Behind The Scenes in American Business

By John Craddock

(Editor's Note: The information contained in this weekly summary of happenings in the world of business and industry has been obtained from sources we consider reliable but is not guaranteed. Opinions and forecasts are based upon careful analysis but are subject to change without notice.)

NEW YORK, August 22—BUSINESS—Progress is still being made though slowly, in the nation's fight for economic recovery. Operations in America's huge steel mills last week rose to 40 per cent of capacity for the first time since November. An estimated 24,000 men were returned to work in the Ford River Rouge Plant. PWA predicted that work will begin at early dates on about $800,000,000 of federal construction activity. Plenty of jobs there. Inventories of automobile dealers, according to Secretary of Commerce Roper, are now at the lowest point in four years. AAA officials believe that loans are now mandatory on the current cotton crop inasmuch as the price on 10 designated spot markets has fallen to 8.20 cents a pound. Such loans would halt any further decline in the purchasing power of cotton growers. Looking ahead, experts of the Bureau of Agricultural Economics foresee a gradual improvement for business during the fall and winter months.

WASHINGTON—The new Civil Aeronautics Authority begins to function here this week. Airline executives are looking for this agency to help iron out some of the problems confronting this industry. Though the airlines have experienced an amazing traffic growth, they still serve only a relatively small percentage of the people who travel around the country every day. Last year, for example, while the airlines carried 1,100,000 passengers, the railroads transported 497,300,000. Much larger planes than the present 21-passenger ships in general use on major airlines are now available. The new Douglas DC-4 now undergoing test flights on the west coast can carry 40 passengers. It is the world's largest land transport plane having a wing spread of 135 feet. Much of its equipment too qualifies as the world's "largest". Its tires, for instance, built by the B. F. Goodrich Company, stand five feet five inches, weigh 360 pounds each and contain 45 miles of cord. If traffic can be boosted sufficiently to warrant the use of these larger planes, real operating economies probably could be affected by the airlines.

Trend for Better Poultry Breeding Stock Is Foreseen
Aims of poultrymen have probably changed more in the past 20 years than in all previous history since the fowl was domesticated, according to Geo. P. McCarthy, poultry husbandman of the Texas A. and M. Extension Service. Poultrymen are now concerned most with number and size of the eggs and the viability of birds, he said. More attention will be paid in the next three decades to extending the productive life of the hens beyond the first laying year which now ends the commercial usefulness of most birds. "Poultrymen will continue to consider breed standards, but more stress will be laid to the economic angles of poultry," McCarthy predicted. Research has discovered that certain characters are associated with the various breeds, the poultryman pointed out. The hen of the future, McCarthy believes, will not only have higher productive ability but will be able to continue production longer, in addition to being able to resist diseases more readily than the present stock. Eddie Obenhaus, 4-H club boy of Wilbarger county, recently produced 2,080 pounds of pork from one sow in 6 month's time.

Home Gardens Are Exempt From 1939 AAA Acreage Rule
The provision is of great importance to Texas and to the whole South," Miss Jennie Camp, home production planning specialist of the Texas A. and M. College Extension Service, said in commenting on the announcement that and used for home gardens may be excluded in calculating soil depleting crop acreages under the 1939 AAA program. "Farmers, farm wives, and home demonstration club members have been puzzled over rulings of the past that counted vegetables for some use as soil depleting crops. They know that their vegetables did not compete on the markets and that, from the soil conservation standpoint, their gardens were usually the best cared for, most fertile plots on the farm. "The new provision is evidence that not only the actual cash income, but the physical welfare and the diet of farm families is being considered." Miss Camp quoted figures from the annual report of the Extension Service which indicated that more than 13 million pints of vegetables and fruits were canned in 1937 under the supervision and leadership of Texas county home demonstration agents.

"At the same time there is much evidence that the diet of many Texas farm and ranch families is dangerously inadequate," she said. "According to the 1935 agricultural census 215,317 farm families had no gardens, while 83.5 percent reported no orchards. The average gross income on all Texas farms and ranches in 1937 was around $233 per capita. When all operating expenses are deducted from this amount, it leaves little for the purchase of food.

"In Texas, it has been estimated that 450,000 farm people have fourth rate, or very poor diets; nearly 100,000 have third rate diets, 345,000 second rate diets, and 570,000, or only a little more than one-third, have very good diets.

She pointed out that if a families could enjoy really good diets, the results would be of national import. "It is our hope that with the emphasis of the new AAA ruling, 1939 will mark a new high in home food production," Miss Camp said.

Central and South Texas Report Boll Worm Infestations

worms are doing extensive damage to cotton throughout central and south Texas and many are mistaking this insect for the pink boll worm and are reporting it to Texas A. and M. U., according to R. R. Reppert, entomologist of the Extension Service.

pink boll worm never reaches a diameter of more than 5-8 inches and is mistaken for the boll worm. The boll worm is larger. The common boll worm varies in color and some resemble a pinkish tinge. The size should enable farmers to make the distinction between the two species.

worms that have developed where they hollow out the leaves are not to be confused with the boll worm as they do not consume a great deal of the leaf or the stem. Before they have attained their full size, however, they actively on the leaves and in this stage applications of calcium arsenate are effective.

To destroy these younger worms and to prevent later damage to the bolls, Reppert advises that calcium arsenate be applied as a dust at the rate of 8 pounds per acre. This should be applied with a machine capable of directing a powerful blast of the poison downward over each row.

The first application should be followed with another 5 days later and in cases of heavy infestation a third should be made after the same interval.

County agricultural agents in sections north of the present infestation are advising farmers to watch for the appearance of the boll worm and to prepare to poison before damage is done.

'Lost World' of Venezuela Yields Nothing But Rats

NEW YORK—Discovery of a new "lost world" in the inaccessible heart of Venezuela was disclosed more fully today with publication of details in the current Geographical Review of initial reports from the Phelps-Venezuelan Expedition sponsored by the American Geographical Society of New York.

The find was more or less suspected to exist when the expedition left New York last spring for the purpose of climbing and exploring the major portion of Auyantepui, a high tableland on which it was suspected that living creatures had been isolated for a million years or more.

According to G. H. Tate, mammalogist of the American Museum of Natural History and author of the report, several thousand specimens of plants, birds and small animals were collected. These are now being classified, a task which will require at least a year to complete. Among the animals found were several varieties of anteater, rat, opossum and mice. Pending classification, the chief established differences in the unique species are color and quality of fur. Fundamental structural differences will not be determined until the study is complete.

Auyantepui covers an area of about 400 square miles. Its precipitous rocky walls rise up almost perpendicularly from the surrounding country and attain a height of several thousand feet in a series of terraces. It is located 50 miles inland from British Guiana and about 100 miles from famed Mount Roraima, discovered in 1841, which was said to have inspired A. Conan Doyle to write his imaginative book, "The Lost World" in which he described an isolated region where lived petrodactyls, dinosaurs and "missing link" ape-men.

First reports for the Auyantepui region were heard in 1921 from a prospector in Panama who claimed to have entered Venezuela from Brazil and to have discovered and ascended Auyantepui on the summit of which he found a river rich in gold.

A party was organized to visit the region and plans were made to overcome the cliff barriers by landing a plane on the summit. The plane was landed but the wheels sank in the water-logged, peaty soil. Members of the party managed to get out of the region on foot only after considerable hardship. They did not find the "river of gold". The Phelps expedition was concerned mainly with study of the geology and the plant and animal

Cooking With Electric Range Is Cool, Economical and Safe

A modern kitchen adds much to the comfort and pleasure of farm life.

By IRA MILLER
Paral Electrification Bureau

ON THE average farm, the woman of the house spends about one-third of her time in the kitchen performing tasks that relate directly or indirectly to the preparation and serving of food. Truly, therefore, the kitchen is the workshop of the farm home and, as such, every effort should be exerted to make it as easy and pleasant to work in as possible. Money will permit.

As cooking is the principal work done in the kitchen, and as it is done at least three times a day nearly every day in the year, the choice of the cooking unit is of great importance. At present, wood, coal and kerosene are the major cooking fuels used for farm cooking. Gas, either natural or manufactured, is available to but very few farms although, in recent times, "bottled" gas has been made available throughout the country.

Of the newer fuels for cooking, electricity is most commonly used on farms although, principally because only about 20 per cent of them have high-line service, the number of electric ranges in farm homes still is small when compared to those using wood or coal. However, with the steady growth of rural electrification, use of the electric range is rapidly expanding particularly as it has many definite advantages including speed, cleanliness, simplicity, safety, coolness and economy.

Although gas quite commonly is considered to be the fastest fuel for cooking, the modern electric range is just as rapid and even cleaner and more simple in operation. Moreover, it is absolutely safe. A kitchen equipped with an electric range is cooler and more healthful than one using combustible fuels—cooler, because the electric range is heavily insulated to conserve heat; more healthful because electricity consumes no oxygen and gives off no fumes.

As the heat is automatically and accurately controlled, cooking with an electric range requires less attention and eliminates guess work. And as electricity is just another source of heat, there is no need of learning to cook again how to cook with a gas range.

When all factors—including savings in time and labor—are considered, the cost of cooking with electricity is little if any higher than when using other fuels. In some sections it is lower. The average power consumption of an electric range for doing all cooking is about 30 kw.-hr. per person per month in families of four to seven members. Naturally, the consumption per person will be more for smaller families and less for larger ones. But, at the three-cent rate, the cost to prepare all food for an average family will be only one cent per person per meal.

life of the region but made an effort to determine the truth or falsity of the report. However, the difficulty of transporting food into Auyantepui prevented the party from exploring the northwest sector where the gold was said to be.

Three Widely Read New Books Are Added To Library

Three widely read books have been recently added to the Magazine Club Library. These books are "The Yearling" by Marjorie K. Rawlings, "Free Land" by Rose Wilder Lane and "Through The Back Door of the Circus" with George Brinton Beal.

"The Yearling" continues to head the list of best sellers. It is a refreshing story of a youth, Jody, and his adventures in life on a little farm in Florida. His love for his little den, Flag, the yearling, pervades the whole story and with the death of this playmate Jody reaches manhood. It is a book that children as well as adults will enjoy reading.

"Free Land" as history relates, was the designation of a policy inaugurated by the United States government in 1862 and extending almost to the present, whereby the settler of western plains paid $14.00 to file claim to a quarter section to which he gained title after five year's residence and cultivation. Or, as the more cynical said, "A man bet Uncle Sam that he could live on the land that long without starving plumb to death." Of this system, which offered refuge to the poor man and a source of investment to the more prosperous, Rose Wilder had as a child had knowledge and her disillusionment colors this account of homesteading years of an agreeable young couple who came to Dakota territory in the eighties.

It is a story of adventure and of high courage. Many settlers abandoned their claims and some sang like one industrious family "We don't live here, we only stay, 'cause we're too poor to get away."

In "Through The Back Door of the Circus" you are taken on a personally conducted tour of "The Greatest Show on Earth" and you get the fascinating "inside story" of the world of saw dust and spangles in an informal, first hand fashion. You see the circus as circus folks know and live it. You find the answer to a thousand questions the circus has awakened in your mind.

What is the most dangerous animal? Who has the most dangerous job? What makes the triple somersault the most dangerous of all acrobatic feats? Why do elephants hold each other by the tail as they march?

The author, George Brinton Zeal who is an authority on the circus, has himself lived the hazardous life of the circus. His collection of circus books and programs, photographs, etc., is to become secondary, the permanent property of the world famous theatre collection at Harvard University, where it will preserve for future ages the glorious story of the circus.

Health-Wrecking Functional PAINS

Severe functional pains of menstruation, cramping spells and jangled nerves soon rob a woman of her natural, youthful freshness. PAIN lines in a woman's face too often grow into AGE lines!

Thousands of women have found it helpful to take Cardul. They say it seemed to ease their pains, and they noticed an increase in their appetites and finally a strengthened resistance to the discomfort of monthly periods.

Try Cardul. Of course if it doesn't help you, see your doctor.

Sincerely,
Olen Dotson

Good Credit Like Good Health

Men and women do not appreciate it until they have lost it.

You never estimate the value and convenience of credit privileges you are able to obtain? Do you ever consider the satisfaction and pleasure in shopping when you say to the sales person "Charge that to my account" and the ticket is promptly and the merchandise delivered to credit and command rests largely on one thing. Not the position you hold, the property you own, the money you have in the bank, but the prompt payment of your bills. You should give prompt attention to bills you owe when statements are received. Do not assume it is satisfactory to permit your bills to go unpaid. Delay is a reflection on your ability to pay your bills when due.

"The Place for Everything"

100 AND 1 REASONS

Why You Should Do

Your Trading At Home!

Many Come to Mind Easily, While the Others Are Ever Present!

What Is It You Help Buy for Your Community When You Shop At Home?

Not only do you help sustain your own community and build churches, schools and civic improvements, but you are assuring yourself of business places that . . . WILL BE IN A POSITION TO HELP YOU AND WILL HELP YOU, WHEN AVERSE TIMES COMES!

Sometimes it may be possible that you can buy elsewhere some merchandise at lower prices than is asked by your home merchant, but this cannot be the case which happens frequently. Yet, granting that you need to save those few cents, you are building other towns, other merchants, and thereby depriving your own community of the financial support that it needs in the way of taxes, financial aid for churches and schools—and . . .

EVERY DOLLAR THAT IS SPENT IN YOUR OWN COMMUNITY WILL REMAIN THERE WITH THE EXCEPTION OF A FEW CENTS WHICH GO TO WHOLESALE HOUSES TO BUY

MORE MERCHANDISE FOR YOU AT REASONABLE PRICES.

Think of the condition your schools, your churches, your community projects would fall into if your home town business men were not present, nor had the financial means to help. It is an almost certain fact that the . . .

AWAY-FROM-HOME FIRMS THAT ARE EVER READY TO TAKE YOUR MONEY WOULD NOT COME TO YOUR ASSISTANCE!

Give your hometown business man the opportunity of serving you. Remember all that he is called upon to do, is asked to donate in order to get and hold your business . . .

Make up your mind NOW, TODAY, to start buying at home and see if your community doesn't grow, become greater! A few pennies more remaining at home may mean many dollars to you later!
