The directors of the fair plant were outlined by a committee who proposed the plan for the coming Monday night. The auditorium would be a WPA project, if pre-arranged, the directors of five directors, including H. Persons, R. C. Lowe, Roberts, John A. Couch, and Ralph Duncan, were instructed to study this morning to engineer to perfect an auditorium for the proposed WPA project.

EIGHT COMMON SCHOOLS SEEK TERM CONTRACT

Make Application for Students To Attend Term in Larger Districts

Eight common school districts of Haskell county have made application for permission to contract teaching of enrolled pupils in nearby Independent School District during the 1937-38 school term. The applications, filed with County Superintendent Matt Graham, must be approved by county school officials and the State Department of Education, and are effective for only one school term.

If approved, students in the smaller districts would have the benefit of a full nine-month school term instead of being limited to the eight-month term usual in the smaller districts. Schools asking approval of contracts are:

- Cobb, with 24 scholastics, with Lueders, Shackelford county.
 - Idella, 28 scholastics, with Rochester.
 - Lone Star, 84 scholastics, with Weiner.
 - Gilliam, 47 scholastics, with Haskell.
 - Ferris Ranch, 12 scholastics, with Weiner.
 - Marcy, 38 scholastics, with Rochester.
 - Tanner Paint, 60 scholastics, with Weiner.
 - Pleasant View, 36 scholastics, with Weiner.
- Transportation would be provided for the students by the county-wide state-aid law.

O. L. Darden Named Manager of Local Gin

O. L. (Jim) Darden has been employed as manager of the Harrison-Gilstrap Gin in this city for the 1937 season, according to an announcement made today by Mrs. J. A. Gilstrap.

Mr. Darden, a former county Commissioner is an experienced ginner and cotton classifier having been manager of two gins in Sargent for several years, and manager of the Harrison Gin in Rule during the 1936 ginning season.

He has already entered upon his duties, and stated that work of repairing and placing the gin machinery in readiness for the coming season would be started in the near future.

The Harrison-Gilstrap Gin is one of the most modern in this section, and has enjoyed a substantial patronage since its establishment a number of years ago.

Constable Warns Against Dumping Garbage On Roads

Constable J. H. Ivey reports that several complaints have been made to him recently by property owners near the city limits protesting the dumping of garbage and other trash, including dead animals, along public roads and highways.

The officer warns that the practice is forbidden by both county and state laws, and a heavy penalty is provided against offenders.

Formal complaints will be filed in the future, he added, against anyone persisting in the practice.

13-YEAR-OLD GIRL NAMES FATHER IN SERIOUS CHARGES

Henry Miller, a 55-year-old Haskell county farmer, is in the county jail unable to perfect three bonds in the total amount of $11,000, set Tuesday when he was arraigned before Justice of the Peace Bruce T. Clift to face two complaints charging a statutory offense, and a third complaint of driving an automobile while intoxicated.

The thirteen-year-old daughter of the defendant signed two complaints charging immoral conduct on the part of her father, while the drunk driving charge was filed by the sheriff's department.

Investigation of the case began Sunday, when Miller was arrested on a drunkenness charge, to which he entered a plea of guilty. On Monday his daughter told officers that her father had threatened her with a knife, and that she was fearful of staying alone at their home with him. Miller was re-arrested, and a subsequent investigation conducted by members of the sheriff's force, county and district attorneys and a Haskell woman who is identified with welfare work resulted in the more serious charges being preferred against the parent, with his daughter as complaining witness.

Miller denied the charges, but was unable to perfect bonds set by any of the cases in which he was charged. Bonds are returnable at the next session of the Grand Jury, which will convene Sept. 26th.

The young girl told officers that her mother died when she was four years of age, and that she had been living alone with her father for the past nine years. His abuse of her began several years ago, she told officers.

WPA GRANT FOR HOSPITAL URGED AT WASHINGTON

Application for a $45,000 WPA grant to supplement a $60,000 bond issue for construction of a County Hospital in this city was placed before high officials of the Works Progress Administration in Washington this week.

Dr. J. C. Davis, state representative, and Courtney Hunt of this city arrived in Washington Monday, and on Tuesday they were accompanied by Representative George Mahon of Colorado for a hearing before Col. Horatio B. Hackett, assistant WPA administrator, in behalf of approval for the application.

Mr. Hunt and Dr. Davis were given the assurance of Representative Mahon that he would actively support an early approval for the hospital grant, and the support of Senators Morris Sheppard and Tom Connally has also been enlisted by the Haskell men in behalf of their mission.

Issuance of the $60,000 bond issue recently voted has been deferred by the Commissioners Court, pending definite action on the $45,000 WPA grant, but a Lubbock architect has already prepared plans and specifications for the county institution, which take into consideration the amount available from the bond issue alone and the supplementary grant from the government agency.

TEXAS FARMERS GET BIG SHARE OF AAA FUNDS

$37,000,000 Paid Last Year in Agricultural Program

Out of the $400,000,000 in conservation payments made to the 4,000,000 farmers who participated in the 1936 agricultural conservation program, Texas farmers that participated received nearly $37,000,000 for carrying out soil building practices and diverting their land from soil depleting to soil conserving crops.

In a breakdown of payments by States and regions issued by the Agricultural Adjustment Administration, total disbursements to Texas as were shown to be $38,242,684 divided as follows:

Payments to June 30, 1937 (including county expenses) $36,805,901. Unpaid applications June 30, 1937, $189,369. Total paid and to be paid $36,995,270. State office expenses $1,020,018. State and county expenses, prior to July 1, 1936, $227,395. Total Texas $38,242,684.

Payments to farmers in all parts of the country and county, State and national administrative costs prior to July 1, 1937, totaled about $400,000,000. This total will leave available for return to the Treasury about $40,000,000 of the $440,000,000 direct appropriation made for the program, exclusive of funds appropriated under the supplemental appropriations made available for the conservation program.

Out of $999,731,104.94 of expenditures under the 1936 program, payments to farmers, including county expenses amount to $379,814,149 or about 95 per cent of the total. As of June 30, 1937, there were only $14,587,802 of unpaid application under the program and $365,226,347 had been actually paid to farmers. Nearly one half of the June 30 unpaid obligations has been paid to date and most of the remainder will be paid before the end of August. These obligations for the most part are applications for payments in which errors were found as they were originally submitted.

Payments were made to farmers for carrying out soil building practices on approximately $53,000,000 acres of land, and for diverting about 31,000,000 acres from soil depleting to soil conserving and erosion preventing crops. Of this diversion, it is estimated that 20,367,150 acres were diverted from the general soil depleting base of co-operating farmers; 9,997,300 acres diverted from the special cotton base; 383,640 acres diverted from the special tobacco base; and 162,900 acres from the special peanut base.

Rates of practice payments were based on costs of practices and materials, and rates of diversion payments varied according to productivity of farm land. About two thirds of the total crop land of the country was covered by the program.

APPLICATIONS FOR SCHOOL TRANSFERS STUDIED BY BOARD

Number Applications Show Slight Increase With 645 Filed

Members of the County School Board met in the office of County Superintendent Matt Graham Tuesday and Wednesday for the purpose of discussing with trustees of the various school districts the approval or rejection of student transfers from one district into another.

Application of 45 transfers have been filed with the County Superintendent, a slight increase over the number filed last year, it was reported.

Accessibility of school, grades taught, teaching corps, etc., are considered by school officials in compiling the list of transfers, on which is based the per capita aid from the state.

July 31st was the last date for filing application for transfer of students.

Bus routes and schedules for all schools of the county were also outlined and approved by the County Board in their meeting Tuesday. The board is composed of John A. Couch, J. E. Mansell, R. L. Medford, P. C. Patterson, and E. Griffith, County Superintendent Graham is secretary and ex-officio member.

600,000 Gallons Water Consumed Daily In Haskell

Water consumption in this city has reached an all-time high during the past few days of extremely high temperatures, according to Rogers Gilstrap, City Water Superintendent.

Average daily consumption during the first three days of the week has ranged around the 600,000 gallon mark, he estimated. All pumps in the several city water wells are kept running constantly throughout the day in order to supply this amount of water.

Despite the peak consumption, there is no danger of any water shortage, Mr. Gilstrap added, as the water level in the wells builds up to normal during the night when water consumption is lightest.

Buildings and Grounds Being Placed In Readiness for School Term

Dates for the opening of the 1937-38 term of Haskell public schools has been tentatively set for Monday, Sept. 6th and work of installing equipment in the new High School building, beautifying grounds around buildings and other preparations for the school term are going forward at a rapid rate.

New High School Building Ready

High school students will occupy classrooms in the new High school building completed during the summer. Eleven classrooms, fitted with modern equipment including all new desks, tables and chairs await the first enrollment of pupils.

A modern science and laboratory room, completely equipped Domestic Science hall, are ready for the first assembly of High School students. Conveniently arranged along the hallways in the building are one hundred and sixty-five individual steel lockers for use of the students.

A conference room for teachers, or a "private office" for members of the faculty has also been provided in the building, to fill a long-felt need. Teachers may retire to this room for conferences or privacy in outlining school schedules, where heretofore this work was necessarily done in the classrooms.

One large room in the center of the building has been utilized as a storage room for textbooks, and adjoins the principal's and superintendent's office. Entire floor space of the building has been efficiently utilized, and all classrooms have been arranged to afford the best possible natural lighting. New type fixtures have been installed to afford proper lighting on dark or cloudy days.

Six modern gas ranges have already been installed in the domestic science room, where fixtures are also at hand for the use of electric ranges and kitchen equipment. Work tables, sinks and cabinets have been installed in this room for the convenience of students.

Banks and Miss Alice Maude Latham, new members of the faculty due to the contracting of the Gilliam school for the coming term, will occupy posts in the ward schools, and Mrs. C. M. jected. Happily, revenues from other sources were greater than expected, and a per capita of $19.00 was possible.

But this year, for some mysterious reason, the Board of Education met first, and presumed that we would continue the 20 cent tax, regardless of need. Why they so presumed is as deep a mystery as why they met before they possibly could know what the revenues would be—for they couldn't know until after the tax board met. With the 20 per cent tax rate, they could make a per capita apportionment of $22, or expressed another way, an increase of $4,680,000 over last year.

I firmly believe that certain people thought they saw a way to tie the hands of the Tax Board and force Mr. Sheppard and me to yield to political expediency at the expense of the taxpayers—who certainly ought to be entitled to some consideration. Everybody knows how burdensome real estate taxes have become.

Right here I want to say George Sheppard showed unusual courage. Most everybody knew how I felt on the matter; so they concentrated on him and he was deluged with telegrams, letters and personal visits to play politics. He is a fine public official, and I suggest if you approve his course, you drop him a note. He will appreciate it.

Mr. Sheppard and I saw eye to eye on this matter; we believe that the law makes it mandatory on us to see that the schools get $17.50 per capita. We did that and they're going to get $20; and at the same time, the taxpayers are going to get a tax reduction.

As a final citation of the record, concerning the attitude of public school teachers: In February of this year, one of the heads of the Teachers Association told a legislative committee that if they could "hold the $19 and maybe get $1 more they would be tickled to death." By that statement, the teachers have reason today to be plenty happy.

The Government of Mexico has invited Mrs. Allred and me to visit that country. We are leaving Sunday, August 1, by train, and next week I hope to have something interesting to tell you about our neighbors. This will be our first real vacation and we are looking forward to a lot of sightseeing.

Cigarette Paper 'Smokes Out' Flaws

Ordinary cigarette paper plays an unexpected role in protecting the clothing of driver and passengers of modern automobiles.

No longer do motorists suffer the annoyance of having favorite garments stained by colored leather upholstery, even after the car has been standing for hours in the sun. Cigarette papers did the trick, in the Plymouth test laboratory.

Small sheets familiar to anyone who has ever "rolled his own" are now put to daily use in the standard test for color-fastness of leather samples submitted to Plymouth's engineers.

Cigarette paper is clipped to the sample when it is placed in an electric oven and baked at 175 degrees. The highly absorbent paper instantly shows up any tendency of the leather to "ooze" sub-surface oil at high temperature. This is what brings out the pigments on dyes that would discolor the clothing of passengers. The paper detects the faintest trace, even when too slight to catch with the human eye.

But even if the sample passes this test with flying colors—or rather, with colors that won't fly—it still must have severer tests to win approval for Plymouth use. It's sent to the "rack" to prove its tensile strength and stretch, where it must survive a direct pulling force of 150 lbs. without tearing.

Broadcloth and mohair are tested on the same machine—even individual threads, which have their own Plymouth standard requirement of 6 lbs. per strand to meet.

The whole test laboratory is a "chamber of horrors" for scientific torture of materials that go into 4,000 different parts of a Plymouth car. Rigid standards of strength and endurance are constantly being made more severe, which explains the car's exceptional ruggedness and ability to stand up under punishment.

OPPOSES HIS PAROLE

Boston.—Contending that he could "make more money in prison than outside", Joseph Trebo-skit, 46, opposed a parole which the State Board of Parole wanted to give him. He will remain in prison to serve the remaining two of his four year sentence and to continue as a carpenter specializing in making inlaid furniture.

Broiling Favored For Summer Day

For the cook's comfort and also as a tempter for jaded appetites, a large share of cool cookery is in order on hot days. Cool cookery includes sandwiches, salads, cold meat loaves, ready-to-serve meats, and dessert combinations which need not be cooked.

But cool cookery is not desirable to the exclusion of all warm cookery, even on the hottest days, and then it is that hot dishes which require only a little effort and short-time cookery are in demand. Meats which are cooked by broiling or panbroiling are cooked quickly, and because they are so well liked are real tempters for heat-dulled appetites. Porterhouse T-bone or club steaks, lamb rib, loin or shoulder chops, or ham slices are the choice cuts for broiling or panbroiling. Ground meat, too, may be broiled or panbroiled most satisfactorily. Cubes of tender meat, threaded onto skewers and broiled, also make a splendid center for the summer meal.

Meats for broiling are best if cut thick, at least one inch, because then the outside can be nicely browned while the inside is still tender and juicy.

This Is How to Broil

For broiling, the oven is thoroughly pre-heated. Then, with the regulator turned "high" the meat is placed on the broiler rack, far enough from the flame or element that by the time the meat is nicely browned on the top, it will be half done. This usually means a distance of about three inches. If the distance must be less, then reduce the temperature accordingly. When one side is done, season with salt and pepper, turn, and allow to finish cooking on the second side.

Broiling carried on in this manner requires very little attention. A side-glance now and then tells you when it is time to turn the steaks or chops.

Panbroiling needs a little more attention, perhaps, but even with this method of cooking the temperature need not be so high that the meat needs constant watching. Heat the skillet sizzling hot in the beginning and allow the meat to brown on both sides, then reduce the temperature and allow it to cook more slowly until done. The fat should be poured off from time to time as it accumulates, so that the steak or chops will broil, not fry.

WERE THEY CHAGRINED?

Marlinton, W. Va.—While out bear hunting, two hunters, Policeman Bob Black and Deputy Sheriff Cecil Blumfield, spied two bear cubs playing in a hole. Deciding to take them home as pets for their children, the men dropped their rifles and advanced to the hole. To their consternation, an old bear lumbered over a hill and charged. The hunters sprinted for a tree and were held captive by the bear for more than an hour.

Ruth Bible Class

The Ruth Bible Class met in the home of Mrs. Floyd Self Thursday July 29, for their business and social meeting.

Program opened by song "Lord Send a Revival" followed by prayer.

Mrs. B. M. Whiteaker gave a lovely devotional on the scripture about Mary, Martha and Lazarus using the title "The Master is Come and Calletth For Thee."

She told us our time and talents belonged to God and should be used for Him.

Everyone joined in the song "Jesus Calls Us" followed by prayer by Mrs. R. P. Glenn.

After some scriptures were read a general discussion was held on several questions of the Bible. Followed by sentence prayer for our revival.

After the business meeting delightful refreshments were served to: Mesdames Charles E. Smith, Woodley Davis, F. N. Alvis, R. P. Glenn, Jack Crutcher, Trav Everett, Clyde Cearley, Frank Kennedy, J. E. Women and Girls Care For Farm Poultry Flocks

Farm poultry flocks are receiving increased care and attention from home demonstration club women and 4-H club girls in Northwest Texas, reports from county home demonstration agent in that region indicate.

"I began selling infertile eggs during May and I receive from two to four cents more per dozen for them than for those which are not infertile," says Mary Stewart, Lynn county 4-H club girl. "I gather and stamp the eggs in the late afternoon and place them in a crate and store them in a cool place. During one month I sold 98 dozen eggs and used more than 10 dozen at home."

"I have been very successful with my chickens and I think it is due to sanitary conditions and buying healthy chicks to begin with," declares Mary Alice Norman of the same county. "I bought a new metal waterer for my 75 white Wyandotte chickens. I wash it every day and refill it sometimes as many as three times a day. The feeders are kept filled during the day and the house is cleaned once each week."

Enough eggs have been sold this year by Mary Frazier of Hockley county to pay for 237 baby chicks, feed, and $17 spent for a brooder house. Mary now has 197 chickens from which she expects to make a good profit. Since Mary began her poultry work in the 4-H club, she has had the responsibility of the entire farm flock.

Cull chickens from her farm flock were utilized by Mrs. J. D. Roberts, Lubbock county, in canning 32 pints of chicken for family use. The chicken is served as sliced chicken, creamed chicken, chicken salad, or in sandwiches.

New Comet May Be Seen at Best On August 8-10

The new comet discovered July 4 by the Swiss astronomer named Finlay may be seen at its best Aug. 8-10, when it will reach maximum brilliance according to astronomers.

They say that the comet changes its position from night to night, and that the best time to look for it is immediately after dark.

To aid amateur astronomers who wish to view the comet, one amateur star-gazer gave these directions: "At the present the comet is a relatively faint naked-eye object looking like a hazy star. It is somewhat below and to the left of the North Star. It does not show a tail to the naked eye now, but with binoculars and from a good location where the sky is dark a very faint tail about one degree long is visible. The tail points up and to the right; a comet tail always points away from the sun."

"Do not expect too bright an object and try, if possible, to see it from a good location—that is, some place where smoke and lights do not interfere."

On Aug. 8 or 10 the comet may show a short tail visible to the unaided eye for those who watch it closely. At that time it will pass directly between the two middle stars in the handle of the Big Dipper. The comet then will be about as bright as the star at the point where the Dipper is joined to its handle.

Timberlake Completely Modernized

Fixtures Are Installed Throughout Large Building

A department store, as can be found in many cities of this section, its doors to the people and trade territory Saturday at 8 o'clock when the Perkins-Timberlake store on the west side of the city will be formally opened.

The merchandising establishment in Haskell for the past year and enlarged quarters were contracted for in the spring, when they secured a long-term lease on the building on the west side of the city. The entire front and in the large building.

The floor space provided in location has been utilized to the most modern of fixtures throughout the building for both convenience and in enhancing the appearance of the establishment. The new store was contracted for in the spring, when they secured a long-term lease on the building on the west side of the city. The entire front and in the large building.

Guy C. Collins, manager of the Perkins-Timberlake store here for the past two and one-half years, came to Haskell from Decatur, where he was first identified with the company. Mr. Collins has taken an active interest in civic and business affairs since coming to Haskell.

Mrs. Leone Pearsey, in charge of the Piece Goods department of Perkins-Timberlake, has been an employee of the store since it was first opened here, and has been instrumental in making this one of the most successful departments of the store.

To George Keller is due a large share of the credit for the popularity of the Men's Department in P-T's store. Mr. Keller, identified with the Perkins-Timberlake organization for the past six years, came to Haskell several years ago from the Wichita Falls store.

One of the most responsible positions in the Perkins-Timberlake store is efficiently filled by Miss Martha Head in the capacity of cashier and bookkeeper, a place she has held since finishing High School last year.

Miss Frances Walling since her graduation from Haskell High School two years ago, has been a valuable asset to the ladies ready-to-wear department in the Perkins-Timberlake store, and has gained a wide clientele of customers.

Patrons of Perkins-Timberlake store welcome the helpful suggestions of Mrs. H. R. Jones in the ready-to-wear department, where she is also in charge of alterations. Although with the store during only the past year, she has had years of experience in Haskell's leading dry goods stores.

W. B. (Red) Harrison, assistant in the Men's Wear department, began work with Perkins-Timberlake last year, and became a full-fledged employee when he finished Haskell High School this year, and has made a popular and efficient clerk in this department.

Good Market In Prospect For Cattle

"Forecasting the future cattle market is never an easy chore," said James Reid in an interview. Mr. Reid is regarded as an authority on live stock conditions, as he is Kansas City manager of the Kansas City office of John Clay & Co., livestock commission merchants with offices at all the principal markets, and a man who during his many years of experience has sold around a million and a half head of cattle. "But it must be admitted," continued Mr. Reid, "that the men who have cattle to sell this year are in an enviable position."

"Remember Mother Nature has been hard at work the past few years. As far as beef cattle are concerned, the supply of corn fed cattle through the eastern States is nearly exhausted. Feed got so high that the men who were feeding there did not refill their lots. The Northwestern range States, which normally furnish thousands of grass beef cattle for the Chicago and other northern markets, have been in the throes of drought in recent years, with the result that supplies from that section will be very small. Where, then, can killers turn for supplies except in the Middle West and Southwest? I confess I do not know."

"Much the same conditions apply to stocker and feeder cattle. Eastern States do not raise enough of these classes to meet their needs especially when feed conditions are good like they are at present, and it looks like there will be something of a scramble to secure stocker and feeder cattle this fall."

"Yes," repeats Reid, "the cattlemen in the Middle West and Southwest seems to be in a position that comes only too seldom in a lifetime to secure fine prices for his stock. He is about the only one who has the supply, and unless something not now in sight interferes with demand good prices seem a certainty."

Stabilization of 15-Cent Cotton Will Be Sought

A stabilized price of not less than 15 cents per pound for cotton will be asked of President Roosevelt and congress following a resolution passed Monday at a meeting of Texas planters in Dallas.

J. E. McDonald, commissioner of agriculture, was in charge of the meeting and was one of the principal speakers. He said the estimated cotton yield this year will be 15,000,000 bales and that the price now is less than 11 cents.

Check Forging On An Increase In The Nation

Counterfeiting and smuggling are on the decline, the Treasury officials at Washington have announced, but check forging is increasing.

Counterfeit notes turned over to the Secret Service by "innocent takers" totaled only $487,643 during the fiscal year ended July 31. This was one-third under the previous year's total.

Arrests for making or passing counterfeit notes or coins totaled 1,247 last year, a decrease of 339. Arrests for check forgeries, however, increased from 879 in 1935-36 to 1,215 last year.

Melon-Peach Festival At De Leon Opens

With a crowd of more than 5,000 already on hand, De Leon's tenth annual fair and melon-peach festival started with parade Wednesday morning.

It will end Saturday with free watermelon for everybody. Twelve hundred and seventy-five high quality melons were on ice Wednesday, being chilled for the "slicing."

Mayor F. T. Daniell led the parade in which melons and peaches were featured.

Judging of watermelons and peaches, some of the former weighing up to 85 pounds and the latter three-fourth of a pound each was to occupy the entire afternoon.

Wednesday night when attendance is expected to be increased to 10,000, Miss Kathleen Elaise Scott will be crowned festival queen in a colorful ceremony, to be followed by the queen's ball.

The coronation will be directed by Miss Susan Frances Schmidt, a 1936 graduate of Texas Wesleyan College, Fort Worth.

"Watermelon Calvalcade," authored by Mrs. Brown Shaver and tracing the history of the luscious fruit from its supposed origin in Persia and Egypt, will be presented with 100 characters.

YANKEE TRAINING

(From The Pittsburgh Press)

Secretary of State Cordell Hull may not win the Nobel Prize for the greatest single contribution in the year toward world peace, but we know of no greater going project in war prevention than his patient rebuilding of our shattered trade routes under the New Deal's Reciprocal Trade Act.

On June 12 this act will have been in force three years. Today a virtual network of new trade routes reaches out over the globe. Signed and in effect are 15 reciprocal treaties. Two more—with Ecuador and Czechoslovakia—are under study. Negotiations have been begun with 12 other countries. When the Imperial Conference in London is concluded negotiations will be started that may result in the most important agreement of all that with Great Britain. By the time the act expires three years hence we may have reciprocal agreements with all of our important neighbors and customers.

When Secretary Hull asked Congress for this act in 1934, America's foreign trade had sunk to one-third of its 1929 level. The depression plus the blight of Grundyism had all but isolated us commercially. Our economy, geared to the dynamic needs of expanding commerce, was choked with unsold goods. Many of the 2,000,000 workmen normally employed in producing export goods were jobless.

Now our trade is recovering. It cannot be argued that its recovery was due only to world convalescence. For the sale of our goods to nations with which we have reciprocal agreements expanded 14 per cent in 1936 over 1935, compared with a 4 per cent gain in exports to non-agreement countries. Similarly, the value of goods imported from trade-agreement countries mounted 22 per cent in 1936, compared with a 16 per cent rise in other imports.

Fundamental to the new plan is an axiom that Grundyism refused to learn—that foreign trade is a two-way street. In these treaties, we make tariff concessions on imports in exchange for tariff concessions for things we want to sell. The scheme not only opens trade between ourselves and the treaty countries. In all the pacts but one, the American-Cuban one, there is a most-favored-nation clause that extends the concessions to other nations.

There's nothing really in all this. It is just a return to the old give-and-take barter that built America in the days of the Yankee clipper ships and their swapping masters. It works because it's plain common sense.

Trade, being a friendly and civilizing business, is just the opposite of war. Indeed high tariffs, embargoes and other barriers are only economic phases of international war. And foreign trade being a substitute for war, we come back to the point that our quiet but dogged Mr. Hull is one of the world's chief peace-makers.

ALONG THE ROAD BACK

Hawk-eyed business observers, watching the signs of the times, have found more proof that the nation is en route to recovery in the report that variety store sales of June, 1937, reached a new high level for the depression period.

Variety stores include those which sell goods at from five cents to a dollar an item. Sales of 11 leading chains showed an average gain of 2.8 per cent over June, 1936, when soldiers' bonus spending reached its peak.

The barometers for prosperity usually are sought in heavy industries and transportation because they reflect manufacturers' confidence in future buying. But when people start putting spare pennies, nickels and dimes into purchases instead of the sideboard sugar bowl, that's almost a sure sign that "depression" is no longer the fearful word it used to be.

DRIVERS' NEMESIS

A story out of New York City seems to carry a moral of some kind for thoughtless drivers. As the traffic light turned on a busy corner, a frail old woman started to cross the street with a crowd. A big car brusquely nosed its way around the corner. While other scattered out of the way, the old woman stood still, seemingly incapable of movement. Just as the car seemed about to hit her, a silk-hatted man, with a cane, limped quickly to her side and swung her out of harm's way. At the same moment there was a sharp report, and the tire of the car went flat. Talking to a nearby policeman a few minutes later, a reporter learned that a similar incident had been happening nearly every morning, and that the silk-hatted man figured in each of them. Following up the story, the reporter learned that the man was a former diplomat, whose foot had been crushed by an automobile; and that it was not a cane he carried, but a sword stick. The forgotten pedestrian, who has to leap out of the way of impetuous drivers, should be glad to know he has an avenger.

CENSOR'S CHOICE

That unerring sixth sense which enable self-appointed censors to make asses of themselves seems to have operated once more. The New York Society for the Suppression of Vice has descended, now, on James T. Farrell's novel, "A World I Never Made," and is seeking to have it banned as an obscene book. Now Mr. Farrell's novel may be a great book and it may not. The critics can't seem to agree. But the one thing absolutely certain is that it is an intensely serious book, with no more aphoristic effect than the annual report of a state game commission. It treats of ugly things and it speaks frankly about them; but of leering, self-conscious suggestiveness it has not the remotest trace. Why, oh why—with the market flooded with cheap, suggestive, slyly salacious books written with no other aim than to tickle the senses—must the self-chosen guardians of our morals ignore them and lay their paws on a book which is indisputably honest, intelligent, and sincere?

ITALY AS A 'SHUT-IN'

With a decree limiting newspapers to six pages Italy has reached another shining milestone in its official campaign for self-sufficiency. In the United States, where people are quick to deflate such boogies, the decree would be a farce.

But it is stimulating to consider how such a campaign might work out here. Publishers now would be canceling their big orders for Canadian newsprint. Readers' favorite features would be squeezed out of the six-page editions. Schoolroom paper would shooting might be classed as treason.

Going on to other logical conclusions, self-sufficiency might bring decrees to bar honeymooners from looking across at the Canadian side of Niagara Falls, and vacationers would have to keep naturalization papers ready for the big fish they caught outside the national boundaries.

Eventually, the public's common sense would call for a revolt. And unless the Italian race has been grossly misjudged it, too, is going to tired, some day of living like a hermit.

TIME OUT FOR RULES

Occasionally the parliamentary rules regarding state and national lawmakers call for actions which baffle the non-political observer. Stopping the clock to conform with a set adjournment time is the commonest example. Ohio demonstrate another on a recent holiday when two members of the Legislature convened in order to comply with constitutional provisions for a session.

Government students could offer any number of plausible reasons for this. The intention, of course, is to provide a safety check. Without strict rules, the theory goes, a legislative body might run wild over custom and constitutional authority.

There is no denying that the principle is sound. But, like any other good thing, it can be carried too far. Rules which are meticulously observed merely as a concession to "form" could very nicely be trimmed out. Then the legislators would have more time for really serious business.

Floyd Gibbons' ADVENTURERS' CLUB

HEADLINES FROM THE LIVES OF PEOPLE LIKE YOURSELF!

"Play, Fiddle, Play"

By FLOYD GIBBONS
Famous Headline Hunter

HELLO everybody: Strike up the band, here comes a bandsman—Frank Zell of Chicago.

You know, they say that Nero fiddled while Rome was burning—but Frank Zell went him one better. Frank kept a whole doggone orchestra going while—but wait a minute. Let's not spoil the story.

This yarn takes us back to the boom year of 1929, when everybody was throwing parties. At that time Frank was a student at the University of Illinois, and he had organized a dance band composed of boys from the university. The Army-Illinois football game was played at Champaign that year and a prominent citizen of the town had issued invitations to a flock of his friends to attend a ball which was to be held in his home after the game.

Frank was engaged to furnish the music for the party. Dinner was served after the game, and a reception followed that, so the dancing didn't get started until around half past ten. A stage-like platform had been set up for the orchestra in the big ballroom on the third floor and the boys played for about half an hour.

First They Thought It Was a Joke.

And then, all of a sudden, there came sounds of shooting on the lower floors!

The crackle of gunfire in the midst of a party was strange enough, but stranger still, few of the guests paid any attention to it. The host was a man known for a certain flair for doing the unexpected to lend zest to his parties.

If this were just another stunt to give the assembled folks a thrill—well—no one wanted to be fooled by it. The orchestra played, and the dance went on. It went on for two or three minutes.

Then, suddenly, four masked men carrying pistols and shotguns burst into the ballroom.

One of the thugs shouted, "Put 'em up! This is a holdup!" There was a momentary confusion in the room. The orchestra stopped playing. Still no one seemed to be able to decide whether this was a joke or not.

But as the bandits began pushing the guests around, lining them up against a wall, it became apparent that this was no joke, but grim reality.

Up on the platform, in full view of the gangsters with their guns, Frank began to get that uneasy feeling. He felt like a clay pigeon just shot out of the trap. He had $400 in his pocket and he slipped it out and managed to "ditch" it behind one of the wings that flanked the platform. Then, the confusion of the moment over, Frank led his band into a series of dance tunes, that would take about fifteen minutes to play.

And the Band Just Played On.

So, just as Nero fiddled while Rome burned, Frank led a whole orchestra into a flock of lively music, while all around him the guests of his employer were being robbed. But he didn't do it nonchalantly as Nero did. As a matter of fact, Frank was feeling anything but nonchalant. But it gave him and his boys something to do besides sit around and feel helpless, and on top of that Frank had an idea.

The idea was that a holdup of that sort couldn't go unnoticed long. Somewhere in the big house, with many telephones, and swarming with servants, some one must have put a call through to the police. And Frank figured that if his band played those crooks might lose track of the time and be delayed a bit. So on the band played.

Meanwhile the boys in the orchestra were just as nervous as he was. Those crooks might not like the music and take a notion to start shooting.

Frank looked at the piano player, noticed that he was playing with only one hand, and asked him why. "Can't use the other one," the piano player shot back. "It's paralyzed."

But the thugs didn't seem to mind music, and his boys were getting more confident. The saxophone player slipped off his wrist watch and dropped it into his instrument, where it was concealed so thoroughly that he had to pay $2.50 the next day to have the sax taken apart.

They played through the whole number and the thugs, far from objecting, seemed to like it. When they stopped one of them pointed his gun at the platform and uttered one word. "Mu-u-usic!" And Frank says, "The nose of that shotgun looked like the muzzle of a one-pounder. I can assure you that we played."

The bandits, lulled by the music, were going about their work in a leisurely fashion. They seemed to be in a good mood, and no one was shot during the affair. They finished their work and started to leave.

Then Came the Police, Shooting.

As they were going down the stairs they met a single policeman coming up. The cop, like the guests, first thought it was a staged joke. He said, "All right, boys, the show's over. Let's have your gun." And the first bandit, dumfounded, handed over his revolver without a murmur.

But at that moment a whole squad of police burst in the front door. A second bandit whipped up a shotgun and fired, wounding a captain in the thumb. At almost the same moment the captain let go with a .45, and the bandit tumbled down the stairs.

He landed at the bottom at the feet of some guests who had just arrived, and there he lay in a pool of his own blood, a cynical smile on his face, while the cops looked him over to see how badly he was hurt. He died the next day at Mercy hospital in Urbana.

Two of the thugs escaped, but they were caught a few days later. When the cops had gone that night after the holdup, the host's mother came over to Frank, handed him $20 and told him it was heroic of him to lead his band under such harrowing circumstances. "And," says Frank, "I blushed when I took it. If she could have only known it, I could have played all night—after taking one look down the barrel of that shotgun."

Haskell County History

As Revealed by the Files of the Free Press 20, 30 and 40 years ago

Our town is a little dull this week on account of so many being gone to the reunion at Seymour. About half the people in the country are taking in the affair.

On last Monday night about 10 o'clock John Zint, who was herding sheep for C. F. Cox, was killed by the accidental discharge of a Winchester. He had made his bed down on the south side of the herd and laid down and caught out with his right hand and caught his Winchester by the muzzle to draw it up nearer his bed. The hammer caught on something and the gun was discharged, the ball tearing his hand, passing up through the front of the thigh into the body and through the bowels. His calls for help were heard and answered at once by Mr. Fred Sanders who called Mr. and Mrs. Williams who were camped a short distance away. Mr. Zint only lived a few hours, but told how the accident happened before he died.

Mr. J. E. Ellis went to Albany Thursday and met his daughter, Miss Minnie, who was returning from a visit to friends in McLennan county.

Report of condition of the Haskell National Bank at the close of business July 23, 1897 showed loans and discounts of $60,046.17 and deposits of $32,859.14. Undivided profits, less expenses and taxes paid, amounted to $13,576.18.

We heard the other day that Mr. J. E. Patton, who lives over near the Throckmorton county line, had just had his wheat crop threshed and that it turned out nearly thirty-three bushels per acre.

The stockmen and others interested in shipping cattle from this place have sent a petition to the Governor and State Sanitary Commission asking that the board's regulations with regard to this point be so modified as to allow the shipment of cattle for immediate slaughter without dipping just previous to shipping.

Mr. Boyd of the Haskell Furniture Company had a rather interesting collection of Filipino arms consisting of several knives of peculiar shape, a spear and bow and arrow, which he secured on the battlefield in the Philippines during the war with the Moros. He says most of them were taken by him from the bodies of dead Moros. One of the knives has an American copper jacketed bullet lodged in the center of the blade. He says these Moro implements are made by hand that the Moros value their weapons more than their lives.

Mr. F. C. Wilfong says he had two horses hobbled in the lane when Fred Bachelor passed in an automobile the other day and the horses "tore out up the road" and ran about four miles ahead of the dogged machine.

Study Soil Erosion

Special emphasis is being placed on wind erosion in a short course in soil erosion and conservation at Texas Technological college, Lubbock, this month.

Soil experts of Region 6, which includes Kansas, Oklahoma, Colorado, New Mexico, and Texas, are lecturers in the course. Two hours' classwork each morning and a lecture each evening make up the program for opening days of the school.

Closing days of the session will be spent on a tour of conservation projects at Littlefield, Hereford, Vega, and Memphis. Three hours' college credit is being offered students of junior and senior standing in agriculture, said Dr. A. W. Young, Texas Tech associate professor of agronomy and director of the course.

DEAD COW KILLS OTHERS

Klamath Falls, Ore.—A cow was killed when a power line fell. Another cow investigated, touched the dead one and received a terrific jolt, which stunned her. A cat came along to see what it was all about and was electrocuted. Two jack rabbits also came to the same end.

Meat Salad Ideal For Sunday Eve

Something cool and yet substantial are the requirements for the Sunday night supper, so why not have a meat salad? This is substantial enough to satisfy the heartiest appetite, and tasty enough to tempt the most lethargic one.

As to the kinds of meat salads suitable for the Sunday night supper, there are many. The meat is finely diced and combined with a variety of other foods. Crisp celery and pickles are ingredients of practically every meat salad, because of the crunchiness they add.
Macaroni, carrots, apples, cucumbers, tomatoes, may be used in various combinations with meat.

Cut Meat Into Cubes
The meat for a salad should be cut into pieces which are not so small that they lose their identity.
For most salads one-fourth to one-half inch cubes of meat are best.
And for a meat salad there should be plenty of meat. Left-over cold roast pork, veal, lamb, or beef are ideal for this dish. Cold baked ham makes an excellent salad as does the ends of a pot-roast. In fact, practically any kind of already cooked meat may be used, so if there are to be guests for the Sunday night supper, perhaps you will want to leave a large roast
of meat for the Sunday dinner,
and make the left-over into salad
for the supper.

Here are suggestions for hearty meat salads suggested by Inez S.
Wilson, home economist.

- Meat and Macaroni Salad
3 cups diced meat
2 cups cooked elbow macaroni
1-2 cup diced celery
1-2 cup diced sweet pickles
Salt and pepper
Salad dressing
Lettuce or escarole
Stuffed olives
Have meat diced into one-fourth to half-inch cubes. Drain cooked macaroni and wash with cold water to prevent it sticking together.
Combine meat, macaroni, diced celery and sweet pickles. Season with salt and pepper and moisten with salad dressing. Serve on a bed of lettuce or escarole and garnish with sliced stuffed olives.
- Tomatoes Stuffed with Ham Salad
5 ripe tomatoes
1 cup cold diced baked ham
1-4 cup diced celery
1-4 cup diced cucumber
Salad dressing
Choose tomatoes of uniform size.
Hollow out the centers. Combine with diced baked ham, celery, and cucumber. Moisten with salad dressing. Refill the tomatoes and serve in lettuce cups.

The Need For Trench Silos

By B. W. Chesser, County Agent
The need of a better method for storing feed, especially forage crops has long been evident to farmers and stockmen of this region.

A familiar sight around most farms is the "stock lot," with its row of stacked feed exposed to the ravages of storm, rodents and insect pest, and oftentimes quickly swept away by fire. If a portion of this feed is kept for the second year it has lost a part of its value
and is filled with dust and sand.

A few years ago above-ground silos were built in an attempt to solve this store problem, but they were abandoned because of high first cost and difficult maintenance in this dry, windy climate.

Within recent years practical farmers, attempting to solve this feed storage problem have devised the simple plan of storing their green feed below ground in trench silos.

ches, on the same principle as that of the above-ground silo.

The ripe feed is cut while still green, placed in the trench with enough water, and sealed to prevent the entrance of air into the stored feed. A similar procedure is used by women when they can fruit or vegetables.

That this method is practical,
safe and economical has been proven by a dozen or more farmers in our own county as well as by the hundreds of others elsewhere in our state.

The cost of constructing the trench is only that for the labor of digging a smooth-walled excavation, or some 10 or 12 hours of labor with Fresno and teams for 60 to 70 tons of storage space.

The trench silo enables feed to be stored indefinitely and in its most palatable state away from fire, rodents, insects and dust at a cost for storage of about 10 cents a ton.

been centered the attention busi-

which will undoubtedly contribute to the permanent growth of the community as plans go forward for the establishment of a business and recreation center of the south.

Buchanan Dam and Longhorn Cavern Bring "Boom" To Burnet County

Experiencing one of the greatest progressive strides recorded by the cities of the south in many years, Burnet County has during the past two years undergone a tremendous boom in improvements and expansions. Incorporated with the immediate results brought about by the construction of Buchanan Dam, Burnet's age-old mineral resources and scenic Longhorn Cavern have been instrumental in bringing about this unusually rapid development.

A new $135,000 court house has been constructed of pink marble granite quarried from Granite Mountain; and according to Ripley the structure is the only one of its kind that is made of sawed slab. Approximately $535,000 has been utilized for the construction of four bridges, Marble Falls, Colorado River, Clear Creek, and Nis-gar Head Creek and for the improvement of two highways, Number 29 and 66. More than 100 new residences have sprung up with mushroom-like rapidity during the construction of the new dams, and $75,000 has been provided for the installation and improvement of public utilities.

With the completion of the Inks Dam and construction beginning at the Marshall Ford, the Buchanan Dam looms into the attention of the public, a completed, imposing structure of true architectural accomplishments which will lead to the establishment of new industries and manufacturing plants as well as the development of an unrivaled irrigation system for the South Texas fields. Measuring 11,200 feet from end to end, the dam is somewhat L-shaped in appearance and rises to a maximum height of 160 feet. The structure will form a lake of 30 square miles back up the river for a distance of 30 miles and creating the largest fresh water lake in Texas.
After being stocked with fish, the lake will become a veritable fisherman's paradise, attracting to its waters the sportsmen of the world and the summer vacationists from far and near.

Unusual extensive activity has become apparent in the development of the quarries and mines of Burnet County, one of the State's richest and most productive mineral and mining centers. Outstanding is the ichthyol mine which is said to be the only deposit in the United States. Rivaling the ichthyol deposit in importance is Granite Mountains, located north of Marble Falls. The mountain towers 100 feet in height and covers an area of 180 acres, furnishing millions of cubic feet of building and monumental stone annually.
From the first shipments of the quarry was built the state capitol at Austin, and other large and well known structures from Maine to California have been erected from this pink stone. Burnet's graphite mine is one of the largest in the United States and historic fossil beds have been found in the county to match the largest in the latic country. Other minerals found abundantly include lead, copper, silver, zinc, marble and mica.

Burnet boasts of her balanced farming, producing many kinds of field crops, vegetables, fruits, sheep and cattle. Small grain is produced in profusion, and the section averages 10,000 bales of cotton yearly.

Responsible for drawing great numbers of visitors into the "hill country" is the historic Longhorn Cavern, the third largest and one of the most scenic subterranean territories in the world.

In this colossal labyrinth are to be found outstanding examples of natural formations, imposing large displays of stalactites and chambers sparkling with calcite.
Intricate lighting effects have been worked out and trails were constructed with ramps which have done away with steps, so that young and old alike may visit the cavern in comfort and safety.

Just eaten guns and depressed bullets have been found in the cave indicating its use as a re-fugeous in which many fights were waged. The "Sam Bass" entrance to the cavern was named after the notorious outlaw, who, as the legend goes, took advantage of this entrance so that he might evade pursuers.

Ever since the cavern was taken over by Texas and made a State Park, exploration has been in progress. Only recently, five rooms of crystallized calcite as clear

Anniversary of Big War Finds Britain Arming

Great Britain pushed its race to regain supremacy at arms in Europe Wednesday as the nation celebrated the twenty-third anniversary of that sultry Aug. 4, 1914, when the government of Premier H. H. Asquith declared war on Germany.

Every ounce of Britain's industrial capacity and patriotic spirit has been mobilized to whip the country's armed might into shape for the "next war" which is being openly discussed. Not since 1914 has there been such a "war mentality" in the United Kingdom. People have become accustomed to talk of a new world war with resignation.

Newspaper accounts of the world's greatest armament program, involving Britain in expenditure of $1,348,695,000 for the current year alone and approximately $7,500,000,000 over a five-year period, and stories of the horrors gas and aerial attack will bring in the future no longer produce trace of the tumultuous protest that would have been heard only two years ago.

A recent announcement in the House of Commons showed that 148 new warships will be under construction for the royal navy before the end of the year; a monster drive for recruiting is under way to add 112,000 men to the regular army and reserves and 100,000 men to the territorial army. This would bring them up to their 1914 strength.

Aircraft production has been so stimulated that the country soon will reach its goal of 1,750 first line planes. Already 1,542 of them are in service. Plans are being studied for maintaining essential railway services during air raids and secret plans have been drafted for defense of the civilian population.

Plans for defending the merchant navy are being perfected with courses of training for merchant marine officers to fit them for service in time of war.

More than 122 blast furnaces throughout the country are in full production, turning out steel for warships and guns. Urgent appeals for scrap iron have been issued and an intensified campaign is being waged from attic to garbage can to salvage the now precious metal.

SCOUTS SAVE MAN
Cincinnati—Climbing over an iron fence, Louis Williams, 51-year old carpenter, was seriously injured when the calf of one leg was impaled on a spike. A passer-by, not familiar with first-aid methods, hailed a school bus, hoping that members of the school's Scout Patrol might be aboard. Three Boy Scouts—Clifford Krumer, 14; Fred Loze, 13, and Robert Rentz, 15, were. They applied a tourniquet to Williams' leg and he was taken to a hospital. Attendants said he might have bled to death had it not been for the Scouts.

THE FEAT OF A WOMAN SWIMMER

You probably won't remember the feat, but eleven years ago—on August 6, 1926—Gertrude Ederle swam the English Channel, first woman to succeed in the attempt, and she was given wide acclaim. Today, few are likely to remember her name, much less her claim to fame.

Spectacular feats are remembered only for a short time—and the more enduring accomplishments are taken for granted.

The safety and reliability of insurance is taken for granted—as it might well be.
