

AL HINDS

promulgating your esoteric notions, or articulating your artificial sentimentalities and facile, philosophical or psychological observations beware platitudinous ponderosity. Let your conversational communications demonstrate a clarified consciousness, a compact comprehensiveness, rather than coalescent conglomerations of garrulity, and insouciant effusions. Let your ex-temporaneous verbal ejaculations, as well as your more copious expatiations, have lucidity, intelligibility, and veracious vivacity without Thespian bombast. Sedulously avoid all polysyllabic profundity, pompous propensity, psittacaceous vacuity, ventriloquial verbosity, and vain-glorious vapidities. Shun the double entendre, obnoxious jocosity, and pestiferous profanity, observable or apparent. In other words say what you mean and don't use big words.

Truman White says he is at the age where his "get up and go" "has got up and went."

At Wednesday noon Lions Luncheon meeting, discussion turned to the Knox City-Munday donkey ballgame to be played here Monday night, July 27. Otis Cash remarked there was a donkey available at the City Hall, (referring of course to 'ol s-h-o-o-t Wesley Garrison) which Charlie Keck quipped: "We want a whole donkey".

Then there is the one about the vocalist who had just concluded a long, screeching solo, and while the applause was going on, the host remarked to one of the guests, "I think she's a finished singer, don't you?" "I certainly hope so, was the reply, "but I'm afraid she's going to sing again."

We hear a lot of talk these days about economy—but with prices as they are the average family is having a rather difficult time of trying to economize. However, Knox Knox has figured out one way to save. For instance, heretofore, we have been using a ten cent piece to unscrew the top of our old style cigarette lighter to fill same with fluid, but we found out a one-cent piece will do the trick just as well as a dime. Consequently everytime we fill the lighter, using the penny, we figure we save exactly nine cents ???

"Whenever I bring in a news item, why is it oftentimes changed around?" That question is one of the most frequently asked in every hometown newspaper in the country. Sometimes it is asked in considerable exasperation.

The answer is of course, that news stories are easier to read, better understood, take less space, when they are written to conform to a somewhat flexible pattern. That style, developed over the years, is fairly uniform in all newspapers because it was designed to evaluate the facts for their news value and tell them quickly and clearly.

There are a number of reasons why news story style is best, among them: (1) The reader can quickly read the lead, and quit there if the story fails to interest him or her. (2) It permits cutting or reducing the length of a story, to get it into a particular place in the paper, by eliminating from the bottom. As these bottom paragraphs contain less important details, their removal will not seriously reduce the information the story is conveying. A well-written news story presents its outstanding information in the opening paragraphs, or lead.

It is the desire of an editor to pack the paper with as much news as he can get, written in clear, readable style, and arranged to give the paper a varied and attractive appearance. Yet he can not prepare the entire content of an issue in an hour or a day. Because writing, editing, setting type, putting the type in the page forms, and addressing and delivering, takes time, newspapers must start early enough to conclude at a specified time each issue. If the news stories are not written so they can be made to fit the space assigned to them, much time will be lost, and the paper will contain fewer stories, and be less interesting.

So, the next time you bring in a news item, and it is "changed all around," remember that it was rewritten into news style to the greatest possible number of readers to the paper.

Rhineland Man Crashes Into Utility Pole

John Brown, of Rhineland, received painful, but not serious cuts and bruises about the face, when his Ford pick-up ramed into a West Texas Utility pole on the Knox City-Munday highway near the site of the new Texaco Station, east part of town Monday afternoon.

Heavy damage resulted to Brown's pick-up and the large utility pole was severed near the ground and all that kept it from toppling over were the upper wires holding it in place.

Brown headed west, struck the back-end of Bob Radar's pick-up, also headed west, then crashed into the utility pole.

Only minor damage resulted to Radar's vehicle.

Bill Angel, highway patrolman, said that two traffic violations, one for no operator's license and one for failing to pass to the left of safety, were filed against Brown.

The wheat program on which farmers will vote, Scott said, is the same as that which has been in effect for the last several years.

Streams In Desert Places

Ozelle Stephens
The true believer builds himself up in the most holy faith, he keeps himself in the love of God. He can say with Jude, "Now unto him that is able to keep you from falling, and to present you faultless before the presence of His glory with exceeding joy."

God is ever watchful. You can be assured in your weak moments when you stumble He still loves you. He giveth grace to the humble and to him that draweth nigh unto Him. He is able and willing to keep you. Streams of grace flow to you who speak no evil of another but love without discrimination.

STATE CAPITAL Highlights AND Sidelights by Vern Sanford TEXAS PRESS ASSOCIATION

AUSTIN, Texas — Both House and Senate have passed bills, and a new conference committee was put to work to try to piece them together. But the floor action preceding passage gave indication that any of the conflicting groups is ready to give an inch.

House membership is split three ways into (1) those who don't want the majority of new taxes to fall on business, (2) those who don't want a majority to be sales taxes and (3) those who apparently don't want any new taxes.

Each of the first two groups has been able to defeat the other's proposals with the help of the "no-taxers." Hence, despite public impatience and their own weariness, lawmakers have been ensnared in a one-step-forward-and-two-backward pattern. SOMETHING OLD, SOMETHING NEW — Given to the conference committee on taxes were a new bottled bill from the House and an old, nearly full-size bill from the Senate.

House bill would raise about $106,000,000 over two years—a about $70,000,000 less than needed. Senate bill, designed to raise about $160,000,000, is the same one passed by the Senate in the first special session. It contains more sales taxes than business taxes which the House refused to accept on the last round.

Cut from the House bill before passage were the $50 deductible sales tax (a 2 per cent levy on costs over $50) and the natural gas severance beneficiary tax. Both fell by the wayside in one of the "if you kill my tax, I'll kill yours" sessions.

Remaining in the bill were levies on which the House has been able to agree all along—on cigarettes, liquor, auto sales and corporation franchises.

"New wrinkles" added were (1) a licensing fee for private clubs that sell liquor and a 10 per cent tax on mixing drinks and (2) a 1.5 per cent sales tax on boats, motors and airplanes.

Bill also contains a provision to cut the surplus tax from $1.40 to $1.03 a ton.

FEE BILL ADDED TO CALL—A bill to let state colleges charge a $30 a semester activity fee got a new lease on life when Gov. Price Daniel submitted it to the Legislature.

Bill had been introduced twice, but fizzled out in the Senate when Sen. Henry Gonzales challenged it on two points: (1)

Proper Use Of Grassland Achieved By Keeping Livestock In Balance

Proper use on grassland is achieved by keeping livestock in balance with the forage produced. Approximately half of the annual forage production of the grass should be used for the production of livestock. The other half belongs to the plant and land for plant development, plant reproduction, and erosion control. Cecil Seitz, range conservationist, attached to the Knox City work unit pointed out.

Proper use is important to the rancher or stock farmer because maximum livestock production cannot be expected without it. The food that grass uses to maintain itself is manufactured in its green leaves. If all leaves are constantly removed the plant literally starves to death. A part of the plant food in the addition to feeding man and beast is necessary to the plant to produce more leafage and vigorous roots which will enable the plant to maintain itself while feeding others. A weak plant that has lost its vigor by repeated overuse will produce less and less in the years that follow. Also a weak plant is less able to withstand drought and cannot compete with invading species of lower forage value. The desirable forage plants will maintain themselves on a pasture being properly grazed, the vegetation will improve where there has been deterioration, and there will be a turf that will protect the soil.

The degree of forage utilization is tied in very closely to animal performance. Maximum weight gains per animal are dependent largely on forage available to the extent that cattle can obtain food easily. When livestock are forced to roam about in search of food the gains will be considerably less and generally a lower market grade. There are problems that confront the rancher in obtaining proper use from year to year. Fluctuating weather conditions and frequent droughts are two of the most common problems. The livestock operation to help cope with the two above problems should be based upon a flexible herd. Stocking with a permanent herd should be based upon the dry years since they are more nearly normal. Extra forage grown during the exceptionally good years could be utilized by stocker calves. Where the stand of range grasses is thin and plants are low in vigor it might be more profitable to use stocker animals in the winter only, especially where wheat grazing is available.

Grass is the ranchers crop. Without proper use of grass, crop failures may be expected.

Without proper use of grass, crop failures may be expected. Established commercial procedures have started tragic chain reactions in our overall economy... the politicians are playing with fire.

Research is underway to add strength to cotton linters... those are the short fibers that stick to seed after ginning... when this is done the linters will have a greater use in papermaking... right now they have a limited use because they are weaker than the long cotton fibers... USDA research division is at work on the project.

Experiments with diuron during the past two years give some promise of eliminating cost of a couple of cultivations... this weed killer was applied early in the season when cotton was six to eight inches high.

Diseases, weeds, and, of course, insects are the biggest headaches for cotton farmers... cost of these is about 12c per pound of cotton... no estimate is available on what politicians are costing farmers.

Theme Written By Melanie Verhalen Won Second Place

"Things I Hope I'll Remember About Raising Children When I Become a Parent", was the title of the theme written by Melanie Verhalen at the State Meet held at Austin recently.

Miss Verhalen placed second in the Ready Writing Contest, and her paper appears below:

Every girl dreams of a prince on a white charger, a happy marriage, and children. Being normal, I picture our marriage to be the best ever and our children the smartest (I sound like a parents already). Unlike many new mothers, armed with books on the problems of raising children I intend to face this challenge with knowledge acquired as a child.

My most vivid recollection of childhood was the time I received a spanking for trampling Mama's favorite flower bed. "You naughty girl," she accused. "Do you want a spanking, or do you want your doll taken away for a week?" Who could win—even with such democracy? I recall standing in the corner, after the guests left, because I said the wrong thing. But don't get me wrong, I appreciate my parent's strictness; it taught me to improve.

Childhood was also the wonderful time of Santa Claus, learning to swim, and the first day of school. Is there a person who doesn't remember a father's bed-time story or a mother's fresh batch of cookies?

From the first moment when I see my red-faced children, I shall try to be an understanding parent. When my children go through the "No!" stage, I'll try to hold my hands behind my back and teach them to say "Yes." As I sneak the puppy from the bed into its box, I'll smile and thank God that I have a normal son. During the first several years, I expect to hear children asking "Why?" a thousand times. From experience with younger brothers and sisters, I know I'll have to explain where the new kittens came from or why the stars "come on" at night. I shall reserve week nights for helping with homework. Sundays will be spent getting ready for church, teaching Junior to drive, or sighing over a mud-spattered Easter dress. I want to be patient toward my teen-agers' problems. Hearing young loves confessed, or helping with a term theme will take understanding. I want to be the thoughtful mother who sends cookies to the college student or helps pay the children's gas bill. Willingness to give advice or sit with the grandchildren will be important.

I shall have to work hard to develop these "mother virtues" in order to raise my children successfully. My parents' love and care have shown me the way. Only when my children face these same problems will I know if I have succeeded.

Best Room!

JUST ONE OF 7 Big Bests Chevrolet OFFERS you OVER any other car in its field!

Take a tip from the experts... in their own words... and from on-the-record facts and figures: More than ever, Chevrolet gives you more than any other of the leading low-priced three! More room to relax in, for instance. A sampling of official dimensions reported to A.M.A.* makes this clear. Chevy front seat hip room, for one thing, is up to 5.9 inches wider than comparable cars. And Chevy even offers more front seat head room than all but one of the high-priced cars!

Best Brakes Not only bigger, but built with bonded linings for up to 66% longer life. Just to prove what's what, Chevy out-stopped both of the "other two" in a NASCAR-conducted test of repeated stops from highway speeds.

Best Style It's the only car of the leading low-priced 3 that's unmistakably modern in every line. "In its price class," says POPULAR SCIENCE magazine, "a new high in daring styling."

Best Engine Every motor magazine has given Chevrolet's standard and Corvette V8's unstinted praise. As SPORTS CARS ILLUSTRATED puts it: "... surely the most wonderfully responsive engine available today at any price."

Best Ride MOTOR TREND magazine calls Chevy "... the smoothest, most quiet, softest riding car in its price class." You'll be able to tell this yourself instantly, once you take the wheel.

Best Economy No doubt about this: two Chevrolet 6's won their class in the famous Mobilgas Economy Run, got the best mileage of any full-size car, 22.38 miles per gallon—with Powerglide.

Best Trade-In Check in any N.A.D.A. Guide Book. Chevy used car prices last year averaged up to $128 higher than comparable models of the "other two."

VA Says To "Apply Now" For School Under GI Bill

"Apply now. Don't get caught in the rush."

This is the advice that the Veterans Administration gave today to all Korea veterans planning to start school in the fall under the Korean GI Bill.

By applying now, a veteran can beat the rush and can eliminate any chance of a delay at the last minute, VA said. To help veterans get started, VA issued this check list.

1. Since the law allows a veteran to change his GI course only once, he should give plenty of thought, in advance, to his goal.

2. If he is undecided about what to train for, he may ask for VA vocational counseling.

3. He should be sure that his course has been GI-approved by the state in which the school is located.

4. He should make all arrangements for gaining admission to his school before he even files his application with VA.

5. The GI training application should be completely filled out and signed. The veteran should send it, along with a photostat or certified copy of his separation paper, to the VA regional office.

6. A veteran with dependents should have the necessary proof of dependency.

7. A veteran should take along enough money of his own to tide him over the first two months of training. It takes about that long, ordinarily, for his first monthly GI check to reach him.

8. He should make all arrangements for gaining admission to his school before he even files his application with VA.

9. The GI training application should be completely filled out and signed. The veteran should send it, along with a photostat or certified copy of his separation paper, to the VA regional office.

Uncle Ben from Benjamin says:

MR. MISTER EDITOR:
I see by the papers where one of them Government agencies in Washington has been paying a bushel for dirt to fill in the foundation on a building project. Our Congressmen always seem to overcome with the same spirit, it's all about the same thing. Wheat, dirt or anything, they'll pay about $3 a bushel is fair price.
And in the same paper I see where Westbrook Pegler says he got more dirt in Washington than in any capital in the world. We'll take Pegler's word for it. He's dug up enough dirt in his time to know dirt when he sees it. But with it being so plentiful in Washington, I think $6 a bushel is a little high.
And speaking of Government projects in Washington, I see where they still got a few souvenir bricks for sale from the time they remodeled the old White House. I ain't going to buy one, because I don't choose to pay for one twist. I figure the one I ain't got cost me about $10 in taxes.

I got a heap of sympathy for this feller I was reading about in Utah. He says things is getting so high he can't afford to eat and git medical attention at the same time, not if he pays as he goes. And this feller from Utah seems to be a very unusual citizen on account of him preferring to pay as he goes. He says he's been suffering with tonsillitis for years and has decided to have 'em cut out one at a time so's he'll be able to pay as he goes. The people of Utah ought to send this feller to Congress, maybe elect him President.

The experts is beginning to make guesses and predictions about the 1960 census. One expert claims it's going to be very alarming the way the census will show wimmen outnumbering the men in this country. I don't see nothing alarming about wimmen outnumbering the men. My old lady for instant, has been outnumbering me two to one for years.

All the newspapers, Mister Editor, seems agreed on one thing, that the country is enjoying prosperity the likes of which this nation has never saw. One writer was asking where was the wolf that used to camp at the door. I'll grant him that the wolf is gone, but instead of the wolf at the door, we got the tax collector. Between you and me, I'd just about as soon try to make a deal with the wolf. The wolf might listen to a little

By JAMES HILL

Not only does this time of year make one think of taking a vacation trip somewhere, but it is also the time of year for fresh roasting ears of corn to be in full bloom.

We've been keeping tab on a pretty corn patch north of town about a mile or so out. We don't know who owns the corn there, but it sure is looking good. In our books there is nothing better to eat than fresh corn.

Charlie Keck brought us some fresh vegetables he grew in his garden last week. Charlie didn't mention if he had corn planted, but the vegetables made a wonderful salad.

Most Knox Citizens know the mad dither we are in Thursdays at the Herald, as we are trying to get the hometown paper to the postoffice as quickly as possible. Ordinarily we don't run as we work, but on Thursdays we never walk as long as we can run. Confusion is the order of the day, at least that is the way it appears to the layman.

For those of you who do not subscribe to the paper and come in the office after it, we are leaving a change dish by the papers and you can help yourself. We are never too busy to sell a paper, but we believe most folks want to get in and out of the mad house as soon as they can.

Occasionally someone will drop a dime in our hand and run for the door without waiting for their change!

Dedication of the Lions Club Swimming Pool and Ladies Night Dinner was a huge success and furnished the guests some amusing incidents.

We took along the camera to get a few pictures of the events, but as one would suspect, we missed the most amusing shots by not being ready in time, and being too slow on the trigger.

The quartet of singers took us completely by surprise when they threw Paul Hoge in the swimming pool. Thinking we had missed a good picture, we sat back to relax and condone ourselves for being so slow, and BANG, they threw him in again.

Not to be outdone, we asked the new president, Doyle Graham, if he would throw him in again so we could get a picture, and he said "sure."

Veterans Questions And Answers

Q. I was in the Army during the Korea War, and have just recently been discharged. What is my deadline for starting training under the Korean GI Bill?

A. You must begin your training within three years from the date of your discharge or separation.

Q. Who is supposed to apply for War Orphans schooling, the prospective student or his living parent?

A. If the prospective student is under legal age, his parent or guardian must apply in his behalf. If he is of age, and has no known legal disability, he may apply on his own.

Q. I will be taking on-the-job training under the Korean GI Bill this fall. Is there any limit on my training wages?

A. There is no limit on how much you may earn. However, when your earnings plus your GI allowance exceed $310 a month, VA is required by law to scale down your training allowance to bring the total with-

Pictures Framed In A Minute?

No, we won't go so far as to say that, but we do make them in an awful hurry, once you make a selection. We not only take pride in the beautiful mouldings we have in stock, but we also take pride in the way we make the picture frame. Ask your neighbor to let you look at her picture frame. She won't mind, for she is as proud of it as you will be of yours.

IT'S THE LAW IN TEXAS

NO WILL? WHO INHERITS PROPERTY?

What will happen if you should die without executing a legal and proper will? Who will inherit your property? Your husband, wife, mother, father, children, your wife's relatives? The best way you can say who will have it is to provide a will which will protect your rightful beneficiaries and dispose of your property in accordance with your wishes.

When a deceased has no will, or dies "intestate" as the law calls it, the property of that person is distributed according to a detailed formula fixed by law. In some cases this may be the way you yourself would divide it—but in many cases it is not.

The provisions of the law concerning the distribution of the property of a person who dies without a will are rather complicated, and all of the possibilities cannot be covered by a general statement.

There are different rules for in the $310 ceiling. A friend of mine tells me that on his private company life insurance policy changing the beneficiaries may require the consent of a person already named as beneficiary. Is that necessary with GI insurance?

A. No. If you wish to change the beneficiaries of your GI insurance policy, the present beneficiaries need not be notified.

Mr. and Mrs. Sonnie Hughes are in Plainview where he is playing in the Plainview Country Club Invitational Golf Tournament. The tournament began Wednesday, July 8, and will continue through Sunday July 12.

real estate and for personal property, for community property and for separate property, for homestead property, and for all of the many possible combinations or surviving relatives. Each situation must be carefully studied to determine the correct distribution of the property.

For example, here is a general idea of how the community property which you and your spouse have accumulated will be divided if you do not make a will prior to your death.

If your husband or wife survives and there are no children, the surviving spouse receives all of the property.

If, in addition, there are surviving children or descendants of deceased children, they would divide one-half of the property, while the surviving spouse would receive the other one-half.

Of course, grandchildren do not share in the estate unless their parent who inherits is deceased. And when descendants of previously deceased children do inherit, they receive only the portion that the child would have received, regardless of the number of such descendants.

An odd note, perhaps, is that the surviving spouse already owns one-half of the community estate prior to your death, and the law adds nothing to this share where there are children surviving.

When there are only children and their descendants surviving, they divide the entire community estate between them.

(This column, prepared by the State Bar of Texas, is written to inform—not to advise. No person should ever apply or interpret any law without the aid of an attorney who is fully advised concerning the facts involved, because a slight variance in facts may change the application of the law.)

Research Widens Cottonseed Market

Cottonseed now has a market as a high protein feed for poultry and swine, says the USDA. Improved processing techniques have made this new use possible by lowering of the free gossypol content in the meal.

Prior to 1947, says the USDA, use of cottonseed meal for livestock rations was limited largely to cattle because of the gossypol, a pigment that is toxic to poultry and swine.

Although variable from year to year, the new market for cottonseed meal has been estimated by the USDA to have reached 300,000 tons annually in recent years. California, at the present time, is the largest market for the improved cottonseed meal, where in 1958 an estimated 200,000 tons went into poultry rations.

In the past, even when fed to laying hens at low, non-toxic levels, gossypol in unimproved cottonseed meal caused egg yolk discoloration. The improved cottonseed meals, however, can be fed at levels up to 10 per cent of the total diet of hens with no adverse effect on yolks of eggs produced for the fresh egg market.

USDA's Agricultural Research Service began work early in the 1940's to improve cottonseed meal. Studies of the chemical and physical properties of cottonseed and of the pigment glands containing gossypol gave scientists of the ARS Southern Utilization Research and Development Division, New Orleans, an understanding of the role played by gossypol and laid the groundwork for producing cottonseed meal with a low gossypol content.

Further work indicated that the glands containing gossypol could be ruptured during processing by several means, and a large part of the freed toxic material could then be inactivated at a much lower temperature than was previously thought possible. Also, low processing temperatures favor high protein quality in the meal. However achievements to date do not complete the research required to realize the full feeding potential of cottonseed meal, the USDA added.
