HASKELL GETS FIRST SALE OF 1938 COTTON THURSDAY EVENING

Small Given Premium Haskell Merchants and C. of C.

Bale of cotton from the crop was sold in Haskell Thursday afternoon at 7-8 cents per pound, the highest bid being between 7-8 and 7-9 cents. The bale was sold to the Chamber of Commerce, Mr. Wilkins receiving 45 cents per pound, a 10-cent premium above the market of 7-8 cents. In addition a charge was made for grading and ginning of $40.00 was given to the Chamber of Commerce, contributed by Haskell merchants, in keeping with a long standing custom.

The sale of the season's cotton was brought in by the Haskell farm fifteen miles north of Haskell. From 1,850 pounds of cotton, Mr. Wilkins received a bale which graded 7-8 inch staple. This cotton is opening in various parts of the county this week, and several bales will be sold during the next few days. The crop is in full swing for several weeks, due to the excellent season which has been enjoyed by timely rains.

The World's 'Security' — At the Point of a Gun

A sufficient number of young men having died to cool the ardor of both sides, the Japanese and Russians seem to have agreed that they will not go to war—not now, anyway—to decide which nation holds title to that scrubby hillock in Manchuria.
So another war scare blows over, and the world gets one more chance to take a look at the direction in which it is traveling. What it sees can hardly be reassuring, but the immediate danger is lifted and we are all right . . . until the next one.
It isn't especially comfortable, this business of living in a world which is forever teetering on the edge of an abyss. While all of the great powers are spending fantastic sums on armaments to provide "national security," the plain fact is that there is less security in the world now than at any time since the dark ages.

Perhaps the basic reason for this insecurity is the fact that we have the wrong idea of what security really is. Each nation seems to be convinced that it can get security only at the expense of someone else. In line with this idea, it must maintain within its own borders everything it needs, great armies and air fleets; it must be self-sufficient economically. It must produce it must get the better of the rest of the world in all of its commercial deals.

That might be a good idea if it would work; but it won't—not when every great nation has the same idea. What it produces is eternal unrest, unending rivalries, and conflicts of interest which point directly toward war.

There might be a better way to get security.
The nations might agree that since war is a civilization-shattering evil, they would at all costs settle their disputes peacefully—by arbitration, by mediation, by the judgment of third parties in international tribunals. They might further agree that they would unite to restrain any nation which resorted to force before all such avenues of settlement had been tried.

That was the procedure which was envisioned in the Kellogg pact, the World Court, and the League Covenant. The world has turned its back on this procedure scoffing at it as "idealistic," "visionary" and so on.

Perhaps those adjectives are justified. But the present system certainly doesn't seem to be working out very well. In the end, isn't it quite possible that we shall all have to return to some form of the plan that Wilson and Kellogg advocated?
With all its faults, that plan at least offered the world a chance to get away from the edge of the precipice.

Two can't live as cheap as one without feeling that way, too.

About the time we get to thinking that humor has died out, some fellow's love letters get into court.

LETTERS From Our Readers

The daily papers of last Friday carried the news of the death of John E. Edgerton of Lebanon, old pioneer leader. His successor, John E., as his friends called him, died too young. His death is irreparable to the South.

His place in the industrial development of the South can not be filled. To my mind he was the outstanding citizen of the South; he was more than a citizen; he was a leader in all human endeavors, civic, industrial and religious.

John E. Edgerton was born of Lebanon, old pioneer leader. His suc-
before him were leaders in all lines of activities. They pioneered in settlement and industry. They possessed all that was required of such leadership. All of the characteristics of his hardy, noble ancestors were inherited and cultivated by him.

He was an educated man from every standpoint. He received his college training at Vanderbilt University, but he used such as only a foundation for a real education.
His was a practical education, the only schooling that is of any essential value.

He inherited leadership. Such was clearly demonstrated during his college career. He led in all school activities. His prowess was shown upon the athletic field, especially in football. In all things he held the respect, confidence and admiration of the student body.
The confidence of his old college mates was clearly illustrated when Jenkins, I believe, was captured and held for ransom by a gang of Mexican bandits. The first note he attempted to send to the American people was to Egerton. It told of his plight and what had to be done to secure his release. The ransom demanded was large, but only in a few days Egerton had secured the release.

Upon leaving college he entered the educational field. In only a few short years he was recognized for his ability. He was elevated to the presidency of Columbia Military Academy, a position he held at the time his relatives persuaded him to enter the industrial field. His family at the time were owners of the Lebanon Woolen Mills which were not prospering to suit them. They prevailed upon him to take the management, and from that day the same was placed upon a paying basis. Today the same is considered one of the leading industries of the country. His ability in the industrial field was immediately recognized by the business men of his state. They placed him in as president of the Tennessee Manufacturing Association, a position he held until being elevated to that as President of the National Manufacturers Association, holding this position longer than any man previously. It was during the time that he was President of the Association that the South made such rapid strides in industrial development. Due no doubt to his ability and personality. He was very instrumental in securing the removal of many cotton mills from the North to the South. The real extent of what he accomplished for the South in the industrial field

Brains and Lanes

For whiling away a rainy hour in fits of meriment there's nothing like sitting and thinking about the human mind.

New commentary on its habits comes out of a report from the meetings in Ann Arbor, Mich., of the National Institute for Highway Safety Training. The three-lane highway, according to a prominent traffic engineer, is, oddly enough, a safer road to drive on than the super-highway of four lanes.

It seems that drivers have learned to regard that center stretch on the three-lane road as a kind of no-man's land, and avoid it, with thoughts of head-on collisions in their minds. But when the same drivers get on a four-lane highway—which has no dangerous lane—they have nothing visible starting them in the face as a warning. So they get out smack in the center and drive as rapidly as possible where there is no lane at all, and as often as not greet one another through their windshields.

From the same traffic conference comes the assertion that nation-wide tests have shown that the high-grade moron is, in general, the best driver —better than the genius. Evidently the high-grade moron likes to follow grooves—or lanes. The low-grade moron can't. The genius won't.
Friends, we're funny animals.

Team-Play At Home

Where would the world be without the spirit of sportsmanship in marriage?

Take the story of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Roder of Camden, N. J. A judge gave them 30 days apiece for selling beer without a license. Roder didn't want to see his wife in jail, so he arranged with the judge to serve his wife's sentence after serving his own.
Mrs. Roder carried on at the store alone.

This is the sort of cooperative give and take that matrimony sorely needs. For instance, sometimes when the husband is about to pay his wife's traffic ticket, let the wife step forward and offer herself as a sacrifice and pay her own. Sometimes when the wife has overdrawn the joint account, let her insist on making her own explanation to the bank for a change. And sometimes when it appears as if the wife would be forced to entertain some young and pretty out-of-town friends despite herself, let the husband step up and insist on performing this burdensome task himself.

These are the sacrifices that ought to keep marriages intact.

Something Brewing

Where would the world be without the spirit proximity away from their respective offices, a vigorous denial from both that their conversations are strictly social is almost always a sure sign that something really vital is afoot.

Thus the imagination is staggered by the possibilities conjured up by such denials from a cozy bunch of neighbors that have been discovered on the French Riviera. Their numbers include two American statesmen, a cabinet member (Secretary Mortenson), Douglas Fairbanks, the Windsor Mortenson Dietrich, Sonja Henie, and Maurice Chevalier. All deny speaking to one another on a business basis.

What does it mean? Is Sonja Henie teaching the statesmen how to skate on thin ice without disaster? Is Washington getting pointers for its lady politicians from Marlene Dietrich on how to exude "umph"? Are the moving picture people as a group teaching the secretary of the treasury how to make money? Or is Douglas Fairbanks giving instructions in diving through hoops of fire with the grace of the political big-wigs of Italy?

Only time will tell.

Successful people have the most ill-behaved children, says a magazine writer. Well, to the victor belongs the spoiled.

After dad finished lecturing daughter about using lipstick and rouge he ambled over to the mirror and carefully combed the straggling hairs in a way to cover his bald spot.

Do You Remember

these happenings of 10 and 15 years ago?

(Taken From the Files of the Haskell Free Press)

15 Years Ago—August 24, 1923 Continued dry weather of the past three weeks has caused colton to mature earlier than in previous years, and to date 55 bales have been ginned in Haskell from the 1922 crop.

The home of Eulis Hays in the west part of town was destroyed by fire Sunday about noon. The fire was caused by the explosion of an oil stove. Due to the fact that flames spread rapidly, and the long distance from available water, firemen were able to render only slight assistance in combating the blaze.

Haskell county received more rain Tuesday night than has fallen since early spring, the precipitation ranging from one-half to two and one-half inches over the county.

District Attorney Tom Davis and wife have returned from a vacation trip to points in Colorado.

G. T. Scales, who for many years has been local manager of the Haskell Ice & Light Co., later the West Texas Utilities Co., has resigned his position with the company to engage in other lines of business.

The city has purchased a tractor to be used in street maintenance work. The sale was made by the English Motor Co., local Ford dealers.

Gene Fifer, colored, of Rule, was brought to Haskell and placed in jail here charged with the killing of Will McGinty, another negro, Sunday night. The killing occurred in the business section of Rule, Fifer allegedly firing several shots from a Winchester which took effect in McGinty's body, killing him instantly.

John and Ed Fouts and their families are visiting relatives in Sulphur and Tulsa, Okla.

John V. Davis of this city has gone to Freeport, Ill., for the next school term.

10 Years Ago—Aug. 23, 1928

The Norton Hotel, a three-story frame building located a block north of the square, was badly damaged by fire Wednesday afternoon. The fire was discovered around 2 o'clock, and firemen worked for several hours in extinguishing the blaze, which spread throughout the third floor of the building.

The Farm Bureau Elevator, located north of the Haskell Elevator, is now under construction and J. T.
Bynum, foreman on the work, stated that the plant would be completed and ready for operation by Sept. 20th or earlier.

Work was started Tuesday morning tearing down the main office and store rooms of the Spencer Lumber Company in this city, to be replaced by a modern two-story brick building, 26x64 feet. The old building was erected in 1906, when the yard was first opened in Haskell.

W. M. Free, Wesley Applegate and Herbert Hannay have returned from Ardmore, Okla., where they attended the International Poultry Show and the American Poultry Association convention.

The Bell-Moore Chevrolet Company is moving this week to the new brick building recently completed one-half block from the southeast corner of the square.
Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Wair and children have returned from a vacation trip to Tennessee.
Mr. and Mrs. Jim Fouts and family of this city drove to Brownwood last week to visit Mrs. Fouts relatives.

Earnest Wright, who is attending A. C. C. at Abilene, came home with his father, J. L. Wright who was in Abilene Saturday. will never be known. He was very reticent and ever sought to provent and escape publicity. However, no one who ever saw those keen penetrating eyes of his can ever forget.

His first interest was in building character. Being very religious work. He was a fixture as Superintendent of the Methodist Sunday School. The church always placed him in the lead in all great movements, and none ever failed under his leadership.

In my judgment the South has lost its greatest leader, and that at a time it could ill afford to lose his counsel. Through his devotion to the cause of industrializing the South things worth while had begun to happen. The light of a new day had begun to appear just over the horizon. Too bad that the South is deprived of his advice and leadership in shaping the destiny of Henry W. Grady's "New South." He was worth more than ten million tax eating politicians.
He refused to be drafted for the office of Governor of Tennessee, his ambition was more worth while. His name should be headlined throughout the entire Southland.

He along with Dr. Herty who preceded him some week or more in death contributed greatly to the future development of the South.
Both lived lives worth while, both were constructionists, both builded for the future generations to enjoy. Great men; honest, masters of efficiency, self sacrificing than the posterity of the fellow country-
