Haskell Woman Joins Son and Family On Trip to Utah, Idaho and Wyoming

Mrs. B. M. Whiteker of this city recently accompanied her son and family, Mr. and Mrs. John W. Whiteker and little son Jerry of Lake Jackson, Texas, on a 12-day vacation trip through portions of New Mexico, Colorado, Utah, Idaho, Wyoming, Oklahoma and Texas.

The party returned Saturday afternoon, and Mrs. Whiteker has written the following account of their interesting trip:

"The first night of our trip was spent in Dumas, where the group visited in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Everett Bird, the latter a niece of Mrs. Whiteker.

"From Dumas we drove to Eagle Nest, up Cimarron Canyon to the highest elevation in the state of New Mexico, 12,000 feet. Then down to Red River village, through lovely Colorado valleys. Along the road acres and acres of sugar beets and other products were flourishing, watered by means of irrigation. In this section, too, is grown an abundance of potatoes. Storage houses along the way give evidence of the huge crops grown.

"Next we drove through the famous Monarch Pass and up the Gunnison River drive to Grand Junction and on into Utah to Salt Lake City with its magnificent state capital and the Mormon Temple, which we visited. Noted with pleasure were many beautiful and well arranged flower gardens.

"A night was spent in the home of an Afton, Utah, resident, who informed us that three-fourths of the population and surrounding community were of Mormon or Latter Day Saints religion, including herself.

"Our next route was up a scenic river pass to Bear Lake, St. Charles and Montpelier in Idaho then on toward the ultimate destination, Jackson and Jenny Lakes in Wyoming, where the Grand Teton Mountains, rising to a height of 13,766 feet, are always capped in snow. The lakes at the base of the mountains are fed by the Snake River, a wide clear stream of greenish color. Even the most experienced artists who visit this section, have been unable to fully capture all of the beauty and grandeur of the mountains and streams. The mountains 13 miles long, are among the highest in the Rocky Mountain range.

"The trip homeward was made through the beautiful Hoback Canyon down to Pinedale, where a two days stop was made for fishing. Trout abound in the many small lakes and clear-running streams in the vicinity. The tourists were amazed to see a fast-falling hailstorm on the morning of the 28th. Within a few minutes the yards and all buildings were completely covered with hail, and the temperature dropped as hurriedly. Residents of the little city said the hailstorm was a very unusual occurrence.

"Many more interesting places were visited on the route home including Laramie, Fort Collins, Denver, Limon, Kit Carson, Boise City and Amarillo, to mention several. A short visit was spent in Childress with Mr. and Mrs. Clement Morris and daughter

For Sale, Bargain: Stainless Steel Teeth

Not many people know it, but Uncle Sam buys millions of dollars' worth of stainless steel teeth. Don't get upset. They're not the chewing kind. They're the jet plane kind.

You see, stainless steel teeth are blades that fit inside the engine walls of jet planes. The blades help to drive air into the firing chambers. There are more than 1,000 of these teeth in each engine, and up to a little while ago each one had to be forged—a slow, fussy, expensive method.

The problem was dumped in the lap of G-E specialists, and they solved it.

The result is that today we roll a continuous strip of stainless steel, cut the teeth to length, and weld them to a base. Works fine. The cash saving: 55%. Critical material saving: 39%.

There's an extra reason to be happy about this, since all of us taxpayers have to foot the bills. Millions of dollars will be saved by the military services in future blade production. And the how-to-do-it is being shared through the U.S. Air Force with other jet engine builders.

New Hunting and Fishing License Now Available

AUSTIN—The Chief Clerk of the Texas Game & Fish Commission said the new hunting and fishing licenses are scheduled to be in the hands of the approximately 2400 state agents in advance of Sept. 1. They were shipped from Austin, August 20.

He explained that all hunting and fishing licenses must be renewed by Sept. 1, which marks the beginning of the fiscal year for the state.

The licenses range from $1.65 individual license for fishing and $2.15 individual license for hunting upwards to $200 for wholesale fish and oyster dealer licenses.

The chief clerk said the licenses will be available in practically every good sized town in the state through licensed deputies, game wardens and county clerks. Approximately 2000 of the 2400 agents are licensed deputies or county clerks, comprising mainly merchants of various kinds.

The chief clerk advised Texans to consult their game wardens or their licensed deputies or county clerks if they are in doubt about when fishing or hunting licenses are necessary.

He said approximately 325,000 persons got fishing licenses and approximately 350,000 hunting licenses during the present fiscal year.

In this friendly atmosphere hundreds of physically handicapped youngsters of Texas each year are helped back along the road to strength and usefulness. This hospital of physical medicine and rehabilitation was built with funds provided by warm-hearted Texans from every corner of the state, and its facilities are available to any child, regardless of race, color, creed or financial circumstance as long as the treatment program will benefit him.

Pre-Induction Examinations For 5,855 Men Scheduled During October in Texas

State draft boards are scheduled to send 5,855 men for pre-induction examination in October, the biggest monthly quota in almost a year and a half.

Local board quotas for the October delivery for examination have already been mailed, Lt. Morris S. Schwartz, deputy state Selective Service director, said.

Physical-mental examinations re-examination of 4-Fs, and inductions in October will call for transportation of more than 10,000 Texans in response to draft board orders.

All men to be examined and inducted during October will be 20 years old or older. No man less than 20 years old can be examined or inducted unless he is a delinquent or volunteer.

State headquarters for Selective Service is stepping up examination of additional numbers of men because it expects calls for induction to remain "at least on the October level" during the fall and early winter.

"We expect calls to go even higher in the early months of 1953," Col. Schwartz said. "In the early months of 1951 our calls were high. These men are getting out in 1953, so we expect to have to replace a great many of them."

State draft boards expect to complete their program of re-examination of 4-Fs by the end of January 1953. Col. Schwartz said that an average of 950 4-Fs a month will be re-examined from September 1952 through the first month of the new year.

State draft headquarters is planning combined physical-mental examination of a "larger than usual" group of doctors and dentists in September. Col. Schwartz said. He said Texas has a quota to furnish three doctors and one dentist for military service in September. Through July 1952, Texas had inducted 41,808 men into military service since hostilities in Korea began. During the same period, state draft boards forwarded 100,103 men for examination.

School Time Places Emphasis On Traffic Safety

It's School Time again in Texas and W. Carlos Morris, Jr., President of the Texas Safety Association issued an appeal to all Texans to redouble their efforts toward the saving of life and limb in this great state.

For you who travel the highways, here is a point of interest to you. By Texas law, motor vehicles must stop for a stopped school bus - - whether you are following or approaching. Don't run down an innocent child - - and there will be over one third million youngsters traveling in Texas school buses this year.

And here is a final word to mothers and fathers: Teach your youngsters these safety rules:

1. Where there are sidewalks use them.
2. If they must walk in the street, walk facing oncoming traffic.
3. Cross only at intersections.
4. If riding a bicycle, ride it on the right side of the street and use hand signals.
5. Obey the safety patrols when and where safety patrols are used.

Youngsters, today, have the opportunity for a wonderful education. Send them from home to learn - - not to die.

10 Seconds To Live

He pushed his sleeve back, held his wrist close to the lighted speedometer, squinted to read the time. A little after nine. Five, ten minutes after. Ought to be home in half an hour.

his heels on the floorboard, squirmed back in the seat, trying for comfort. Four seconds to live. At 60 miles an hour, a car covers 88 feet of pavement every second. Four seconds, 352 feet.

Three seconds to live. Something looked wrong, through the blurry windshield. A tentative dab at the brake stiffened into desperate pressure as he made out an old, unlighted, slow-moving truck ahead.

If he'd known he had only ten seconds to live, he might have checked the time more closely. He might have done several things differently.

Two seconds to live. Panic moved in. Turn to the left. No, car coming. Headlights too close. Can't make it. Turn to the right.

One second to live. Horror numbed everything into slow motion. He was floating right into the near corner of the truck bed. He opened his mouth to scream.

Ten seconds to live. He massaged his eyes with thumb and middle finger, trying to rub out some of the sand.

Nine seconds to live. He'd driven almost eight hours since lunch, and was beginning to feel it.

NO SECONDS TO LIVE. It's happened to lots of people; maybe not just that way, but similarly. Drive too long, eyes get tired, reactions slow down. Rain, darkness, a windshield that's hard to see through. Driving too fast. A car or truck ahead that you can't see. It's happened to lots of folks.

Eight seconds to live. Lousy driving in the rain. Light from your headlights just seems to soak in along with the water.

Seven seconds to live. Probably need a new windshield wiper blade. Old one just spreads the water around instead of wiping clean. Get one tomorrow, or next time it rains.

Six seconds to live. Somebody threw a cigarette out of an oncoming car. The red glow dissolved almost before it hit the pavement.

Miss May Fields, A Pioneer Teacher

By LUCRETIA BROOKS

Several years ago, when I was taking an English course in Argu- mentation at Hardin - Simmons University, my teacher wrote on the blackboard some subjects for the class members to choose one for a written argumentative theme. One of the subjects made an everlasting impression on me. It was this: "Why is an adult who remains unmarried more valuable to his community than the one who marries?"

At that time I thought that subject has no point for argument. Every one knows that any person who marries, makes a home and rears children is worth more to his community than the one who does not."

But you know the beauty of living to be old is the learning of things that are new.

The teacher that I have selected to introduce to you this morning has never been married. She is Miss May Fields who is living in Haskell today.

When I visited her for an interview, she said, "Yes, I consider myself a pioneer teacher. I began my teaching career during 1892, at a one-teacher school in Haskell County, a few miles west of town. My salary was $48.00 per month and I paid ten dollars per month for board. The little girl, in the home where I boarded and I took our school lunch together in a ten-pound lard bucket.

Then she gave a chuckle and said, "My relatives still laugh about the time I was telling my first year's teaching experience to some one and said we took our lunch in a ten gallon lard bucket." She continued, "The school had no sanitary accommodations and no modern conveniences. I spent only one week-end in that community during the term and that was because the weather was too bad for my people to come for me. Some one of the family came in a buggy for me each Friday afternoon. However, the main attraction for my going home was the sweetheart who lived in Haskell. When my work in that school was finished, I made up my mind that there was no more teaching for me," she said.

Nevertheless her ambition to be a school teacher (since she was a child) allowed her to be persuaded by neighbors to teach a private school for pre-school youngsters in the home of one of these neighbors. The purpose of this school was to teach the child the alphabet—the A B C's in order for him to be able to learn to read when he entered school the next year.

During this year one member of the Haskell school faculty became ill. Miss Fields was asked to be the substitute teacher. This occasion resulted in her teaching the rest of that school year and the three following years in the Haskell school.

After these years she began scouting for better salaries. During this time she taught in seven different counties. I shall mention only two of these schools—Wichita Falls and Munday. She said she and Miss Maud Isbell taught in the same building while she was in Munday.

Coming back at intervals to teach in the Haskell school, three or four years at the time, she taught in four different buildings.

The last time she came home was when her father died in 1929. Her assignment was to teach math and penmanship to the children in the fifth, sixth and seventh grades in the North Ward. It was here that I became acquainted personally with Miss Fields. Incidentally, she and I were born in the same county—Van Zandt, but we never met until I moved to Haskell. The most unusual thing is, that neither of us can recollect just exactly the year we were born. ? ?

Having come into the Haskell School system a stranger, I found in Miss Fields an attribute of appreciation which I have tried to make my own helpfulness to new teachers.

Each school system has something (shall I call it P's and Q's) that a new teacher must learn. It was she, who initiated me into the system by degrees, not in a dictatorial way but in a gracious manner. Even though she taught higher grades, she unconsciously let me know that she considered our method of learning primary children just as important as her own.

One other phase that I observed in her was: She practiced no politics. The under-privileged, the child of the school superintendent, or of a school board member, had the same requirements.

Miss Fields had an exhibit of her pupils' work about twice each year to show their progress in penmanship. Along with their writing she taught them to make beautiful objects, such as stars, flags, the open-and-shut fan and so on, with the direct and reverse oval movements. Her pupils nearly always won first prize in writing at the County Scholastic Meet, and so did her arithmetic students.

For many years when we teachers found it difficult to teach a certain child the fundamentals of arithmetic, we'd say to each other, "We'll have to let Miss Fields teach him."

During our interview she told me that recently a man stopped at her home when he saw her working in a flower bed and said, "Miss May, do you remember all that arithmetic you taught me? Well, I use it every day and think about you." Then she said, "Cretia, I didn't think at the time that I taught him one thing during the four years I was trying."

Miss Fields' playground duty was coaching boys in athletics. She said "When John Kimbrough became nationally known as a football player, I was proud that I had taught him to play the games correctly."

She retired in 1944 because of the illness of her mother, who died soon afterwards. However, she didn't quit serving others. She still teaches Sunday School class, attends all the ladies' meetings, the prayer meetings, prepares the materials for the communion service, and serves as treasurer in her church. She meets with a group of women about her age, who call themselves the eighty-four bunch, one afternoon each week. She is doing practically all the work to keep a seven room house and making a home for her brother.

Miss Fields has never owned a car nor driven one. She has always walked to and from school during these many years. If you should see her today walking down the street you would see the spring in her step and the swing of her body which are unusual for one of her age. It is very noticeable to see how steady her nerves are, too. To prove this statement I asked her to write a sentence for me to show you. As you notice her beautiful penmanship I am wondering if you would agree with me that maybe her steady hand is the result of not having a husband to worry about all these years.

So we salute with pride today another pioneer teacher—Miss May Fields, of Haskell, Texas.

Six Prize-Winning Letters Selected In C. of C. "Back to School" Contest

Six prize-winning letters were selected by judges from a large number submitted in the "Back to School" contest sponsored last week by the Haskell Chamber of Commerce. The winning letters written on the theme "Why I Am Glad School Days Are Here" were judged in 2 divisions, high school and grade school entries. The winning letters are reprinted below:

High School Division

Dear Sirs,
"O, happy day! School time again! Back to daily routines; long hours of marching; early rising and late bedtimes; sore throats from yelling; frenzied hunting for lost lunch tickets; - - - leaky fountain pens.
"Thursday is the goal of three months' anticipation, registration day. I really look forward to making new friendships and renewing old ones; getting acquainted with the faculty; the hustle, bustle of kids rushing back and forth trying not to miss anything.
"Then to make things even more September-like, late buyers scurrying from store to store for their last minute purchase of paper, pins, notebooks, and a week's supply of gum for the forty-five minute lunch period.
"I am a senior in Haskell High School and am seventeen years old. In the eleven years I've been in school, I have found that there is a spirit in school that one will not find anywhere else. As every one joins for a closer school spirit in sports, contests, and the yearly "Chieftan" there is a concerted will to reach higher goals.
"To me, school is a golden opportunity, which will open each of us for better things in life if we will only buckle down and let it.
"So many people say that school is just a drudgery to have to go through; instead, it is a place for a closer association with people and finer things.
"I'm really glad that school time has rolled around again, and I'm thankful for an opportunity such as this to let others know how much their efforts for a school spirit are appreciated.
Sincerely,
Barbara Merchant, Haskell."

"Haskell Chamber of Commerce, Haskell, Texas.
Dear Sir:
"I will be a senior in Weibert High School this coming term.
"Going back to school has always been an exciting event for me from the first year I attended, on us through the years. School days bring happy days of sports, studies, and association with friends.
"Sports is a very interesting part of school life to me. I think it is great that schools can compete in boys and girls sports. It brings forth a spirit in the school student body that would not be there if it were not for sports. I look forward to the sports of our school as school days are here.
"Some people do not like school because they have to study so much. When you get your lessons you have a feeling of self-satisfaction. Then you feel free to enjoy your other activities. I am glad school days are here again so I can increase my education. As all works of life are requiring more education from employees.
"The association with friends is a very enjoyable part of going back to school. I am proud of my many friends and it will be good to be with them again.
"I am glad school days are here again especially since I will finish my last year of high school thereby completing one phase of my education.
"I am very glad school days are here again for the reasons I have named. It will be an unexpressable feeling when we gather once again at school and sing our school song with the spirit of knowing it will be another great year at Weibert School.
Yours truly,
Joella Weinert"

"Dear Sirs,
"Being asked to write about starting back to school is a most enjoyable task for me. For this year is my big one. I'll finally be a senior at Paint Creek. This year I'll probably consider myself a genius at some subjects and have just a knowledge of others.
"There are many things to be glad about besides reading, 'riting and 'rithmetic. The football team we'll have a fine one this year the basketball team will give trouble to all contenders, the track team should win district with all it's material, and the softball team will be no pushover. Yes, we can all be happy about going back to school to such an athletic department.
"Still there are other things to be glad that school is starting for. There will be parties that can't be equalled. The annual F.F.A. hayride and weiner roast, also the F.H.A. slumber party which the boys seldom leave on time from Not forgetting the big athletic banquet given by the churches.
"This year will be even more enjoyable than others because we get to make our annual, "The Pirate Log". We think this is a great honor.
"Then the best reason to be glad about is seeing your old friends again. The old school's halls will ring and resound with greetings. Many hands will be shook, and many backs will be slapped.
"Yes, it's a happy, carefree, glad thing to start back to school. To be with your fellow companions again, talking, laughing, singing, I'm glad school's starting, aren't you?
Yours truly
Jerry Welsh

Grade School Division

Winner of the first place award in the grade school division was the following letter written by Gail Rattliff, fifth grade pupil:
"I would like for school to start because vacationing was fun when it started but now there is only one thing to do. That is drying dishes, dusting and sweeping and making up beds. That's no fun I want to see my old friends and make new ones. I am looking forward to taking music. Every year seems better than the year before. I want to know who my teacher will be. At school there is something to do every day. I hope my teacher and classmates like me as much as I'm sure I'll like them.
Gail Rattliff.
Second winning letter written by Anna Jean Parsons of Rochester:
"The reason that I am glad school starts is to learn more about geography and see if I will like history which I will have in the 4th grade. My favorite subjects are geography, arithmetic and reading. Besides enjoying my school work I like the association with new schoolmates and teachers.—Anna Jean Parsons.
The following letter by Emmett McSwain won the third award in the grade school division:

Careful Planning Of Home Can Save Building Budget

You can get your dollar's worth by careful home planning. The Tile Council of America offers the following suggestions to aid in selecting a new or remodelled house in this period of high construction and financing expenses:

1. Look for a house with maximum living area at lowest possible cost. The all-on-one-floor dwelling, which eliminates a basement, ranks high on the list of money's worth homes today.
2. Watch for ease of maintenance and upkeep. Durable walls and floors such as clay tile pay for themselves in the long run because they need no replacement. Each surface also provides the ease of cleaning so desirable to the homemaker.
3. Choose a heating system carefully. It should function on low cost fuel, be automatic, and be designed to keep dirt and grease out of the house.
4. Be sure that the kitchen is highly efficient. This factor is extremely important in resale value. Attractive and easily cleaned walls, floors and wainscots, as well as drainboards, of material such as clay tile will last longer than the house and appeal to later owners.
5. The laundry should be sensibly located, well equipped, and both waterproof and well lighted.
6. A building which has "skipped" on the bathroom is not a good investment because, like the kitchen, the bath receives heavy daily use. If possible, be sure that there is at least an additional shower stall connected to the tub-shower combination, that the walls are of steamproof material such as clay tile, and that good lighting, ventilation and storage facilities have been provided. A bathroom need not be large, but it must be efficiently planned.

Outlook Good For Fall and Winter Poultry Profits

Poultrymen who have raised a normal number of pullets this year should soon begin to receive a profit on their investment. This encouraging word comes from Prof. E. D. Parnell of Texas A&M College's poultry department.

The outlook for egg prices was not good last spring, says Parnell and producers reduced their flocks and also their pullet replacements by 7 per cent. Now the picture has changed. The future looks good. It is true, says the professor, feed prices remain high but feed-egg ratios have become favorable for the first time in several months. Therefore, egg producers should be operating on the profit side for the remainder of the year.

It is now too late to do anything about raising pullets for egg production this year but Parnell points to the present situation as a reminder that profits are seldom made by those who are in the business one year and out the next. Trying to outguess the market, he adds, is usually a good way to get out of the poultry business.

For those who have the egg producers, Parnell says, feed them well; give them plenty of room practice sanitation and keep them in good health. It is his belief that poultrymen who raise only the number of pullets they can care for well, and do it year after year, are the producers who are most successful.

HHS Band Notes

By DON PAYNE

Well, school's started and everything's underway again. New officers for each class have been elected and work's started . . . but good.

No one started out better than did the band though . . . we had plenty of work to catch up on too. Our director, Mr. Bill Dean got it all started out by announcing part of the program for the coming year. The field stunts on Friday nights at football games the trips to contests, and all the things we're going to do this year is something to look forward to . . . but it's going to take work . . . but we don't mind that if we can really show the public what kind of organization we have. We have some new officers this year, and they're really going to help "put us through." Roy Don Rhoads is our new band captain and if you want someone who knows what it's all about . . . I'll just take Roy Don. We know he'll do us a good job. Betty Herron is our 1st lieutenant and social chairman. We're looking forward to some fine social programs this year. Clarence Callaway, our second loote is going to be in there pitching, too. Oh yes, and our uniform custodians, Floyd Self and Jessie Jones . . . they're really get a job . . . and poor old reporter . . . me . . .

Thanks for the support last year . . . we'll look forward to seeing you again this year . . .
