The right way to take medicine

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT: Recently, articles have appeared advising senior citizens against taking combinations of fruit, particularly orange juice, plus various calcium supplements and vitamins, with blood-pressure medications. Should calcium and vitamins be taken later in the day?

DEAR READER: I am not aware of any across-the-board prohibitions against taking medicine with fruit, juice or vitamins. It's true that calcium should not be taken with any medications; the mineral can bind with the medicine and prevent it from being absorbed in the body. Some drugs are absorbed less effectively in an acid environment; therefore, taking them simultaneously with vitamin C (ascorbic acid) is unwise. For the average elderly person, orange juice should be no problem. However, it's always best to check with your doctor or pharmacist in the event that your medicine and your dietary preferences might make for a unique situation.

I advise taking calcium (or dairy products) about an hour before or after medicine, so that the mineral will not interfere with the drug's absorption.

To give you more information on how - and what - to find out about medications, I am sending you a free copy of my Health Report, "Consumer Tips on Medicine." Other readers who would like a copy should send $1 and their name and address to P.O. Box 91369, Cleveland, OH 44101-3369. Be sure to mention the title.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I have overactive saliva glands, which cause very annoying, thick, sticky, large amounts of saliva. Ear, nose and throat specialists haven't been able to pinpoint a cure. I'm on antidepressants and have diverticulosis.

DEAR READER: Overproduction of saliva is a common consequence of foreign material in the mouth; this material can range from chewing gun to dentures. In addition, some particularly tense and nervous persons may have an idiosyncratic reaction: Rather than experiencing the usual dry mouth, they produce excess saliva. Some medicines, including antidepressants, inhibit formation of saliva. I doubt that diverticulosis, a common and harmless bowel condition, is contributing to your problem.

I suggest that you see a dentist since the ENT specialists haven't been able to diagnose your problem. Dentists are often very skilled at diagnosing conditions affecting the mouth.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I'm 51, still menstruating and have osteopenia. My doctors give me Premarin and Provera. Will the artificial hormones cause problems, since I am still producing my own?

DEAR READER: Although you are still menstruating, I am sure that your level of natural hormones is below normal. The doctors are simply replacing your hormones with a synthetic variety. At your age, the combination of your hormones plus the drugstore hormones should produce no problems whatsoever. Remember that as long as you take hormones in a regular cycle, you will have menstrual periods. In addition, remember to follow your doctor's advice with respect to how often you need checkups.

With synthetic hormones replacing your own, the natural tendency of the bones to lose calcium will be slowed. You can aid this process by eating a balanced diet and exercising regularly.

I dedicate this to the nurse who refused to give me information about my father's condition after he was admitted to a hospital critical care unit.

As an insider, a practicing physician who takes care of hospital patients, I know that the nurse's behavior was standard, ethical and professional. It was also unkind and insensitive. Because I chose by play the role of an outsider, an unsophisticated family member, I learned a lot about the manner in which family members are handled in health-care institutions. Here is what happened:

I was notified that, because of pneumonia, my father had been admitted to a large hospital in an adjoining state. After making my own rounds on Saturday, I drove an hour to the hospital, parked in the visitors' lot, presented myself at the front desk, properly obtained a pass and took the elevator to the critical care unit on the second floor.

Like similar units in other hospitals, the CCU was geared to the care and treatment of very ill patients who could not be safely monitored in what are called "floor beds" - ordinary hospital rooms. The quiet efficiency of the nurses, the beep-beeping of the machines, the IV lines and the appurtenances of modern high-tech medicine were familiar to me. However, I remembered how intimidating this environment could be to the medical neophyte. I resolved to play dumb. "How is Mr. Gott today?" I asked the nurse. "His condition is stable," she replied. 'What are his vital signs?" I inquired, referring to the bread-andbutter data concerning temperature, respiratory rate, pulse and blood

"I can't give you that information," she answered as she briskly turned on "How about his antibiotics? What is he getting?" I asked.

"I can't discuss that with you. You'll have to check with the doctor." she stated over her shoulder.

I fought the impulse to disclose my true identity. I wasn't a mere mortal: was a physician; in other circumstances, I'd be giving her the orders. Seeing no easy way to change from a street disguise into my red-caped Superman outfit, I shuffled after her.

"Tell me," I persisted, "is this a hospital regulation or your own "It's just the way it is," she snapped. I relinquished control and visited my father. After establishing, as well as I could without giving the game away, that he was sick but comfortable, I approached the ward clerk. "If you'll show me where the kitchenette is, I'll get my father some

"That's not permitted," she said with a smile. "You'll have to ask the nurse, and she is very busy."

"OK," I responded, "may I call the

"The pay phone is in the hall," she frostily replied. Evidently, I was taking on the appearance of a troublemaker.

After further negotiation, I was able to place the call from the nurses' station. The doctor was off duty and unavailable. While waiting for the call to go through, I glanced at an open chart on the counter. It was my father's. Without touching the papers, I was able to ascertain that his heart and kidneys were malfunctioning, his blood potassium was low and he was receiving digitalis and antibiotics.

After a few more minutes in my father's room, I left because he was tiring. I decided to call his doctor on Monday in order to receive my own personal report.

This brief encounter reinforced my belief that patients' families are often sadly misinformed about what is going on. Nurses and doctors behave according to the strict rules of the profession. These rules may be appropriate, but they can lead to an organizational insensitivity. At any time I could have blurted: "Look, I'm a doctor and I want you to answer my specific questions." Then all hell would have broken loose and I would have been given the red-carpet treatment, complete with a tour of the facility. I didn't, so I was treated as any layman would be treated: Given general information that served only to distance me from the problems at hand and reassure me that appropriate care was being administered.

I realized that this is the way things are done in most hospitals. I understand why. This is the system. I'm part of it. Still, it's been said that doc tors and nurses should periodically become patients in their own hospitals in order to appreciate patients' isolation and to gain empathy. Perhaps the next best thing might be for health professionals to pay an incognito visit to a sick loved one, just to experience what it feels like to be in another world.

Send your questions to Dr. Gott in care of this newspaper at P.O. Box 91369, Cleveland, OH 44101-3369. Due to volume of mail, individual questions cannot be answered. Questions of general interest will be answered in future columns.

Rep. Peter Rodino, D-N.J., chairman of the House Judiciary Committee, has agreed with that view. The 1978 ethics law, designed to guard against any conflict of interest by having an outside person handle investigations, does not specifically spell out that legislators are covered.

Day-long programs set by museum staff

Three programs for elementary-aged youngsters, two dealing with the Plains Indians and a third focusing on pioneer leather works, have been scheduled this week at the Scurry County Museum on the campus of Western Texas College.

For children ages 5-7, a program about the Plains Indians is set Tuesday from 10 a.m. until 3 p.m.

On Wednesday, a similar program will be offered for those ages 8-10. It will also be from 10 a.m. until 3 p.m.

The Thursday program, entitled The Leather Shop, will be from 9 a.m. until 3 p.m. and it will be offered for those age 9-11. Fees will include $6 for members of the Museum Association and $7 for non-members for the Plains Indian workshops. The Thursday program dealing with leather goods will have a fee of $8 for members and $9 for non-members.

Children will be required to bring a sack lunch for all programs and the museum will provide drinks.

During the Indian program, children will eat their lunch in an Indian tepee and participate in hands-on projects such as making gourd rattles and Indian necklaces. They will study the Indian lifestyle to include what they ate, the clothing they wore and the games they played.

The third program, The Leather Shop, is a study of this early pioneer trade to include the making of saddles, boots and other leather apparatus. The children will participate in leather crafts during the morning and will take a field trip during the after-

Cat's Death Leaves Woman With Memories of Neglect

DEAR ABBY: I am writing partly as therapy to help me get over my devastating loss, and partly to warn others so they won't have to live with the kind of guilt I am experiencing. preprinted thank-you notes for

Last week, "Tissiack," my beautiful cat, died suddenly of unknown causes. I'd had her for 13 years since she was a tiny kitten.

I cannot describe the depth of my sorrow or the terrible emptiness left by her death. It's almost as though I had lost a child. What really torments me is that in the weeks before her death I had been neglecting her. When she would come to me pleading with her eyes and body to be held and petted, I pushed her away because I was either trying to read, or was too busy with one trivial thing after another.

I used to give her so much attention, "talking to her," playing with her, and stroking her, but these last few years, after I married and had a child, I gave her less and less of my time and attention. She would come to me anyway giving me her total devotion unconditionally. I took her for granted, callously shoving her away - even when she was hungry - because I wanted to do "just one more thing" before feeding her.

Each memory of Tissiack's pleas for my attention that I ignored is like a knife twisting in my heart. I would give anything to have her back to give her just one last hug.

I cannot eat, and I sleep only fitfully, awakening to sickening waves of grief and guilt. The vet could find nothing wrong with her. I keep thinking she died of a broken

Aquino urged to resign post

MÄNILA, Philippines (AP) — Vice President Salvador Laurel on Saturday accused President Corazon Aquino of incompetence and urged her to resign, and he said if she didn't leave office, he would.

The president accused Laurel of not taking an active role in her government and said at times he was more interested in playing golf than in attending urgent Cabinet sessions.

Laurel told a news conference he sent a four-page letter to Mrs. Aquino earlier Saturday telling her his views.

"Madame President: the time has come to tell our people with humility and candor that the presidency itself is the problem because the task requires a higher level of competence - in the face of advancing communist insurgency, the breakdown of law and order, the resurgence of widespread corruption, the paralyzation of the political will and the growing desperation of our people," Laurel said, reading from the letter.

Cruz knocks opponent out

PASADENA, Texas (AP) Steve Cruz used an overhand right at 1:01 in the fourth to stop Fred "Tank" Adams in the fourth round to win the World Boxing Council Continental America's featherweight title by a knockout.

After two rounds of punishment and two minutes of persuasion from his corner Friday night, Cruz, 24, began returning Adams' right crosses.

Adams, 18, of Detroit caught Cruz flat-footed in the opening round and landed a hard right in the ribs of the former world champion. "I wasn't moving like I should have (in the first two rounds) and he was really tagging me," Cruz said. "And my corner really gave me hell about it. I started landing the right to the body and that took a lot of steam out of him."

Cruz dropped Adams with a right to the head for a standing eight-count at 2:15 in the third. The blow took some of the charge out of Adams and Cruz quickly pressed his advantage in the fourth.

The victory gives Cruz a 30-3 record with 16 knockouts and keeps alive his chances for another title bout.

In undercard action, Scott Johnson defeated an overmatched Andrew Banks by technical knockout of a scheduled four-round welterweight bout.

Johnson stunned Banks with several lefts to the head and midsection before referee Robert Gonzales stopped the contest at 1:45 in the round.

La Porte's Darriel Collins stopped Manuel Estrada of San Antonio in the professional debut for both fighters.

Collins scored continuously with combinations to Estrada's head in the first two rounds. Referee Tony Shelsky stopped the fight 52 seconds into the third round of their junior welterweight fight.

Troy Dorsey of Fort Worth knocked down Albert Santana of San Antonio three times in the first round of their featherweight bout en route to a first-round technical knockout.

NEW YORK (AP) - Running eighth player suspended by the dianapolis Colts was notified Friday that he has been banned from further participation in the NFL in accordance with the NFL's substance abuse policy," NFL spokesman Joe Browne said in a statement.

"As per that policy, Collins has been told that he may petition for reinstatement after one year. A decision at that time, will be conditioned on several factors, including total avoidance of further drug-related involvement and any other conduct detrimental to the integrity of professional football and confidence in it."

Collins, who rushed for 4,747 yards in seven years with the Patriots, underwent drug rehabilitation in 1986, after he was identified after New England's Super Bowl loss to Chicago as one of six Patriots who had been involved with drugs.

Last year, in the strikeshortened season, he led New England in both rushing and receiving - 474 yards in 147 carries and 52 catches for 347 yards.

Last May, the Patriots relinquished his signing rights after he was reported to have undergone drug rehabilitation for a second time.

Nix injured; Watermelon Bowl staged

It was the old 'good news, bad news' story at the Tiger football camp Friday.

The good news, according to Coach David Baugh, was "The kids got after it pretty good," in the first day of wearing pads. "We did some full speed drills. They are coming around. It's taking some time, but we're getting a little bit better."

The bad news was that tackle Billy Nix, a returning veteran, has apparently suffered a stress fracture in his left foot. The problem could be only minor, but the team will not know until early next week after further X-rays and doctor's reports.

Coach Baugh noted that Clint Haywood has been brought up from the junior varsity to help fill in on the line.

Nix is the second grid casuality. Freshman player Roe Patterson suffered a leg fracture earlier in the week.

Saturday's agenda was to feature the "Watermelon Bowl" a couple of intrasquad scrimmages between the freshmen and junior varsity and the varsity and junior varsity beginning at 8:30 a.m. The scrimmages were to end with a watermelon feast.

Yett beats heat, Rangers 6-3

CLEVELAND (AP) - Rich Yett has the type of qualities that Cleveland manager Doc Edwards would like to see in all of his players.

"He hangs in there. Richie's got a ton of guts," Edwards said after Yett battled the heat to beat the Texas Rangers 6-3 Friday

"He used everything he had and went right at them," Edwards added.

Yett, 6-4, won for the first time since June 8th, allowing three runs, two earned, on five hits in 6 1-3 innings. He was on the disabled list June 14 to Aug. 4 with a pulled ribcage muscle.

Nicklaus, Ballesteros fall, others shine at PGA event

Tree Golf Club's par-71 was a record-shattering joke again at the 70th PGA Championship but Jack Nicklaus and Seve Ballesteros weren't laughing.

On the lowest scoring day in PGA history which saw Paul Azinger take the 36-hole lead by a stroke, five-times PGA champion Nicklaus and British Open champion Ballesteros had disasters on Nicklaus made one of the few nines of his illustrious career, losing two balls on the par-5 No. 16, and headed home with a 72-79-151 total.

Ballesteros butchered the 149yard par-3 No. 13 and left for Spain with rounds of 71-75-146. He made a triple bogey six on the short hole.

Azinger, the 1987 PGA Player of the Year, shot a 5-under par 66 for a 36-hole total of 9-under par 133. He had a one-shot lead over Bob Knepper, 12-4, allowed Florida club pro Jay Overton, after he allowed six hits in 8 1-3 four runs and nine hits in 6 1-3 inwho also shot 66.

Southwest Savings announces plans to consolidate

ings Association announced Friday it will eliminate 15 of its 109 branch offices in Texas by mid-September as part of a federal plan to revive the state's troubled thrift industry. The offices scheduled for closing in the first stage of the association's consolidation program are located throughout Texas, including Dallas, Houston and Austin, said C. Todd Miller. chairman and president of Dallas-based Southwest Savings.

The move is part of the "Southwest Plan" announced by the Federal Home Loan Bank Board earlier this year and designed to lessen competition for deposits and loans in the thrift market.

"One of the fundamental parts of the Southwest Plan is to establish viability through consolidation," Miller said. "We feel like this is a good step forward, and progress is being made."

Customers affected by the move are being notified by mail, Miller said.

He added that it has not been determined how many layoffs will occur as a result of the consolidation.

"We just basically think that very few (workers) will be affected," he said. "I know its less than 50.

Since Southwest Savings acquired four insolvent savings and loans in May, the association has eliminated 186 positions through attrition, according to a prepared statement by Southwest Savings. That represents about 10 percent of a 1,950-person work force.

'We have tried to create openings from the attrition," Miller said.

Figuring costs on Mutual Funds Shares

Mutual funds are long-term investments, so many add to their original deposit or reinvest capital gains and dividends into additional shares to enjoy the benefits of compounding. Mutual funds are so designed for these conveniences.

At some point, you may decide to liquidate all or part of your mutual fund shares. When you do so, there could be additional taxes due on capital gains not realized until shares are sold. How do you figure your cost for tax purposes?

If you decide to close your account by liquidating all shares, simply add up all your purchases, including your original investment, and all dividends and capital gains that were reinvested into additional shares. This is your total "cost basis." When you receive your check from the mutual fund company for the liquidation of your account, the difference between that amount and your total cost basis is your capital gain or loss.

Liquidating part of your mutual fund shares requires a sharper pencil. The IRS will accept any one of three methods--the average cost method, the first-in, first-out method and the specific identification method.

The average cost method begins with totaling your deposits and reinvestments for your total cost basis. Next, divide this by the number of shares owned to find average cost per share. Multiply this by the number of shares redeemed for the cost basis of your redemption, and compare this with your redemption proceeds. The difference is your capital gain or loss.

The first-in, first-out method considers the first shares you purchased, regardless of cost, as the first shares to be sold. Examine your mutual fund statements to find the purchase price of these shares, whether bought through direct investment or reinvestment.

The last method is to identify the shares you wish to sell before you sell them. Instruct your mutual fund company or broker to sell shares purchased on a specific date or beginning with and continuing through specific dates. This allows you to pick the shares that will create the lowest tax consequence.

Once you have begun using one of these liquidation methods, you must continue using that method with that fund.

Many mutual fund shareholders, deliquent in their recordkeeping, may be unable to find statements of their transactions. If this is true of your case, take heart. Most mutual funds will furnish you with copies of your statements at a reasonable cost.

By Shirley A. Gorman

Essie Orms of Snyder will be 96 years old on her next birthday-September 3--and even though she has arthritis in both knees, she tries to do as much as she can to keep busy and productive. She walks with the aid of a walker and still tries to can fruit and vegetables with assistance.

Mrs. Orms came to Snyder 36 years ago to be near her son, J.T., after her husband, Lewis, died. They had been living in White Oak, Tex. on 137 acres of land with 30 oil wells on it.

"My husband never taught me anything about business and when he died suddenly of a heart attack people took advantage of me. I lost a lot of money because I got tired of people bothering me all the time and I sold out," Mrs. Orms said.

Mrs. Orms and her husband had been farmers until they struck oil on their property in White Oak. She fondly remembers the home she used to share with her husband and regrets losing it.

Mrs. Orms is an independent woman who has worked at various jobs to "earn an honest living" and in her younger days she traveled quite extensively including a four month stay in Lima, Peru to visit her son Clyde who then lived there. He now lives in Florida.

She said she flew by herself to Dallas first and then flew to Lima, Peru. "I wasn't afraid, but I felt the prayers of a lot of people on my trip."

While in Peru Mrs. Orms had to have an interpreter but otherwise she had a "grand time." "I met some very lovely people who hugged me all the time and I was invited into some of the finest homes."

Shortly before her arrival a flood struck Peru, washing away houses and sides of the mountains. The Southern Baptist Association donated food and Mrs. Orms helped to sort it out and distribute it while she was there.

She said she visited lots of Indian museums and still has a lot of souvenirs from her trip.

"I wanted to meet one Southern Baptist missionary and I ended up meeting 10," she said. "Years later one of them even came to Snyder to visit me."

Mrs. Orms has also traveled in Mexico where she said she saw children begging in the streets and graves that had been dug up because the rent had not been paid.

One time she stayed four months in New York City where she nursed a sick man. That was in 1949 a few years after her husband died.

Mrs. Orms was what was then called a practical nurse. She learned the basics from her mother who was a registered nurse who taught her daughters what she knew and later she took a course through the Red Cross.

She nursed sick people for years, even after moving to Snyder, but now due to arthritis in both knees she can no longer care for other people.

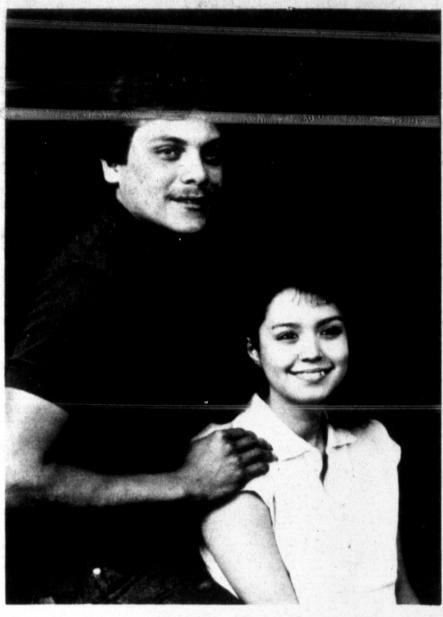

Mrs. Orms said she never turned down any honest job and remembers that one time she was even asked to cook a Christmas dinner for a client.

"I've done all kinds of honest work. I always found something to do," Mrs. Orms said.

When she served as a practical nurse in Snyder, she said her starting pay was 50 cents an hour. "One time I found out that someone else was getting more than I was being paid so I started

GIVE YOUR HOUSE A BATH

Your house may not need a paint job this summer, but it could probably use a bath.

Scrubbing down exterior walls once or twice a year improves their appearance and alerts homeowners to small problems that can be corrected before they become serious.

Start by giving siding and trim a good scrubbing with a light detergent and rinsing it away. As dirt washes away, look for mildew, popped nails and minor cracks that need caulking.

Homeowners pay particular attention to areas under eaves, porches and other sheltered places.

House paints are designed to chalk, or gradually wear away with exposure to rain. This selfcleaning action doesn't occur in protected zones, so you can help maintain an even color on the house by washing those areas.

If you find dark, rash-like spots that won't wash off siding. suspect mildew. The fungus thrives in areas with high humidity and little sunlight.

Mildew can be removed by scrubbing with a trisodium waster, either. Use a bucket of phosphate solution or using a detergent solution for scrubbing, special mildew remover rather than running water conavailable at paint stores.

with mildewcide paint.

Masonry walls sometimes suffer from another type of blemish called efflorescence. It shows up as a white, powdery residue that resists scrubbing.

You can scour off efflorescence with a stiff brush using a mild solution of one part muriatic acid to 10 parts water. Clean small areas at a time and rinse well.

While you're doing all this scrubbing, you might as well make minor repairs as you go along.

Look for popped nails on siding, then drive them beneath the surface and fill the holes with wood putty or dabs of latex or butyl caulk.

If you have to replace nails or fix warped boards, be sure to use rust-resistant galvanized aluminum or brass nails and screws to avoid paint stains from rust later on.

With masonry walls, watch for cracks from setting. Pack them with patching cement and smooth with a putty knife or trowel.

Williams of Muleshoe, formerly of Snyder, became the bride of Justin Helton of Muleshoe in a candlelight ceremony at 2 p.m. July 2 in the New Covenant Church. Pastor Jimmy Low officiated the exchange of vows.

The bride is the daughter of James Williams of Snyder and Gayle Sisemore of Muleshoe. The groom's parents are Laura Helton and the late Jerry Helton of Muleshoe.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride chose a formal gown of ivory taffeta trimmed in Alencon lace. The pearlembellished lace began at the sweetheart neckline and continued into her form-fitting bodice. Long taffeta sleeves featured appliques of Alencon lace at the top and around the wrist.

The full skirt was accented by appliques scattered down the front and continuing into the back. Alencon lace trimmed the bottom of the gown and the chapel-length train. For the finishing touch, the bride wore a picture hat of Chantilly lace embellished with seed pearls. The brim was trimmed with a pleated ruffle, and a soft gathering of netting at the crown formed her elbow-length veil.

Pennies minted in the birth years of the couple were worn in the bride's shoes as something old. The ring-bearer's pillow was used in the wedding of the groom's parents. Something new was the bride's ring. Her wedding dress and a pearl necklace were borrowed. The pearls belong to her great-aunt, Theron Eubanks, of Muleshoe. A blue garter completed tradition.

Robin Evins of Muleshoe was the maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Melinda Wilson of Amarillo and Lynda Glover of Muleshoe. The bride's attendants wore tealength dresses of peach satin. Each carried fan bouquets trimmed with peach, ivory and blue

TEST SOILS FOR FALL WHEAT

Farmers geared up to plant wheat or other small grains this fall should get their soil tested

Soil testing allows the producer to determine the amount of nutrient carry-over and/or the amount in which the nutrients are deficient.

Soil incorporation or knifing of fertilizer nutrients into a moist seedbed is important to reduce nitrogen volatilization losses associated with surface applied urea or urea-containing fertilizers. This practice also allows placement of non-mobile nutrients such as phosphorous into higher moisture and the more active root zone of plants.

A soil test is still the best way to determine fertilizer needs. How much nutrient to apply depends on the level of that nutrient in the soil, crop residue levels, cropping history, available moisture, grazing practices and management

A soil test will determine the amount of residual nitratenitrogen in the soil and will reduce nitrogen recommendations by that amount, resulting in a direct savings to the farmer.

Producers who have not yet made a final decision to plant wheat on a particular field this fall, but who wish to leave the door open to plant cotton, sorghum or corn later in the spr- HIAA, is 2.6 days.

ing, should submit a soil sample now and request fertilizer recommendations for these crops as well. Fertilizer recommendations for each of these crops can then be used to make cropping decisions.

The Extension Service soil testing laboratories at Lubbock will analyze soil samples and make fertilizer recommendations. However, these recommendations are no better than the quality of the soil sample analyzed. Therefore, soil samples should be truly representative of the field being tested.

Information on properly collecting and submitting a soil sample, along with fees involved, can be obtained from the county extension office.

Former banker president indicted

DALLAS (AP) — A federal grand jury indicted the former president of First Bank of Rowlett accusing him of bank and wire fraud and falsifying records for a developer involved in the Interstate 30 condominium development scheme.

The 10-count indictment returned Thursday alleges that Vaughan's attorney, John Sparling of Dallas, said his client will plead not guilty.

The indictment says Vaughan arranged a $5.9 million loan in August 1983 to Peak Investments Corp., a real estate company owned by developer Ernie Hughes, without informing the bank's board of directors. He then covered up the transaction with false and misleading documents, the indictment says.

'Okay ladies. It's showtime. P-I awaits."

"Is all your copy back?"

"Probably not. I was getting a 'queue full' earlier. Watch for the light to go off before you develop it.' 'So, what do you need?'

"Flag paper. First I need flag paper. Why is there never any flag paper when it's window-cutting time?'

'Advertising used it up.'

"Well, thank the lord for advertising. How many pages?"

"Twelve."

"So we jump to eleven?"

"Riiiiight."

"Okay, I need a 4 by 5 flag. But first, I need a pica pole and a sizing wheel. Why can't I ever fine a pica pole or a sizing wheel when we go to press?

'Did you check advertising's desk?''

"Of course. Thank the lord for advertising. Now, did all the cuts make it back?"

"I've got two."

"What are your slugs?"

"Honors Given' and 'Rounding Third."

"Well, resend the durn thing. Good lord, it takes a presidential decree to get something through the wide machine around here. While you're looking, do all my heads have big 'T's?"

"They're on the waxer. "Of course they're on the waxer. I was so busy ransacking advertising for a pica pole and a sizing wheel I didn't see them." "Is this where you want the mast?"

"At the top. You've got a 48 point banner beneath it with a 24 pt. kicker beneath that.' "Iran-Iraq again?"

"That's right. Big time world news." "Do you want it flush left or centered?"

"I want the kicker centered and the head flush left."

"You centered it yesterday."

"And who says our page makeup looks all alike? Variety is the spice of good journalism."

"Is that enough space between the head and the copy?"

"Nope. You didn't leave enough room for the hangy-downy." "There isn't a hangy-downy."

"That doesn't make any difference. If this was hot type, there would be space for the hangy-downy. The page needs air:"

"Are you going to bump these heads?" "I never bump heads. That's where you're going to make a box."

"But you sent it back single column."

"I just had to know the depth. I'll resend it doublewide with the corrections.'

"What about above the box?"

"Run the copy down the outside gutter, then jump it above the box and across the page. Put your corners here and here and, if it's too deep, I'll lose the last graph."

"No jump?"

"Naw. People hate jumps." "Is that why we have so many of them?"

"We have so many jumps because that's the only way it fits. That's our motto. All the news that's fitting and all the news that fits.'

Fitness tests are available

Reports abound about the physical fitness of our nation's children. Mounting medical, social, and psychological research continues to support the role of physical fitness in promoting mental and physical health, well-being, improved work capacity, and intellectual performance. At the same time, research indicates that today's children are becoming less and less physically fit from generation to generation. Physical education plays a vital role in the Snyder Independent School District's elementary physical education program. For many years, students in grades 3-6 have been given the presiden-tial physical fitness test each fall and spring. The program has been revised by the president's council on physical fitness and sports in cooperation with the American Alliance for Health, Physical Education, Recreation and Dance, and now recognizes outstanding physical fitness among children and youth ages 6-17. Students who meet the "President's Challenge" by scoring at or above the 85th percentile on all five tests are eligible to receive the Presidential Physical Fitness

Beginning with the current 6 will be tested in the fall and spring. The results of the test will be used by the elementary physical education teachers to check for physical weaknesses, monitor individual and class progress, help achieve goals, evaluate programs and motivate students. It will also help them to select the amount of exercise necessary to develop and maintain optimal levels of fitness for the underdeveloped as well as the physically adept child.

The revised test includes, for boys and girls: one-mile run/walk, V-sit reach, curl-ups, shuttle run, and pull-ups. Parents will receive a copy of their child's results each semester. Parents are encouraged to involve their children in activities which result in good physical fitness. The amount of time spent in physical activities at school is limited by the time elements in House Bill 72 and students in grades 1-6 receive from 25-45 minutes daily.

Snyder Public Schools are in parents and school principals. their seventh year of bilingual/the 1984-85 school year, all bilheld at Central Elementary. Students who qualify for the program are provided bus service to and from school if they live in another school attendance area. Approximately 100 students are enrolled in these classes.

Placement in the program is determined by the criteria from the Texas Education Agency. A Language Proficiency Assessment Committee is responsible for reviewing the information about each child and determining whether or not the student is eligible to participate in the program. Students in grades 4-6 spent two hours each day with a bilingual teacher to help them understand the concepts that are being taught in the regular classroom in English, arts, math, science and social studies.

All bilingual students received English as a second language instruction. In accordance with state and local policy, bilingual and ESL is taught in the public school only for the purpose of assisting the learning ability of limited English proficient students and to enhance their command of the English language.

Shaw Thursday notified the speaker's office that he has changed his residency from his district to Travis County, said Tim Conger, spokesman for House Speaker Gib Lewis.

Snyder's gifted and talented program spans grades K-12

Board of Education has included the education of the gifted and talented student as one of its priority areas. House Bill 1050, passed in the spring of 1987, man-dates gifted education in grades K-12 by the 1990-91 school year.

In an effort to meet the special needs of gifted students, Snyder I.S.D. has implemented gifted program components to serve grades K-12. These instructional programs serve students who are academically oriented and who have above-average knowledge of basic skills. In such a program, the student is challenged with curriculum and strategies designed to promote his/her natural capacities for creativity, judgment, critical analysis, and problem-solving skills.

Beginning in Sept. of 1988, gifted students in kindergarten through third grade will be "cluster grouped" within the regular classroom. This grouping concept is similar to that of the reading group. Students will be selected based upon standardized test scores and teacher

Since 1975 the Texas State nomination. These students will participate in activities designed to increase their creative and productive thinking as well as critical thinking skills. Curriculum for this component was written by local primary teachers.

At the fourth grade, gifted students are selected to participate in a Language Arts Enrichment program. These students are pulled out of their regular classroom for two hours per week during which time they receive instruction from a member of the G/T staff, Ms. Janie Carroll. The curriculum for this program is designed to advance communication skills through enrichment activities which emphasize creative productive thinking through literature and composition.

Fifth and sixth grade gifted students have participated in the Excel Program since the program was initiated in 1979. In past years this has been a "pullout" program which grouped students for a maximum of one day per week. Beginning this September, these students will be grouped for full-time instruction designed to promote creative and productive thinking. The curriculum is an extension of basic skills and the incorporation of enrichment units. These units consist of a series of lessons on a particular topic not normally taught in regular elementary classrooms.

Through correlated activities in language arts, math, social studies, science, and art, the topic is explored with increased depth and variety. Each unit is designed and supervised by the Excel teachers. As new interests emerge, appropriate units are designed. All studies include individual projects and research. Mrs. Donna Farley will teach the fifth grade Excel class, and Mrs. Cindy Lickey will teach sixth grade Excel. A total of 50 students have been selected from the six elementary schools to participate in the Excel program this year. These classes will meet at West Elementary.

Gifted students in grades 7-12 receive specialized instruction in 'advanced" or "honors" classes, so designated because of the advanced curriculum and level of difficulty. There are currently four such advanced classes at the junior high level, including 7th and 8th grade Accelerated English, 7 grade Accelerated Math, and 8th grade Algebra I. High school honors classes are available in the areas of English, biology, and calculus. Several high school classes are designated as advanced.
