

Children's Pictures To Be Taken

By WINSTON B. LUCAS
It is an undisputed fact that the responsibilities of tomorrow's world our nation and community will rest upon the shoulders of the children of today. Since this is true, the publisher of this newspaper would like to give you a good look at these future "World Builders."

The only way we can do this is by publishing pictures of them in a feature series. To assure the latest and best reproduction pictures they must all be of uniform size and quality.

An expert children's photographer with all the necessary equipment for this specialized work will be here Wednesday, July 9th. Pictures will be taken at the Knox County Herald office from 10:00 a.m. to 6:00 p.m.

NO CHARGE TO PARENTS
There is no charge to the parents. There are absolutely no strings to this invitation. It is bonafide in every sense of the word. Parents do not have to be subscribers, nor even readers of this newspaper to take advantage of this feature. Neither are they obligated to purchase pictures after they are taken. Those who want some additional prints may obtain a limited number by arrangement with the studio representative when they select the pose they want printed in the paper. It is entirely up to them.

THE MORE PICTURES THE BETTER
This paper simply wants pictures of all the youngsters and the more, the better. So the mothers and fathers of the community in which this paper circulates should remember the date, Wednesday, July 9th, bring their children to the photographer.

You will be mighty glad afterwards, if you did and very very sorry if you do not permit your children to participate in this event. The kiddies will have fun and both mother and dad and the youngsters too will be very proud to see their pictures in print later.

Top SCS Officials Include KC In State Conservation Review

The James E. "Bud" Smith Plant Materials Center four miles northwest of Knox City was honored last Wednesday when several top Soil Conservation Service officials included the Knox City Center in a week-long tour reviewing conservation work in Texas. Among the top officials were Kenneth E. Grant and Clyde Graham. Grant, administrator of the Soil Conservation Service, Washington, D. C. since January 10, was selected for the top post after Donald A. Williams announced his plans to retire. Before succeeding Williams, Grant was associate administrator. A native of New Hampshire, he worked his way up through SCS ranks, holding every line position in the field as well as two top state staff positions. Graham, a native of Knox City and son of Mr. and Mrs. L. W. Graham, has been state conservationist for the SCS in Texas since April, succeeding H. N. Smith who died March 13. Graham was head of the SCS water shed planning division in Washington before being named to the state post. Prior to the Washington assignment, he was deputy state conservationist for SCS in Texas. Other Soil Conservation Service officials making the tour with Grant and Graham included Joe Kuykendall, head of the SCS regional technical service center in Fort Worth, H. L. "Hank" Leithead, regional range conservationist of Fort Worth; R. E. "Bob" Williams, head range conservationist from Washington, D. C.; Howard Passey, state resource conservationist of Temple; C. A. Rechenhain, state resource conservationist of Temple; Arnold Davis, plant material specialist of Temple and former manager of the local plant center; and Paul Larson, area conservationist of Abilene. According to Jake Garrison, newly-named manager of the local SCS plant material center, the tour had included Sonora, San Angelo, Abilene, and Anson. Mr. Graham left Knox City for Brownwood to attend a meeting of state agricultural leaders.

Suit Filed Friday In Abilene Against Miller Creek Project

According to the Abilene Reporter News, a suit was filed in Federal District Court in Abilene Friday against the May 29 election on the Miller Creek Reservoir project.

Five Haskell citizens allegedly raised the contention that the election was unconstitutional, and they are seeking to invoke a U.S. Supreme Court decision handed down three weeks ago. The court held that according to a Louisiana law, restricted voting in a revenue bond election is unconstitutional.

The project involves a vote by the property tax-payers in Haskell, Munday, Knox City, and Goree on a contract for the purchase of water from the North Central Texas Municipal Water Authority, and on combination revenue and tax bonds to finance the reservoir. James W. Wilson, an Austin attorney, filed the petition against the city of Haskell, its Mayor, H. V. Woodard, the NCTMWA, and its president L. B. Patterson Sr. in behalf of five Haskell residents, Sammy Joe Fought, Mary Lou Fought, Boyd Rousseau, Walter Otho Nanny, and Don Garrett. It requested that a three-judge Federal Court be impaneled to hear the case since it raises the question of the constitutionality of a Texas law.

The plaintiffs contend that they are all qualified voters and that they were prohibited by Texas law from casting a vote in the election. In the Tuesday morning edition See SUIT FILED, Page 6

Police Chief David Woody reported Monday afternoon that there has been an increasing amount of vandalism occurring in stop sign damage throughout the city. As will be noted in this week's Herald, a reward is being offered for information leading to the arrest and conviction of any person tampering with, defacing, turning, or damaging the traffic signs. Mr. Woody said that the city had erected a number of new signs within the past month and that at least 25% of these new signs had been bent, twisted, or broken entirely from the posts on which they are mounted. Not only is this destruction of city property, he said, but also a useless waste of taxpayers' money to replace the signs. He also said that by turning the signs in the wrong direction greatly increased the possibility of traffic accidents at these intersections, especially for newcomers or out of town folk who are not familiar with traffic patterns within our town.

Baptist Minister Attends Workshop

A week in the mountains of New Mexico looks very appealing to Rev. and Mrs. Roger Butler, not for a vacation from the July heat, but for a training program in advanced Sunday school work. The training courses are being held at Gloria, a summer retreat for church workers from all over the nation, under the direction of the Sunday school board of the Southern Baptist Convention.

Located near Santa Fe, Gloria is one mile high in the mountains of that state. Last year 15,000 persons from the state of Texas alone, attended conferences and workshops there.

Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Donaldson and Mrs. R. Lee Webb of Abilene were in Comanche last week to check on the extensive damage which occurred to the home of their mother during the hail storm last Wednesday night. Reports were that hail stones weighing as much as 15 pounds fell during that storm.

VISITS AUNT

Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Donaldson visited her aunt, Miss Mabel Hall in Sidney and her mother, Mrs. Chester Langston in Cisco Saturday. They also stopped in Haskell for a visit with his mother.

Businessmen and Merchants of Knox and Haskell Counties

Dear Sirs:

It has been a pleasure for me to work with each of you on your advertising and commercial printing. You have been extra kind and congenial to me in all of our relationships.

I feel that the business outlook for both Haskell and Knox counties is extra bright. It takes the bank, newspaper, businessman, merchant, farmer and the people - everyone working together to get the desired results. I feel you have all the ingredients for one of the most productive areas, both business and agricultural, that there is in Texas.

Maybe it was this choice area that made my living and working there so enjoyable to me, but I believe it would be more of the truth to say it was the fine people that I was associated with that made it enjoyable.

Thanks again for your kindness and congeniality this past 17 months.

Sincerely,
Raymond Greenwood

P. S. Remember - It pays to advertise!

GRASSHOPPER APHIDS

Grasshopper leaf aphid and the grasshopper aphid are the aphids most commonly found attacking grain during June and July. The grasshopper leaf aphid is greenish-blue and is found in the whorl or on the lower parts. Largest numbers of these aphids are usually found in the spring of the year. Populations of corn grasshopper aphid can damage grain from the seedling stage through harvest. How- ever, grasshopper leaf aphids in Knox County are usually suppressed by natural insects (the ladybugs and others) before the grasshopper plants reach the damage stage.

Grasshopper leaf aphid is light green with a prominent dark green line down the center of the body. Colonies of grasshopper leaf aphid are usually found on the lower leaves; a few grasshoppers may be found in the whorl and colonies may be found underneath the top of the plant. Aphids feed by sucking plant toxins and injecting plant toxins. These toxins cause reddish spots on the leaves. The reddened leaf areas are greenbug populations. Under heavy populations of grasshopper leaf aphid begins to die, and the plant turns from the outer whorl toward the center.

Enemies of the grasshopper leaf aphid are lady beetles, green lacewing larvae, damsel bugs, and fly larvae. Greenbug is parasitized by several beneficial insects are present in sufficient numbers to control grasshoppers, the insecticides should be applied based on one year's experience. The following table gives guidelines on the insecticide application.

Life Cycle - Emergence to maturity - high - Treat when populations are high, with colonies of aphids on lower leaf surface. Pre-planting - Treat before any entire crop is killed; Pre-planting and early - Treat when greenbug populations are sufficient to cause damage to more than the two lowest leaves.

At the County Extension office for control.
