Melons On Xmas Day Were Treat Way Back in '98

Eating watermelon on Christmas Day would be a novelty to the present generation of West Texans, but several Haskell residents enjoyed the delicacy on Christmas Day 1898, when the late F. C. Wilfong, pioneer Haskell settler, distributed several melons to his neighbors which he had preserved by storing them in a celiar. The unusual feat was recalled here by the re-publication in the "50 Years Ago" column of the Dallas News last Sunday of a brief item which appeared in the Jan. 1, 1899 issue of that newspaper.

Advancing Farm Work

Spring and sprouts may seem a long time ahead yet all farmers know how quickly the days pass by and bring the busy Spring season around again. Also they know how little time there will be to do and anything then except strictly routine work.

Consequently, whatever can be done now that will help insure the 1939 harvest it is a good thing brought in before breakfast (if there is time to do for the farmer and a good thing for the community, for it to be done without delay. One of these opportunities is treating the fields to a liberal application of high grade, finely ground rock phosphate.

Naturally, the earlier the young plants are able to get this nourishment, the surdler their growth, the earlier their maturity, the greater improvement in yield and quality, with the net result that the farmer is able to take in a lot more cash income from the same amount of land and same amount of work—which spells prosperity both for the far-mer and the community where he trades.

New Year's Day

Owing to the confusion in dates which has resulted from the imperfections of various calendars, which caused skipping of dates at various times. New Year's Day may be said to be merely called Jones prior to 1867, while Covington county an arbitrary designation. As late as 1752 the adoption of the Gregorian calendar by England and the American colonies caused a skip of 11 days.
