Preparing For Drug Free Years: Workshops Offered

A four week course called "Preparing for the Drug (Free) Years" will be offered at DeShazo Library beginning October 20 at 7 p.m. The program is being sponsored by Region 17-Education Service Center in Lubbock and funding is provided from Texas Commission on Alcohol and Drug Abuse. Nancy Barrier and Liz Tipps will be conducting the workshops. This program was conducted for the first time in Muleshoe in the spring and was a great success, according to reports. Parents attending the workshop felt that it was most beneficial.

This program is for parents of children in grades 4-6. Parents will learn to identify the risk factors associated with teenage drug abuse and to practice skills which will promote family bonding and reduce those risks. Surveys conducted for the National Institute of Drug Abuse show that most teenagers today will use alcohol or marijuana before leaving high school. Nearly one in twenty high school seniors uses alcohol on a daily basis. In 1988, eighteen percent of the high school seniors in the U.S. had used marijuana in the past month. "Preparing for the drug (Free) Years" from Developmental Research and Programs of Seattle, is based on research which had identified the risk factors associated with teenage drug abuse and the protective factors which can help teenagers develop into healthy adults. The program was developed by Drs. J. David Hawkins and Richard F. Catalano of the University of Washington. In a review of research conducted over the past thirty years, Catalano and Hawkins have identified eleven factors that increase the risk of young people developing problems with alcohol or other drugs. These risk factors include:

- A family history of alcoholism
- Family management problems
- Parental drug use or positive parental attitudes toward use
- Early antisocial behavior
- Academic failure
- A low degree of commitment to school
- A low degree of social bonding
- Antisocial behavior in early adolescence
- Friends who use drugs
- Favorable attitudes toward drug use
- Early first use of drugs

"Preparing for the Drug (Free) Years" teaches parents to reduce five of these risk factors which may often be presented during the late elementary and middle school grades. The risk factors addressed in this program are positive parental attitudes toward drug use, family management problems, low degree of social bonding, friends who use drugs and early first use of drugs.

Workshop activities are based on Hawkins and Catalano's Social Development Strategy, a theory of human behavior that identifies the factors which promote social bonding and positive behavior. Their research has shown that children who are bonded to their parents, school, non-drug-using peers and to the community are less likely to become involved in negative behavior, such as drug use, that may threaten those bonds.

Recovered Bikes

By Wayne Holmes
Muleshoe
Chief of Police

Every year a number of bicycles are recovered by the Muleshoe Police Dept. We have no way of knowing who the bikes belong to. We end up giving these bikes to a youth school, such as Boy's Town.

I now have a number of unclaimed bikes. If you are missing a bike, contact me, Chief Wayne Holmes, at the Muleshoe Police Dept., 215 E. Ave. B., 272-4569, Mon. thru Fri. from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m., and give me a description of your bike; i.e. color, brand name, size, identification markings or any other identifying marks.

All bikes should be marked. The best way to mark a bike is by engraving a driver's license number or ID card number onto the frame of the bike in the area of the peddle housing and on each wheel, near the valve stem. If we find an item with a driver's license number engraved on it, we can identify that number and who it belongs to in a matter of seconds. There is no way we can check any other number except a driver's license or an ID card. If you or your parents do not have a driver's license or an ID card, use the D.L. or I.D. number of a close friend.

Wildcats Defeat Mules 58-14

The Muleshoe Mules fought another long hard battle Friday night when they tangled with the Littlefield Wildcats in the Wildcat Stadium. The Wildcats defeated the Mules 58 to 13.

Getting the game underway, the Mules kicked off to the Wildcats. On the kick off a Wildcat returned the ball 85 yards for a touchdown. The kick was no good and the Wildcats took the lead 6-0.

Following the kick, the Mules put the ball into action on the Mules 17 yard line. The Mules picked up a few first downs, but fumbled the ball before they reached the endzone. The Wildcats recovered the fumble and put the ball into play on their own 30 yard line. A few plays later Bryan Rasco intercepted a Wildcat pass and Muleshoe gained control of the ball.

The Mules put the ball into play on their own 41 yard line and four plays later the Wildcats intercepted a Mule pass. A few plays later the Wildcats hit pay dirt again. After a two point conversion, the Wildcats led 14-0 with :07 left in the quarter.

The Wildcats kicked the ball back to the Mules and they put it into play on their own 25 yard line. Quarterback Ruben Gonzales picked up 57 yards running on the next play. The Mules made it into the endzone on a 10 yard pass. Gonzales kicked and the score stood Wildcats 14-Mules 7.

The Mules kicked the ball back to the Wildcats and they put it into play on their own 48 yard line, a few plays later, the Wildcats made it into the endzone and added a two point conversion. The Wildcats led 22-7.

On their next possession of the ball, the Mules were forced to punt the ball back to the Wildcats, the only time they were forced to punt the ball away.

With 6:33 left in the half, the Wildcats were forced to punt the

Food Allergy: The Dangers Of "Wait And See"

A new study by Hugh Sampson, M.D., associate professor of pediatrics at Johns Hopkins University, suggests that deaths or near-deaths of children with food allergies could be averted if parents and other caretakers considered the symptoms serious and obtained immediate medical treatment.

Writing in the New England Journal of Medicine, Dr. Sampson described six cases of fatal anaphylaxis and seven cases of near-fatal anaphylaxis that occurred in children or teens who inadvertently consumed a food allergen.

Although food-induced anaphylaxis occurs only rarely, its symptoms can be life-threatening, itching, hives, wheezing, swelling of the lips and throat, vomiting, loss of consciousness and cardiopulmonary failure.

Dr. Sampson analyzed 13 cases of food-induced anaphylaxis that occurred in persons two to 17 years old, most of whom lived in three major metropolitan areas. All of the individuals had asthma, and a history of anaphylactic reactions to food. All 13 reactions were to common food allergens-tree nuts, peanuts, eggs, or milk.

In most cases, the allergens were found in commercially prepared food products that had been appropriately labeled. But the foods were given to the individuals out of the package, who consumed them without knowing their ingredients.

Four of the six cases of fatal food anaphylaxis occurred while the children and teens were at school. Symptoms began three to 30 minutes after eating the allergen and became severe between 20 minutes and two and one half hours later. In three cases, epinephrine had been prescribed for the patients but was not available during the reaction.

Epinephrine is a hormone that counteracts the symptoms of anaphylaxis by raising blood pressure and opening the air passages to the lungs. Available by prescription, the medication is contained in a pen-like instrument that can be readily injected by pressing the point against a person's thigh.

The seven near-fatal cases of anaphylaxis occurred at private homes, mostly at those of friends or relatives. Although epinephrine was not administered immediately, the patients did receive it before their apaphylactic symptoms became severe.

According to Sampson, the study points to the need for parents, physicians, school personnel, day-care providers and others to take food allergy more seriously.

"Because there are so many people today who claim to have food allergies, many physicians have become 'desensitized' to taking their symptoms seriously," Sampson said. "Those few with true food allergies must be given appropriate medical attention and be instructed to take epinephrine immediately after experiencing a reaction."

In an accompanying editorial, John Yuninger, M.D., of Mayo Clinic, said that children over the age of seven can be taught to inject themselves with epinephrine. But, some laws delay life saving treatment by prohibiting nonmedical personnel from administering the drug.

Enlightening Tips

I received a phone call from an anonymous caller this morning. He said he was sitting on Hwy. 214 south of Muleshoe, watching a buck and several does that had just jumped the fence and were standing by the road. I followed the tip, and tried to take a picture, but of course they had vanished by the time I got there. The caller had said, "I've lived around here all of my life and never seen a sight like this before!" This is true, it's a rare sight to see around these parts! A once in a lifetime memory in Muleshoe.

Around six months ago, I was traveling on Hwy 385, and about ten miles south of Springlake, I had to stop my car, because something was in the road in front of me. As I approached them, I discovered a big seven point buck and two does, standing there in the road looking at me. They were so beautiful, and I was so excited. If I'd only had my camera! Even when I'd been deer hunting down south and in Colorado, I'd never had the opportunity to see such beautiful deer so close to me before.

Thank you for calling, it was enlightening just to reminisce on the memory, and sorry I couldn't snap your photo for you!

Muleshoe Art Association's Artist Of The Month

Ginnie Seifert was born in Clovis, NM. She did not discover the world of art until both of her sons were grown. She then became a serious student of art and enrolled in life drawing and on location classes with well known artists. Through intensive studies, she continues to produce works for shows and commissions. A prolific painter of varying subjects, Ginnie has works hanging in many private and corporate collections.

A thirteen time winner of the "Best of Show" honors, and twenty one "People's Choice" awards, Ginnie has participated for several years with her art to raise money for the "Casa Esperanza House" in Albuquerque for families throughout New Mexico to use when they have family in the hospital. She did a large commissioned portrait which raised $2,500 toward refurbishing an old theater in Clovis to be used for the visual performing arts, and other entertainment. As a result of the Office Of Cultural Affairs, Ginnie has had paintings chosen for the Lea. Co. Cowboy Hall of Fame, the Bruce King Complex in Clovis, and the Texico NM Welcome Center.

Ginnie adds "Art has given me an enthusiastic life, something beyond my household and family to broaden my existence. A choice of making purpose in my life."

MICROWAVE TIPS

When defrosting frozen fruits, remember that water attracts microwaves but that ice doesn't.

Therefore, when some ice crystals melt in a block of frozen fruit, they begin to form channels through the block, channels of heated water.

Defrosted areas then begin to cook and change color, before other parts are thawed. Thus one must break up the cube or block so that fruit defrosts evenly.

Burning Fields Sparks Citations For Farmers

Due to citations to two Castro County farmers, the Texas Corn Producers Board began working with the Texas Air Control Board on the rules and regulations concerning the burning of corn stubble in the fields. Carl King, Executive Director, and Harold Bob Bennett, Executive Assistant, have been in close contact with officials in the Texas Air Control Board (TACB) in Austin and in the regional Office in Lubbock.

King stated, "We are just trying to understand what the guidelines are for burning and how it pertains to the farmers."

"After numerous telephone conversations with the TACB, it is obvious they want to cooperate and work with us, but there are certain restrictions that must be followed," states King. The most important of these are that under absolutely no circumstances is the Texas Air Control Board going to allow burning when the smoke drifts toward a town, a public highway or road (paved or unpaved), or when wind speed is in excess of 23 miles per hour. "The Texas Corn Producers Board and the Texas Air Control Board understands that there are economic and management needs for controlled burning such as double cropping systems, and the control of noxious weeds, but as farmers and good managers, the guidelines must be followed and the privilege of burning must not be abused," states Bennett. "We want to protect our constituents, the corn farmers, and at the same time cooperate with the Texas Air Control Board." Controlled burning may be allowed but written or verbal authorization must be obtained from the Regional office by contacting Jack Benton in Lubbock at (806) 796-3494.

The Texas Corn Producers Board is a state agency representing over 65,000 corn farmers in Texas.

NEWS OF HEALTH

Hay Fever Calendar Poster Available

Doctors call it allergic rhinitis. Most of us know it as hay fever and if you've got it--as 22 million Americans do--you're likely to be plagued by such annoying symptoms as sneezing, runny nose, itchy nose and throat, and red, watery, itchy eyes.

If hay fever is your foe, you might try following these tips for allergy sufferers:

- Keep windows closed in your home and car.
- Use an air conditioner and change filters frequently.
- Avoid outdoor work and exercise during the early morning hours when pollination is at its peak.
- Shower and wash hair frequently to remove pollen.
- Wash pillow cases often. Dry clothes indoors.
- Keep pets that have been outdoors out of the bedroom.
- If symptoms are severe, see your doctor.

"Ragweed is the most common cause of seasonal hay fever in the U.S.," says Mary E. Worstell, MPH, executive director of the Asthma and Allergy Foundation of America (AAFA). "It pollinates in the late summer and fall and a single plant is estimated to produce one billion grains of pollen a day." The small, light, dry pollens are spread by wind currents.

Knowing when trees, weeds and grasses begin pollinating can give those who suspect they may suffer from allergies a clue to the cause and an incentive to seek medical help.

Leadership Muleshoe Visits Ex-President

The ten members of the Leadership Muleshoe Organization were among the several thousand people in attendance at former President Jimmy Carter's public lecture this week at the Municipal Coliseum in Lubbock. Sponsored by Texas Tech University, Carters presentation stressed current issues and community service.

"President Carter made a plea that we, the people of the United States should stop relying on the government and start volunteering our time to improve our world," stated Brooke Barrett, reporter for Leadership Muleshoe.

Carter presently serves as National Spokesman for Habitat Humanity, a program that provides housing for low income families.

Carter also spoke about his presidential library--the Carter Presidential Center in Atlanta. Through this library he has taken a lead in combating international problems such as disease control and food production in developing nations.

A question and answer session followed the speech with only five individuals being allowed time for questions. Among those five was one of the Leadership Muleshoe members--Daavid Rameriz.

Ramirez asked the former president about the role the Carter Center was playing to control the AIDS epidemic. Carter answered that the primary focus on this issue was prevention. He then cited examples of AIDS prevention efforts now being made by volunteers at the Carter Center.

"It was good for our young people to have the opportunity to hear a former U.S. President speak," said R.A. Bradley, an advisor for Leadership Muleshoe.

Carter's personal appearance was part of Texas Tech's Night Life Series--a cultural events program for the South Plains. The Leadership Muleshoe's participation was made possible by Carolyn Johnson, advisor to the organization.

Those attending included: Jon Watkins, Summer Wiley, Casey Estep, Brooke Barrett, Stacie Harris Donna Puckett, Amanda Ashford, Gilrobert Rennels, Jeanne Cox, and David Ramirez.

Accompanying the youth were Mr. and Mrs. R.A. Bradley and Mr. and Mrs. Lee Roy Hughes. The group dined at the Olive Garden before attending the lecture.

DPS Warns Motorist About Weather Conditions

According to local safety officials, now is the time to think about winter snow and ice and the fact that they pose special problems for even the most experienced driver.

Major Vernon Cawthon, Regional commander for the Texas Department of Public Safety in Lubbock, stated, "Winter driving is treacherous because it's so unpredictable. Fog could be over the next hill, a patch of ice on an overpass, or someone in front of you on a snow-packed road goes into a skid. However if drivers are armed with a few basic rules for winter driving, the risk of collision can be lowered."

Probably, the most basic driving rule of all is to adjust your driving to the current conditions. If all drivers follow that one rule, collisions year round could be reduced dramatically. Major Cawthon advised there are two general winter driving rules which could help keep drivers out of trouble on hazardous roads: Rule No. 1-Drive smoothly. Anytime you are on a slick surface you must maintain traction. Any jerky movement can upset that traction causing loss of control. So every touch of the brakes, every turn of the wheel, every move to the accelerator must be gentle and gradual. Rule No. 2-Stay alert. The slicker the surface, the farther down the road you must look, because it will take you longer to stop. Here is a good rule-of thumb. Generally allow double your normal stopping distance for wet roads, triple it on snow-packed roads, and even more on ice.

Winter driving problems, if they do happen, usually arrive in the form of a skid. First, it should be noted that skids don't just happen, they are caused. Hit the brakes or accelerate too hard, turn the wheel too fast and suddenly you have lost both traction and control. This is a scary, helpless feeling that most of us have felt, at sometime.

When asked about skid recovery, Major Cawthon explained, "Simply put, back off the accelerator, stay off the brakes, and steer the car in the direction you want the car to go. Use gentle, steady motions when turning the wheel. Turning too much or too fast can worsen the situation. Remember, on wet or icy roads, your brakes can be your worst enemy."

When the road is wet or icy, it takes more time and distance to do everything. So allow more time to stop, turn or whatever else you want to do. It's critical that you increase that space between you and the vehicle ahead. Major Cawthon

Mexico & Free Trade

Although it could be years before a North American Free Trade Agreement is fully implemented, the United States already is reaping benefits from freer trade with Mexico, some experts say.

purchasing natural gas when prices were low," Diller said. "And additional savings were realized through lower short-term freight rates for a portion of our coal."

In addition, the company's power plants overall have consistently ranked among the most efficient in the nation in converting coal and other fuels into electricity, he said.

SPS president and chief operating officer Coyt Webb said the company expands significant effort to remain a low-cost producer. "The cost of fuel makes up about half of an electric bill, and our ability to control this cost is very important to our customers," Webb said.

Different forms of fuel-cost adjustment apply to SPS customers in other states, as well as to the company's firm wholesale customers. Savings as they occur are passed through to these wholesale customers and retail customers in New Mexico, Oklahoma and Kansas.

Heritage Foundation Seeks Caboose, Diner Car

The Muleshoe Heritage Foundation has sent a proposal to Santa Fe Railways in Illinois in hopes of securing a caboose and diner car to add to the Heritage Foundation Complex.

Santa Fe Railroad played a major role in the rich ranching heritage of Muleshoe and Bailey County.

If the directors are successful in their endeavor, the caboose and diner will sit along side the old Santa Fe Pump House and the Depot. It will definitely be an enhancement to the Foundation's historical preservations.

The proposal was written and put together by Carolyn Johnson, newly elected Director and Grants Chairman for the Muleshoe Heritage Foundation. The proposal consisted of three sections: (1) The Proposal Summary, (2) The Pictorial Section, and (3) Letters of Support.

"We are anxiously waiting for a reply from Illinois", Mrs. Johnson stated. "We know we have lots of competition in such proposals but our proposal packet made a strong case for the Railways to consider the donation be made to Muleshoe," she added.

Mrs. Johnson also praised previous directors at the Heritage Foundation. "Their hard work and accomplishments made a great impact on the strength of the proposal," she said. As is very typical of Muleshoe, the community pulled together to assist with the project.

Letters of support were written by Dave Marr, City Manager; Robert Montgomery, Mayor; Mike McDearmon, Chamber of Commerce President; Bill Moore, Superintendent of Schools; Marilyn Cox, Bailey County Judge; and Nelda Merriott, District Clerk.

"The Muleshoe Heritage Foundation appreciates these individuals' contributions and sends

1992-1993 Hunting Regulations

This Digest Expires August 31, 1993

The $7 state waterfowl stamp is required of all waterfowl (duck, merganser, geese, brant, and coot) hunters during the 1992-93 hunting seasons. In addition, all migratory game bird hunters must have a valid hunting license. Resident hunters under 17 years of age, 65 years of age and older and qualified disabled veterans—Special Resident Hunting, $6.00. All other residents—Resident Hunting, $13.00 or Resident Combination Hunting and Fishing, $25.00. Waterfowl (ducks, mergansers, coots, and geese) hunters are required to have a $7.00 State Waterfowl Stamp. Stamps and licenses are available at Department offices and most sporting goods stores. Federal law also requires waterfowl hunters 16 years of age and older to have a federal Migratory Bird Hunting and Conservation Stamp (commonly called a Duck Stamp) available at most post offices. To be valid for hunting, state and federal waterfowl stamps must be signed in ink across the face of the stamp. Funds from state stamp sales will be used for waterfowl research, management, and habitat acquisition in Texas.

Birds being transported by another person for the hunter or left for cleaning, storage, shipment or taxidermy services must also be tagged in the same manner.

Hunting from or by means of motor-driven vehicles and land conveyances or aircraft of any kind except paraplegics and single or double amputees of legs may hunt from stationary motor-driven vehicles or land conveyances.
Using motor-driven land, water or air conveyances or sailboat to concentrate, drive, rally or stir up any migratory bird.

ADDITIONAL FEDERAL REGULATIONS: It is not necessary for a hunter to know an area is baited to be in violation for hunting over a baited area.

When shipping migratory game birds the package must be marked with the name and address of the sender, the name and address of the person to whom the birds are being sent and the number of birds of each species contained in the package.

The number of migratory game birds imported from Mexico may not exceed the export limit set by the Mexican state from which they were taken. It is illegal to import migratory game birds from Mexico belonging to another person. Other more restrictive federal regulations may apply to National Wildlife Refuges open to public hunting. # When The Pain Doesn't Stop

By: Ron Trusler, M.Ed., LPC, Director of Clinical Services

I wish all pain would be over with quickly, like a cold or a cut finger. Some painful things seem to go on forever. Some of them are limited finances, poor health, living with someone who doesn't love you, a rebellious child, or working in a job you don't enjoy. How do you keep going? How do you live through stressful circumstances that do not seem to be ending soon?

The following won't make the pain stop-it will help you live through it.

First, find someone to talk to. Sounds simple, doesn't it? Don't skip this step. It is important. Too many of us do not share how we feel. We're afraid or we don't know how. Find someone who will let you talk, let you hurt, and feel however you feel. You don't need someone to give you a sermon or a bunch of "shoulds" or "oughts". Find someone who will let you be you, where you are now.

Secondly, so physical activity, consistently. So something that takes energy, that will make you sweat. It may be jogging, walking, racquetball, tennis, etc. Do it often. It is a great way to relieve stress and help you physically and mentally.

Third, watch what you say to yourself, your self-talk. This may be the hardest. We all talk to ourselves, whether we're aware of it or not. In bad times, it is easy to say things to ourselves like, "I'm not a good person; I'm a failure; I can't make anyone happy; I'll never make it through this; etc." Change that type of talking to something more realistic like, "This failed, but that doesn't mean I'm a failure; I'm not happy now, but I will be someday; I'm not sure how I'll do it, but I will; etc."

Do these three steps constantly. They will help.

Hiding The Pain

There's a horse in the middle of the living room floor and no one mentions it. The TV is watched, conversations are held and games are played and everyone acts as if the horse isn't there. The horse sits in the middle of the dining room table and people eat, pass the food and talk without saying anything about the horse!

Sounds strange, doesn't it? That's how many act when it comes to pain producing problems-they hide reality. It may be an addiction of some kind, an attitude problem, unhappiness, anger, or sadness, but it's not mentioned. It is an attempt to make it go away by overlooking it.

It is hard to keep hiding feelings. Over a long period of time, they are like an infection, they will sacrifice in some form. It may be physically or emotionally, but they will surface. I think we have the idea that admitting pain is a sign of weakness or a lack of knowledge. - it's neither. Admitting pain or problems is a sign of courage or willingness to open and heal. It takes a lot of energy to stuff down pain. It's draining and it's not healthy. If we deny our pain, we distance ourselves from others. They do not think we will understand theirs.

When I hurt, I want to be with people who knows what it's like to hurt. It doesn't have to be the exact same hurt - just hurt!

Guilt Can Be Hazardous!

Excessive guilt can prevent joy in living, cripple our social life, worry and humiliate us. It can even cause fatigue, sexual problems, and drug addiction. Needless guilt can torment a person to the point of suicide.

Guilt does have a good side. Simply speaking it is realizing and having sorrow over having done something wrong. It is desirable because it enables us to recognize we have violated our own conscience and society. If we never felt guilt, we would not learn in school, do our jobs properly, obey traffic rules, have good relationships, live in harmony with others, etc.

We cannot see the conscience change but it grows and develops. Especially, when we disobey, or think we do, the rules we have absorbed and that we feel must be obeyed.

I read of one woman who had been taught to brush her teeth nightly. Occasionally, she would fall into bed exhausted after a hard day. She would wake up in the middle of the night, realize she had not brushed her teeth, stumble into the bathroom to ease the discomfort of her deep guilt.

Some children grow up being frequently and inappropriately accused by parent and family members of bad actions. Shame is drilled into them continually for behavior that is not truly shameful. If a parent lays more of a guilt trip on a child than he can tolerate, the child will tend to go find refuge in drugs or delinquency or other antisocial behavior, or the child may grow up loaded with heavy guilt, convinced he is a bad, undeserving person.

When Guilt Becomes Too Much

Some researchers have estimated that guilt plays a major role in about 80% of people attempting suicide. Intense feelings of guilt can make life unbearable. This is also true of teenagers and younger children. Forty youngsters, ages 3-14, who had tried to take their own lives, were intensely interviewed. It was concluded that 1 in 4 were seeking to be punished either for masturbation or because they had wished someone else dead, and could not live with the terrible thoughts.

Guilt can mask itself in accident-proneness. It has been traced to a powerful emotional need to suffer for real or fancied misdeeds.

Knowing how to handle excessive and inappropriate guilt can help us avoid mental suffering. Learn the difference between the rightful and the unreasonable expectations you have of yourself. Ask yourself two questions: "Why do I feel guilty?" and "Should I feel guilty?" At this point, review all the rules and principles that have been set down for you during your lifetime. Are they precepts that you believe in or are they unwarranted and even foolish. Are those principles realistic and valid for you at your stage of life: are they relevant in the society in which you live and work?

Bill Clinton, presidential candidate: "President Bush practices election year farm policies... waiting until just before the election to expand export incentives."

Marwan Khoury, U.N. refugee official: "As far as drought is concerned in southern Ethiopia, for the last three years every year has been worse than the last."

Art Rowe, U.S. park ranger: "A fed bear is a dead bear...it's going to become addicted, just like drugs," warning citizens not to feed stray bears which approach their homes this fall.

THE SANDS OF TIME

Wise Dr. Benjamin Franklin knew well the value of time. His brilliant career varied from inventor and writer to publisher and statesman. And he devoted the time to become proficient and highly successful in each. "Treasure each moment, guard it well and spend it wisely," he said.

Next to God's promise of Eternal Life, His gift of time is possibly man's greatest possession. In return for this priceless blessing He asked that man honor Him on the Sabbath. To spend a part of man's time in God's House. Begin tomorrow to repay Him for your life, for your Sands of Time. Go to the church of your choice and take your family.

EVERYONE IN THE CHURCH
THE CHURCH IN EVERYONE

The Church is God's appointed agency in this world for spreading the knowledge of His love for man and of His demand for man to respond to that love by loving his neighbor. Without this grounding in the love of God, no government or society or way of life will long persevere and the freedoms which we hold so dear will inevitably perish. Therefore, even from a selfish point of view, one should support the Church for the sake of the welfare of himself and his family. Beyond that however, every person should uphold and participate in the Church because it tells the truth about man's life, death and destiny; the truth which alone will set him free to live as a child of God.

Exchanging More Than Food

When Columbus set sail 500 years ago in search of gold and spices, he didn't know his voyage would eventually transform the diets and health of people everywhere.

Nor did the Natives of the new world predict the encounter with Columbus would lead to a global exchange of crops and bring cultural change to every corner of the globe.

To commemorate this quincennial anniversary of Columbus' voyage to the Americas, numerous documentaries, cookbooks and special exhibitions have been produced. One of the most elaborate displays, produced by the Smithsonian Institution, illustrates the world impact of various "seeds of change" sown by Columbus including sugar, corn, and potato.

Corn and potatoes had served as the dietary basis of ingenious Americans for more than 5,000 years, flourishing from southern Chile to southern Canada.

But soon after 1492, corn became immensely popular for feeding livestock in Europe. By the early 1700's, other varieties of corn were imported to West Africa.

Once farmed on the Andean slopes of Peru, potatoes are now an integral part of European, Soviet, and Asian diets. The potato helped fuel the Industrial Revolution by feeding the European inhabitants of many newly industrialized towns.

According to Herman Viola, Ph.D., curator of the Smithsonian's

"Seeds of Change" exhibit, today corn and potatoes are cultivated by more nations than either wheat or rice. Together they provide about 28 to 37 percent of the food supply of developing nations, and are used in thousands of products from soft drinks to paints and plastics.

Sugarcane was transported from the Old World to the New, thriving in the lush Caribbean tropics. After being grown and coarsely refined, sugar crystals were shipped to Europe where they quickly grew in great demand. But this European luxury also proved bittersweet: millions of African slaves were forced to give up their freedom and families to work on sugarcane plantations.

Through barter and exchange, a variety of the other staples of the American diet were eventually introduced such as wheat, apples, onions, and garlic. Cattle, goats and sheep were imported to provide meat, milk, and dairy products.

Soon cultures and cuisines began to meld to produce many delicacies now taken for granted: Asians invented fiery curries with New World peppers, the Swiss produced fine chocolates by combining Old World sugar and New World cocoa, and Italians began using New World tomato to compliment spaghetti and other fine Italian dishes.

This fascinating story of 500 years of culinary exchange is detailed in the Smithsonian's "Seeds of Change" exhibition, on display at the National Museum of Natural History in Washington, D.C. through April 1, 1993.
