MR. AND MRS. W. J. SELLERS

Retired Farmer Enjoys Unusual Hobby

"A person has to have something to do with his spare time and this is how I like to spend mine," explained W.J. Sellers as he proudly displayed his accumulation of old farm implements.

Mrs. Sellers, who lives with his wife on their 141-acre farm just west of O'Brien, said he started collecting old plows and tools about five years ago and at the time, no one was especially interested in preserving any of the old implements. However, Mr. Sellers remarked that lately he could have sold his collection any number of times.

His father, who was a good blacksmith made a shovel and a plow and gave it to the Sellers when they married. He still has these tools along with neck yokes, single trees, double trees, and a corn grinder.

When asked for a history on the old equipment, Mr. Sellers said there was only one implement that he knew anything definite about and that was a turning plow sold in 1884 or 1885 in Seccury County.

Mr. Sellers was working on a 1926 Oliver one-row go devil, painting it in bright implement colors and reassembling it.

When we suggested that we get a picture of him beside his implements, he called his wife to come out and stand beside him.

Mrs. Sellers then helped him explain how and where he obtained the various plows. For instance, a one-row planter brought brightly painted was bought from Fitter Baker for $5.00 in 1926 and Mrs. Sellers made two crops with it. Then there before he could put it together again.

Mr. Sellers said he was the "most proud" of a beel sweep that he got from a cousin, Fred Huling, in Fulton, Miss. A middlebaster "off the old barnard place" stands next to a double shovel and another Georgia stock brought to him by the late Ansel Waldrip.

The Sellers, who will both be 80-years-young in December, have three children, Jenny, Mrs. Charles Smith who lives with her husband in the Thorp community, Joan (Mrs. Claude Barnard who lives with her family east of O'Brien), and Mac, who lives at Lamasa with his wife, the former Ernestine Tuoff.

Streams In Desert Places

By OZELLE STEPHENS

— "Behold I make all things new," Rev. 21:5.

When we look around and see what is happening in our world this time of year, we realize the power of the inner life. Trees putting on new leaves; plants of all kinds bud and flower with each its own individual beauty. Their own lovely colors paint our world with grand beauty. In all this we see the evidence of God's promise of our scripture. This also applies to you and me and everyone when we learn to trust God for His great working power. Begin today by taking time to turn your every care over to Him. To let your faith go in Him, know that He will do the rest. Soon you will be the evidence of His making every thing new in your life. He will renew your peace and harmony with others. He will give you new intelligence to make right decisions—new strength will stream into your being.
