OLDEST WEATHER IN YEARS TUESDAY

COLD WAVE GOES TO 10 BELOW ZERO

Old Man Winter let loose from his bag one of his worst tricks here last Tuesday morning when he sent the thermometer sailing down almost to the zero mark, and covered the earth with a heavy blanket of snow. This is the coldest snap that has been witnessed here since 1929.

Ending a season of warm weather, the freeze came as a sudden change. The wind was blowing from the northeast Tuesday at a terrific rate of speed and put the heavy winter clothing back into use immediately.

The thermometer reached 10 below zero here Tuesday night, according to many who read their just before day. This was the coldest weather that old timers can remember of having here.

A number of automobile owners suffered loss when their radiators and blocks froze and burst.

Some are saying this is just what they expected when the old ground hog saw his shadow last Thursday.

Dr. Avriett of Fort Worth visited Mr. and Mrs. Joe Avriett last week.

Mrs. T. P. Frizzell Jr., was a Wichita Falls visitor last week.

We are glad to state that John Smith, who has been ill with tonsillitis, is able to be out again.

John Elbert Smith was ill the first of this week.

Mrs. Hobb Smith of Rochester visited Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Smith Sunday.

Mrs. G. D. McCarty, Mrs. Homesley and Ruth Hammock attended the zone meeting of the Methodist Missionary society in Seymour last Tuesday.

STUDY FOR METHODIST SUNDAY SCHOOL

2, Matt. 9.
 1-8. The paralytic healed and forgiven (Mark 2:1-12). The peculiarity of this is that it was worked to doctrine, and that, in the position. There were pharisees and pharisees, some of whom doubtless come from Jerusalem to oppose Jesus, and once threw them a challenge, saying to the man, "Son, be forgiven thee." The Pharisees understood this to mean claimed to forgive sins as can do. No man could claim that Jesus did, rendering himself liable to serious imputations upon either he was the Son of God as the scribes rightly held their point of view, or he was a man. Hence in this miracle, Jesus liberately appealed to the will of God, and God by work, vindicated the character of Jesus.

9-13. Call of Matthew.

14; Luke 5, 27.) The call of Matthew was another challenge to the Pharisee party, but a mission to the desolate whom He regarded as respects nearer the Kingdom of God than the respectable, Jesus and His disciples ate and drank with sinners. The incident is of significance. (1) It is by Jesus against the Pharisee's exclusiveness. (2) It is a mission to the desolate as well as to the clean.

14-17. Probably the feast

was given on one of the Pharisee fast days. The disciples of Jesus were won by the disciples of Jesus as they did. Jesus re-baptized the disciples of John, that Jesus called Him the Son of Man.

REVOLUTION—AMERICAN STYLE

A couple of weeks ago a Senate committee in Washington was warned that there would be a revolution in America if the farmers did not get immediate relief from their difficulties.

We don't agree with this point of view. All the indications are that the revolution in America has already begun and that it will go on regardless of the question of farm relief.

Of course, what the gentleman in Washington was talking about was the kind of revolutions we read about, in Russia and Spain and South America, where an armed force seizes the government and proceeds to reorganize it at the point of the bayonet. We don't think there is the slightest danger of that kind of a revolution in the United States.

What we are talking about is revolution in the American style, which consists of changing the methods and operations of our government by what the Constitution calls "due process of law." We have been going through revolution after revolution of that kind ever since the armed revolution of 1776, which won us our national independence. Our whole scheme and system of government is as different from anything which was imagined by the gentlemen who framed our Constitution in 1787 as chalk is from cheese. Sometimes by the interpretation of the Supreme Court, sometimes by actual amendment, we have changed that document and its applications into something that Franklin, Washington, Adams and Madison and the rest would never recognize.

What is going on now, as a result of the widespread distress and the multiplication in the number of debtors, may easily amount to another series of radical changes in our entire governmental scheme. The people are in the mood for change. The resistance of the creditor class to the demands of debtors for relief is weaker than it has been at any previous time. The debtor class today includes not only farmers but industrial worker, business men and great corporations. In the light of this state of affairs it is natural to expect that Congress will respond by carrying the new concepts of the functions of government into fields of which the founders of the Republic never dreamed. If they do, it will, in essence, amount to a revolution; but it will merely be another revolution, American style, in the long series of revolutions through which we have come successfully.

BARTER—IN PRACTICE AGAIN

All over the country people are learning how to live without money. That is the way our primitive ancestors lived, by barter. It is, of course, the direct and simplest way of doing business, but its handicap is that does not provide any way of storing up values or of making change.

If every man who had services or goods to sell could always find someone who would make an even trade with him, giving such goods or labor as he required in exchange for his own, we never would need any money. But it is difficult for the man who wants to dispose of a day's work for a pair of boots to find the precise person who wants that work at that time, or who is willing to swap groceries for boots. Time—that is labor—is a perishable commodity. If it isn't used now it never can be used. The value of money consists in its power to enable the worker who can dispose of his labor for cash to store up that day's work against the time when he needs to spend it for other commodities.

To get around this difficulty community after community has adopted one form or another of temporary money called "scrip." We have read of a dozen or so different kinds of scrip, but they all work on the same principle. The man who does

Why Silas Isn't Getting Home

By Albert T. Reid

a day's work receives what is, in effect, a promissory note, which the giver agrees to redeem in such commodities as he deals in, no matter who presents it. If enough merchants and manufacturers can be brought together in a scrip plan of this kind the scrip is just as good as money as if it were issued by the government, so far as local use is concerned.

We understand there is a movement on foot to nationalize this scrip-barter plan. We don't see any reason why it shouldn't work, provided that all the scrip issued was based on actual values, in services performed or commodities delivered. The main trouble would be in determining the value behind each unit of scrip. The early Virginia colonists used paper money based on tobacco, but they found a good many planters working off inferior grades of tobacco, and they had plenty of trouble with their currency for a good many years.

As a temporary relief measure, however, the scrip barter plan seems to us to have decided merit.—clipped.

ENJOY VISIT

The editor and wife enjoyed a visit last Sunday in the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Hull who live east of Knox City, and were treated to a real meal. They are among this community's prosperous farmers and believe in raising and canning their living at home. Believe us when we tell you they have plenty to eat, too. And Mrs. Hull knows how to make things appetizing.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to express our sincere appreciation and thanks to our many friends and kinemen who were so kind, thoughtful and helpful to us during the brief illness and passing of our dear son.

The consoling words that you spoke and many kind deeds that you did helped each of us more than we have words to express.

We also want to express our appreciation for the beautiful floral offering, for each flower reminded us of the beautiful life that he lived.

When the burdens of life are trying you, as they are now trying us, it is our prayer that we may help and console you as you have helped and consoled us.

Scientists in New York are hoping to make cloth out of pen pods.

Back in 1906 New York city fathers passed an ordinance which stipulated that the mayor might issue licenses to person for keeping for hire horseless carriages propelled by electricity, but such horseless carriages had to be equipped with bells to give warning of their approach.

In 1800 New York had a population of 49,431. The first million mark was passed in 1860.

ROY ROGER SMITH

The passing of Roy Roger Smith son of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Smith, on Jan. 31, was a great shock to his many friends and classmates of the sixth grade.

Although only twelve years of age, Roy Roger had formed the acquaintance and cultivated the friendship of a large group of young people throughout his community. An excellent student, his was the soul of honor and an example of courtesy to both young and old alike. He was conscientious, studious and energetic in his school work and because of the high esteem of his classmates, he held the greatest honor they could bestow upon him—that of president of his class.

His death in the flower of youth is a distinct loss to his comrades, his teachers and his community. And we, his classmates and teachers, extend to his parents and other relatives our deepest sympathy and ask God's blessings upon them in their hour of bereavement.

NEWS SHORT

Due to illness of the editor of The Kennel Tuesday, the news is a bit short of the usual amount.

shoulder. Between her people, the Samaritans, and his people, the Jews, there was a feud of centuries. To be touched by even the shadow of a Samaritan was defilement according to the strict code of the Pharisees; to speak to one was a crime. The woman made no concealment of her resentment at finding him there. Almost any remark from his lips would have kindled her anger. She would at least have turned away in scorn; she might have summoned her relatives and driven him off.

An impossible situation, you will admit. How could he meet it? How give his message to one who was forbidden by everything holy to listen? The incident is very revealing; there are times when any word is the wrong word; when only silence can prevail. Jesus knew well this precious secret. As the woman drew closer he made no move to indicate that he was conscious of her approach. His gaze was upon the ground. When he spoke it was quietly, musingly, as if to himself: "If you knew who I am," he said, "you would not need to come out here for water. I would give you living water."

The popularity of the cape suits at the winter resorts indicates that they are going to be prime favorites throughout the land when spring truly makes her bow. Cape suits are almost universally becoming and have an air of casual swank that all good sport things have. And there is no one length for capes, which might make them difficult to wear for some. There are long capes, short capes, and capes in between.

so every woman may be suited—(no pun intended.)

As previously explained in these fashion notes the new spring cape suits may be utilized intensively. That is because they are in three pieces, the cape and the skirt reversible and the little jacket working for contrast or harmony as desired, when worn either with or without the cape.

The sketch shows a checked tweed which fairly shouts spring sport wear, as illustrated. The cape and the skirt are both reversible, plain on the other side. They are in greens, blues, tans, greys, navy and black and whites.

The Child Reader

by MARJORIE BARROWS
Editor, Child Life Magazine.

One afternoon many years ago a wharf rat on San Francisco Bay wandered into the Oakland Public Library.

Marjorie Barrows is a hard lesson learner of better ways of living his life.

Making of Jack London.
The dramatic, exciting story awakes in the young reader the uneasy consciousness of his own wrong actions. He walked out of that library resolving to lead just as adventurous a life but one that carried with it a clear conscience. So he joined the Fish Patrol, cruised about the bay, fought poachers, and before long began to write stories about his adventures.

That boy was Jack London. The experience of this famous writer occurs, in a rather less dramatic fashion, in the life of every boy or girl.

Careful investigators have discovered that next to persons, nothing has more influence on children than what they read. If a hero they admire acts under certain circumstances as they themselves would like to act, they'll remember it.

They Imitate the Hero.
And when the time comes, they'll unconsciously be influenced by that hero's action and try to do likewise. The heroine's kindness, ambition, steadfastness, loyalty, the hero's resourcefulness, quick-wittedness, painstaking qualities, courage, magnanimity, modesty—all these examples "sink in" and are emulated both now and later. One story with hidden character-building values is worth a dozen sermons from parents or teachers.

Let us try to see that this sort of a story, full of plenty of adventure for the boy, full of interesting plots and characters for the girl, is convenient for them to pick up.

Jack London isn't the only one to be tremendously influenced by the printed word.

A SUPPER TO SING FOR!

If the sugar-plum tree should come to life! And honey-dew come from the magic pitcher—wouldn't supper times be jolly for five and seven years olds!

A supper that has all the charm of the sugar-plums and the honey-dew has for dessert a cup of crushed canned pineapple, cool and sweet. Never was anything so good to eat nor so good for growing boys and girls. For nutritional research has recently found canned pineapple to be a valuable source of five minerals, essential to health, as well as a valuable source of vitamins A, B, and C—a discovery that makes the task of mothers much simpler. The delicate flavor and color of pineapple are especially appealing to children. Pineapple is a food which rightly belongs in their own world of magic goodness. When it is served simply—a generous bowlful of crushed pineapple—it is a treat which young Mary and Johnny find suited to their most epicurean tastes. Two slices a day or a cup of crushed fruit is the amount recommended to aid in the maintenance of health and growth.

Fifty and Fit

A MAN is as old—or as young—as his organs. At fifty, you can be in your prime.

Why go along with "fairly good health" when you might be enjoying vigor you haven't felt for years?

There's a simple little thing anyone can do to keep the vital organs stimulated, and feel fit all the time. People don't realize how sluggish they've grown until they've tried it. The stimulant that will stir your system to new life is Dr. Caldwell's syrup pepsin. It will make a most amazing difference in many ways.

This famous doctor's prescription is a delicious syrup made with fresh herbs, active astringents, and pure pepsin. It starts its good work with the first spoonful. That's all you need to drive away the dullness, the headache of a bilious spell, the system of that slow poison saps your strength. It's better than a tonic for tired bowels, and habit-forming laxatives you take it freely or give it to your children. And it isn't expensive.

Get some syrup pepsin tonight. Take a little tonight. Don't wait until you're sick to give yourself this wonderful help. You can't afford to neglect your health. A spoonful every day is better than constant doctoring. About the condition of your system, or fear of auto-intoxication, grow older. Dr. Caldwell's pepsin protects the system. Druggists keep this for you.
