If you haven't already noticed, eyeglames have really come into their own as great beauty accents and fashion accessories. So much so that even gals who don't need them wear fabulous fakes for specs appeal.

With that in mind, here are ne tips from the Fashion Eyewear Group of America to help you become a vision of loveliness

Blonds look great in transparent beige or pastel frames; redheads and brownettes in tortoise classics; true brunettes in dramatic black.

2. Makeup colors should complement the tint of tinted lenses. A light lavender tint flatters brown eyes, and a light green tint gives extra emphasis to hazel and green

3. The eyes behind nocolor frames need to be accented a little more with mascara, liner and shadow

And, because one set of eyebrows is enough for any gal, tops of sexy spec rims should rise above them.
