Bible Study M. E. Sunday, Aug. 7th

Luke 6

Christ here reproves the Pharisees touching the observation of the Sabbath. He is showing to them, that that is the spirit of the Sabbath, to do that which will bring glory to Himself and to the Father or by doing that which is good. Jesus also calls his apostles from among the many disciples who are following him: It seems in verse 16, that Judas was the son and not the brother of James. These are the men that Christ called to give special power and leadership, in carrying on His kingdom. It seems now that Jesus asks His disciples to a plain country, and there delivers an ordination address especially to the twelve, with the whole multitude listening. In some respects this sermon is identical with the sermon on the Mount. If Luke is giving, here, the sermon on the Mount, he leaves out a great portion of it. We notice that he delivers only four beatitudes, four woes, an exhortation to live, and exhortation to stringent self-examination, and an exhortation to obedience.

In verse 24, Jesus is not condemning wealth, but only pleading that we will not spend it in selfish luxury, as did Dives, and despise the poor and oppress them. Those who do so "shall hunger" shall experience spiritual destitution, shall mourn and weep in the world to come.

Verse 26, A warning to all Christian ministers and teachers not to count popularity by speaking smooth words, and saying, "Peace, peace, when there is no peace." Plutarch relates of Phocion the Athenian, "Once while he was delivering a public speech and making a good impression, and saw that all his hearers were equally pleased, with what he said, he turned to his friends and said, "Surely I must have forgotten myself and said something wrong." Similarly Diogenes Laertius relates of a certain philosopher, that some one announced to him that all men were praising him he replied, "Why that evil have I done?"

Let us study this wonderful chapter with great care and prayer. There are many fine expressions which we need to memorize and carry with us daily. Also read in comparison with this the Sermon on the Mount, the 5th, 6th, and 7th Chapters of Matthew.

Monday evening a large group of Knox City Baptist attended the service at the Baptist church in Rochester. A revival meeting is in progress at the Rochester church with Reverend Whitley of Haskell doing the preaching. Those from Knox City who were in the crowd included Mr. and Mrs. Guy Milford, Mr. and Mrs. Bud Thompson, Reverend John J. Milford, Mr. and Mrs. Press Hitchcock and daughters, Reverend and Mrs. Stovall and children, Uncle and Aunt Joe Smith and Edwin, and Mr. and Mrs. Byron Lee.

Upon returning to Knox City the above named crowd went to the Milford home where a large table in the yard was lighted and covered with food watermelons. Every one feasted.

Reverend Milford left Knox City Tuesday evening for his home in Huntsville, Alabama. His stay in Knox City was a pleasure to all who had the privilege of meeting and hearing him.

Penny Farmer arrived home last Saturday from Fort Sill Training Camp. Penny says Fort Sill is a "location" however, he expects to be in the camp again next year.

Scenes of Bonus Riot at Washington U. S. Troops to Relief of D. C. Police

No. 1. United States troops swinging into action to clear Washington of Bonus rioters when the District of Columbia authorities confessed defeat and the situation out of control. The detachments of cavalry and tanks shown marching up Pennsylvania Avenue, were in support of infantry and machine gun crews which staged the tear-gas offensive on the bonus camps. . . No. 2 scene in one of the Pennsylvania Avenue Bonus Camps when the battle with the District police was at its height. In the rioting 2 were killed and 44 injured, four of them seriously, many of them police. . . No. 3 General Douglas MacArthur, Chief of Staff of the U. S. Army, who was in personal charge of the Federal troops in both the afternoon and evening offensive. No. 4. Herer was a battle over an American flag between Bonus Veterans and Washington police and in which one of the police shown in the picture was seriously injured. No. 5. U. S. Infantrymen with drawn bayonets and in gas masks clearing the Pennsylvania Bonus Camps, then set fire and burned the huts. After mopping up and clearing these camps, the troops advanced in an evening attack on Camp Marks on the Anacostia River to which 7,000 Bonus seekers had retreated. The tear-gas offensive was resumed, the veterans driven out and all structures destroyed and burned. These scenes mark the most extensive use of troops in the National Capitol since the Civil War. . . In the foreground of picture No. 5, note the cameraman within the rioting zone . . . gathering these pictures for the reader's perusal. Three cameramen were injured.

Editors Note: The use of troops against helpless men, women, and children that made the above picture possible is one of America's darkest pages, and was inhuman and unamerican.

Men vs Women

A Dress Makes All The Difference

Monday evening a most remarkable game of In-door base ball was played on the ball park. The game itself was excellent but the players caused much excitement.

Under the management of H. L. White, a group of ten men challenged the women's team in a game in which the men were to wear dresses and the women to wear trousers. The challenge was accepted and at the appointed hour, six o'clock, the women were all on the field, but no men were to be seen. After much waiting and arranging and rearranging the lady players, attention was attracted to the city hall and lo, out marched ten flappers.

The paraders were headed by Jimmie and Frankie Silman who were each attired in a flowered crape frock with close fitting tams and "accessories to match." E. Q. Warren up the rear styling a lovely skirt waist with a slightly flaring blue serge skirt. He wore a becoming pink straw hat trimmed with one large blue ribbon bow. A double strand of small yellow beads and a wide gold bracelet completed Warren's costume.

The ten costumed men proved to number only nine so E. O. Jamison was cast in the ring and demanded to act. All were arranged in a group where each posed to suit himself and a picture was taken.

The game followed. Donnie Davis, although wearing a lovely orange flowered kitchen frock, which was girded about his dainty waist, and high topped shoes, made a good catch. E. F. Branton looked like an attractive young girl; he was a good pitcher and would have made the same very quiet but for the fact that he could not keep his shoulder straps in place and his stockings up. E. F. tried the old trick of "rolling his own" but found that it did not work so well. As a result, there is one thing he insists upon having the next time he plays ball like a woman that is, a pair of garters.

H. E. Wall was clad in a green flowered garden frock, anklets and a black hat with red flowers. He stood on first base and caught every ball but one that came his direction. E. Q. Warren covered second base and Barber Jones third base. Jones wore a black and white dress, a tan hat and stockings that were not mates, his explanation being that his feet were not mates. The attractive thing about Jones was his posture. Jimmie Silman was left short and Uncle Bill Smith right short. Uncle Bill was attractive in his Green flowered print dress and green straw hat and he looked perfectly comfortable too.

Frankie Silman, E. O. Jamison and Georgia Hardberger covered the on-fire field. Frankie was the cute flapper, E. Q. was the gentleman and Hardberger wore a house frock in pink, a red hat and large green beads.

As for the other team, the women, they were perfectly at home in their overalls, white trousers and blu.

The game started with much excitement and continued throughout the same. Just as the excitement was about to die down, Heavy Cagle appeared on the scene and found the players so humorous that he himself caused much fun.

Again as the fun wanned E. F. brought the fans back to laughter by a "slide, Kelly slide". E. F. Branton made the home base also succeeded in exhibiting some twenty inches of rayon bloomer clad legs. It was too good.

The game ended in a score of 10 to 14 favoring the men; however, every man player is now of the opinion that a "dress makes a whole of a difference".

80 YEARS OLD MONDAY

Mr. W. H. Benedict enjoyed his 80th birthday in a quite way Monday, he being entirely too warm for him to do justice to a big dinner.

Mr. Benedict is in fine health, being still an active, energetic man. It isn't every man who retains the health at the age of 80 that Mr. Benedict now enjoys, and we compliment him on his success.

THE GREAT HUMANITARIAN

Because of help extended to other nations of the world during the times of war and other disasters Herbert Hoover has won for himself the title "the great giver", a world famous figure. He is now ex-officio president of the American Red Cross, through which organization help has been extended whenever and wherever needed.

Of all organizations of the States one of the most popular throughout the 48 states is the American Red Cross. And why this particular organization? The secret of its popularity is the fact that the Red Cross has never asked, up to now, why or how a great need arose. Regardless of the "why and how" the American Red Cross has responded to the need, generously.

Following the various wars in the Americas and other countries, the famines and other periods of crisis, history does not tell us that the American Red Cross called them "purely local", but it does tell us that the American Red Cross saved millions from starvation, others from death due to wounds inflicted and gave without stint, with out reservation, and regardless of race, creed or political party or condition.

Now there is a crisis in the States. The Bonus Marchers are in dire need of food, clothing and shelter. For the first time in the history of the American Red Cross, the question is being asked, "why and where" concerning men, women and children in need. It is our sincere opinion that the bonus marchers should have returned to their homes, or their former places of abode, when their cause failed. But hunger sometimes drives a man beyond kindness, which fact he believed caused the marchers to remain in Washington. But regard less of opinions, the fact remains, they need help.

Why is it the American Red Cross does not see the need and does not respond as it has to the hitherto, the rebel, the Russian Red, the Chinese Mandi? Can it be that the great humanitarian and ex-officio president of this organization, Herbert Hoover, has so allowed his anger to dominate his judgement that he has in anyway restrained the Red Cross from extending help here?

Several complaints have reached the Herald office last week and this concerning "the neighbor's chickens".

As a matter of fact, there are a number of families, home owners, in Knox City who have tried to grow flowers and have an attractive yard, as well as to also have a good garden. A number of these fine citizens have been worried to death with their neighbors chickens. The chickens insist upon scratching in the green patches, flower beds and the like and in most instances, have to go to the neighbors house to find such desirable scratching places. As a result, those who work and try to have attractive yards, find it impossible to do so and at the same time, are too kind to ask the neighbor to "pin up" the chickens.

Upon investigating, we find that in Knox City it is unlawful to allow your chickens to "run loose". In addition to being unlawful it is unneighborly.

It is not the desire of any one to offend another, neither is it the desire of any one to make trouble; but it is the desire of many that those who have chickens, manage in some way to keep them home.

The book of books says love thy neighbor as thy self.

WHY NOT EXTEND A GOOD THING?

Why should Uncle Sam sell a commodity or service such as printing in competition with local, privately owned, tax-paying printing plants?

Why should 15,000 post offices be used as order takers for a service that is not an essential function of the Post Office Department or a necessary service in handling mails?

The reason for raising these questions is that Uncle Sam offers to print return cards on stamped envelopes. With a "local dealer," or sales agency in the U. S. Post Office located in every center of population in the land Uncle Sam does a volume of printing business that enables him to offer customers a ridiculously low price. The orders for printed stamped envelopes total a billion and a half a year—over 4,00,000 for each of the 365 days in the year!

The purchasers of this service offered by Uncle Sam are not the "common people," some of whom address letters improperly and thereby contribute to the cost of maintaining the Dead Letter Office. Banks, retail merchants, professional men, manufacturers, the public schools, colleges, fraternal organizations—all depend upon prosperous towns, home trade, local pay rolls, taxpayers able to pay their taxes—these constitute the customers who take advantage of Uncle Sam's bargain price on printed envelopes.

If its O. K. for Uncle Sam to sell printing why not extend a good thing and insist that he add to his line and thus serve a much larger number of post office patrons? Why not add a grocer's apron to the printer's apron Uncle Sam now wears? Why not sell breakfast food, evaporated milk, butter, shoes, drugs, dry goods, clothing, etcetera, over the Post Office counter?

Unless Uncle Sam quits the printing business, printers should obtain signatures from post office patrons to a petition demanding that the Post Office Department sell not only printing—that accommodates only a limited number of customers but other products. Think of the saving in price that would be possible thru enormous volume and frequent turn-overs! And Uncle Sam is lucky; he doesn't have to pay taxes!—Herman Roe, Field Director of the National Editorial Association.

TWO DEPRESSION BEATERS

The two outstanding "depression beaters" last year were the two greatest users of newspaper advertising space, the American Tobacco Company and the Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea Company.

The American Tobacco Company not only did a grand business last year than ever before in its history, but its net profits exceeded those of any year even those of the boom year 1929.

Atlantic and Pacific sold more than a billion dollars' worth of merchandise, moving into first place in the volume of business done by any one company in this country—St. Louis Star.

And one of the great political writers of the state said it was impossible for Tom Hunter to get more than 50,000 votes.

JOHN VEALE WHEAT

I wish to express my appreciation to the voters of the 50th Judicial District for the consideration given to my candidacy for District Attorney during the primary election. Especially do I wish to thank those who saw fit to honor me with their vote.

The most pleasing thing to me was the hospitality extended to me on every hand. I have taken up the practice of law in the county and District of my nativity—as a young man I have cast my lot with my own people. It is very encouraging to find those people friendly, hospitable, and sincerely interested in their young men. I believe that the people of this District are my friends and although a majority of you seemed to think the advancement I asked was to great at this time, I suggest that your attitude might be different should I again seek political favor at your hands.

I congratulate my opponents for their campaigns and especially for the cleanliness with which they were conducted. I have not expressed a preference as between my two opponents who have gone into the run off and do not intend to do so as it is no longer "my race" and I do not intend to embarrass those who saw fit to vote for me by saying which of my opponents I now favor. So I make the statement publicly that my report you might hear to the effect that I am supporting either of my "fact."

Sincerely yours,
 JOHN VEALE WHEAT

On Texas Farms
 By W. H. Darrow of A. & M. College

Providence. Home Demonstration Club in Smith county won first place in a sanitary pit toilet construction contest by building 37 fly-proof toilets in five spring months. A total of 75 sanitary toilets were built in that time throughout the country.

A canning plant established in the basement of the court house in Seymour by the county commissioners and a local civic organization has been operating on a toll basis under supervision of home demonstration club women. City and county furnish the cans and take one-third of the products to be used next winter for charity.

The berry patch is a bright spot in the farm picture this season. Reports of demonstrations show that berries made good money on a small scale for many people. An instance is W. I. Pemberton of Poor Community, Kaufman county, who is said by the county agent to have gathered 1,078 gallons from three acres for a net return of $54 per acre.

The spread of clovers in Houston county due to improved pasture demonstrations by the county agent have given George Jeffus a surplus crop of 1,000 gallons of fine honey. Early summer honey was unknown before this year, he says.

Five cent in two months for groceries and gasoline is what Mrs. Ethel Rambo, of Amelia Home Demonstration Club in Jefferson, county has spent. She bartered surplus vegetables, eggs and milk for staple supplies and gas.

CANNING PLANTS AND FREE

Eastland—Three community canning plants in Eastland county supplemented by sanitary tin cans furnished by the county commissioners to any family not able to buy containers is resulting in the biggest canning season the county has ever had, according to Miss Ruth Ramey home demonstration agent. A cannery started at Cisco May 23, has been used by 125 families working under the direction of Mrs. E. M. Oney of the Friendship Club, and more than 10,000 cans of food have been put up.

After operating two weeks the cannery at Ranger had been used by 52 families who preserved more than 4,000 containers of home-grown food. The canning plant in Eastland is available for general use but has also the object of furnishing a place for charity canning. People with surplus products make contributions of food, merchants furnish the cans, and families on charity do the canning under supervision.

More than 5,000 cans were supplied free by the commissioners court to families short on cash the first 10 days the offer was made. Each borrower signs an agreement to can only under supervision of demonstration agent or home demonstration club member, and to return within 10 days half the total products canned as repayment to the court for the cans. The county's share is to be used for charity next winter.

THE COMMERCIAL USE OF TEXAS HIGHWAYS IS A PRIVILEGE, NOT A RIGHT

● The highways of Texas are the property of its citizens. They constitute a system of nearly 200,000 miles of road of which 20,000 miles are designated as State highways and the remainder are county roads. All types of road are represented in this system, less than 5% have so-called "permanent" surface.

The total cost of these highways is unknown but it amounts to many hundred million dollars. From 1917 to 1930, inclusive, counties and road districts of the State issued $243,592,834 in bonds for the construction and improvement of roads and bridges. In the two-year period ending August 31, 1930, the State Highway Commission expended $89,032,825, of which $22,488,426 was for maintenance of the State highways.

In view of these tremendous costs the preservation of our highways from rapid wear and destruction is a matter of very vital interest to their owners, viz., the public. It is especially important that they be made to outlast the life of the bonds, which run from 20 to 30 years.

The use of the public highways for commercial purposes is not a right but a privilege which may be withheld or granted subject to such restrictions, regulations and charges as the Legislature may see fit to impose. Such regulations are intended to promote safety, preserve the highways and safeguard the interests of the public.

Texas Railroads, which pay the entire cost of construction and maintenance of their own roadbeds and, in addition, make substantial contributions to the cost of Texas highways, are thoroughly regulated with respect to their services, rates, methods and practices. There is no good reason why commercial users of the highways, built and maintained at the expense of the public, should not likewise be regulated to such extent as the public interest requires and pay such charges as will represent proper compensation for the privileges granted them.

● The statutes governing highway transportation as enacted by the Forty-second Legislature represent the wishes of the citizens of this State and express their desire to give equal rights to all and special privileges to none. These statutes should be given a fair trial and their value ascertained. Unless this is done, a chaotic condition in transportation as a whole will surely ensue.

writer of "The Master Executive"

Supplying a week-to-week inspiration for the heavy-burdened who find every human trial paralleled in the experiences of "The Man Nobody Knows"

—IN LATE AFTERNOON—

It was very late in the afternoon in Galilee. The dozen men who had walked all day over the dusty roads were hot and tired. The sight of a village was very cheering, as they looked down on it from the top of a little hill. Their leader sent two members of the party ahead for accommodations, while he and the others sat down by the roadside to wait.

After a bit the messengers were seen returning, and even at a distance it was apparent that something unpleasant had occurred. Their cheeks were flushed and their voices angry. Breathlessly they told it—the people in the village had refused to receive them, had given them blunt notice to seek shelter somewhere else.

The indignation of the messengers communicated itself to the others. This back-woods village refuse to entertain their master it was unthinkable. He was a famous public character. He had healed sick people given freely to the poor. In the capital city crowds had followed him.

"Lord, these people are sufferable," one of them cried. "Let us call down fire from Heaven and consume them." The others joined in with enthusiasm. Fire from Heaven—that was the idea! Make them smart for their foolishness! Show them that they can't affront us with impunity! Come, Lord, the fire.

There are times when nothing a man can say is nearly so powerful as saying nothing. Every executive knows that instinctively. To argue brings down to the level of those with whom he argues; silence convicts them of their folly; they wish they had not spoken so quickly; they wonder what he thinks. The lips of Jesus tightened his fine features showed the strain of the preceding weeks. He needed that night's rest, but he said not a word. Quietly he gathered up his garments and started on his outraged companions following. It is easy to imagine his keen disappointment. Would they never catch a true vision of what he was about?

Down the hot road they trailed after him, awed by his silence, vaguely conscious that they had failed again to measure up. In the mind of Jesus the thing was too small for comment.

"And they went to another village."

Eighteen hundred years later an important man left the White House in Washington for the War Office, with a letter from the President to the Secretary of War; in a very few minutes he was back in the White House again bursting with indignation. The President looked up in mild surprise. "Did you give the message to Stanton?" he asked.

"Yes, and he tore it up," exclaimed the outraged citizen, "and what's more, sir, he said you are a fool."

"Did Stanton call me that?" he said—"He did, sir, and repeated it." "Well," said the President with a dry laugh, "I reckon it must be true then, because Stanton is generally right."

The angry gentleman waited for the storm to break, but nothing happened. Abraham Lincoln turned quietly to his desk and went on with his work.
