Davis, Plant Materials Specialist; Howard A. Carleton, Soil Conservationist; and Ulric Lea, Plant Biologist Technician. ficiently planting, harvesting and processing plant materials. Farmers Should Consider Longer Staple Cotton Types

The wild cotton market this season, coupled with the shortest crop in the last 50 years, will give cotton producers, processors and buyers something to talk about for many weeks. Charles Bragg, executive vice-president of the Rolling Plains Cotton Growers, Inc., said Monday.

"The price for middling 1-inch cotton in the 14 major markets averaged 27.10 cents a pound last week, in spite of the fact that Commodity Credit Corp. dumped another 385,543 bales of short staple from their catalogue at 24.88 cents per pound, basis middling 1-inch. In the last 2 sales CCC has sold a million bales at $10 a bale below market price."

"The 27.10 paid last week for middling 1-inch compares with 21.94 cents average which was paid by the same markets on a corresponding date a year ago," Bragg stated. "No one in the cotton business to whom we have talked seems to be sure of the cause. Neither are they sure how long it will last."

"The only sure thing about the current market is that for the past ten weeks, cotton has been in a crazy upward spiral." "Middling 1 1/16-inch staple was averaging as much as 35.50 cents in some of the major markets."

On the other side of the picture, Bragg pointed out that trading slackened on low mike and shorter staple cotton.

Last week the Consumer and Marketing Service, USDA, reported a strict low middling bale of 15.16 staple brought producers 20.24 cents, middling light spot 31.32 sold for 23.30 and strict low middling light spot 15.16 brought 19.30 cents.

"About the clearest aspect to the wild market of mid-December," said Bragg, "is the fact that the high strength, longer staple cotton is bringing tremendous premiums over the shorter staples."

"This should tell us in the Rolling Plains area to consider the longer staple varieties of cotton in our planning for the 1968 crop."

"If the market holds anywhere near present levels, many producers will plant their maximum allotted acres next year. We feel that this is important to the economy of the area. As it now appears," Bragg continued, "We cannot afford to lose any more of our cotton allotment. And it will be advantageous to all segments of our economy if the highest quality planting seed of the most desirable varieties are planted in 1968."

Photo Standard Procedure For Issuance Of Drivers' Licenses

Col. Homer Garrison Jr., director of the Texas Department of Public Safety reminded Texans today that a color photograph becomes a standard part of all drivers' license issued after January 1, 1968.

"The change makes it necessary for all drivers to renew licenses in person at one of our Department offices," Garrison said, "and we have been working toward setting up a procedure that will not cause excessive delay when a person comes to us to renew a license."

Garrison explained that the change in license was incorporated into law by the last legislature. "Renewal notices will be mailed to each driver, just as always," Garrison said, "However, under the new procedure, each driver must take the renewal notice to the nearest DPS office. There he will be given a standard vision test, sign the renewal notice and step in front of our camera. The picture will be snapped and a receipt will be issued to enable the person to drive until he receives his new license in the mail."

Garrison explained that about 250 full-time license offices would be in operation over the state to service license renewals. Issuance of new licenses will also be conducted in many of these new offices as well as at offices already established.

There are currently over 5,800,000 licensed drivers in Texas and about 2,500,000 licenses are renewed annually.

To facilitate the process all licenses after January 1 will be renewed to expire on the birthdate of the licensee. If the person holds a license ending in an even number, it will be renewed for a four year term; if the license ends in an odd number, it will be renewed for two years the first time then for four years each time thereafter. The cost to the driver remains the same per year.

The new license will be approximately 2 1/8 inches wide by 3 3/8 inches long, or about the same size as a standard credit card.

"We anticipate fairly large crowds at many of our offices," said Garrison, "and we hope to be able to give each person completely satisfactory service. We look forward to making many new friends among the millions of persons we have been serving by mail before now."

age by horse and buggy.

Mrs. Crownover is the former Tessie Smith. She was born in Verona, Missouri, and moved to Seymour with her parents at the age of four.

A GRAND INSTRUMENT

Tunnel of love? No, they are rims of baby and concert grand pianos.

What takes 12,000 parts and around a year to make? "A grand piano!" answers John Steinway whose family has been making them for 114 years. In an age of assembly lines, a fine piano is unique in that it remains a product of handcraftsmanship.

The first piano was made by an Italian, Bartolomeo di Francesco Cristofori in about 1709. Although the basic principle of the instrument has remained the same, there have been many refinements since that first 18th century piano. Steinway has received more than 100 U.S. patents for many of these developments.

The heart of the piano consists, chiefly, of such unglamorous materials as wood, wire, steel, iron and felt. During the opulent days of the Victorian era, however, people of wealth ordered very glamorous trappings on the outside of their pianos. Custom-built cases were decorated with gold, mother-of-pearl, ivory and silver. One luxury grand, complete with a hand painting on the lid, took five years to complete and cost $40,000, an astronomical figure in the 1880's. Today, we tend to let the beauty of the piano speak for itself in terms of tone and quality.

IT PAYS TO ADVERTISE

Start Now To Put Yourself In Shape

Your doctor recognizes the importance of exercise to health. The American Medical Association points out that exercise, or lack of it, is often a significant factor in the control of obesity, diabetes, heart and circulatory problems, orthopedic disease and emotional disorders.

Fitness developed through vigorous activity and exercise can be preventive, as well as therapeutic, in nature.

In a positive sense, health includes abundant energy and vitality. A healthy person is physically fit when he can perform his daily work and tasks without undue fatigue, maintain adequate reserves of energy to enjoy recreational activities and leisure, and meet the challenge of unexpected demands. These might be running to catch a train, quickly climbing several flights of stairs, shoveling snow, or jacking up the car to change a tire.

Can you go up several flights of stairs without severe discomfort, chest pain, or having to stop before you reach the top? You would expect to be puffing a little at the top, but this should subside soon if you are reasonably fit.

The best exercise is doing something physically active which you enjoy, with the exercise part secondary. If you enjoy swimming or tennis, or handball, these are excellent sports for exercising most of the body. Golf is good for the tired businessman. Most of us, however, find it difficult to exert the mental discipline to keep at a program of daily calisthenics purely for the sake of exercise.

If you have had little or no exercise for years, be cautious about plunging immediately into active sports. Work up to strenuous exercise gradually.

There are simple tests by which your doctor can determine the extent of your physical fitness. If you flunk the tests miserably, and many of us will, then ask your doctor to prescribe a simple, daily exercise program to help you get back in shape. 1-68

CIVIL ENGINEERS DESIGNING CITIES OF TOMORROW

By the year 2000, more than 75 of every 100 Americans will be living in urban areas, population experts predict.

"Although we see a lot of speculation over what cities of the future will look like," says the President of American Society of Civil Engineers, "the surprising fact to most laymen is that we are living in cities of the future right now!"

He is right for we are not going to tear down whole cities to build new ones. Rather, small cities of today will become bigger. Cities of all sizes will become more modern. Many of the changes are being planned - and executed - right now.

Today, many a Civil Engineer is planning and designing a new transportation system for a city.

Other Civil Engineers are planning and designing new buildings - water, power, transportation and waste disposal facilities.

THE FAMILY LAWYER

"I Saw Daddy Hit Mommy"

Repugnant, to be sure, is the idea of putting a child on the witness stand and asking him for unsavory details of his life at home. Besides the embarrassment, he suffers the anguish of having to side with one parent against the other.

Yet, what if Daddy really did hit Mommy—and the child is the only one who saw it? Obviously, here is eyewitness evidence that the court won't get except from the mouth of the child.

Should such testimony be allowed? May the child of a divorcing couple be asked to tell what he knows?

To start with, the child, to testify at all, must be old enough and intelligent enough to qualify as a witness under local law. Assuming that he does qualify, then the court still must weigh the particular circumstances of the case.

Consider a recent divorce action. The key issue was whether or not the husband had gotten drunk at a certain party. His wife and his mother-in-law both swore that he had. Could he summon his nine-year-old son to swear that he had not?

The court ruled that he could indeed call the boy to the witness stand, because otherwise he would be deprived of vital corroboration, obtainable in no other way.

But in another case, the court decided not to allow testimony by a 13-year-old girl, already extremely nervous from the family feuding. The court noted that the information she could give was available from other witnesses.

The nature of the testimony, too, may have a bearing on its admissibility. Thus, courts generally frown on subjecting children to questions about adultery.

"It is a great wrong to them," explained one judge, "not only as it touches them in their natural affections, but also as it tends to destroy their purity of mind."

Even if this kind of testimony is allowed, it may be received with skepticism by the court. For example, an eight-year-old boy's account of his mother's association with another man was held insufficient, by itself, to establish her infidelity.

The court said it could not put that much reliance on the boy's observation of such a relationship, at an age when he would "scarcely be able to understand the significance."

 For a Happy New Year
 Many have tried to destroy the Word, they have denied it, burned it, and have said it would soon pass away, but today it is more and more recognized as the authority on law, etiquette, business standards, professional ethics, mental health, temperance, child raising, and discipline, and all aspects of right living. It is a powerful and important message to all mankind for all times — it is divine authority: it has God for its author; salvation for all who believe; it gives out of itself to you faith and grace to keep you established. It makes no difference what your problem, you can find an authoritative answer in the Bible, and it will be clear and direct.

Lt. Col. Jim E. Hammons Of Goree Receives Medal

HONOLULU — Recently promoted Lieutenant Colonel Jim E. Hammons, son of Mr. and Mrs. James R. Hammons of Goree, Texas, has received the U. S. Air Force Commendation Medal at Hickam AFB, Hawaii. Colonel Hammons was decorated for meritorious service as chief of the nuclear division in the directorate of munitions at Pacific Air Forces headquarters, Hickam. He was cited for his exemplary ability and devotion to duty. The colonel is scheduled for reassignment to Tuy Hoa AB, Vietnam, for duty as commander of the 431st Munitions Maintenance Squadron. A graduate of Goree High School, he attended San Bernardino (Calif.) Valley College and the University of New Mexico. Colonel Hammons earned his B. S. degree in 1965 at the

Home Care Program Helps In Two Ways

One important protection available to medicare beneficiaries is that of Home Health Services. For these services to be covered under Medicare they must be furnished by a qualified Home Health Agency authorized to participate in the medicare program. Many hospitals have found the establishment of a home care program to be desirable both for the patient and for the hospital. It enables patients to return to their homes sooner and releases hospital beds for the use of other patients. Quite often the private patient does not require all of the services provided in the modern hospital but because the needed services are not available, the patient must be hospitalized. This is both medically undesirable and economically wasteful.

While the patients are hospitalized the employees are able to prepare them for the home care program so that later when the personnel arrives at the home, the patients feel as if a friend is coming to visit. In addition to providing direct services to patients, the personnel involved also teach families to care for the ailing person where feasible. Through this plan better use is made of hos-

University of Illinois where he studied under the Air Force Institute of Technology (AFIT) program.

AFIT provides Air Force members with resident training in scientific, engineering and other fields at civilian institutions and industrial organizations.

The colonel was commissioned in 1951 by direct appointment.

Colonel Hammons' wife, Evelyn, is the daughter of Mrs. Wesley E. Hull of 1923 Berkley Ave., Dallas.

Colonel Hammons is a brother of Mrs. Ward M. Cooksey of Knox City.

In order for a home health agency to be approved by the Social Security Administration, a registered nurse must be employed for the program and needed services to patients be provided or purchased. No services are rendered without referral and instruction from the patient's physician.

Home health services consist of skilled nursing and other therapeutic services provided to patients who for medical reasons are essentially confined to their homes. Although such patients may not necessarily be bedridden, their conditions prevent them from comfortably making periodic visits to the physicians office, outpatient clinic or rehabilitation center. Some communities in Texas are fortunate to have visiting nurse associations or local health departments which are providing home health services and may wish to qualify for participation in this portion of the medicare program. In such cases local planning with these groups is necessary to determine whether anticipated demand for services can best be served by existing agencies. In communities where there are no home health services being delivered, a hospital-based home care department is ideally suited to offer such services.

Hospitals or other organizations in Childress, Foard, Hardeman, Knox or Wilbarger Counties who wish assistance in the development of a home care department should contact the Division of Home Health Services, Texas State Department of Health, Austin, Texas.

Ins. Regulation Opposed By Assn. Of Texas Companies

Substituting federal regulation for the existing state regulation of property and liability insurance would result in policyholder and claimant dissatisfaction, an organization of Texas based insurance companies said today.

The Association of Texas Fire and Casualty Companies said in a resolution sent to U. S. Congressmen, state governors and Texas state legislators that federal regulation would be too inflexible to meet changing conditions and would be reluctant to accommodate local differences.

In announcing the Association's position, Russell H. Perry, Dallas, president of the organization, said there seemed to be a feeling in some quarters of the federal government that a federal agency could do a better job of regulation than do state insurance departments.

Mr. Perry is president of the Republic-Vanguard Insurance Companies which are headquartered in Dallas.

"We favor," said the resolution, "continuation of regulation of the fire and casualty insurance business by the states through their insurance departments which, because of their relatively close proximity to consumers and their vast accumulation of information about local conditions, are in the best position to be aware of and to respond to consumers' needs and to determine those measures which will best serve the public interest in the regulation of those activities of fire and casualty insurance companies which are subject to governmental regulation."

The Association said it favored strengthening state insurance departments and also supported steps which will improve coordination of regulation among the states by expanding the central office and augmenting the staff of the National Association of Insurance Commissioners.

Most hunted game bird in Texas is the mourning dove. It also is one of the most trying of all winged targets. And that probably is the reason it ranks so high with sportsmen. When you go dove hunting, you don't just take along one box of shells. Most hunters take two boxes and sometimes more. A few expert shotgun artists can grass a dove with almost every shot. But let's face it—only a minute percentage of hunters are expert marksmen. The mourning dove is a small bird. It can't take a lot of punishment, and it's easy to kill. That is, if you can hit it. And hitting this bird is the real challenge in dove hunting. To begin with, the dove flies very fast. Furthermore, its flight pattern is deceiving. For example, most birds will tower for altitude when shot at . . . but not the mourning dove. It makes a shallow dive to pick up speed. This shallow dive confuses tyro gunners into believing they have a hit bird. Thus they don't follow up with a second shot. The doves small size makes range estimation difficult. With field loads in a 12-gauge gun you can kill doves at 40 to 45 yards. But at that distance the bird looks mighty small. Some hunters pass up these shots because they think the bird is out of range. Too many hunters wait until the bird is just 20 or 25 yards out. At this distance, if they're shooting a full choke gun, they must have the bird right in the pattern. Actually, at this short range, the pattern of a full choke gun doesn't open up enough. So, quite often they'll shoot in front of or behind the bird. A modified choke is best for this range. Open bore is even better. But an open bore gun is useless on long range shots. Some hunters even wait to make their shots at 10 or 15 yards. Unless it's a straight-in shot, they'll usually miss at this close distance because of the difficulty in swinging the gun on a target crossing at 50 or 60 miles per hour. And when they do hit on these short shots, they literally blow the birds to bits. Doves are plentiful throughout Texas. Often you can get some choice shooting just outside the city limits. There are several ways to hunt doves. In dry years the best hunting usually is around a pond or farm tank. Take a stand and pop the birds as they sail in for water. You don't even need a blind. Just squat down in the grass and keep still. Good hunting is found in corn and rice fields to. Note where the birds are coming to feed and take a station accordingly. Dove hunting can get tough in a wet year. Then the birds don't have to use ponds and farm tanks for water. Wet-year hunting calls for jump shooting. Crisscross a field and take your shots as you jump the birds out of the grass. It's a lot like quail shooting, except that doves will take to the air when you get within 30 or 40 yards of them. You'll have a lot of long shots. But it only adds to the sport. Improve your hunting by using decoys. Place the decoys on fence wires or on the limbs of trees.

When picking trees for decoys, select only those with little foliage so doves can spot the decoys from a distance. You can place decoys on the shorelines of ponds and farm tanks. But pick spots where there is little grass so that the decoys will show up. Decoying doves differs from decoying waterfowl in that you only need a few decoys to do the trick. A half dozen is plenty if they're placed in conspicuous places. Face the decoys into the wind. Doves, like other birds, don't like their back feathers ruffled by the wind. Because of the small size of the dove, some folks may think a small shotgun is needed. Well, you can drop doves with a 410 if you're a good shot, but if you check the hunters in the field, you'll find the 12-gauge is by far the most popular weapon. Shot size is a matter of hunter choice with the range going all the way from No. 6 to No. 9. Some hunters use No. 6 shot in a full choke gun for long-range shooting because the pellets carry better. Most popular shot-size, however, is No. 7 1/2 and No. 8. Both sizes have ample pellets to give a dense pattern, which is the key to success in dove hunting. You can judge the shot size to fit your need by noting the pellet count on various sizes. Now, these counts are for one ounce of shot. With No. 6 shot you'll have 225 pellets in the load. An ounce of 7 1/2 counts 350; No. 8 counts 410, and No. 9 counts 584. No. 6 shot is okay for long-range shooting in a full-choke gun. You can use 7 1/2 for long range if there is very little wind. Use 8 and 9 for those 30-yard shots. But if there is a stiff wind blowing, you can expect some terrible wind-blown patterns with the light No. 9 pellets. It's a good idea to carry several shot sizes and use the size that best fits the occasion. But remember this. Take along plenty of ammo. Doves are tricky targets, and you'll blow a lot of holes in the sky before getting your limit.

FEEDING TO HEAVIER WEIGHTS CUTS CATTLE FEEDING PROFITS

Feeding to heavy weights usually is a false economy for cattlemen, and creates price problems as well. Costs of gain go up sharply as livestock are fed to heavier weights. Data published by the National Research Council's Committee on Animal Nutrition show a substantial drop in feed conversion efficiency for a yearling steer in a feedlot as the weight increases past 1,000 pounds. Iowa State University tests show that the cost of putting weight on a 1,200 pound animal costs 66 percent more than to put the same weight on a 1,000 pound animal.

Americans Get Touchy

More than one in 12 Americans is touchy. They react with pain to the touch of hot or cold foods, sweets or soups, or even to the slightest pressure of a spoon or the rim of a cup. Sensitive or "touchy" teeth, once thought to be a problem for older people, are now known to affect the 18 to 30 age group.

More Women

Women outnumber men two to one as sufferers. A cause may be that women have a tendency to brush more often and vigorously than males. In general, the condition stems from incorrect brushing, general erosion or gum conditions.

Double Troubles

Without a toothpaste designed especially for touchy teeth, all the brushing in the world won't brush the trouble or pain away. The reason is that teeth are sensitive when outer protection wears down. A toothpaste called Thermo-dent relieves the pain of touchy teeth and helps build resistance to pain in areas where tooth enamel has been worn away. It's available at local drug stores.

Letters From Our Readers

Dear Tommy and Norma:

We received this letter and because it is such a nice, thoughtful letter we would like for you to print it in your paper.

Not because it was written to us, but because there is still a plea for mail to our men in service.

Our son, Hollis Gene, is in Saigon, South Viet Nam and he tells us that there are lots of men there that do not receive mail of any kind.

By writing to our men in service we can perhaps in some small way, help to support them and to keep their morale high.

We still miss Knox and the people there and wish for all of you in the coming year, health, wealth, but most of all happiness.

Sincerely,
Sipe and Dale

I would like to take this time to show my appreciation to you two wonderful people who think enough of the servicemen over here who are doing their job for their country whether they want to or not; Thank You very much for the wonderful package that I received from you and the Chaves County Chapter of the American Red Cross. It is wonderful people like you that make this war less unbearable. If it weren't for the wonderful gifts we received today there would have been no Christmas for I know of over 3000 men in the 2d Brigade of the 101st Abn Div. The gifts were deeply appreciated by everyone and I know they will all write the Chapter there little letters of appreciation but in case they don't have a chance to or can't, I would like to take the opportunity to try and thank you for all of us here. You just can't realize how much of a morale builder you people are that do things like this for the servicemen here in Viet Nam.

Miss Lynn Clarke entertained a teenage group last Sunday evening after church with a New Year's Eve party in her parents new home on the Munday highway.

Games were enjoyed, and fireworks helped usher in the New Year.

Refreshments of chips, dip, mints, nuts, brownies, soft drinks and punch were served to Lynn Beason, Betsy Ross, Paul Graham, Kenny Lawson, Jody McKinney, Tommy Woodward, Gwen Angle, Winston May of Rule, Anne Hoge, Sandy Park, Bill Park, Sammy Tankersley, Bobby Lewis, Rogers Lankford, Larry Wadzeck of Rochester, Don Hawkins, Emmy Jones, Linda Petty, Mary Beth Anderson, Cindy Huntsman, Keith Gauntt of Rochester, Mike Newton, also of Rochester, and the hosts, Mr. and Mrs. C. G. Clarke.

Nam. By the way, since I see you are from Roswell, maybe you know where Deming is. My wife lives there with her folks. We are going to experience the wonderful feeling of having someone to call us mama and dada real soon. My wife, Jean, is supposed to have a baby in April sometime. I will write her and tell her about you nice people and she will probably write you a card of appreciation also. My parents live in Monahans, Texas. My father works for Cabot Gasoline Corporation. Tell the people there that their work is greatly appreciated by all the servicemen over here and that anything else they can do will be considered a near miracle. Some of the boys over here never get letters from home and they are way down the list on morale. If you could get some more people to write they wouldn't feel so bad. Address your letters to this address on the envelope except leave the name out and I will distribute them equally among the troops. I am the mail clerk and the company clerk so I handle all mail that comes to this Company.

I will go now and remember that we are all thankful for all the nice gifts that we received today.

Very sincerely yours,
