Knox City Leaders Receive Citations

Knox City business and civic leaders received citations last week from the Texas Industrial Commission and Governor Preston Smith for having made a "significant contribution to Texas industrial development".

The citations were presented to local recipients, Supt. W. R. Baker for school information, Postmaster Jeff Graham for postal information, George Field for electric utility information, David Counts for local housing information, John Smith for county taxing information, B. J. Foster for truck transportation information, Bruce Campbell Jr. for bank information, City Secretary Faye Rallsback for City information, Z. I. Smith for rail transportation information, and Chamber of Commerce Manager Doris Crowover for general community information. E. H. Sheffield of the commission staff presented the awards culminating nearly a year's work towards incorporating pertinent industrial location information on Knox City into the nation's most sophisticated computerized site location data bank.

DID YOU KNOW

... that Mrs. Sam Stubbs, 9436-D, Lake North Apts., Lake North Circle, Dallas, Texas 75220 subscribes to The Knox County Herald?

Called "Insta-Site", the Commission's computer program has already received two distinguished awards itself from the Southern Industrial Development Council, a professional society covering sixteen Southern states.

Participation of local leaders in gathering information for "Insta-Site", means that information on Knox City industrial assets will be instantly available to all industrial firms considering new plant sites in Texas.

Sheffield presented Doris Crowover, who served as the commission's local coordinator for the project, a massive 88-page printout containing 1444 items of information on the Knox City area. Local award recipients collected data for 393 items of information on the printout and the balances were collected for the community by the commission staff.

As soon as the local group has reviewed the information and suggested any changes necessary, a computerized Community Analysis Report will be available that shows how Knox City compares with other cities of similar size on the factors that industrialists look for in locating new plants. Using the Community Analysis Report as a guide, Knox City leaders will be able to plan effective measures to spur local growth.

"The next phase in the development of the computer program is to match Knox City plant location resources with a profile of the location requirements of all types of expanding industries," Sheffield said.

"This will enable us at the commission to help you concentrate your industrial development program on companies you have the best chance of attracting to Knox City," Sheffield continued.

Statewide, more than 14,000 business and civic leaders in 390 Texas cities will receive the special citations for their part in making the new program possible.

Local Member Attends Farmers Union Meeting

The Texas delegation to National Farmers Union Convention, February 24, will give first priority attention to support of extension of the Agricultural Market Agreement Act of 1937 to all farm commodities. The state organization's Executive Committee meeting at Austin last week, adopted a resolution supporting the need for federally-sanctioned bargaining authority.

The resolution stated that the new farm program would inevitably result in over-production of basic commodities which would result in excessive supplies of red meat. This over-production will remove any opportunities that farmers might otherwise have had to bargain through marketing or bargaining associations.

"In the absence of a workable farm program, it is essential that farmers gain control over the prices for which they must sell their products by a legal system of commodity-by-commodity bargaining. Our delegates to the National Farmers Union convention will be charged with the obligation of supporting the broadening of authority to use marketing orders and agreements. This means that we are urging the National Farmers Union to diligently pursue as a priority objective the extension of the Agricultural Market Agreement Act of 1937 to all farm commodities," the resolution stated.

Several of the directors told the Board that some of the U.S.D.A. policies administered the new farm program are creating hardship and discord among farmers. One Board member, David Samuelson of Manor, pointed out that state ASCE pressure on the county farmer-elected committees to permit transfer of cotton bales outside the county has been extremely heavy.

According to Samuelson, in some counties where the farmers have voted in the past conclusively against transfers out of the county, county ASCE committees have bowed to state ASCE demands by permitting transfers. These decisions made against the wishes of the cotton farmers, have created strong resentment. The farmers in at least one central Texas county are taking protests to the state ASCE office at College Station, and considering legal action.

Farmers Union opposed the change in the law requiring county ASCE offices to approve transfers of cotton acreage out of the county, and recommended that the referendum system be retained.

J. W. Maddux of Hewitt, District 3 Director, pointed out that central Texas farmers, planting corn before the 1969-70 base period, are being

If you need additional information about the effect of the community property law on your income tax, drop a card to Code 101, Internal Revenue Service, 1600 Patterson Street, Dallas, Texas 75201. "cheated out of the fruits of their increased productivity by the interpretation ASCE is placing on payment yield." According to Maddux, "Going back to the base period and using past corn yield rather than the increased grain sorghum yield that the farmer has developed, is completely unfair and unjustified. It will cost farmers an average of $7.50 per acre in one central Texas county. The purpose is to clearly reduce program cost at the farmer's expense."

Jay Naman, the state Farmers Union President, stated at the conclusion of the Board meeting that Texas Farmers Union would urge the State Legislature to pass a resolution denouncing the new farm program, because of the economic cost to Texas. He said that the new farm program would cost the Texas economy in excess of one-half billion dollars during 1971.

Naman said, "In addition to the economic cost of the new farm program to our state's economy, it is apparent that the Secretary of Agriculture, under duress in the Budget Bureau, will administer the program to move commercial agriculture out of Texas into the corporation-dominated reclamation areas in the western states."

Streams In Desert Places BY GUY L. STEPHENS

And very early in the morning the first day of the week, they came unto the sepulchre at the rising of the sun. We find the new year slipping away from us into the Lenten season. This brings us to have new purpose of life, renewing our thoughts, vowing us to have new convictions and new dreams. It is pondering God's love in our hearts and minds we experience deeper reflections of life's meaning.

For many years, the various strains of bacteria that cause a dangerous disease called meningitis were successfully treated with sulfa drugs. But the usefulness of these drugs may now become somewhat limited. Dr. S. J. Lerro, medical consultant with the Texas State Department of Health, reports that more and more strains of meningitis are becoming drug-resistant.

Pacific speak of turning the other cheek. Does the law call for that kind of forgiveness? Or may you, when struck lawfully strike back? Generally speaking, you may indeed strike back. Your act of violence is forgiven if it is inflicted in your own protection. Courts often refer to the right of self defense as "a primary law of nature."

No ruled a court, because Marge had used considerably more force than the situation called for. When that happens, in one judge put it:

piece of paper and put a drop of blood on it. When the blood dried, they tested their hemoglobin.

They did this by comparing the color on a scale which has a variations in blood count.

On Thursday the lab was on leucocytes, or what is commonly known as white blood cells.

The procedure for making the slides was pretty much like the one used for the erythrocytes, with the exception of the staining the leucocytes with Wright's stain.

Once the slides were prepared, the students observed the cells under the microscope. They found that unlike the erythrocytes, there are several different types of leucocytes.

The students studied the neutrophils and found them to be from nine to twelve microns in diameter. These cells have from three to five lobes in the nucleus and the cytoplasm is filled with fine granules.

Next they studied the eosinophils and found them to be the same size as the neutrophils. The nucleus is bilobed and the cytoplasm is filled with fine granules. They noted that there are fewer eosinophils than neutrophils.

The third type they studied was the lymphophil. These are smaller, about ten microns in size. They have a large lobed nucleus and small granules in the cytoplasm. There are fewer in number compared to neutrophils.

The final type they studied were the lymphocytes. These are rarely found in blood because they function in lymphatic tissue.

These are probably the smallest in that they are eight microns in diameter. The cytoplasm has no granules and the nucleus is extremely large and horseshoe shaped.

The students made drawings of each type of leucocytes they observed.

Monday mornings have become our mornings to clean the room. Last week we discussed advertising articles that said a lot but nothing to give credit to the article. We did find a few that we felt had good qualities. The thought that more people are wasting their money has been brought to our attention, and we are trying to keep this waste epidemic out of our homes.

In this week's news, I would like to comment and recognize several choir members for their attendance and performance during choir every day. In choir, every unexcused absence subtracts three points from the standard grade of 100. Also, one tardy removes one point. For the first semester, these choir members had an average of 100: Dean Bouldin, Debbie Bishop, Diane Cloots, Denise Grindstaff, Janna Hise, Doris Howell, Martha Jones, Chris Larson, Karen Leach, and

The students each punctured their finger and made slides. Next they observed the slides under the microscope.

They found the cells to have biconcave shape, a definite cell membrane, and a granulated nucleus.

After observing the cells, they made a drawing of them. The students each took a

The Knox City Chapter of the Future Teachers of America met February 8, 1971, at 6:30. Guest speaker for the meeting was Mrs. Lora B. Ross, Knox-Haskell diagnostician, who spoke on the changes in the teaching style. She said that teachers should make the students feel that they are equal to the teachers themselves.

Mrs. Ross went on to say that if it were up to her, she would have us sit in a circle and she would sit, too. She ended her talk with the statement that education does not need teachers who teach first grade, fifth grade, mathematics, science, or English; education needs teachers who teach persons.

After she ended the talk, she led the group in a discussion. Everyone was interested and enjoyed the meeting very much.
