RAMSTEIN, West Germany (AP) — West Germany today suspended military air shows and called on NATO to abandon such stunt flying spectacles after three Italian fighter jets collided and one slammed into a crowd in a fireball, killing at least 45 people.

About 500 people were injured, including dozens who were critically burned by jet fuel, in the accident Sunday at Ramstein U.S. Air Base. Eleven Americans were in critical condition at a U.S. Army hospital in Landstuhl, said Ramstein spokesman Sgt. Eddie Lee.

Bodies were charred and clothes burned off victims in what appeared to be the world's worst air show tragedy involving spectators. Many of the dead were children.

Defense Minister Rupert Scholz quickly canceled a military air show scheduled for September, and today announced that Bonn officials and their NATO allies were suspending any further shows in West Germany.

More than 300,000 people, most of them Americans and West Germans, were watching as the Italian air force team's 10 jets, flying about 180 feet off the ground, intersected over the field from three directions.

Two planes plunged to the ground and a third careened in flames into the crowd, setting off an inferno more than 100 feet high and 100 feet wide. Terrified spectators ran for their lives as the flames scorched scores of people and destroyed buses, trucks and cars.

"Some were missing skin on their arms," said DeeDee Arrington Doke, a reporter for the unofficial U.S. military newspaper Stars and Stripes. "A lot had black burns."

She said that after the crash "people started crying and screaming. The ones who were stopped were hugging each other and crying like they were saying 'What are we going to do?'" The ones who were running were screaming.

AFN, the U.S. military radio network, today quoted American officials as saying at least 46 people were killed — including the pilots of the three Italian planes — and 500 injured at the base 60 miles southwest of Frankfurt.

Authorities issued no list of dead or injured and said identification of victims would be a lengthy process because many people were badly burned. The nationalities of the dead were not known.

"They've been working throughout the night to identify the bodies. Then the next of kin must be notified," Lee said.

County's tax rate again at 29 cents

Scurry County commissioners Monday morning set the 1989 tax rate and tabled a decision on whether or not to allow the placement of Western Texas College athletic banners in the county coliseum.

In the absence of County Judge Bobby Goodwin, who is attending a county judges' conference this week in Huntsville, Commissioner Ted Billingsley presided over the setting of the 1989 tax rate at 29.66 cents per $100 of valuation, the same rate that has been in effect this year.

Don Edgmon of the WTC Booster Club proposed putting up banners to recognize the 13 titles that men's and women's athletic teams have won since the inception of the school.

Edgmon said the club has spent about $1,300 to buy banners from a Louisiana company, satin banners for women's titles and cotton ones for the men, and wants to put them up on the west end of the coliseum for basketball games, banquets and other events.

He said they would be taken down between events to protect them from dust. The commissioners tabled the matter to allow Edgmon and coliseum manager Wes Partain to confer on ways the 4-by-8 ft. banners might be erected.

Around 11:30 a.m., the court met with a representative of The Conlan Group, the Longview engineering company that oversees the construction of new Wal-Mart stores.

The court had asked for the meeting to discuss possible drainage problems at the entrance of Towle Park.

T. Craig Carney told County Attorney Michael Line, City Engineer Don Osborn and the four commissioners that Wal-Mart had considered building a culvert in the area.

These plans were apparently abandoned at meeting's end. See COUNTY, page 9 teachers will attend this program until 10 a.m.

From 8 until 9:30 a.m., teachers in grades 1-6 will report to West's cafeteria for a presentation related to adoption of the Scott Foresman Spelling program.

These elementary staffers, joined by elementary P.E. teachers, will then split up for separate programs from 10 a.m. until noon.

The P.E. teachers will go to a classroom at West for a program on the president's physical fitness program.

Also from 10 a.m. until noon, teachers in grades 1-2 will be at the West library for a presentation related to the adoption of the Silver Burdett Social Studies program.

Rainfall Sunday night accompanied the front and moisture may repeat Monday night. A 40 percent chance is listed for Monday, decreasing to 30 percent by Tuesday.

From Sunday, the rain total was .42 of-an-inch. The overnight low reported early Monday was 60 degrees, fully 10 degrees cooler than the overnight low one week ago.

The extended forecast Wednesday through Friday for West Texas is for partly cloudy skies with isolated thunderstorms Wednesday and Friday.

Extreme heat cycle broken with rainfall

From Local, Wire Reports

The trend of near 100 degree heat was broken by the passage of a weekend cold front here and Snyder's high temperatures are expected to range from the 80s early in the week to around 90 by Friday.

West Texas is expected to be mostly fair by Thursday, when temperatures should be back to the seasonal norm. High readings here should be in the upper 80s to near 90. Lows will be in the lower to mid-60s.

Across Texas, showers and thunderstorms are possible across most of the state through Monday night.

The precipitation was expected to be light in most cases, but enough to bring about a continued cooling trend in most areas.

Forecasts called for mostly cloudy skies and a chance of rain across North Texas and West Texas through Monday night. There is also a chance of thunderstorms across South Texas.

Showers and thunderstorms were reported early Monday across North Central Texas and the South Plains. A stationary front stretched across the state at dawn, extending from Toledo Bend in East Texas to the middle Rio Grande Plains.

Early morning temperatures were in the 50s and 60s north of the front and in the 70s south of the front. Extremes ranged from 54 at Amarillo to 81 at Laredo.

In Brief

AIDS count

HOUSTON (AP) — The number of people with AIDS could be double the number of cases confirmed worldwide, but tobacco reigns as the greatest killer, the new director general of the World Health Organization said.

"Large segments of the population smoke cigarettes today, in developing nations and developed nations alike," Dr. Hiroshi Nakajima said Sunday during his keynote address to the 13th World Conference on Health Education.

"A terrible price will be paid in human suffering, in premature death, in lost productivity in the strain on medical care," Nakajima said.

He said the World Health Organization estimates tobacco use is responsible for 2.5 million deaths per year, but Nakajima did not underplay the serious spread of the disease AIDS.

Gang violence

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Weekend shootings that claimed 13 lives forced police to deploy extra officers in one area and caution against "unrealistic expectations" today at a second summit aimed at ending gang warfare.

Ten of the deaths were gang-related, police said. Three other people were killed and one was critically wounded in three separate shootings late Sunday night, but police said the three deaths didn't appear to be gang-related.

At least 17 other people were wounded in the shootings, police said.

Banks 'hold' power limited

WASHINGTON (AP) — Bank customers, beginning this week, will be guaranteed quicker access to their money under new federal regulations that are being hailed as a victory for consumers.

The Expedited Funds Availability Act was passed by Congress in August 1987 and takes effect Thursday. Under it, banks, savings and loans and credit unions must give customers access to deposited funds within one, three or seven days, depending on the type of the check.

Consumer groups complained that too many banks were freezing funds for periods as long as two or three weeks in a practice that was costing Americans millions of dollars. Banks frequently refer to the practice as putting a "hold" on deposited checks. The U.S. Public Interest Research Group said that banks were making $290 million annually in interest on the money they were withholding from customers during the so-called "float period," the time between when the bank got credit for the funds and when it released the money for use by the depositor.

Additionally, the consumer research group said banks were collecting another $145 million a year in bounced-check fees because funds were not released faster for depositors' use.

"Shorter hold periods for checks are especially important to people on tight budgets or fixed incomes. It will be a relief because they won't have checks bounce while their funds are tied up," said Leslie Gainer, a lobbyist for the consumer research group. With certain exceptions, the new law requires that local checks must be cleared by the bank within three business days. A local check is one written on an institution in the same metropolitan area or within the same Federal Reserve check processing region.

Non-local checks must be cleared within seven business days.

Money deposited in the form of cashiers' checks, certified checks and government checks must be available to depositors by 9 a.m. on the next business day.

By Sept. 1, 1990, the maximum hold period will drop to two days for local checks and five days for non-local checks.

Bankers struggling to implement the new procedures are grumbling that the rules may be an invitation to fraud. They say the new law will not give them enough time to make sure deposited checks don't bounce or were not forged, especially in the case of the one-day deadline for certified checks.

Implementation of the regulations is also proving costly. The Federal Reserve is planning to spend $30 million over three years in new procedures and equipment to speed check processing, money that will be recouped in higher processing fees charged to banks.

Banks are spending their own money to train their employees and produce brochures to get word of the changes to customers. That information must be in customers' hands no later than Oct. 31.

Los Angeles, Calif. to be hit with sanctions for pollution

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Environmental Protection Agency is moving to fill a congressional void with plans to ban new pollution sources in the nation's most populous area, greater Los Angeles.

EPA officials, speaking on condition they not be identified by name, say Administrator Lee Thomas will impose the sanction this week on a major chunk of the smog-plagued Los Angeles metropolitan area.

The ban on construction of new pollution sources, the minimum penalty for failing to meet federal air-quality standards, would take effect at midnight Tuesday with the expiration of a stopgap law that has prevented EPA action against cities and areas with dirty air.

Last December, Congress imposed an eight-month moratorium on EPA sanctions, supposedly to buy time to produce legislation strengthening the Clean Air Act and launch attacks against acid rain and toxic fumes.

But that time is running out, and when Congress returns from recess next week it will have only about a month left in its scheduled 1988 session. Neither the House nor Senate is ready for debate on setting the nation's air-quality goals into the 21st century.

Los Angeles is one of about 100 cities, counties and metropolitan areas that the EPA says missed last December's deadline to meet health-protecting standards restricting levels of carbon monoxide and ozone, a major component of smog.

Ozone not only causes respiratory problems for humans but in high concentrations can injure animals and damage crops, forests and even building materials, according to EPA.

It is formed in sunlight by a complex chemical reaction involving volatile organic compounds such as gasoline and emissions of nitrogen oxides from transportation and industrial sources.

Ozone pollution frequently is worsened by the type of hot, dry weather much of the nation has experienced this summer.

Under the Clean Air Act, an area formally cited by EPA for failing to meet the standards is subject to an automatic ban on construction of new facilities that would emit more than 100 tons a year of ozone or carbon monoxide.

Before the moratorium was imposed, such bans were imposed on St. Cloud, Minn., Albuquerque, N.M., the Kentucky suburbs of Cincinnati and various parts of Illinois.

The law provides for other penalties such as a cutoff of federal aid for air-pollution control programs and highway construction. Albuquerque was hit with these sanctions, although EPA has proposed lifting them.

Lawyers plan to ask judges to follow county's example

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — A judge's decision two months ago could help many caught in the state prison inmate traffic jam find an exit lane, several lawyers said.

Lawyers in Fort Worth and Austin said they plan to ask judges to follow the example of District Judge John Bradshaw, who released a 26-year-old Oklahoma woman from Tarrant County Jail on "shock probation" even though she had never officially served time in a state prison.

Gina Beth Carter should have served between 60 and 180 days in a state prison to qualify for shock probation, which can be offered to well-behaved state prisoners convicted of less serious offenses who never served time in prison previously.

The theory is that the inmate is "shocked" by the short stay in prison and won't return to a life of crime.

Memorial service held for former governor

AUSTIN (AP) — Vice President George Bush's presence at a memorial service for former Texas governor and U.S. senator Price Daniel was an act of friendship and respect, Bush said.

The Republican nominee for president and his wife Barbara flew here from Houston on Sunday, arriving moments before the service for Daniel, 77, who died Thursday of a stroke at his ranch near Liberty.

Daniel's funeral and burial was Saturday at Liberty, and U.S. Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, the Democratic vice presidential nominee, and his wife B.A. attended those services.

After the memorial service Sunday, Bush and his wife kissed Daniel's wife, Jean, and shook hands with members of the Daniel family inside the church.

Stopping to talk to reporters as he left the First Baptist Church, Bush said Daniel had served in the Senate with Bush's father, Prescott, "many years ago."

Daniel, a Democrat, was in the Senate in the 1950s, leaving before his first term ended to run for governor.

"I admired this man like all Texans, and we just wanted to fly over and pay our respects, not only from this generation of Bushes but from the previous one. He's a great Texan, a great American, and we have great respect for him," Bush said.

A reporter asked Bush if attending the service also gave him a chance to meet conservative Democrats, and the Republican presidential candidate replied, "I don't think — we're not very good at that. I think it was more to pay our respects to the family of Price Daniel."

Three ministers, including Daniel's son-in-law David Murph of Richardson, took part in the 23-minute service.

The Rev. Browning Ware, pastor at First Baptist, told the story of a 19th century Texas preacher who said of a friend, "This man had a home in almost every community and in the house of every good man in Texas."

"This is true of Price Daniel," Ware said.

Daniel was said to have held more elected jobs in Texas than anyone else, including posts in the executive, legislative and judicial branches as state House member, attorney general and Supreme Court justice.

He retired in 1979 after eight years on the court, and several former and current members of the Texas court were in the audience.

Former Democratic governors Preston Smith, who appointed Daniel to the court, and Dolph Briscoe, also attended the service, as did former U.S. Sen. Ralph Yarborough. Texas Gov. Bill Clements was in Taos, N.M. on vacation.

Dear Abby

Lost Woman Wonders if She's Found Right Way to Meet Men

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1988 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: I am going with a very nice man I met on a street corner. You probably won't believe this, but I was lost and this nice-looking, well-dressed man approached me and asked if he could help me. I told him my plight and he walked me to where I was going, and that's how we got acquainted.

When people ask how we met, I'm embarrassed to say I just met him on a street corner. It just doesn't sound right.

Abby, what if you meet a person in a restaurant? Would you call that a "pickup"? How about getting acquainted in a library? (That has a little higher-class ring to it.) Meeting someone in a bar sounds rather cheap, but some nice people go to bars alone and don't mind if someone strikes up a conversation with them.

I avoid eye contact with people I pass in a park, especially if they're walking slowly, or like they're just killing time.

I think you get the idea. What's OK and what isn't?

FRIENDLY, BUT CONFUSED

DEAR FRIENDLY: It's OK to be friendly, but never should a woman or man get into an automobile with a stranger, regardless of how "nice" he appears to be. It's OK to strike up a conversation with a stranger on a train or plane, in a library, a store, a bar or restaurant, but it's not OK to go anywhere (to his place or hers) that is so private that you can't say goodbye in case you've misjudged the stranger.

DEAR ABBY: I have read in your column that you don't like people to smoke in your home, so instead of having ashtrays in the house, you put them outside on the patio. My husband and I are non-smokers who feel the way you do.

We are military personnel, so we move frequently. My question: When we meet new friends, at what point do I say we prefer that people do not smoke in our house?

I don't know whether to say something at the time we issue the invitations, or wait until they arrive at our house. On first meeting people, I have no way of knowing whether they smoke or not.

NO SMOKERS IN VIRGINIA

DEAR NO SMOKERS: In recent years smoking has become less socially acceptable. Guests seldom light up without asking permission first, so that's the time to say, "Thank you for asking. We prefer that guests do not smoke in the house," — then suggest the porch or patio.

Action on Smoking and Health, a non-profit organization, sells small plastic "Thank You for Not Smoking" signs.

To order, send (check or money order) $3 for one sign or two for $5 to: ASH/SIGNS, 2013 H St. N.W., Washington, D.C. 20006.

I have several "Thank You for Not Smoking" signs in my home. They are neat, inoffensive and effective, and make lovely gifts for people who cannot tolerate smoke but are reluctant to mention it. Most smokers are considerate people who will appreciate this subtle message.

DEAR ABBY: I liked your answer to "56 and Still Learning" on how to measure success. I would like to offer still another description of success:

"A successful man is one who can lay a firm foundation with the bricks others have thrown at him."

Fountain repair funds collected

ALLIANCE, Neb. (AP) — Three coins in the fountain may mean romance but it's going to take thousands of them to fix it.
 Residents on Sunday lined quarters end to end over 13 blocks to help raise money to pay a $20,000 repair bill for this rural community's beloved 50-year-old fountain.
 More than $18,700 was raised, according to a preliminary count.
 "I think we are going to be close," city council member Eva Knight said.
 Ms. Knight, 44, said she and some bank tellers came up with the idea when it became clear the city budget couldn't afford the expense.
 "I had heard that back in the 1930s when money was very tight that the Alliance High School band earned money for a trip by putting a row of dimes down a block," she said.

 "I told our tellers that a quarter today probably isn't worth what a dime was then, but we still could raise some money."
 "A lot of people remember the fountain from when they were growing up. They wanted to fix it. Coins and fountains are always kind of linked. In our case, we put the two together," Ms. Knight said.

Israeli commandos raided Uganda's Entebbe airport July 4, 1976, and freed more than 100 Israeli hostages being held there by terrorists following the hijacking of an Air France jet. Killed during the raid were three hostages, all seven hijackers, a number of Ugandan soldiers and one Israeli commando.

Quayle's 1st campaign rough

WASHINGTON (AP) — As a shakedown voyage, Sen. Dan Quayle's first solo campaign trip as the Republican vice presidential nominee was rougher than most.

Swamped by questions about his military record and his relations with a former lobbyist, Quayle began his week in an angry confrontation with reporters as he took out the garbage at his Virginia home. He also had to deal with talk that he should do George Bush a favor and get off the ticket.

But by Sunday, Quayle was predicting in an interview on his way home: "I will eventually be an asset to the ticket."

It was a tacit acknowledgment, perhaps, that the jury was still out. Even without the distractions of those questions, Quayle had trouble getting his message across, and at times seemed to confound his aides.

He dispensed with prepared texts, to the point that at an appearance before hundreds of senior citizens in California, he neglected even to mention such issues as Social Security or Medicare, concentrating instead on child care.

In a discussion on gun control at a Billings, Mont., news conference, Quayle left the impression that he did not think felons should be subjected to background checks or other restrictions before being allowed to buy firearms. His aides had to explain later that Quayle meant to say that such restrictions should be left to the states, not the federal government.

After meeting with farmers at the Missouri State Fair, Quayle was challenged by reporters to demonstrate that he understood the technicalities of the farm price support system. His only response was: "I know quite a bit about farm policy. I come from Indiana, which is a farm state."

Asked to explain why he voted in previous years against drought-relief legislation, Quayle could only say that he supported it this year and added: "I stand by my record."

Then there was his vote against establishing a Cabinet-level position for the Veterans Administration. Quayle said he voted against it because he did not believe it would get the veterans more benefits or services. But as for whether his vote was correct, Quayle left his questioners guessing by this response: "Perhaps my vote was not the right vote. I still think it's the right vote."

There were other problems. He blamed his staff for an error in his resume overstating the period in which he was Indiana's chief consumer investigator. His college performance was admittedly average, but Quayle said he did not use undue influence to get into law school and would not in any case make his academic records public.

Caution pays off

By James Jacoby

In desperate circumstances South might have considered a slam when his partner opened the bidding and then raised hearts. South's hand possessed one important requisite for slam — controls. But aces and kings alone are not enough to justify playing at the six-level unless the combined high-card strength is ample. In fact, slam was not too far-fetched. Let the trump suit behave and the club ace be in East's hand, and 12 tricks will be there for the taking. South rightly settled for a conservative game contract, but he still had to play carefully to make it.

With the queen of spades lead, declarer took stock. In what seemed to be a good contract, declarer asked himself, as he always did, what could go wrong. The answer was that East might win a trump trick and then lead through the empty king of clubs to take four tricks and set the contract. And so, despite the fact that the percentage play in a vacuum is simply to bang down A-K of hearts and hope for the queen to come down, this time South played dummy's king of hearts and then a low heart back to his 10. If that lost to the queen in the West hand, the contract would still be safe, since the club king could not be attacked. Here there was a reward for virtue. East did hold the guarded queen of hearts but lost it. Declarer made 11 tricks and in fact was playing for 12 when he eventually got around to leading up to the club king.

NBC's 'L. A. Law' captures just 2 Emmy awards Sunday

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — ABC's baby-boomer series "thirtysomething" and "The Wonder Years" won Emmys as best dramatic and comedy shows, upsetting NBC and its highly touted "L.A. Law."

ABC won 21 awards Sunday, to CBS's 20 and NBC's 19. PBS won seven, syndicated shows won three and Home Box Office won three in the first year cable television participated in the awards.

"L.A. Law," the ensemble drama about the bad and beautiful in the legal profession, went into the show with the most nominations, 19, but lost its case with Television Academy of Arts and Sciences.

It won only two Emmys, for supporting actor — Larry Drake, for his sensitive portrayal of a retarded office assistant — and for editing.

In all, "thirtysomething" won four Emmys, including one for Patricia Wettig as best supporting actress and Paul Haggis and Marshall Herskovitz for writing. The show features a cast of baby boomers facing adult responsibilities.

"I suppose if there was another category for most annoying show on television we'd win that, too," said Ed Zwick, co-executive producer with Herskovitz. Backstage, Herskovitz said, "We really didn't expect to win."

"The Wonder Years," created by the husband-and-wife writing team of Neal Marlens and Carol Black, tells the story of the "thirtysomething" generation as they grew up in the 1960s.

It was also a good night for shows that will not return this fall.

Richard Kiley won for best lead actor in a drama series in NBC's canceled "A Year in the Life."

He thanked people on the show, but added, "I have nothing but sadness for the corporate myopia that killed a fine show."

CBS' "Frank's Place," slated to return later, won three awards, including one to creator Hugh Wilson for writing and one to guest actress Beah Richards.

Tyne Daly of the canceled CBS series "Cagney & Lacey," won as best lead actress in a drama series.

Beatrice Arthur of "The Golden Girls" was named best lead actress and costar Estelle Getty as supporting actress for a comedy series. That made it a sweep for "The Golden Girls" cast. Rue McClanahan won as best lead actress last year and Betty White the year before.

John Larroquette captured his fourth straight Emmy as best supporting actor in a comedy series for his role as the lecherous prosecutor, Dan Fielding, in NBC's "Night Court."

"Now I am officially overwhelmed!" said Larroquette.

Michael J. Fox won his third consecutive award for NBC's "Family Ties." Later, as a presenter, Fox said, "I want to thank Dan Quayle for showing that Alex Keaton really can exist."

At 1,250 miles, the Great Barrier Reef off Australia is the world's longest, says National Geographic.

Furr's may sweeten its offer

DALLAS (AP) — The $179.3 million offer Furr's-Bishop's Cafeterias has offered to acquire Wyatt Cafeterias Inc. may be increased, officials say.

Furr's officials said Sunday they may increase their $87-per-share offer after Wyatt Friday rejected the offer in favor of a pending, $84-per-share offer by a Wyatt management-based employee stock ownership plan.

Under the plan, the ESOP would purchase all Wyatt shares for $81.79 in cash plus a future, contingent payment of up to $2.21 a share.

The Lubbock-based Furr's-Bishop's chain issued a prepared statement Sunday, saying one of the reasons its offer was rejected was because certain stockholders, including H.L. Packer, chairman and chief executive officer of Wyatt, and James Muns, president of Wyatt, "can benefit personally from certain tax advantages associated with an ESOP transaction."

"I am shocked that the Wyatt board and certain Wyatt executive officers have rejected a higher cash offer in favor of a transaction in which they are personally interested and in which a number of Wyatt shareholders, including charitable and non-profit institutions cannot enjoy the same tax advantages," said Michael J. Levenson, chairman and chief executive officer of the general partnership of Furr's-Bishop's.

New home sales fall sharply

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sales of new homes plunged 4.7 percent in July from the month before, the steepest drop since December, the government said today.

Rising mortgage interest rates apparently discouraged buyers. Sales of new single-family homes fell to a seasonally adjusted annual rate of 686,000 units last month, following a sharp 6.7 percent increase in June, according to a joint report of the departments of Commerce and Housing and Urban Development.

The July decline was the biggest monthly drop since a 6.2 percent fall in December.

Economists attributed the sharp June increase to attempts by buyers to close deals before interest rates went higher. Analysts had expected the decline in July and anticipate further dampening this month. Fixed-rate mortgages have climbed to 10.67 percent, up from 10.39 percent at the end of June.

The price of new homes was up sharply in July even though sales fell. The median price of a new home rose to $123,500, 5.6 percent higher than the June median price of $117,000, meaning half the homes sold in that month cost more and half less.

The average price of a home was up as well, climbing 7.1 percent to $146,000.

Trains collide in Western Austria

VIENNA, Austria (AP) — Two trains crashed head on today at a rail station in western Austria, causing numerous injuries and possibly deaths, an Austrian Railroad authority official said.

The accident occurred at 12:37 p.m. (6:37 a.m. EDT) at Wolfurt, less than 3 miles from the West German border.

A train coming from the central industrial city of Linz headed toward the border collided with a train bound for Innsbruck from Lindau, said the spokesman, Walther Kollerits.

He said the engines of both trains were entangled.

Kollerits said many people were injured and there may have been deaths, but he could not yet give any figures.

He said the cause of the crash was not yet known.

Minority mental health researched

GALVESTON, Texas (AP) — University of Texas researchers hope a new study that looks into the mental health of minorities will have a positive influence on state lawmakers.

Backed by a $2.5 million federal grant, researchers at the UT Health Science Center in Houston and the UT Medical Branch in Galveston have set up the Texas Minority Mental Health Research Center, scheduled to open Thursday.

Bentsen questions Quayle's qualifications

By The Associated Press

Texas Sen. Lloyd Bentsen continues to cast doubts on the experience of Republican vice presidential candidate Dan Quayle, who in turn says he is saving his criticism for the top of the Democratic ticket.

"Frankly, he would not have been on my short list as I look over my Senate colleagues," Bentsen said Sunday when asked about Quayle on NBC's "Meet The Press." "He obviously was on the short list of the hard right."

"Now, I wouldn't say that he couldn't grow into the job; he probably could. But if a tragedy befell a president, you'd have to be able to move in immediately and take over and do what has to be done in facing whatever issues that confront you at that time."

Bentsen, in suggesting that Quayle could not step right up to presidency, was continuing a line of attack that was clear last week: show that the 41-year-old Indiana senator lacked the depth and experience for the job that is only a heartbeat away for any vice president.

Quayle declined to criticize his 67-year-old colleague in the Senate, saying that his gripe is with Democratic presidential nominee Michael Dukakis. In last week's seven-state campaign, Quayle's only mention of Bentsen was to praise his views on defense spending and other issues where he stands to the right of Dukakis.

"I've served with Sen. Bentsen for almost eight years. He is not the issue," Quayle said Sunday in an interview with The Associated Press. "The issue is Michael Dukakis. Michael Dukakis' view of America is a much different view than George Bush's. Michael Dukakis' approach to national defense, his approach to the economy, his approach to child care — all of those approaches are much different than George Bush's."

Quayle said doubts about his qualifications are nothing that a good debate wouldn't cure.

"The American people are just beginning to see Dan Quayle," he said. "I'm going to continue to talk about the issues. When we have the debate between Lloyd Bentsen and Dan Quayle, the American people will have a lot better picture of who will be the best qualified vice presidential candidate."

Quayle traveled to the Midwest and West last week, and will leave again Wednesday for a swing through the Southeast that will take him through to Labor Day.

Bush was traveling today from Houston to St. Louis, where he planned a tour of an aerospace plant, and then to Nashville for a rally and visit to the Reserve Officer Training program at Middle Tennessee State University.

He returns to Washington tonight for a series of day campaign trips to various states and may head west to California and Colorado on the weekend.

Bush's last day of his Texas trip was low-key compared with the usual hectic pace of campaigning.

He went to an Episcopal church service in Houston, attended an Astros baseball game, and flew to Austin for the memorial service for former Gov. Price Daniel, a longtime friend.

Dukakis was touring several western Massachusetts communities today and Tuesday as part of his annual summer visit to the region. He also planned to use the area, which is rebounding economically, for two national economic speeches. He was returning to Boston Tuesday night and departing for a campaign swing through western states Wednesday.

Larger firms gobbling up companies

DALLAS (AP) — Four of Texas' largest defense manufacturers are among a growing number of U.S. defense companies finding themselves helpless against takeover hungry defense contractors.

The level of takeover activity also has raised national security questions among some U.S. defense executives, who fear too much of America's defense technology base may fall into the hands of foreign ownership, although the Pentagon reviews each foreign takeover.

"It's interesting there have been foreigners picking up companies in areas that are relatively sensitive," said Byron K. Callan, defense electronics analyst with Prudential Bache Capital Securities in New York.

"It could emerge as a broader national issue. And it's interesting to see the Defense Department allow some of these."

More than a dozen U.S. defense electronics companies have been acquired by other companies since August 1987, The Dallas Morning News reported Sunday.

The latest Texas company to fall into a takeover tug-of-war was Garland-based Varo Inc., which manufactures night-vision systems, power systems, missile launchers, laser-targeting devices and advanced military microcircuits.

Varo last week agreed to be acquired by Imo Delaval Inc., a Lawrenceville, N.J., instruments and controls manufacturer, for $113 million. An unfriendly suitor, United Scientific Holdings PLC of London, however, has said it was prepared to offer at least $117 million.

James F. Gero, chairman and chief executive officer of Varo, said he believes foreign companies are drawn to the U.S. defense market by several factors.

"Although our defense market is being adversely affected today, it's still the largest defense market in the world at $300 billion," Gero said. "Congress is becoming more protectionistic. Countries realize if they're going to invest in America, they better do it now because it's going to get worse."

Most of the buyers have been manufacturers of aircraft, tanks and other big-ticket military items that expect more Pentagon contracts despite tightening pursestrings. As defense spending slows down, the military is increasingly upgrading existing equipment with electronics.

Besides Varo's pending buyout, Texas companies taken over in the past year include ElectroSpace Systems Inc. of Richardson, by automaker Chrysler Corp.; Tracor Inc. of Austin, by Westmark Systems Inc., a defense holding company led by Ret. Adm. Bobby Inman; and Rediffusion Simulation Inc. of Arlington and its British parent, by Hughes. Tracor, acting as the flagship for Westmark's defense holdings, in May acquired two small defense electronics companies.

Among the Texas defense electronics companies still considered takeover candidates are E-Systems Inc., UTL Corp. and Whitehall Corp. of Dallas and Tech-Sym Corp. of Houston, the newspaper reported.

Former nun wins lengthy legal fight

HAMILTON TOWNSHIP, N.J. (AP) — A former nun who left her religious order to enlist in the civil rights movement won a seven-year legal battle when a judge ruled unconstitutional New Jersey's system of paying for public education.

Marilyn Morheuser, 64, said that at times during the fight, she imagined she knew how David felt trying to slay Goliath.

Administrative Law Judge Steven Lefelt concluded Thursday that the state's funding discriminates against poor urban districts and perpetuates wide budget disparities between wealthy and poor school districts. "This case is about the failure of the state to provide an opportunity to develop children's potential," Ms. Morheuser said. "I think we all suffer tremendously when children are not given opportunity to develop their full potential."

Lefelt's ruling is one of a few in the country in which state education funding has been declared unconstitutional. It follows two decades of legal and legislative battles and could force the state to spend millions more each year to aid local schools. In the 1988-89 school year alone, the state will spend more than $3 billion.

Lefelt concluded that a child in an affluent district clearly enjoys broad advantages over one in a poor urban district.

"I believe this case comes down to whether this state desires to enhance the educational opportunity of students living in poor urban areas," he said.

"Suffice it to say that I opt for providing equal opportunity to all our children, no matter where they may live."

He endorsed a statewide school tax so all property owners pay the same rate, and letting the state make up the difference so all students are paid for equally. He called it the only way to control spending differences.

"Urban educators needed this victory to provide the opportunity for the urban children who are predominantly minority children," said Anthony Scardaville, superintendent of the Irvington Public School system, whose 9,000 enrollment is 82 percent black and 11 percent Hispanic. "Everybody should have the same — not good for the rich and mediocre for the poor."

The state had argued that pouring more money in poor districts was not a solution because their problems are mostly the result of bad management. It also argued that more state money would erode local control of schools.

John Samerjan, a spokesman for Gov. Thomas H. Kean, said the ruling is one step in a long process, but it would be mistaken to think it will bring a "massive infusion of funds" to poor districts.

The case has been closely watched around the country, said Allen Odden, a school finance expert at the University of Southern California.

For Ms. Morheuser, the ruling is a landmark in a career that spans four decades. After 16 teaching years as a nun in the Sisters of Loretto religious order, she left the convent to help the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People work on school desegregation. For her, the civil rights movement "was absolutely essential for the continued viability of democracy in this country."

Accident has driver arrested

A 25-year-old Merkel woman was arrested for DWI and not having liability insurance following a one-car accident 3 of a mile southeast of Snyder on U.S. 84.

A state highway patrolman said a 1982 Chevrolet Chevette driven by Jana L. Seamons was northbound on 84 when it overtook in the median and came to rest on its side, after which Seamons was arrested. The accident was reported at 7:20 p.m. Thursday.

Snyder native bank president in Littlefield

George Richardson, a native of Snyder, has been named president and chairman of the board of Security State Bank in Littlefield.

The son of Mr. and Mrs. George Richardson of Snyder, he previously was with the Olton State Bank for 11 years and served as president of that bank.

A 1970 graduate of Snyder High School, he earned his B.S. degree in 1974 from Texas A&M, and his masters degree from Texas Tech in 1977. Richardson and his wife, Dona, have a three-year-old son, Taylor.

Lech Walesa may get role in conciliation talks in Poland

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Strike leaders said thousands of workers joined a stoppage at a huge southeastern steel mill today when management tried to reopen it two weeks into Poland's worst labor unrest since 1981.

Word of the broadened strike at the Stalowa Wola steel and heavy machinery plant came a day after Communist authorities said they might let Solidarity leader Lech Walesa take part in broad-based reconciliation talks.

Management had ordered the 18,000-worker plant closed Friday because of a strike that began a week ago, but allowed workers into the yard this morning and more than 5,000 joined the roughly 1,000 strikers, said Piotr Niemczyk of the Solidarity Information Center in Warsaw.

Phone calls to plant management were not answered.

On Sunday, Polish leader Wojciech Jaruzelski endorsed the idea proposed by authorities of a "round-table" discussion with strike leaders.

In a speech broadcast to the nation at the end of a two-day meeting of the communist party's policy-making Central Committee, he directed his most severe criticism at the party-appointed government of Prime Minister Zbigniew Messner.

Gen. Jaruzelski said that by failing to deal with economic and political tensions, the government had helped precipitate the strikes that began Aug. 16.

The general, who heads the communist party, refrained from directly blaming the Solidarity free trade union movement for the strike wave and hinted at a government shakeup in the near future.

Communist party spokesman Jerzy Majka said the government was prepared for reconciliation talks without any preconditions, but added that he had no information on when such talks could begin.

He called Walesa "one of the possible candidates" for participation in such talks, but added that no one could take part "as a representative of an illegal organization."

"It's up to the other side to make the first move," Majka added.

In addition to higher wages to offset inflation of nearly 60 percent, the strikers have demanded demand the legalization of Solidarity, which was banned after being crushed in a 1981 military crackdown.

Walesa last held a meeting with high-level communist authorities in early 1982 before he was released from internment.

In Gdansk, Walesa rejoined striking workers at the Lenin shipyard Sunday morning, injuring himself slightly as he hauled himself over the 7-foot fence after a police officer tried to stop him, aides said.

Solidarity estimated Sunday that about 8,500 people still were occupying 10 strikebound workplaces. About 20 enterprises were idled at the height of the strike wave.

In the Baltic port of Szczecin, talks between management and Simultaneously, teachers in grades 3-6 will be at the West cafeteria for a program related to the HBJ Social Studies program.

On Monday, instructors were given the afternoon to prepare individual classrooms after hearing morning programs profiling "at risk" students and the campus discipline management plan for 1988-89.

The last day of pre-school in-service will be Wednesday and all teachers will report to their individual campus for a day of classroom preparation.

The first day of school for the 1988-89 year is Thursday when students are to report for the first bell at 8:25 a.m.

Police work assault case

Police are investigating a reported Sunday night assault in which a woman was treated at Cogdell Memorial Hospital after allegedly being beaten in an incident reported at 9:12 p.m. at 32nd St. and Ave. K.

The alleged victim later came to the police station and filed a complaint that officers said would be dealt with as a Class A misdemeanor assault.

representatives of striking dockers broke off and a management attempt to hold talks with striking bus employees failed as well, the state-run news agency PAP reported.

But in the southwestern city of Jastrzebie, workers at the Jastrzebie coal mine agreed to end their strike after a meeting with management, PAP reported. Only the July Manifesto coal mine, where the labor unrest began two weeks ago, remains on strike in the Silesian town not far from the Czechoslovak border.

Police evicted strikers from several workplaces last week, but there was no use of force to end strikes over the weekend.

In Gdansk on Sunday, police blocked about 400 people who set off after a mass at St. Brygida's church from approaching the strikebound Lenin shipyard a few blocks away. The crowd dispersed peacefully.

The latest bid for national reconciliation by Jaruzelski, who led the 1981 crackdown on Solidarity, appears to leave the decision on potential discussion partners for the round table up to the opposition.

Efforts earlier this summer to draw senior Solidarity advisers into informal talks with low-ranking party and government officials on the economic malaise met with only limited success.

The idea for round-table talks was proposed Friday by Interior Minister Czeslaw Kiszczak.

Young couple arrested for theft of school van

A young couple was arrested Sunday morning in connection with the earlier theft of a 1982 GMC van belonging to the Snyder school district.

The van was reported missing at 6:23 a.m. from the 100 Block of 20th Place, and a city patrolman took the 18-year-old female and 15-year-old boy into custody at 8:30 a.m. at U.S. 180 and U.S. 84.

Both were arrested on charges of unauthorized use of a motor vehicle, with the young woman, Peggy Sanchez of 1800 Scott Ave., being incarcerated in the county jail and the boy later being released to his parents.

A city detective said a UUMV charge will also be pursued against the boy for the July 24 theft of a 1982 Ford pickup from Craig Randolph in the 2800 Block of Ave. U.

Other weekend arrests included one of a 32-year-old man for DWI at 12:32 a.m. Sunday at the traffic circle and one of a 27-year-old man for public intoxication at 1:12 a.m. Sunday in the 1900 Block of Coleman Ave.

Two 25-year-old men were arrested at 1:45 a.m. Sunday in the 2800 Block of College Ave., one for DWI and the other for PI and a failure to appear warrant from Lubbock County.

A 40-year-old man was arrested for DWI by a county deputy at 12:30 a.m. Sunday at the Latin-American Center on 13th St., and the state highway patrol reported arresting a 31-year-old man for PI at a U.S. 84 truck stop.

Step up effort

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — Drug dealers along the Mexican border have boosted the deposits of the city's biggest banks, prompting the Internal Revenue Service to double its criminal investigation staff in El Paso.

But El Paso bankers say most of their large deposits are made by firms involved in legal commerce.

"There's no doubt that a lot of dope comes through" El Paso, said Ted Houghton, executive vice president of El Paso's largest bank, MBank-El Paso.

But Houghton said that since most buying and selling is done elsewhere, it is unlikely that El Paso banks would receive much drug money.

El Paso banks have a combined cash surplus last year of $399 million, up 27 percent from 1986. The surplus was the fifth-largest in the nation, behind Miami, Los Angeles, Jacksonville, Fla., and San Antonio, and stands in sharp contrast to the many struggling banks in Texas.

however, Carney said that the potential drainage problem does not appear to be as bad as the company had initially feared.

During discussion, Line noted that although the park is county-owned, it is under the zoning jurisdiction of the city, and Osborn noted the city had already approved the store's construction plan, minus the culvert later proposed by Wal-Mart, with the issuance of a building permit.

Soviet-Afghan space flight blasts off

MOSCOW (AP) — A rocket carrying two Soviets and the first Afghan in space blasted off from a Central Asian space center today to join cosmonauts seeking an endurance record aboard the orbiting Soviet space station Mir.

A Proton rocket carrying pilot Vladimir Lyakhov, Dr. Valery Polyakov and Afghan military pilot Abdul Ahad Mohmand aboard a Soyuz TM-6 capsule blasted off from the Baikonur space center on schedule.

Officials said Polyakov would monitor the health of two cosmonauts who have been aboard Mir since December.

Soviet television provided a live broadcast of the white rocket riding a long orange flame into the clear sky, and cut away as the rocket disappeared.

The official Tass news agency said the Soyuz capsule had reached orbit, that the flight was proceeding normally and that the cosmonauts felt fine.

The crew is scheduled to dock Wednesday with the Mir complex.

Mohmand, 29, was to take part in efforts to identify oil, gas and other mineral deposits in Afghanistan as well as predicting runoff of snow and glaciers to alleviate a water shortage.

He also was to help try to identify where earthquakes might occur in Afghanistan.

The mission was an ideal way for the Kremlin to reassure Afghanistan of support and friendship as it pulls its military force out of the country.

The Afghan government of President Najib is locked in a long war with anti-Marxist insurgents and increasingly is being left to fight on its own as the 100,000 Soviet soldiers withdraw. Under an agreement signed in April in Geneva, the Soviet Union withdrew half the force between May 15 and Aug. 15 and the remainder must be withdrawn by Feb. 15, 1989. Soviet forces intervened in December 1979.

"Being a son of my proud people I will carry along not only joy but also sorrow for my homeland gripped by a fratricidal war," Mohmand said in a statement broadcast from the capsule before liftoff.

"Brothers, stop the war and direct your forces toward building a durable national peace," he said.

Lyakhov, the 47-year-old pilot, was making his third space flight. He was in space for 175 days in 1979 and a member of a 150-day mission in 1983.

Polyakov, 46, was sent to check on the health of cosmonauts Vladimir Titov and Musa Manarov, who have been in space since Dec. 21, and are scheduled to remain at the Mir complex until this December.

Polyakov will remain at the space station for an unspecified period after Lyakhov and Mohmand end their eight-day mission, officials said. Polyakov also will supervise experiments on the effects of space travel on the human body.

Titov and Manarov replaced a crew that included Yuri Romanenko, who now holds the space endurance record of 326 days.

Space officials say the endurance tests are a step toward determining the feasibility of a manned flight to Mars, which they estimate would take three years.

Land disputes cost lives in Mexico

COMITAN, Mexico (AP) — Bloody land disputes in southern Mexico in recent years may slow proposed reforms of President-elect Carlos Salinas de Gortari.

Salinas, who will take office in December, said he will bring more democracy to Mexico and rid the country of rural land bosses, or caciques, — Indian for "chief."

More than 120 people have been killed in the Mexican state of Chiapas in the last six years because of the disputes. "The problem is not only about land. We have to have justice with our peasants," Patrocinio Gonzalez Garrido, Salinas' choice for governor of Chiapas, told the Dallas Times Herald.

While the caciques' political clout diminished in most of Mexico, it has strengthened since 1979 in Chiapas.

"The last nine years have been a nightmare for the state," Gonzalez said.

Therapy for pinched nerve

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I have a sunken spot in my forearm and my doctor wants me to have a CT scan, since he thinks it is caused by a pinched nerve. Can therapy be used instead of surgery in this situation?

DEAR READER: Muscles tend to shrivel when they are deprived of nerve stimulation. This atrophy can be the result of neural injury or it can appear in cases of nerve damage — from a herniated disc in the spine, for example.

A sunken spot on your forearm may represent an atrophied muscle. If your doctor is correct that you have a pinched nerve in your neck as a cause of your difficulty, X-ray examination, such as a CT scan, would help identify the precise place where the nerve is being pinched.

Once you have a diagnosis, you can weigh treatment options. You might require surgery to decompress the nerve. In any case, you will need physiotherapy: a technique by which specialists will help retrain and strengthen atrophied muscles. Before considering what to do about your forearm, you should allow the doctor to establish the cause of your problem.

DEAR DR. GOTT: At 21, after the birth of my son, I developed kidney stones. Medication supposedly cleared them up, but for three years now I've had repeated infections, despite therapy. How can I clear up

Gang proliferation signs watched

HOUSTON (AP) — Many of the growing number of Houston-area gangs are considered more social than violent, but police and school officials are taking no chances.

A team of Houston police officers has been assigned to monitor what appears an increase in gang activity, and security at one area school district has been put on alert.

"Right now, we don't have what we feel is a serious problem, but we could if we don't watch it," said officer Roger Spurgeon.

"Most of them are actually no more than social groups," he said, but added that several have "possible connections with some hard-core gangs from Chicago and Los Angeles."

President James Garfield was mortally wounded in Washington July 2, 1881, and died 80 days later.

these infections for good? Will I have problems if I get pregnant again?

DEAR READER: Since they are foreign material, kidney stones can provide a focus of infection in the body. These stones often produce no symptoms other than chronic infection. If your repeated urinary infections are due to kidney stones, you will continue to have problems — despite antibiotics — until the stones are dissolved or removed.

It's important to discover if you have "silent" stones and, if so, where they are. Ideally, the doctor would also want to know the composition of the stones. About 70 percent of kidney stones are made up of calcium, 15 percent are composed of magnesium and ammonium phosphate, and 6 percent are uric acid. By identifying the type of stone, specialists can give specific advice — such as diet or medication — to prevent further stone formation.

In short, you should have an intravenous pyelogram (IVP kidney X-ray), a urine culture (to identify the type of bacteria causing the infection) and, if possible, a stone analysis.

Although pregnancy may be associated with urinary infection, this infection — if properly treated — will not affect your fertility or your ability to bear children. To give you more information, I am sending you a free copy of my Health Report, "Bladder and Urinary-Tract Infections." Other readers who would like a copy should send $1 and their name and address to P.O. Box 91369, Cleveland, OH 44101-3369. Be sure to mention the title.

Firefighters fool 'Ma Nature'

SHOSHONE NATIONAL FOREST, Wyo. (AP) — Firefighters created their own inferno, burning 500 acres of timber to save two towns and smother the largest fire in Yellowstone National Park.

By burning the forest ahead of the 182,000-acre Clover Mist fire, firefighters said, they finally scored a victory after weeks on the defensive. The blaze would choke without fuel before it could cross a highway and bear down on Crandall, Wyo., Cooke City, Mont., both towns of 100 residents, and valuable timber forests, officials said.

"It wanted to rear up and get us but we're going to get it first," said Pat Kaunert, U.S. Forest Service fire information officer. "We're throwing everything we've got at it. We've got to make a stand."

While they made their stand, firefighters on Sunday held ground elsewhere.

In western Montana, the 1,900-acre Lolo Creek fire was blocked after coming within 100 yards of eight homes along U.S. 12. Bombers dropped chemical retardant on the 8,100-acre fire between Philipsburg and Drummond.

In the Absaroka-Beartooth wilderness north of Yellowstone, the 39,800-acre Storm Creek fire was relatively calm but had burned several miles toward Slough Creek, which leads into the park, officials said.

In Idaho, firefighters battled blazes that have burned more than 60,000 acres. Fires continued out of control in the Payette, Nez Perce, Boise, Challis, Clearwater, Salmon, Caribou and Idaho Panhandle national forests and in the Selway-Bitterroot and Frank Church River of No Return wilderness areas.

With the wind blowing back toward Clover Mist, a crew of 19 "hot shots" paraded through the timber Sunday dropping a flaming mixture of diesel fuel and gasoline at their feet.

"Hey, we're having fun now," one said as he followed the carefully orchestrated routes.

Flames danced 100 feet into the smoke and bright red fire raced through the dry timber, creating a ferocious roar. Heat became so intense in some spots that the hot shots had to shield their faces.

"We have quite a safety plan and there's not much risk," said Bill Miller, chief of the crew spreading the fire, the Bitter Root Hot Shots of Montana. "We're not into getting anyone burned up."

Seven bulldozers cleared a 6-mile, 70-foot-wide "freeway" through the pines Saturday and Sunday to provide a clear barrier to keep the man-made fire contained. Hand crews cleared out brush and timber. Then, about 200 firefighters stood guard at the line, armed with hoses fed by hot-tub-sized water holding tanks. They watched for hot spots and flyng embers.

The forest service, eager for its first victory against the fire, had set the backfire for noon but had to wait until late afternoon for proper weather conditions. Helicopters and airplanes loaded with water and fire retardant stood by in case the wind shifted and blew flames back at the firefighters.

"This is the moment we've been waiting for," Kaunert said. "If the fire gets over (Highway) 212, we'd be in a very bad position to defend the towns."

For more than a week, smoke and flames climbing over the mountains that protect Cooke City had troubled residents, who were told Friday to prepare for an evacuation that was never necessary. Three Crandall-area ranches were evacuated Saturday.

The back burn showed the progress firefighters have made against blazes during the weekend.

Drought effects said mixed

WASHINGTON (AP) — A review of fruit, vegetables and other "high-value" crops watched closely by the Agriculture Department shows that the 1988 drought has trimmed some harvests but did little harm to others.

"The drought disrupted normal production and marketing of Midwestern processing vegetables, dry beans, sugar beets and tart cherries," says the department's Economic Research Service. "Drought damage had less influence on the markets for other fruits, tobacco, sugar cane, tree nuts and fresh vegetables."

Last week the Labor Department reported that grocery prices rose 1.4 percent in July, the sharpest increase in 4½ years. One of the factors was a 4.7 percent gain for fresh fruits and vegetables.

USDA economist Glenn Zepp said the biggest drought impact among fruit and vegetable crops was on processing vegetables grown in Wisconsin, Minnesota, Michigan and Illinois, where production dropped and prices rose.

Green pea production in Wisconsin and Minnesota, which accounted for more than half of the U.S. output in 1987, declined 50 percent this year because of drought-reduced yields.

Snap bean production under contract with processors is expected to be down 14 percent from last year.

"Production in Michigan, Minnesota and Wisconsin is forecast down 20 percent," Zepp reports in the September issue of Agricultural Outlook magazine. "Half the 1987 crop came from these three states. A hot summer and limited moisture ravaged snap bean fields in Arkansas, Pennsylvania and New York."

Despite rain in late July in some production areas Midwestern canners expect the sweet corn pack to be 30 percent to 50 percent below their planned volume. Similar shortfalls are reported for the region's canned beets, carrots, lima beans and tomatoes.

"Most processing tomatoes (88 percent in 1987) are grown in California, so drought-reduced output in the Midwest will have little effect on total tomato supplies or prices," he said.

But Zepp said that by mid-August canners were quoting delivered prices 25 percent to 35 percent higher for green peas, snap beans and sweet corn than at the beginning of the summer.

Looking at fresh vegetables, he said shipments from major U.S. production areas to consumer centers are slightly ahead of last year.

"Output from California, the major producing state, has not been affected by the drought because crops are irrigated," he said. "Fresh output from some drought areas is reportedly down. Because these areas normally provide only a small portion of total supplies, however, the effect on fresh vegetable prices has been minimal."

A large harvest of dry edible beans in 1987 drove prices down for most types, and growers indicated in March they would reduce plantings 23 percent this year and turn to corn and soybeans. As a result, prices rose sharply in anticipation of the cut-back.

But the dry bean acreage declined only 13 percent from last year, and from a historical perspective, the 1988 acreage was up by about 8 percent from the previous nine-year average.

In August, the department estimated total dry bean production at 21 million hundredweight, down 20 percent from 1987. In Michigan, where farmers reduced bean acres by 43 percent, production declined even more sharply.

Oil-depressed Houston attracts business

HOUSTON (AP) — Low housing costs combined with inexpensive labor and vast office space left vacant by a crash in the oil economy have made Houston an increasingly popular choice among companies looking to relocate, officials say.

The result is renewed outlook for the city, where business is improving for relocation and real estate firms, as well as hotels, restaurants and rental companies.

"We're definitely experiencing an increase in corporate business, particularly from companies that are transferring employees here," said Peter O'Colmain, general manager of the Inn on the Park Four Seasons.

"We now have people who check in for three or four weeks who are in the process of moving their families here, and that didn't happen so much before." Dozens of companies have announced plans to relocate to Houston or expand their existing operations.

"The word is out about Houston," said Dennis Taylor, director of consulting services at Runzheimer International, a Rochester, Wis., firm that specializes in researching living costs nationwide.

"The cost of living in Houston is very low compared to most other places."

Several weeks ago, Compaq Computer Corp. announced plans to hire 5,000 new employees in Houston over the next four years — a move described as the area's biggest economic boon in recent history.

Grumman Corp. has picked Houston as the home of a new regional development and production center that will coordinate all of the company's space efforts and create 1,500 new jobs for the city within three years.

Today's Lucky Number is 1477

And officials at the Houston Economic Development Council note that at least 3,500 new jobs have come to Houston in recent years as the result of oil company mergers, consolidations and divisional changes.
