said the boys, 10, 12 and 13 years of age, were reported to juvenile authorities. The names of the boys are being withheld to protect their identities. The boys are being held at the county jail.

Hijackers sentenced to hang

ADIYALA, Pakistan (AP) — Five Palestinians were convicted today and sentenced to hang for the bloody 1986 hijacking of a New York-bound Pan Am jumbo jet in which 21 people were killed.

Their trial by a special one-judge tribunal in a makeshift courtroom in a prison in this town 30 miles west of Islamabad began in September.

The plane, which originated in Bombay, India, was seized on the ground on Sept. 5, 1986 in Pakistan's southern port city of Karachi and sat on the tarmac for 17 hours before the ordeal ended in a fusillade.

In addition to those killed, nearly 200 of the 400 passengers were wounded.

"We don't care about the sentence," said Mohammad Hafiz al-Turk, the suspected mastermind. "We care only about the millions of Arabs and Islamic countries."

Al-Turk, a Libyan arrested in Islamabad less than a week after the hijacking, was convicted of conspiracy. He was the only one of the five not to board the Pan Am jet.

The other four — Mohammad Ahmed al Munawar, Khalil Husain Rahayyal and Saeed Abdul Rahim, all of Lebanon, and Abdul Latif Sairfani, of Syria — were convicted of hijacking and murder. The four were found guilty of killing 10 people.

All five will appeal their sentences. In an interview after the sentencing, al-Turk, the self-appointed spokesman for the group, said if free he and his comrades "would hijack another plane."

In a statement issued in January, the five said their aim "was to fly the plane towards some sensitive, strategic center of the Zionist enemy and to blow it there, with us inside."

Witnesses told the court that four gunmen dressed as airport security guards drove a small van to the Pan Am jet. They said the four charged the plane and demanded it fly to Cyprus to pick up Palestinian comrades. Early in the hijacking, the three-man cockpit crew escaped through an emergency hatch.

After shooting an Indian-American passenger, the tension reached a climax around 9:30 p.m. when an onboard generator ran out of fuel, plunging the cabin into darkness.

Fearing an attack, the gunmen began spraying the inside with bullets as Pakistani security forces stormed the plane.

Throughout their trial, the five blamed the Pakistani commandos for the killings.

But Judge Syed Zafar Babar discounted that argument. Still, he found them guilty of just 11 deaths, saying there was insufficient evidence to convict them of more.

Pan Am was targeted because of its American origins. "By using Pan American it was a strike against America," Al-Turk has said.

But he explained "We are friends to American people. We are against the administration and the crazy man in New York or Washington, wherever he is." He was referring to President Reagan.

Telephone Can Be Dangerous Instrument in Lightning Storm

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Having just read your article on lightning, I commend you for your efforts, but I must correct one of your "facts."

You said, "Do not use the phone during lightning storms." Abby, there is no possibility of being killed by telephone-line electrical surges caused by nearby lightning strikes, because the size of the wires in the telephone prohibits transmission of high voltage. The wires would "blow," much like a light bulb filament when a light bulb burns out.

However, the rest of your information is very good. You are right: Lightning can strike twice in the same place. In fact, lightning must strike the same place at least eight times before it can be seen by the human eye. Electricity is that fast!

WASHINGTON READER

DEAR READER: Read on, please:

DEAR ABBY: Your column on how to avoid the dangers of lightning ran in the Syracuse (N.Y.) Post-Standard on Saturday, May 21. Thank God, I read it carefully that morning, because Saturday afternoon the storm clouds gathered and I quickly called my three children indoors. We shut all the windows and doors — and stayed away from the windows as you advised. Then the storm broke loose, and it was terrible!

Later we read in the paper that a 22-year-old woman, eight months pregnant, was killed during that storm while talking on the telephone! Lightning had struck the telephone wires and traveled into the receiver, killing her instantly. In your column you said, "Don't use the telephone unless it's absolutely necessary. Electricity can travel through the telephone wires."

All I could think of was that if she had read Dear Abby in the Syracuse Post-Standard that day, this tragedy could have been avoided.

Abby, we'll never know how many lives you saved that day.

Moral: Read Dear Abby every day. SADDENED IN SYRACUSE

DEAR SADDENED: I checked with the Syracuse Post-Standard and discovered that the cause of death is still in dispute, with some investigators pointing the finger at a microwave oven the woman was standing next to, and others blaming the phone wires. Stay tuned.

DEAR ABBY: Although I have an extraordinary relationship with my mother, my father has never been able to accept affection, or give it. When my older brother, "Buddy," died unexpectedly a couple of years ago, Dad brooded silently over his death. He had never really verbalized his love for Buddy.

Last year, on Father's Day, I took your advice and wrote Dad a letter, telling him how much he meant to me. I recalled some memories — some happy, some sad. When he called to thank me for my "wonderful letter," I was thrilled. Then he told me that he had received a similar letter from Buddy shortly before his untimely death.

Six months ago, Dad suffered a cerebral hemorrhage, causing him to lose most of his long-term memory. Had I put off writing that letter, I would have lost the opportunity to share some of my most cherished memories and tell him how much he meant to me.

I can't tell you how glad I am that I wrote that letter while Dad was still able to enjoy it. Thank you, Abby, for motivating me.

Elderly man said charged with his wife's slaying

DALLAS (AP) — Police say an 89-year-old invalid begged her husband to "end her pain" before she was shot to death in her bed at a nursing home.

Police said they arrested Walter Joseph Cottrell, 87, minutes after the 8:20 a.m. Tuesday shooting at the Laboure Care Center on the St. Paul Medical Center campus.

Cora Lee Cottrell had been a patient at the home since March, after she was treated at the St. Paul hospital for a stroke, said David Marchetto, spokesman for St. Paul Medical Center.

"She couldn't eat, couldn't swallow and she was in a great deal of pain in her legs," Detective Cathy Harding told the Dallas Morning News. "She just asked her husband to end her pain."

Mrs. Cottrell reportedly had been in poor health for 15 years and had undergone surgery on both legs and her gallbladder. The recent stroke had left her right side paralyzed.

"She had had a serious stroke and she was considered quite ill," Marchetto said. "She was terminally ill, actually."

Friends of the couple said Cottrell was devoted to his wife of 65 years, visiting her daily from 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Police said he usually brought her fresh clothes and makeup in a traveling case.

"There's nothing to indicate that he called any attention to himself," said Detective Rick Silva. "He apparently went in and shot her one time in the head."

Judge imposes fund deadline

DALLAS (AP) — Bishop College officials have been told by a federal bankruptcy judge that they must raise $1.85 million by Aug. 15 or face closure of the predominantly black college.

Bishop College attorneys had told U.S. Bankruptcy Judge Robert McGuire in a plan filed in June that they would raise that amount by the August deadline or voluntarily close the college before the beginning of the fall semester.

"In the past it was a self-imposed deadline. Today it became a judicially imposed deadline," Bishop College attorney Arley Finley III said Tuesday.

Party demands that interference must come to end

MOSCOW (AP) — Delegates to the national Communist Party conference want state and collective farms to operate with less meddling from party and government bureaucrats.

The delegates called for less interference in farm operations in a resolution adopted at the conference last week and published Tuesday.

Among the most frequent criticisms during the conference was the refrain that despite three years of economic reform programs, few improvements in living standards are reaching average people.

Soviet leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev said the biggest single problem was improving food supplies in a country of chronic shortages and frequent rationing.

In the resolution, delegates told party and government agencies to let farms work out their own arrangements with workers and cooperatives.

"Any attempts to command collective and state farms should be stopped immediately," the resolution said, adding that the farms are capable of solving their problems independently.

Photographer arrested for nude photos

KERRVILLE, Texas (AP) — A photographer who had been operating a family photo booth at a discount store has been jailed on charges accusing him of coercing two teen-age girls into posing for nude photographs.

Scott Allen Adams, 23, of Winslow, Ark., was being held Tuesday in the Kerr County Jail in lieu of $35,000 bond on charges of sale, distribution and display of harmful materials, Kerrville Police Lt. Danny Cortez said.

"We have about half a dozen photographs of the girls in bikinis and they are topless in some of them," Cortez said. "We also confiscated about a dozen rolls of undeveloped film," he said, adding the 13- and 15-year-old girls have said they were photographed in the nude and in numerous positions during the sessions.

"We plan to have the film developed as part of the continuing investigation into the case," Cortez said.

Police learned about the incident when one of the victim's brothers reported that his sister was told the photos would be shown to her parents unless she allowed the photographer to have sex with her, Cortez said.

The cruelest deals in bridge are those in which either side can take lots of tricks on offense. In today's deal, East and West can make 11 tricks in spades, and are prevented from making slam only by an unlucky split in diamonds. But North was not going to let them play below the six-level after South had made a pre-emptive jump overcall of three hearts. When North "walked" the bidding to six hearts, West, with an ace and a king, plus opening values in his partner's hand, was delighted to double.

Although "down one" seemed automatic, South took his best shot. He won the ace of spades and ruffed a spade. Then diamond ruff, spade ruff, diamond ruff, heart back to his ace, and a third diamond ruff. With spades and diamonds eliminated from both hands and the defenders' solitary trump drawn, a club was now led from dummy. If either defender had a singleton club honor, he would be endplayed, and forced to give up a sluff and a ruff. And that's the way it was.

Although a low club at trick one beats the slam, that play can be made only by someone who peeked.

James Jacoby's books "Jacoby on Bridge" and "Jacoby on Card Games" (written with his father, the late Oswald Jacoby) are now available at bookstores. Both are published by Pharos Books.

Soldiers reporting to airport; activists say protestors killed

MOSCOW (AP) — Soldiers moved into the airport in the Armenian capital of Yerevan to disperse youthful protesters who shut it down, official newspapers said today. Activists claimed soldiers shot and killed at least one person.

Alexi Mananikov, an editor of the unofficial Moscow journal Glasnost, said 22-year-old Khachik Kazaryan was killed in a confrontation between protesters and soldiers at the airport.

He said sources in Yerevan told him as many as 40 people were wounded by soldiers trying to reopen the airport Tuesday night.

Since February, Yerevan has been the scene of massive protests demanding annexation of the Nagorno-Karabakh region of the neighboring southern republic of Azerbaijan. The demonstrations had been peaceful.

Moscow artist Kuryun Nahabidyan said three unidentified students were killed at the airport. "Officers shot them with pistols," he said.

He said the demonstrators had gone to the airport to try to stop military planes from bringing in paratroopers, tanks and machineguns. "The army has occupied all of Armenia. Nagorno-Karabakh, too," he said. Neither report was confirmed by official sources.

Tuesday's editions of the government daily Izvestia reported that thousands of Armenians have gone on strike in Armenia and Nagorno-Karabakh.

The report indicated the protesters in Armenia were angered at how their leaders had represented their demands to last week's national Communist Party conference in Moscow.

Izvestia said most flights in and out of Yerevan were canceled and the airport was filled with stranded travelers.

Most Armenians want Nagorno-Karabakh annexed to Armenia. The mountain enclave's predominantly Armenian population has been agitating since February to be united with neighboring Armenia.

Armenia supports the demand. Azerbaijan opposes it.

In February, at least 32 people were killed in riots over annexation which broke out in Sumgait, Azerbaijan.

Most Armenians are Christian. Most Azeris Moslem.

Today, an editor at the Armenpress news agency in Yerevan said reports of a confrontation at the airport Tuesday evening were "rumors."

"That's not official information," she said. Asked whether there were many soldiers in Yerevan, she said, "I didn't see any soldiers." The telephone call was interrupted before she could be asked her name or further information.

Mikhail Padalovich, an editor of the Communist Party newspaper Kommunist in Yerevan said he had no information about an incident at the airport. He said there were no demonstrations in the city and workers were at their jobs.

The Armenian republic's office in Moscow declined comment on the reports.

The Communist Party newspaper Pravda reported that during a meeting in Yerevan's Theater Square on Sunday someone began calling for a blockade of Zvartnots Airport and a large column of people headed on foot toward it.

Pravda said planes were allowed to land, but demonstrators prevented them from taking off again. It said hundreds of passengers were stuck at the airport.

Pravda said the demonstrators "grossly disrupted order" at the airport.

The national labor newspaper Trud quoted an unidentified official of the Armenian Ministry of Internal Affairs as saying "intervention of the organs of internal affairs was required to restore order."

"According to our evaluation, the normal life of the airport will be restored in the near future," the ministry official was quoted as saying.

Gramm thinks Meese's decision was wise choice

By The Associated Press

Several top Texas Republicans say Attorney General Edwin Meese's decision to step down was the right thing for him to do and should clear the office from controversy.

GOP Senate candidate Beau Boulter, campaigning in Dallas, called Meese's resignation "good for George Bush, the Republican Party and Beau Boulter."

Boulter, an Amarillo congressman trying to unseat Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, said of Meese, "The fact is that he is not a shining example of high standards."

Boulter said the resignation, announced Tuesday, would improve Bush's chances in the presidential election.

"George Bush, more than almost anybody, personally insists upon being surrounded by people whose standards of conduct are the highest. Ed Meese did not fit that definition," he said.

Boulter said that with Meese leaving, questions about ethics will now be more focused on House Speaker Jim Wright, D-Fort Worth. Wright is the target of a House committee probe on allegations of ethical misconduct.

Sen. Phil Gramm, R-Texas, said he believed Meese's resignation would ensure effective operation of the Justice Department.

"I think Attorney General Meese made a wise decision in using the vindication of the independent counsel's investigation to put this controversy behind him and, more importantly, behind the important office of the attorney general of the United States," Gramm said.

"My concern has been the impact this could have on the effectiveness of the attorney general's office in such important national efforts as our war on drugs," Gramm said.

"I think Attorney General Meese's action now clears the way for the appointment of a new attorney general who can carry out his important functions without the burden of this controversy upon his shoulders."

In Dallas, Texas Republican Party Chairman Fred Meyer also said Meese's decision was correct.

"I think he clearly made the right decision, under the circumstances. When you're in the public eye, you have to be extraordinarily careful and fortunate."

District board delays action

Board members for the Scurry County Appraisal District failed to gain a quorum for their July meeting Tuesday, a session which included only bill paying as an agenda item.

Those present elected to postpone approval of the bills until the August session.

Attending were Julius Roemisch and Dwaine Williams. Absent were Mairi McFaul, Mickey Sterling and Doug Flynn.

Texas plant said ready for Soviets

KARNACK, Texas (AP) — The Longhorn Army Ammunition Plant is ready for Soviet inspections, officials say, and preparations have begun for their visits during the upcoming destruction of Pershing missiles.

About 20 plant employees are being trained to conduct tours of missile elimination facilities, said Hal Cornish, the plant's general manager for contractor Morton Thiokol.

"We're getting our people trained to interface with the Soviets," Cornish said.

"It's primarily just getting some key people up to date on what rights the treaty gives the Soviets on what to inspect, and how we should conduct the tours and handle the personnel," he said.

Those trained include engineers and mid-management people. The U.S. government will supply interpreters for the Soviets' visits.

The plant, about 15 miles from Marshall, is under a $1.1 billion contract to destroy 74 Pershing I and II missile stages. Longhorn will be the first to eliminate rocket motors under the INF treaty. Plant officials project a mid-August starting date.

"We're, of course, getting our facilities ready that we're going to be using for that purpose," Cornish said.

The three firing bays, used when Longhorn built Pershing IAs in the 1960s and 1970s, are being refurbished, Cornish said. One is ready.

Construction of the observation building is to begin right away, Cornish said, with completion expected during August. "It will be just large enough for several people to see the firing within a safe enclosure," Cornish said.

The Soviets may send up to 10 people for the baseline inspection, and have sent that number to the other U.S. plants inspected so far.

During the elimination, they may have 20 people on site, officials said.

Incidents investigated

The sheriff's office is also investigating a Tuesday report of vandalism at the SEC Building, north of the old American Magnesium plant, involving broken sinks and windows and kicked-in sheetrock.

The building is owned by the J.H. Brown Investment Co. and has apparently been being used for illicit weekend parties, an officer said.

In other reports, Penny Brown of Ira reported Tuesday that her wedding rings were missing after a company retirement party.

She said she laid the rings near a kitchen sink at an Ira company party last Thursday, and they were gone when she went to find them Friday morning, she told deputies.

The rings are described as yellow gold with diamonds inlaid in gold.

Obituaries

Dewane Foster

LAMESA—Services for Dewane Foster, 67, were set for 4 p.m. Wednesday in the Second Baptist Church with burial to follow in the Lamesa Memorial Park.

Foster, the brother of Glenn Foster of Hermligh, died Monday in Lamesa's Medical Arts Hospital.

He was born in Arkansas and moved to Dawson County in 1928. He married Alva Price on Dec. 21, 1940 in Lamesa.

Survivors include his wife; three daughters, Nelle Ray of Lamesa, Wanda Pipkin of Giddens and Linda Cornett of Odessa; a sister, Amella Hall of Midland; two other brothers, Junus of Crosbyton and Cecil of Lamesa; eight grandchildren; and seven great-grandchildren.

DR. GOTT
Peter Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT: A marriage certificate is not a rape license. I just turned 28 and my husband's 31st birthday is today. We quit sexual relations after 10 years. We've got two kids, a beautiful home, money in the bank and a good marriage, but no sex. And that's the way we want it. Any comments?

DEAR READER: Far be it from me to sit in judgment on an issue as personal as sex in marriage. If you and your husband are comfortable abstaining from sex and that's a decision you both have made, good wishes — and good luck.

A marriage certificate is certainly not a rape license. However, sexual relations between married partners are a wonderful way to express tenderness and love, it's a great way to get close. I'm a little sad that you and your husband seem so turned off to an act that is such an integral part of marriage. Sex can be fun — and you don't get shin splints.

It seems to me that you will be missing a lot ... but, then, only time will tell. Perhaps I'll get a letter from your husband, which will begin "I've just had my 32nd birthday and my wife has refused to have sex for a year. Despite our good marriage ..."

DEAR DR. GOTT: Our daughter is 17. Her menstrual periods are down to about nothing, she's very overweight and gaining, and she uses a tremendous amount of salt. What's going on?

DEAR READER: Your daughter may have a metabolic basis for her problem. Adrenal disease or hormone deficiency would be at the top of the list. She should be examined by a doctor.

Adolescents who overeat to the point of obesity often experience menstrual irregularities, however, so don't necessarily assume that her problems are "glandular."

An excessive salt intake may be secondary to a physical disease, such as a salt-losing condition — or it may be a matter of taste. In either case, salt will certainly contribute to periodic weight gain. Again, the doctor should be able to sort out what is physical from what may be a simple problem of caloric excess.

If the doctor finds that your daughter is eating too much, she may wish to go on a diet — so I'm sending you a copy of my Health Report, "Weight Control Through Calorie Control." Others who would like a copy should send $1 and their name and address to P.O. Box 91369, Cleveland, OH 44101-3369. Be sure to mention the title.

Beef, citrus agreement signed

WASHINGTON (AP) — An agreement signed by Japan and the United States will soothe some of the aches and pains that have plagued the world's biggest agricultural trading partnership, officials say.

The pact, signed Tuesday, opens Japan to more American beef and citrus, perhaps doubling the total value of those sales by the early 1990s.

U.S. Trade Representative Clayton Yeutter called it "a great day for American agriculture, a great day for Japanese consumers."

Nobuo Matsunaga, Japan's ambassador to the United States, said the pact marked "an end to the decade-long trade issue between the two governments."

Sen. Max Baucus, D-Mont., also called the agreement "a big win for beef producers and Japanese consumers" but cautioned that the United States "must ensure the agreement is carried out" properly.

"This is but the first step in what must be a sustained effort to increase beef exports," Baucus said in a statement. "Constant pressure on Japan by Congress, the administration and private groups finally paid off."

The agreement, which was reached last month during negotiations in Tokyo, will open the door gradually over the next few years to more U.S. beef and citrus and move away from the restrictive quota system that has been in effect.

Earlier demands that Japan allow sales of U.S. rice were dropped in reaching the settlement on beef and citrus.

Yeutter said he hoped Japan would relent on allowing rice imports but that such discussions would be more appropriate in the current Uruguay round of multilateral trade talks under the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade, or GATT.

Matsunaga said Japan has made it clear that "we will not refuse to discuss the matter of rice" in GATT negotiations on condition that other participating countries are prepared to discuss their own agricultural policies.

The Commerce Department has estimated that annual U.S. beef exports to Japan could grow to around $1 billion a year from about $550 million now. Sales of oranges and juice, now less than $100 million, could rise to more than $150 million, it says.

Yeutter said in a statement that the signing was a "historic development" for both countries.

"It settles one of our most controversial bilateral disputes," he said. "Just as important, it demonstrates that Japan is accepting even more responsibility as a major trading nation."

Yeutter noted that the agreement not only commits Japan to increase access and eliminate non-tariff barriers to trade in beef, oranges and orange juice but reduces tariffs on a variety of other products, including lemons, grapefruit and nuts.

In a formal exchange of letters dated July 5, Matsunaga said the government of Japan "intends to implement market-opening measures" as indicated by the agreement and will be prepared to hold consultations annually with the United States to discuss how the arrangement is faring.

Yeutter said in his letter that GATT officials have been notified of the withdrawal of a U.S. complaint regarding Japanese import restrictions on beef, fresh oranges and orange juice. The Florida citrus industry also has withdrawn a petition calling for a U.S. investigation of Japanese restrictions on fresh oranges and juice, he said.

Despite long-standing disputes over U.S. access to the Japanese agricultural market, Japan continues as the leading single-country market for American farmers.

In the fiscal year that began last Oct. 1, for example, total U.S. agricultural exports are currently forecast at $33.5 billion, up from less than $27.9 billion in 1986-87.

Writers Guild 'detectives' are stalking strike breakers

LOS ANGELES (AP) — There are 8 million stories in Hollywood, and the Writers Guild of America is using anonymous tips, inside leaks and library sleuths to make sure no new ones appear during its strike against producers.

"We are extremely anxious to find someone (who is breaking the strike). We want to say, in effect, that the bad guys who are taking advantage of this strike are going to get caught," said Del Reisman, vice president of the WGA West.

Eight volunteer screenplay detectives from the 9,000-member WGA have set out to identify any scriptwriters violating the 18-week strike against the Alliance of Motion Picture and Television Producers.

The WGA disciplinary committee, which meets once a week, has already recommended that at least one television writer be tried by the WGA for unauthorized strike work. The maximum penalty for such work, besides fines, is dismissal from the guild, effectively ending a screenwriter's career.

In entertainment industry newspapers today, the WGA published full-page advertisements warning writers that "the guild is actively investigating reports of individuals who are writing for struck companies."

The ads come at a time when the WGA is trying to maintain its strong union solidarity: the guild rejected the latest management offer by a 3-1 vote June 22.

The two sides are deadlocked over payments for domestic and foreign television reruns and the guild is scheduled to meet tonight to vote on a model contract for independent producers.

"This far into a strike, people's principles tend to wobble a bit. We know that scabbing is going on," said Burt Prelutsky, chairman of the WGA's disciplinary committee. "It's no secret that it's difficult to collect evidence. We get tips and we try to track them down."

The long strike has resulted in sweeping layoffs among California's 230,000 entertainment industry workers.

In the case of coal miners or meat packers, it's easy to tell who's crossing picket lines and who isn't. But with scriptwriters — who often work at home or in a private office — spotting strikebreakers is more difficult.

Who, for example, is writing all the scripts for network soap operas?

"There is no indication that anybody in our guild is scabbing those soaps," Reisman said. "But they are being written by somebody."

Lee Phillip Bell, the long-term story adviser for CBS' "The Bold and the Beautiful," said she didn't know who was writing the scripts for her show. "We're trying not to be involved in that," Bell said.

Secretaries or production personnel writing soap operas will be barred from joining the guild should they apply for membership, Prelutsky said.

Jonathan Rintel, a member of the WGA disciplinary committee, said the group has been interviewing two to three writers suspected of strikebreaking each week.

"The ones who cooperate usually have an explanation or say that they'll stop," Rintel said. "And there are a lot of gray areas (in the WGA contract) so it is difficult to pinpoint whether somebody has actually scabbed."

All WGA members were requested to file their scripts at the guild headquarters when the strike began March 7.

"It's very easy to tell if a film is following the final rewrite of the script as registered (at the WGA) or if there's been a complete rewrite," Reisman said.

Total revisions are prohibited during the strike; only minor line or scene changes can be made, and only under certain conditions.
