WITH BAIRD BAPTIST

The meeting is being well attended and I never saw better attention and some demonstrations; up to date three have joined the church, two by baptism.

The week is drawing to a close and perhaps the meeting will close with the week; so I am urging everyone to do their very best from here out, let's make this week end the best ever in Baird.

The singing in the meeting is doing very well and the preaching is well up to the standard; it is plain old fashioned, right to the point, just that sort that will bear fruit. Men will either hear and be won by it here or it will rise up in the judgment to condemn them. It is God's call to life, so let us persuade our friends to heed the call.

Comd on people let's make the greatest effort ever this Sunday, we have ever made to put it over for the Lord.

JOE R. MAYES.

Clifton, of Cottonwood and Rupert Jackson attended a meeting held in Abilene Wednesday where H. D. Hughes, of Dallas, representing the recently created Rehabilitation and Relief Commission talked over projects proposed for development in this area under provision of the national industry reiovery act. The meeting was one of one hundred being held by field agents in Texas this week.

National industrial recovery act allots $3,300,000,000 to be used by the government in the rehabilitation program. On acceptable projects the government will make an outright grant or gift of 30 per cent of the construction cost, and will loan the balance of 70 per cent at a low rate of interest. Eligible projects come under the following classifications: building construction, health and sanitation, marginal lands, natural resources, rivers and harbors, roads and pavements and highway structure.

Mr. Hughes estimated that at least $250,000,000 can be obtained for Texas from the enormous federal fund, if prompt action is taken by those in a position to negotiate loans covering eligible projects.

Callahan County is asking for aid on a road building project on the Baird and Coleman road which has already been designated as a state highway. The proposal being to build the road to the road leading into Cross Plains.

Will St. John of Cisco, Boomed for U. S. Marshall

Will St. John of Cisco, democratic state committeeman from the 24th district, is among the candidates for United States marshal of their northern district of Texas.

The boom for St. John is of recent origin. It became known only a few days ago that he was receiving serious consideration at Washington and since that time support of him has become widespread.

Support of Mr. St. John for the marshalship is largely a demand of West Texas that the large democratic majorities of this section be given federal appointments. His record in recognition in the distribution of the party has been outstanding. He is a member of the state executive committee and was also a member of the national campaign committee in Texas during the presidential campaign of last summer.

No Move For Blanton

Congressman Blanton has promptly and satisfactorily scotched the rumor, circulated here last week, that he will seek to retain his strong following in the southern end of the former 17th district by changing his residence to some point in the new district carved out of a part of his former bailiwick.

It may be suspected that the authors of the rumor were allowing a wish to father the thought. There are many of the politically ambitious, here and hereabouts, who would call it a Roman holiday if Blanton moved out beyond the frontiers of their own dreams. Biennially they stand hopefully watching the political skies, hoping for a little lightning.

Chance for clear skies for Blanton was never better than now. His whole hearted support of the Roosevelt program for national recovery is being noted with applause in his district. He is winning new laurels as the administration's economy surgeon, under which role he inspects the flood of new bills coming into the hopper under the head of 'local legislation.' Many of them are insidious, for they contain large appropriations for trifling things. Blanton's job is to cut out the pork, and as every one knows, that is his forte. He is saving plenty of money for the taxpayers, has the confidence of the White House.

—Abilene Reporter.

The 17th District has never had a more faithful and efficient representative in Congress than Judge Blanton and The Star with his many other friends in Callahan county are glad to know that he does not contemplate moving away from the district.

America First

From what we read and hear about what is being planned in Washington it looks to us as if the Administration were trying to put the United States in a position where this country can run along independently of the rest of the world. We don't understand that all of our present activity in foreign affairs has any other purpose than to try to untangle the mess which prevents foreign countries from paying what they owe us.

Mist of our recent troubles arise from the fact that European nations have been spending money on competitive armaments instead of paying their debts. Much of the rest of our troubles can be traced to our long-time habit of relying upon the rest of the world to take a lot of our raw materials every year.

That habit grew upon us when we were a debtor nation, and had to ship wheat and cotton and tobacco and such to pay our foreign debts. The shoe is on the other foot now. So long as Europe can't pay what she already owes us, it would be foolish to expect her to take any more of our goods and pay for them. Instead, we have got to take more of her goods. The only way nations ever have paid debts to each other is the way we used to pay, in trade goods.

No American could object if our foreign debtors were to pay us in coffee, or rubber or tea, or cocoa, or silk or such-like things that we can't or don't produce.

In regulating our own production we shall be placing ourselves in a position where we won't have to depend upon Europe, Asia or Africa for any part of our prosperity. That seems to be a definite part of the Administration's program.

In other words, we are getting into a place where we can dictate terms to the rest of the world because we shall not be dependent upon the rest of the world. America declared her political independence in 1776. It seems as if we were about ready to declare our economic independence in 1933.

Productive Work Is The Test

The only sound solution to the employment problem is the providing of Productive work for those who are now out of jobs.

All the charity in the world, good and necessary as it may be, cannot duplicate work that accomplishes something, and gives the person or the business that buys it an article or service of definite value. All the political relief schemes, well-intentioned as they are, amount to no more than doles when the money spent does not provide normal jobs and employment.

This measurement—productive work—should be the standard used by the individual in doing his bit to alleviate distress and provide employment. To most of us, property improvement is the answer. The average citizen, during the last three years, has been reluctant to spend money. He has let needed household repairs go undone. The result is that many homes are rapidly going to pieces, are becoming fire-traps, or are uncomfortable and inefficient to live in. Today the repairs, betterments and additions that will bring property up to snuff, can be made for a fraction of former costs and money so spent does a double duty. It gives the workmen Productive labor, and buys the property-owner improvements at bargain prices.

So, go to your local merchants, carpenters and cement men and make plans for needed reconditioning of your buildings. Every dollar you spend will be a blow struck at depression. And remember that while charity is good, jobs and investments and productive work are essential to create profits from which indispensable charities are supported.

13 Million Dollars Saved Tax Payers During Present Term Legislature, Walter Woodward Says

Senator Walter C. Woodward of Coleman, makes the following statement in reference to economic measures passed by the legislature which was published in the Coleman Voice last week:

"This has been the busiest session of the Legislature since I have been a member. We have probably spent more hours per day and per night than at any other time during the past ten years and have had more difficult problems confronting us than ever before on account of the financial condition of the state and of the people generally. My correspondence has been compared with other sessions. We have been at least five times as heavy as had to take more time in dealing with appropriation bills than ever before. This is accounted for by reason of the fact that at least one-third of the people have been unable to pay their taxes and the state's revenue from all sources has declined to such an extent that we simply have found it difficult to make both ends meet.

The public will be gratified to know however that we have reduced the governmental expenses about thirteen million dollars," he declared.

View on Racing Bill
The racing commission amendment to the departmental appropriation bill put the commission in and made it a part of the agricultural department. Relative to that bill the senator said:

"The amendment was adopted by a majority vote of the committee in free conference and it became a part of the departmental appropriation bill which has been worked out so that we had reduced from that department and a saving to the people, four and a half million dollars. When the conference report was submitted to the House, the House accepted the report by nearly a two to one vote.

"Conference reports cannot be amended as other bills, and we either had to accept the report which had reduced the appropriations four and a half million dollars or we had to reject it. The House having adopted the report, it would have served no useful purpose, according to my idea, for the Senate to have rejected it. If the report had been rejected by both Houses, another conference committee would have been appointed and the result would probably have been the same as in the first instance.

"The racing commission amendment is of doubtful validity and even if valid, it expires in two years. Personally I believe there are some exaggerated ideas as to the evils that might arise, and if it should develop that any serious injury will result to the people by adopting the amendment it can be corrected at the next session of the Legislature. I voted to adopt the conference report, which, as I have stated, contained the appropriations for the support of the State department and in which we had saved the people four and a half million dollars. I thought we would be doing a useless thing to reject the report and thereby endanger the saving we had made especially in view of the House already having adopted the report by a vote of 78 to 41, which appeared to be to mean that even if we rejected the report the House would stand pat and after long delay the result would have been the same.

"We had no power to reject a part of the report and accept the balance; it had to be accepted in whole or rejected in whole. I did not consider it wise to reject the whole report just because of one item or amendment which was controversial.

Appropriations, Taxes

Questioned about appropriations and taxes Senator Woodward said: "We have reduced the appropriations for the judiciary nearly two million dollars. The eleemosynary budget had been reduced about two and one half million dollars. The departmental budget has been reduced about four and one half million and the educational budget has been reduced about four and one half million. Notwithstanding this reduction it now appears we will be able to furnish the schools with approximately $16 per capita.

"We have passed no bill that will increase the tax on the average citizen. We hope to get considerably more money from the oil companies by way of increased oil tax and from the intangible tax on pipe lines. We have strengthened the laws as relate to the rollertion of the gasoline tax and the cigarette tax and will probably collect some ten to twelve million dollars more than heretofore.

"The sales tax and the income tax both met with disaster. In fat, under present conditions, both systems were extremely unpopular, not only in the Legislature, but with the people generally. Practically every person who wrote me concerning these subjects expressed opposition both to the sales tax and the income tax. Under normal conditions a fair sales tax based principally on luxuries and non-essentials, or a fair income tax, would, in my opinion meet with favor and I hope some day to see some fair tax from one of these sources adopted by the Legislature.

The time is coming when the ad valorem tax will be practically abolished and some other tax take its place. Whatever substitute is provided must be one that will relieve land and physical properties from the burdens which they now bear. Local taxes is the big burden and not the state tax."

IN LOVING MEMORY OF BILL ABBOTT

Bill has left us and I am sad and lonely for his bright presence; but God, who doeth all things well, had seen it best to take him home, where there is no suffering and sorrow.

The angels in Heaven rejoice that he is with them. His mission on earth has been filled and I am better for having known him, so dearly.

His life was brief, his precious smiles and presence will be before me as I go on so lonely. Bill made lasting friends where ever he went and was tenderly loved by all.

He is another link in that chain of loved ones which draws us closer to heaven. God help me to live to meet him, together with our other loved ones, in that beautiful mansion above. May God, in his mercy and divine love, comfort and bless each of the heart-broken loved ones.

Confession of one who loved him.
S. H.

LOW PRICE CARS VS. CHEAP CARS

We do not build a low-price car: the cost to us of building our car is pretty high.

But we do sell a high quality car at a low price.

Almost every new Ford V-8 car we have built so far this year, has cost more to manufacture than its selling price was. As you buy them at only $490 to $610, we have to depend on increasing volume to make up the difference.

The reason for this is simple: — a manufacturer who gives good value must expect to lose money on the first cars he sells because he cannot charge all his costs to the people who are first to buy.

But with the purchaser it is different — he cannot afford to lose anything on a car. It must give him full value from the first, and keep on giving him full value for years.

Two things make possible our combination of low prices and high cost quality:

1. Volume Production
2. Taking only one profit

First, we set our price at what would be fair to the public on the basis of economies we enjoy in volume production. Then, in order to justify and maintain our low price we must get volume sales.

Thus it comes that a car which is really high-cost to make, is also low-cost to buy.

There is a difference between a cheap car and a low-priced high quality car.

Ford prices are always fixed at a point which makes it profitable for a customer to buy.

Good and lasting business must produce profit to the buyer as well as to the seller. And of the two, the buyer's profit must be, comparatively, the larger one.

It pays us to sell the Ford V-8 because it pays you to buy it.

State Campaign for Prohibition Repeal Is Under Way

Majority of District Chairmen Appointed at Fort Worth Conference.

Fort Worth, Texas.—The overwhelming votes by which Indiana and Illinois voted for repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment to the Federal Constitution were hailed today by Judge John M. Mathis, Sr., of Houston, chairman of the Texas Liberal Legion, as an indication of the way the Nation is going.

Judge Mathis recalled a remark made by Bishop James Cannon, Jr., leading prohibition advocate, before the Indiana election that "If we can win in Indiana, we can prevent repeal." "The inference in Bishop Cannon's remark," Judge Mathis pointed out, "was that if the prohibitionists could not carry Indiana, they might as well give up hope of carrying the thirteen States necessary to prevent the adoption of the Twenty-first Amendment. Well, it looks like the Bishop will have to admit that National Prohibition is doomed. Not only did they not carry Indiana, heretofore one of the 'dryest States in the midwest, but after the overwhelming majority by which Indiana, Illinois and the other eight States that have voted so far ratified repeal, it looks as if the prohibitionists will be hard put to it to carry a single State."

Judge Mathis, whose organization is waging the fight in Texas, for both legalization of 3.2 per cent beer and repeal of the National Prohibition Amendment, went on to say that "of course everybody knew it was a foregone conclusion that Illinois, New York, New Jersey, Delaware, Rhode Island, Michigan, Wisconsin, Nevada and Wyoming would ratify the repeal amendment; but nobody, no matter how enthusiastic, ever dreamed these eight States would pile up such tremendous majorities for real temperance against bootleg liquor."

"Such consistently large majorities, with even the heretofore dry sections of these eight States going for repeal, coupled with the Indiana and Illinois returns, can mean only one thing: that Texas and the entire Nation at last realize what a failure prohibition has become."

Even when the prohibition wave was at its height, the Houston liberal recalled, the vote in Texas was close, "as all know who can remember the election in which the State adopted State-wide prohibition. So with the present ebb in the prohibition tide, with thousands and tens of thousands of life-long dries convinced by events that temperance can not be enforced by law, it would be a miracle indeed if Texas did not join the parade of States August 20th and vote for repeal and legalization of 3.2 per cent beer."

The judge said, with a twinkle in his eye, that a prohibitionist reminded him of a man who tried to live by gaubling. "One thinks he can live without working, and the other that he can make people curb their appetites by passing a law instead of educating them."

In this way, the Houston liberal sought to bring home the point that "the Texas Liberal Legion's aim is the same as that of the sincere prohibitionist—real temperance." Prohibition, in his view, would be a wonderful thing if it would work, but it has not.

The State campaign for repeal "really got under way this week," Judge Mathis said, with the return of the various Senatorial district chairmen to their districts after the State-wide conference at State Headquarters here last Friday. Only a few of these district chairmen remain to be appointed. Those already named are:

First district, W. A. McCartney, of Texarkana; second, Tom Foster, of Kilgore; third, J. J. Collins, of Lufkin; fourth, Bill Lea, of Orange; sixth, Bruce Gilliam, of Frost; eighth, John T. DISPELS MYSTERY OF BANK BUSINESS

Country Banker Gives Simplified Picture of How a Bank Works to Help Other People's Business

A COUNTRY banker recently prepared the following simplified statement for his neighbors on just how a bank goes about helping them:

"It is the most important part of a bank's business to lend money. Of all the money deposited in a bank, the law requires that a certain percentage be kept on hand as a reserve to meet the demands of depositors. It is the business of its officers to lend the balance conservatively and safely.

"The loans of a properly managed bank are invariably made to those it believes are able to repay, and always on condition that they be repaid at a stipulated time.

"The promise of an individual to repay a loan to a bank on a certain date is as sacredly inviolable as the promise of a bank to repay its depositors on demand, or, in the case of a certificate of deposit, on the date it falls due. When it comes to be known of an individual that he 'always pays,' his credit is established and his bank is always glad to extend him needed accommodations.

"A well managed bank never capitalizes industries. That is, it does not place its loans in fixed form, but puts them where they are to be used for temporary requirements, and where they will be taken up at the time specified.

How a Bank Lends

"It is not the function of a bank to become a partner in industries, nor could it be legitimately done with the money of depositors. Its loans must be kept in 'liquid' form,—that is, repayable in cash at stated intervals.

"A bank must use the greatest discrimination in making loans. A stranger cannot expect accommodations. It is customary for the borrower to make a statement of his financial affairs, which is kept in the bank's records. It is a punishable offense to make a false statement for the purpose of borrowing funds.

"Naturally, in their dealing with the regular depositors of the bank, its officers become well acquainted with their characters and their resources and are thus in a position to determine how large a line of credit each one is entitled to. That is one of the great advantages of being a bank depositor.

"The man who knows how to get into debt wisely, that is, who borrows money with which to make more money through legitimate enterprise, is the borrower whom the bank is looking for. By the frank interchange of opinion and a free discussion of various projects, the borrower is often guided and helped by his banker.

"In order to procure a line of credit at a bank three things are important:

- "1. A statement of assets showing a basis of credit in the way of invested capital, or collateral of sufficient value to cover amount of loan, or
- "2. An endorser whose credit is established at the bank; and
- "3. Average deposits of a sufficient amount to justify the extension of the desired accommodation."

AS WILL ROGERS SEES IT

Will Rogers recently told why the banks had got into trouble. "Don't blame it all on the bankers," he said. "When we all needed money they loaned it to us—but when they needed it we couldn't pay it back."
