NUMBER 5

J. Teaff School Opens at Union Grove

A number of parents and friends gathered Monday morning October 16 for the opening exercise of the Union Grove school. The program was as follows:
Song, America
Prayer, Brother Sharp
Song, Battle Hymn of the Republic
Devotional Address, Brother Sharp
Address, Mr. Roy Smith
Talks, by the teachers
Benediction, Mr. Horton

Every one was happy and deemed it a privilege to have Brother Sharp and Mr. Smith at the opening of the Union Grove school. Their talks were enjoyed very much.

Mrs. Branton and Miss Harris are happy to begin work again. Of a surety the hard work of these earnest teachers and eager pupils and the cooperation of parents the year promises success.

Union Grove is proud of its school and especially are they grateful to Mrs. Branton who has labored so earnestly and willingly to make it what it is.

The Union Grove community hopes to soon have a functioning Parent Teacher Association.

SENIOR PICNIC

The Seniors had their first entertainment of the year Monday evening when they went on a picnic out to Wild Horse Dip.

They arrived about 8:00 o'clock and spent the evening gathering wood, playing games, singing and preparing the picnic supper. The supper consisted of wieners, pickles, bread, apples, oranges, bananas, cookies and coffee.

Those present were: Irene Holland, Essie Mae Leaverton, Faye McAnley, Ione Messer, Veonelle Rowan, Bonnie Nell Rowan, Benish Dearing, Mary Lou Graham, Rowena Wall, Jo Nell Robbins, Wynell Edwards, Frances Evans, Odell Thompson, Kenneth Edwards, Jeff Graham, Herbert Finley, Gerald Bernard, H. C. Armstrong, Willie Heaster, Allene Heaster, James Dutton, Burnis Teaff, Roger Hammock, Homer Lee Rutledge, Marcellous Stovall, Miss Rye, Miss Gann and Mrs. C. W. Armstrong.

NEEDMORE TO HAVE BOX SUPPER

Citizens of the Needmore community are looking forward with much enthusiasm to the box supper which will be given at the tabernacle of that community Halloween night, which is Tuesday the 31st. The fact that the boxes will be sold by shadows makes the event more interesting. Each lady fixing a box will be required to hold her box and walk in front of a screen on which her shadow will be cast. Bidders will bid on the shadow of box and woman. Every one is invited to attend this supper.

BROWN-WHITE

Miss Mattie Brown and Mr. Jimmie White, both of Rochester, were visited in marriage last week. Miss Brown has been attending A. C. C. this fall. Mr. White also went a student of A. C. C. She began her second year as an instructor in La O'Brien school on Monday of this week when the school opened.

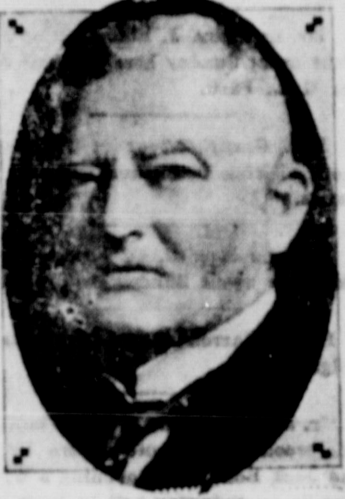

CARD OF THANKS

To those friends who so faithfully ministered in different ways during the illness and recent death of Pop Teaff, may we take this method of saying "we thank you."

To those who sat up nights or day to watch and work, to all who sent flowers, and who sent prepared dishes; to those who helped in the so-called service or any way for the funeral service, in return may we help you in time of sorrow.

Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Teaff and family.

Garner and Farley Speak In Dallas Tonight

Vice President John N. Garner

Dallas, Texas, Oct.—19 "Cavalier of the Chapparal" he was dubbed—while America took to its heart and adored this frank outspoken, clear-eyed and clear thinking Texan, the most romantic figure it has known in public life since Andrew Jackson. Like the wind that sweeps over the Texas prairies, the clean wind that has polished his twinkling blue eyes until they have the glint of steel, his name swept over the Nation last year to capture the imaginations of a hundred million Americans in whom he had recalled the hardihood of their pioneer forbears. Here was a man who typified the American spirit, the American adventure as no other. Texas could not selfishly keep him to herself, and so she gave to the Nation her most distinguished native son, second to none in the land, John Nance Garner.

Sixty-four years ago, in Red River County, John Nance Garner was born. He was the typical boyhood of a pioneer Texas rural community, except that young Garner distinguished himself from his associates by close application to his ambition, to be a lawyer and a public servant. Self taught with a will in which his elders recognized the metal of spirit, John Garner was admitted to the bar of Texas in 1909. Eight years later he was elected to the Texas Legislature, and the career of the Texas who became the most feared Democrat in the county was launched.

John Garner served only two terms in the Texas House, as the member from Uvalde. A Congressional redistricting took place then, and colleagues who saw the stuff of which he was made allied him in his first election to Congress, in 1902. Ever since then without hesitation, his district has returned him to Washington, feeling almost that it owed a duty to do so not only to itself, but to the Democratic party and to the country at large.

In his thirty years at Washington, John Garner acquired an intimate knowledge of government and politics that make him one of the most valued members of the New Deal cabinet. He is absolutely fool proof on matters of this sort, as the Republicans early learned, and frequently to their discomfiture. Monetary matters and the tariff were as simple for him as the first reader. His sheer dint of his intellectual strength, and armed always with facts, his leadership of the Democratic minority in Congress was as vital a contribution to this check-and-balance Government as history has recorded.

During the long Republican tenure in Washington, John Garner himself was the Democratic opposition. In 1921, when the country began to see that a new deal was needed to save it from destruction, John Garner was elected Speaker of the House, and never has the country seen that post so capably filled. In a long list of distinguished Speakers, the name John Garner is not the least distinguished.

Occupying the second most powerful office in the country, John Garner paved the way for the New Deal that came into actuality with the election of Franklin D. Roosevelt to the President's right hand, one of the experts without whom the New Deal could not be.

Always proud to salute him as one of the first citizens of America, the Lone Star State never so proud as when, home among his friends and his neighbors who know and love him best, it salutes him simply as "Hello, John!"

Postmaster General James A. Farley

Dallas, Texas, Oct.—19 You can't capture Jim Farley in an adjective, nor in a book of them. If you say he is vital, the man is far more vital than the word. If you say he is vigorous, the sound is a whisper beside the roaring thunder of the man himself. If you say he is active, the man has been back and forth across the country and has clinched a Presidency almost before your lips can form the word. If you say that he is a super-this or a super-that, the man does something so utterly amazing that you are ashamed of your understanding. Jim Farley is everything words and phrases and sentences can say of him—and always something more.

Jim Farley was born forty-five years ago at Grassy Point, New York. By the time he was eighteen he had completed his formal high school and then commercial school education and was ready for life. Four years later he became town clerk at Stuy Point, N. Y., and there began a political career as yet unmatched. Seven years he remained in this humble office. In 1918 Governor Alfred E. Smith appointed him Port Warden in New York City, a position which he held but one year. In 1929 he was chosen Supervisor of Rockland County, and office he held three years. In 1932 Rockland County sent him to the Assembly.

In 1924 Governor Smith appointed Mr. Farley to the New York State Athletic Commission, and a year later he became its chairman. This post he relinquished early this year before entering President Roosevelt's cabinet as Postmaster General.

Beginning in 1919 as chairman of Rockland County Democratic Committee, Mr. Farley in 1928 became secretary of the State Committee and two years later was elected chairman. In 1932 at the National Convention in Chicago, where he was constantly on the field of political battle as the leader of the Roosevelt forces, he was elected chairman of the National Committee. These two party positions, the most important and influential in the Nation, he still retains.

Breathing life into this record is the man himself, the man who took a little trip away from New York something over a year ago, traveling fast because he traveled alone, and who returned with the Presidency safely stowed away in his vest pocket, for his friend, Franklin Delano Roosevelt. Once Jim Farley embarked on the campaign to elect Franklin Roosevelt, he never turned aside or halted for an instant. His confidence, his optimism captured the Nation.

With the election over, his political duties to the Administration really only began. He had given the country the deck from which the cards of the New Deal are being dealt. His is the task of keeping the same going, of building a Democracy that will be as vibrant and alive as its leader and as unselfishly dedicated to the American ideal of the "greatest good for the greatest number."

In Jim Farley the American people recognize a political genius, dynamo of the New Democracy. In Jim Farley Texas recognizes a friend.

Casey Jones, Sewell Evans and Fred Warren were Abilene visitors one day last week. Casey had his eyes fitted and is now wearing glasses.

Woodson 6 Knox City 0

Throckmorton Comes Here Friday October 20

Woodson high blanked the Knox City Greyhounds 6 to 0 last Friday on the local gridiron. The Greyhounds could not find the handle of the ball. They fumbled time after time in the early part of the game. In fact, Woodson's 6 points were the result of a Greyhound fumble on Knox City's 20 yard line. This particular fumble was on a reverse play; and a Woodson lineman covered the ball.

Woodson's first play was a backward pass and was stopped on the Greyhound 5 yard line. The next Woodson play was a long left end run for the last 5 yards and a touch down. A place kick for the extra point was blocked.

The Greyhounds did not get into scoring position until late in the last half, when some fine punting by Kenneth (Beefy) Edwards put them deep in Woodson territory.

The Throckmorton Hi, which also goes by the name of Greyhounds will come here Friday for another non conference game. This game has caused much discussion because the report got out around here that Throckmorton was going to bring a bunch over here that were not even going to school. However a letter from the head of the Throckmorton school to Coach Dean showed that none of his men had played over two years and that all except one of them are under 19 years of age.

See the game Friday and help the local team by being a good booster.

Birth Certificates Lost

Communication is received this week from W. A. Davis, M. D. Registrar Bureau of Vital Statistics of the State of Texas located at Austin in which he states four birth certificates for Knox County in the year 1932 have been lost or have not been filed with the State Bureau.

In every state says Mr. Davis, is the Union except the State of Texas, the Census Bureau recognizes the human records, birth and death rates are computed and published. In order to overcome this condition and relieve Texas of this stigma a test of registration was made. It was found that the death registration had reached the standard and in the future Texas will be shown all favors shown other states as a matter of mortality. This result was a high compliment to the undertakers, coffin dealers and those who had charge of the burial of the dead during the time included in this investigation.

Mr. Davis included a list of births about which a request as to the certificates has been directed to the State Bureau, but the corresponding birth certificates can not be found. These are:

- Homer K. Lawrence, born 11-22-1932
- James W. Russell, born 9-4-1932
- Annie Mae Adams, born 10-11-1932
- Mary Paula Mansell, born 11-6-1932

These births may have occurred in other years, or in other counties or there may be an error in the name, in such event if this information is furnished the State Bureau immediately that record may be cleared up. If you can furnish any such desired information, communicate at once with the Bureau of Vital Statistics, Department of Health, Austin, Texas.

AN OPPORTUNITY FOR SERVICE

The warning comes from every side that the Winter of 1933-34 is going to be the hardest yet, from the point of demands upon public and private funds for relief of distress.

While there are more workers back on the payrolls, and projects of public works and private enterprises are beginning to show signs of life, yet there are perhaps as many people who have just reached the end of the rope as there are whose difficulties have been lessened by getting back to work.

Millions have been living on their capital through these past four hard years. Many of these have exhausted their savings and will be forced to look to others for help in keeping warm and getting enough to eat this winter. Other millions have been giving to the relief funds until they too, are feeling the pinch severely. And all of the sources of help based upon taxation are running dry.

We are confident that the peak of the depression has been passed, that the upturn has really begun. But as President Roosevelt told the gathering at the Catholic Charities Association the other night, the hardest pull is still ahead of us.

More than ever is it necessary now for everyone who can to help those who cannot help themselves. Look at it in one way, it should not be a burden but a joyous privilege to be able to feel that one has done something for the benefit of somebody else. There is no satisfaction in life like the satisfaction of unselfish service. And now, if ever, is the time when those satisfactions are available to everybody, everywhere.

As well as I remember the Bible says it is more blessed to give than receive.

WHAT MAKES A LAW GOOD
We refuse to get excited either by the people who are hailing the "New Deal" in all its ramifications as the most wonderful thing that has ever happened to the United States, or by the croakers who are calling the President's recovery program a failure and predicting that it won't work.

We don't know whether it will work or not, and making such a statement we are merely echoing the words of President Roosevelt himself, who frankly admits that it is an experiment. An experiment, as we understand the word, is an effort to do something that has never been tried before. It works or it doesn't work and until the experiment has been finished nobody can tell which way it will turn out.

The test will be whether the people like it or not, after all is said and done. Nobody at Washington or anywhere else will have to tell us whether the experiment is a success or a failure. We will know. We will either like it or not like it, after it has been in operation long enough to show us all just how it affects each of us. And if we don't like it, it won't work, while if we do like it, it will work.

That's all there is to any law or plan in human affairs. If the sound, underlying common-sense of the community agrees that it is good, it is good, it becomes a recognized part of the general scheme of things, to be supported by every good citizen.

We had an experience with the attempt to enforce national prohibition which can usefully be applied to all other attempts to regulate human affairs. It became clear very early that most people didn't like it. They manifested their dislike by disobeying the prohibition law; and that is what will happen to the codes and restrictions and regulations under the "New Deal" if it turns out that the preponderance of public sentiment is opposed to them. But until that test of public opinion has been fairly made it is foolish to predict either success or failure.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Rev. Chas. E. Dana

Paul in Asia Minor

Lesson for Oct. 22, Acts 13 and 14
Golden Text: Mark 16:15

The lesson gives a full account of the first missionary journey of Paul. Starting from Antioch in Syria, the birthplace of the Gentile Church, Paul and his companions Barnabas and John Mark, went to the island of Cyprus where they met a sorcerer named Elymas who opposed their mission and was therefore, at the command of Paul, stricken with blindness. Leaving Cyprus, they sailed to the southern coast of Asia Minor, pushing north a few miles to Perga, where John Mark, for reasons not given, left them.

Paul and Barnabas then continued northward to Antioch of Pisidia. Here in the synagogue at the request of its officers, Paul preached a sermon so effective that almost everyone in the city gathered the following Sunday to hear this new gospel. But the Jews, envious at this success, stirred up sufficient persecution to force the withdrawal of the two mighty champions of the Cross, first to Iconium, and later to Lystra and Derbe. At Lystra Paul healed a cripple, an act of mercy that so incensed the people that they deluded the apostles and tried to offer sacrifices to them. But this adulation, at the sinister suggestion of hostile Jews from Antioch and Iconium, soon turned to bitterness. For Paul was stoned, and dragged out of the city as one dead. Recovering, he went to Derbe, and then, with characteristic courage, returned to the very communities that had been so hostile. Reaching Antioch in Syria, their starting point, he and Barnabas reported to the church there, in detail all that God had done for the Gentiles through them.

Here we have a vivid reminder of the foreign missionary enterprises. At present the overseas work of the church is under fire. The brilliant report, "Re-Thinking Missions," raises searching questions that must be answered. We live in a day of vast upheaval, and it is inevitable that the missionary motive and method should demand reinterpretation.

The Supersticious party sponsored last Friday night by the Young Peoples Division of the Methodist church proved to be very entertaining to those attending. A number of the Woodson Football boys recruited over for the party and a portion of the evening was given to yells, the faculty members present joining, only they made a pep squad of themselves and for themselves. It was noticeable that the faculty members were excellent sports Friday evening, a fact which the students greatly appreciated.

A variety of games were played by the group, the ultimate of which was "ducking" by the boys. Each boy had to get his partner an apple by ducking in a tub of water.

Altogether the social was successful in that every one apparently had a very enjoyable time.

Saturday night Lloyd Waldrip's trailer was stolen from his home and carried to a location some two blocks east of the school house. The trailer was striped of tires and rims and turned upside down and left in a ditch by the side of the road. Sunday morning Lloyd trailed the trailer to its location but before he could take it home, it was taken again and left farther north in the east section of the city.

COZY DAYS AHEAD

for HOMES HEATED WITH IMPROVED GAS APPLIANCES

It's time to think of comfort, to plan so that when winter winds blow, your home will be a haven of warmth—a cheerful place where raw chill is barred from every room—a place where the family can enjoy life comfortably, luxuriously.

You can modernize your home heating most easily these days, with so many improved types of gas heating appliances at your command.

There are four furnaces that require only a small space beneath the floor, yet heat large areas efficiently. There are circulators that provide healthful, circulating warm air for rooms that are hard to heat. There are individual gas steam radiators, manufacturing steam heat on the spot. For the larger home, there are gas-fired central heating plants that circulate warmth all over the house, and gas conversion burners to modernize old heating systems. And there are many styles of improved space heaters ranging from the simplest

FACING THE ENEMY

Deserted by the people, Jesus for the first time in his public work forsook Palestine and led his wondering but still dutiful disciples into the foreign cities of Tyre and Sidon. The journey gave him a chance to be alone with the twelve; and it was, in a small way, a repetition of his earlier triumphs.

He hated to leave these kindly strangers. Much more he dreaded the thought of another trip through Galilee. What a graveyard of high hopes it was! Every road, every street corner almost every house and tree was alive with memories of his success. Now we must pass each one again, conscious that it might be the last time, his heart weighed down with the thought of high purposes that had brought no response, and sacrifices seemingly in vain. Small wonder that he cried out against Chorazin and Bethsaida and even his own loved Capernaum, the cities for which he had done so much. "Woe unto you," he cried in his loneliness, "for if the mighty works which were done in you had been done in Tyre and Sidon they would have repented long ago, in sack-cloth and ashes."

So the spring and summer passed, and autumn came, bringing the feast of tabernacles, which he determined to celebrate in Jerusalem. It was a suicidal resolve. The report of his dwindling influence had been carried to the Temple clique which was emboldened by the information. There were spies in every crowd that latched to him. All this he knew but it did not weigh against his resolve. This might be his last feast. He must be true to his calling at whatever cost. So he went.

We catch one glimpse of him on the Temple steps, surrounded by a partly curious, partly antagonistic crowd. It was his chance to recapture a little of the popular favor, to speak a placid word that might open the way to reconciliation; but no such thought entered his mind. The time for defiance had come. "I have offered you the truth," he cried, "the truth that would make you free," and when they shouted that they were sons of Abraham and hence already free, he replied that they were no children of Abraham, but "children of the devil."

They would have killed him then and there, but their courage failed. Give him rope and he would tangle himself inextricably. Every speech was alienating somebody. When the time was ripe they would seize him.

So they argued among themselves and he went back once more into his Galilee.

A LETTER FROM REPRESENTATIVE GEORGE MOFFETT

The thirty day special session has just closed. It was one of the busiest sessions of the Legislature in recent years. More than the usual number of bills for a special session were enacted into law. However, I am glad to say that no new taxes were levied upon the people of Texas. As few new bills were introduced, but the members of the Legislature were not in any humor to impose additional tax burdens upon the people. Among the important bills which finally passed both branches of the Legislature are the following: (The Governor has already signed part of these bills). 1- Providing for the issuance of Relief Bonds, to be matched by Federal Funds. 2-Strengthening and tightening the Laws providing for the punishment of kidnapers. 3- passage of an anti-machine gun law, requiring the issuance of a permit before purchasing a machine gun. 4-Adding hospitals to the list of self liquidating projects which may borrow Federal Funds. 5-Reducing the license fees on small farm trucks by one half. 6-Providing for a special audit of rentals and bonus money due from oil companies on public school lands leased by them from the state. This bill attracted but little attention, but should result in considerable money being paid to the State permanent school fund. 7- Re-enactment of the law remitting the interest and penalty on delinquent ad valorem taxes and providing that if the delinquent taxes are paid by December 31, 1933, that there will be no interest charged, and only 2 per cent penalty, and if said taxes are paid by March 31, 1934, the interest will be remitted and only 4 per cent penalty charged. This applied on the State and County taxes now delinquent.

In buying any laxative, read the label. If it contains a doubtful drug, don't take it. If you don't know what is in it, don't chance it. The contents of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Peppin is stated plainly on the label; fresh herbs, pure pepsin, active senna.

Its very taste tells you syrup peppin is wholesome. A delightful taste, and delightful action. Safe for expectant mothers, and children. Drugstores have it, ready for use, in big bottles.

LEAVES—nature's plumage

I do not know of anything in nature more purely beautiful than the tree covered northern mountains in Autumn.

This year the coloring of the trees is more brilliant than I have ever seen it. Whether it is because of the late summer rains or from some other cause, the maples are a more gorgeous scarlet, the birch leaves a brighter yellow, the oaks and the elms a more vivid brown, than usual. From my window as I write I look out upon Stockbridge Mountain, as magnificent in coloring as a Persian carpet, with the varying greens of pines, hemlock, spruce and fir picking out the high brilliance of the deciduous trees, and I experience a sense of sheer beauty such as not even the Grand Canyon nor the Bay of Naples ever aroused in me.

Other scenes are more stupendous and awe-inspiring, but the tranquil beauty of Autumn woods is, to me at once uplifting and soul-satisfying.

UNSELFISH—relief director
Harry Hopkins picked for his life work a career in which he hasn't a chance to get rich, but from which literally millions of other people are benefitting.

As soon as he graduated from Grinnell College, in his native Iowa, he got a job with a charity organization. From one such job he went to another. Association for Improving the Condition of the Poor, Board of Child Welfare, Red Cross Tuberculosis and Health Association, director of New York Relief Administration with $500,000,000 to spend and the duty of seeing that nobody in America goes cold or hungry.

I don't know what church Harry Hopkins belongs to, but he is my idea of the sort of Christian described in the parable of the Good Samaritan.

ICE—gives up secrets
Men who study such things arriving to the conclusion that the earth is getting warmer. The latest evidence is the thawing of the frozen earth along the borders of the Arctic Ocean in northern Siberia.

Twenty thousand years ago or so the mile-high ice-cap which covered the earth to as far south as the Ohio River began to melt, and human beings began to move farther and farther North. But the soil of the treeless plains of the Siberian tundra thawed only a few feet below the surface, under the brief summer suns. Below was the eternal frost and preserved as in Nature's cold storage were the bodies of prehistoric animals, trapped by the advancing ice from the north, perhaps a million years ago.

More than a hundred years ago a perfectly preserved body of a mammoth was found where the tundra had melted. More and more of them have been found, and each farther north. This, scientists say, proves that the polar ice-cap is still receding, and that the time will come perhaps in another hundred thousand years, when semi-tropical vegetation, such as has been found undigested in the stomach of these mammoths, will grow again in the Arctic.

Something to think about when anyone talks of anything being permanent.

FLYING—there and back

I had luncheon with a friend on Saturday recently in New York. "Starting for California tonight," he said. "I wish him a pleasant trip and thought that would be the last I saw of him for a month or two."

A SOPHOMORE'S VIEWPOINT

Quite a bit of excitement was caused in the Knox City High School Friday over the initiation of the Fish.

When the freshmen girls arrived at school Friday morning, they found the sophomore girls waiting for them with plenty of powder, rouge and lipstick. The Fish were ordered to put on their dresses backwards and wrong side-out. Then they had to take off one sock and tie a green ribbon around their ankles, and by that time their faces were dotted with so much make-up that they really looked like circus clowns. The Fish were then introduced to the study hall, one by one, after which was a program. Several of the freshmen had to perform on very short notice and we, the Sophs, think that they did exceedingly well. The Fish had to carry books to and from classes all day.

Just before the football game Friday afternoon, each freshman girl was given a cup of red lemonade and told to drink it. This of course she did. They didn't act as if they enjoyed the lemonade very much, because it was made very bitter with opium salts.

Although the Fish were rather imposed on Friday, they seemed to have a pretty good time. They showed themselves excellent sports and we, the Sophs, wish to compliment them for it.

A FRESHMAN'S OUTLOOK

The Freshmen are always prompt, so when the president of the sophomore class told us to be at the school building at 8:15 Friday morning all the freshmen were there with large paper sacks, green ribbons, a washing, and some soap. The sophomores were there with plenty of rouge, lipstick and all sorts of face cream and very happy looking faces.

They painted the freshmen up like bulldozers and clowns and marched us up and down the stairs and hall and in front of the study hall.

Then when we went into the study hall to get our books to go to class we had to carry them in the big paper sacks, and everyone in the study hall gazed at us as if they had never seen red-faced, full-blooded freshmen before.

The sophomores made the freshmen give a program the fourth period. Irene McCauley, Sally E. McElroy, Gertrude Decker, and Louise Phillips gave "The Three Bears." Irene McCauley was the "mama bear," Sally McElroy the "papa bear," Gertrude Decker the "baby bear," and Louise Phillips little Golden Locks. Marilyn Edwards, Claudia Moseley, Juanita Hammock gave a speech on "Why I Like or Dislike Knox City High School." Herman Reeder gave a speech on "The Advantages of the High School Lawn on Saturday night."

WASTE—Time and energy
Nine people out of ten spend too much physical energy doing things too quickly, or which do not need to be done, says my friend Walter Pitkin in his new book, "More Power to You." Pitkin is himself an example of a man who gets a great many things done because he does not waste his energy in unproductive labor.
