

Calls for 'real jobs'...

Quayle makes 1st solo appearance

CINCINNATI (AP) — Republican vice presidential nominee Dan Quayle began his first solo campaign trip today by ignoring the controversy over his Vietnam-era military service and instead urging creation of "real jobs" for millions of needy Americans.

The Indiana senator also told an audience of Midwestern state legislators that "Congress could stand a little bit of perestroika" — a reference to Soviet leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev's policy of economic restructuring — in the way it drafts the federal budget.

Quayle made only an oblique reference to the persistent controversy over his 1969 entry into the Indiana National Guard and reports of a Florida golfing weekend he spent in 1980 with a female former lobbyist.

"Those of you thinking of running for vice president," he said, "I want you to know that taking out your trash is a photo opportunity."

It was while Quayle was taking out his trash at his McLean, Va., home in the Washington suburbs Tuesday that waiting reporters and cameramen pounced on him for comment about the controversy swirling around him.

Quayle denounced the allegations as rumor, gossip and "outright lies" which were preventing him from showing the public how he intends to work with Bush to promote GOP goals of "jobs, peace, freedom."

In his Cincinnati speech, at the outset of his first foray alone on the campaign trail, Quayle sought to do just that.

TEAMS, c-ladder on in-service slate

The second day of teacher in-service for Snyder instructors Thursday will see local teachers hear a Texas Education Agency program related to TEAMS testing.

Junior high and high school instructors will report to the West Elementary cafeteria from 8 until 11:30 a.m. for the program. It will be repeated for elementary teachers grades 1-6 from 1 until 4 p.m. at West.

The TEA program, entitled "TEAMS and Writing in the Content Areas," will be presented by Pat Porter, director of student assessment programs for the state agency.

Thursday morning, elementary personnel will report to their individual campuses at 8 a.m. for instruction from their principals regarding the teacher appraisal system and local career ladder requirements.

Thursday afternoon, secondary teachers will hear the appraisal information at their respective campuses.

A different afternoon schedule will be followed by kindergarten, music and PE teachers. From 1 until 4 p.m. Thursday, they will be in their classrooms for individual preparation.

Wednesday marked the official return of Snyder teachers as the first of six in-service days was conducted.

Wednesday morning, staff members heard a keynote address from Dr. Carl Candoli, deputy commissioner for quality education with the Texas Education Agency. He discussed "Texas Schools—Striving for See IN-SERVICE, page 9

100,000 workers said idled with strikes in Poland

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Strikers closed down the last section of the Gdansk port today and a convoy of more than 60 police vehicles and water cannons headed toward the city along the main road from Warsaw.

Riot police smashed barricades to break up a strike at a southern coal mine and cleared strikers from an idled bus depot in Szczecin, but opposition sources said a coal mine and a cement factory joined more than a dozen workplaces on strike.

Confronted by an 8-day-old series of job actions posing the stiffest challenge to its rule since 1981, the Politburo urged Communist Party members "to counter attempts to stir illegal strikes," the state-run PAP news agency reported.

The stoppages have idled coal mines and factories employing about 100,000 workers. The strikers demand legalization of the Solidarity trade union movement, reinstatement of workers fired for union activity and wage increases.

PAP said the Politburo also decided to convene an extraordinary meeting of the policy-making Central Committee "in the nearest future."

Section 2 of the Gdansk port, a cargo-loading division which was the only one in the city still working, joined the strikes today, government and opposition spokesmen said.

Near Elblag, about 50 miles southeast of Gdansk, a long column of police vehicles assembled along the main highway leading to Gdansk, said Western reporters driving to Warsaw.

Solidarity leader Lech Walesa, taking part in a strike since Monday at the Lenin shipyard in Gdansk, rallied today with strikers there and at two nearby shipyards.

"It is you, the young people, who will renew Solidarity and renew the country," Walesa exhorted youthful strikers at the Repair Shipyard, according to a tape of the rally given to reporters.

In Szczecin, police today routed strikers from a bus depot, said Jozef Kowalczyk, spokesman for the Inter-Factory Strike Committee in the Baltic port. PAP said strikers left the Klonowice depot "at the call of security forces," leaving only the Dabie depot still on strike. On Monday, police raided three depots around the city and arrested strikers.

The miners pledged to stay underground at the 30 Years of People's Poland mine "until the end of their lives, until all the demands are met," said Wojciech Maziariski, a Solidarity spokesman in Warsaw.

Meanwhile, strikes ended peacefully at the Lenin mine in Myslowice and the Victoria mine in Walbrzych, PAP said.

Project Rio aims to benefit parolee, small businessman

By DONNY BROWN
SDN Managing Editor

Texas Employment Commission officials are attempting to implement in Scurry County a plan designed to decrease the number of returning prison offenders while simultaneously giving the small businessman the opportunity to expand their work force with governmental assistance.

The plan is called Project Rio and it is being headed in this region by Larry D. Farr of the TEC's Abilene office. Basically, Project Rio rewards businesses for giving paroled ex-offenders job training.

Farr emphasized that ex-offenders seeking these jobs are screened before they are allowed into the program. In addition, if any problems develop after the fact, employers have no further commitments.

"I don't have to take everyone who applies for the program and I don't," Farr said.

He said the screening is an attempt to select the individual who is serious about learning a new skill in order to avoid returning to prison.

For further protection, the employee may be bonded for up to $25,000 at no cost to his employer.

The main benefit for the businessman is through tax credits and also the possibility of job training funds which subsidize a portion of the employee's salary.

Chamber sets teacher event

As Snyder teachers report for their second day of in-service, they are invited to a breakfast in their honor sponsored by the Snyder Chamber of Commerce.

The breakfast will be served beginning at 6:45 a.m. in the Snyder High School cafeteria.

On hand to greet teachers will be the 12-member chamber board.

It will mark the second teacher appreciation event planned by the chamber this week.

On Tuesday, instructional personnel with Western Texas College as well as the Hermleigh and Ira school districts were invited to an afternoon reception at the Scurry County Museum.

Ceremonies set for new senator

Steve Carriker, who has served Scurry County as its 78th District state representative since 1983, will be officially sworn-in as state senator for the 30th Senatorial District Thursday.

The ceremonies are to take place in Austin at 11:30 a.m.

Carriker (D-Roby) won the remaining 1988 term of former Senator Ray Farabee in a special election held Aug. 13.

Farabee vacated the post to become the general chancellor for the University of Texas system and, on May 7, Carriker received the Democratic Party's nomination from the 30 county chairmen of the 30th Senatorial District.

In the Aug. 13 election, Carriker received 62 percent of the vote over his Republican opponent Bobby Albert of Wichita Falls.

Carriker, 37, and Albert, 35, will meet again on Nov. 8 for the General Election as both seek the remainder of Farabee's unexpired term.

The new state senator for this area is a graduate of the University of Texas at Austin and a native of Fisher County, where he farmed until first being elected to the state house of representatives.

The feller on Deep Creek says, "There are two kinds of highways in the summer—overcrowded and under construction."

We ran out of reading material in a hospital waiting room the other day, so we turned to the mammoth classified section of a Dallas newspaper.

In the heat of the summer, the resort heading caught our eye. Advertised were time-share condos in the mountains, on the beach or on a lush golf course.

One ad stood out boldly. In large type it read: "Why not experience a nudist weekend?" Another ad told of a nudist camp for only $19 a month and a third ad simply read Bluebonnet Nudist Park and gave a Fort Worth area code.

If it's advertised in the newspaper, such places must actually exist. All this time, we thought a vacation was designed for relaxation.

It was hard for us to imagine what could be more stressful than spending a week in the buff.

Just the thought of it made a coat and a tie sound appealing.

The ad reminded us of a reporter who was sent by a hard-nosed editor to cover a nudist convention being held at a hotel in the city.

The reporter was more than a little apprehensive as he approached the unusual assignment. Not wanting to stand out in the crowd, the reporter decided "what the heck" and showed up at the banquet in his birthday suit. Everybody else was fully dressed.

There was another reporter who covered a nudist event in an old mansion. He told his editor, "Even the butler who admitted me was in the nude."

The crusty editor wanted to know how the young reporter knew it was the butler if he wasn't wearing a uniform.

"Well, it sure wasn't the maid."

How about a nice, secluded cabin in the mountains?

The suit seeks $13.5 million and was filed late Monday by officers Marjorie Cunningham, Mark Ford and Brenda Nichols.

The officers are seeking to have the City Council-approved hiring plan declared illegal and to prevent the city from receiving any federal financial assistance.

Farmers arrive to make hay

MOSCOW, Idaho (AP) — A group of weary Iowa farmers who traveled 1,600 miles for free hay have found an abundance of assistance here, making it likely they will have enough equipment to cut the fodder they need for their drought-starved livestock.

"It's farmers helping farmers and I guess that's how to sum it up," said Norman Plank, an Idaho Farm Bureau official who greeted the tired contingent of 65

Iowans upon their arrival Tuesday night after a 38-hour bus trip. "I think rigor mortis has about set in," said Wayne E. Speer of Winterset, Iowa, as he stepped down off one of two Greyhound buses the transportation company donated to carry the farmers westward.

The Iowans — men, women and teen-agers — are harvesting hay on pasture land that has been placed in the government's conservation reserve program. The hay is to be shipped free back to Iowa, where the drought has stunted or destroyed thousands of acres of pasture.

Organizers of the hay harvest had been worried that because of a potential snag in obtaining the farming equipment, there wouldn't be enough machinery to keep the Iowans busy when they began working today.

But offers of free equipment to cut the thousands of tons of hay for shipment east by Burlington Northern Railroad began pouring into the Farm Bureau office in Moscow on Tuesday after Plank appealed on television for donations.

"It's very, very encouraging," Plank said. "I just can't believe the response from people up here."

Charity That Begins at Home Lowers Fund-Raisers' Profits

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: If you can solve this, you will be helping hundreds of organizations that raise money by putting on "white elephant" sales, garage sales, bake sales, used book sales, etc.

I'm referring to "pre-buying" privileges given to committee members. For years, I've watched these well-to-do women snatch up designer clothes, rare books and the choice items at rock-bottom prices. The public never even gets a chance to see them!

Don't they realize that it is those special treasures that bring in the customers? This year I saw a museum-quality book of poetry "sell" for a dollar — before the sale started.

I once baked and decorated a gorgeous cake for my club's bake sale to raffle off. I'm sure they could have made $25 from it. It was snapped up by the head of the bake sale committee — for $5.

I raised this issue once and got the cold shoulder. Abby, the only organizations I know of in this town that do not allow members special pre-sale privileges are the Lions Club and the Junior League.

Any ideas for halting these rip-offs?

two very nice rings. One was her engagement ring from our father, and the other was her own mother's ring. My mother asked my sister to choose the ring she wanted, then Mother gave my brother's wife the other one. I was overlooked completely. To make matters worse, my mother told everyone involved not to tell me. (I found out from a relative who didn't know it was supposed to be a secret.)

I am very hurt because my mother chose my sister-in-law over me to give something important to. The ironic part is that my sister-in-law and my mother are now getting divorced — and there goes the ring!

Every time I see my mother, I think of this ring business and feel hurt and resentful. I avoid going over to see her. I don't know what to do. I have two faces — one feels guilty for not showing my mother the affection and attention a daughter should, and the other one can't seem to get over the hurt I feel. It's not really the ring; it's the idea that I was passed over in favor of my sister-in-law.

What should I do?

HURT

DEAR HURT: Call your mother and ask to meet with her — just the two of you alone. And when you meet, be totally honest. Say, "Mother, you hurt me." Then tell her why — without being judgmental or unkind. This way, the cold war — and your feelings of guilt — will come to an end.

Whether she apologizes or explains is not important. But everything will be out in the open and you will have cleared the air.

Government witness says...

Suspended sheriff financed drug plan

SHERMAN, Texas (AP) — A now-suspended sheriff used signals sent by electronic beepers to warn a co-conspirator of impending drug raids, the unindicted co-conspirator says.

Former drug informant Donnie Flowers gave the testimony Tuesday in the drug trafficking trial of suspended Orange County Sheriff James Wade.

The drug scheme was financed and equipped by Wade, Flowers told a federal court jury earlier in the trial.

A color code on voice-operated beepers was first used to warn Flowers in the event Orange County narcotics officers intended to raid the drug operation, he said in testimony that began the second week of Wade's drug trial.

Flowers said Wade later used the numbers 666 on digital beepers as the warning about planned raids.

Flowers, who claimed to be Wade's partner in the scheme, said Wade furnished money, chemicals and laboratory equipment used in the illegal drug operation.

Flowers was arrested in Hardin County in October 1987. Authorities found in his possession a rifle, telephone beeper and a bank deposit slip, all later traced to Wade by the FBI in an inquiry begun in January.

Methamphetamine laboratory equipment used in making the illegal drug, that had been confiscated by authorities in a December 1985 drug raid, was also seized, Flowers said. Nyle Henry Baker and Addie Guillory were arrested in the Orange County raid.

Flowers testified Wade gave the laboratory equipment to him along with Guillory, Bobby Rogers and Baker to make methamphetamine, or "speed."

Along with Flowers, Guillory and Rogers were named in the May 13 federal indictment as co-conspirators. Baker was charged with one count of conspiracy to manufacture and distribute a controlled substance.

U.S. District Judge Howell Cobb is presiding over the Wade trial in Sherman on a change of venue. Cobb separated Wade's and Baker's trials last month. No trial date has been set for Baker.

Flowers said he worked as an informant in 1986 and 1987 for Wade, who furnished money, chemicals and laboratory equipment during that time for the manufacture of the illegal drug.

"When Nyle Henry 'Hank' Baker and Addie Guillory were busted in (December) 1985, Sheriff Wade told me the two had a $2 million operation that, if run right, could make a lot of money," Flowers said.

While the American tire industry has no minimum requirements to qualify tires as safe at various speeds, tire makers have generally adopted European guidelines. Tires rated "S" are considered safe up to 112 mph; "T" to 118; "H" to 131; "V" to 148, and "Z" at more than 148. While tire makers don't recommend driving at those speeds, overall tire performance generally improves with higher speed ratings, explains Armstrong Tire Co.

Opposing politicians consider problems

WASHINGTON (AP) — Political associates of George Bush and Michael Dukakis sat next to each other in a meeting room for a serious, non-partisan discussion of making the jump from candidate to president of the United States.

Many of the participants in a day of quiet talk sponsored by Boston University's School of Public Communication had taken part in presidential transitions in the past, many of them by their own admission seriously flawed.

Frank Fahrenkopf, chairman of the Republican National Committee, told the group of senior campaign officials, political appointees and career civil servants that the next president-elect will have just 73 days from election to inaugural, the shortest possible period.

The president-elect of 1988 will, under the terms of a new law, have $3.5 million in federal funding to pay for the staff, office space and office equipment needed to mount his transition in an orderly way, Fahrenkopf said, pointing out that none of the money will be available until after the election.

Madeleine Albright, senior foreign policy adviser to the Dukakis campaign, said during Tuesday's meeting that efforts to put together a transition staff are at a "very embryonic stage" because "he will be devoting all of his efforts to win."

But she said that from a subject to which little attention was ever paid, transition planning "has now become a whole cottage industry" with its own set of specialists producing studies and reports and issuing critiques.

David Ifshin, who served as general counsel for the Mondale for President campaign four years ago, said the transition is important because it can have three results: get the new president off to a fast start, establish the momentum that will prevent a primary challenge when he seeks re-election and help him "get to a second term."

Darrell Trent, a Reagan deputy campaign manager in 1976 and 1980 and director of policy coordination in the Reagan 1980 transition, spoke at length of his experience in Richard Nixon's transition in 1968.

"Beginning the day after the election, we realized little had been done to prepare us to take over the government," he said, describing how the transition office took over the 14th floor of the Pierre Hotel and was faced with the task of "moving out the beds."

"No plans had been made for logistical support," Trent said. "And nothing had been done on policy planning. Nixon had thought it was necessary to concentrate totally on getting elected."

By contrast, he said, the incoming Reagan team was "a model both campaigns should look at."

Obscure clause lists metric system usage

LOS ANGELES, Calif. (AP) — Give 'em an inch and they'll take a kilometer.
Crusaders for wider use of the metric system are happy about an obscure section of the trade bill signed Tuesday by President Reagan, a section they say will help America measure up in a metric world.
The bill designates the metric system as the preferred method of measure for trade and commerce and requires government agencies to start buying metric whenever practical.
For the U.S. Metric Association, which since 1916 has been prodding America to join most of the world in using metric measure, the bill is a milestone, or perhaps a kilometer post.
"I think the government's decision to adopt this law is pulling the country in the right direction," said Lorelle Young, association president.
"We interpret it to be saying that the metric system is highly important to the United States — to educate our youngsters in this scientific world, to put us in sync with the rest of the world and to give us the advantage of the best measurement system ever devised."
The Omnibus Trade and Competitiveness Act of 1988 gives U.S. negotiators more leeway to bargain at international trade talks, strengthens the government's ability to fight restrictive trade policies of other countries, and provides for retraining of Americans who lose their jobs because of foreign competition.

It also says that by 1993, agencies should "use the metric system of measurement in procurement, grants and other business-related activities, except to the extent that such use is impractical or is likely to cause significant inefficiency or loss of markets to U.S. firms."
Analysts at the National Association of Manufacturers don't expect much impact from the section because of the language giving agencies an economic out, said Howard Lewis, a vice president of the Washington, D.C., lobbying group.
But for the 3,500-member Metric Association, which promotes the switch nationwide from its headquarters in the Los Angeles suburb of Northridge, the bill seems likely to hasten the inevitable conversion.
Ms. Young recalled with relish that the bill's example of an economic hardship big enough to win an exemption from the metric policy was a company faced with competition from a foreign producer of non-metric goods — an unlikely situation.
Automakers and other sectors of heavy industry are gradually getting on the metric bandwagon, Ms. Young said, though lumber and machine tool industries are notable for their adherence to tradition.
"Our liquor industry hasn't suffered," she noted, "and they were one of the first to convert."

Insect sales slow down to a crawl

TOKYO (AP) — Kids are changing in Japan, appearing to lose interest in some of the world's most timeless creatures — bugs. Purveyors of insects say modern entertainments like computer games have slowed their sales to a crawl.
"This has been a terrible year for sales," said Mitsuo Otsuka, manager of the Insect Corner at Tokyo's Takashimaya department store.
Otsuka said the store used to sell $380 to $480 worth of insects on a good Sunday. "Now we're lucky if we can sell half that much," he said.
In rural Japan, the sight of a child with net out to nab a cicada or dragonfly is common. But in the city, Otsuka and other bug salesmen say hopping insects are no match for modern diversions.
"It's computer games. Kids are more interested in machines these days," Otsuka said.
Even so, he said, Takashimaya expects to sell about $6,000 worth of bugs this year.
The bug-hunting season in Japan hits its peak in early July and lasts through August. To city kids, the hunting ground is often the rooftops of department stores like Takashimaya, where such exotic creatures as the coleopteran, cricket and stag beetle are easy prey — for the right price.
A clerk at the Tokyo department store's pet shop said she had sold a 3-inch male stag beetle for $770 early this month. "But only insect-crazy adults buy those bugs, not kids."
A medium-range item, she said, was a pair of smaller stag beetles. The beetles, which came with a plastic cage, dirt and a few slices of rotting eggplant, were priced at $77.
"It's a real buy," she said. "Until yesterday the price was 15,000 yen ($115)."
Otsuka said Takashimaya doesn't sell pricey insects anymore, and relies on the smaller stag beetles, the Homoeogryllus japonicus, or bell-ringing insect and the coleopteran, or Atlas beetle. Most of Otsuka's insects were selling for $1.54 to $4.60.
"The male Atlas beetle is the most popular with the kids because its 'horns' are shaped like a samurai helmet," he said, referring to the ancient Japanese warriors.
"When I was a child growing up in Tokyo they didn't sell bugs in department stores," said Otsuka, who has been in charge of Takashimaya's bugs for the past 10 years.

Town rolls out red carpet for Soviets

DIXON, Ill. (AP) — A warm welcome and a glimpse of life in the town where President Reagan grew up await a small delegation from Dickson, Siberia, for its weeklong "Dickson-to-Dixon" goodwill summit.
Signs in storefronts proclaiming "Peace on Earth," written in English and Russian, and flags of the United States and the Soviet Union will greet the three-man delegation when it arrives tonight.
A heavy dose of Reagan history, including a visit to the president's boyhood home — a two-story frame house on the south side — will highlight the visit by Dickson Mayor Nikolai T. Kardamyshev, journalist Boris S. Ivanov and interpreter Nikolai S. Vishnewsky of Moscow.
"I want them to feel they are experiencing Midwestern American hospitality," says Mayor James E. Dixon. "I want them to see our people at work. To see what we produce. Hopefully, they will get a feel for life in small-town America."
Dixon hopes to build on the improved relations Reagan has established with the Soviet Union, and believes cultural exchanges between average citizens are essential to preserving peace.
"Our specific (object) is to open avenues of friendship between two small communities and hopefully to serve as an example for other communities in the two nations," Dixon said. "It's a single step in support of important goals."
There will be no parades or flashy festivals to impress the Soviets. Instead, this town of 15,700 will provide a relaxing boating excursion on the Rock River, tours of factories and farms, and meals at its "hash houses."
"We're going to take them to Pizza Hut and places like Arthur's Garden Deli for sandwiches, stuffed baked potatoes and frozen yogurt," said Dixon.
"Knowing the importance of the working man in the Soviet Union, we're going to let them meet our factory workers, farmers and others on a personal level. We'll give them a flavor for what's going on."
The Soviets will arrive late tonight and Dixon will escort them on a private tour of Reagan's boyhood home Thursday morning. It's the house where 9-year-old Ronald "Dutch" Reagan, son of a shoe salesman and a dressmaker, lived from 1911 until he left for college in 1928.
The Soviets will be told of the city's history — its founding as a Rock River ferry-boat crossing in 1830 by the mayor's great-great-great-grandfather John Dixon.
They'll hear stories of how Abraham Lincoln was stationed at Fort Dixon in 1832 at age 23 and fought Indians during the Black Hawk War, and how Lincoln first met his Confederate adversary Jefferson Davis when the two were stationed at the fort.

Converting a takeout double

How do you respond to your partner's takeout double when you have a fair hand, but your best suit is the one that the opponents opened? You can of course bid some number of no-trump, based upon your general high-card strength, but what about passing partner's double and trying to exact a penalty? Yes, it is OK to pass for penalties, as long as you understand that by so doing you are telling your partner that they have bid your suit and you think the best defense is to start pulling their trumps.
Today's deal is a good example. Because East held the 10-9-8 of hearts for his intermediate spots, he had a reasonable expectation that his side would be able to draw the smaller spot-cards in South's trump suit. With South vulnerable, that would make the penalty well worthwhile. And that's the way it went. With the trump lead, South scrambled around and finally took four tricks, but that was still 800 to the defenders. What if the heart spots had been different, with South holding A-Q-10-9-8? Then East would have been better advised to bid one no-trump over the takeout double. Remember, the penalty pass is a command for partner to lead trumps.

Viewers deserted networks

NEW YORK (AP) — The Republican National Convention would have been the top four shows in the A.C. Nielsen Co. ratings last week if only one network had been covering it.
With NBC, ABC and CBS casting about for news in New Orleans, however, the convention made only one appearance in the top 30 while millions of viewers deserted network television.
CBS, which had the lowest-rated convention coverage, nearly won the week with a big surge on Sunday night. Its "60 Minutes" and "Murder, She Wrote," tied for first, and CBS' Sunday night movie, "Outrage," came in fifth.
NBC, however, held on to first place with an average 8.3 rating for the week that ended Sunday, followed by CBS' 8.2 and ABC's 7.8.
Each rating point represents 1 percent of the nation's 86.6 million homes with television.
For the 48 weeks of the season, NBC's average is 14.6, CBS' 12.3 and ABC's 12.2.
In combined ratings, each of the four nights of the GOP convention did better than the 15.6 rating for the top-rated "60 Minutes" and "Murder, She Wrote." Totals were 19.9 for Monday, 17.6 for Tuesday, 16.7 Wednesday and 20.9 on Thursday.
The best any one network could do, however, was ABC's 30th place finish for its Thursday night coverage.
Because of the convention coverage, the three networks had only 47 percent of the television viewing audience last week, compared with 67 percent for the season.

Coach Patty Grimmert says the Lady Tigers will have to work on their intensity following Tuesday's three-game loss to Abilene Cooper here.

"We're going to have to work on our intensity. We have some tough matches coming up in district play and we've got to learn to maintain the momentum," said Grimmert, whose Tigers fell 16-14, 3-15, 15-13 to Cooper.

Snyder junior varsity defeated Abilene 15-8, 10-15, 15-7 and the local freshmen topped the Lady Cougars 16-14, 15-4.

Grimmert said the game was loosely called.

"They (Abilene) played a lot of slop stuff that isn't technically correct," she said, meaning that most officials would call a bad hit on some of them. "We played better than they did technically, but that's the way it was called. We also missed six serves in the third game and that hurt."

Snyder trailed in the third game but caught up at 13-13 before Teena Braziel went out with a knee injury.

"She fell and we lost the momentum. Anytime you get a player hurt it's hard to regroup," noted the coach.

Trainer Steve Krueger was to check Braziel today but it is not believed to be a serious injury.

After back-to-back losses, the varsity will try to alter their fortunes this weekend in the Cantaloupe Classic at Pecos. The format is pool play until the finals. Snyder is in pool IV. Friday, the Lady Tigers take on Brownfield at 10 a.m., Fort Davis at 2 p.m. and Andrews at 4 p.m.

The top teams from each pool advance to Saturday's double-elimination bracket. The championship match is set for 7 p.m.

Snyder is 4-3 for the season.

Snyder junior varsity, 4-2, will also play in Pecos on Friday and Saturday. The young Tigers meet Wink at 2 p.m. Friday. A loss would put them against the Denver City-Andrews loser at 5 p.m. Friday. With a victory in the first game, they would meet the Denver City-Andrews winner at 9:15 a.m. Saturday.

Finals for the junior varsity tournament are set for 3 p.m. Saturday.

Snyder freshmen are idle until next Tuesday, Aug. 30, when they bus to Denver City. The freshmen are 1-1 after the win over Abilene Cooper.

NFL teams down to 60 players...

Clubs give kickers boot to make cut

by The Associated Press

The Turk gave the boot to some veteran NFL kickers.

As teams cut down to the required 60 players Tuesday, New England waived Tony Franklin, Super Bowl champion Washington released Ali Haji-Sheikh and Minnesota got rid of punter Greg Coleman.

Kansas City cut Lewis Colbert, the Chiefs' regular punter at the start of last season, and Dallas let go of Eric Schubert, who has kicked for several NFL teams.

Franklin, the NFL's leading scorer in 1986, lost his job to fourth-round draftee Teddy Garcia.

"He was responsible for a lot of our victories over the last four seasons and was one of the best kickers I've ever been associated with," Coach Raymond Berry said. "But it's been pretty clear that his productivity and performance have drastically fallen off, and it was in our best interests to make the move now."

In his nine professional seasons, the barefooted kicker scored 854 points for Philadelphia and New England. He scored just one point in three exhibition games and was bothered with a groin injury.

"It's a decision they made, but I know I can still play," Franklin said. "I'll know one way or another in the next 24 hours where I'll be, but I know I'll be kicking somewhere."

Garcia of Northeast Louisiana will be kicking in New England.

"I'm pretty excited," he said. "But I still have to prove myself. I came here to compete against myself, not against Tony Franklin, and if I was to relax now, it would defeat everything I came here for."

Haji-Sheikh also was beaten for the job by a rookie, Chip Lohmiller, even though he did not miss an extra point or field goal attempt during the preseason. In last January's Super Bowl, the former Giant and Falcon kicked six extra points. He was 13-for-19 on field goals and missed three of 32 conversions in 1987.

"It always hurts more the first time (you are cut), but this is right up there," Haji-Sheikh said. "I'll probably wait a day or two.

If nothing happens, I'll call around. It could be quick or it could be long."

Lohmiller has missed two conversions and two field goals in the preseason. "We feel Chip is the strongest (of the two) and he has the potential to be a real good kicker," Coach Joe Gibbs said.

Coleman, who joined the Vikings in 1978, lost the job to Bucky Scribner at the end of last season and never regained it.

"Coleman's done a lot of excellent work for us," Minnesota coach Jerry Burns said. "He's a classy person, and he lends a lot to the team in terms of morale."

Coleman said he knew the decision was difficult for Burns.

"I understand his point of view, but still I wanted to come in and prove I was still capable of kicking, and I think I did."

Cowboys cut McDonald

IRVING, Texas (AP) - Veteran quarterback Paul McDonald and defensive lineman Don Smerek were among eight players released by the Dallas Cowboys.

The other six cuts Tuesday included running back Craig Ellis, Oiler cuts

HOUSTON (AP) - The Houston Oilers cut 14 players, including veteran Rayford Cooks and three draft choices Tuesday, reducing their roster to 60 players.

Cooks played in 10 games for the Oilers last season, including the three strike games as a replacement player.

The Oilers released ninth-round pick linebacker David Spradlin, of Texas Christian, 10th-round pick wide receiver Marco Johnson of Hawaii and 12th-round pick linebacker John Brantley of Georgia.

Offensive lineman Doug Williams went on the injured reserve list with a broken leg.

placekicker Eric Schubert, cornerback Rodney Branch, linebacker Boomer Gipson, tackle Zeffross Moss, and punter Steve Sampson.

McDonald, a nine-year NFL veteran, never threw a pass for the Cowboys in a regular season game. He had a touchdown pass against the Los Angeles Raiders during the preseason.

McDonald joined the Cowboys during the middle of the 1986 season after he was released by the Seattle Seahawks. McDonald was released by the Cleveland Browns in 1985.

Kevin Sweeney inherited the third quarterback spot behind Steve Pelluer and Danny White. Rookie Scott Secules of Virginia is expected to be placed on the reserve squad.

Smerek, an eight-year veteran, saw most of his playing time in passing situations.

The cuts get the Dallas roster down to 60. The Cowboys must be at 47 next Monday.

In street fight with Green...

Tyson suffers broken hand

Tyson claimed at a news conference that he punched the 31-year-old Green early Tuesday morning after Green ripped his shirt and shoved into him, "ranting and raving" that Tyson and promoter Don King owed him money.

"You both owe me. I want my money," Tyson recalled Green telling him.

"I pushed him off. He came back at me. He threw a punch at me," Tyson recalled. "I was nervous. I hadn't had a fight like a street fight in seven years. I was getting paranoid because he was close to me so I defended myself."

"I had no other choice but to defend myself. He hit me in the chest. I wasn't planning to punch him. I was fighting because I was scared."

Tyson said he punched Green above the eye but damaged his own right hand in the process.

causing a hairline fracture to the third metacarpal.

The break "was not of a serious nature," said the boxer's manager, Bill Cayton.

Whether Tyson's Oct. 8 fight against Bruno in Wembley, England will have to be rescheduled will be left to Dr. David Chiu, a hand surgeon. Chiu ordered that a cast be put on "really just to make sure that there is no further injury of any kind," Cayton said.

After three weeks, when the cast that covers most of Tyson's forearm is removed, Chiu will decide whether "the fight can take place with no further risk of any kind to Mike," he said.

"It will be enough time for Mike to train," Cayton said.

Tyson said the fight occurred around 4:30 a.m. outside a 24-hour clothing store, Dapper Dan's Boutique at 43 E. 125th St., where he had gone to pick up an $800 jacket.

But Green told police the fight occurred outside an after-hours club at 41 E. 125th St., where Tyson and two other men had been, according to a police spokesman, Sgt. John Clifford.

Green of Jamaica, Queens, said in interviews that Tyson punched him first after he told the unbeaten champion that he did not think he (Tyson) won their May 1986 fight. Tyson won the non-title bout on a decision.

Green said that during the argument "Tyson popped him on the bridge of his nose," Clifford said. The injury required five stitches, he said.

Ship captain is charged by Navy

WASHINGTON (AP) — The captain of the USS Dubuque is refusing to appear at a Navy disciplinary hearing on charges of dereliction of duty for failing to rescue a boatload of Vietnamese refugees who claim they later resorted to cannibalism to survive, the service says.

Capt. Alexander G. Balian, 48, of Los Angeles has been charged with two counts of violating lawful orders under a section of the Uniform Code of Military Justice that calls for "non-judicial punishment proceedings," said Cmdr. David Dillon, a Pacific Fleet spokesman in San Diego, Calif.

He was ordered to appear at a closed "admiral's mast" this afternoon before Vice Adm. George W. Davis Jr., the head of all surface ships in the Pacific Fleet, the spokesman added. At such a hearing, Balian could be stripped permanently of his command, fined or issued a letter of reprimand or censure.

But Balian notified the Navy on Tuesday afternoon that he was exercising his right to refuse the admiral's mast, said Captain Peter Litrenta, spokesman for the U.S. Pacific Fleet.

"This won't be dropped," a source said. "If he doesn't show up for the mast tomorrow, then there's going to be a court martial."

Balian was charged with violating a general Navy regulation "by wrongfully failing to render appropriate assistance to Vietnamese refugees found on the South China Sea on June 9, 1988, in danger of being lost."

The second count accuses him of violating standing operational orders for the Pacific Fleet "which require a commanding officer to aid and rescue refugees encountered at sea in life-endangering circumstances."

The Navy also alleges Balian "was derelict in the performance of those duties in that he negligently failed to investigate sufficiently and render appropriate assistance ... as it was his duty to do."

In an admiral's mast, Davis would serve as the lone judge or authority in considering the evidence.

Given Balian's decision not to attend, Davis will have to decide whether to drop the matter or order an Article 32 hearing. An Article 32 hearing, similar to a civilian grand jury proceeding, is the first step in a full military court martial.

Balian was relieved temporarily of his command of the Dubuque on Aug. 13 pending the outcome of a Navy investigation. The Dubuque, an amphibious landing ship, encountered the boatload of Vietnamese refugees while steaming to duty in the Persian Gulf. The Navy said the Dubuque gave the refugees several hundred pounds of food and water and navigational aids but did not take them aboard because "the refugee craft was judged seaworthy" by Balian.

Navy regulations and orders specify that warships should "be alert for refugees on the high seas" and "if encountered, ships are to extend humanitarian assistance as needed."

"In the case of an unseaworthy vessel, adverse weather or other special circumstances, the refugees may be embarked and transported to the Navy ship's next port of call."

The boat people eventually were rescued off the coast of the Philippines and taken to a refugee camp there, where reports of murder and cannibalism began to surface.

Some survivors have been quoted as saying they ate fellow passengers to stay alive after they encountered the Dubuque. Two victims reportedly died of starvation, but three others allegedly were murdered through drowning and then eaten.

Some survivors charged the Dubuque refused to take them aboard even though their boat was disabled and they were dying of exposure and starvation.

Texans applaud repeal of tax

DALLAS (AP) — The windfall profits tax repeal will ease some burdens on oil companies, but Texas oil producers and politicians said more measures are necessary to help the industry bounce back from its slump.

A landmark trade bill President Reagan signed Tuesday included a provision repealing the eight-year-old windfall profits tax on domestic oil.

John E. Watson, president of the Texas Independent Producers and Royalty Owners Association, said his organization has been working for the repeal since the tax was enacted in 1980.

Low oil prices have kept oil companies from paying much of the tax during the past 2 1/2 years, but oil producers still have had to certify production and report it to the Internal Revenue Service, Watson said.

The base crude oil price upon which the tax is levied is between $19 and $20 a barrel for independent producers, Watson said. Crude oil sold for about $15 a barrel Tuesday.

"Of course, when you're not paying any tax, and it gets repealed, it's not going to have a whole lot of immediate monetary effect on you," Watson said. "Some accounting work will be taken off our back, hopefully."

Both U.S. senators from Texas, Democratic vice presidential nominee Lloyd Bentsen and Republican Phil Gramm, played prominent roles in the effort to repeal the windfall profits tax.

In a statement released when the trade bill was passed Aug. 3, Bentsen said, "It's great news for energy producers in this country."

Gramm said in a telephone interview Tuesday that it was a "red letter day for the oil industry."

The repeal is the first positive step Congress has taken on oil in a decade, he said.

Watson said further help for the troubled oil and gas industry should come in the form of federal financial incentives for marginal and stripper wells, Watson said.

Stripper wells generally produce less than 10 barrels of oil a day. Wells are considered marginal if production is low in comparison to the amount of revenue obtained, Watson said. He also said tax credits are needed for exploratory wells. Major oil companies fared well in the last quarter, mainly from industries associated with the oil business, Watson said.

"Independents, on the other hand, are still struggling. They're still falling by the wayside," said Watson, whose organization includes about 4,000 independent producers and royalty owners.

Gramm said even though oil companies have paid small amounts of the windfall profits tax the past two years, the oil industry has continued to pay an estimated $100 million annually complying with the tax rules.

The federal government has spent about $15 million each of the past two years for paperwork overseeing the tax, he said.

Gramm said other measures, including tax incentives to spur drilling and complete deregulation of gas prices, are still needed to boost the industry.

Bentsen described the windfall profits tax as "a levy that singled out America's energy producers for some of the most misguided and unfair treatment in our history."

Congress passed the windfall profits tax in exchange for the phase-out of price controls on domestic oil. It was an attempt to recapture some of the money oil companies were expected to make when prices increased after full decontrol began in 1981.

About $77.3 billion in windfall profits tax has been collected since it was imposed.

Perot to market software products

DALLAS (AP) — In a deal that could be worth $400,000, Perot Systems Corp., headed by Dallas billionaire Ross Perot, will market the software products of a Maryland company to the federal government, officials say.

The agreement to market the products of Rockville, Md.-based Sage Software to the government is the first obtained by Perot Systems since it announced a controversial contract with the U.S. Postal Service.

The contract aimed at streamlining postal operations was canceled because of complaints it was awarded without competitive bidding.

Agents testify: no discrimination

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — Three Hispanic FBI agents who did not join a class-action discrimination suit against the bureau say the agency is free of anti-Hispanic bias.

The FBI called the three men — including the highest-ranking Hispanic FBI agent — one after another to conclude Tuesday's testimony in U.S. District Court. The agents said they had not been discriminated against and did not believe a pattern of discrimination exists in the FBI.

But Julian de la Rosa, who last month became the agency's highest-ranking Hispanic when he was named agent in charge of St. Louis, acknowledged he once encouraged a fellow Hispanic agent to "follow his conscience" if he wanted to file a discrimination complaint through the bureau's equal employment opportunity office.

Other Hispanic agents testifying for the government Tuesday were Victor Gonzalez, the No. 2 man in the New York office, and Leroy M. Teitsworth, the second-in-command in Albuquerque.

The three are not among the 311 Hispanic agents joined in the class-action suit, which contends the FBI discriminates against Hispanics in hiring, promotion, assignment and discipline.

The plaintiffs seek unspecified damages and changes in FBI policies. About 400 of the FBI's 9,400 agents — or 4.3 percent — are Hispanic; 8 percent of the general U.S. population is Hispanic.

Under cross-examination, de la Rosa was asked about the testimony of Mike Rodriguez, an agent in San Juan, Puerto Rico, who said last week he considered filing a religious discrimination complaint against the bureau last year.

Rodriguez testified he consulted with de la Rosa about filing the complaint.

Asked Tuesday whether he had encouraged Rodriguez to file a complaint, de la Rosa testified, "I recall telling Mr. Rodriguez he should follow his conscience and do what he feels he has to do."

Rodriguez was one of about 40 agents who testified last week that Hispanic agents are transferred more often to undesirable locations, are handed assignments that are either less glamorous or more dangerous and receive less recognition for their successes.

During testimony earlier Tuesday, executive assistant FBI director John Otto said the bureau has not established a quota system to ensure Hispanics are included in a program to train agents for top management positions.

Otto, one of three No. 2 men under FBI director William Sessions, denied that Hispanics are routinely weeded out of a fast-track promotion track.

Melvin Jeter, head of the FBI's equal employment opportunity office, said Hispanic agents have filed 25 discrimination complaints in the past, and all were determined to be unfounded.

De la Rosa, Gonzalez and Teitsworth all said they had never suffered discrimination and didn't believe there is systematic bias against Hispanic FBI agents. Under cross-examination, Teitsworth acknowledged that last October he notified his superiors by memorandum that he was opting out of the class-action suit. In December, he was promoted.

The suit was filed in January 1987 by Bernardo "Matt" Perez, who contends he was forced by superiors in Washington, Los Angeles and elsewhere to accept promotions he didn't deserve. Perez, now the No. 2 agent in El Paso, used to be in charge of the San Juan office and was second-in-command in Los Angeles before his transfer to El Paso.

GTE Corp. said eyeing cheaper pastures

STAMFORD, Conn. (AP) — Analysts say if GTE trades Connecticut for Texas, the move would help the giant corporation trim fat and cut costs as it restructures its huge telephone operations business.

"I can't see any advantages to staying on Connecticut," said Ken Leon, associate director of Bear Stearns in New York. "I think they should move the whole company to Dallas. They could sell at a premium in Connecticut and buy cheap in Dallas."

GTE has chosen homes outside of Connecticut for two of its telephone units and is searching for a headquarters for the third. Analysts say the company may leave the state altogether, partly because the company has selected Houston for one of its units and GTE's chairman is from Texas.

Jack Grubman, telecommunications analyst with Paine Webber, said he believes Dallas will be selected as the site for the local telephone unit, the third to be moved.

He also predicts the entire corporation will leave Stamford and move to Dallas within the next few years.

"I would say Dallas has to be the optimum favorite for the third unit and maybe even its headquarters for the whole company," Grubman said. "Rocky (GTE Chairman James L. 'Rocky' Johnson) went to Texas Tech and he is still a Texan."

Movie company changes its mind

DENVER (AP) — The Hopi Indian tribe's religious beliefs have accomplished what giant spiders, ancient booby-traps, murder-minded ruffians and supernatural events failed to do — halt the movie adventurer Indiana Jones.

Lucasfilm Ltd., maker of the Indiana Jones movies starring Harrison Ford, has withdrawn its request to film in the Long House Ruin mud and sandstone cliff dwellings at Mesa Verde National Park.

"We discovered that this was holy ground to the Hopi Indians," Frank Marshall, an executive producer for the film company, said Tuesday. "We feel we have to respect their heritage and ancestors, and we have elected not to shoot there."

The company had sought permission to film chase sequences there next month. The idea met with an outcry from conservationists who feared damage to the fragile 700-year-old ruins. In addition, actor Jon Voight carried the religious objections of Hopi tribal elders to Lucasfilm executives, Marshall said.

"He happens to know us and came over to set the record straight, to make sure that we knew this. We immediately took action on it," Marshall said. Marshall said the film company hopes to shoot the scenes in Arizona.

The as yet-untitled sequel to "Raiders of the Lost Ark" and "Indiana Jones and the Temple of Doom" is about "pot hunters" who raid ruins in search of artifacts and treasure.

Mesa Verde's chief archaeologist had concluded the filming could damage the dwellings once inhabited by Anasazi Indians, but Lorraine Mintzmyer, Southwest regional director of the National Park Service, overruled that, saying shooting would be supervised carefully.

The tribe's cultural preservation officer, Eric Polingyouma, said he was glad Lucasfilm withdrew. "All of those places where our clans had settled, these have become a complex shrine system for us," he said.

DWI charged

A 31-year-old woman was arrested for DWI at 12:55 a.m. Wednesday in the 1800 Block of 37th St.

An 18-year-old male was taken into custody for shoplifting at 4:18 p.m. Tuesday at a College Ave. store, and a 15-year-old boy was arrested as a runaway at 8:27 p.m. Tuesday at a home in the 3700 Block of Rose Circle.

Exploding shell hurts young boy

An 8-year-old Snyder boy suffered a leg injury when he hit a shotgun shell and caused it to explode Tuesday afternoon in the 1900 Block of 19th St.

The youngster was treated and released at Cogdell Memorial Hospital after being brought to the emergency room at 4:57 p.m.

Police said the shotgun shell had been crushed on the cap or butt end. No shot was discharged.

Motorcycle strikes dog

A Snyder man escaped serious injury when a motorcycle he was riding hit and killed a large dog at 9:57 a.m. Tuesday in the 4700 Block of College Ave.

Police said Steven Dillard of 1912 Towle Park Rd. was riding a 1976 Kawasaki motorcycle that capsized after hitting a bird dog in the roadway.

The ownership of the dog was not reported.

A 1972 Chevrolet Caprice driven by John W. Jordan of Hermleigh was in collision with a 1984 Chevrolet Silverado pickup truck driven by Milton E. Winkles of 108 35th St. at 10:27 p.m. Tuesday at 37th St. and Ave. B, also damaging a boat trailer that was being towed by Winkles, police said.

are among the highest in the country and the transportation system is choked daily.

"It's very expensive to get a secretarial pool (in Stamford). You can't even live 25 miles from Stamford," Leon said. "American Airlines and J.C. Penney have done it (moved to Dallas) and corporate managers talk to one another."

American Airlines moved to Fort Worth in 1979 and J.C. Penney is in the process of moving to the Dallas suburb of Plano. Both were formerly located in New York City.

GTE began restructuring its telephone operations, its largest business, in March. Telephone operations account for $12 billion of GTE's $15 billion annual revenues, according to Jana Weatherbee, a GTE spokeswoman.

So far, the business has been restructured into three groups — the mobile communications unit, which will be located in Houston with 1,000 employees; the information services unit, which will be moved to Tampa, Fla., with its more than 5,800 employees; and the local telephone service unit.

The location for the local service unit hasn't been selected yet, Weatherbee said. She declined to comment on a report in the Dallas newspapers that GTE was searching for office space and building sites in Dallas this week.

"We've never issued a list of the cities we're looking at and we can't comment beyond that," she said.

"We also want to emphasize that there is no paperwork for the employer with this program. We'll handle all that," Farr said.

The tax credits include up to $2,400 per year. This is a "one time" tax credit, Farr noted, which equals 40 percent of the first $6,000 in wages paid.

In addition, through a separate on-the-job training program, the employer may be reimbursed 50 percent of the wages paid for a specified "training period." The length of this period is set upon entering the program, Farr said. "For a small company which is borderline on expanding, this type program might be the push they need," he noted.

The state agency has agreed to participate in it since it is viewed as an alternative to the much higher costs of housing repeat offenders.

It costs the state approximately $35 per day to confine an inmate, he noted.

Through Project Rio, it is hoped to make these offenders, "taxpayers rather than tax burdens," Farr said.

Any employer in the Scurry County area interested in the program are asked to contact him at his Abilene office, (915) 672-4361. He noted he is available also to give local programs regarding Project Rio.

Ship captain is charged by Navy

WASHINGTON (AP) — The captain of the USS Dubuque is refusing to appear at a Navy disciplinary hearing on charges of dereliction of duty for failing to rescue a boatload of Vietnamese refugees who claim they later resorted to cannibalism to survive, the service says.

Capt. Alexander G. Balian, 48, of Los Angeles has been charged with two counts of violating lawful orders under a section of the Uniform Code of Military Justice that calls for "non-judicial punishment proceedings," said Cmdr. David Dillon, a Pacific Fleet spokesman in San Diego, Calif.

He was ordered to appear at a closed "admiral's mast" this afternoon before Vice Adm. George W. Davis Jr., the head of all surface ships in the Pacific Fleet, the spokesman added. At such a hearing, Balian could be stripped permanently of his command, fined or issued a letter of reprimand or censure.

But Balian notified the Navy on Tuesday afternoon that he was exercising his right to refuse the admiral's mast, said Captain Peter Litrenta, spokesman for the U.S. Pacific Fleet.

"This won't be dropped," a source said. "If he doesn't show up for the mast tomorrow, then there's going to be a court martial."

Balian was charged with violating a general Navy regulation "by wrongfully failing to render appropriate assistance to Vietnamese refugees found on the South China Sea on June 9, 1988, in danger of being lost."

The second count accuses him of violating standing operational orders for the Pacific Fleet "which require a commanding officer to aid and rescue refugees encountered at sea in life-endangering circumstances."

The Navy also alleges Balian "was derelict in the performance of those duties in that he negligently failed to investigate sufficiently and render appropriate assistance ... as it was his duty to do."

In an admiral's mast, Davis would serve as the lone judge or authority in considering the evidence.

Given Balian's decision not to attend, Davis will have to decide whether to drop the matter or order an Article 32 hearing. An Article 32 hearing, similar to a civilian grand jury proceeding, is the first step in a full military court martial.

Balian was relieved temporarily of his command of the Dubuque on Aug. 13 pending the outcome of a Navy investigation.

The Dubuque, an amphibious landing ship, encountered the boatload of Vietnamese refugees while steaming to duty in the Persian Gulf. The Navy said the Dubuque gave the refugees several hundred pounds of food and water and navigational aids but did not take them aboard because "the refugee craft was judged seaworthy" by Balian.

Navy regulations and orders specify that warships should "be alert for refugees on the high seas" and "if encountered, ships are to extend humanitarian assistance as needed."

"In the case of an unseaworthy vessel, adverse weather or other special circumstances, the refugees may be embarked and transported to the Navy ship's next port of call."

The boat people eventually were rescued off the coast of the Philippines and taken to a refugee camp there, where reports of murder and cannibalism began to surface.

Some survivors have been quoted as saying they ate fellow passengers to stay alive after they encountered the Dubuque. Two victims reportedly died of starvation, but three others allegedly were murdered through drowning and then eaten.

Some survivors charged the Dubuque refused to take them aboard even though their boat was disabled and they were dying of exposure and starvation.

Texans applaud repeal of tax

DALLAS (AP) — The windfall profits tax repeal will ease some burdens on oil companies, but Texas oil producers and politicians said more measures are necessary to help the industry bounce back from its slump.

A landmark trade bill President Reagan signed Tuesday included a provision repealing the eight-year-old windfall profits tax on domestic oil.

John E. Watson, president of the Texas Independent Producers and Royalty Owners Association, said his organization has been working for the repeal since the tax was enacted in 1980.

Low oil prices have kept oil companies from paying much of the tax during the past 2½ years, but oil producers still have had to certify production and report it to the Internal Revenue Service, Watson said.

The base crude oil price upon which the tax is levied is between $19 and $20 a barrel for independent producers, Watson said. Crude oil sold for about $15 a barrel Tuesday.

"Of course, when you're not paying any tax, and it gets repealed, it's not going to have a whole lot of immediate monetary effect on you," Watson said. "Some accounting work will be taken off our back, hopefully."

Both U.S. senators from Texas, Democratic vice presidential nominee Lloyd Bentsen and Republican Phil Gramm, played prominent roles in the effort to repeal the windfall profits tax.

In a statement released when the trade bill was passed Aug. 3, Bentsen said, "It's great news for energy producers in this country."

Gramm said in a telephone interview Tuesday that it was a "red letter day for the oil industry."

The repeal is the first positive step Congress has taken on oil in a decade, he said.

Watson said further help for the troubled oil and gas industry should come in the form of federal financial incentives for marginal and stripper wells, Watson said.

Stripper wells generally produce less than 10 barrels of oil a day. Wells are considered marginal if production is low in comparison to the amount of revenue obtained, Watson said. He also said tax credits are needed for exploratory wells.

Major oil companies fared well in the last quarter, mainly from industries associated with the oil business, Watson said.

"Independents, on the other hand, are still struggling. They're still falling by the wayside," said Watson, whose organization includes about 4,000 independent producers and royalty owners.

Gramm said even though oil companies have paid small amounts of the windfall profits tax the past two years, the oil industry has continued to pay an estimated $100 million annually complying with the tax rules.

The federal government has spent about $15 million each of the past two years for paperwork overseeing the tax, he said.

Gramm said other measures, including tax incentives to spur drilling and complete deregulation of gas prices, are still needed to boost the industry.

Bentsen described the windfall profits tax as "a levy that singled out America's energy producers for some of the most misguided and unfair treatment in our history."

Congress passed the windfall profits tax in exchange for the phase-out of price controls on domestic oil. It was an attempt to recapture some of the money oil companies were expected to make when prices increased after full decontrol began in 1981.

About $77.3 billion in windfall profits tax has been collected since it was imposed.

Perot to market software products

DALLAS (AP) — In a deal that could be worth $400,000, Perot Systems Corp., headed by Dallas billionaire Ross Perot, will market the software products of a Maryland company to the federal government, officials say.

The agreement to market the products of Rockville, Md.-based Sage Software to the government is the first obtained by Perot Systems since it announced a controversial contract with the U.S. Postal Service.

Agents testify: no discrimination

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — Three Hispanic FBI agents who did not join a class-action discrimination suit against the bureau say the agency is free of anti-Hispanic bias.

The FBI called the three men — including the highest-ranking Hispanic FBI agent — one after another to conclude Tuesday's testimony in U.S. District Court. The agents said they had not been discriminated against and did not believe a pattern of discrimination exists in the FBI.

But Julian de la Rosa, who last month became the agency's highest-ranking Hispanic when he was named agent in charge of St. Louis, acknowledged he once encouraged a fellow Hispanic agent to "follow his conscience" if he wanted to file a discrimination complaint through the bureau's equal employment opportunity office.

Other Hispanic agents testifying for the government Tuesday were Victor Gonzalez, the No. 2 man in the New York office, and Leroy M. Teitsworth, the second-in-command in Albuquerque.

The three are not among the 311 Hispanic agents joined in the class-action suit, which contends the FBI discriminates against Hispanics in hiring, promotion, assignment and discipline.

The plaintiffs seek unspecified damages and changes in FBI policies. About 400 of the FBI's 9,400 agents — or 4.3 percent — are Hispanic; 8 percent of the general U.S. population is Hispanic.

Under cross-examination, de la Rosa was asked about the testimony of Mike Rodriguez, an agent in San Juan, Puerto Rico, who said last week he considered filing a religious discrimination complaint against the bureau last year.

Rodriguez testified he consulted with de la Rosa about filing the complaint.

Asked Tuesday whether he had encouraged Rodriguez to file a complaint, de la Rosa testified, "I recall telling Mr. Rodriguez he should follow his conscience and do what he feels he has to do."

Rodriguez was one of about 40 agents who testified last week that Hispanic agents are transferred more often to undesirable locations, are handed assignments that are either less glamorous or more dangerous and receive less recognition for their successes.

During testimony earlier Tuesday, executive assistant FBI director John Otto said the bureau has not established a quota system to ensure Hispanics are included in a program to train agents for top management positions.

Otto, one of three No. 2 men under FBI director William Sessions, denied that Hispanics are routinely weeded out of a fast-track promotion track.

Melvin Jeter, head of the FBI's equal employment opportunity office, said Hispanic agents have filed 25 discrimination complaints in the past, and all were determined to be unfounded.

De la Rosa, Gonzalez and Teitsworth all said they had never suffered discrimination and didn't believe there is systematic bias against Hispanic FBI agents. Under cross-examination, Teitsworth acknowledged that last October he notified his superiors by memorandum that he was opting out of the class-action suit. In December, he was promoted.

The suit was filed in January 1987 by Bernardo "Matt" Perez, who contends he was forced by superiors in Washington, Los Angeles and elsewhere to accept promotions he didn't deserve. Perez, now the No. 2 agent in El Paso, used to be in charge of the San Juan office and was second-in-command in Los Angeles before his transfer to El Paso.

GTE Corp. said eyeing cheaper pastures

STAMFORD, Conn. (AP) — Analysts say if GTE trades Connecticut for Texas, the move would help the giant corporation trim fat and cut costs as it restructures its huge telephone operations business.

"I can't see any advantages to staying on Connecticut," said Ken Leon, associate director of Bear Stearns in New York. "I think they should move the whole company to Dallas. They could sell at a premium in Connecticut and buy cheap in Dallas." GTE has chosen homes outside of Connecticut for two of its telephone units and is searching for a headquarters for the third. Analysts say the company may leave the state altogether, partly because the company has selected Houston for one of its units and GTE's chairman is from Texas.

Jack Grubman, telecommunications analyst with Paine Webber, said he believes Dallas will be selected as the site for the local telephone unit, the third to be moved.

He also predicts the entire corporation will leave Stamford and move to Dallas within the next few years.

"I would say Dallas has to be the optimum favorite for the third unit and maybe even its headquarters for the whole company," Grubman said. "Rocky (GTE Chairman James L. 'Rocky' Johnson) went to Texas Tech and he is still a Texan." Stamford is located on Connecticut's "Gold Coast," so named for the wealthy communities along Long Island Sound. Housing prices in the Stamford area are among the highest in the country and the transportation system is choked daily.

"It's very expensive to get a secretarial pool (in Stamford). You can't even live 25 miles from Stamford," Leon said. "American Airlines and J.C. Penney have done it (moved to Dallas) and corporate managers talk to one another."

American Airlines moved to Fort Worth in 1979 and J.C. Penney is in the process of moving to the Dallas suburb of Plano. Both were formerly located in New York City.

GTE began restructuring its telephone operations, its largest business, in March. Telephone operations account for $12 billion of GTE's $15 billion annual revenues, according to Jana Weatherbee, a GTE spokeswoman.

So far, the business has been restructured into three groups — the mobile communications unit, which will be located in Houston with 1,000 employees; the information services unit, which will be moved to Tampa, Fla., with its more than 5,800 employees; and the local telephone service unit.

The location for the local service unit hasn't been selected yet, Weatherbee said. She declined to comment on a report in the Dallas newspapers that GTE was searching for office space and building sites in Dallas this week.

"We've never issued a list of the cities we're looking at and we can't comment beyond that," she said.

"We also want to emphasize that there is no paperwork for the employer with this program. We'll handle all that," Farr said.

The tax credits include up to $2,400 per year. This is a "one time" tax credit, Farr noted, which equals 40 percent of the first $6,000 in wages paid.

In addition, through a separate on-the-job training program, the employer may be reimbursed 50 percent of the wages paid for a specified "training period." The length of this period is set upon entering the program, Farr said.

"For a small company which is borderline on expanding, this type program might be the push they need," he noted.

The state agency has agreed to participate in it since it is viewed as an alternative to the much higher costs of housing repeat offenders.

It costs the state approximately $35 per day to confine an inmate, he noted.

Through Project Rio, it is hoped to make these offenders, "taxpayers rather than tax burdens," Farr said.

Any employer in the Scurry County area interested in the program are asked to contact him at his Abilene office, (915) 672-4361. He noted he is available also to give local programs regarding Project Rio.

Movie company changes its mind

DENVER (AP) — The Hopi Indian tribe's religious beliefs have accomplished what giant spiders, ancient booby-traps, murder-minded ruffians and supernatural events failed to do — halt the movie adventurer Indiana Jones.

Lucasfilm Ltd., maker of the Indiana Jones movies starring Harrison Ford, has withdrawn its request to film in the Long House Ruin mud and sandstone cliff dwellings at Mesa Verde National Park.

"We discovered that this was holy ground to the Hopi Indians," Frank Marshall, an executive producer for the film company, said Tuesday. "We feel we have to respect their heritage and ancestors, and we have elected not to shoot there."

The company had sought permission to film chase sequences there next month. The idea met with an outcry from conservationists who feared damage to the fragile 700-year-old ruins. In addition, actor Jon Voight carried the religious objections of Hopi tribal elders to Lucasfilm executives, Marshall said.

"He happens to know us and came over to set the record straight, to make sure that we knew this. We immediately took action on it," Marshall said.

Marshall said the film company hopes to shoot the scenes in Arizona.

The as yet-untitled sequel to "Raiders of the Lost Ark" and "Indiana Jones and the Temple of Doom" is about "pot hunters" who raid ruins in search of artifacts and treasure.

Mesa Verde's chief archaeologist had concluded the filming could damage the dwellings once inhabited by Anasazi Indians, but Lorraine Mintzmyer, Southwest regional director of the National Park Service, overruled that, saying shooting would be supervised carefully.

Cholesterol needs lowering

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT: A blood test showed that my cholesterol was 286 and my blood count was 3,700. I'm 65, never sick and take no medicines. Are these levels OK?

DEAR READER: A cholesterol of 286 is, by modern standards, above the normal range, even for a person your age. Although cholesterol levels tend to rise with age, experts suggest that people — of any age — with serum cholesterol above 240 should reduce dietary cholesterol, and possibly take cholesterol-lowering drugs. I think that you should cut back on dietary cholesterol (eggs, milk, cheese and meat products), under your doctor's supervision, and then have a repeat blood test taken in a few months to see if your alteration in diet causes a reduction in serum cholesterol.

By saying "my blood count was 3,700," you probably mean that your white-blood-cell count is 3,700. This is slightly below the normal range of 4,000 to 9,000 seen in most people. Older people sometimes show low white-cell counts; if you are otherwise healthy, this is probably normal for you. The low count may be a lab error. Like the cholesterol value, it should be repeated at a later date.

To give you more information, I am sending you a free copy of my Health Report, "Understanding Cholesterol." Other readers who would like a copy should send $1 and their name and address to P.O. Box 91369, Cleveland, OH 44101-3369. Be sure to mention the title.

As I have stated before in this column, the experienced physician learns to avoid relying excessively on single lab values in assessing health. Normal people vary, laboratory technicians can make mistakes, and the "normal" range of values was developed with a 95 percent confidence level. This means that 95 percent of healthy people fall within the normal range. It also means that 5 percent of normals will not. Therefore, all things considered, your doctor probably assumed that, although healthy, you have a white-cell count that is slightly outside the normal range. If you are never sick, feel well and the distribution of blood-cell types is normal, I think you needn't worry. To make absolutely sure, ask your doctor.

DEAR DR. GOTT: My mother experienced severe hemorrhaging at my birth. When my daughter was born, the placenta was divided into lots of pieces and I was never able to conceive again. My daughter has had five children, and each one has had a problem delivery. Do you think there's something genetic at work here, or just bad luck?

DEAR READER: I think that a genetic explanation is implausible. Difficult deliveries have many causes, including placental problems, that are not inherited. I believe that the women in your family have experienced an unusual pattern of bad luck.

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A U.S. appeals court struck down new guidelines establishing a range of sentences for federal crimes, ruling the standards are unconstitutional because they were drafted by judges as a political act.

The 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals, the highest court to rule on the issue, said Tuesday that placing three federal judges on the seven-member sentencing commission violated constitutional separation of powers.

In a 2-1 vote, the court decided the use of judges on the commission interfered with the "aura of judicial impartiality" by allowing the president to appoint and remove members, said the opinion by Judge Alex Kozinski.

"Congress may not, under our system of separated powers, require judges to serve on bodies that make political decisions," Kozinski said.

The decision affects only the region covered by the 9th Circuit, comprising nine Western states, Guam and the Northern Marianas. However, the court is the nation's first on the appellate level to rule on the validity of the guidelines.

Other federal judges nationwide have issued numerous conflicting rulings on challenges to the guidelines, mostly based on the separation-of-powers issue.

The guidelines were challenged by public defenders, who were displeased with provisions that lengthened sentences for many crimes and restricted judges' authority.

The chairman of the sentencing commission, Judge William Wilkins of the 4th U.S. Circuit Court in Appeals in Richmond, Va., said he was disappointed by the ruling but added, "We'll be having a definitive and final answer from the U.S. Supreme Court real soon."

Wilkins, interviewed from Washington on Larry King's syndicated radio talk show, said courts have decided about 200 cases based on validity of the sentencing guidelines, with the rulings about evenly divided.

The Supreme Court has scheduled arguments on the issue for Oct. 5 in a Missouri case, he said.

Tuesday's ruling on two consolidated challenges from San Diego said the commission violated the constitutional limit on the role of the judiciary because "its function is political and not judicial in nature."

Kozinski said the commission had to make rules and policies having the force of law, "tasks that only the legislative or executive branches, and not the judiciary, may constitutionally perform."

The guidelines, which took effect in November, recommend minimum and maximum sentences for each crime, requiring the judge to state unusual circumstances for imposing a sentence outside the range.

The appeals court also found invalid the 1984 sentencing law that created the Sentencing Commission and abolished parole in post-November 1987 cases. Such a ruling would restore the entire previous law, which generally gave judges wide-ranging sentencing discretion and provided for parole eligibility after one-third of a sentence.

"We're very happy with the guidelines being thrown out," said Geoff Hansen, an assistant federal public defender in San Francisco. "We're just ecstatic that we don't have to deal with this nightmare any more."

But he said lawyers will be "in some state of uncertainty" in dealing with many recent cases, including some where the guidelines helped individual defendants and others involving plea-bargains based on the guidelines. The status of parole is also unclear, he said.

Kozinski said the commission's detailed rules on sentences for each crime invade the executive and legislative policy-making roles in many ways. For example, it said sentences for white-collar crimes were too short, that all defendants except the poorest must pay fines. The commission also refrained from issuing any guidelines on the death penalty, he said.

Preaching children may attend school at their own home

MARION, N.C. (AP) — Three siblings whose parents have fought with school officials since spring because the children were not allowed to preach at the school gates will be taught at home, a mediator says.

"We pretty much got what everybody wanted," said Dan Rodden, president of Caleb Campaign of Chicago, a non-profit Christian rights organization negotiating with school officials on the family's behalf.

Rodden said Tuesday that David and Robin Strode of McDowell County had signed a statement asking that their children be removed from Eastfield Elementary School and be taught at home.

But the county school superintendent, David Ricketts, said he was not sure an agreement had been reached.

Who would teach the children and what arrangements would be made were not disclosed to reporters. Strode, who is unemployed, said his family could not afford to hire a teacher or to pay for at-home instruction.

Rodden said his organization would help with the education and even help the 40-year-old Strode find a job.

Last-minute action by Meese questioned by Thornburg

WASHINGTON (AP) — Attorney General Richard L. Thornburgh says he is concerned that a special prosecutor plan aimed at Congress by his predecessor, Edwin Meese III, is a "cure where there is no disease."

Thornburgh said in an interview Tuesday that he is taking a "second look" at an order Meese signed on his last day as attorney general that requires special investigations of members of Congress suspected of criminal wrongdoing.

"I want to find out what the underlying premise was in the issuance of the order," said Thornburgh.

The former Pennsylvania governor, who was sworn in Aug. 12, arrived in the waning days of the Reagan administration to head a department that had been buffeted by Meese's tenure.

Meese was the subject of a lengthy investigation by Independent Counsel James C. McKay, who declined to seek indictments but said in his final report that Meese "probably" had broken ethics laws.

Meese's final-day order for special prosecutors to investigate members of Congress was widely viewed on Capitol Hill as a parting shot by Meese at his critics there.

Thornburgh, 56, a former head of the Justice Department's criminal division in the Ford administration, said Tuesday that it is "pretty well known that I see a very limited role for special prosecutors-independent counsels in the process of investigating and prosecuting criminal cases."

He said U.S. attorneys and the department's office of public integrity, which investigates corruption of public officials, do a fine job pursuing allegations of criminal conduct, and prosecuting if necessary.

Thornburgh established the public integrity office in the mid-1970s.

"I guess what I am curious about is what is being proposed... a cure where there is no disease" he said. "I am taking what could be called fairly a second look at that order."

While Meese was attorney general, a number of high-ranking officials resigned, and a number expressed unhappiness with the attention Meese was forced to give to McKay's investigation.

Asked how he planned to restore morale, Thornburgh said: "You lead by example, and I want to make it clear that my view of the department is one that requires an absolute fidelity to high standards of professional conduct and integrity in our operations... the values and principles of any organization are transmitted from the top."

Thornburgh said he will talk to an advisory group of U.S. attorneys to see what they think of Meese's last-minute order on investigations of members of Congress.

The order requires that attorneys general appoint an independent counsel to investigate allegations of wrongdoing made against a senator or congressman.

Bush and Bentsen sons say that no strings were pulled WASHINGTON (AP) — The sons of George Bush and Lloyd Bentsen say no strings were pulled to ensure their entrance into the National Guard during the Vietnam War.

George W. Bush, son of the GOP presidential candidate, and Lloyd M. Bentsen III, the son of the Democratic vice presidential candidate, discussed their military service Tuesday in response to the flap over whether family influence helped Republican vice presidential candidate Dan Quayle join the Guard and avoid being drafted for combat in Vietnam.

The younger Bush and Bentsen were Guardsmen together at Ellington Air Force Base in Houston. Both said they applied to enter the Texas Air National Guard in 1968 when it was inevitable they would be called to serve in the military.

But the two, who had known one another in Houston before joining the same Guard unit, said they enlisted on their own without use of their fathers' influence. Their fathers have affirmed that position.

Both men said in interviews that they signed up after personally contacting the commander of the fighter group they wanted to join at Ellington.

Circumstances of joining the National Guard have become an issue in the case of Quayle, a youthful advocate of the Vietnam War who is now a hardliner on defense in the Senate.

During the Vietnam era, entrance into the National Guard was viewed by some as a way to avoid being drafted and sent to Vietnam. Quayle has denied any such motivation.

Quayle's student deferment from the draft was about to expire in 1969 and he had been called for his pre-induction physical, an indication he was about to be drafted. Most of those drafted during the period were sent to Vietnam.

A retired Indiana Guard official acknowledged Tuesday that he told the Guard personnel office to hold open a space for Quayle after receiving a call from a Quayle family employee in 1969.

Both Bush's son and Bentsen's son acknowledged it was inevitable they would have to serve in the military after they graduated from college, so they chose National Guard service.

The younger Bentsen, 43, rallied at a claim by New Hampshire Gov. John Sununu that Bentsen's father had rushed to get his son a spot in the National Guard when he learned of an opening. "He was absolutely, categorically wrong," the son said.

"Shortly after I graduated, I went to a party with some of my friends and one of the people introduced me to Brig. Gen. Walter Staudt, who was the commander of the 147th Fighter Group in the Texas Air Guard." Bentsen said Staudt told him at a later meeting that because of his masters business degree, "he could use someone like me" for an accounting and finance officer.

Bentsen said he went home and discussed the matter with his father, a businessman at the time, and decided to enlist. He became a finance officer "as luck would have it," serving "past my six-year requirement," and achieving the rank of captain, he said.

In the younger Bush's case, the circumstances also involved talking to Staudt.
