Bonds to finish funding for all 1,000-man units

From Local Wire Reports
A state panel meeting in Austin Tuesday authorized the issuance of about $32 million in bonds to complete funding for four 1,000-bed prisons, including the Snyder unit, and to improve facilities at other prison facilities.
The Texas Bond Review Board also approved approximately $14.6 million in general obligation bonds for the Texas Department of Mental Health and Mental Retardation for construction and repair at state schools, hospitals and centers.
About $20 million of the $32.265 million authorized for prisons will go toward improvements dictated by a federal court order against the Texas Department of Corrections. The improvements include upgrading wastewater facilities and heating and ventilation at the units.

The remaining funds will go toward overruns of previous cost estimates at the 1,000-bed units. Three of the four units are currently under construction. All four units are expected to be completed next year at a cost of about $76 million, prison officials said.
In addition to Snyder, units are located in Marlin, Woodville and Dayton.
By Oct. 1, the construction project here was estimated at approximately 10 percent complete. It is scheduled to be at its busiest building phase sometime in December and to be completed in June of next year.
Bids for the construction phase here came in at $14.4 million.

Dukakis campaign to stay in Texas

AUSTIN (AP) — The Democratic ticket of Michael Dukakis and Sen. Lloyd Bentsen has no plans to abandon Texas, the third-largest state, before Nov. 8, the campaign says.
"Mike Dukakis was in the state on Saturday, Lloyd Bentsen is in the state (Monday) and Bentsen will be back at the end of the week. We are not pulling out," said Missy Mandell, spokeswoman for the Democratic campaign in Texas.

Republican campaigners, meanwhile, said Vice President George Bush will continue to emphasize his adopted home state in the campaign's final three weeks.
"Texas is an absolute No. 1 priority for the Bush campaign. There is no scenario for a national Bush victory without us winning Texas," said Reggie Bashur, deputy campaign manager for Bush in the state.
Their comments came after newspaper reports that the Dukakis campaign in Texas was being downgraded.

A Washington Post story on Sunday said Dukakis would concentrate his efforts on 18 states and the District of Columbia, with 272 electoral votes, two more than needed to win.
The list contained most of the major states — New York, California, Michigan, Ohio, Illinois and Pennsylvania — that both sides describe as key batlegrounds. Given lower priority by Dukakis, according to the Post, were Texas, Bentsen's home state, and New Jersey.

Susan Estrich, Dukakis national campaign manager, said the report was wrong. "We are not writing off whole regions of the country," she said.
On Monday, The New York Times reported that the Democrats hadn't give up on Texas but that the campaign "acknowledged that victory here is now highly unlikely."

In Austin, Ms. Mandell said, "We are not pulling out. That's absolutely not true."
"It was a demonstration to Republicans to negate their bogus 'electoral lock' theory. We showed them there are 18 states where we're ahead or doing very well, and those 18 states represent 272 electoral votes," she said.

Perjury testimony underway Officer recalls night of incident

A city policeman testified in Jimmy Trevino's aggravated perjury trial Monday that he had encountered the suspect approximately 1½ hours before shots were fired into a residence in the 2700 Block of Ave. Q around midnight on Nov. 29, 1986.

Walter "Chip" Mitchell said he saw Trevino "spinning out" in the parking lot of a College Ave. store and was told by Trevino that he was trying to escape some men who had been throwing rocks at his pickup truck.

Mitchell said he then saw two men walking at 27th St. and College and was told by them that Trevino had threatened them with a knife.

The officer said he was at the police station taking a report on the incident when there was a radio report about shots being fired into the Ave. Q home of one of the men, Bobby Espinosa, who was making the complaint.

Mitchell said he later found Trevino, who now lives in Lubbock, at some College Ave. apartments and found a lock-blade knife and some firearms in his blue and silver pickup.

He said Trevino denied threatening the men with a knife or firing any shots.

Trevino was convicted of aggravated assault in a February 1987 trial here and was given a five-year penitentiary sentence that is currently on appeal.

He is being tried for aggravated perjury in connection with his testimony denying the offense during the punishment phase of his trial.

District Attorney Ernie Armstrong rested his case before a 132nd District Court jury Tuesday morning, and defense attorney James Brennan of Lubbock was expected to call at least one witness.

'Pleasures Mine' has grand opening plans

The Pleasure's Mine, one of Snyder's newest businesses to open recently, is owned by Virginia Bloom, a native of Colorado City who has lived in Snyder since 1968.

Bloom's shop, which specializes in party goods, gift items and Hallmark cards, opened Sept. 12. She assumed the greeting cards line from Four Seasons Hallmark.

All this week, The Pleasure's Mine is observing its grand opening. Customers may register for a keepsake Christmas ornament or a $20 gift certificate. Both will be given away at a drawing planned Thursday.

Regular store hours are 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Monday through Saturday and on Thursdays the store is open until 8 p.m. A gift wrapping service is offered also.

Mrs. Bloom is married to O'Neal Bloom who owns Clark Lumber Co. They have two sons, John and Jerry.

School attendance tops 97 percent as drive continues

With two weeks completed of an October attendance drive for Snyder school campuses, local students are showing up for class at a 97 percent-plus average.

In October, the average daily attendance (ADA) figure for all Texas school districts is used as the basis for state funding for the following year.

For every 100 students missing a day of class in October, it is estimated Snyder ISD can lose in the range of $160,000 in state funding.

The only other major source of income for the district is local property taxes, and school officials note that shortfalls in state funding may cause increases in local tax bills.

Because of this, the district set a goal of 98 percent attendance for October, fully some 5 percentage points above Snyder ISD's normal attendance range of around 93 percent.

To aid in this effort, brochures detailing the local plans were sent home with students for their parents to read.

As incentives within the system, students are also being offered rewards for perfect attendance during October.

For the first week in October, attendance at Snyder's six elementary campuses, junior high and high school rose to 97.2 percent.

For the week ending last Friday, the average was 97.1 percent. At the elementary level, two—West and Stanfield—exceeded the 98 percent goal and five were above the district average.

By campus for the second week in October, attendance percentages included:

- Snyder High School, 96 percent.
- Snyder Junior High, 96.1 percent.
- Central Elementary, 95.8 percent.
- East Elementary, 97.9 percent.
- North Elementary, 97.2 percent.
- Northeast Elementary, 97.3 percent.
- Stanfield Elementary, 98.2 percent.
- West Elementary, 98.3 percent.

Two vehicle accident occurs at FM 1611-180

A Snyder driver avoided serious injuries Monday afternoon when his vehicle was in collision with a Lovington, N.M. man's auto.

The wreck occurred at the intersection of FM 1611 and Lamesa Highway some 1.5 miles west of the city around 1 p.m.

Thomas J. Aishman of 3408 44th St. was pulling onto U.S. Hwy. 180 from FM 1611. Department of Public Safety troopers say, when he was in collision with a 1987 Toyota Tercel two-door driven by Harvey L. Hebison of Lovington, who was eastbound on U.S. 180.

Aishman was driving a 1988 Jeep Comanche pickup.

The accident was one of two investigated here since Sunday.

Another was worked some 2 of a mile east of the city limits at 5:55 p.m. Sunday.

A 1981 Datsun 280-ZX driven by Schad H. Monden of Borger was northbound off a U.S. 84 access road when it was in collision with a 1985 Ford pickup driven by Lowell Prince of Box 1251, Snyder. The Prince vehicle was eastbound on U.S. 180.

'Neighbors' project ready for applicants

Planning has already begun for the second annual home repair project sponsored through Snyder Neighbors Sharing and organizers are now seeking applications from individuals otherwise unable to effect repairs to their homes.

The program is aimed at elderly or disabled home owners and the work is completed on one day by a volunteer work force.

Individuals interested in working with Snyder Neighbors Sharing, either as a worker on the day of the project or as a committee member, are urged to contact Sam Robertson, who heads the group. Potential applicants or volunteers should contact him at 573-4053 or at 2615 College Ave.

Last April 30, a Saturday, more than 100 workers completed repairs at seven homes in Snyder. Among these volunteers were representatives of church groups, civic clubs, Snyder High School organizations and some 20 employees of Chevron here.

Local building contractors donated their time to supervise the work, which saw houses receiving new roofs, bathroom and interior renovations and, in the case of one home, a new outside covered porch.

April of 1989 is again targeted. See PROJECT, page 11

The feller on Deep Creek says, "Age is like everything else. To make a success of it you have to start young."

Except for a few inadvertent glimpses on the 10 o'clock news, we've been true to our pledge to boycott professional football.

We made a similar pledge a few years ago when the players first went on strike, but then relented when cold weather came and forced us to stay indoors on Sunday afternoons.

But when the second players strike occurred, we renewed our vow and not even an ice storm would cause us to watch professional football.

We still enjoy high school and college ball, but we have a hard time cheering for an overpaid tailback who likely couldn't make a living in the real world—much less millions, that many contracts insure.

The results have been nice. When the Cowboys play, the golf course is not even crowded. But now that America's team is off to a poor start, others appear to have joined the boycott.

One Cowboy fan recently noted that the city of Dallas consumes more canned spinach than any other city in the United States.

He wondered if that had any impact on how the Dallas Cowboys have been playing.

Snyder's Chic Hall brought us a copy of the following poster that he picked up on one of his many trips.

"Notice—Will the woman who left her 11 children at Texas Stadium in Irving please come get them. They're whipping the Cowboys 14-0."

Just how tough is the Texas economy?

A victim of the oil and real estate bust in Houston still believes that a telephone in his car is essential. But instead of a cellular phone it's a pay phone.

Gets Nobel

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP) — Maurice Allais of France won the Nobel Memorial Prize in Economic Science today, the Royal Swedish Academy of Sciences announced.

Allais won the award "for his pioneering contributions to the theory of markets and efficient utilization of resources," the academy said in its citation.

He was the first French economist to win the coveted award since it was created in 1968.

Killer plants

MIDDLETON, Wis. (AP) — Scientists at Agracetus, a biotechnology company, have developed caterpillar-killing plants that could save U.S. cotton farmers millions of dollars, according to Vice President Winston Brill.

Brill said the company has applied for federal permission to test the cotton plants by growing them in the South next year.

Three miss 1

Single misses again topped the list of entries from last week's SDN Football Contest. Three guessers managed only one miss each so the two money winners were decided by the tie-breaker procedure.

Jerry Parker of 2358 Sunset won the $12.50 and Billy Bob McMullan of 2804 35th won the $5. Honorable mention goes to Darrell Robertson.

Another contest appears in this issue.

Terms set for U.S. military to remain

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States expects to hold a new round of negotiations with the Philippines in the "not too distant future" on extending American military use of strategic air and naval bases there beyond 1991.

But Raul Manglapus, the foreign secretary of the Southeast Asian country, offered no guarantee Monday as he signed with Secretary of State George P. Shultz an agreement that set new terms for U.S. use of the bases until that date.

Manglapus said President Corason Aquino would be influenced by the reaction of Filipinos to the agreement and was "keeping our options open."

Shultz quipped in reply: "Both sides are keeping their options open."

But the mood was upbeat. Shultz said he was "just thrilled" to be bolstering the Aquino government's turn to democracy with increased aid. And the successful conclusion of more than six months of negotiations appeared to augur well for an extension beyond 1991.

"I'm bullish on the Philippines and this is a continuation of that effort," he said.

The agreement provides for $962 million in U.S. economic and military aid over the next two years, an increase of $258 million over the current outlay. To ease the Philippines' foreign debt burden, a "substantial portion" of the aid and of this year's $352 million can be used to satisfy creditors, a memorandum issued Monday said.

Additionally, the Reagan administration promised to ask Congress to approve writing off a $28 million Philippine debt to the United States and to try to find another $4 million to reimburse the Philippines for security measures at the bases.

The agreement contains an unprecedented provision barring assignment to the Philippines of U.S. service personnel who tested positive for AIDS. State Department officials said the purpose was to ease a dispute with Manila over reported cases of the infectious disease among bar hostesses.

Another key provision maintains the U.S. policy of not disclosing whether ships or planes stopping at the bases or passing through carry nuclear weapons.

"These transits, overflights or visits will be conducted in accordance with existing procedures, which may be changed or modified, as necessary, by mutual agreement of both parties," the memorandum said.

However, the Philippines government has the power to prohibit storing nuclear, chemical or other non-conventional weaponry on its territory.

The nuclear issue was one of the key items that had to be settled before the United States could be assured continued use of Clark Air Base, Subic Bay Naval Base and four lesser installations.

The accord also deeds to the Philippines all permanent facilities and improvements on buildings at the bases. The two governments pledged, meanwhile, to take steps to ensure a smooth transition of the bases to Philippine control if the United States decides in the future to abandon them.

Blockbuster bid for Kraft is made by Philip Morris firm

NEW YORK (AP) — Philip Morris Cos. Inc.'s $11 billion bid for Kraft Inc. would make it the world's second biggest food company while decreasing its heavy dependence on profitable but stagnating cigarette sales.

Philip Morris, the 12th biggest industrial company in the Fortune 500, launched a surprise tender offer late Monday that would pay $90 a share to shareholders of 31st-ranked Kraft.

If successful, the deal would be the largest non-oil takeover ever, trailing only Standard Oil Co.'s $13.4 billion purchase of Gulf Corp. in 1984. That company later changed its name to Chevron Corp.

Glenview, Ill.-based Kraft indicated it might fight the takeover, even though the offer was about 50 percent above its closing stock price on Monday. Although New York-based Philip Morris is best known for Marlboro, Virginia Slims, Benson & Hedges and Merit cigarettes, it took over General Foods Corp., the maker of Jell-O, Maxwell House, Kool-Aid, Shake 'N Bake and Oscar Meyer, in 1985 for $5.7 billion.

The addition of Kraft would bring such names as Velveeta, Thousand Island dressings, Cheez Whiz, Breyer's, Light 'n' Lively, Sealtest and Frusen Gladje.

"Philip Morris is aiming for preeminence among consumer good marketers, and this will take them there," said analyst John C. Bierbusse of A.G. Edwards & Sons in St. Louis.

In an interview late Monday, Hamish Maxwell, Philip Morris's chairman and chief executive, said, "Being in the food business, we feel that we understand it."

Kraft and Philip Morris's General Foods are roughly the same size and together would have roughly $20 billion in annual revenue. That would make Philip Morris the biggest food company after Nestle SA of Switzerland, which had revenue last year of $28 billion.

The cigarette business generates enormous amounts of cash for Philip Morris, but its growth is slowing even though the company has been successful in increasing sales abroad, particularly in developing countries.

Tobacco will account for about 78 percent of its earnings this year, compared with 16 percent for General Foods and smaller amounts for Miller Brewing Co. and other units, said Bierbusse.

The dependence on cigarettes has frightened some investors from the stock, analysts said.

Maxwell said the cigarette business continues to grow in profit, revenue, physical volume and market share and has Philip Morris's strong support. But, he conceded, "I don't think most people would pick it as a big growth industry for the future."

"We're trying to build our business, and we're also trying to position it for the future and not just for the present or the past."

Despite the $11 billion price, the cigarette and food giant "can well afford it," said Emanuel Goldman, an analyst with PaineWebber Inc. in San Francisco. "Their cash flow is $1.3 billion (a year). That's $150,000 an hour, 24 hours a day, 366 days a year."

John M. Richman, Kraft chairman and chief executive, said his board will meet in "due course" to consider the offer.

Kraft's directors will make a recommendation on the tender offer by Oct. 31, Richman said, urging shareholders to hold onto their stock until then.

The offer took the stock market by surprise.

Dear Abby

Wife Feels Husband's Family Ties Stretch a Little Too Far

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1988 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: I recently married a widower whose wife had several sisters. They constantly call him on the phone, ask him to do favors, invite him places, etc. He feels obligated to accept their invitations. I don't see why he feels obligated to attend functions, do favors and be available at their whim, but he does. This one sister had her eye on him herself, and sends him "favorite brother-in-law" cards that could be taken the wrong way. Abby, his wife is dead.

I know this is a dumb question, but is he still related to these people? It seems to me that the relationship ended when his wife died. Personally, I am getting tired of going places because he gets a call from one of them. We recently had a picnic and invited our friends. Of course, my friends did not know these people, whom he felt obligated to invite, so I said, "Oh, that's his first wife's family." Meanwhile, I kept asking myself, "Why are they here?"

Am I being picky? Shouldn't these old relationships be put aside? He now has new relationships to build on.

NEW WIFE

DEAR NEW WIFE: "Old relationships" cannot be put aside like a pair of worn-out shoes — nor should they be. Although he is no longer legally related to these people, he is comfortable with them after many years and feels that they are "family." Do not demand that he drop them to be replaced instantly by your friends. Go slowly, if you want a happy, lasting marriage with this man.

DEAR ABBY: When I travel by plane during the daytime, I like to look out and see the clouds, mountains, farmlands and little towns below. So, what am I supposed to do when the flight attendant says, "Please close your window shades; we need to have it dark for the movie?"

Well, I don't care for movies in-flight — I prefer to keep my window shade up so I can enjoy the scenery.

I paid as much for my ticket as the next person, and I think I'm entitled to enjoy the flight too. So what's the solution?

NO MOVIES, THANKS

DEAR NO MOVIES: Since you are in the minority and the light is distracting, be a good sport and pull your shade down. A movie usually lasts no more than 90 minutes, and there is still time to enjoy the scenery.

DEAR ABBY: I recently graduated from an Ivy League college and was inducted into the honor society of Phi Beta Kappa.

My grandparents bought me a gold Phi Beta Kappa key as a gift. I am very proud of my academic achievements, but I am wondering if it's considered tacky to wear a Phi Beta Kappa key. It's a beautiful key, and I am honored to be a member, but I don't want people to think I'm snooty or terribly elitist. Can you offer a suggestion?

E.S.M.

DEAR E.S.M.: You've earned the right to wear the coveted key, and what's more, your proud grandparents bought one for you, so I advise you not to worry what others may think — wear it.

People are eating them up! To order your copy of Abby's favorite recipes, send your name and address, plus check or money order for $3.50 ($4 in Canada) to: Abby's Cookbooklet, P.O. Box 447, Mount Morris, Ill. 61054. (Postage is included.)

AT&T plans to cut long-distance rates

WASHINGTON (AP) — American Telephone & Telegraph Co. wants to cut its basic interstate long-distance rates by an average of 3.8 percent and its business service prices by up to 6.2 percent to reflect savings in local network costs.

The cuts, totaling $697 million annually, would take effect Dec. 1, the day that residential and small business customers begin paying an additional 60 cents per month to pay the costs of maintaining the local phone network.

As subscribers pay more of the costs to maintain the local network, long-distance companies pay less. The Federal Communications Commission requires AT&T, the nation's largest long-distance company, to send these savings back to consumers by lowering rates.

AT&T's competitors are not required to return these savings to customers, but the companies have tended to lower their rates in response to AT&T price cuts.

The two largest competitors, MCI Communications Corp. and US Sprint Communications Co., said Monday they would review AT&T's plans.

MCI spokesman John Houser said the company "will maintain a competitive rate structure" and "will be passing the access line savings along to our customers." But he said MCI could not be specific until it has fully reviewed AT&T's proposal.

Sprint spokesman Syd Courson said the company wanted to review AT&T's proposed cuts before commenting on its own plans. "We don't know what we will do right now," he said.

The price cut, if approved by the FCC, would be AT&T's seventh since 1984, when the company was stripped of its local operating companies by an antitrust decree.

DAR MEETING — The Daughters of the American Revolution met Oct. 11 at Martha Ann Woman's Club for a dinner meeting with Nona Morrison as featured speaker. Local representative for the Republican party, Morrison spoke on various issues which compose the Republican platform in the current presidential campaign. Hostesses for the meeting were Sadie Longbotham and Virginia Clark. Barbara McCormick and J.O. Morrison were guests at the event. Lois Bartels gave the president's general message to the club and Dorothy Casey gave the national defense report. (SDN Staff Photo)

Astrology is topic at Beta Sigma Phi

Astrology was the program topic presented by Mona Bryan when Beta Sigma Phi members met Oct. 4 at the Snyder Country Club.

Bryan gave the historical significance of astrology, explaining that although it has been used thousands of years, the system today has changed little in its essential elements. Casting one's horoscope is putting astrological knowledge to use.

She stated that according to astrologers, one's horoscope is a map of the heavens as seen from a specific location on the Earth, on a certain date, in a certain month, in a specific year, and at a certain hour and minute. These factors are important in making a person unique, according to those who study astrology.

Bryan said that by learning about one's own segment of the Zodiac, a person can come to appreciate more fully the special gifts and talents God has given. By studying the other signs, she said we can better comprehend and respect our fellow human beings.

Following the program, president Dena Ellis conducted the business session. Ann Foster announced the couple's social Oct. 8, a Mexican Fiesta in the home of Loretta and Wayne Dodson. Jacalyn Lowrance gave a report on ways and means and Mickey Baird, service chairman, announced the upcoming service project.

Hostesses for the meeting were Bryan and Wanda Early.

Members will meet Tuesday night for a casual evening of Crazy Bridge.

Chances seemed reasonable, even though the heart lead was best for the defense. If clubs were to divide, declarer could play four rounds of spades and shed a heart from dummy. Later, ruffing a losing heart in dummy would be the 12th trick. So declarer won his heart ace and played two rounds of trumps. Unfortunately East held three clubs to the jack. Undaunted, South left one trump outstanding and played off four rounds of spades. Since East had to follow, declarer was able to discard one heart from dummy. Declarer then led a heart, hoping that West would have to win the trick. But East won the heart jack and played back his jack of clubs. That killed the potential ruff in dummy and declarer had to go set.

Was there a countermove? Sure — all declarer had to do was duck the opening heart lead. He could then win the second trick and go about his business as before. The only difference is that the defenders can't play that third round of trumps at him, and he will ruff his heart loser to make the slam.

Bakery expo displays the sweet and the lucrative

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — Flaky pastry puffs filled with chocolate mousse float on a tray near the swirl of whipped cream crowning a glazed bed of strawberries and a soft jelly roll oozing with a tart burst of red.

For most people, this is sweet torture. To those attending the Atlantic Bakery Expo this week, this is sweetly lucrative.

Bakers wandered through the expo at Convention Center on Monday, admiring stainless steel mixing bowls as big as Jacuzzis, ovens as big as dining rooms and a $14,000 machine that pops out 175 dozen bagels an hour.

More than 10,000 buyers were expected to attend the three-day expo, which ends today.

The retail baking industry generates about $6 billion nationwide each year, with 20,000 independent retail bakers and another 20,000 in-store bakeries across the United States, according to statistics compiled by the Retail Bakers of America Association.

"We could say this show smells of opportunity and tastes of success," said John Charles, executive secretary of the New Jersey Bakers Board of Trade.

The average sweet tooth might be surprised at the innovations for modern bakers displayed at the annual show. There are still frosting bags and traditional wedding cake toppers decorated with lace, but there are also gadgets such as high-tech spray guns that use food coloring to create detailed cake-top scenes.

"Business has been so good that we sold our bakery two years ago and now we sell our Stencil Aire products around the country," said Belinda Franklin, a co-partner in the young cake stenciling firm based in Ripon, Wis.

At the expo, Chris Moore, of the Hazelwood (Mo.) Farms Bakeries, promoted a line of predecorated frozen cakes and cupcakes that stores can thaw and sell.

"It's hard to find skilled labor to decorate cakes nowadays," he said. "You don't find that many people want to be bakers anymore because of the crazy hours." Bakers traditionally get a pre-dawn start on their day behind the stove.

But bakers who still make their own cakes are turning to products that save time. Richard D'Alco, a spokesman for Instantwhip Food Inc. of Columbus, Ohio, pointed to a giant strawberry shortcake frosted with Instantwhip whipped cream that comes from a carton and doesn't use heavy cream.

"Real heavy cream is primarily used in gourmet operations as long as people are willing to pay the high price," he said.

But D'Alco didn't have to continue touting his product. A husband-wife baking team stopped at his booth to rave.

"Real whipped cream turns into water if you beat it too much," said Rose Hamilton, co-owner of the Bel Air (Md.) Bakery.

"Fresh whipped cream is the worst thing you could use," said her husband, James.

Even the decorations on cakes can be premade. Sam Guttman, president of Bakery Crafts of Cincinnati, pointed to his variety of colorful plastic and hard sugar cake decorations.

Cracks discovered in Continental jet

WASHINGTON (AP) — A routine repainting job led to the discovery of a foot-long crack in an aging Continental Airlines Boeing 737, five months after the government had ordered special inspections to look for such flaws.

A spokesman for Continental confirmed that the large crack as well as 29 smaller ones were discovered near a window of the first-class section after paint was stripped from the plane in preparation for repainting Oct. 5.

The cracks stretched about 30 inches along a joint where sections of metal skin overlap, according to investigators of the National Transportation Safety Board, whose metallurgists are examining the section.

NTSB chairman James Kolstad called it a "chilling discovery" in a speech Monday to an aviation group in Montreal and said it was "frightening" because the cracking was found "in the same general area" where an Aloha Airlines plane broke apart last April while in flight.

The NTSB has yet to issue a finding of the reason for the Aloha breakup, although it has been widely speculated that corrosion and a type of "cold bonding" used in older Boeing 737s played a part. A 20-foot section of the Aloha jet tore away during flight, sweeping a flight attendant to her death. The plane miraculously landed safely despite the gaping hole.

The Aloha and Continental planes both were built in 1969 using the cold bonding method. While the Aloha plane had 89,000 takeoffs and landings at the time of the incident, the Continental aircraft had only 55,446 such cycles, officials said.

The Aloha plane was No. 152 off the Boeing assembly line, while the Continental jet was No. 170.

Federal Aviation Administration officials cautioned against drawing too close a parallel between the Aloha incident and the cracks found on the Continental jet.

One FAA official, speaking on condition he not be further identified, said the cracks on the Continental jet were located lower on the aircraft, near a window, where repair work apparently had been performed by a previous owner of the plane.

The FAA last May issued an order that all older Boeing 737s — those with at least 30,000 cycles — undergo a special visual inspection for cracking. Planes with at least 55,000 cycles had to undergo "eddy current" tests using high-frequency electronic equipment along the top of the aircraft.

Ned Walker, a spokesman for Continental, said the aircraft in question had been visually inspected, as required by the FAA, last May and no cracks were found. He said the section where the foot-long crack was discovered Oct. 5 was not subject to the more sophisticated electronic "eddy current" test under the FAA directive.

An FAA spokesman, Bob Buckhorn, said the agency expects to issue a new directive soon to airlines broadening the inspection requirements, including increased use of eddy current testing. The new rule also will require that the planes be stripped of paint when inspected, he said.

Walker said after the cracking was discovered Oct. 5, Continental inspected all 42 of its older Boeing 737s within 72 hours and found no cracking problems with any of the planes.

"This appears to be an isolated incident," he said from Continental's headquarters in Houston.

The Boeing 737 is widely used for short-haul flights. According to the Boeing Co., 212 older Boeing 737s operated by 19 U.S. airlines in domestic service were subject to the special FAA inspection requirements last May.

A Boeing spokesman said the manufacturer was aware of the cracks discovered by Continental, but referred all questions to the airline.

Economic plan extended into new administration

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Labor and business leaders hailed President-elect Carlos Salinas de Gortari's extension of an inflation-fighting program for one month after he takes office.

Citing progress under the 10-month-old plan and other economic reforms, the U.S. Treasury and the U.S. Federal Reserve announced in Washington on Monday they were preparing as much as $3.5 billion in short-term "bridge" loans for Mexico.

Under the Economic Solidarity Pact, Mexico's business, farm and labor sectors and the government pledged last December to cooperate in holding down wages and prices.

The latest extension to Dec. 31, published in newspapers on Monday, said recent measures taken by the government were helping hold down inflation.

Your Birthday

Oct. 19, 1988

Your financial projection looks promising in the year ahead. By the same token, you could also be a bit more extravagant than usual. Don't let these inclinations offset your gains. LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Today, guard against tendencies to put too much emphasis on the wrong interest. Focus your attention on things that are productive and not on your pleasurable pastimes. Libra, treat yourself to a birthday gift. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions for the year ahead by mailing $1 to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Much can be achieved today, provided you can operate independently of others. If you get too involved, there's a chance you will not finish that which you start.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Usually you're an optimistic person, but today your projections could be too negative for your own good. Don't anticipate defeat where you should be courting success.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Today you may be a little too stingy with people who usually treat you generously. Ironically, you might be too open-handed with those less deserving of your largesse.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) You're not apt to have difficulty making quick decisions early in the day. However, as time ticks on, you might find yourself beset with doubts.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) If it's your duty to purvey important information to others today, make sure you do it accurately. To be on the safe side it might be best to work from notes.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) It's been noted we earn our enemies, but often don't deserve our friends. A well-meaning pal might unintentionally do something today that could create complications.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Be guarded today so that you don't appear too materialistic around associates. Keep in mind that a person without warmth is similar to a house without windows.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Your qualities of leadership will be evident today, and you could be rather commanding. However, you must not be too harsh with those who don't immediately snap to.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Where your work is concerned today, don't make change just for its own sake. Try to keep in mind the old adage, "If it ain't broke, don't fix it."

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) There are indications you might be a bit out of sync with your contemporaries today. If so, it will prove wise to dissent in silence rather than causing a row.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Pursuit of goals could occupy you so totally today that you may be unaware of the needs of others. You may operate in a manner co-workers will find offensive.
