In areas where the wheat crop has been lost due to drought and insect damage, by J. C. McGee, chairman of the Knox County PMA Committee, who points out that American consumers are displaying a strong demand for meat. And in order to assure this demand for meat ample supplies of feed must be on hand.

Feed is the essential factor in maintaining livestock numbers and meat production at their present high levels. Meat production is now at a high level and output in 1951 is expected to exceed last year's by about 15 per cent. Prospects are that demand for meat will call for further increases in production.

"While feed supplies are available at the present time, it must be remembered that livestock numbers are high and represent a heavy drain on these supplies," McGee said. "In fact, this year will probably see declines in reserves of our feed concentrates. For instance, with a near-record corn crop of more than 3 billion bushels in 1950, our reserves of this most important feed grain may be reduced by 250 to 300 million bushels by October of this year."

"In Texas, the wheat crop has been seriously damaged by drought. This loss, as far as feed is concerned, can be replaced somewhat by planting grain sorghums in areas where cotton is not adapted.

"We can readily see the importance of this grain sorghum program when we realize that if feed grain production in 1951 turns out as indicated by the BAE report of farmers' March 1 intentions to plant, production in 1951 will be six per cent less than last year. We hope that farmers in Knox County will review their planting intentions and decide to plant more grain sorghums so vitally needed in the defense effort."

Last year, after the company ginned more than 19,000 bales from the crop of 1949, the total was $3.00 per bale and visited in the home of her sister, Mrs. Doyle Pyatt, and Mrs. Pyatt during the week end.

Despite a short crop, the gin had another successful season in 1950, turning out a total of 150 bales.

WINDY DAYS
 The wind from the beautiful and popular Paradise may beach is clearly says that every man should be thoroughly prepared against all possible emergencies, to meet all possible life trials, and to be protected against disastrous surprises.

DREAMS in Desert Places
 By GAILLE STEPHENS

 The ten Virgins Matt. 25:1-13. Whatever else this beautiful and popular Paradise may beach is clearly says that every man should be thoroughly prepared against all possible emergencies, to meet all possible life trials, and to be protected against disastrous surprises.

The wise virgins had these things, the foolish had not done them. In this lay the difference between them, they had the same aim, the same interest, and they were on the same mission, but five of them calculated their needs at the lowest point, speculated on the future demands, had chances against unknown conditions. They lost for the lack of preparation against emergencies.

We live our lives in a world of surprises, of miscalculations, of sudden changes, of unexpected calls, of unforeseen storms. It is wisdom to admit this and provide for it. If our lives move on a level of "could be easy" but it always comes through mountains as well as low seas. There are heights to be ascended and depths to be crossed. It is day at one moment, it is night at the next moment. It is smooth at one moment, it is rough at another. Normal life is the life of trial and unusual circumstances. To be ready for all things is the man thing. It is not fitted to meet strains, but in a point somewhere a man will pay the price of his folly.

Being prepared in the power of the Holy Spirit one can rejoice in tribulation, be calm in time of sudden changes, rejoice in the sweet peace of Jesus Christ in the soul, and know God will keep him at all times.

What We Mean When We Say---

BUY WHOLESALE

Can best be understood when you visit our locker rooms and CHECK THE DIFFERENCE for yourself. To buy a whole ham or a side of bacon (and this IS a wholesale purchase) is no financial strain for the homes of this community. Even both at ONE time is within the bounds of common sense for most, and within the reach of their purchasing power.

The same thing is true of a quarter or half of a fat calf. Our top processing methods on home-raised meat makes every portion into good-tasting food. And it is not uncommon for our customers to tell us they get TWICE AS MUCH at wholesale prices, in portions and food value. Why don't YOU come by and learn first-hand?

ON HAND NOW — Bacon and Ham from grain-fed hogs of top quality, and TWO of the best fat calves we have had in many weeks.
