ADVENTURERS' CLUB Hello, EVERybody

"Death in a Bottle"

By FLOYD GIBBONS
Famous Headline Hunter.

YOU know, it's the simplest things that make the most thrilling adventures. You, yourself, although you probably don't know it, have something around your house that you've been looking at and handling for years, which will one day form the fodder for your life's most thrilling experience. Watch that electric flat-iron, Mom. One of these days it's liable to give you a scare. And Pop, don't monkey with that garden hose, either. There'll come a time when it rears up on its haunches and bounces you right into a hair-raising situation.

You don't believe me? Well, ask Caroline Rebhan what she thinks of those simple little household items. Caroline never got scared of the bottles in her medicine cabinet, either. There wasn't any poison in any of them and she thought they were perfectly safe. But there came a time when those same medicine bottles furnished a terrifying five minutes for the whole Rebhan family.

It happened on a Sunday morning in July, 1912. Caroline was just a young bride then. She had only been married a couple months. She and her husband had moved into a new house. There were rugs to be laid and furniture to be moved and a million other things that had to be done all at once. Caroline was so confused that a lot of things slipped her mind. And among them were those bottles she had taken from the medicine cabinet in their last home.

That particular home they had moved into was a small flat, and one of the troubles with it was that there was no medicine cabinet. What to do with the medicine bottles? Well—there was an old coal-burning stove in the kitchen, and, since it was never used in the summertime, Caroline stowed those bottles away in the oven until such time as she could arrange a better place for them Then, in the general mix-up, she forget all about them.

It Was All the Fault of Apprentice's Housekeeping.

All that happened in June. It was a month later, in the middle of July, when the adventure really took place. Then, one Sunday morning, Caroline's husband, with nothing else to do, decided that he ought to try that stove out and see if it was any good.

Bill—that's Caroline's husband—lit the fire. For an hour the old stove heated up, and then they heard a bang that seemed to come from somewhere inside it. Both Bill and Caroline laughed at that, and Bill said, "Gee, there must be dynamite in that coal." Then followed another bang—and another. "And still," says Caroline, "it didn't dawn on me that it might be the medicine. It wasn't until later, when Bill decided to shave, that I remembered those bottles."

When Bill started to shave he remembered an old razor strop that he hadn't seen since they moved from the old home, and asked Caroline if she knew what had happened to it. "When Bill asked me that," Caroline says, "my face went white. 'No,' I told him, 'but your razor strop is in that oven.' Then, in as few words as possible, I told him what I had done. He laughed at first, but"—

Deadly Explosives-in a Lighted Stove!

Yes, Bill laughed at first, but not after Caroline had told him the whole story. For among those medicine bottles was one containing alcohol and another—a large one—that was full of benzine. Either one of those bottles could produce an explosion that would have blown the old stove to pieces. And the wonder of it all was why they had not already exploded.

Bill's face was as white as Caroline's when he got the whole story. Any minute one of those bottles might go up, wreck the kitchen and set fire to the house. There was no time to call the fire department—not a second to spare at all. He ran outside, got a long-handled shovel and opened the oven door.

Caroline stood in the kitchen doorway while he did it—her hands over her face, expecting any moment to see flame streak out of that oven and enguif poor Bill.

Removing Potential Death by the Shovelful.

Bill pushed the shovel into the oven and picked up a bottle. Out it came, and then—BANG—it burst, scattering glass all over the kitchen. Bill thrust the shovel in again and picked up another bottle. That, too, exploded as soon as it hit the cold air outside the oven. Glass showered over Bill—even went down his collar and got under his clothes—but he held his ground. The worst was still to come. Way back in the rear of the oven were those deadly bottles of benzine and alcohol. If they burst coming out, as the others had done—well—neither Bill nor Caroline wanted to think of that.

One by one the bottles came out—and one by one they burst as soon as they left the oven. Then they came to the alcohol and the benzine.

Says Caroline: "We stood looking at each other for a second, and then Bill said, 'Stand over by the window and pray.' I did. He reached into the oven and out came the bottle of benzine. Nothing happened, and I gave a sob of relief. He set the benzine bottle in a pail and reached in after the alcohol, and this time the sweat was pouring down his face. It had to be done slowly—carefully, and his hand shook so that I was sure that he would drop it. But the second bottle came out like the first, and Bill put it in the pail with the bottle of benzine.

"And what I can't understand," says Caroline, "is how those two bottles stayed whole when all the others exploded."

Well, maybe, it was the prayer, Caroline.

4-H Club an Educational Movement for Boys, Girls

The 4-H club is a rural educational movement for boys and girls between the ages of ten and twenty years, inclusive, each project of which is designed to stimulate interest in more home activities, whether it be raising a garden, raising pets, keeping personal accounts, making a dress, or refurnish-

The movement had its origin in certain of the farmers' institutions and the public schools of Ohio, Illinois and Iowa in 1899, relates a writer in the Cleveland Plain Dealer, and is now a part of the co-operative extension system of the United States Department of Agriculture and state agricultural colleges. Dr. S. A. Knapp of the federal Department of Agriculture gave it impetus at the time of the coming of the boll weevil ly stressing the demonstration work of boys and girls in the South as a means of improving rural home conditions, and teaching diversified agriculture to meet the problem brought about by this pest.

In 1914 increased funds from federal, state and county sources stimulated the movement, which spread rapidly into all the states.

The club work of the boys and girls is promoted by county agricultural agents, home demonstration agents, county club agents, and the agricultural and home economics extension specialists of the federal and state cooperative agricultural extension system.

The club was named by O. H. Benson

Budget May Be Balanced in '36

Success Depends on Action of Congress and Supreme Court; Deficit Reduced

By EARL GODWIN ASHINGTON. - If congress and the Supreme court do not spoil the pattern, the dear old budget is right on the brink of being balanced. Out of the tremendous array of figures which Roosevelt sent to congress on the second day of this second session, the main theme of the budget-balancing story can be told in these brief statements: The needs of the government for the next fiscal year are to be $5,069,000,-000, which is a reduction of $2,600, 000,000. The government's receipts are estimated at $5,654,000,000, which is $5,000,000 more than the government would need were it not for the jobless. So we are balancing the budget with $5,000,000 to spare-except that we still will have to spend a billion or so on relief. Remember that! If congress appropriates more than that and puts us further in debt-that's congress, not Roosevelt. If the Supreme court knocks out the processing taxes, then there will have to be money raised to pay it-and Roosevelt recommends taxes and not borrowed money for that item. So keep these simple figures in mind-they will answer complicated problems.

Also the government's deficit is coming down; it was $4,000,000,000 in 1934; it was $3,500,000,000 in 1935; $3,200,000,000 in the present fiscal year, and for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1937, it will be approximately a billion—the cost of relief—unless a voracious congress goes on a spending spree.

WHY THE DEFICIT

The country has always had a deficit in the budget when business suffered a depression; the reason being that the government steps in to ward off the collapse—and spends the money.

Somehow or other our reactionary and conservative statesmen down here do not see the point. They are overwhelmed with their own importance, and imagine that the budget is balanced when a Republican is elected President.

There has been so much confusion over our national bookkeeping, that a simple statement of the case may be helpful at this time when the budget is in the public eye more than ever. The sharp trouble occurred in 1929, and that year also marked the enormous national income of more than eighty billions of dollars . . . money by American industry. We swelled up like a balloon . . . and burst . . . and the process of deflation reduced the national income of business from 80 billions to 38 billions by 1932. That is the simple money story of that agonizing depression.

The budget was going haywire then and even as late as 1932 the financial leaders of the country were tugging and hauling trying to keep the budget balanced, and were in a panic. In that awful year 1932 there were more than 25,000 bankruptcies—failures leaving three-quarters of a billion dollars in business debts. The bank failure record was appailing. There were 6,054 bank failures from March, 1929, to March, 1933, which represents three-fifths of all such failures from Wilson to Roosevelt.

The Hoover administration was trying to stop the deflation, but its methods now appear to be inadequate. They remind me of people trying to stem a flood with bags of mud... and not using enough. The thing the Roosevelt administration did was to use bigger methods and more material. The material used was the public credit, and say what you will, it did stop the panic. It brought industrial leaders to Washington begging the government to take their business flops and bring them to life; financed the banks, and restored faith in Amer-

The national income then began to rise. From the meager 38 billions (which is really poverty to us), it rose to 50 billions in 1934, and will be close to 60 billions in 1935.

Now what has been the real cost of this high pressure rescue work? The constant reiteration of billions in the headlines has the effect of stupefying the people, but forget all else and take the statement of Marriner Eccles, governor of the federal reserve board and a leading expert. Eccles told the American Bankers' association at New Orleans that between February 28, 1933, and September 30, 1935, the gross interest-bearing debt rose $7.884,000,-000, but that the net increase, after deducting the treasury's cash on hand, the increase in the value of gold, and the government's assets such as the securities held against loans in the RFC, etc., was three billions of dollars. That is all. It is less than the deficit turned over to Roosevelt by Hoover. And much of this so-called debt is offset by good solid property and good securities.

But even with the gross debt increase of nine billions, don't overlook the fact that while we were piling up that debt we were also increasing our national income 22 billions; an increase of 20 billions in the value of listed stocks on the stock exchanges and seven and one-half billions in the value of bonds. And the national morale was saved-particularly in the government's financing program which spared millions of families from eviction. Contrast these strong and simple facts with the 15 billions of the people's money squandered in foreign and other securities by widows and orphans who were led to invest their savings in these financial cats and dogs. The big banks crammed this stuff down the throats of the little bankers, and the public bought it and went broke. And this was done with the apparent okay of the three administrations preceding the Roosevelt era. Now the Roosevelt program is being assailed by the crowd that was in the business of selling that worthless stuff.

CONFIDENCE IN BANKS

In this blessed country today there is so much money to go round that there are more than fifty million bank accounts—would you believe it? I would not believe it until I checked on it at the treasury and found there were that many depositors in banks with insured deposits, and a million more in banks which will not insure deposits.

This means an end to worry about closed banks for those who demand such safety. One of the strongest things this administration has done is to remove the terror of loss of savings by bank closings; and one of the tough things to remember about pre-New Deal banking was the soft soaping some of the bankers gave their clients just prior to closing for good. There is no guarantee that banks will not close their doors, but if they do, in these insured banks depositors are safe for their full amount up to $5,000. If one of these many banks fails, the government takes charge and immediately pays off the insured depositors-there is no such thing as waiting three months to a year for the thing they call "liquidation." There is a growing confidence in banks as depositories. It seems to me this is one of the bull's-eye hits of the admin-

MAIL GROWING HEAVIER

If your family did not receive 113 pleces of mail per person in the year ended June 30, 1935, you were not up to the average. That includes letters, papers and parcels, and is what I boil down from the tremendous mass of figures in the annual postal report. Mail is growing heavier, due to better times. The paid postal service made more than $4,000,000 which goes back into the treasury, but there is always the expense of free mail service to the government, to congressmen, and to papers within the county of publication. The government is also spending money to develop airmail and at the same time develop the science and business of aviation. We now have airmail service covering the entire country, and will soon girdle the world with it. That's American pioneering. Americans bought $473,-462,512,50 worth of postage stamps in the fiscal year ending June 30, 1935the highest in four years. Stamp collectors contribute to the postal service by buying $2,340,484 worth for collection purposes-all clear profit.

LANDON'S RECORD

The Republicans favoring Gov. Alf Landon of Kansas as the G. O. P. nominee to run against Roosevelt must be scared stiff by now, lest the Democrats dig up any more of Landon's liberal and pro-New Dealish utterances. They are now saying that Landon is not a good public speaker, and would have to conduct a sort of intimate man-to-man front porch campaign, but he has done enough speaking in the past to locate himself solidly on both sides of many current questions. In addition to being an arid Kansas dry who will have to make himself solid with the wets, we find the homespun Alf now taking a stand with other Republicans against this so-called centralization of power; they don't like the authority given to Roosevelt to stop the panic and feed the jobless. But three years ago, February 11, 1933, the governor told a gathering of Republicans at Kansas City, Mo., that he approved the emergency powers conferred upon President Roosevelt.

But another year comes and we find Alf bitten with the Presidential bee. He now addresses young Republicans with the charge of "paternalism, bureaucracy and centralization of government." Those were the words he used on December 7, 1935, to condemn the things he saw as common sense use of government before he was located as a possible Presidential candidate. He was giving the young Republicans the same sort of talk he had given a month earlier at Cleveland, where he had vehemently assailed the efforts of the administration "to exercise regulatory measures over business."

But alas for Landon. Just one year to a day previously he had wired Congressman William P. Cole, chairman of the oil investigating committee of the house of representatives. Cole wanted Landon to come to Washington to testify about conditions in the oil industry-Landon being an oil operator. The governor could not come but he wired back a telegram which adorns the public record for all time. In it he credits the administration's regulatory measures in the oil industry with "having been one of the largest factors toward increasing the purchasing power of the entire Southwest

. . . proving that progress toward recovery can be made by honest, coordinated efforts of states and federal administration and industry."

Oil Operator Landon recognized that the government's "regulatory" and "regimenting" policies had saved the oil business. Politician Landon sees the matter in another light.

Indians Stage a Rally; Population on Increase

The records of the United States government show that in 1865 there were 294,574 Indians on reservations. In 1891, the number had dropped to 246,834, but, after that low point, the Indian brought his total population up to 320,454 in 1933. The total number of Indians in the United States and Canada today is 443,365, or more than half the number estimated to have roamed the continent before the coming of the white man.

Formal Velvets in High Color Mood Uncommon A Few Spicy Dishes

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

Speaking of the color glory of the new velvets calls to mind a superb evening ensemble (not illustrated) which Lelong creates of cerise red velutia, a fabric woven like a semi-transparent bagheera. Its lack-luster surface and the fact that it is so sheer one can see through it almost as if it were chiffon, add infinitely to its charm. The dress is fashioned with utmost simplicitysophisticated simplicity according to modern interpretation. It has one of the new inch-high band collars and buttons demurely down the front to below the waistline. Decidedly form-revealing is this dress so suavely is it fitted to the figure. The piece de resistance is its cape of the same dull-surfaced velvet, the majestic floor-trailing lines of which are that imposing they quite overawe one. Capes of generous flowing lines such as this stand for all that is smartest and newest in way of the formal evening wrap. We almost forgot to tell you about the collar of precious brown fur that completes this costume. It is ingeniously attached to the dress although it appears to be part of the cape. Now that we are talking about smart evening wraps, here is something worth stretching your budget to acquire. Every woman who loves to dress will be wanting one. It's the enchanting little velvet jackets with revers embroidered in colored stones which have only just recently made their debut. They are fascinating.

The military trend in fashions is in creasingly apparent. The afternoon gown pictured interprets the theme in a novel and attractive way. It is fashioned of high-grade black silk crepe as is also the latticed cardigan. The blouse is likewise in matching crepe, overwoven, however, with silver threads to simulate a coat of mail in keeping with the military movement. The offface black felt hat is up to the moment in "lines."

Lastex Materials Popular Lastex materials are being used for everything from sports suits, ski suits and underwear to upholstery.

ITALIAN INFLUENCE IN SLEEVE STYLES

The style of sleeve has been noticeably affected by the exhibition of Italian art in Paris. Very full sleves have the preference, with a few close-fitted ones, often detachable and shaped like those in Italian portraits, which resemble a long mitten reaching above the elbow. These mitten sleeves are often in velvet that contrasts in material and color with the rest of the dress.

Some of the models are made entirely of vivid colored transparent plastic materials, such as sequin on a dull black rayon velvet dress with matching band at the round neckline. The art exhibition has also inspired Bouffant sleeves, slashed over contrasting colored fabric, as well as very long medieval sleeves that fall to the hem of the skirt in panel style.

Dead White Most Popular Color for Evening Clothes

Top hats, gleaming white shirt fronts, glittering gold and silver lame, that's the fashion picture by night, according to Carmel Snow, editor of Harper's Bazaar.

"People are dressing up as they haven't in years," she says. "It has been suggested that the jubilee in London last June is responsible for all this dressing and this splendor. Certainly it has taught us all to dress in the grand style.

"To get back to what we are wearing in America, in the evening, after lame, the most important color is dead white-as pure as marble. The draped dresses that Vionnet made her great success with this autumn are many of them marble white."

Snow Suits

For fun in the snow, two-piece suits for youngsters from four to eight will be smart this winter. Plaid doublebreasted jackets have attached scarf collars for warm protection and knitted cuffs. Plain color jackets with tricolor round yokes close with zippers up to snug little collars. The plain trousers in brown, green or navy for both jackets have reinforced knees and knitted cuffs. A little matching hat with cuff brim goes with each

AMERICA'S GUILTY CONSCIENCES HELP ENRICH TREASURY

America's guilty consciences, first officially recorded in 1811, have science fund" to $618,263.68, officials revealed.

The first deposit was in President Madison's term, in 1811, when an unidentified person, claiming to have defrauded the government, sent in $5. Since then, contributions made in every year but 1848, have ranged from a 1-cent stamp to $30,000. The banner year was 1916 when $54,923,15 went into the public coffers.

Correspondence in the treasury's conscience fund files relates chiefly to anonymous explanations of remit tances intended to lift loads from werried minds. One batch tells the tale of a drafted man in the Twentythird Engineers who, after having paid the government $25 in conscience money, decided he wanted it back. He discovered it would take an act of congress.

The treasury officials told also of a man who sent a small remittance only to have the government dis cover he owed a whole lot more. The gevernment collected in that case but normally contributions to the conscience fund are accepted without question or investigation. The treasury has another fund composed of contributions from kpown donors, totaling $1,580,379,60, To this was added the $250,000 bequest of the late Supreme Court Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes, The smallest known bequest, made in 1892, was 10 cents.

In 1883 contributions from known donors totaled $971,360,26. The war years were conspicuous for bringing to the government contributions from persons desiring to help it pay its way. Supreme Court Finds AAA Unconstitutional—Democrats Pick Philadelphia for Convention-Bonus Measure Is Pushed Through House.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

SIX justices of the United States Supreme court, including Chief Justice Hughes, joined in an opinion that killed the Agricultural Adjust-farm production by whatever means. Senators and representatives who immediately began planning legislation to continue benefit payments to farm ers and to balance agricultural output did not seem to grasp the full significance of this part of the decision. The court said flatly that regulation of farm production is not within the scope of the federal government and of its powers to accomplish this, nor can it purchase adherence to a control scheme by federal payments.

The decision destroyed not only the original AAA but also the amended act of the last session of congress.

The dissenting opinion held that the AAA was a legitimate employment of the power to tax for the general welfare. It attacked the theory that the preservation of our institutions is the exclusive concern of the Supreme court and suggested that under the majority decision the unemployment work relief act is unconstitutional.

In his budget message President Roosevelt included revenue from processing taxes, so the Supreme court decision had the effect of throwing the 1937 budget still further out of balance by something like a billion dol-

Clarification of the status of $1,200,-600,000 paid in taxes by processors was expected when the court decides the eight rice processing tax cases argued recently. Legal experts in congress said an act of congress would be required if the $979,000,000 in processing taxes paid into the treasury are to be refunded.

A UCTIONED off to the highest bidder, the Democratic national convention of 1936 was sold to Philodelphia by the party's national committee. The price was $200,000, plus some prizes and concessions. Chicago and San Francisco also bid for the convention. The former offered a certified check for $150,000. The California city made the same bid and later raised it to $202,500.

During a brief recess Chairman Farley telephoned, presumably to the White House, and Vice President Garner moved among the members of the committee urging the selection of Philadelphia. Therefore the City of Brotherly Love won the prize. The opening of the convention was set for June 23, two weeks after the Republican convention in Cleveland.

As a substitute for the general neutrality law proposed by the President, Senator Lewis advocates enactments granting the chief executive authority to issue regulations placing embargoes upon shipments of commodities which would threaten American neutrality, but stipulating that these regulations should be submitted to the senate for acceptance or amendments.

WHEN the delegates to the naval conference in London resumed their deliberations Admiral Osami Nagano, chief representative of Japan, firmly repeated his demand that Great Britain and the United States concede the parity claims of Japan as prelim inary to any agreement. This attitude stopped all discussion of the British, French and Italian proposal for exchange of information about naval building plans and threatened the conference with early collapse. The crisis was so serious that Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden himself took a part in the affair, calling the Japanese to his office in an attempt to induce them to adopt a more conciliatory attitude. Japanese spokesmen declared they were interested first and last in the total tonnage question-under which addressed to the people of the United States, who by the millions were listening in on their radios. Partisan opinion of his message is perhaps worthless. Of course his supporters praised tt highly, and his opponents were equally emphatic in derogation. Democrats and Republicans alike commended the President's opening paragraphs in which he boldly condemned the aggression of Italy and Japan, though without naming those nations; and there was little dissent from his assertion that the United States must maintain its neutrality while seeking to "discourage the use by beligerent mations of any and all American products calculated to facilitate the prosecution of a war in quantitles over and above our normal exports to them in time of peace."

The remainder of the message, devoted to domestic affairs, was devoted chiefly to a belligerently worded defense of the New Deal measures of the administration, an attack on those who oppose them and a spirited passage in which Mr. Roosevelt defied and dared his critics to move for the repeal of those measures instead of "hiding their dissent in a cowardly cloak of generality." In only two paragraphs did the President dwell on "the state of the nation." In these he said that after nearly three years of the New Deal national income is increasing, agriculture and industry are "returning to full activity," and "we approach a balance of the national budget.' One passage in the message was interpreted by some as a threat to close the lower courts to suits attacking the constitutionality of federal laws. The President told congress that its enactments require "protection until final adjudication by the highest tribunal," and added that congress "has the right

IN HIS message to congress submitting his approved budget for the 1937 fiscal year, beginning July 1 next, President Roosevelt followed the double system of accounting his administration has always employed-one set of books for regular expenditures and income and another set for emergency spending and appropriations. He asserted that receipts from all sources in the next fiscal year will aggregate an estimated $5,654,000,000. Expenditures for all regular government departments are estimated at $5,649,000,000. So the "regular" budget will be in balance, with a surplus of $5,000,000.

But the message went on to say, after explaining that the regular government books will show fiscal affairs in the black, as to income and outgo, they will show red to the extent of $1. 103,000,000 in works-relief spending, less the $5,000,000 "surplus," this leaving the new appropriation for further works-relief open for at least two

That figure of $1,103,000,000 represents the President's estimate of unexpended balances on July 1 from the $4,880,000,000 and previous emergency appropriations. It does not take into account probable new appropriations for similar purposes yet to be deter-

Skeletons in Armor Suits

Are Found on Battle Site Skeletons fully arrayed in medieval armor have been found in excavations in the vicinity of Venice, all in a perfect state of preservation. Workers engaged on excavations for the new great canal which is under construction in the picturesque district surrounding Stra, came across what undoubtedly must have been the scene of a great battle in the days of the ancient Venetian republic.

One of the many skeletons in armor was found to have a sword still between the ribs. Presumably the man fell in battle and has lain undisturbed all these centuries. Quantities of ancient weapons and armor also were found, together with beautifully modeled vases which, when centuries old dirt had been washed away, were found to be painted by hand with designs and figures, the colors being perfectly preserved.

Safe and Sure Reducing

The above was written by Dr. Elliott P. Joslin of Boston twenty-five years ago in Modern Treatment, edited by Dr. Hobart A. Hare, professor of therapeutics and materia medica. Jefferson Medical college, Philadelphia, "Excess of food. Eating is much of a habit. Thus the patient may be accustomed to eat before retiring, or to take fruit between meals, or to enjoy > two portions of dessert, and in this way the secret of his overweight is explained. The habit of eating large quantities of food may have been contracted when the individual took more exercise. The duties of active or business life shortened or lessened the time for exercise, but not for Dr. Barton meals.* "Lack of exercise. Lack of exercise is fully as common a cause of overweight as increasing the amount of food eaten. Two individuals may exercise and eat alike, yet one sleep an hour longer than the other. The one who sleeps the hour longer naturally chooses a reclining chair and the other selects an upright chair. One is quiet while the other makes frequent movements even in the simplest conversation-always on the move-thus using up the food eaten and preventing gain in weight. Gain in weight usually takes place at that time in life when one is most apt to decrease the amount of exercise."

Old Words Still Apply.

You can thus see that while these words from Doctor Joslin are now about twenty-five years old they apply exactly today as to the cause of nearly every case of overweight-too much food or too little exercise, or both.

In the treatment of overweight the same reason for trying to reduce the weight-pride in one's appearancewas the biggest factor twenty-five years ago in getting these individuals to eat less food and take more exer-

The recommendation as to diet was that all foods be reduced: that is, the total intake be reduced. Then of the foods eaten starches and fats should be cut down most and proteids (meat, eggs, fish) very little or not at all. Protelds are needed to maintain the strength and structure of the body and also because they increase the rate at which the body processes work, thus further preventing the formation of fat.

Cutting down completely on table salt in the diet at once causes a lowering of the body weight.

Exercise Holds Protein.

Exercise helps to hold or maintain protein in the system because exercise develops or builds muscle, just as lack of exercise allows body protein to be gradually lost. For this reason exercise should always be used to reduce weight. It is not generally recognized that muscular work uses up fat and sugar but not protein. In other words exercise favors the loss of the very tissues which it is most desirable to remove in the treatment of obesity.

Exercise should be prescribed along with the diet above mentioned (cutting down on starches and fats but not on proteids). The exercise should be progressive, regular, and suited to the needs or ability of the patient to Doctor Joslin speaks also of the use of thyrold extract which was in use at that time. Thyroid extract should not be used until after cutting down on the food and increasing the exercise has falled to reduce weight after several weeks' trial.

The pituitary extract which is used in those cases when the excess fat is on shoulders, breasts, abdomen and hips, but not on the lower legs or forearms was not in use for reducing weight at that time.

A Patient's First Visit

"Every patient who consults a doctor is in a state of fear. He is thereby more easily influenced by 'suggestion' and the attitude of the doctor, whether encouraging or discouraging, can profoundly affect the nervous system through the emotions, and thereby practically every chemical action throughout his body may be affected. Herein is the scientific explanation of the fact that the best of tonics is

"But an essential factor in hope is faith. The patient must believe in his doctor, in his knowledge, care, and

"The doctor will have to give good grounds for his faith, and in order to inspire this faith no aspect of the case

must be neglected." I am quoting Dr. W. Langdon Brown in the British Lancet. e-WNU Service

He came down into the Valley, into view of Will Ferrin's farm. The stand of buildings showed no change; but the place was not so bare as it had been before. The meadow was a tawny green, with goldenrod in bloom, and the orange and the red blossoms that rank and pestiferous weed called Devil's Paint Brush scattered in gay clusters here and there. Field flowers were everywhere, and a lilac clump was green by the corner of the house, and as Saladine drove into the yard he saw fresh-turned earth where other flower beds had been since his last visit here prepared.

Saladine turned into the farmyard. and stopped the car, and a man at work with an ax in the shed ceased his labors and came to the door. But this was not Zeke Dace! Here was Will. He recognized Saladine and dropped the ax and came swiftly out into the sun. His smile was broad, and there was welcome in his eye. Saladine looked at this tall blond giant with hair like flax, and steady eyes of a deep blue like the sky at dusk; and he slipped to the ground, and their hands clasped hard.

"Come fishing again, did you?" Will asked, with a chuckle. "Don't see no rod!"

"No, just come to pass the time of day," Saladine told him. "How are you, Will? Yo're looking fine!"

"I am," said Will. "I am full fine!" Then his eyes swung to one side, toward the house, and Saladine saw Jenny in the kitchen door. She had a plate and a dish towel in her hands, and contentment in her countenance; and as they went toward her she smiled, and put the plate and towel down and came swiftly to meet them.

So these three stayed there together on the sunned step of the porch for a while. Saladine asked after Marm Pierce, and Jenny's eye twinkled, and

"She's busy breaking Win to bridle

"I thought she got too much satisfaction out of her row with him ever to make it up," Saladine suggested, amused.

It was Jenny who explained, her eyes gentle. "She just did it so's I could marry Will and not have to worry about her," she confessed. "She wouldn't hear to moving up here: lowed if she was pulled up by the roots she'd fust wither and die. And to double harness, anyway. But I there alone; so she sent for Uncle Win and talked him into coming back there to live, and now she's having as much fun out of making him do her bidding as she did before out of Highting with him!"

"I hear he's quit drinking." Saladine suggested. Will guffawed; and Jenny nodded, laughing softly too.

"She put something into his rum." she said. "It made him terrible sick, and he let on that she'd killed him, and she said she'd kill or cure!" She added contentedly. "Uncle Win's

And she confessed, her cheek bright: "Of course, I'm still down there the most of the time. I just come up here to do Will's dishes, and sweep around, and cook him up some victuals every day."

Saladine asked, smiling: "What does Marm Pierce think about you and Will waiting so long?"

Jenny's tones were mirthful. "Granny thinks we're foolish!" she asserted 'She says there's a time to wait and a time to go ahead. But Will and me, we have to do the deciding."

Her eyes were so quick to cling to Will's, tenderly; and Will said gravely: "We didn't want to pur no slight on Huldy, by hurrying; and Jenny and me, we're young. We don't have to hurry now. We've good time!" "But we're most through waiting."

Jenny added. "It's not long now." When Saladine presently moved to depart, Will urged that he stay and try for a trout in the big pools in the bog. "A day like this, yo're apt to get hold of an old rouncer, down there," he promised. "Might be worth your while!" But Saladine shook his head. The Valley lay beautiful and tempting. with a welcome and a promise in its aspect today; the skies were clear and gay and the wind was fine. But he had too many dark memorles. The time would come when he could fish Carey's brook with full zest, and happily; but that time was not yet here. "I can't, not today," he said. "But

I'll stop and see Marm Pierce!" Jenny shook her head. "Granny's not to home," she said. "She and Uncle Win went to the village." "I'll come next spring, then," he promised. "I left my rod down there, last time I was here. I'll have to come and get that, and try the brook again.

"She's kept the rod safe for you," Jenny told him; and Will urged hospitably: "You do! Come and stay with us, Jenny and me, we can put you up right here, long as yo're a mind!"

So Saladine left messages for old Marm Pierce, and at last bade them good-by. When he drove away, they stood together, shoulders almost touching, to watch him go. He turned up the road toward the ridge again, and looked back and saw their hands lift in a gesture of farewell. Then they swung, side-by-side, toward the house that was to be their home.

The farm was far below him; and beyond it lay the sweep and loveliness of Hostile Valley. It was not easy, on such a day as this to understand how the place had come by its harsh ancient name. When on that night in June, now months past, Saladine departed after his first coming here, he had gone at full speed, like one pusued. But today he drove slowly, re luctant to leave the pleasant scene and these friendly folk behind,

Drury Lane Theater

The famous London Drury Lane theater dates back to 1663, when the first theater of this name was opened, on the site of a riding-yard, at that time in an aristocratic quarter of the city. It was called the Theater Royal and the first play produced was Beaumont and Fletcher's "The Humorous she said new married folks had ought Lieutenant." Nell Gwynne made her to be by theirselves till they get broke first appearance there two years later. The first building burned couldn't bear to think of her living and was succeeded in 1674 by a theater designed by Sir Christopher Wren; this lasted until 1791 when it was torn down. The third one burned down in 1809, and the fourth and present theater was opened in 1812. Drury Lane's history is practically the history of the English stage for the past three centuries and is connected with such names as Mrs. Siddons, Garrick, Kemble, Kean, Sheridan and Macready, John Howard Payne played Norval there it. 1. Jesus Entering Upon His Media. torial Work (Luke 3:21, 22).

1. His baptism (v. 21). In his baptism we see the symbolic act of Jesus dedicating himself to the work of redemption through the cross, or the act of consecration on his part to the work of saving the world through his death and resurrection. His baptism did not mean his obedience to the law of God. but his entrance upon the sacrificial werk which on the cross of Calvary made a real foundation for full righteousness.

2. His anointing (v. 22). As he thus dedicated himself to the task of bringing in a righteousness, he was anointwith the Holy Spirit.

3. The heavenly recognition (v. 22). This act of devotion to the divine will was attended by the declaration of divine approval. "Thou art my beloved Son; in thee I am well pleased." II. Jesus' First Conflict With the Devil (Luke 4:1-13). Jesus went from the place of anointing and heavenly recognition as the Son of God to meet and to spoil the arch enemy (Heb. 2:14). Instead of the temptation, therefore, being a preparation for his messianic work, it was a demonstration of the inseparableness of the divine and human natures in the incarnation. It is to be noted that the Holy Spirit, not Satan, led Jesus into the wilderness to be tempted.

1. The place (v. 1). It was in the wilderness of Judea. The first man, Adam, was tempted in a garden, with the most pleasant surroundings. The second man, Jesus Christ, was tempted in a barren wilderness, surrounded by wild beasts (Mark 1:13).

2. The method (vv. 2-12). Christ as the world's Redeemer sustained a threefold relationship: the Son of man, the Messiah, and the Son of God. Therefore, Satan made each one a ground of attack.

a. As Son of man (vv. 2-4). Satan made his first assault upon Jesus as a man by appealing to the instinct of hunger. Satan urged him to use his divine power to convert a stone into bread. Hunger is natural and sinless. Real human life experiences hunger. The appetite of hunger was normal and right. The temptation was to satisfy a right hunger in a wrong way. To have yielded in this case, though his hunger was desperate, would have been to renounce the human limitations which he had taken for our sins. To use divine power to satisfy human needs would have been to fall as Savior and Mediator. To do right in a wrong way is to fail.

b. As Messiah (vv. 5-8). Here the temptation was to grasp his rightful dominion by false means. The devil offered to surrender unto him the world, if he would adopt his methodworship him. The force of this temptation was in the fact that the kingdoms of the world are Christ's by God's covenant with him. God's method by which Jesus was to possess the world was the sacrificial death on the cross. The temptation which Satan is placing upon the church today is to get possession of the world by other means than that of the cross.

c. As Son of God (vv. 9-12). Here Satan tries to induce Christ to presume upon God's care. He quotes a messianic psalm to induce him so to act. To do the spectacular thing in order to get publicity is to fall into Satan's temptation. For Jesus to have placed himself in danger in order to get God's special help in delivering him would have been to sin. To test God as to whether he will keep a promise is the greatest distrust; it is to sin and fall.

d. Christ's defense (vv. 4, 8, 12). It was the Word of God. He met every onslaught of the enemy with "It is written." Our defense is God's Word. May every Sunday School teacher and believer know how to use it.

e. The issue (v. 13). Satan was vanquished. If we but trust God and use his Word, we too can overcome the devil.

Burdens

Bear your burden manfully. Boys at school, young men who have exchanged boyish liberty for serious business-all who have got a task to do, a work to finish-bear the burden till God gives the signal for repose till the work is done, and the holiday is fairly earned.

Knitting Fad in Prehistoric

Arctie Circle Settlement Prehistoric knitting needles, fiveteeth combs and spoons of mammoth bone have been found in an ancient settlement near Obdorsk, northern Siberia, by an expedition sent out by the Institute of Anthropology and Ethnography of the Academy of Science of the U. S. S. R. It has excavated 12,000 articles of pottery and bone, some of which are unique. Besides knitting needles, combs and spoons, they include miniature hoes for tilling fields, pieces of melting pots for metal, and bones of animals and birds which no longer inhabit the Yamal peninsula on which Obdorsk stands. The numerous remains found shows that the peninsula which is within the Arctic circle, was one densely populated.
