1,000 still expected...

60 added for WTC fall term

Western Texas College gained an additional 60 students during the first three days of classes for the fall term and officials say they are expecting a "big day" Tuesday, the first day following the Labor Day break. Total enrollment now stands at 925 and Dr. Duane Hood, dean of student services, said he expects the figure to top 1,000 following the three-day weekend.

The student count now stands at 550 fulltime, an increase of 33 from the first day of classes Wednesday, and 375 part-time, an increase of 27. As of Friday, dorm occupancy was listed at 98 percent full. "We've got four spaces open," Hood said. A decline in the number of part-time students is expected to hold this fall's total under last year's.

when the class registration period ended with 1,164 enrolled. The last day to sign up for classes for the 1988-89 term is Friday. When registration ended last fall, there were 576 fulltime and 588 part-time students. The alltime record enrollment at WTC is 1,414, set in the spring of 1984. Survey profiles shopping

242 respond to SDN survey

Responses to the recent Snyder Daily News shoppers survey have been compiled and a complete list of results is now available through the newspaper.

The SDN ran a series of 22 questions pertaining to shopping habits of Snyder consumers. Readers were invited to return these questionnaires and 242 responses were received.

Because of the nature of the survey, those responding were not necessarily a true cross section of the entire community. But questions asked as part of the survey profiled the respondents.

The majority of these were female (77 percent) and married (84 percent) generally between the ages of 30-39.

Most had lived in Snyder in excess of 12 years and quoted average annual income levels of $30,000 to $40,000.

Of those responding, 57 percent were employed and 43 percent were not.

Some random facts turned up by the 242 individuals responding included:

—The group was almost evenly split between "favorite shopping hours" of 10 a.m. until noon and 3 until 6 p.m.

—The "favorite day to shop" most often cited was Saturday.

—Suggestions to improve the quality of shopping in Snyder included more variety of merchandise, 75 votes, and lower prices, 63 votes.

—The "most important reason" for shopping at home was quoted as "stores conveniently located," 150 votes; and "ease of shopping," 65 votes.

—By far the majority, 88 percent, indicated they also shopped outside Snyder.

—The reasons most cited for shopping out-of-town were "better selection" (175 votes) and "lower prices" (153 votes).

—The city most often cited for out-of-town shopping was Lubbock, 133 votes, with Abilene receiving 88 and Big Spring, 40.

Rent-to-own chain...

Colortyme store will open Tuesday

A Colortyme rent-to-own store will open in Snyder Tuesday in the Snyder Shopping Center.

The local store will be one of five operated in the West Texas market by a Snyder-based corporation, Corree Rentals, which has a franchise agreement with Colortyme Inc., the largest rent-to-own chain in the nation.

Corree Rentals has been established in Snyder since Sept.

1 of 1986, but this marks the first time a local store has been opened. The corporation's other stores are located in Abilene, Midland, San Angelo and Odessa with gross revenues in excess of $1 million annually.

Officers for Corree Rentals include John Reed, president; Joe Gainer, controller; and Richard Reed, area manager.

For the local operation, Cy

Miller will serve as store manager and Carlos Martinez will be account manager.

Store hours will be from 9 a.m. until 6 p.m. Monday through Saturday.

Colortyme offers color televisions and home entertainment centers in addition to Whirlpool washers and dryers, refrigerators and freezers, stereos and lines of living room, dining room and bedroom furniture.

A typical agreement has the customer making weekly payments for a 78-week period.

During this "rental period," all products are warranted for all parts and labor. This is in addition to a five-year limited warranty placed on most products.

Center due for telethon

The annual Jerry Lewis Labor Day Telethon to raise money for the Muscular Dystrophy Association this year again has the help of the Gay 20s Social Club, a group of junior high and high school girls and young women who are taking pledges at the Chamber of Commerce.

A club spokesman said all 20 members probably would staff the center, in the chamber board room, all night Sunday and then work in two- and three-hour shifts until the telethon ends 24 hours later at 7 p.m. Monday.

The number is 573-3558, with pledge leaders having set a goal of $2,000 for this year, which is an increase from the $1,308 that 60 people pledged here last year.

In addition to answering telephone calls and taking pledges, club members will also be addressing and filling See TELETHON, page 3A

The feller on Deep Creek says, "Golf is a game played by people who yell fore, take six and put down five."

Jim Erwin, principal at East Elementary, is starting his 30th year with the Snyder Public Schools.

A youngster at East overheard an adult conversation about Mr. Erwin's long tenure. Back in class, a young boy remarked, "I sure hope it doesn't take me that long to get to junior high."

Erwin, like most educators, believes that support from home is essential. However, Erwin remembers too well the time that he got too much help from home.

Erwin says it was the first day of school, filled with all the many problems of class loads, where to go, where not to go and which way is the bathroom.

A young mother arrived with her first grader. She explained to the teacher that he refused to get out of the car. The teacher went out, spoke kindly to the youngster only to strengthen the child's resolve to stay out of the school.

The teacher went to the office and enlisted the help of the school secretary. Confident that two smiling faces could lure the youngster out of the auto, they were met with screams and shouts of anguish.

After several unsuccessful minutes, the teacher, secretary and distraught mother decided the only course of action was to call for Mr. Erwin.

Erwin, they knew, is gentle and understanding, but he also is known as one who can be strict and demanding. Erwin's wisdom from 30 years in the system would certainly solve the problem.

As Erwin approached, the child's screams became more intense. The child's knuckles were white from grasping the car's steering wheel. The scene was so loud that not even the veteran Mr. Erwin could reach him.

Erwin suggested that the mother take the child home, calm him down, try to find out the source of the fear and either call or try to bring him the next morning.

That evening, the mother uncovered the problem—too much help from home. An older brother had teased, "Mr. Erwin's going to bust you and throw you out the window."

Chrysler sues car dealers

AUSTIN (AP) — Chrysler Motor Corp. claims four Central Texas car dealers sought more than $250,000 in reimbursements for rebates and sales incentives that were never given to customers.

Chrysler officials filed a federal lawsuit in Austin which claims dealerships in San Antonio, Boerne, San Marcos and Georgetown defrauded the Detroit-based automobile company by applying for phony reimbursements.

The lawsuit alleges the dealerships asked for repayment of sales incentives on vehicles that had not been sold, and on vehicles that were not eligible for the sales incentives. In addition, the suit said the dealers applied for rebate repayments that had not been given to car and truck buyers.

The suit names James C. Weldon of San Antonio, who is identified as an officer or general manager of the dealerships or their parent corporations, and the four dealerships.

The businesses named are Alamo City Dodge Inc., operating as Broadway Dodge in San Antonio; Boerne Hills Leasing Corp., operating as Chaparral Chrysler-Plymouth-Dodge in Boerne; Tri-Star Chrysler-Plymouth-Dodge Inc. in San Marcos, and J&A Tri-Star Inc. in Georgetown.

The lawsuit, filed under civil racketeering statutes, asked the court to nullify Chrysler's dealership agreements with the businesses and to assess treble damages against them.

The Austin American Statesman reported that Chrysler conducted an audit of Broadway Dodge in May 1987 because of "serious out-of-line conditions" in the dealership's sales incentive profile. The other dealerships were also audited after "excessive irregularities" were found at Broadway Dodge, according to the lawsuit.

The audit revealed Broadway Dodge turned in claims for $76,900 in sales incentives that were not figured into sale prices and that other dealers allegedly kept a total of $87,900 in incentives, the suit said.

According to the suit, Chrysler told Weldon in December that some of his dealerships had turned in false documents to support their repayment claims and Weldon agreed his companies owed Chrysler $252,762 for falsified claims.

World-record lottery jackpot draws international interest

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — A world-record lottery jackpot drew entrants from as far away as England as 265 tickets a second were sold for a shot at the $52 million Florida Lotto drawing Saturday night.

"We've got so many people running in and out of here. I had somebody call at 6 o'clock this morning wanting to know if I was open," Bill McMurtry, manager of the Sing convenience store and gas station in Bradfordville near the Georgia line, said Friday.

Lottery Secretary Rebecca Paul said she met a man from London who read about the jackpot and flew to Florida to play.

The record prize in the 4-month-old lottery also is attracting droves of players from neighboring states.

Eight of the state's top 10 ticket sellers are in the Panhandle or northeast Florida counties bordering Alabama and Georgia, neither of which has a legalized lottery, said lottery spokesman Ed George.

Half the sales at the Sing convenience store, about eight miles south of the Georgia line, are to Georgia and Alabama residents. One man purchased more than $500 worth of tickets Friday morning for a lottery pool.

"He comes down every Friday," McMurtry said. "The higher the jackpot has been, the higher the influx of people from Georgia has been."

The lottery's telephone hotline has been receiving calls from out-of-state residents wanting to buy tickets without coming to Florida. But Postal Service regulations prohibit selling lottery tickets through the mail.

Many Lotto players dreamed of what it would be like to win.

"Parties, trips, plays, travel. I'd throw a big party first thing," said Gail Thomas, a Georgia juvenile detention officer who bought her tickets in the border town of Iamonia.

Pasco Donald, 74, said he would remember his 12 children, 60 grandchildren and more than 50 great-grandchildren.

"I'd give each of them $1,000," he said. "Well, maybe some of them. Not all of them."

Despite the 14-million-to-1 odds of winning, the $1 Lotto tickets were selling at a rate of about 265 per second Friday, said George.

FBI looking for woman who wrote Ann Landers

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — The Federal Bureau of Investigation is looking for an El Paso woman who wrote to advice columnist Ann Landers about a con man she married because FBI agents think they have arrested the man in New Orleans.

The FBI needs to contact the woman so that she can attempt to identify him as the tall, handsome military man who wooed her with his smooth talk.

The letter, signed by "Slow Learner" of El Paso, appeared in the Ann Landers column Aug. 30.

The woman told Ms. Landers she realized that the man had other wives and was probably out to get her possessions, she annulled the marriage and wrote to warn other would-be victims.

Special Agent Terry Kincaid of the El Paso FBI office said agents in New Orleans arrested Byron Clovis Brant, a man who sounds very much like the one described in the letter.

"From the information provided in this letter to Ann Landers, we have reason to believe this lady ... may have been married to this character," Kincaid told the El Paso Times Friday.

Brant was arrested July 28 in New Orleans. He previously had been indicted on charges of impersonating a military officer and possession of a firearm by a convicted felon. Kincaid said he doesn't know what the felony conviction was.

The FBI reported Brant uses many aliases and may have victimized women from California, Hawaii and the Midwest. Usually, he impersonates a military officer but he did serve in the Marine Corps from 1975 to 1980. He also has impersonated a doctor, the FBI said.

The El Paso office was asked by New Orleans to find the writer, Kincaid said.

Delta Flight 1141...

Crew account and wreckage give conflicting evidence from crash

GRAPEVINE, Texas (AP) — The position of wing flaps and slats on the wreckage of Delta Flight 1141 conflicts with a crew member's recollection and cockpit recordings indicating the crucial devices were properly set for takeoff, investigators say.

National Transportation Safety Board teams also have been wrestling with a lack of physical evidence that would indicate the Boeing 727 was having engine problems, as the cockpit recording and witness accounts have suggested.

Flight engineer Steven Judd, the first crew member interviewed since Wednesday's crash, told investigators Friday that everything aboard the jet seemed normal before takeoff.

Thirteen people died when the jet crashed at the end of a Dallas-Fort Worth International Airport runway and burst into flames after what investigators said was an unusually long takeoff approach.

Judd said the jet's right wing "dropped severely" as the plane left the ground and that Capt. Larry Davis tried to take corrective action. There were no abnormal engine sounds, Judd said, although he recalled hearing the words "engine failure."

That statement was picked up on cockpit voice recordings, as was the preflight checklist of the wing flaps, NTSB member Lee Dickinson said at a briefing Friday night.

"15, 15. Green light," Dickinson quoted a voice on the tape as saying. That would seem to indicate both wing flaps were in the proper 15-degree downward angle for takeoff, he said.

Dickinson said Judd had the same recollection of the flaps' position, which help provide the lift a plane needs to become airborne.

Investigators, however, said the flaps in the wreckage appeared to be in the up position and the plane's slats, which are on the forward edge of the wings, were found to be partially extended — the opposite of the correct takeoff position.

NTSB officials said locking devices on the slats likely would have prevented them from being knocked out of position during the crash.

Investigators have also said the handle controlling the flaps inside the cockpit was in the wrong position, but cautioned that it could have been jarred out of place during the crash or the evacuation of the crew.

Federal investigators determined that the flaps and slats of a Northwest Airlines MD-80 were not properly set for takeoff when that plane crashed Aug. 16, 1987, at Detroit Metropolitan airport, killing 156 people.

Evidence also has not yet confirmed witness accounts that the Delta jet's engines flared during takeoff, a phenomenon that could indicate "compressor stall" within the engines, said Bernard Loeb, the NTSB's deputy director of investigations.

The plane left the gate at its scheduled departure time of 8:31 a.m., but did not take off for almost 30 minutes.

Judd said he remembers that there were normal engine indications and that other aspects of the takeoff were normal up to and including the time the nose wheel left the ground, Dickinson said.

No signs of damage have been found on the engines, which Dickinson said will be dismantled at the Hartford, Conn., plant of their manufacturer, Pratt & Whitney.

The engines were removed Friday and NTSB investigators were able to get a better view, Dickinson said. "They reiterated that there was no visible evidence of any engine failure or any engine problem," he said.

Rapist eludes police

MIDLAND, Texas (AP) — Concern about an elusive masked rapist who has plagued east Midland throughout the summer drew 200 citizens to a meeting with police.

The Thursday night meeting at a YMCA building was held to discuss progress in the search for the criminal that since June has committed two sexual assaults, attempted two others and is suspected in a dozen burglaries, all on the east side of town.

The rapist has not struck since August 10, and usually "goes under" when faced with publicity, according to police.

He carries a screwdriver that he uses to break into homes between 1 a.m. and 5 a.m., according to investigators.

In each case, the women have been alone or with small children in the house.

The rapist is the talk of the east side, said Kay Scott, who lives in the area with her two children and three dogs.

"At first I didn't take it seriously, but the more I heard, I got concerned," she said.

At the meeting, police revealed that officers have worked undercover in the area since June, and have questioned and photographed pedestrians stopped in the area during the rapist's active hours, between midnight and 6 a.m.

"Most of all we want to calm you down, to let you know the danger is not as bad as you might think," said Police Chief Richard Czech. "We want you to know that police officers are out on the street. They are out there when you are sleeping."

Two of the rapist's intended victims apparently scared him off after confronting him with weapons. One woman shot at him with a handgun, while another pulled a butcher knife from under her pillow, according to police.

"We do not encourage you to use force," Czech told the crowd. "If you feel comfortable using a weapon, I'm not going to discourage you."

Some investigators have described the rapist as a "peeping Tom" who may be roaming the east side every night looking for targets.

"He doesn't know them (victims) personally," Czech said. "But he knows what's going on in that particular house."

Many in the crowd said that citizens may bring the crime spree to an end.

"I believe he is going to break in on the wrong person," said Patricia Moore, 22. "And then he is going to get it."

All arrests drink-related

Three men were arrested on drinking-related charges at 1:32 a.m. Saturday in the 2500 Block of Ave. Q.

A 22-year-old man was taken into custody for DWI and driving with his license suspended, and his 21- and 18-year-old companions were arrested for public intoxication.

A 26-year-old man was arrested for DWI and DWLS at 12:46 a.m. Saturday in the 2400 Block of 21st St.

Pedacyclist struck Friday

A 21-year-old pedacyclist escaped serious injury when he was hit by a hit-and-run driver in the parking lot of a central Snyder nightclub at 12:59 p.m. Friday.

Police said Danny Gunderson of 1412 Kola suffered minor injuries and was taken by private vehicle to Cogdell Memorial Hospital, where he was treated and released.

The vehicle and driver that hit him were said Saturday to be unknown.

4 accidents are reported

Three motor vehicle accidents occurred in Snyder Friday and police worked a fourth incident from Thursday reported to them on Friday.

A 1977 Chrysler four-door driven by Addene Conway of 2401 Ave. N was in collision with a 1986 Chevrolet four-door driven by Albert Zamora Jr. of 3012 Austin Ave. at 11:48 a.m. Friday at 25th St. and Ave. N.

Commissioner objects to abortions

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Medical Center Hospital officials say they will follow Bexar County Commissioners Court orders on whether abortions should be performed at the hospital.

The move comes after Commissioner John Longoria said he would oppose the Bexar County Hospital District's budget because abortions are performed at the medical center.

John Guest, executive director of the hospital district, in a prepared statement Friday said, "We will be responsive to what the Commissioners Court decides."

Longoria said he and hospital district officials had reached an agreement on the issue.

"They have made a commitment to me that whatever policy (on abortion) the majority of Commissioners Court agrees on would be seriously considered," Longoria said. "Based on the commitment of what I perceive to be honorable people, I will not oppose their budget or tax rate."

Commissioners Court is scheduled to vote on the district's budget and on the intent to set the district's tax rate next Wednesday.

In July, Longoria said he would oppose the district's budget and tax rate until the district took action to ban abortions at the hospital except in extreme cases, such as when a mother's life is in danger.

"Commissioner Longoria has always been supportive of the hospital district in the past," Guest said. "We appreciate his continued support and we respect his views."

Longoria said he would not put the abortion issue up for a vote Wednesday, but would support the district's requested tax rate even without a decision from Commissioners Court in hand.

"They're (hospital staff and administrators) doing a magnificent job," Longoria said, adding that he and several family members have been treated at the medical center. "The level of care is excellent. They're all very professional."

The cost of subsidizing those abortions is under study, but no figures are available.

Director of union is not re-elected

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — Longtime United Auto Workers regional director Kenneth Worley lost his re-election bid to a challenger backed by a growing union splinter group.

In an emotional replay of a 1986 election for southwest regional director, the 160 delegates from eight states that comprise the union's Region 5 cast 302,170 votes, 52.5 percent, for challenger Jerry Tucker and 327,826 votes, 47.5 percent, for Worley.

The fractions represent delegates casting differing numbers of votes based on their local membership totals.

Adult education classes ready for new year

Adult Education classes to help students prepare for GED tests have begun their fall schedule at Western Texas College.

Classes meet from 6-9 p.m. on Tuesdays and Thursdays in the Resource Center and students may enroll at any class. There is no cost for the class.

All books are furnished but students are asked to bring their own pens and pencils.

Call 573-8511, ext. 240 for more information.

Excited whispers and then cheers rippled through the largely pro-Tucker audience of more than 200 UAW members Friday who watched as election delegates cast votes.

Tucker leads a growing group in the union that calls itself New Directions, which contends international leaders have lost touch with rank-and-file workers.

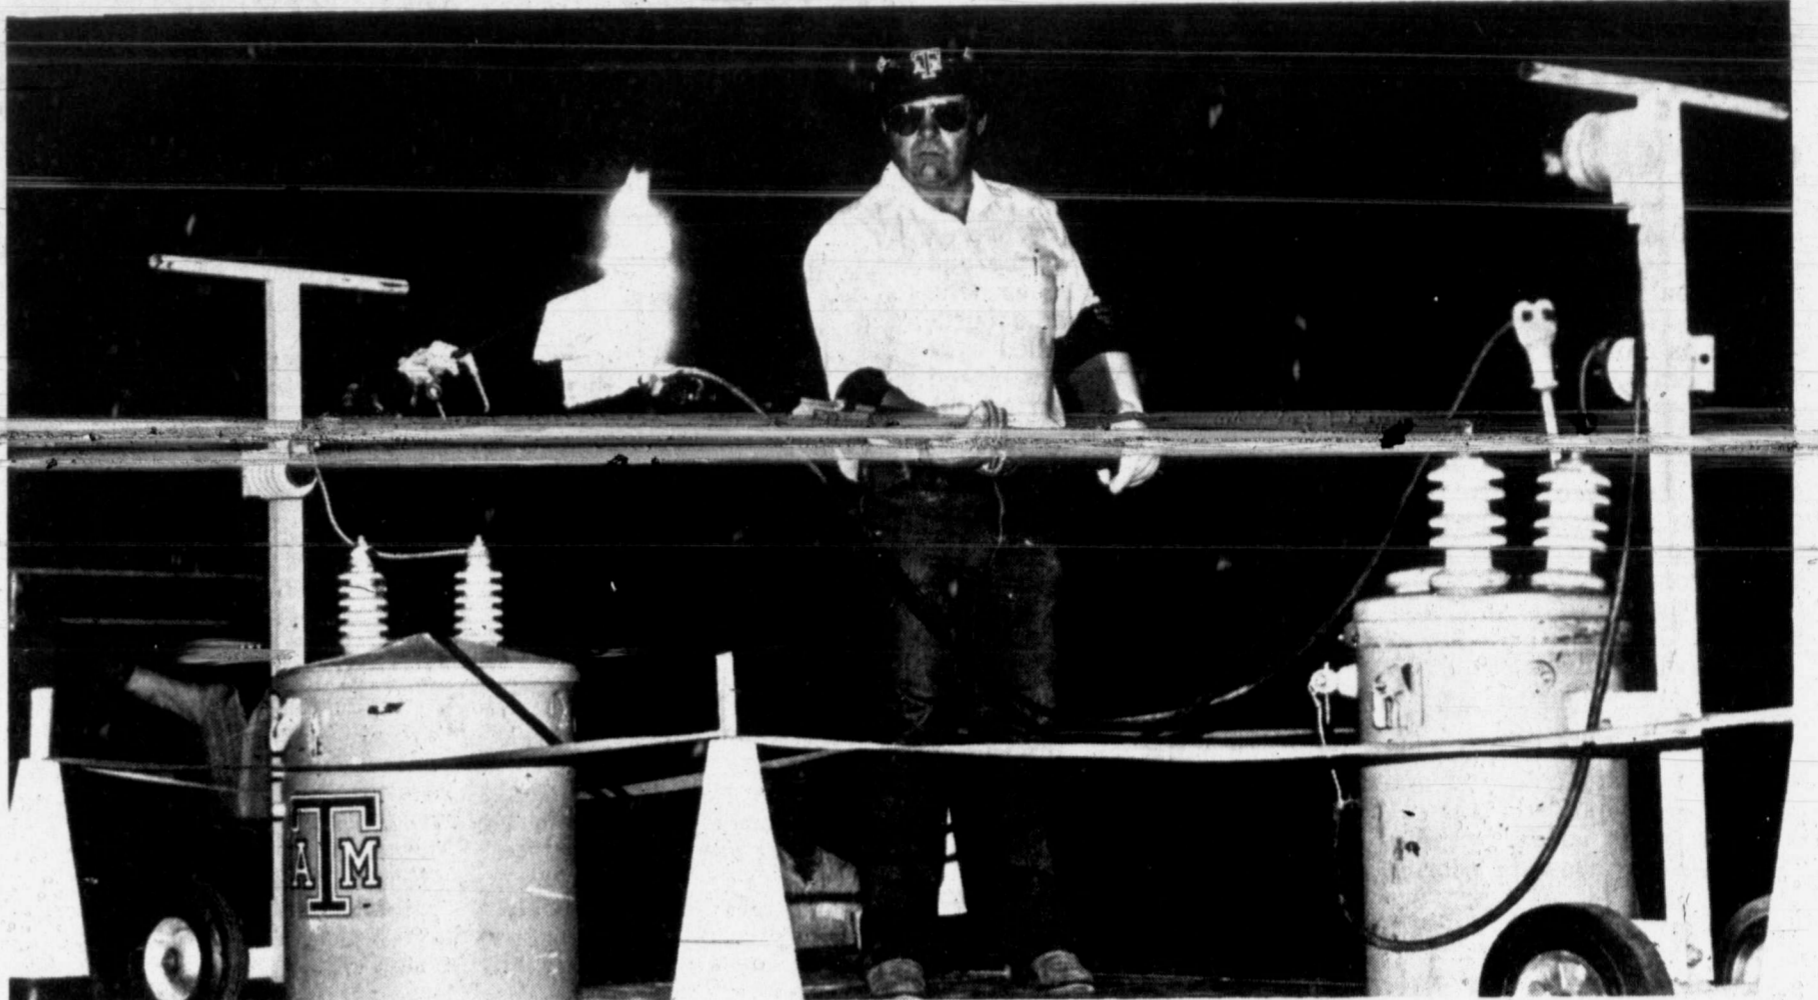

Delegates representing workers at the General Motors Corp. plant in Arlington and LTV Corp. in Grand Prairie voted for Tucker, while delegates from Bell Helicopter Textron Inc. and GM's Service Parts Operation in Fort Worth voted for Worley.

Immediately after the vote, UAW president Owen Bieber installed Tucker as Region 5 director without shaking his hand. The international union supported Worley, the Region 5 director for 21 years.

Tucker later said Bieber's failure to shake his hand may not have been a deliberate snub. "It was kind of crowded up there," Tucker said.

Worley, 63, who refused to comment about his defeat, was expected to retire in June when another election for regional director is scheduled. The term lasts three years.

In the June 1986 election, Worley beat Tucker, his former assistant director.

'Ideological sabotage' threatens Soviets

MOSCOW (AP) — The head of the KGB says foreign-supported subversives are attempting to use the freer atmosphere in the Soviet Union to undermine the system.

"They try to stimulate the organization of various kinds of clandestine, semilegal and even legal associations in our country which would act at their bidding," said Victor Chebrikov, who referred to the actions as "ideological sabotage."

In a rare glimpse into the Soviet secret agency Friday, Chebrikov also said his agents caught 20 spies in the past 2½ years and asserted that superpower intelligence agencies are still waging a Cold War, despite improved East-West relations.

"Certain circles of imperialism have not abandoned the course toward confrontation," said Chebrikov, head of the Committee for State Security — the KGB — and a member of the ruling Communist Party Politburo. Chebrikov also said in the lengthy interview in the party newspaper Pravda that officials are in the process of trying to define the KGB's role, adding that he is working on "remolding thinking and renouncing stereotypes" within the KGB's ranks.

He voiced support for the Kremlin's policy of "glasnost" or greater openness, but said some of the KGB's acts must remain secret.

He said the agency's primary goal is to stop intelligence-gathering and subversive activities by foreign secret services, "as well as hostile actions by anti-Soviet and antisocialist-minded persons inside the country."

In what appeared to be his first interview, Chebrikov acknowledged the Soviet secret police apparatus has been guilty of repression on the domestic front. But he gave no details, other than to mention some former officials of the security agency who were killed for resisting repressions under dictator Josef Stalin.

Chebrikov said more than 20,000 agents who resisted orders from higher-ups to violate the law "fell victim to repressions as a result of false charges."

The agency now trains agents to adhere strictly to Soviet law, he said.

Chebrikov said the 20 captured spies included KGB officers working as double agents. He said more than 50 diplomats and correspondents from NATO-member countries were expelled from the Soviet Union in 1986-87 for "activities incompatible with their diplomatic status."

Chebrikov also reported the discovery of nuclear-powered devices to eavesdrop on a Soviet underwater telephone cable in the Okhotsk Sea 37 miles off the Soviet east coast and north of Japan.

In 1955, the Salk vaccine against polio was declared safe and effective.

Financial Focus

Know how to sell investments

There comes a time when investors want to sell shares of common stock or mutual fund shares. Knowing how to sell is important.

Common stock represents ownership in a corporation with shares listed for trading, usually on one of the major exchanges or the over-the-counter market.

If you wish to buy a stock trading on the New York Stock Exchange, you should contact a broker who is a member of that exchange. Start by opening an account and agreeing on the price you will pay. Then have the broker buy the stock for you.

For a commission, your broker buys the stock, takes delivery and pays for it. Your broker then has it re-registered in your name, delivers the stock and collects from you. Although the mechanics can take several weeks, orders entered "at market" are executed immediately over the firm's "wire system," so often you can get the price within seconds.

When you decide to sell, the same process is followed. Once your broker is satisfied you hold the stock certificates in "good delivery," the sale is made efficiently and your transaction is reported almost immediately.

The sale or redemption of mutual fund shares, however, can be confusing. There are several ways mutual funds shares are redeemed.

Redemption is simple when you elect to have the fund hold the certificates in "safekeeping" with a custodian bank. With some funds this allows you to arrange redemption over the telephone. A call to the fund with your instructions is all it takes.

The broker through whom you purchase your shares is equipped to handle your order "by wire," your shares are also redeemed at net asset value at the close of business. The broker collects the money and pays you. There is usually no charge for this service, but it's a good idea to establish this in advance.

You should also know whether your broker is equipped to liquidate by wire. If not, your fund shares are sold by mail. This could take several days, and the value of your shares could change appreciably before the fund receives your order.

Once you have decided to sell and are satisfied with the current market prices, don't allow your order to remain in limbo. To avoid disappointment and misunderstanding, know how to place your orders and find out when they will be executed.

Weight control class scheduled

Why do some weight control diets succeed while others fail? How can the average person find an exercise program that can be used throughout life?

These are two of the topics to be explored in the weight control course scheduled at Western Texas College in the fall semester.

Lee Burke, chairman of the H-PE department, will teach the course in classes meeting from 8:35-9:50 on Tuesday and Thursday mornings. The first part of each period will be spent in an informational share setting, Burke says, since it is important for the entire group to participate and be involved. Information will be directed to tips and myths concerning dieting (why do some succeed and others fail?), the betterment of the self-image through physical fitness, and the safe approach to an exercise program.

The aerobic portion of the class will be a walking protocol determined by the present condition of each participant. Grades will be based on participation and attitude in class. Absences can be made up with instructor approval but an excused absence must be made up within one week.

The class will utilize tape presentations, articles from highly reputable research universities and an exercise program designed by Burke.

Registration for fall classes at WTC will end on Sept. 9. Students wishing to enroll now will begin registration in the Administration Building.

Bulldogs take a bite out of Mustangs, 51-8

SOUTHLAND - Ira's Bulldogs ran past Southland 51-8 in six-man football action here Friday. Ira used a multi-faced attack, scoring on land and through the air to derail the Eagles in the season opener for both teams. The Bulldogs got on the scoreboard early when Chuck Barbee connected with Gary Gunset on a 17-yard touchdown. Other first-quarter scores came on a 10-yard run from Greg Box and a 3-yard run from Justin Spradlin. Jason Withers kicked one two-point conversion to give the visitors a 20-0 lead at the end of the period. Barbee came out throwing again in the second quarter and hit Gunset on another TD pass - this one for 24 yards. Spradlin also tallied on a 6-yard scoring run and Withers converted two kicks before Southland finally got on the board. Already enjoying a big lead, the 'Dogs rubbed some salt in the wounds when Withers recovered a Southland fumble in the end zone for another touchdown. The final Ira score came in the fourth quarter as Spradlin bulled over from a yard out. Withers kicked one conversion and Barbee hit Box for the other. Defensively, Shane Bearden managed eight solo tackles. Box and David Holmes had seven apiece. Barbee completed seven of 26 passes for 133 yards. Spradlin carried 16 times for 118 yards and Gunset mirrored him with 117 yards on 11 tries. "We played the first quarter and a half in the rain. It was wet but the kids played real aggressively and with a lot of spirit. I was real pleased," said Coach Don Jones. Next action for the Bulldogs will be Sept. 9 when they host Wilson at 7:30 p.m.

In season grid opener...

Coronado pops Tigers, 27-13

By BILL McCLELLAN
SDN Sports Editor

David Cobb got the Coronado passing game going in the second half and the Mustangs capitalized on five Tiger turnovers to defeat Snyder in the first varsity football game of the season here Friday.

It was the debut for head coach David Baugh and his Fighting Tigers, and though the scoreboard indicated a loss, the coach was optimistic about most of what he saw. "In a lot of ways we played better than I thought we would," said Baugh. "I thought we adjusted to what they were doing offensively pretty well. At times, we showed bursts of doing things right offensively. I thought we ran some of our plays much better this week."

Snyder had scrimmaged just once, and Baugh wasn't pleased with what he saw. Friday's effort was more encouraging. "I think we could have won the game. We've got to believe in ourselves and learn how to win. I didn't think we let up in the second half but I thought Coronado battled harder," said the coach. "I was pleased that we battled them right to the end. We know we have a long way to go but one loss or one win doesn't make a season."

Howe town fans were on their feet in appreciation at halftime as Snyder managed a 13-7 advantage over the visitors from Lubbock. It appeared as if the crowd might have more to cheer about when the Tigers took the second-half kickoff and marched 39 yards, across the midstripe to the Coronado 46. Plans went awry at that point, however. Missed connections left the ball on the ground, and Kenneth Stewart was there to recover for the Mustangs.

Enter Cobb, who had struggled through a first-half passing game that managed just four completions in 13 attempts for 37 yards. Cobb overcame a clipping penalty with two straight strikes - one for 10 yards to Ernie Moreno and another for 12 to Dusty

McDonald. The pass to McDonald came on a fourth down and seven situation and gave the Mustangs new life at the Snyder 26. Just five plays later, Cobb found Blake Abbott open for 10 yards and the tying score. Kevin Stevens kicked the PAT good and with 2:54 to go in the quarter, Coronado led 14-13. The Mustangs forced Snyder to punt away its next possession, and got good field position when Kriby-Adams broke free on a 21-yard return. Set up at the Tiger 30, it took only two plays to score. Shane Marcum scampered for 24 yards on the first play, and Cobb hit Abbott on a 6-yard scoring toss moments later. The conversion failed, leaving the Lubbock team ahead 20-13 with 1:21 to play. Snyder made a strong run at the visitors after recovering a fumble at the 44. A pass interference penalty put the Tigers in Coronado territory, and from there backup quarterback Randy Morris found Tommy Lane on a

26-yard pass to the 17. Three plays netted nothing though as the Coronado defense rose up. On fourth down, Morris' pass attempt fell incomplete and the Mustangs took over. Coronado scored its final touchdown with 1:20 left to play after Derrick Francois recovered Snyder's fifth fumble of the contest. Taking over at the Tiger 7, Cobb connected with McDonald (see TIGERS, page 7A)

Pro football roundup...

Saints get tough test early

by The Associated Press

The New Orleans Saints, hoping to prove that last season was no fluke, will get a tough test right away as the NFL opens its 69th season Sunday. "It's the best against the best," said Saints linebacker Rickey Jackson of Sunday's game with the San Francisco 49ers. "We believe we're the best. They think they're the best. Let's settle it on the field."

The soldout contest at the New Orleans Superdome, one of 14 games over the Labor Day weekend, pits a pair of strong teams from the NFC West. San Francisco had the league's best regular-season record last year at 13-2, and the Saints were second at 12-3. The teams split their regular-season meetings, San Francisco beating the Saints 24-22 at the Superdome in the first game after the strike and the Saints winning 26-24 two weeks later at San Francisco. "I'd rather open against San Francisco," said Jackson, four times a Pro Bowl pick at outside linebacker before failing to make it last season. "No grudge against San Francisco, but it's a challenge." Both teams lost to Minnesota in their opening playoff games, the Saints bowing 44-10 in a wild card game and the 49ers falling 36-24 a week later. The Saints' loss took some of the glow off their first winning season ever, but it had more severe repercussions in San Francisco. For the first time since he led the 49ers to a Super Bowl championship in his first full season as a starter in 1981, there was speculation that quarterback Joe Montana might lose his starting job or at least have to share playing time with agile Steve Young. "I know it's going to be Montana out there," Jackson said. "The only way Montana will get out of the game is if we get way ahead, and they know they can't win. They're not going to start off the season messing with their quarterback the first game of the year." The Saints-49ers' game is one of 13 on Sunday. The opening weekend concludes with a Monday night game between the defending Super Bowl champion Washington Redskins and the New York Giants, who won the NFL title the year before. In Sunday's other games, it's the Seattle Seahawks at the Denver Broncos, Phoenix Cardinals at the Cincinnati Bengals, the Miami Dolphins at the Chicago Bears, Cleveland Browns at Kansas City Chiefs, Houston Oilers at Indianapolis Colts, New York Jets at New England Patriots, San Diego Chargers at Los Angeles Raiders, Minnesota Vikings at Buffalo Bills, Los Angeles Rams at Green Bay Packers, Atlanta Falcons at Detroit Lions, Philadelphia Eagles at Tampa Bay Buccaneers and Dallas Cowboys at the Pittsburgh Steelers.

Early miscues help Sands past Hermleigh

SANDS - Hermleigh's Cardinals played a good defensive game but couldn't get their offense on track here Friday night as Sands took a 26-2 victory.

The Cardinals' only score came on a blocked Sands point-after try which was returned by Bobby Brown for two points.

Hermleigh will try to break in to the win column again next Friday, Sept. 9, when the Cardinals entertain Southland at 7:30 p.m. Southland will also be looking for a victory after falling to Ira 51-8.

Sands capitalized as Hermleigh turned the ball over on its first four possessions of the ballgame. A couple of Albert Franco-to-Charles Rhodes passes of 14 and 20 yards accounted for a pair of Sands touchdowns. Jay Johnston tacked on a 25-yard field goal as the Mustangs built an 18-2 advantage.

A safety made it a 20-2 halftime lead and a 22-yard pass from Franco to Damian Zarate in the third period finished out the scoring.

"The first quarter was kind of a nightmare but we played them pretty good after that," said Hermleigh coach Doug Cook. "Offensively, we're just so inexperienced that it's going to take some time. They'll do better. I felt like we could have done much worse when you consider we really only had a full week of workouts and no scrimmages and we played a team that had regular workouts and two scrimmages.

"You can't be pleased with a loss but I was happy with some things I saw. We'll load 'em up and shoot 'em next week," said Cook.

U.S. Open

NEW YORK (AP) - Andre Agassi, the hottest player in tennis, and Jimmy Connors, the oldest player at the U.S. Open, advanced to the third round of the U.S. Open Friday.

Connors, twice as old as Agassi, celebrated his 36th birthday with a 6-0, 6-3, 3-6, 6-1 victory over Gilad Bloom of Israel. Agassi, seeded fourth, won his 20th straight match in official events, 4-6, 6-2, 6-3, 6-4 over Rick Leach.

It was an easy day for three-time defending champion Ivan Lendl, who won his 23rd successive Open match.

Other men's winners were No. 9 Tim Mayotte, No. 12 Guillermo Perez-Roldan and No. 15 Anders Jarryd.

TIGERS

again for the distance and another six points. Stevens provided the game's final point.

Cobb's second half passing numbers weren't for a lot of yardage - just 69 steps - but the 8-10 consistency let the Mustangs hold on to the ball. And his three second-half touchdown passes were the difference on the scoreboard.

Coronado received the opening kickoff and drove the ball well. An 11-yard run by Cobb and a 17-yard pass to Jason Buffington helped the march. Also aiding the drive were a couple of Tiger penalties - one which erased a Coronado punt. Though the march eventually reached the 17, it was stopped abruptly when free safety Morris intercepted for Snyder.

Missed communication on the Tigers' part led to the Mustangs' first touchdown moments later. On third down from the 2-yard line Snyder coaches called a quick kick. The play passed on was a quick pitch, however, and J. Paul Manning got the visitors an easy touchdown when he fell on a loose ball in the end zone. Stevens kicked and Coronado led 7-0.

Later, a short Coronado punt coupled with a 15-yard penalty gave Snyder the ball at the Lubbock 25. The Tigers took advantage, needing just four plays to score. Lane ran for 5 and 6 yards on the first two carries and fullback Lee Fletcher bulled for 2 more. From there, quarterback Todd Odom rolled right and raced the distance, scoring just nine seconds deep into the second quarter. Bert Merritt kicked the PAT to tie the game at 7-7.

Less than three minutes later the Tigers scored again. A strong Tiger defense pushed Pat Brown deep into the Coronado backfield. The football was knocked loose and Tim Beauchamp recovered for Snyder at the 8-yard line. Despite a penalty, Snyder reached the end zone in three plays, scoring when Odom threaded the ball between two defenders to hit Lane. The PAT failed, but Snyder enjoyed a 13-7 lead at halftime.

Odom went out of the game with a bruised left hand midway through the second quarter. The injury ended his quarterbacking role for the night although he did return to the defensive backfield.

"I thought Tracy did a good job before he got hurt. He made a real good (touchdown) run there and hit Tommy with the pass," recalled Baugh. "I thought Lane did a good job for his first start at tailback. He ran hard and a lot of times there wasn't too much of a hole."

With one game behind them, the Tigers prepare now for next Friday's game in Levelland. Both teams will be searching for their first wins of the season. Levelland tied Lamesa in its opener, 14-14.

Borden falls to New Home

GAIL - Darrell Paul galloped for 205 yards and five touchdowns to lead 10th-ranked New Home past Borden County in the season opener for both teams here Friday, 40-22.

Paul broke open a close game with 5:28 to play in the third quarter when he bolted free on a 49-yard touchdown gallop. Borden had scored twice in the quarter to make it a 28-22 contest, but Paul's run broke the Coyotes' momentum. He went on to score on runs of 10 and 1 yards in the fourth quarter.

Despite letting Paul run loose for 205 yards on 26 carries, Borden County Coach Joe Bond wasn't disappointed with the Coyotes' defense.

"We were real pleased with our defense even though they scored 40 points. We held them a couple of times at the goal line and a couple on short yardage," said the coach. "Offensively, we made too many mistakes. We've got to correct those."

Borden trailed 12-0 early before Chris Kilmer returned a blocked point-after conversion the distance for two points. The Coyotes scored their first touchdown with 2:26 to play in the half when Marc Latimer tallied on a 6-yard run. Randall Hollis put up the PAT.

New Home posted a 20-10 first-half lead on runs of 1 and 3 yards by Paul and a 14-yard strike from Coby James to Grady Thompson.

In the second half, Borden scored on a 25-yard pass from Brian Bond to Shane Kemper and an 11-yard interception return from Kilmer.

Borden County will try to rebound from the loss next Friday, Sept. 9, when the Coyotes play in Wellman at 7:30 p.m. Wellman, ranked ninth in six-man ball, clipped Cotton Center 13-7 in its first outing.

Women's Program offers class oriented to women

This fall the Women's Program at Western Texas College will again be offering psychology of family living, which is a class tailored especially for women.

An informational and registration session will be conducted at 7 p.m. Tuesday, Sept. 7, at the Senior Center.

Now in its third year, the class has registered a total of 145 women in all. The class involves the study of family relationships and also introduces women to the college programs available to them, said Pat Blakeley, director.

The Women's Program offers career counseling, campus tours, visits to class by other teachers, field trip and teaches women how to become successful college students, she added.

The class will be offered on Tuesday and Thursday mornings from 9:30-11 a.m. Tuition and child care are provided free of charge through the Women's Program for those enrolling in the class. Child care will be provided either through Kids Kampus Drop In Center or Trinity United Methodist Church Rainbow School.

Three hours of college credit will be earned by those completing the class and while a high school diploma or GED is not required, Mrs. Blakeley said that many women in the past have either had one or the other or have gone on to obtain their GED after enrolling in the class.

The Women's Program also offers financial aid counseling for women wishing to continue their college studies, Mrs. Blakeley said.

According to her the class is representative of the women in the community as the oldest to sign up was 55 and the youngest was 17. She said of those pursuing college studies, many chose academic subjects rather than vocational nursing or cosmetology.

For more information call Mrs. Blakeley at 573-0907.

Defensive driving course planned

An eight-hour defensive driving course will be offered in evening classes meeting Sept. 6 and 8 in the Senior Citizens Center at 2603 Avenue M.

rice at 573-4035. They will register at 5:45 p.m. on Sept. 6 and will pay the fee of $25 at that time. Students 60 years of age and older will pay a fee of $7.

The center will be the site of an all-day defensive driving course on Sept. 17. Sessions on that day will meet from 8 a.m. to noon and from 1-5 p.m.

Sign language course offered

Sign language for communication with the deaf will be taught in a 36-hour course starting Sept. 12 at Western Texas College.

Classes will meet from 6:30-9:30 p.m. on Mondays through Nov. 28 with Ellen Rumpff as instructor. Fees will be $53.87 including the cost of the textbook.

A minimum of 10 will be required to form the class, with enrollment limited to 20 students.

Global rock tour hits worldwide road

LONDON (AP) — After a thunderous opening before thousands of fans in London's Wembley Stadium, Amnesty International Saturday took its star-filled rock show on a global road that runs from Argentina to Zimbabwe.

More than 65,000 people packed Wembley on Friday to hear artists ranging from Bruce Springsteen to Sting sing for human rights.

The six-hour concert climaxed with Springsteen leading the cheering fans in "Chimes of Freedom," a Bob Dylan classic highlighting the theme of the show sponsored by Amnesty International, a Nobel Peace Prize-winning human rights group.

The show heads for a weekend concert in Paris and then to communist Hungary, the first stops in a six-week journey to 20 cities across five continents.

Organizers expressed delight at the sellout in London, launch pad for the tour being held to mark the 40th anniversary of the U.N. Universal Declaration on Human Rights.

"I couldn't be more pleased," said Jack Healey, Amnesty's U.S. director and a prime organizer of the tour.

"We're selling out all around the world and we're feeling quite confident about ourselves ... We have great artists, a great audience here and, I think, the greatest cause in the world."

The crowd at Wembley was made up mainly of youngsters attracted by the big stars. They are the generation to whom Amnesty is making a special appeal to back the human rights declaration, which is widely endorsed but frequently ignored by governments.

Springsteen shares a bill for the entire tour with British stars Sting and Peter Gabriel, American folk singer Tracy Chapman and Senegal's Youssou N'dour.

From a podium surrounded by a turquoise and green global map emblazoned with "Universal Declaration of Human Rights" in red letters, the stars belted out well-known numbers.

General investments course is scheduled by the local college

Buying stocks, mutual funds, real estate, insurance and annuities will be discussed in a general investments course scheduled through the Western Texas College Continuing Education department.

Classes will meet from 6:30-9:30 p.m. on Tuesdays from Sept. 17-Nov. 1, a total of 18 hours of instruction. Fees will be $22.50 per person. A minimum of 12 persons will be required to form the class.

Tim Riggan from Edward D. Jones & Co. will be the instructor. He has designed the course for people with little or no experience in making investments and, after describing various types of investments during the course, will offer suggestions for sound financial planning.

Pre-register by calling 573-8511, ext. 240. Registration and paying of fees will take place at 6:15 p.m. on Sept. 17.

HUD HOMES ANNOUNCES

A lawsuit has been filed in the United States District Court for the District of Columbia in which the plaintiffs have asked the court to stop all sales of HUD-acquired single family properties until HUD takes certain actions which plaintiffs claim HUD is required by law to do. HUD is opposing the lawsuit. Because the court has issued a Temporary Restraining Order stopping all sales until September 14, 1988, the bid opening date has been set for (September 15, 1988), at which time we expect to know if HUD may award contracts.

All contracts accepted prior to August 30, 1988 will be processed as usual. Please hold all phone calls to a minimum.

Seattle braces for return of electricity

SEATTLE (AP) — Utility and fire officials coping with downtown Seattle's three-day power outage had a new worry Friday: what will happen when the electricity goes back on and jolts equipment from bank computers to appliances?

"It could be like opening floodgates," said Hugh McIntosh of Seattle City Light, whose crews hoped by late Saturday to relight a large part of the city's retail and financial core, which has been without power since Wednesday.

"We won't have exploding TVs, but it's possible refrigerator motors could be damaged if they aren't turned off. Computers are particularly susceptible to these kinds of voltage surges," he said.

Officers at Great Northwest Federal Savings and Loan, located one block south of where an underground electrical fire knocked out power for hundreds of businesses, turned off their computer as a precaution.

"We've turned off everything and intend to leave it that way until things are back to normal," said Dianne Backus, division manager.

Like many downtown businesses, the savings and loan scaled back operations in order to keep open at all. Ms. Backus helped staff a card table where customers' IDs were checked before they were let into the savings and loan, two at a time, to make withdrawals for the weekend.

"This is banking the way it used to be," she said. "We're taking down every transaction by hand and every couple of hours run to one of our branches and enter everything into the computer."

Roy Davis, spokesman for the Seattle Fire Department, estimated 90 percent of the businesses were closed by the worst power outage in city history.

Regular checks were being made of fire alarm systems and at apartment hotels where officials feared guests might be using candles or gas-powered camping stoves.

"If we find anyone doing that we're going to cite them," said Davis. "Frankly this situation is new to us and we're a little nervous. We've got several cars patrolling just to look for fires."

The party atmosphere of the first 24 hours without power faded as hotel guests got over the novelty of being issued complimentary flashlights and instead complained of 15-story climbs to rooms.

"I began to notice a little soreness in my calves yesterday," said Janet Hardin of Eaton, Ohio, a guest at the 40-story Westin Hotel's south tower, which had just one of three elevators in service.

Westin officials tried to accommodate most guests in the hotel's north tower where there was air conditioning to offset temperatures in the mid-90s.

WTC unveils new course

Western Texas College will begin its first class in a new 120-hour training course for Texas Department of Corrections correctional officers on Oct. 8.

Applications for the first class will be accepted at WTC through Sept. 13. Application forms are available in the Adult Vocational Education office in the Resource Center.

Tuition and fees for the course are $200, payable in full on the day of registration. Funds for eligible applicants are available through the Texas Employment Commission and applications for those funds are to be made at the TEC office.

The TDC will screen all applicants. There is no guarantee of employment by the TDC upon completion of the course;

however, the TDC will be a primary employer of the graduate. Graduates who will relocate to one of the established TDC facilities are eligible to re-apply to the Snyder unit after six months of employment.

Call 573-8511, ext. 240 for more information.

WTC out for Labor Day

Classes will be dismissed at Western Texas College Monday for the Labor Day Holiday.

The Scurry County Museum, located on the college campus, will be closed Sunday and Monday. The Diamond M Museum of Fine Art will be closed Saturday, Sunday and Monday.

Scurry County Folks...

By Shirley A. Gorman

Holly Joplin, 17, president of the Gay 20s Social Club, is the 1988 coordinator for the local Labor Day Telethon which traditionally raises money annually for the National Muscular Dystrophy Association.

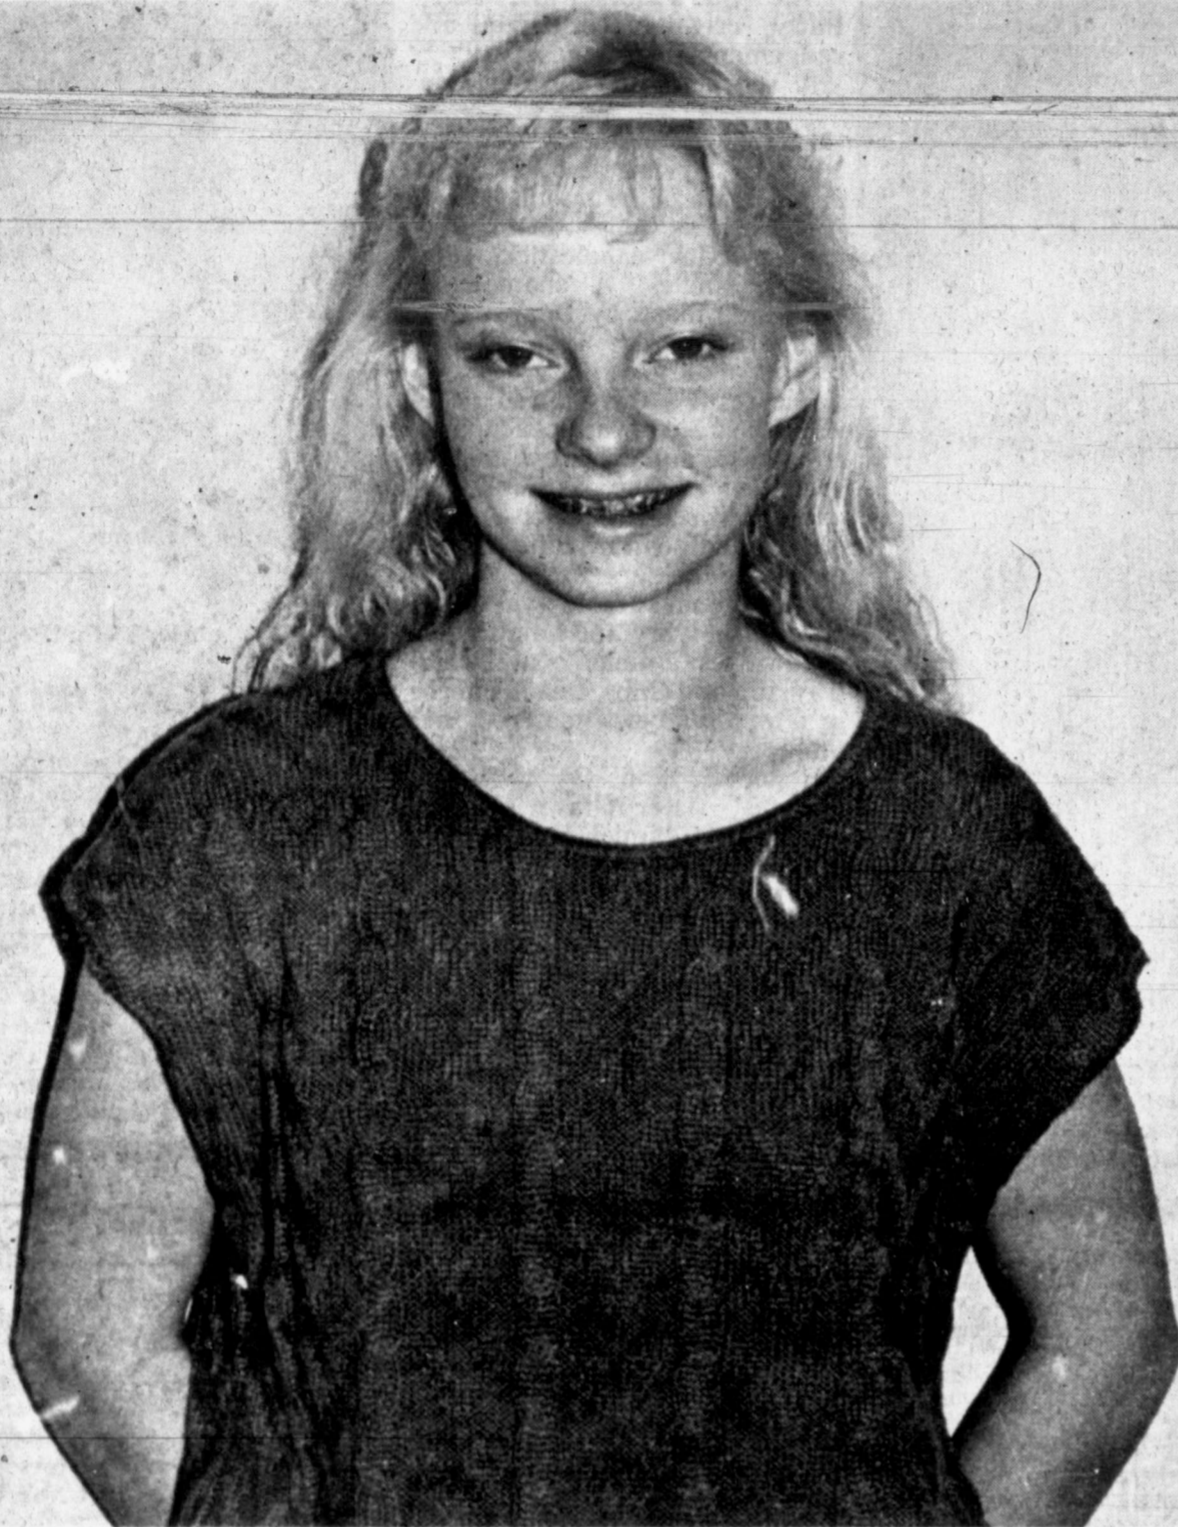

Joplin, the daughter of Robert and La Nelle Joplin and a long time Snyder resident, attended a meeting for pledge center coordinators at the MDA office in Lubbock on July 30. She was accompanied by Diane Pate who serves as one of the sponsors for the event. Other sponsors include Nancy LaRoux and Elizabeth Scarberry.

"We talked about the changes in format and the main focus of the telethon," Joplin explained. "We also discussed other fund raisers and I picked up supplies for our local drive."

The pledge center is located in the office of the chamber of commerce and will be operated from 7 p.m. on Sept. 4 to 7 p.m. on Labor Day, she said. The pledge center uses the chamber phone number and will be manned by members of the Gay 20s Social Club who will work in shifts varying in length from two to three hours, she said. The pledge center also has three telephone lines but one line is reserved for the MDA liaison in Lubbock.

While some club members are answering the telephone, Joplin said others will be stuffing envelopes.

As pledge center coordinator, Joplin is responsible for getting all the materials together, keeping a tally of all the pledges called in and of making sure that COORDINATOR—Holly Joplin, president of the Gay 20s Social Club, is the pledge center coordinator for the local telethon sponsored annually by the National Muscular Dystrophy Association. phone lines will be available.

"I just try and make sure that everything runs smoothly," she said. "The rest of the duties are divided among the other officers."

Joplin was elected president of the Gay 20s last March and that is when she inherited the job of pledge center coordinator. Since the club first took over the telethon four years ago, it was decided the president would also serve as pledge center coordinator.

Before the Gay 20s took over the telethon, it was handled by the Jayettes.

She has been a member of the club for three years and last year served as public relations officer. It was then her duty to solicit donations from local businesses.

The year before that she helped man the phones.

Other MDA fundraisers included a "jail and bail" which netted $300 and a roadblock at 37th Street and College Avenue. MDA canisters have also been placed around town.

Joplin said that since her older sister, Donna Clawson of Snyder, had been in Gay 20s, she knew that she would also be interested in the organization because of the civic work it does. "I also thought it would be a fun way to meet people," she said.

She also has an older brother, Gene Joplin of Colorado City.

As a Gay 20s member, Joplin and her fellow club members have assisted with other projects for organizations such as cystic fibrosis, the Snyder Unit of the American Cancer Society, SCOOP and Noah Project.

In addition, they helped raise money for the July Fourth Fireworks display at Towle Park. They have also helped with the Jaycees Toys for Tot Christmas spree where needy children are given $20 to go shopping with. In addition, they have helped with the Snyder Neighbors Sharing project last April and at the Scurry County Library.

Joplin is a senior at Snyder High School and participates in drama and tennis. Last school year she was involved with UIL typing and this year she said she may try ready writing.

Piano is one of her hobbies and she has taken lessons for eight years. She plans to attend college after graduation and is considering the University of North Texas in Denton.

Cholesterol concerns

NEW YORK (AP) — Roughly one out of every four Americans has dangerously high blood cholesterol levels.

That's the conclusion of the National Heart, Lung and Blood Institute's two-year-old National Cholesterol Education Program. Exercise and proper nutrition are two of the best ways to bring cholesterol figures down.

Gardens are matrimonial site

FORT WORTH — Barbara Jo Eubank and Michael Wayne Irwin, both of Burleson, were united in marriage at 7 p.m. July 14 in the Botanical Gardens of Ft. Worth. The Rev. J.W. Davis with the Church of God in Cleburn officiated the double-ring vows.

Parents of the couple are Jim and Pat Hays of Red Oak, Iowa and Denver and Pam Irwin of Snyder.

Vows were exchanged in the rose garden where roses of all colors were in bloom. The couple stood before a 10-foot water fountain surrounded by trees and accented by a gazebo.

Traditional wedding music was played by Mrs. Carl Witte of Arlington.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal white gown featuring a Queen Anne neckline. Venise lace trimmed the fitted bodice accented by Elizabethan sleeves and a Basque waistline.

A full skirt featured tiers of Chantilly lace ruffles which extended to a chapel-length train. A silk bridal hat accented by lace, pearls, sequins and flowers held a net pouf streamer.

The cascading bridal bouquet was of peach and white miniature roses, carnations, daisies and baby's-breath accented with green leaves. A peach lily centered the arrangement.

Something old was a pearl necklace belonging to the groom's mother. Something new was the bride's gown. Pearl earrings were borrowed from the bride's mother and a garter was blue.

Birth-year pennies were worn in the bride's shoes. She also wore a gold and diamond brooch pinned to her slip. The pin was given by the groom's grandmother, Elizabeth Meador of Riddle, Ore.

Matron of honor was Patty

MR. AND MRS. MICHAEL WAYNE IRWIN

Hensley of Red Oak, Iowa, sister of the bride. She was attired in a tea-length white chiffon gown with peach sash. A white hat was accented with peach ribbon. Her bouquet was of peach and white roses, carnations and daisies. Dark greenery and a centered peach lily also completed her arrangement.

Best man was Kenneth Irwin, brother of the groom. He wore dress blues from the United States Air Force. The groom wore a white tuxedo with tails and white shirt and bow tie. A peach rose accented with baby's-breath and greenery formed his boutonniere.

Jamie Hays of Red Oak, Iowa, sister of the bride, registered guests. Wedding scrolls were held in a wicker basket accented by peach and ivory ribbons.

The bride's mother and sister, Patty, created the flower arrangements for the occasion.

A reception in the Burleson Crestwood Apartments recreation room was hosted by Pam and Rebecca Irwin, mother and sister-in-law of the groom.

The bride's table was covered in ivory. Gold candlesticks held peach candles. A champagne toast was made by Denver and Kenneth Irwin, father and brother of the groom.

The bride's three-tiered cake was decorated with peach and ivory roses and daisies with lime green leaves. The cake was topped with two swans under a heart of lace and pearls. White pillars separated the tiers.

The groom's table was also covered in ivory and held finger sandwiches, a melon boat, relish tray, dip and chips. Peach punch in a crystal bowl centered the table.

Rebecca Stansell Irwin of Abilene, sister-in-law of the groom, and Jamie Hays served at both tables.

Following a honeymoon trip to the historic Ft. Worth stock yards, the couple is at home in Cleburn.

The bride is a child care specialist. The groom is a Snyder High School graduate, served in the U.S. Marine Corp, and is employed as a police officer in Cleburn.

MR. AND MRS. MARVIN LEE BUTLER

Outdoor promises repeated

Dava and David Botts announce the marriage of their mother, Mary Blythe, to Marvin Lee Butler. The couple was joined in matrimony at 7 p.m. Aug. 26 in Towle Park. Virgil Mott officiated the single-ring ceremony.

Parents of the bride are Mr. and Mrs. W.H. Blythe of Rockdale and the late Ohma Blythe. The groom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Granville Butler and Rose Butler of Snyder. Attending the bride were Linda Bennett, Jenna Bennett and Becky Eakin.

The groom's attendants were Wayne McClure, Granville Butler and David Botts.

A reception followed the ceremony.

The couple will make their home in Snyder where the groom is employed with D&B Auto Sales.

W. Va. has most overweight people

NEW YORK (AP) — More overweight people live in West Virginia than in any other of the 25 states surveyed by the government's Centers for Disease Control, says Nutri-System.

It says 24 percent of the state's population qualified as overweight. Wisconsin and North Dakota were close behind with 23 percent each.

On the opposite end of the scale, the CDC found a higher percentage of thin people in Hawaii and Utah. Here, only 14 percent of the residents were overweight.

Afternoon vows unite couple

Renee Elizabeth Aycock of Snyder and Christopher Jay Cannon of Hale Center repeated nuptial vows at 2 p.m. July 11 in the First United Methodist Church. Rick Cunningham, preacher at 37th St. Church of Christ, officiated the double-ring ceremony.

Parents of the couple are Dan and Diane Aycock and J.G. and Nancy Cannon.

The altar area was decorated with baskets of palms and four candelabra embellished with greenery.

Shane Steen of Hale Center and Lauren Mason of Wildorado served as candlelighters.

Organist Lynn Bethel accompanied the ceremony. Musical selections were "Nobody Loves Me Like You Do" and "The Lord's Prayer" done by Wayne and Sue Pierce of Westbrook.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal, traditional gown of candlelight satin with three-quarter leg-of-mutton sleeves. A portrait neckline set off a bodice embellished with sequins and seed pearls.

A detachable cathedral train was accented by a self-bow at the waist. A cathedral-length veil fastened to a head piece accented in silk Venise lace. A cascading bouquet of white rosebuds accented with baby's-breath and white ribbon complemented the bridal attire.

pinstripe pants. White shirts were accented by silver grey vests and grey and white striped ascots. Boutonnieres were of white roses.

Ashleigh Douglas of Arlington registered guests. The bride's throw-bouquet was used as a table accent.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held at Martha Ann Women's Club.

The bride's table was covered in white lace. The punch bowl and accents were of silver with colors of peach and blue in flowers, napkins and punch. Heart-shaped parent cakes in two tiers flanked the bride's cake. They were Italian cream accented by miniature bouquets of fresh roses which cascaded over supporting crystal columns to the bottom layer.

The three-tier bridal confection had a square base with two more layers held by crystal columns. Miniature pastel fresh roses decorated all the layers and cascaded down the sides of the cakes.

Joy Mullis of Odessa served. The groom's table carried out a western theme dominated by boles of cotton as a centerpiece. A wedding-ring quilt in mauve, blue and cream covered the table with colors of brown and cream carried throughout the appointments. The copper coffee service was in an old west design. A carrot cake was topped with fresh flowers.

Brenda Cannon and Melinda Summers, sisters of the groom, served.

An hors d'oeuvre table held a crystal bowl of melon balls, finger sandwiches, and a cheese ball. A hand-embroidered white cloth with multi-colored flowers covered the table. Fresh leaves surrounded the food trays carrying out a theme of green and white.

Following a honeymoon trip to Santa Fe, N.M., the couple is at home in Hale Center.

The bride is a Snyder High School graduate and attended Western Texas College.

The groom attended WTC with a basketball scholarship. He is engaged in farming with his father.

MRS. STEVEN TODD TATE

Double-ring vows join Spencer, Tate

SAN ANGELO — Jennifer Rose Spencer of San Angelo became the bride of Steven Todd Tate of Snyder at 1 p.m. Aug. 20 in the Immanuel Baptist Church of San Angelo. The Rev. Jim Stephen with First Baptist Church of Sonora officiated the double-ring ceremony.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Roger E. Spencer of San Antonio and Mr. and Mrs. Barney Tate of Snyder.

Dan Racher of San Angelo provided vocal and piano accompaniment for the ceremony.

The bride was given in marriage by her father.

The maid of honor was Robin Shipman of San Angelo, cousin of the bride. Serving as bridesmaids were Mrs. Dwain Collier of Snyder, sister of the groom, Mrs. Eric Neal of Lubbock, Mrs. Wesley Milam of Lubbock, and Miss Kathryn Parker of Waco.

Kasey Collier of Snyder, the groom's niece, and April Mohler of San Angelo, cousin of the bride, served as flower girls.

Shane Forehand of San Angelo, cousin of the bride, was ring bearer.

Paul Tate of Waco, brother of the groom, was best man. Groomsmen were Jeffrey

Spencer of San Antonio, brother of the bride, Kerry Smith of Snyder, Doug Gilstrap of Dallas, and Charles Bethel of Snyder.

Ushers for the occasion were Dwain Collier, brother-in-law of the groom, and Jeffrey Cobb of Dallas.

Mrs. Bryce Johnson of Dallas registered guests.

A reception in the church followed the ceremony. Servers at the bride's table were Mary Hanna of San Angelo and Mrs. Doug Newman of San Diego, Calif.

Servers at the groom's table were Karin Albert of Austin and Mrs. Jeffrey Cobb of Dallas.

Following a honeymoon trip to San Antonio, the couple is at home in Snyder.

The bride graduated from Angelo State University with a degree in elementary education. The groom is a Snyder High School graduate and is employed with Texaco.

Ward off depression

NEW YORK (AP) — People who exercise regularly have fewer episodes of depression than sedentary people, according to the Reebok Information Bureau.

It says exercise activates brain cells which release dopamine, a chemical that helps regulate movement and emotion. Too little dopamine in the brain results in depression, says Dr. Dwight German of Dallas. The more exercise, the more dopamine, the less depression, German concludes.

bid that A-Q-J-9-3. You have a minimum balanced hand, so you pass. That's the right action to take even if your one-spade opening bid could have been made with a four-card suit. Hands with no singleton, void or six-card suit almost always play better in no-trump.

What about the responding hand? South has a nice club suit, but a bid of two clubs would show at least 10 high-card points. The one-no-trump response, showing 6-9 points, is mandatory. But the main lesson in this deal is the play.

With the lead of the jack of hearts, declarer must take care not to be mesmerized by the attractive spade suit. It's tempting to win the ace of hearts and take an immediate spade finesse, but that unnecessarily risks the contract. Instead, declarer must tamely forego using the spade honors. The guaranteed play for seven tricks is to win the king of hearts and play king of clubs and a club to the jack. Even if that loses to the queen, South has four club tricks, two hearts and the ace of spades.

A good solid rule, whatever your contract, is to take the tricks you need to fulfill your contract; then worry about overtricks.

If you play five-card majors, you know that with North's cards, you would be right to pass your partner's one-no-trump response. Partner may have a singleton or even a void in spades, so it would be pointless to re-

S. Texas native enjoys Paris design career

McALLEN, Texas (AP) — As a child in the Rio Grande Valley, Ruben Torres was a dangerous factor for his mother's wardrobe. He would sometimes tear up her dresses to create new outfits for his sister's dolls.

It was good practice for an adult career that would see him jolt the fashion world in 1964 with creation of the "monokini," the European version of the topless women's bathing suit.

"You know a boy drawing women's clothing at 10, which is when I started drawing — in other words I was a natural designer — they would call him a sissy," said Torres. "There was no understanding of course, especially here (South Texas), so I had to break out of here."

Torres' break eventually took him to Paris, where he now heads design for Lacoste International, the company that puts its trademark crocodile on its clothing and accessories.

"I'm the one who made the image of Lacoste," said Torres, who has worked for the company since 1970. "I am the Ralph Lauren of Lacoste."

Torres, 56, commutes between homes in Edinburg in the Rio Grande Valley; Paris, France; and Mexico City.

He has spent extra time in the Valley lately preparing for the McAllen International Museum's Sept. 3 opening of "Erte and His Contemporaries," an exhibit taken from Torres' collection of Parisian theater art, including art deco posters, costume renderings and stage set designs from 1918-40.

Torres believes his 1000-piece collection may be the largest of its type in the world.

Erte, the best known of the designers featured in the exhibit, gained renown during 20 years as an illustrator for Harper's Bazaar.

Torres, who saved many of the esthetically and historically important pieces from Parisian trash cans, was born in the Valley city of Mercedes and grew up 20 miles to the west in McAllen. He joined the Army in 1951 after graduating from Southern Methodist University in Dallas with a degree in costume design, and credits a stint in Korea with influencing his design with Oriental ideas.

He returned, determined to work in Paris, but did not know how.

"The French at the time didn't think that Americans had any creative talent ... You wouldn't even get in the door," Torres said.

So he re-did his portfolio with a Mexican look, posed as a Mexican designer and landed a job as an apprentice in Paris for 1½ years, about the time limit then for foreign apprentices in France. The French experience was enough to land him a top design job in New York when he returned.

He returned to Paris in 1960 designing fashions for Nina Ricci. While creating beautiful clothes for rich women, he said he was disturbed by his own near obsession with women's breasts.

"What was coming out in my design work were topless dresses," Torres said.

He had the workers start making the dresses to see what they looked like on the company's models. The confused models sometimes would put them on backwards, he said.

"All right, so already these were the first models that had to be in front of a man with their bosoms free," Torres said.

He decided he had to leave Nina Ricci and its emphasis on wealthy, middle-aged women, because he envisioned "women without tops, without brassieres, without swim tops."

"In 1964, I decided to leave Nina Ricci, because this was killing me," although, he said, he did not know who would accept such provocative ideas.

He went back to New York, where Women's Wear Daily gave him six pages to show his topless fashions.

Two days later, Austrian-born American designer Rudi Ger-reich in New York came out with the "topless bathing suit."

Torres said he does not think his friend Gernreich had enough time to copy his designs that appeared in Women's Wear Daily, but that the two came out with the same idea by coincidence.

Torres rushed to Paris and released his own topless version for Europe, which the European press dubbed the "monokini," a variation of "bikini." It earned him denunciations from the Vatican and the Soviets, but topless bathing has since gained acceptance on many European beaches.

"I'm a provocative designer because what I propose is always a little bit strong," Torres said.

After the monokini episode, Torres, long an opponent of the necktie, decided to overhaul men's clothing, which he said has not advanced since the late 19th Century.

"When history changes, it is the man's clothing that changes, not the women's," Torres said.

The iconoclastic designer started by staging a fashion show of men's underwear, prompting some of the disgusted reporters to walk out, aghast.

"No one in the world had ever presented men in underwear, anywhere," Torres explained.

In 1970, Bernard Lacoste asked Torres to develop an image for the company and its knit polo shirts in 12 colors.

Austrian man returns to community

LAKE JACKSON, Texas (AP) — Jo-Jo Lederbauer wants a "Don't mess with Texas" bumper sticker for the back of his car, not an unusual request for an out-of-state visitor.

But the fact that he wants to take it back to his home in cool and hilly Austria and place it on the back of his Russian-made automobile might tickle those who contemplate the mixing of cowboy and cossack culture.

Profiled in The Brazosport Facts 21 years ago this month, Josef Johannes Leopold Roman Lederbauer, or "Jo-Jo" to his American friends, had begun his Americanization process and acclimation to the Texan way of life.

He studied for a year at Brazosport High School, receiving a diploma with the other graduates in 1968.

Last week he attended his 20th class reunion, and said he wants the bumper sticker so he can proclaim his affection for his adopted state to the world.

The reasons for making a return to Brazosport after two decades were many, he said.

The O.L. and Joan Hollis family of Lake Jackson, which had taken him in for a year those many years ago, were hosts to Lederbauer, his wife, Rosa, and daughter, Claudia, 7.

The exchange rate has become rather favorable for Europeans traveling abroad, so the family calculated its finances and decided an outing to America would be in order.

He said few people at the reunion remembered him without looking at his nametag first, probably because he has changed a lot in 20 years. With a full gray beard and a salt-and-pepper receding hairline, he's not the same teen-ager and neither are any of his former classmates, he said with a smile.

"But it has been very nice, very emotional for me, to see everyone again," Lederbauer said.

He swapped stories with the class of '68; about the time they took a senior trip to Mexico and he had to wait for them on the bridge because he did not have a visa, or the movies he saw such as "A Man For All Seasons" and

"The Heat of the Night" because he had been given a free movie pass.

He also saw "The Sound of Music," which from his Austrian perspective was a different film than the rest of them viewed.

Lederbauer, who now teaches evening literature classes to adults preparing for college, lives in the hilly south of Austria in Graz. His wife is a nurse.

"I have heard there is quite a nursing shortage here. She might apply for a job and I can take a holiday," he said, laughing.

Seeing the Hollises again brought back a notion of the debt of kindness he said he owes, although the Lake Jackson family brushes off the idea of repayment.

Lederbauer was brought over in the summer of 1967 from Austria to spend a year with an American family as part of the International Christian Youth Exchange. A Roman Catholic, he was nevertheless sponsored by the First United Methodist Church of Lake Jackson for his visit to the states.

The situation offered a lesson for the European youth on tolerance and eliminating prejudices that he never forgot.

The Statue of Liberty was presented to the United States by France in 1883.

KINDERGARTEN EXPERIENCE

Whether your child is a veteran of daycare and pre-school or has never attended any school before, starting kindergarten is an experience that requires some preparation.

Children sense the different expectations that come with kindergarten. Suddenly school isn't just for fun; it's serious business.

A child without older siblings will have only fuzzy mental images of what school will be like. If he does have older siblings, the child may think of school as a place where the "big kids" go and where everyone already reads and writes.

Some children may have fearful, stress-inducing feelings about facing this unfamiliar world.

It's important for parents and children to plan their parting experiences and share feelings about them.

Parents and youngsters may want to make several trips to the school, play on the playground and visit the classroom if possible.

Reading children's books about the first day of school will also help a youngster get a more realistic picture of the school environment.

But the most important thing about visits or reading books is that it gives you a vehicle for talking with your child and letting him know that it's ok to feel scared.

Researchers have noted that separation experiences can affect children's behavior. Brief periods of agitation, tantrums, withdrawal or changes in eating and sleeping patterns may occur if the child is anxious during those first few days or weeks of school.

Some kindergarteners may need a "gradual start," with a parent present in the classroom for decreasing periods of time until the child can stay on his or her own.

Although a working parent may have to use vacation days, sick leave or personal leave to do it, taking off a half day or an hour as needed to help the child adjust can help him get off to a better start in school.

After a couple of weeks, parents should also follow up with the teacher to check on how well their child is doing in the school environment. Many children love school from the first day and others will need some time, but eventually most all children adjust.

Glitch halts 'flight'

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — A simulated shuttle mission designed to test the Discovery astronauts' troubleshooting skills was halted just before a mock landing because of a real-life computer crash.

The five astronauts were preparing to end their 56-hour mission Thursday afternoon by simulating a shuttle landing with a flat tire when the computer crash cut the rehearsal short.

"I'm sure they'll be looking at it to see why it went down, but nobody here considers it to be a big problem that the simulation ended early," said NASA Johnson Space Center spokesman James Hartsfield.

National Aeronautics and Space Administration officials stressed that there was no problem with any kind of computer used in actual flight control.

JSC officials said the Discovery crew handled all the simulated problems posed to them during a dress rehearsal for the first shuttle flight since the Challenger explosion 2½ years ago.

Discovery's launch is slated for late September or early October, although NASA has not yet set an exact date.

The 56-hour mock mission began about an hour late Tuesday morning because of an earlier problem with the shuttle simulator.

WOMEN SMOKERS

Women who smoke are 8 to 17 times more likely to develop cancer of the cervix (neck of the womb) than those who do not smoke. Researchers have found that the vaginal mucus of smokers contains high concentrations of nicotine and its derivatives. Bathed constantly by this mucus, the cervix is exposed to more cancer-causing tobacco derivatives than any other part of the body.

Officer acquitted in recruit's death

PENSACOLA, Fla. (AP) — A "gung-ho" Navy lieutenant accused of dereliction of duty in the drowning of a rescue-swimmer trainee was acquitted in the court-martial he sought in an effort to exonerate himself.

"All I can say is the military (justice) system worked," a smiling Lt. Thomas Torchia said after the verdict Thursday night. "The system that charged me found me innocent."

A four-officer panel found the 32-year-old Princeton, Ill., man innocent of two counts of dereliction of duty after deliberating 3½ hours in the weeklong trial.

Torchia was in charge of the Navy Rescue Swimmer School at the Pensacola Naval Air Station when Airman Recruit Lee Mirecki, 19, of Appleton, Wis., died March 2 in a training pool.

Instructors threw a panic-stricken Mirecki back into the pool after he climbed out and shouted that he wanted to quit the voluntary training, witnesses said.

Mirecki, who had a phobia about being pulled under water, suffered a fear-induced heart attack before drowning, a Navy pathologist testified in Torchia's trial.

A panel may be selected Friday for the court-martial of a second defendant, Petty Officer 2nd Class Michael Combe, 28, of Tempe, Ariz., who is accused of holding Mirecki's head under water. He faces more serious charges of involuntary manslaughter, battery and conspiracy to commit battery.

Torchia had been offered unspecified non-judicial punishment, but turned it down and sought the court-martial in an effort to clear his name.

If convicted, he could have been fined two months pay, been reprimanded and lost seniority for promotion. The penalty would have put Torchia's career on the line, said a defense lawyer, retired Navy Capt. Ferdinand Salomon.

Torchia said he plans to stay in the Navy, and expects a new assignment soon as an aviation maintenance officer.

Torchia, whom a prosecutor described as a "gung-ho rescue swimmer," said he hoped the highly publicized Mirecki case hadn't caused people to lose faith in Navy training, which he called the best in the world.

Torchia was acquitted largely because of the testimony of a prosecution witness, said one of his defense lawyers, retired Navy Capt. Ferdinand Salomon.

Lt. Cmdr. Steve Matthews, a water survival and aerospace physiologist, testified for the prosecution Wednesday that brute force and high-stress tactics used at the school were unnecessary and counterproductive.

One charged with cruelty after 172 animals are found

HOUSTON (AP) — The people who brought homeless animals to Bessie Mills thought she was finding proper homes for them, but authorities who retrieved 172 pets from two houses describe stacks of cages, animal bones and filthy floors strewn with carcasses.

Dr. Robert Armstrong, chief of the city's animal control bureau, said at least 15 dead animals had been removed from the two houses, and that the remains of at least 30 more are still in the homes.

Those animals who survived in rooms piled with feces were in poor condition, he said.

"They (animal control officers) worked all night and as they got further and further into the backyard they would discover another little shop of horrors," he said. "We've seen this sort of thing in the past but never this expansive," he said.

Officials Thursday evening completed removing the live animals from the home of Ms. Mills, 61, and her mother's home next door. Ms. Mills was jailed in lieu of $2,500 bond and charged with five counts of cruelty to animals.

News of the conditions in the house and the poor treatment of the animals came as a shock to Joanne Mitchell of Spring.

"My husband and I would find animals in the woods and care for them. I would take them to Mrs. Mills because I thought she would find homes for them," Mrs. Mitchell said.

"Every time I would call her up and ask about an animal I had dropped off she would say, 'Oh, he's doing fine, he's with a real nice family,'" she said.

"We had no idea this was going on," she said, adding that she gave Ms. Mills $20 whenever she dropped off an animal. "I'm so shocked I can't explain it."

Ms. Mills' mother, 87, was placed in the care of adult social agencies.

Dear Abby

To Reminisce Without Spouse Is Dream of Reunion Chairman

DEAR ABBY: I'm chairman of our 30th high school reunion. Yes, we will have a photographer there! One of your letters concerned a reunion organizer in Torrington, Conn., who decided to skip the class picture because the spouses would be bored while the class members were having the picture taken.

That's a pretty dumb excuse — I think most spouses would be bored regardless. I know I'm bored at my spouse's reunions. In my opinion, spouses should not be allowed to attend. We all had our high school sweethearts, and it would be nice to reminisce and have a dance or two — but there sits the spouse, bored and slightly jealous, watching every move.

Abby, is there a tactful way to tell my spouse to get lost that night? Please don't suggest I make a deal and say, "I won't attend yours if you won't attend mine." My spouse insists that I attend hers!

REMINISCING

DEAR REMINISCING: Some spouses wouldn't go to a class reunion if you paid them. Others wouldn't dream of staying away. It takes all kinds. But I know of no "tactful" way to tell a spouse to "get lost" without starting World War III.

DEAR ABBY: Will you please tell me how old a person is supposed to be before he's considered a "senior citizen"? I was in a health food store paying for my purchases when the check-out man asked me if I was entitled to a senior citizen's discount. I am 55 and did not consider myself a senior citizen, so I asked him how old must I be to get one. He replied, "55." I was surprised, but gladly took the discount. I always believed 65 was the age!

HAPPILY 55

DEAR HAPPILY: Senior citizenship can be anywhere from 50 on up. When in doubt, ask!

DEAR ABBY: This is in response to the letter from "Rushed to Death," whose husband was always in a hurry. When my husband and I read the letter, we howled with laughter because it accurately described him.

After years of trying to change him, I realized that the only person I could change was me. So I told him that we could go shopping together, but if he was going to rush me, I'd stay home and save myself aggravation. I then used the time I would have spent shopping to do something I enjoyed.

If he wants to eat fast — let him — just make sure that he doesn't eat off your plate.

Since you know he doesn't like to wait in line for anything, find places to go that don't require waiting in line. We often go to 5 o'clock movies and eat only in restaurants where we can make a reservation.

I will admit there are some advantages to being aggressive, pushy and in a hurry. My husband is the guy who gets on an airplane first so he can get all the room he needs to store our carry-on luggage in the overhead bin. We are the people who get the best seats in the house for a movie because he pushes to the front of the line. When I do go with him to the supermarket, he scouts out the fastest checkout counter. If he goes too fast, I just say, "You go ahead, dear — I'll catch up."

I hope this helps.

Pinochet's anti-Marxism thought not enough to please American officials

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States normally casts a benign eye on countries that welcome foreign investment, engage in free trade, repay their debts, respect their neighbors and oppose communism.

There aren't many countries with all these perceived virtues, but one that does — Chile — has had a virtually unbroken record of poor relations with the United States for 15 years.

This seemingly anomalous situation has occurred because of Chile's military president, Augusto Pinochet, whose human rights abuses and distrust for democracy have more than offset aspects of his rule which generally get an approving nod from Washington.

Lately, the Reagan administration has adopted a friendlier view toward Pinochet now that many civil liberties have been restored as the country gears up for a presidential plebiscite next month in which the 72-year-old general will be the lone candidate.

Top military commanders announced their selection of Pinochet on Tuesday, touching off a wave of protests that led to the deaths of at least three people and the arrests of more than 1,000 others.

AP analysis

In closing arguments, Salomon pointed out that Matthews and other training officers had been working for months since the drowning to correct problems plaguing the school long before Torchia took over.

"Yet Lt. Tom Torchia, an ordinary flight officer who is not a training expert and who had been on the job only 83 days is being branded a criminal for not figuring it all out," Salomon said.

Testimony indicated several of Torchia's superiors had visited the school, but that no one raised objections to procedures or questioned safety until after the death.

In his closing argument, the lead prosecutor, Lt. Cmdr. Larry Wynne, said Torchia should not have been excused by following long-established procedures.

DEAR ABBY: My wife is about 40 pounds overweight and has been since her pregnancy. She wore her maternity clothes for more than four years — until I told her I couldn't stand to look at them anymore. I have asked her repeatedly to lose weight and have offered to help her in any way possible, but to no avail.

She says if I loved her, I would accept her the way she is. I say if you love someone, you do your best to look good for them.

Abby, I don't expect her to have a 22-inch waist — I'd just like her to trim down a bit. This has been bothering me so much that I am considering having an affair with a slender woman — or telling my wife to shape up or ship out! She reads your column every day, so please give her a little advice.

END OF MY ROPE

DEAR END: Your wife didn't ask for any advice, but I'll give you some: Quit nagging her. She is the only person she will lose weight for. And she'll do it for her own reasons when she's good and ready.

She's right — a loving husband will accept his wife the way she is. (I've yet to hear from a woman who would tell her overweight husband to "shape up or ship out.")

Now is the time to be especially loving and supportive. Love her to pieces and kill her with kindness, and say nothing about her weight. What have you got to lose?

DEAR ABBY: I just read the letter from the woman who bought herself a pair of expensive diamond earrings for Mother's Day because the previous year her husband gave her nothing, saying, "You're not my mother." She was the mother of his twin daughters.

Abby, since when is something one award himself a "gift"? To me, this is about on a par with certain foreign dictators who cover their chests with medals and decorations.

Assuming she did it to make a point, wouldn't a card and flowers have made her point without breaking the budget?

I was married for 14 years to a woman who never gave me a chance to buy her anything. She'd buy herself gifts (usually jewelry) on credit, using my name and credit references, as much as two months before the date. I would never have forgotten her birthday or our anniversary, but she took no chances. I am far from a cheapskate, but because she always selected her own gifts, I was cheated out of the pleasure I would have had, had I been allowed to do the buying and giving.

CHEATED IN BELLFLOWER

DEAR CHEATED: Some men do not like to shop and appreciate being relieved of the chore. But a wife should not take over the chore of buying her own gift unless her husband offers it to her.

DEAR ABBY: I have a conflict with my husband over the subject of children. We have been married for almost a year. He's 23 and I'm 19. We both want children — he less than I. I keep bringing up the subject and he keeps closing it. He says that a baby would tie us down, and I want a baby so much, it hurts. Can you help, Abby, or am I rushing things?

CAN'T WAIT IN SUBURBAN, ILL.

DEAR CAN'T: Yes, you are rushing things. Wait until your husband is just as eager as you are — then you won't be the only one who's "tied down."

Dukakis to bring former aide back to his campaign

BOSTON (AP) — Michael Dukakis Friday brought back former campaign manager John Sasso, who resigned last year after leaking a videotape that helped drive Delaware Sen. Joseph Biden from the Democratic presidential race.

Sasso, Dukakis' closest political confidant since 1982, will rejoin the campaign as vice chairman, according to campaign sources who spoke on the condition they not be named.

Dukakis, the Democratic presidential nominee, made the announcement at news conference Friday in California, where he is campaigning, the sources said.

Sasso appeared at a separate news conference at noon in Boston, along with his replacement as campaign manager, Susan Estrich, and campaign chairman Paul Broutas.

Sasso, who directed Dukakis' comeback as governor in 1982 and then served as his Statehouse chief of staff, will take a leave from his job at Hill & Holladay, and were unavailable for comment.

Besides the two court-martial cases, the investigation also led to non-judicial punishment for five other Navy men, including a letter of reprimand to Torchia's former boss, now-retired Capt. C.L. Lavinder who had headed the Naval Aviation Schools Command.

an advertising firm he joined last year after resigning from the campaign job.

Dukakis has stayed in close contact with Sasso since then, mainly by telephone, reluctant to appear with his former top aide. The vice chairman's job will be a paid campaign position, the sources said.

Sasso resigned from the campaign after telling Dukakis he was responsible for leaking videotapes to the press showing that Biden used words during a debate in Iowa taken almost verbatim from a campaign speech by British Labor Party leader Neil Kinnock.

Biden dropped out of the campaign after this and other instances of alleged plagiarism were publicized. Another Dukakis campaign aide, Paul Tully, also resigned because of his role in the incident.

Dukakis, at first reluctant to accept Sasso's resignation, said later that Sasso had used "very poor judgment."

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Interesting opportunities could be developing around you at this time. One might give you a chance to increase your earnings through a second source of income.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) It may be difficult for you today to hold back from revealing information that was told to you in confidence. You could regret it later.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Your natural curiosity is healthy. But today, if you let it get out of hand and try to pry into a friend's personal affairs, she'll resent it.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) It won't be the big things you do today with which companions will find fault. It could be something trivial that will tarnish your image.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Before announcing your intentions prematurely to another today, stop and think first as to whether the person to whom you're talking should know about them.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) You're not usually a possessive person, but today you might try to tether someone you love a little too tightly. Let go of the leash.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Do not let a disagreement develop between you and your mate today over an insignificant issue. It could serve as a thorn under both your saddles for the rest of the day.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) It's best not to start a do-it-yourself project today unless you have all the tools and materials at your disposal. Poor planning could leave you with an untidy mess.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Be sure what you volunteer to do for another today doesn't have some hidden costs involved that may not be obvious at first glance.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Today if you find it necessary to leave instructions for those in your charge, try to keep what you have to say as simple as possible. Complex directives will be ignored.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Guard your comments carefully today so that a thoughtless remark doesn't slip out which another may find disagreeable — even though you didn't intend to be offensive.

Rules set for enhanced TV technology

WASHINGTON (AP) — The broadcast and electronics industries are praising the Federal Communications Commission's endorsement of advanced television systems with enhanced sound and picture quality.

The FCC on Thursday declared the new systems in the public interest and approved some preliminary rules for bringing them into American homes. But the commission said many technical and procedural prob-blems still must be ironed out.

The "high definition" TV systems will be designed to have the clarity of movie film and the sound of compact discs. They probably will not be available from the U.S. broadcast industry before 1993, according to an official of the National Association of Broadcasters.

Michael Rau, the NAB's vice president for science and technology, said the FCC made a "strong commitment to bring advanced TV to the public. They seemed to reaffirm support for free, over-the-air broadcasting.

"But the commission must solve the difficulties of delivering the system over broadcast outlets."

In a series of preliminary rulings, the FCC said:

—Existing broadcasters and stations are best equipped to bring the new system to viewers.

—Advanced television programs must be received on existing television sets so viewers won't have to replace their equipment.

—If additional frequency space is needed, it should be found within existing VHF and UHF television bands. The FCC found that looking for frequencies outside those bands would delay the service, and noted that bands now suitable for the systems are in use for other purposes.

Mark Rosenker, spokesman for the Electronics Industry Association, said his group of electronics manufacturers is "pleased that the FCC's decision ... has begun to define the complex issues regarding high definition television so that the American public will be able to enjoy the benefits ... within a relatively short period."

The FCC sought public comment on three options for using the airwaves for high definition TV. There would be a 60-day comment period and 30 days for replies.

FCC Chairman Dennis R. Patrick and Commissioner Patricia Diaz Dennis supported all the commission's findings and proposed options. Commissioner James H. Quello dissented on grounds the commission acted prematurely.

Although Patrick said the preliminary rulings would "put the U.S. in the forefront of the international quest for new TV technology," the Japanese have been working on an advanced system for two decades.

Man is convicted of assaulting wife, son

TORONTO (AP) — An advertising executive who succeeded in getting his Russian wife and 1-year-old son out of the Soviet Union was convicted Friday of assaulting them nine days after they arrived in Canada.

Kirby Inwood was found guilty of assault causing bodily harm against his wife and of common assault against the boy.

Provincial Judge Gordon Hachborn rendered his verdict following a sensational trial that involved tales of sex, greed and violence.

Inwood, 44, of Toronto, maintained throughout the trial that his wife, Tanya Sidorova, was a money-worshipping "Russian yuppie" who lured him into marriage to get out of the Soviet Union. He said she fabricated a story of the assault as a way to end their marriage.

Sidorova, 32, told of a vicious beating in which she was punched, kicked, choked and thrown barely conscious from her Toronto home. She said her son, Misha, was also assaulted by a drunken Inwood.

The trial attracted daily headlines and drew crowds to the courtroom.

At one point, women's groups picketed the courthouse, alleging battered women couldn't get a fair shake in the justice system.

Inwood testified he and Sidorova slept together the day they met in Leningrad in 1986. But he questioned whether Misha was his child, testifying he was often impotent.

The couple married soon after Christmas 1986 and Misha was born in September 1987. But the Soviet government refused to let Sidorova emigrate to Canada, claiming she was a security risk.

First wave of hunters seek lucrative prey

CLEWISTON, Fla. (AP) — Airboats fanned out over Lake Okeechobee for the first statewide alligator hunt in 26 years, a 30-day reprieve aimed at thinning out the once endangered species whose thick hides fetch $42 a foot.

"We could have filled our 15-gator limit tonight," Warren Schafer boasted about four hours after the hunting season opened Thursday night. He displayed his prey: three gators ranging from seven to 10 feet long.

"It wasn't as hard as other animals I've hunted," said Schafer, 45, of Miami, a veteran big-game hunter.

Across Florida starting at sundown, more than 200 hunters selected by the state began to search for their red-eyed prey with flashlights and head lamps.

Harpoons, snares and bows and arrows are about the only weapons permitted. Most alligators are taken alive, their jaws secured with duct tape, and are delivered to processing plants still kicking. Some are killed with a "bang-stick," a device that shoots a cartridge on impact. Guns are prohibited because the gators often sink after being shot.

On Lake Okeechobee, hunters, reporters and a few sightseers departed under the din of airboats and through a mist churned up by their large propellers. Bugs fluttered about like snowflakes in the hunters' lights.

Thomas Alpern, 25, a freelance writer from New York City, said to be the only Northerner who received a permit, was still searching for his first alligator at midnight with the aid of a professional trapper.

"Who knows?" he said. "Maybe I won't even be able to kill it once we find one."

But Alpern, like many hunters, couldn't ignore the profitable side of the hunt. In addition to the lucrative hides, gator meat sells for up to $6 a pound.

"The money is the big factor," said Rodney Crawford, a 19-year-old cook from Lake Worth, who will hunt on Lake George in Florida.

By Donny Brown

When we think of Labor Day—an event which celebrates the gift of work—we think of guys like Curley, a service station hand from a ways back.

We have a memory of sitting in the front seat of the family's 1955 DeSoto, watching Curley wash away squashed bugs from the windshield.

He had an outsized chamois which he would pop open using both hands like someone airing a sheet. With a single, fluid motion, he would lay it flat across one-half of the glass, swiping it back with a clean snap that erased every drop of moisture from the transparent glass.

It was a number of years later when we realized that he was in fact showing off. He was a service station guy and, while he probably did a whole bunch of things well, one of his specialties was washing windshields.

He did it with a kind of squeezed-up pride that showed, even to a nubbin-headed kid who had about as much knowledge as to why the world whirls as an unbaked pan of dough rising on the back porch.

Through the years, we've seen this pride of work often enough. We remember a route milkman who could dolly in a five-stack stand of loaded milk carton crates, passing that balancing act from one hand to the other as he opened the door for himself.

He never said a word, but the way he held his mouth told you that he thought it was a pretty neat trick and if you didn't believe it, just bygod try it yourself.

We helped build one of the uglier apartment complexes ever constructed in Lubbock, and on that job we knew one fellow who represents a breed of carpenter which we hope still flourishes.

He was an itinerant craftsman, a man so sure of his skills that he roamed from city to city, confident that he could always find work.

Because he traveled alone, he preferred to work alone, and one afternoon we had the privilege of watching him lay decking.

Decking is a 4 by 8 ft. piece of plywood nailed onto rafter joists 4 ft. apart. It feels like it weighs a ton and, on a windy day, is about as easy to handle as two cats in a sack.

Newby carpenters will carry it two-men to the sheet. They'll puzzle around trying to figure out which side warps down, then they'll set it in place, using fingertips to push and squeeze it center on the joist.

They'll pop a line of red chalk from one end to the other to find the center stud for nailing. Then, they'll miss those nails at least once while driving them in, gouging half-moon dents into the wood's surface.

That's what newbies do.

This fellow hefted the single plywood sheets over his head and laid out a row of them like someone lays out a deck of cards for solitaire.

These sheets he used to walk on and, nailing the first as an anchor, began scuffing each successive sheet into place with a kick of his foot.

Some carpenters have a little flourish when they pull a nail from a pouch, posing it over the target area and tapping it into the wood with one motion.

A true framing hammer is heavy enough to drive a nail flush with one stroke, and we watched this guy flatten 16 pennies time after time with a single "ka-wham!", pulling them from his pouch with a style and grace that made it look like the nails were magnetized to the hammer's striking end.

An orchestra conductor works his buns off to prepare his musicians, then he gets to stand in front of them and "conduct" for the concert hall—making the whole thing look easy.

These fellows had this no-sweat gift, to convert the years of practice into a skill exemplified by motion as beautiful as a work of art.

Country Life

By Deanie Francis Mills

As I write this, two weeks before school starts, I just got back from a seminar in Belton sponsored by the Texas Department of Criminal Justice, the Central Texas Council of Governments, and the Bell County Sheriff's Department. About three-quarters of the participants were law enforcement, and those of us who could not provide credentials to at least some governmental agency were carefully screened; references I provided from my friends in law enforcement were checked, and one Bell County Sheriff's Deputy laughed as he shook my hand for the first time and said, "You've got the funniest name for feeding into a computer."

Due to the intense and sensitive nature of the subject matter, the media was not invited and those who did have the audacity to show up were not allowed to video tape. Tape recorders were not permitted, either. I felt honored to have been included with many highly trained and experienced professionals, and privileged to be allowed access to such a wealth of information.

Though they'll probably never see this, I'd like to thank my new friends at the CTCOG and Bell County Sheriff's Department for considering me trustworthy enough to make it possible.

Belton is located just south of Temple, right near Killeen and the Fort Hood Army base. It's a long, long way from Snyder, and I journeyed to Dallas first to leave kids with grandparents — Kent had already returned to work from our trip to New York, and was going to be out of town himself.

It occurred to me then that this was the first time since my single days — 14 years ago — that I was traveling to a strange city alone with no one to meet, greet, or put me up. Writer's conferences at which I've spoken are different, because as a guest speaker, I've always had somebody, somewhere, waiting to see me.

That's when I realized just how differently a woman traveling alone is treated than when she has a man with her. Take the matter of asking for directions. First of all, men have a genetic deficiency: they find it absolutely impossible to stop a car and ask someone for directions, preferring instead to drive for hours down back roads and over cloverleafs until finally stumbling onto their destination, at which time they proudly proclaim, "I've got an excellent sense of direction!"

Women don't have this deficiency; however, whenever a woman asks a man for directions, he is instantly filled with fear and trepidation because then he would have to admit that he doesn't really know his way around all that great, either. I saw this look of panic on several male faces when asking for directions. They cover up this panic, however, by talking to said female as if she has the IQ of a giraffe.

Dallas, for instance, is an impossible mixmaster of freeways, underpasses and overpasses, all of which must be traveled at speeds that would leave Mario Andretti in the dust. Try driving the speed limit there. Just try. I dare you.

When I asked one young gas station attendant for directions, he got that look of patronizing panic and said, "See that freeway right there?" (The one I had just exited.) "OK. You get on it, see, and you drive along," (at this point, he held up two hands to show me how to drive), "until you come to Loop 12; then you go up on the loop, and you" (here, he proceeded to run around in little circles) "go around and around the loop, and you'll wind up going...east," (and he pointed toward the sun which was, at the time, setting.)

"Never mind," I said, "I think I can find it on my own."

To get to Belton out of Dallas, you hit IH 35 south and stay on it, period. If you keep going, you'll wind up in Austin, and all along the way are signs telling you so. My motel was located right on IH 35, and when I checked in, I asked the registrar how to get to the Bell County Expo Center. Immediately came the look of panic. "Well...um...Do you know which way Austin is?"

I gave him the look that adolescents usually reserve for their parents and said, "Yes, I See COUNTRY, page 12B

SUNDAY August 28

Scurry County's unemployment estimate dropped to 5.6 percent during July, its lowest rate of 1988, it was reported Sunday.

This figure reflects an increase of approximately 550 persons employed here since the beginning of 1988, when unemployment was figured at 6.5 percent. As the year started, Scurry County had 8,414 jobs filled, and this now stands at 8,966.

The sixth class for Century II: Leadership Scurry County is now forming and individuals have until Sept. 9 to apply for admission, it was reported Sunday.

MONDAY August 29

Scurry County commissioners Monday morning set the 1989 tax rate and tabled a decision on whether or not to allow the placement of Western Texas College athletic banners in the county coliseum.

In the absence of County Judge Bobby Goodwin, who is attending a county judges' conference this week in Huntsville, Commissioner Ted Billingsley presided over the setting of the 1989 tax rate at 29.66 cents per $100 of valuation, the same rate that has been in effect this year.

The trend of near 100 degree heat was broken by the passage of a weekend cold front and the rain total reported Monday was .42 of an inch. The overnight low reported early Monday was 60 degrees, fully 10 degrees cooler than the overnight low one week earlier.

TUESDAY August 30

City councilmen held a 2½-hour work session Tuesday night in which the proposed widening of 37th St. was discussed with state highway department officials and the extension of water and sewer lines to the new Texas Department of Corrections unit was outlined by a Lubbock engineer.

A resolution about the project is scheduled to be considered in the council's Sept. 12 meeting.

WEDNESDAY August 31

As the fall enrollment for Western Texas College takes shape, it appears fulltime student numbers and the semester hour count will be approximately the same as last year, while a drop in part-time students may keep total enrollment figures down from previous falls.

For the first day of class Wednesday, the official enrollment was 865 to include 517 fulltime and 348 part-time students.

When the class signup ended last fall, there were 576 fulltime and 588 part-time students.

THURSDAY September 1

Dove season opened at sunrise Thursday, the first of five specified seasons for game in Scurry County. The season will end Nov. 9.

County Game Warden Mel Reed said signs are mixed for this year's hunt, although the elements are present for a successful year.

Enrollment for the first day of classes in Snyder ISD Thursday saw the local count almost exactly match figures reported on Sept. 1 last year.

The first-day total this year was 3,430 compared to 3,448 last year, a drop of 18 students.

Both Snyder High School and junior high had slight enrollment increases, combining for a plus 13, while the elementary campus had a drop of 31 students.

A Democratic Party Fundraiser-Rally will be held in Scurry County Oct. 1, it was reported Thursday.

The event is set for noon at the Towle Park Pavilion. Tickets are $10 each.

Some 533 members registered Thursday night for the annual Midwest Electric Coop barbecue held at the Scurry County coliseum. In all, some 1,720 persons were served.

In addition to the meal, a business meeting was conducted during which two incumbent directors were returned to their places. For Place 3, James E. Beaver of Fluvanna, and, for place 4, Melvin Clements.

FRIDAY September 2

Three people were injured in a two-vehicle collision which occurred as rainfall was reported in the city Friday at 8:22 a.m.

The wreck occurred at 30th St. and El Paso Ave. and investigating officers said weather conditions were likely a contributing factor.

By 11 a.m. Friday, Snyder had received more than 1 inch of rain from a storm system which prompted street flooding and heavy thunderstorms in the Permian Basin area of West Texas.

Scurry County's heaviest rainfall amounts were in the Lake Thomas area, where 3½ inches were reported west of the dam. The dam at the lake's southeast end received 1½ inches.

A former Scurry County resident incarcerated since the summer of 1979 on a local murder conviction may now receive earlier consideration for parole following a ruling by the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals, it was reported Friday.

The court granted a writ of habeas corpus filed by David L. James, who was age 22 in 1979 when a Scurry County 132nd District Court jury sentenced him to a 30-year prison term.

FIVE YEARS AGO

Emergency workers were busy clearing a 36-car train derailment northwest of Snyder. Most of the cars were empty and no injuries were reported.

Retirees from the Midwest Electric Cooperative board of directors were honored at the annual barbecue. James Nettleton of Hermleigh retired following 15 years of service as Place 6 director. James Cave of Roby, Place 7 director, served for nine years.

Service pins were given to Union Oil employees, Kenneth Ellet for 10 years service, and Marvin Dupuy, production foreman with 25 years service.

Brooke Ritchey won a Huffy BMX at Anthony's in conjunction with Levi's Super Week promotion. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Ritchey.

New officers installed in FHA were Dedra Crawford, Kathy Craig, Teka Eicke, and Jennie Ynguanzo.

10 YEARS AGO

R.C. Nixon brought in the first Scurry County cotton which was ginned in Hermleigh.

Close to 1,000 people participated in a Southern Cooking School sponsored by Snyder Daily News and Progressive Farmer. Door prizes were given away with the top prize of a microwave oven going to Mrs. C.A. Ramsey.

20 YEARS AGO

Snyder hosted a retirement dinner in honor of Texas Ranger Captain Frank Probst of Lubbock.

Wayne Anderson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence E. Anderson, received the Eagle Scout badge, the highest rank bestowed by Boy Scouts.

Charlie Snyder was given a retirement party following 36 years with Southwestern Bell Telephone.

Environmentalists, forest service at odds over methods to save birds

WASHINGTON (AP) — The red-cockaded woodpecker may be ugly and may not sing prettily, but the "little bugger" is at the heart of a tug-of-war between environmentalists and foresters national forests of Texas. At stake are hundreds of jobs for truckers, saw-millers and lumberjacks, says Rep. Jim Chapman, who also worries schools and counties that rely heavily on revenues from federal timber sales may face crippling shortfalls if harvests are sharply restricted.

At issue is a federal judge's ruling that seeks to protect the endangered bird by barring the forest service from cutting down precipitous drop in the bird's population over the past five years of 10 percent annually, and claimed in federal court that such timbering practices were violating the Endangered Species Act.

Environmentalists estimate there are about 180 to 190 woodpecker colonies in Texas, with about two to a colony, but say a viable population needs at least 500 birds.

U.S. District Judge Robert M. Parker in a June 17 ruling agreed with the environmentalists that the Forest Service should alter its harvesting practices to what is known as uneven-age or selection management, and ordered the agency to file a plan to comply with his order.

But the forest service has offered an alternative to Parker's request — a compromise between clear-cutting and selection management that environmentalists say they will oppose but which forestry officials say is necessary to meet the bird's nesting needs over the long haul.

"The real argument is not over the woodpecker, but is basically environmentalists disagreeing with clear-cutting. We're talking about 500 woodpeckers. They're ugly, they don't have a particularly melodious song, and they perform no useful service to either nature or man. Humankind and the biological order can get along just fine without this bird, but (Parker) has to under the law protect the little bugger," Chapman said.

Dirt flies, traffic jams in record construction of highways in Texas

DALLAS (AP) — The dirt is flying on Texas roads this summer during a record period of roadwork.

There are $4.4 billion worth of projects under contract statewide on more than 15,600 miles of roadway, according to the Texas Department of Highways and Public Transportation. That means more than one-fifth of the 73,112 miles of state-maintained roads will be worked on this year.

"Anywhere you go there is going to be dirt flying," said Gina McAskill, a public information officer with the highway department.

Those who make their livelihood on the road are finding the drive takes a little longer, but they aren't complaining.

"It may be sort of an inconvenience, but we're thrilled to see road improvements," said Tom Burke, communications manager for Central Freight Lines in Waco.

"We have to be proud of our highways. The drivers in general accept the fact that this time of year there is going to be road construction," said Kirby Pugh of Merchants Fast Motor Lines in Abilene.

Highway projects break out during the long, hot Texas summer when weather delays are infrequent, said Ms. McAskill.

As of mid-August, there were 1,173 contracts awarded for roadwork including seal coating, reconstruction, extending, widening, landscaping and bridge repair.

Up to the same period last year there were 1,041 contracts worth about $4 billion, which was the previous record.

The buildup comes at a time that Texas drivers have seen the state gasoline tax triple in the last four years. State lawmakers increased the tax from 5 cents per gallon to 10 cents in 1984 and bumped it another nickel last year to 15 cents per gallon last year.

Some of the high profile projects under way include upgrading of North Central Expressway in Dallas; widening a number of freeways running through downtown San Antonio; widening Interstate 10 near El Paso; construction of a bridge between Baytown and La Porte; and construction of Interstate 27 through Lubbock.

Texas Department of Public Safety officials say drivers should observe warning signals when approaching construction areas.

In 1987, there were 125 fatal accidents when road conditions were noted as under construction, according to Mike Cox, a D'S spokesman. Cox said figures for the current year had not been tabulated.

"When you see that warning sign of construction ahead, you may as well take a deep breath and decide you should drive slower," he said.

Drought bill may benefit livestock producers more

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) — Texas livestock producers will reap most of the state's benefits from a drought bill signed by President Reagan because their losses have outweighed those of crop farmers, an economist says.

Texas crop losses are spotty, but livestock losses will be significant due to forced sales and the increased costs of buying feed to maintain herds, said Dr. Ernest Davis of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

Crop farmers receiving help under the $3.9 billion relief bill will likely be in areas of most severe damage, primarily in the southern, coastal and eastern areas, Davis said.

Among the drought bill's provisions, producers who grow their own feed, who have owned cattle six months and can document a loss of 40 percent of the home-grown feed, can take part in a 50-50 cost share program on purchased feed.

Producers also will be able to purchase government-owned grain at 75 percent of the posted county loan rate to feed foundation stock, under the same qualifying conditions. The government pays for grain shipping costs.

Transportation assistance also will be provided for up to 50 percent of the cost of moving livestock to and from new pastures because of drought conditions.

A limited emergency forage program for drought damaged pastures is provided in which the USDA pays half the costs of seeding and fertilizing certain forage crops on pastureland for late fall and early spring grazing and haying. This is limited to $3,500 per producer.

The drought legislation should be put into action by mid-October, Davis said.

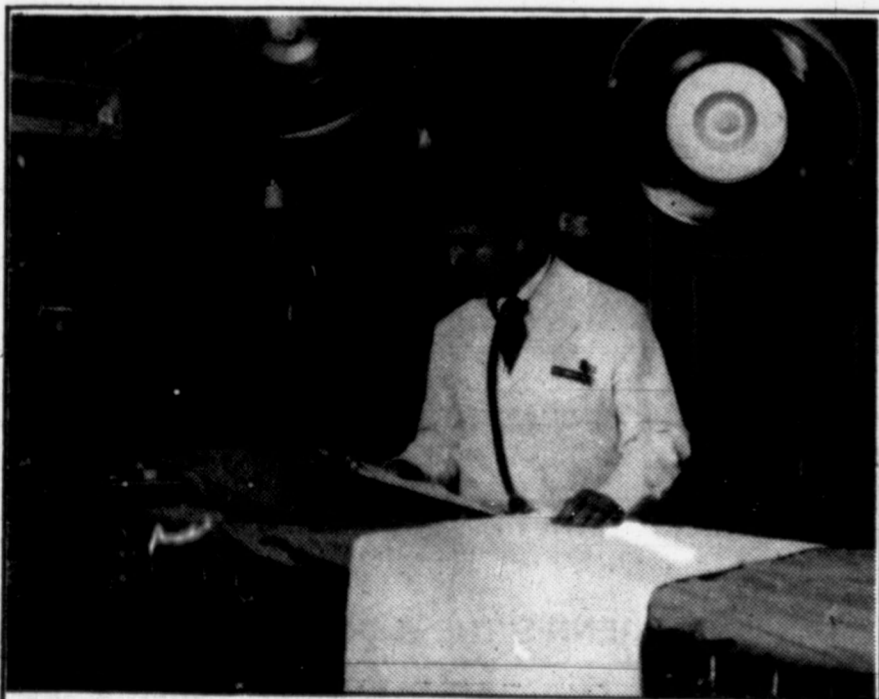

'Phantom' star gives up role

NEW YORK (AP) — "Phantom of the Opera" star Michael Crawford is giving up the ghost, and the lead role in the hit Broadway show will be taken over next month by opera singer Timothy Nolen.

Crawford, who hangs up his mask and cape Oct. 8, won the Tony Award for his portrayal of the deformed composer in Andrew Lloyd Webber's lavish musical.

He played the Phantom in London and New York, and may star in the Los Angeles production opening next spring.

Construction of the Panama Canal began in 1904.

Anxiety drug isn't working

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I am in good health, but have lost my husband and sister in the last year. My doctor gave me Xanax. Every night I'm awakened by the paining of my hands and fingertips burning violently, my body all trembly, my legs weak and wobbly. I'm so jittery I feel like screaming. Is it my nerves or the drug?

DEAR READER: I doubt that the drug is at fault. Although nervousness, insomnia and various weird sensations have been reported in patients using Xanax, an anti-anxiety agent, these reactions are rare. Perhaps you are suffering from the extreme tension that is part of the normal grief reaction.

In any case, I suggest that you draw your doctor's attention to your symptoms. You need a thorough examination, and maybe a change to another treatment.

DEAR DR. GOTT: My sister, age 61, suffered from constipation for 36 years, but for the last 10 years it's given way to uncontrollable diarrhea. She lives in England and can't visit us because of this condition. Doctors can't find out what's wrong.

DEAR READER: Impairment of bowel function is an almost-universal consequence of aging; your sister's problem may well be the result of irritable bowel syndrome, dietary indiscretions or habituation to laxatives. She also could be suffering from infection, food allergies or sensitivity to medications. As a rule, British doctors are very capable and would ordinarily have discovered a serious condition, such as bowel tumor or colitis. Nonetheless, she could have something as simple as a milk allergy (sensitivity to lactose) or a fecal impaction with loose stools passing around the obstruction.

I am tempted to suggest that your sister load up on paregoric, hop the nearest Concorde and undergo an examination by U.S. doctors — but this view is too provincial. Try asking your own doctor to review your sister's medical records and tests. Perhaps he or she will be able to give a trans-Atlantic consultation to get at the root of the problem.

To give you more information, I am sending you a copy of my Health Report "Irritable Bowel Syndrome." Other readers who would like a copy should send $1 and their name and address to P.O. Box 91369, Cleveland, OH 44101-3369. Be sure to mention the title.

Fact is duller than fiction

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

A classic joke has recently resurfaced:

Question: What are the three biggest lies in the English language?

Answer: "I'm from the government and I'm here to help you."

"Your check is in the mail."

"I can't give the last one because it's too risqué for a family newspaper column."

However, as an offshoot of this question-and-answer game, there's a variation that I call "Responses You're Not Likely to Receive." For example:

"You're the first candidate in history to be accepted to Yale from the eighth grade. Have fun in high school."

"I'll give you a $9,000 trade-in for that '71 Oldsmobile."

"We're going to drop the interest on your variable-rate mortgage to 5 percent."

"Your husband has agreed to all your alimony and settlement proposals."

"The big news tonight is that the major world powers are insisting on dismantling and banning all nuclear weapons."

"I'm sorry for the complications of your operation. As your surgeon, I'm going to waive your bill."

Of cafeterias...

Furr's CEO looking to become king

LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) — To Michael Levenson, the all-American standby of the cafeteria restaurant occupies a perfect niche in the often volatile restaurant industry.

"It's not a juicier hamburger, it's not a faster pizza. It's not a fad," said Levenson, chairman and chief executive officer of Furr's-Bishop's Cafeterias Inc. "And it's a reliable stream of cash flow."

The cash-rich, low-debt balance sheets of the cafeteria segment drew Levenson to acquire Furr's-Bishop's and has made Dallas-based Wyatt Cafeterias Inc. his acquisition target for the past two years.

Levenson said Thursday he won't give up trying to buy Wyatt, but refused to specify his plans if his latest overture is rejected. The closely held company has revenues of about $190 million and 120 restaurants nationwide.

After first offering to buy the company in May 1986, Levenson made several bids for Wyatt. On Wednesday he sweetened his offer for Wyatt to $188.1 million in cash and securities from an earlier $179.3 million bid.

Fines stay is refused by court

YONKERS, N.Y. (AP) — The U.S. Supreme Court has refused to halt mounting daily fines against the city for blocking a federal housing desegregation plan, a decision the mayor says could cause Yonkers "to plummet to bankruptcy."

But in a ruling issued Thursday night, the court temporarily spared the four city councilmen who oppose the plan from going to jail until they have time to ask formally that their cases be fully reviewed, U.S. Supreme Court spokeswoman Toni House said.

The justices stayed a lower court ruling that had upheld contempt citations against the four councilmen, who had faced a resumption of $500-a-day fines and the start of jail terms this weekend.

The city's fines for failing to comply with the desegregation order were put on hold until today, pending the Supreme Court's ruling. The fines will now resume against the city, Yonkers Mayor Nicholas Wasicosko said.

The fines started Aug. 2 at $100 and doubled daily. The city had paid $12,700 before receiving its first stay from an appeals court, which upheld the contempt finding last Friday but granted an additional one-week stay. It also capped the city's fines at $1 million a day.

House said the entire court considered the applications from the councilmen and the city, and "the application so far as the city of Yonkers is concerned has been denied."

Justices Thurgood Marshall and William Brennan filed a 12-page dissent, arguing that all stays be denied, she said.

"As the city repeatedly points out in its application, Yonkers is relatively unique in that most of the governmental power in the city is centralized in the legislative branch." For this reason the city is the council, Marshall wrote.

The ruling surprised Wasicosko, who favors compliance with the desegregation order.

The latest $91.25 per-share bid came after Wyatt rejected Levenson's $87 per-share cash offer in favor of one from a Wyatt management-based employee stock ownership plan that would pay $84 per share. Shareholders are scheduled to vote on the ESOP offer Sept. 6, and Wyatt management hasn't yet responded to the latest Furr's-Bishop's offer, Levenson said.

"If we don't get the Wyatt's deal that doesn't mean we're out of the business of buying cafeterias," said Levenson, who owns a small stake in Wyatt. "We're going to grow this company."

The cafeteria business captured the 38-year-old Levenson's attention after he bid unsuccessfully on companies such as Midland-based Texas American Energy, Aloha Airlines of Hawaii and Tesoro Petroleum Corp. of San Antonio.

"When I began studying the restaurant industry, the cafeteria segment of the restaurant industry stood out with some real unique features," he said.

Convinced he had discovered a gold mine, in 1987 he acquired Furr's Cafeterias and Bishop Buffets, based in Cedar Rapids, Iowa, from K mart Corp for $237.5 million.

He then converted Furr's-Bishop's into a limited partnership, got it listed on the New York Stock Exchange and sold 11 million units at $10 apiece. The partnership has promised to pay a cash distribution of $1.30 this year.

Prison facility now has new manager

PECOS, Texas (AP) — The federal Bureau of Prisons is wasting no time in sending more inmates to a prison owned by Reeves County now that management has been handed from the sheriff to a Tennessee-based company.

The Bureau of Prisons told Nashville-based Corrections Corporation of America on Thursday that it planned to send another 50 or 60 prisoners to the Reeves County Law Enforcement Center soon, CCA spokeswoman Peggy Wilson said.

CCA administrator Sandy Estes began managing the prison Thursday, ending a three-month power struggle between Sheriff Raul Florez and the Bureau of Prisons over how the county-owned, 532-bed detention center should be run. On Thursday, 446 inmates were at the detention center, Ms. Wilson said.

The LEC, which is run by the county as a money-making enterprise, houses Bureau of Prisons inmates — mostly illegal aliens and non-violent federal prisoners — and U.S. Marshal's prisoners awaiting trial in federal courts.

The LEC is separate from the county jail, and there is no exchange of prisoners between the two.

In the spring, the Bureau of Prisons said it had little confidence in Florez's management ability, and announced it would stop sending long-term prisoners to the LEC and would send only short-term inmates.

The bureau became even more concerned after Florez replied to bureau officials with a letter filled with slang and containing profanity, BOP spokesman Wally Blinde said.

"The letter, in tone, complexion and nature of the reply, was totally and wholly unprofessional," Blinde said after receiving the letter in June.

County commissioners felt pressured to change the LEC's management, though Florez contended that he was supposed to run it under state law because it was a legal extension of the county jail. After the county approved the contract with Nashville-based CCA, Florez said he had no objections.

Commissioners selected CCA after reviewing proposals from three prison-management companies. Ms. Wilson said the LEC's 100 employees will stay on.

Under terms of the agreement, CCA will receive a $36,000 monthly management fee and will be reimbursed for operating costs of up to $279,000 a month, County Attorney Scott Johnson said.

The county receives $31 a day for each federal prisoner and $33 a day for each U.S. Marshal's prisoner. That money goes to pay CCA and what's left goes into the county's coffers.

Texas sculptor brings dinosaurs back to life

NEEDVILLE, Texas (AP) — John Fischner's tools are scientific data, imagination and papier-mache. His overriding obsession is to use those tools to bring back to life a group of animals long extinct — dinosaurs.

Fischner, whose home and studio are about 35 miles southwest of Houston, has found a niche in life sculpting dinosaurs and fantasy figures.

"I keep thinking what was it like to see a herd of animals where each individual was the size of a railroad car, what was it like to see a predator so big that when he ate, he was pulling off 200 to 300 pounds of meat at a time," he said, his enthusiasm for the thought growing.

"Every time I sculpt one of these things, I'm kind of exploring what it would be like to see it."

His statues are of less monumental proportion. They average 2 to 3 feet in length, but meticulous attention to detail and scientific knowledge give his dinosaurs an amazingly lifelike quality.

That quality has attracted the attention of several museums, including The Science Place in Dallas, which will show about 15 of Fischner's dinosaurs in a "World of New Robot Dinosaurs" through April 9.

The show features nine new dinosaur robots from Dinamation, the California company that supplied the creatures for last year's exhibit. The largest is the allosaurus, a reptile that is 20 feet long and 9 feet tall. All of the creatures move and roar.

Fischner's dinosaurs will be displayed in miniature landscape settings and will complement the larger robotic displays that will be the main attraction of the exhibit, said Warren Zager, associate director of exhibits for the museum.

Zager praised Fischner's work. "Fabulous stuff. The man does his research," Zager said. "We really appreciate him letting us show his art work here."

Three years ago, Fischner won a contract to repair the dinosaurs at Dinosaur Valley State Park near Glen Rose.

The experience was overwhelming, he said.

"It's one thing to sit in here and work on one...looking like a toy. It's something else...leaning inside this mouth—head, shoulders and waist and not reaching to the back of the tongue," he said.

Fischner, 37, dates his fascination for dinosaurs back to age 3, when someone gave him "The World We Live In," a book published by Life magazine. A fold-out page with pictures of dinosaurs captivated him, he said. For hours on end, he would study the page and let his imagination run. When he was 6 he began to sculpt dinosaurs using diatomaceous earth.

At 16 he started using a cellulose papier-mache material that can be dried to a hard state. He has refined his technique.

Starting with pieces of coathangers bound with floral wire, Fischner forms the basic shape of the beast. The body is filled out with wads of newspaper. A fast-setting papier-mache is used to fill out the legs.

To that basic frame he applied the cellulose papier-mache material, which is a wood pulp powder he mixes with water. Slowly the animal is built up.

Fischner kneads and works it to the desired shape. He applies it to the sculpture and tools it with a toothpick or tooth from a large comb.

Working a few hours at a time, he will let the animal dry and harden in a homemade hot box with 800 watts of light bulbs producing about 200 degrees of heat. When one papier-mache layer is dry after about 24 hours he will add more, let it dry and add more.

It may take five or six of those cycles to complete the form. The average sculpture takes about 20 to 25 hours of work, excluding drying time, he said.

A completely dried statue weighs about 10 pounds and has a porous texture that looks much like real animal skin. Fischner said his statues are about as durable as oak and need not be treated as fragile.

The finished form is spray-painted. Because there are no photographs of dinosaurs, Fischner uses his imagination and knowledge of animals to choose the colors.

"As an artist, I'm a little bit freer to extrapolate behavior and color," he said.

He always has several sculptures in the works so he has something to work on while the other pieces are drying.

Fischner said he has no idea how many dinosaurs he has made but figures he makes at least 50 per year now that he is doing it full time.

He began exhibiting his statues at science-fiction shows about 19 years ago. Then he began to go to gem and mineral shows and anywhere else where people might be interested in dinosaurs, fossils or fantasy figures.

Spinal injuries from a fall in 1984 while working as a machinist for Texas Instruments and a car accident in 1987 forced him to turn what was an avocation into full-time work. Though he has no trouble walking, Fischner said the accidents "effectively took me out of the labor market." He considers his sculpture as "God's insurance policy to make sure I have something to do."

Then there's the matter of the wake-up call. At six a.m. on the first morning my phone rang, just as I requested, and I was treated to the sounds of jazzy music and some guy in the throes of what sounded like passion. I hung up and thought, "Well, one thing's for sure. I'm definitely awake now." To my new friends at the seminar, I joked that obscene wake-up calls may have been one of the services the motel provided and that I'd probably get billed for it at check-out time.

Traveling alone, even for a woman, isn't all that bad. You get to stop when you want, eat where you want, stay up as late as you want, and strike up the acquaintances that interest you. You learn independence and self-confidence and how to handle loneliness. I think everyone should try it at least once.

But if you're going to Belton, give me a call, and I'll tell you which motel to avoid.

In the early days, his statues sold for about $15. Today his average dinosaur brings $350 and some sell for as much as $700, depending, he said, "on how much of a headache it was and whether or not it was a successful piece."

Buyers include museums and individuals. Fischner has even worked on a movie as the art and special effects director. It was a low-budget "Bug-eyed monster, flying saucer flick," he said, that is yet to be released.

Fischner said he is self-taught in the art and science of dinosaurs.

"Thank heavens I didn't take any art courses while I was learning to do this, so I didn't know what I was doing wrong," he said with a laugh, adding that he did enroll in some art courses a few years ago but did not find them particularly helpful.

The Bible also talks about feeding the hungry. It speaks of caring for the widows and orphans. Churches have failed to meet this obligation, so the federal government is doing it for us. Not only do we neglect this duty, but we miss the blessing of doing it.

All of society's problems would be solved if we followed the master plan for life, the Bible. I read once that a religion that costs nothing is worth nothing. It cost Jesus His life. What is your religion worth?

Piece of puzzle said missing

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — It's a matter of time until the serial killer believed to be responsible for the deaths of six young women is brought to justice, police believe.

All six women were found in shallow graves, their bodies decomposed. The first two were found Sept. 4, 1987 — a year ago Sunday — when water utility employees spotted their bones sticking out of a pile of dirt and trash in northeast El Paso.

The six bodies were found in a five-month period in a half-mile radius of one another on the city's northeast outskirts. No one has been charged in the killings.

"I feel confident that all of these cases are going to get solved," said Alfonso Marquez, a detective on a police task force working full-time on the case. "The pressure is still on. The bosses don't want any rocks left unturned."

Capt. Greg Drollinger, head of the El Paso police's criminal investigations division, said police are close to solving the killings.

"There is a bit of information out there we need, and if we get it, that could mean the end of this case," he said as the anniversary of the discovery of the first two bodies approached.

Two investigators were assigned to the case after the remains of Maria Rosa Casio, 23, of Addison, and Karen Baker, 20, of El Paso, were found Sept. 4.

Then, on Oct. 20, police dogs sniffed out the remains of El Pasoans Desiree Wheatley, 15, and Dawn Smith, 14. It was then that police said they believed a serial killer might be responsible, and they formed a task force whose members have interviewed more than 400 witnesses from Utah to Florida to Mexico, Drollinger said.

The task force bought a computer to enter information contained in police reports, witness statements and autopsy results, Drollinger said, adding that all the paperwork could easily stack 6 feet high.

The paperwork grew even more after the discovery of Angelica Frausto, 17, last Nov. 3, and of Ivy Williams, 23, on March 14. Both girls were from El Paso.

More than 50 people have been considered suspects, but the number of suspects has since been trimmed to less than 10, said Sgt. Ramiro Gomez, who is in charge of the six-man task force.

Investigators refuse to name any suspects or say exactly how many there are.

"We are not always interested in telling people what direction our investigation is taking," Drollinger said. "We need to be cautious because we are trying to build the strongest case possible."

Gomez said one of the most difficult parts of the investigation has been trying to recount the lives of the six victims, who were last seen near convenience stores, motels and topless bars.

"Their lifestyle was not routine," Drollinger said of some of the victims.

Gomez said it has been difficult to find the victims' friends. "The type of associates or friends they did have, we have to look for," he said. "They are not the kind that will come forth."
