

Democrats applaud keynote address

ATLANTA (AP) — Democratic keynoter Ann Richards drew laurels — and laughter — for a speech that used an easy, homey tone and wicked humor to talk about what the Democrats can do for American families and what the Republicans have not.

"This Republican administration treats us as if we were pieces of a puzzle that can't fit together," the Texas state treasurer said in her Monday night speech that departed in style and tone from the traditional stemwinder that opens political conventions.

New York Gov. Mario Cuomo, whose Democratic keynote address four years ago propelled him to hero status in the Democratic Party, called Ms. Richards' effort "great," adding: "She lit their fuse tonight."

Ms. Richards, who is Texas' state treasurer and a 54-year-old divorced mother of four grown children, saved her most pointed quips for Vice President George Bush, the GOP presidential nominee-to-be.

The Omni audience interrupted the speech at least 50 times with applause and laughs. Afterward, delegates said they were taking their favorite Richards' lines home with them.

"George Bush is going to live for a long, long time with a silver foot in his mouth. That one will stick," said delegate Florence Peterson of Grand Rapids, Mich.

The "silver foot" line, an instant classic among delegates, was interrupted twice in the midst of it and ended with a roaring response from delighted delegates.

"Poor George," Ms. Richards said, grinning broadly. "He can't help it. He was born with a silver foot in his mouth."

Bush was barbecued early and often by the treasurer from the state where he has a Houston hotel suite that he calls home.

"I am delighted to be here with you this evening because after listening to George Bush all these years I figured you needed to know what a real Texas accent sounds like," Ms. Richards, who plans a 1990 race for Texas governor, said in an opening line that quickly got the crowd on its feet.

Ms. Richards was emotional, too. She talked about a woman from Lorena, Texas who had written her a letter that complained that life has become difficult despite a family income of about $50,000.

"I believe people like us have been forgotten in America," the mother of three said in her letter.

"Of course you believe you're being forgotten. Because you have been," Ms. Richards said.

Oil price news

NEW YORK (AP) — Oil prices retreated today after a big jump in the previous session that was fueled by speculation that peace could break out in the Persian Gulf.

The August contract for West Texas Intermediate, the benchmark U.S. crude, fell 30 cents a barrel to $15.40 a barrel in the opening minutes of trading on the New York Mercantile Exchange.

That contract had jumped 84 cents a barrel on Monday — the biggest daily rise since April — after Iran said it would accept a United Nations resolution calling for an immediate cease-fire in its nearly 8-year-old war with Iraq.

Trial begins

BEAUMONT, Texas (AP) — Jury selection began in the bribery trial of suspended Denton County Sheriff Randy Kaisner, who is accused of offering a chief deputy post to an opponent if he would drop out of the race.

As of late Monday afternoon, however, a jury had not been selected, said court clerk Bernie Cook.

Kaisner is accused of offering the job to his Republican runoff opponent, Kirby Robinson. But the suspended sheriff's attorney, Frank Jackson of Dallas, said the charge is a political vendetta.

3 charged

CLAY CENTER, Kan. (AP) — Three men accused of being involved in an operation to supply drugs to two Kansas towns were charged Monday in connection with a weekend drug raid that netted more than $100,000 in methamphetamine, authorities said.

Assistant Dickinson County Attorney Keith Hoffman said the drugs were believed to be part of a multi-state operation with connections in Colorado and Texas, and more arrests were likely.

Two other men who were arrested Saturday could be charged Tuesday, authorities said.

Sun column repair bidder announced, project start slated

An apparent low bidder was identified Monday and SACROC officials say the work timetable is on schedule for one of the largest repair projects ever undertaken at the unitized field.

A Kansas City, Mo. specialized welding firm, the George P. Reintjes Co., is expected to officially sign a contract for the work Tuesday, according to Gary Stutheit, unit construction engineer for SACROC.

The work will involve welding or "cladding" an overlay of stainless steel inside the two 100 ft tall "absorber" columns at the Sun Gas Plant.

This will be to repair pitting inside the two columns which has occurred due to the corrosive nature of the circulation process used to separate CO2 gas for reinjection.

The absorber columns and two twin "stripper" columns comprise two "trains" which separate the gas from a liquid hot potassium carbonate solution.

THE BOOK — Weldon Beck, left, Johnny Reed, Brad Hinton, Johnny Eicke and Sahala Johnson of the Scurry County Rodeo Association were taking contestants' entries in a steady flow Monday afternoon at the rodeo grounds west of Snyder in preparation for the group's annual rodeo Thursday, Friday and Saturday. (SDN Staff Photo)

Rodeo booking said up

The book for the upcoming Scurry County Rodeo closed at 6 p.m. Monday with 260 entries listed, a sizeable jump from previous years, according to association officials.

"I think its being outside again," commented Weldon Beck, association president, regarding why entries had increased.

He was referring to plans to move the event back to the rodeo association's outdoor arena on west 30th St.

Among those due to rope will be Snyder's Barry Tubb, a former AJRA competitor who has gone on to movie roles and Broadway plays. Other competitors will include several national finals qualifiers who hold membership in the Professional Rodeo Cowboys Association.

The local event is sanctioned by the Texas Cowboy's Rodeo Association with contestants earning points toward TCRA amateur competition.

By event, the team roping prompted the greatest number of entries with 120 signed up.

Other approximate entry numbers include 60 in the calf roping, 50 in the bull riding, 50 in the barrel racing, 25 in the bareback riding, 19 in the steer wrestling, and 10 in the saddle bronc riding.

Three days of rodeo action will begin Thursday with performances nightly at 8 o'clock through Saturday.

Events tied to the rodeo will kickoff Tuesday at 6:30 p.m. with the West Texas Barrel Racing Association competition.

This will be followed Wednesday by the annual stockholders roping for members of the Scurry County Rodeo Association. It will be at the rodeo grounds beginning at 6 p.m.

City budget has proposed pay raise

By BOB CAMPBELL
SDN Staff Writer

City councilmen Monday night heard a staff recommendation that city employees be given a four-percent raise for 1988-89, restoring a pay cut of the same amount from last year.

The proposal prompted little initial discussion at a 6:30 p.m. work session on the proposed 237-page budget.

Tentatively projected is an increase in the city's ad valorem tax rate from the current 29.22 cents per $100 valuation to 32.81 cents, although City Secretary Jeanne Johnson said the increase, if the council finally approves one, will probably be revised again, based on better overall figures as the budget is firmed up.

City Manager John Gayle noted Tuesday morning that deliberations are still in the early stage and the document could be substantially altered before it is finally approved.

City Secretary Jeanne Johnson outlined a proposal to add four percent in allocations to the pay plan for the 78 municipal employees, which would affect different individuals in different ways, according to longevity and where they currently are on the pay scale.

The council spent five hours going over the proposed $4,578,760 budget, which represents a 14 percent increase over the current $4,514,002 budget.

Councilmen are scheduled to resume their budget considerations at a 6:30 p.m. July 25 work session.

The new budget, which will go into effect Oct. 1, projects no increases in the city's water, sewer or sanitation rates.

With the scheduled opening of the new Texas Department of Corrections unit northeast of Snyder in mid-1989, water revenues should increase from $1,104,120 this fiscal year to $1,155,730 the next, Johnson said.

She reported that the budget will be further enriched with the release of $230,000 that had been being held in the general fund because of indebtedness on the Wickes Building, which the Industrial Foundation has

The political convention in Atlanta will dominate the tube this week. As a warmup, one channel showed reruns of past conventions complete with street riots.

Since the ticket has already been settled prior to the convention, the Democrats could have shown concern for the economy and cancelled the whole deal.

Reporters at the convention seem to be spending most of their time tracking down unfounded rumors and trying to find out if Dukakis and Jackson are really back on speaking terms.

Jackson was miffed because Dukakis didn't inform him personally that Lloyd Bentsen of Texas had been selected as his running mate.

Jackson was offended by having to learn of the news from reporters and not from Dukakis. The boys down at the coffee shop were also upset—none of them got a phone call either.

Shorty Byrom says he can't get too excited about the November elections until after he reads each party's platform.

Over the years, Shorty has voted both Republican and Democratic. "I did my part," Byrom mused.

Shorty is most concerned about restrictions on his smoking habit. He was seated at a table with five non-smokers who all happened to mention the Surgeon General's warning.

One Democrat told Shorty, "And when you die, the Republicans are gonna pass a law that will put you in the cemetery's non-smoking section."

Boredom will be the theme of this year's election. One observer says Dukakis always thinks twice before saying nothing. Bush is more cultured—he can bore you on any subject.

Two burglaries, theft worked since Monday

Police are investigating two burglaries and a theft that were reported Monday and early Tuesday.

Tim Mitchell of L.B. Mitchell Exxon, 1401 College Ave., reported the first incident at 7:13 a.m. Monday.

He said someone had broken into the service station through the front walkway door and had stolen a small amount of change.

In addition, Claude Galloway told police that a thief had taken a bag of about $140 in quarters Monday night or early Tuesday from his 2311 College radiator shop.

The incident was being investigated as a theft because there was no apparent forced entry into the building, a city detective said.

A city patrolman discovered a burglary at Kwik Drive-in Grocery at 2704 25th St. at 4:39 a.m. Tuesday.

Entry was gained with the removal of a board from the back of the building, and a small amount of change and some cigarettes were reported missing.

Meese says he acted legally

WASHINGTON (AP) — Attorney General Edwin Meese III says he acted "legally, ethically and properly," despite an independent counsel's conclusions that he probably broke two tax laws and twice violated a conflict-of-interest law.

Meese mounted a strong counterattack to the report by independent counsel James McKay, who said Monday that "the toughest calls we made were not to proceed" with criminal charges against the attorney general.

"It was not a close call to find that there were probable violations," McKay said on the "MacNeil-Lehrer NewsHour" television program.

McKay said Meese and his wife, Ursula, probably violated two sections of the Internal Revenue Code by failing to report and promptly pay tax on a net capital gain of $20,706 on the sale of $54,581 in securities in 1985.

McKay noted that Meese filed an amended return on Feb. 6 of this year, "shortly after the scheduling of the grand jury appearances for the Meeses' accountants" in connection with McKay's criminal investigation of the matter.

The Meeses paid $2,875 in overdue federal tax payments and interest with the amended return, and, according to McKay, apparently may owe an additional $600 because of an error made by his accountants in underestimating capital gains.

McKay said, "we had a situation where there's no pattern of violation of the tax laws" and that Meese "in effect, you might say, is a first offender."

Saying he was outraged and appalled by McKay's findings, Meese said that "in every matter under investigation by the independent counsel... I have always acted legally, ethically and properly, and any implication by the independent counsel that I have in any way violated any law is absolutely false."

Meese said that if Justice Department lawyers had issued such a document "they'd be fired."

Washington tax lawyers Cono Namorato and Richard Timbie offered their opinion, at the request of Meese's lawyers, concluding that "the... facts do not describe a violation of any criminal provision of the Internal Revenue Code."

The tax lawyers said Meese candidly disclosed the securities transactions to his accountant, John McKean, and that he followed McKean's advice on how to file a return in the absence of the necessary records needed to compute the original cost of the securities.

McKay's report found that Meese probably twice violated the conflict-of-interest law in connection with his holdings of $15,000 in regional Bell telephone stock.

McKay said Meese owned the stock in the regional Bell companies in 1985 and 1986, when he set in motion a review process that led to a reversal of Justice Department policy. McKay also found that Meese participated in discussions of proposed legislation to shift regulatory responsibility for the breakup of AT&T from a federal court and the Justice Department to the Federal Communications Commission.

"Our conclusion was that although there was a probable violation, there was no venality involved," McKay said. "Mr. Meese was not lining his own pocket, so to speak. Had he not participated in these matters, the decisions of the Department of Justice probably would have been the same."

The independent counsel's report also dealt at some length with Meese's activities on behalf of Wedtech and a $1 billion Iraq pipeline project.

MacArthur award winners include variety of persons

CHICAGO (AP) — A handicapped writer who is forced to borrow money to pay for his care says he is still reeling from the shock of learning he's one of 31 recipients of the prestigious MacArthur awards, publicly announced today.

Like other recipients, Andre Dubus, a fiction writer whose works include "The Last Worthless Evening," learned of his award Thursday.

"Gratitude so extreme that I haven't recovered from it yet" was his reaction, he said in an interview Monday from his Haverhill, Mass., home.

"I've been using borrowed money for the people who take care of me," said Dubus, 51, who has been confined to a wheelchair since a car accident two years ago. He said he plans to invest his $310,000 grant "to pay the people who take care of me until I die."

Other winners include a firefighter who studies the cultural history of fires, noted jazz percussionist Max Roach and the granddaughter of President Theodore Roosevelt.

Recipients of the awards, which range from $150,000 to $375,000, are free to use the money as they wish.

Individuals are nominated anonymously for the fellowships — they may not apply — and a 15-member selection committee reviews the nominations.

The John D. and Catherine T. MacArthur Foundation's board of directors gives final approval of the winners.

"We believe that in enabling these extraordinarily talented individuals to discover and create free of financial constraints, the Fellows Program makes a valuable contribution to American scientific and cultural life," said John Corbally, the foundation's president.

"The whole goal is to give you the freedom to develop your research in the way that you see best," added recipient Anna Curtenius Roosevelt, an archaeologist and granddaughter of the country's 26th president.

Ms. Roosevelt, 42, who won a $265,000 grant, has been studying ancient cultures of the tropical lowlands of South America for nearly 15 years.

"We believe that we have found the earliest pottery in the New World in a site near the city of Santarem in Brazil," she said in a telephone interview Monday from New York, where she is a visiting researcher at the American Museum of Natural History.

Dressing Up for Church Gets Dressing-Down From Readers

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1988 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: This concerns "Frosted in Lake Forest" who criticized a mother for bringing her children to church in their pajamas. I want to thank "Frosted" for setting me straight.

I had always believed that God's house was open to all people — not just the well-dressed. I got this crazy idea from reading the Bible. I thought that since Jesus hung out with prostitutes, poor fishermen and lowly tax collectors, he wouldn't be uncomfortable in the company of hard-working people who couldn't afford the luxury of dressing up.

Thank you, Abby, for giving the mother credit for taking her children to church.

LOVES THE LORD
IN EL PASO

DEAR ABBY: I commend you for your response to the woman who was perturbed by the pajama-clad children in church.

As state chaplain of the Kansas Campers, for three years I drove from Wichita to Topeka every Sunday to offer Mass. Why? Because the church pastor, three miles away, refused admission to anyone who came in camp garb. Many youngsters approached communion in shorts, some parents wore tank tops, others came in jeans, and a few were barefooted. I served 200 Catholics every week. I agree with you. I'm sure the Lord didn't care what they were wearing.

FATHER BOB IN WICHITA

stores — without shirts, wearing shorts. They're just plain repulsive. You said, "The Lord doesn't care what they are wearing." That was one of your worst and silliest replies.

HAZELWOOD, MISSOURI

DEAR ABBY: I am plenty frosted over "Frosted's" objections concerning what children wear to church. Did she ever stop to think that maybe the mother was running late that morning and instead of dressing the children and walking into church late, or skipping church altogether, she chose the alternative? At least she was there!

I used to be a Presbyterian. Now I'm a Catholic. I would rather see people in blue jeans and shorts every week than those phonies who dress up to come to church only at Easter and Christmas.

MILWAUKEE CHURCHGOER

DEAR ABBY: You're nuts! I think the point "Frosted" was trying to make was simply that proper attire in church shows respect. You'd be shocked at what you see today, and I don't mean children in pajamas! The way some people appear in church is disgusting.

Give the parishioners non-Latin, Saturday services with "come-as-you-are" attire and they won't ask for anything else.

CATHOLIC IN CLEVELAND

DEAR ABBY: Come on, Abby. No kid in this nation has to come to church in pajamas. It's just a part of the ever increasing tendency toward sloppiness, plus the attitude that whatever people want to do is their business. Today we see slobbs weighing 300 pounds shopping in

'War of Worlds' anniversary launched with 'Martian punch'

WEST WINDSOR, N.J. (AP) — The 50th anniversary celebration of the "War of the Worlds" broadcast, Orson Welles' radio play about an alien invasion that terrified America, was launched with "Martian punch" and a song.

Welles and his Mercury Theater created a sensation the night of Oct. 30, 1938, with their broadcast based on H.G. Wells' tale of a Martian invasion of Earth. Despite disclaimers it was fictitious, the realistic-sounding broadcast on CBS created a nationwide panic.

The "invasion" began at Grovers Mill, chosen at random by scriptwriter Howard Koch, and residents of the hamlet in West Windsor Township near Princeton have been reminded annually of its dubious place in radio history.

In the coming months, the group organizing the celebration hopes to remind the world of the broadcast, heard by an estimated 6 million people, and the role it played in redefining radio's power.

The Fiftieth Anniversary Commemorative Committee for War of the Worlds Inc. began the festivities Monday with the debut of "Over The Airwaves, The Ballad of Grovers Mill."

The song, written locally, opens with a brief excerpt from the Halloween broadcast, then relates the blurring of the line between reality and fantasy that brought "panic in the streets."

"On the other side of Grovers Mill, there's a pond where the water glows. What landed on that Jersey site, I'm sure nobody knows," four women in leotards sang as reporters listened.

The song is to be released to radio stations around the country this week, and will be the subject of a music video, according to the committee.

Participants were offered "Martian punch," an eerie green concoction of vodka, fruit juices and liqueur, with melon balls bobbing on top.

Committee Chairman Douglas Forrester, who was born 15 years after the broadcast, said he used to hear only secondhand accounts of the terror the show evoked, but says people are finally "fessing up to being scared" as word of his group's work gets out.

"I think one of the acid tests of our credibility is we are finally getting first-person accounts from people who had the bejabbers scared out of them," said Forrester, director of pensions for New Jersey and a former mayor of West Windsor.

Walking a narrow line

The enterprising declarer is always looking for better ways to take tricks. In particular, he does not like to leave things to chance when they can be certain. So look at today's four-spade contract. Does it seem that South was too aggressive in going right to four spades? Although he has only eight high-card points, North's opening diamond bid increases South's chance of taking tricks with the J-8-5 of diamonds, and South's spade suit comes alive when partner supports it.

After the opening lead, there was plenty of work to do. Declarer won his heart king and led a club to the K-J. When West played low, he guessed right to put in dummy's jack. East won the ace and returned a heart to dummy's ace. The king of clubs was played and a diamond discarded. Declarer now had the option of taking a spade finesse, guarding against a possible K-Q-4 with East. That would be the right play if the only problem on the deal was ensuring that the defenders did not take more than one trump trick. But there was also a precarious diamond situation to be dealt with, with potential help in the defenders' trump holding. So declarer played the low club from dummy and ruffed. Then he ruffed his last low heart. Then came a spade back to his ace and another spade. Lo and behold, East was on lead with the spade king, and hearts and clubs were exhausted from the dummy and declarer's hand. There was nothing for East to do but cash the diamond ace and let South make his thin game contract.

Back-at-home grads may need push out the door

WASHINGTON (AP) — After graduation from college, many young people find themselves back at home with their parents. But if grown children stay too long without goals parents may have to send them packing, suggests a psychology professor at The Catholic University of America here.

Despite stresses accompanying a move home, most graduates adjust to the real world and leave the family fold before conflict becomes too great, says James E. Youniss, a specialist in changing family relationships.

But, he adds even the pressures of living with parents and desire for independence aren't enough to push some young adults out of the nest. Parents may have to give their children the push they need.

"I've known graduates who stayed home for months. They became dependent on their parents. They were afraid to get into the game," Youniss said. "The longer this situation lasts, the lower the graduates' self-esteem becomes. They are caught in a downward spiral of depression that makes it difficult to act."

Life after college represents the great unknown to most graduates, he points out. It's the first time in their lives when they don't know what to expect and can't follow a simple path.

"It's not that they don't want to work," he said. "Most get jobs, but find them boring or beneath their abilities. At college these young people had ample opportunities to socialize. In a work environment, they may find themselves with older people and also learn they are competing for raises and promotions and practicing 'office politics' with employees their own age."

Today's economy makes it difficult for new grads to set up housekeeping, Youniss notes. While entry-level jobs in engineering and computer science pay well, jobs in many fields do not. Fledgling social workers may find their financial straits more difficult if they compare themselves with well-paid classmates.

And many students go through college without a clear idea of what they want to do after graduation. These people have particular difficulty finding a satisfactory first job, he explains.

While the process of decision and action is trying for graduates, it is trying for parents as well, Youniss says.

"Most parents want to help their children get a start," he said. "Parents may have a positive attitude when the graduate moves home. But after four years of having a child at home only during school vacations or not at all, the parents' lifestyle has changed."

Many times little things such as eating habits and late hours a graduate has developed during college cause conflicts, Youniss said. A child's lack of concrete goals may be confusing for parents whose lives followed a simple progression of college, job, marriage and family.

These problems can be worked out, Youniss says, especially if the parents see their son or daughter making progress in finding a job and building a life. But frustration builds on both sides the longer the graduate remains at home without taking clear strides to independence.

"Parents start to feel helpless, and at some point may have to ask the child to leave," he said. "They may feel guilt at first, but usually find the graduate rises to the occasion. And parents can still provide emotional and even financial support when a child first leaves the home."

"There's no rule saying a child must leave home at a certain point," he added. "But if being home leads to dependence and inertia, parents should consider forcing their child into action."

Second medical opinion advised

NEW YORK (AP) — The days when it was impolite to question the doctor or ask for a second opinion on a medical problem are gone, notes an article in Lear's magazine, which presents a strong case for doing so.

Pointing out that in 1975 the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare issued a Patient's Bill of Rights that entitles patients to "explanations about procedures, risks, benefits or alternative procedures," it offers these suggestions about getting second opinions:

— Keep a notebook. Record the illness' precise medical name and all other relevant information, including symptoms, lab reports, X-ray data, suggested treatment, etc.

— Speak with another person who has had the same problem. Ask about the experience, the treatment, recovery, attending physician.

— Research the problem. Conduct a literature review at a public library or use a research service which — for a fee — will provide the latest information from consumer magazines and books and medical journals.

(Lear's suggests The Health Resource, 209 Katherine Drive, Conway, AK 72032, 501-329-5272; or InfoConnect Research Services, P.O. Box 18827, Cleveland Heights, OH 44118, 216-371-3484.)

— Contact such organizations as the American Heart Association, American Cancer Society or Muscular Dystrophy Association which specialize in health problems. Their free literature, support groups and advice about available medical specialists can be helpful.

— Seek advice about your illness, proposed treatment and alternative treatments from a hospital or medical school department head.

— Be prepared to work. Collect slides, reports, X-rays for shipment or delivery to consulting physicians. If you don't hand deliver the information, get the name of a responsible person in each doctor's office and be sure that person signs for the material.

Generally, physicians welcome questions, recognizing that patients who fight for themselves and go into surgery with confidence recover faster than those who accept a diagnosis without question, the magazine points out.

Peter Gott, M.D.

These letters are really real

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT: Are the questions in your column from real people or do you make them up?

DEAR READER: Every question in my column comes from a real person who has taken the time and trouble to write. In fact, I regularly promise to answer every appropriate question that is sent to me.

Some questions cannot be suitably answered in a column format. The query may be an obvious hoax, not of general interest or unsuitable for publication in a family oriented newspaper. However, I make an effort to answer all readers' questions, in one form or another. I do not make up any questions.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I am a sober alcoholic and member of Alcoholics Anonymous. I was labeled hyperactive as a child. I took Ritalin, and it helped. I was given it again at age 14, but it just made my symptoms worse. Of course, being an adolescent alcoholic, I occasionally mixed it with booze. Now, at 34, I'm still hyperactive. Is there anything I can do for myself?

DEAR READER: I think that you need further medical evaluation by a neurologist. Hyperactivity (now called attention deficit disorder) in young people is somewhat different from the condition in adults, when the behavior may really be due to stress and anxiety. As you know, recovering alcoholics must be especially cautious about taking mind-altering substances, because addiction to one drug can often be displaced onto another. Therefore, I believe a qualified neurologist should be able to sort out the functional (physical) problem from the functional (emotional) ones in your case. Then you can examine the treatment options.

To give you more information on where to seek help, I'm sending you a free copy of my Health Report, "Help II: Mental Health and Substance Abuse." Other readers who would like a copy should send $1 and their name and address to P.O. Box 91369, Cleveland, OH 44101-3369. Be sure to mention the title.

DEAR DR. GOTT: About 20 years ago I had a nervous breakdown. I've been taking Stelazine since then. Can you recommend another drug that would have fewer side effects?

DEAR READER: I can't recommend anything without knowing more about your illness. Stelazine is a major tranquilizer that is used for the treatment of severe mental disorders. It is very helpful in allowing certain patients to function in society at large. Like all powerful psychotropic drugs, Stelazine does have side effects, including, drowsiness, weakness, blurred vision and a form of muscle/nerve malfunction that resembles Parkinson's disease. To my knowledge, most major tranquilizers have similar, associated side-effects.

I believe that your question should more appropriately be addressed to your psychiatrist or physician who understands more about you and your medication requirements.

Bentsen reassures liberals with his civil rights record

ATLANTA (AP) — Liberal Democratic delegates, who find Sen. Lloyd Bentsen's civil rights record more palatable than his support for Contra aid, say the closer they get to the smooth-talking Texan the better they like him.

Bentsen, careful not to upstage Michael Dukakis, worked Monday to woo delegates skeptical of him as the vice presidential nominee-to-be. Some found their fears about his conservatism evaporating.

"He doesn't frighten me," said Harry Meshel, minority leader of the Ohio Senate. "You don't expect him to be a loose cannon. That's the kind of thing you're looking for: stability."

"He's smooth, like pouring honey, and I mean that in a complimentary way. If he walked on water, he wouldn't stir it," said Richard Daschbach, a New Hampshire legislator.

Bentsen, a tall imposing figure with a well-spoken patrician air, has been playing down his differences with the liberal Dukakis and urging party togetherness.

He plans to emphasize his civil rights record today with a breakfast salute to the civil rights movement and an outdoor walk with Dukakis and Coretta Scott King, widow of Martin Luther King Jr.

Some delegates made no secret of their disappointment in Dukakis' choice for a running mate. Supporters of Jesse Jackson threatened to challenge Bentsen, but such talk may have been muted by the outcome of Monday's Dukakis-Jackson meeting, which ended with pledges of unity.

Aides say Bentsen did not take part in the talks between Dukakis and Jackson, although he did have two candid telephone conversations with Jackson last week that aides say enabled Jackson and Bentsen to establish a good rapport. Jackson told Bentsen after one call that "you understand grits talk," said Bentsen spokesman Jack Devore.

Bentsen arrived in time for the trio to hold a press conference Monday. Afterward, he told a meeting of Ohio delegates "I just left a meeting with Gov. Dukakis and Jesse Jackson and we have put it all together."

He was well received by the Ohio crowd, despite their hopes that Ohio Sen. John Glenn would get the nod for the ticket's No. 2 spot.

Meshel, the Ohio Senate leader, called the choice "very practical."

"When you analyzed the political landscape, it seemed more important to have Bentsen in terms of winning Texas than it was to have Glenn ... because I think we're strong in Ohio and the Midwest," said Meshel.

The Federal Communications Commission was created in 1934.

Texas treasurer delights delegates

ATLANTA (AP) — Democratic National Convention delegates gave Ann Richards the highest form of praise for her keynote speech. They said they will steal lines from it. "That one about 'That dog don't hunt,'" said delegate Sue Rockne. "That one is going home to Minnesota."

The line, a longtime favorite among Texas politicians, was used by Ms. Richards Monday night to rap Reagan administration military spending.

"When we pay billions for planes that won't fly, billions for tanks that won't fire and billions for systems that won't work, that old dog don't hunt," she said, drawing big laughs.

Texasans said they knew their state treasurer would be a keynote success.

"It was absolutely perfect," said U.S. Rep. John Bryant of Dallas. "It laid open for the whole nation to see the emptiness of Reagan administration policies."

State Democratic Chairman Bob Slagle said South Carolina delegates came to the Texas delegation in search of Richards stickers after the speech.

Delegates from around the nation said they were surprised and pleased by the speech from a woman they knew little about before Monday.

"Great speech. Great timing," said Rudy Clay, an Indiana delegate. "I never heard of her. You can become a star overnight in this ball game."

"I think people picked up some quotes from it that they will remember and use," said Florence Peterson, a Michigan delegate.

Ms. Rockne, the Minnesota delegate who promised to steal some of the best lines, said, "A keynote speech is supposed to fire you up and make you feel good. To use humor when things are this bad is just marvelous."

Small-town woman provides material for keynote speech

ATLANTA (AP) — A small-town Texas woman, confused by how tough life has become for her family, provided material for Ann Richards' big-hit keynote speech.

The unidentified 39-year-old mother of three from Lorena, Texas, was quoted at length by Ms. Richards in her Monday night speech at the Democratic National Convention.

The quotes came from a June 28 letter the woman sent to Ms. Richards after hearing that the Texas state treasurer had been picked for the keynote speech.

"For a number of years I've wondered if people like us are forgotten. We're not the poor and we're not the rich. We're not the very young or the aged. We're the average American family," the woman told Ms. Richards in a hand-written letter on yellow paper.

In her speech, Ms. Richards said the woman's family has been forgotten by a Republican administration that does not care.

Bill Cryer, spokesman for Ms. Richards, said the Lorena woman agreed to let her letter be quoted only if she would not be identified. Cryer refused to release her name.

Lorena is a small town of 800 in Central Texas, not far from Waco, where Ms. Richards grew up.

Lorena Mayor S.B. "Solly" Collins, 62, said the state's economic hard times have taken a toll on the town, which he described as primarily Democratic.

"The last two or three years have been difficult for people who have to make a living," Collins said Monday night. "Some jobs that were union scale have had to drop back for whatever they can gross for."

Ms. Richards said she has not talked with the woman, but would when she gets back to Texas.

The Lorena woman is a college graduate who is an administrator at a mental retardation facility. Her husband, also a college graduate, is a telephone installer. They make $50,000 a year between them. They have a 15-year-old daughter and 12-year-old and 7-year-old sons.

"We, like millions of others, grew up with the idealist thought of making a difference, making the world a better place, fighting world hunger, helping the American Indians," she told Ms. Richards.

"We also grew up with 'Leave It to Beaver' and 'Father Knows Best.' Our mothers didn't work and we didn't grow up with strangers in day care centers," she said.

But, she added, the idealism of youth has given way to hard economic times for families.

"I have no energy left to think of the starvation, injustices and cruelties of the world. I worry about how in the hell am I going to pay the rising car insurance, house insurance and food. I pray my kids don't have a growth spurt from August to December so I have to buy new jeans or shoes," she said in the letter.

"We are people you see every day in grocery stores and on the streets. We obey the laws, pay our taxes and fly our flags on holidays. We are silent people who plod along trying to make it better for ourselves and our children and our parents. We aren't vocal anymore. I think maybe we're too tired," she said.

The woman said she is grateful that her family owns a home and is healthy.

"I do have blessings for those things, but because of all the other horrible things in this world, I believe people like us are forgotten and it's nice to know someone, somewhere is concerned with us," she said.

Rockets trade Reid to Charlotte Hornets

HOUSTON (AP) - Robert Reid, a fixture on the Houston Rockets roster for the past 10 years, says he expects to play several good seasons of basketball and will prove it with the Charlotte Hornets.

Reid, a guard-forward, was traded Monday to the National Basketball Association expansion Charlotte team for guard Bernard Thompson and a second-round draft choice in 1990.

"It's Charlotte's gain," Reid told The Houston Post Monday evening in an airport interview upon his return from a vacation in Cancun, Mexico. "I know I can still play. It's a new career for me. I've got a lot of good ball left. A lot."

Reid said he would definitely report to Charlotte, although he hadn't had a chance to talk with Hornets officials yet. "I don't know who's on their roster, whether (I'll be) a small forward or big guard," he said.

New Rockets Coach Don Chaney said the main reason Reid was released was that once they shed Reid's $475,000-a-year salary, the Rockets had room under the NBA's $6.7 million salary cap for free agent Mike Woodson.

Woodson, a 6-foot-5 shooting guard, who will be signed and introduced by the Rockets at a 2:30 p.m. news conference today.

Woodson, who was making approximately $375,000 with the Los Angeles Clippers, will be paid a salary nearly identical to Reid's by the Rockets.

Chaney found no fault with Reid.

"He would have had a good shot at making the team and contributing," he said.

Girl's gym open at SHS

The girl's gym at Snyder High School will be open Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday night from 6 p.m. to 8 p.m. for anyone wishing to use the facilities.

The gym will be closed the following week while the floor is being refinished.

Battle Anson tonight in Rotan...

All-Stars blank Hamlin, 10-0

ROTAN - Snyder got no-hit pitching from Randall Thomas to blank Hamlin 10-0 here Monday and advance to the finals of area Little League Tournament play.

The All-Stars take on undefeated Anson today at 7 p.m. in the first of what they hope will be two games. A Snyder victory tonight would force a second contest on Thursday since Anson is unbeaten in the double-elimination tournament. Snyder has one loss and would bow out with a defeat this evening.

"The difference in this game (and last Thursday's 6-3 loss to Hamlin) was the kids were ready to hit the ball. They believed they could beat Hamlin and they wanted to show everyone they could," said manager George Page. "Randall pitched a real good ballgame and the defense played well."

Thomas struck out nine batters enroute to the win. More importantly, he gave up only three walks.

Jim Pat Griffin got Snyder's first run when he singled in the second inning, advanced on errors, and came home on a basehit from Thomas. Later, Adrian Sneed rapped a two-out double to score Thomas and Curt Rinehart, who had walked. Sneed then made it a 4-0 ballgame when he dashed in on a wild pitch thrown by Hamlin starting pitcher Richard Lee.

Snyder added five more runs in the fifth. Thomas singled and scored on a triple from Reagan Key. Sneed's second hit of the game pushed Key home. Next-up Jason Pierce walked. Sneed eventually scored on a late throw to first base that also saw Brad Hart reach safely. Pierce and Hart made it home on a two-out single from Jeremy Alarcon.

Snyder's final run came in the sixth as Pierce tripled and scored when the throw-in went into the dugout.

In addition to earning winning pitcher honors, Thomas also earned offensive credits. He was three-for-three from the plate. Hart went three-for-four while Sneed was two-for-three with three RBI and Griffin, Key, Alarcon and Pierce all managed one hit apiece.

Hamlin never got a runner past second base and never sent more than four batters to the plate in any inning.

Valerio Torres helped preserve Thomas' no-hitter in the fifth inning after Scott Latham led off with a walk. Roy Coleman cracked a Thomas pitch to right field for what appeared to be a hit. Torres alertly gloved the ball and made a sharp throw to shortstop Pierce in time to get Latham out at second base, however.

Seve puts name in spotlight with victory at British Open LYTHAM, England (AP) - He is known simply as Seve, one of those first-name-only stars like Arnie or Magic or Reggie.

That type of recognition came to Seve Ballesteros as he became one of golf's dominant figures, winning four majors and taking the top spot in world rankings.

The ranking slipped a bit and some of the adulation went, too, as the Spaniard brooded over losses and feuded with officials in recent years.

But now, Seve is back, reborn on the very hole of the very course where he started to become a household word nine years ago, and in a match he called his best ever.

"I am the same person I was a week ago, but this means I will have more confidence," Ballesteros said Monday after shooting a tournament-low 65 to edge Nick Price by two strokes for his third championship in the British Open.

Ballesteros won his first major on the same Royal Lytham and St. Annes course in 1979. He won the British Open again in 1984 at St. Andrews, and two Masters titles, in 1980 and 1983.

It will be a shot by the shores of the Irish Sea that will spring to mind when Ballesteros looks for inspiration now, one that will find a spot in the lore of golf's oldest tournament and golf itself.

It came late in a classic duel, the front-running Price playing well but, in the end, not well enough.

The South African-born Price, who has applied for U.S. resident status, opened the day with a two-stroke lead over Ballesteros and defending champion Nick Faldo of England.

Price, trying to erase memories of a 1982 final round in the Open, when he blew a three-shot lead with six holes to play, was solidly in front through the first six holes, although Ballesteros matched his birdie-eagle on the par-5 sixth and seventh holes.

Ballesteros kept going and birdied the eighth with an 18-foot putt to tie for first, and stayed even with birdies at 10 and 11.

They got to the 16th hole all even. Faldo had by now fallen away, and the remaining two members of the threesome were in virtual match play, the score now 10-under par.

Ballesteros teed off with a 1-iron to the middle of the fairway on the par-4, then lofted a 9-iron toward the hole. It hit the flagstick and dropped dead, three inches behind the pin.

"He played the winds so well," Price said.

Ballesteros tapped in for birdie-3. Price had an eight-footer to stay even, but two-putted.

The match was as good as over.

"I think the shot I hit at the 16th was very important," said Ballesteros, who sealed the victory with a sand wedge to within four inches of the pin on the final hole.

Price, trying for a birdie that would have sent the weather-plagued tournament into a four-hole playoff, drove a 25-foot putt by the 18th hole and two-putted for bogey-5 coming back.

Lewis stars at Olympic trials

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) - It's two down and one to go for Carl Lewis as he works toward duplicating his 1984 feat of winning three individual Olympic gold medals.

Lewis was pressed to come up with one of his best long jumps ever to extend his streak of victories in the event to 55 Monday at the U.S. Olympic Track and Field Trials. Larry Myricks, the last long jumper to beat Lewis, came up with a personal best of 28 feet, 8 1/4 inches on his third of six jumps.

Lewis, who had a wind-aided 9.78-second clocking Sunday in running the fastest 100 meters ever in the finals of the event, quickly met the challenge. Jumping minutes after Myricks, Lewis topped his meet record by going 28-9. It matched the fifth-best long jump ever.

And the winning leap was accomplished on a runway wet from a heavy rain that began falling with Lewis preparing to take a 28-2 1/4 jump that gave him the lead on his previous jump. Moments after that jump, a heavy downpour halted the competition.

Myricks, who last beat Lewis in the long jump seven years ago, was unable to match the effort on his next three jumps.

"I think this was the best competition he and I had together," Myricks said after making the Olympic team for a fourth time. "My first priority was to make the team. If I had beat him, fine."

In Europe...

Dickey playing summer soccer

Matt Dickey, 15 of Midland, has been competing in an All-American Soccer program in Europe this summer.

Dickey, son of 1967 Snyder High School graduate Buster Dickey, is one of 160 boys across the United States from ages 15 to 19 playing on four teams.

Matt is the grandson of Mr. and Mrs. Owen Dickey of Snyder.

Yankees 7, Rangers 2

New York took control against Texas with a five-run first inning keyed by Joel Skinner's two-run double.

Rich Dotson, 8-3, allowed six hits in 5-2-3 innings.

The Yankees sent nine men to the plate in the first inning, eight of them facing Paul Kilgus, 7-9, who entered the game with a 2-0 record and a 1.38 earned run average against New York this season.

Pete Incaviglia homered for Texas, his 17th.

Astros 6, Expos 1

Joaquin Andujar got his first victory in more than a year with home-run support from Kevin Bass and Buddy Bell as Houston won at Montreal.

Andujar, 1-4, gave up one run in six innings to win for the first time since July 2, 1987, for Oakland. Danny Darwin closed with one-hit relief in his second save.

Bass hit a three-run homer in the first inning after an RBI single by Glenn Davis. An error by second baseman Tom Foley set up the four unearned runs off Bryn Smith, 6-6.

Tour de France

LUZ-ARDIDEN, France (AP) - Spain's Pedro Delgado all but wrapped up the Tour de France title, padding his lead in a mountainous 15th stage that saw three other top riders drop out.

But it's no big deal. I'll be jumping a couple of years from now, so I still have a lot of time."

Myricks and Mike Powell, who fouled four consecutive times before going 27-5 1/4 on his final attempt to place third, also are heading to the Olympics in Seoul, South Korea.

The trials take a break today, and, after resuming Wednesday, will continue through Saturday.

While Lewis was outdueling Myricks, another Lewis - Steve - ran one of the greatest 400-meter races in history.

Steve Lewis, a 19-year-old freshman at UCLA, won his 400-meter semifinal heat in 44.11 - a half-second quicker than the world junior record of 44.61 he had set one day earlier.

It also was the second-fastest time run at sea level, behind only the 44.10 by Butch Reynolds of the United States last year.

Kim Gallagher, the 1984 Olympic silver medalist who had been struggling the past three years because of physical ailments, won the women's 800 meters in 1:58.01, the fifth-fastest time ever by an American. It made her the No. 3 U.S. performer, behind only Mary Decker Slaney and 1968 Olympic champion Madeline Manning.

Johnny Gray, the American record-holder in the men's 800, broke the Indiana University Track and Field Stadium record in winning in 1:43.96. National champion Mark Everett finished second in 1:46.46, with Tracy Baskin third in 1:44.91. Both ran personal bests.

Wright: public not concerned about allegations against him

ATLANTA (AP) — House Speaker Jim Wright believes his ethics problems are fading into the background as he takes the gavel at the Democratic National Convention, but Republicans are continuing to pester him about the issue.

A conservative Washington-based GOP group, Citizens for Reagan, filed a new complaint with the Federal Election Commission as the convention began. But Wright offered a spirited self-defense in an interview Monday, and a Republican "truth squad" dispatched to Atlanta did not mention Wright's case at its news conference.

"So what?" says Wright. "I think that's basically the attitude of the public."

Wright was formally installed as convention chairman Monday night and is scheduled to deliver a 10-minute speech tonight that will boast of Congress' accomplishments this year under his leadership.

As he wielded the chairman's gavel, Wright seemed as at ease as if he were in his home perch, presiding over the House of Representatives. After one interlude when delegates danced to a rock 'n' roll tune, he encouraged the audience in The Omni arena: "We're going to look good on television tonight."

The mood seemed far away from some Democrats' pre-convention worries that Wright's problems might taint the proceedings and tarnish the image the party is trying to project in its bid to regain the White House.

Rep. Tom DeLay, R-Texas, a member of the GOP hit team, said the silence on the conflict-of-interest allegations against Wright did not mean the issue had evaporated. He said Republicans would rather focus on their charges that Democrats are trying to hide from their liberal records.

"That message has overshadowed Jim Wright's problems," DeLay said. He hinted that harsh criticism of outgoing Attorney General Edwin Meese III in an independent counsel's report Monday may also have blunted the issue.

"There's enough sleaze to go around, and I think everybody's trying to stay away from that," DeLay said in an interview.

Vice President George Bush, the GOP presidential candidate, has used Wright's problems as a theme in campaign speeches but has eased the attacks since Meese announced plans to resign.

"I'd say before it's all over there will be a few more shots taken at Jim Wright," said Lee Atwater, Bush's spokesman. Easing the attacks "doesn't mean he's out of our crosshairs."

Wright said the Citizens for Reagan effort to revive the ethics issue would backfire. The group's complaint filed Monday with the FEC charged that Wright used a book he wrote as a way to circumvent limits on campaign contributions.

"It is an absolutely baseless, politically motivated effort," Wright said. "The obvious repetition of the very same baseless things reveals the bankruptcy of their claims."

He said the complaint was obviously timed to embarrass him at the convention.

Wright said he had not shied away from the convention podium because of the criticism. "Nobody likes for people to be saying unkind things about him," he said. "But the only way around it is right straight through it. I will be stronger because of it."

The House ethics committee has been probing charges that Wright made unduly large royalties on his book, "Reflections of a Public Man." The book was printed by a longtime campaign contractor for the speaker and edited by a member of Wright's congressional staff.

Also under investigation are charges that Wright improperly intervened with federal regulators on behalf of Texas businesses.

Wright's attorney, William Oldaker, said he believes the panel will appoint an independent counsel soon and complete its investigation relatively quickly.

SPORTSCARD

Don Mattingly

This 26-year-old first baseman for the New York Yankees is one of the best players in baseball. His career batting average is .332. In each of the past three seasons, he has averaged 30 home runs and 123 RBIs.

In the early morning hours of April 15, 1912, the Titanic, a luxury liner on its maiden voyage, sank in the North Atlantic off Newfoundland less than three hours after striking an iceberg. Some 1,500 of the more than 2,200 people aboard died in the disaster.

The city of San Francisco was incorporated in 1850.

Rare dolphins said doomed without aid

BEIJING (AP) — The Yangtze River dolphin is rarer than the panda but also less famous and less cuddly and that means it may be doomed, says visiting American dolphin trainer Ric O'Barry.

The huggable, black-and-white visage of a panda looking out from World Wildlife Fund advertisements around the world has helped raise thousands of dollars to save the fewer than 1,000 pandas left in Chinese forests.

But there are no international fund-raising efforts to save the 200 to 300 squinty-eyed, bat-nosed river dolphins. They are dying out as their only native home, China's Yangtze River, becomes increasingly congested and polluted.

That's where O'Barry comes in.

The trainer of the world's most famous dolphin, Flipper, who starred in a U.S. television series in the 1960s, O'Barry met last week with Chinese dolphin experts in the central city of Wuhan. Now he is heading back to the United States to try to launch an emergency campaign to save the dying dolphins.

"They're beautiful. They're bright and very friendly," he said in a telephone interview. But without quick action, he said, "I'm afraid these dolphins may be doomed."

O'Barry's Chinese colleagues were more optimistic, but agreed speedy action is needed.

"The number of dolphins has reached a critical level," said Liu Renjun, an associate professor at the Wuhan Institute of Hydrobiology.

"The dolphins can be protected," he said, but only with hard work and thousands of dollars that China lacks.

The Yangtze River dolphins are relatives of the common dolphin found worldwide. Like the common dolphin, they grow to more than seven feet and have a dorsal fin. Their snouts are narrower, "like a small baseball bat," O'Barry said, and their skin is whiter.

Both kinds rely mainly on sonar to find food and navigate — and this is part of the river dolphins' problem.

The Yangtze River, long a commercial thoroughfare, has become jammed in recent decades with boats whose engine roars confuse the dolphins' sonar. Scientists think the hum of propellers often lures dolphins to their death.

Commercial fishing is depleting their food source, and many dolphins get caught in fishermen's hooks. Industrial pollution sickens those who survive.

Only two exist in captivity, in a cement tank at the Wuhan institute. There, Liu and about two dozen other researchers are trying to learn more about river dolphins, especially how to breed them.

No river dolphin has ever been born in captivity.

O'Barry and the Chinese agree on the need to set up a sanctuary along the Yangtze River where the dolphins can live naturally but with special protections from fishermen and traffic.

Liu said the institute has located a potential site upstream from Wuhan where many river dolphins congregate naturally. The project will cost as much as $81,000, but so far the institute has no money.

Another dolphin expert, Dr. Zhou Kaiya of the Nanjing Normal University, has separately started building a large holding pond for dolphins in the channel between two Yangtze islands further downstream in Anhui province.

O'Barry was enthusiastic about both plans, and said he will ask U.S. companies that do business in China to help underwrite them.

He also hopes to use his old Hollywood connections to organize a televised fundraiser for the dolphins.

Victim of store collapse has more surgery

GALVESTON, Texas (AP) — A teen-ager whose leg was amputated after she was pinned beneath the rubble of a collapsed department store roof for more than 20 hours will probably be released from the hospital in two weeks, doctors said.

Yvette Lire, 13, of Brownsville, was in fair and stable condition Monday after undergoing more surgery for an infection on her right leg, which was earlier amputated below the knee, said Leeann Teymour, a spokeswoman at the University of Texas Medical Branch in Galveston.

Composer Richard Strauss was born in 1864.

Iraq claims it downs Iranian warplane

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — The Iran-Iraq war could be halted within a week, Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar predicted after Iran accepted a U.N. cease-fire plan. But the belligerents were fighting again today.

Iraqi warplanes attacked a nuclear plant and other Iranian industrial targets today, Iran said a day after reversing itself in announcing it would accept a year-old U.N. resolution calling for a truce in the 8-year-old war.

The conflict has claimed an estimated 1 million lives. Iran said it shot down three Iraqi jet fighters today and Iraq said it downed two Iranian warplane. But both sides claimed their planes all returned safely to base.

Iran's official Islamic Republic News Agency also said Iraqi air raids near the city of Ahvaz in Khuzestan province killed and injured an unspecified number of people and inflicted some damage.

Iraq, which already has accepted terms of the resolution, expressed skepticism about its rival's abrupt about-face.

Baghdad said the reversal may have been prompted by "tactical reasons" — Iran's recent battlefield defeats — rather than by a desire for peace. Iran's economy has also suffered deeply.

World leaders generally praised Iran's announcement and expressed hope it would lead to an end to the conflict that has endangered commercial shipping in the gulf's busy waters and heightened the U.S. military presence in the region.

Perez de Cuellar said he would assemble a 10-member team and another force of at least 250 U.N. military observers to monitor a prospective truce.

"If I'm lucky, I may have a cease-fire in a week to 10 days," he said.

The Peruvian said he also would dispatch U.N. teams to both countries at the end of the week to work on an early prisoner exchange.

Perez de Cuellar said acceptance of the resolution by both combatants is a breakthrough toward peace.

"The resolution is a peace plan," he said, "and it covers all aspects. It is fully implemented, I think it means an end of the conflict."

The Tehran government, battered by a string of recent military defeats and seeking a Security Council call for the withdrawal of the U.S. Navy

Rollover has no injuries

A county man escaped injury when his car overturned on a county road north of Snyder Sunday night, the Department of Public Safety reported.

Gabino M. Hernandez of Clairemont Rt. was northbound on County Road 227 1/4 miles north of town when his 1977 Pontiac Grand Prix went out of control, skidded 325 feet on the roadway and 69 feet on the shoulder before overturning.

Hernandez walked to a nearby house following the 6:30 p.m. mishap, a DPS trooper said.

The DPS also investigated a 6:35 p.m. Monday accident in a convenience store parking lot at U.S. 84 and U.S. 180 in which a parked 1988 Plymouth Voyager van owned by Leslie D. Hancock of Brownfield was hit and damaged by a 1982 GMC Sierra driven by Clyde C. Carter of Andrews.

Pair arrested for ballpark break-in Police Monday afternoon arrested two juvenile boys in connection with a June 23 break-in at the Little League ballpark concession stand in which a quantity of candy was stolen.

The boys, 14 and 15 years of age, were reported to juvenile authorities and released to their parents, and a third suspect was still being sought, a city detective said.

A 37-year-old man was arrested for public intoxication at 8:16 p.m. Monday in the 1100 Block of 14th St.

City wreck noted

A 1973 Plymouth four-door driven by Hubert L. Newby of Box 971 was in collision with a 1985 Ford four-door driven by Johnnie J. Penn of Rt. 2 at 6:12 p.m. Monday in the 3600 Block of Ave. M.

from the gulf, said Monday it would accept the truce resolution without condition.

The Security Council was to reconvene today to discuss a U.S. warship's downing July 3 of an Iranian airliner, which killed 290 people.

Iran contends the U.S. Navy's presence in the gulf made the disaster inevitable, but has been unable to collect enough votes to condemn Washington.

U.S. officials say the plane was shot down in self-defense because the crew of the USS Vincennes thought the A300 Airbus was an Iranian F-14 jet fighter.

During debate last week, the United States, Soviet Union, Britain, France, China and others all told Iran that its failure to accept the cease-fire resolution caused the hostile atmosphere that led to the jetliner disaster.

Security Council Resolution 598, which was adopted July 20, 1987, demands an immediate cease-fire in the war, a troop withdrawal, a prisoner exchange and the creation of a comprehensive peace plan.

It also calls for formation of an impartial commission to determine responsibility for the conflict. Iraq invaded Iran in September 1980 after several border skirmishes.

Perez de Cuellar met separately Monday with Iranian Ambassador Mohammad Ja'afar Mahallati and Iraqi Ambassador Ismat T. Kittani. There was no word on the results of the talks.

President Ali Khamenei of Iran, in his letter to Perez de Cuellar accepting the resolution, cited the airliner downing and said the gulf war is "engulfing innocent civilians."

"In this context, we have decided to officially declare that the Islamic Republic of Iran — because of the importance it at-

Crime show leads to the arrest of wanted murderer

EL CENTRO, Calif. (AP) — A fugitive charged with his wife's slaying in Louisiana nearly 11 months ago was in custody today thanks to a TV crime show that his roommates watched as he slept, authorities said.

Robert Wayne Fisher, 47, was being held in the Imperial County jail here pending extradition proceedings to return him to Louisiana, where he faces second-degree murder charges, said police Sgt. Ray Loera.

Fisher was arrested Sunday on a federal warrant for unlawful

In an aside during the session, City Engineer Don Osborn reported that no lime has had to be added to city water recently because of a satisfactory Ph content and that the new rapid mix basin at the water treatment plant has resulted in almost a 50-percent reduction in the addition of alum to the water supply.

The meeting was attended by Mayor Troy Williamson and council members Paul Zeck, Vernest Tippens, Joe Coronado, Jack Greene Jr. and John Johnson. Ralph Williamson was absent.

WHO FRAMED ROGER RABBIT? (PG) The magic of movies is in their unpredictability. If you were looking for cinematic greatness, you might look right past this whimsical tale of a private eye (Bob Hoskins) trying to solve the murder of a Hollywood mogul — a crime charged to a cartoon rabbit named Roger who labors with other "toon" actors in making animated shorts!

However, "Who Framed Roger Rabbit?" is a brilliant entertainment, the commercial movie of the year to date. Only viewers who hate cartoons should steer clear of this Robert Zemeckis-directed extravaganza — and even they may be pleasantly surprised by the movie's blend of the mad and the marvelous.

As he proved in "Used Cars" and "Back to the Future," Zemeckis has a dazzling sense of slapstick. Happily, slapstick is the unifying force here — binding the movie's wild cartoon universe with its mock-'noir' re-creation of a hard-edged '40s detective flick.

A special-effects tour-de-force, the movie is also a kinetic delight. It has the hurrying pace of a great roller coaster ride without, however, giving you a coaster's headache or upset stomach. Zemeckis and his inventive writers have taken care to vary their tricks, and their film is festooned with jokes and puns that come at you al-flight shortly after being profiled on Fox Broadcasting Co.'s "America's Most Wanted," Loera said.

He was sleeping when police in this Imperial Valley farming town about 110 miles east of San Diego entered his room in a residential motel after receiving tips from his two roommates and the motel manager, Loera said.

Fisher's arrest was the 18th credited to tips from the show's viewers, Fox spokesman Jack Breslin said.

Fisher's wife, Tamara Lee, was shot to death Aug. 26, 1987. Fisher had been sought since skipping a Jan. 11 arraignment in Calcasieu Parish in southwestern Louisiana while free on a $175,000 bond, officials said.

He also faces charges of indecent behavior with a minor and firearms violations, according to the FBI's New Orleans office.

Almost immediately after "America's Most Wanted" broadcast Sunday night, the FBI received several calls about Fisher "from people in El Centro who knew him and worked with him, including his roommate," said James Bolenbach, an agent in San Diego.

Motel manager Shari Jones said Fisher registered in his real name, and used his Social Security number at work.

Eighteen of 72 fugitives profiled on "America's Most Wanted" over the past two years have been arrested as the result of viewer tips, Breslin said in Los Angeles.

Another 10 fugitives featured on the program were arrested, and authorities cited publicity from the show as helpful in those cases, Breslin said.

Column repairs 'on schedule'

The Sun Plant's two stripper columns were replaced in February and March of 1986.

The bid to be let to the George P. Reintjes Co. involves only the cladding overlay, a specialized welding process which involves fusing the stainless steel onto the existing inner wall.

To accomplish this, the absorber columns, which are 12 ft in diameter, are to be "guttered" with scaffolding built inside to accommodate as many as 10 automatic welding machines manned by technicians.

The cost of the cladding process as well as the expense of the stainless steel material is to be in the range of $2 million.

AS early as next week, SACRO hopes to let a second bid
