

I GIVE YOU TEXAS . . .

By Boyce House

Random reflections regarding Old Mexico:

Two Spanish words are almost all that a traveler needs—"Cuanto?" which means "How much?" and "Gracias," which means "Thanks."

Incidentally, when this pilgrim brought his Spanish into action for the first time since high school days, several in our Lions' group who did not speak the language said, "Your Spanish is so good that we can understand it"—rather a doubtful compliment.

Prices are quite reasonable in Mexico City. A heaping dish of the largest and most luscious strawberries you ever ate, with a pitcher of cream so rich it will hardly pour, costs eight cents in American money at La Reforma Hotel coffee shop; and you can obtain a large glass of pulpy, flavorsome orange juice for a dime. A daily newspaper is seven centavos (about a cent and a half) and there is an English language section but the news therein is of a rather miscellaneous, not to say, sketchy nature. A shine is fifteen centavos.

In fact, prices that were at times almost absurdly low nearly caused one member of the group embarrassment. As he and a lady left La Reforma for the dinner-dance tendered by the Mexico City Lions, a street vendor offered a bouquet of gardenias. In the United States (so I have heard) gardenias are a dollar each. He purchased the flowers and his companion, who was bareheaded, placed them in her hair; it looked as though a cluster of white butterflies had alighted there. All evening, she thanked him for the bouquet. (She did not speak Spanish—the flowers cost 50 centavos, or 10 cents, American money).

The American in Mexico City, if he makes the trip by automobile, would be wise to leave his car in storage and use a taxi. The fares are low: 20 cents for short distances; but the main reason for this advice is the terrific speed at which the automobile travel. Cars dash along the Paseo de la Reforma at 50 miles an hour, just missing dozens of other autos, moving nearly as wildly, at the cross streets. It seems incredible that a machine could go through such heavy traffic at such a speed for even one block without a terrible smash-up, yet this observer did not see a single collision.

The bull fighters see how close they can let a bull's horn come without being struck—and pedestrians engage in a similar pastime with the automobiles.

Buses (which have supplanted street cars) have doors on both sides—which was a good thing for one citizen who, hotly pressed by an auto, put on a sprint and leaped onto a bus through a door on the side that doesn't have one in the United States, just in time to keep from being hit by the automobile. I shall always believe that he didn't intend to get on that bus but did so for the same reason that Brer Rabbit climbed a tree when he was chased by Brer Fox—he was just "oblegged" to.

Texas tidings: President Roosevelt inherited his money, says Lynn Landrum in his Dallas News column. Well, some people think that is better than getting elected to office and then founding a fortune by winning the lobbyists money in poker games.

It would have been quite a job for Senator Tom Connally in 1940 if he had had to explain why there was a loophole in his hot oil law whereby a man of influence and prominence avoided trial because of a technicality—so the recent decision of the United States Supreme Court reversing a lower

KNOX CITY HAS GOOD DAIRY HERD

In February, 1928, a carload of registered cows and four bulls were shipped from Ohio to Knox City. County Agent Logan went to Ohio and selected the shipment from the pure-bred dairy herds. Knox County Jersey Circle was formed and the cows and bulls were distributed over the county. Two of the bulls and several cows were kept in the Knox City vicinity.

E. O. Jamison asked Mr. Logan to buy for him a fine bred heifer and bring her with the shipment. Sybil's Lustrous Lora No. 756238 was the heifer bought from H. W. Bonnell of Youngstown, Ohio. Mr. Jamison made a deal with L. W. Graham to keep the heifer and they share in the increase, which is as follows: Temisia's Royal Sybil No. 833390, Lustrous Lora's Lady No. 941509, Oxford Dainty Fern No. 1094-547, Lora's Dainty Fern No. 1097366, Lora's Lustrous Elsie No. 1055507, Lora's Lustrous Sybil No. 1165979, Sybil's Jolly Beauty No. 1216425, Graham's Royal Owl No. 353675, Clyde Silver Klondyke No. 362797, Oxford Fern Lad No. 370183.

The bull calves were sold and used here in the community, a few calves died and a few heifers have not been registered. Mr. Graham has his foundation herd for his dairy the best in Knox county.

In addition to the above, G. T. Hardberger has for several years bred fine Jersey dairy cattle, and now has two fine registered bulls and several registered cows at his farm. And there are several other fine cows around among the farmers, which makes our community in the foremost ranks with dairy cattle, all of which is a substantial asset to our town and community.

They expect to take a steamer about June 16 for Syria, where they will visit Mr. Malouf's mother. They also will tour France and other European countries. They will return some time this fall.

"Casa Manana marches on" is the slogan coined by Lou Wolfson, executive director of the Fort Worth spectacle, opening July 21 for six weeks—meaning the new show will add to the reputation that Casa Manana has held for the three previous years as the finest entertainment in the United States.

These are the days of Commencement oratory and Jerry Sadler, State Railroad Commissioner, received a highly welcome invitation to deliver the speech to the graduating class at Slocum, which isn't far from the little community of Hickory Grove, in Anderson county, where he was born. Ralph Yarborough, who made a strong race for Attorney General last summer, accepted an invitation to make the commencement speech at Chandler, his birthplace.

A reader writes in, "I noticed a few lines in some of the papers that a State Senator had criticized Land Commissioner Bascom Giles for his 'wishy washy attitude' on the vacancy bill. Tell us more." Patience, dear heart.

THINKING OUT LOUD

Meeting the Deficit

The Governor is quite right when he says that the deficit is an honest debt for which he is not responsible insofar as responsibility grows out of having caused that deficit.

It was there before he came. The Governor, of course, is responsible for what is done about that deficit.

Mr. O'Daniel is responsible, for example, for having signed bills which give away to local counties taxes which ought to go to reducing that deficit. It was wrong to pass those bills in a time like this and it was wrong to sign them. They ought to be repealed so as to help meet the deficit. A bankrupt has no business trying to be a benefactor. It isn't honest of him to give away his creditors' money.

The deficit ought to be met. It can be met if the Governor and the Legislature will wipe the slate clean by repeal, re-consideration and other parliamentary steps, including short cuts and stay with the situation until the deficit is met. The whole trouble with the Governor has been that he has been trying to use the deficit as a whip to make the Legislature give away money to persons over 65 WHO COULD GET ALONG WITHOUT THE MONEY.

Take the Deficit First

Any reasonable businessman takes care of his old debts before he undertakes to accept any brand new obligations.

Why should not Texas be an example? Until the deficit is met appropriations for brand new obligations are a form of fraud on our creditors—the holders of state warrants.

How can we meet that deficit? The Governor says the sales tax is the way to meet it. He says the omnibus bill isn't even a good omnibus. He says it is a Dodge Brothers coup because "it is a coup whereby so many brothers dodged the tax by the exemption detour." Mr. O'Daniel doesn't like tax dodgers. Well, why not go after the tax dodgers, Governor?

If enough dodgers can be found to pay off the deficit, we may not need any new taxes at all for meeting the deficit. That would surely be some sort of contribution to our problem, wouldn't it? Well, the column is going to get out on a limb far enough to make a suggestion. If the Governor wants to saw a limb, let him saw.

A Concrete Suggestion

To do anything, it must be admitted, the Legislature and the Governor must agree to start over, so far as providing for the deficit is concerned. But here is the course to run, if that hurdle can be negotiated.

Amend the Constitution to provide that any money collected on taxes shall be applied on delinquent taxes due by that taxpayer BEFORE he is credited with current taxes. Provide in the amendment that ALL delinquent taxes so collected shall go to the GENERAL FUND with no deduction for any other fund sharing in current collections and no deduction for the county—collecting the delinquent taxes EXCEPT 1 per cent of each delinquent account up to $1,000 and ½ of 1 per cent of each delinquent account of more than $1,000, which percentage in each case shall go to the collecting clerk at the window (not to the clerk's boss or to the county).

Pass that amendment and the general fund will begin to fill up, the deficit will disappear and delinquent taxes will be mighty rare in Texas. The more you figure on it, the more you will see why these things are bound to be so.

They Will Dig It Up

The fee system will return in some degree, it is true, if this amendment is set up, but the full pressure of the proposed amendment will eventually eliminate the fee by eliminating—or practically eliminating—delinquency.

When Governor O'Daniel goes next to pay his poll tax, why should not the clerk at the window have the right to make fifteen or twenty cents by adding up all the poll taxes on which the Governor is delinquent and refusing to issue him a current poll tax until he pays up in full—as all delinquents ought. (It is true Mr. O'Daniel says he is opposed to poll taxes in principle; but then this column is opposed to sales taxes in principle, so far as that goes, and doesn't really enjoy any taxes whatever.)

Maybe the yield from delinquent poll taxes would be small, but the practice of accepting payments and applying them to the OLDEST tax account first would soon wipe out delinquencies and put the general fund in better shape than it has been in many years.

When that is done some of our other problems at Austin will be much easier to solve.

TEXAS DAIRYING A NEGLECTED FRONTIER

On all its fronts with one exception, Texas agriculture has advanced steadily toward a balanced program. Range cattle have been improved until they are standard throughout the nation. The feeding and fattening of these on home-grown feeds has been profitably established. Production of wool and mohair in the Edwards Plateau area has been improved and increased until the state leads in the production of wool and produces 50 per cent of the mohair supply of the nation. Wheat second to none in grade and quality comes by the millions of bushels each year from the High Plains area of the state. E. long years of seed breeding and improvement Texas cotton has been kept highly salable in the marts of the world. Fruits and vegetables in the Valley have been improved and standardized until their quality is unequalled. Likewise Texas turkeys and peacocks have set a national standard. These improvements, standardizations and resulting profits to the state are the result of long and intensive campaigns to which Texas agricultural, manufacturing and business leaders have given freely of their time and means.

The Dairy Industry is the neglected frontier of Texas agriculture. Just why no one seems to know, for climatic conditions and demand offer greater opportunity than those of other agricultural phases already developed.

To the leaders of the state there has recently come a realization of this dereliction. They are thoroughly organized and already forces are being marshaled to bring Texas dairying from its ragged 42nd position in production per cow in the nation's dairy picture to a place somewhere near that enjoyed by other Texas agricultural resources. They have formulated a program easy and possible of accomplishment which has for its base the dairy herd. It contemplates a marketing of already producing cows but a steady improvement of herds by the introduction of better sires, much as the Texas longhorn was transformed into the highly merchantable beef animal of today. The use of trench silos will be thoroughly stressed as well as care of products and orderly marketing. Firmly back of the leaders in the movement is as imposing an army of trained workers as was ever marshaled for a cause—County Agents, Home Demonstration Agents and Vocational Agriculture Teachers of the state. These are augmented by the field men of all branches of Governmental Agencies doing work related to agricultural development—Soil Conservation, Farm Security and Rural Electrification. Back of these are Chambers of Commerce, business men and bankers of the state. They are interested because development of dairying in Texas means better rural homes, fewer debts, bigger bank accounts and a thoroughly balanced agricultural program for the state.

KNOX COUNTY DAIRY SHOW AT MUNDAY

Knox County's initial dairy show was declared a success by everyone in attendance. Thirty five head of fine dairy cattle were exhibited last Saturday, and were classified instead of being judged as in past shows. The Blue class designated any animal that would win a blue ribbon in a straight judging class. The Red group were those that would win a red ribbon, or second place. In most classes of dairy cattle there may be several cows almost of equal merit except for some minor detail. A dairy cow is useful only for the milk that she is able to produce, and if she does not give enough milk to pay for her feed then she is useless as a dairy cow.

Three ages of dairy cows were shown Saturday at Munday: an aged cow class, heifer cows and heifer class. The Blue Class of Blue Ribbon Cows were exhibited by Sam Beavers, Grady Thornton and W. A. Baker. The Red Class of Cows were shown by Grady Thornton, D. Clougn, W. A. Strickland and J. C. Elliott. The White Class was shown by J. C. Elliott and Rev. Longino. In the Heifer Cow Class no Blue Cows were exhibited; Red Class, Rev. Longino, Bud Morgan, Ed Bauman, Grady Thornton; White Class, H. A. Peardon and Geo. Dingus. In the Heifer Class no Blue Class was exhibited; Red Class, W. A. Baker; White Class, W. A. Baker and Lee Haymes.

Grady Thornton exhibited three baby calves in the Red Class.

Munday business men contributed $22.00 in prize money which was awarded on this system of judging. The animals exhibited earned 60 points, which was divided among the exhibitors according to the number of points they earned. A blue animal won 4 points or $1.46; a red animal won 3 points or $1.10; a white animal won two points or 72c.

E. R. Eudaly of the Extension Service classed the cows and made a very interesting talk after the show, stressing the value of proper feeding of a good dairy cow. His advice was to feed only good cows, but feed them right; plenty of clean water; green feeds, such as green sudan or other grasses or silage, and an ample amount of dry roughage and good dairy ration.

THE VOICE OF TEXAS By Pierce Brooks

Almost all successful candidates in 1938, from Justice of the Peace to Congressman, advocated the payment of old age pensions to all men and women over 65 years of age. This was the major issue of the campaign.

So, when the 46th session of the Texas Legislature convened and heard the new Governor make his inaugural speech, the aged fathers and mothers of Texas breathed a sigh of relief, feeling reasonably certain that the pledge of the stump would be properly and promptly met and that bread and beans would be a welcome change from the hardships of the past. Out of the 150 members of the house, 72 were new legislators. They had, in most cases, defeated former members who had done nothing for the old folks.

Now, this whole episode reminds one of a story about Bishop Warren A. Candler. The great Methodist prelate was preaching one day to an annual conference. His text called for a reading of the chapter of Annanias and Sapphira. The Bishop said: "God did not strike down Annanias and Sapphira for lying. God does not strike down people for lying. If he did, then where would I be?" The congregation laughed loudly, thinking that the venerable Bishop was referring to himself when he asked "If God struck down people for lying, where would I be?" Immediately after the question he answered it. "If God struck down people for lying, where would I be? I'll tell you where I'd be. I'd be speaking to a bunch of corpses."

The state of Texas is paying out something like $112,000 annually in rentals in Austin for bureaus and boards created in recent years. Some new buildings have been built to take care of the needs, and these owners will receive almost enough money in three or four years to defray the cost of same. Congress has approved a measure which, it is said, would give Southern carriers "freedom to reduce freight rates." Another step in the west-south campaign for lower transportation charges, this provision would authorize truck lines, railroads and water carriers to reduce rates so long as a "compensatory return" was maintained. The plan was written into the Wheeler-Truman bill as an amendment.

Boyce House was invited to take a seat in the Senate gallery the other day. He was moving out of the place and stopped in front of a handsome painting for at least twenty seconds. There were only about a dozen visitors in the gallery, but Boyce, eminent Texas Journalist, Columnist and Philosopher, was informed by the guard that he could not stand there but had to take a chair. House is a Texan who does not like to be told that he has to do anything. He's an average Texan in that regard. So he moved on, but he asked, "If a fellow can't stop and look at the paintings, then why hang them on the walls?"

WHY GO TO COLLEGE?

This is a question that has been argued for lo these many years. The question like all of its type is no nearer solution today than it was in the early days of American Colleges. You can still hear fathers saying such outmoded phrases as the following: "I ain't going to send my boy to college. They don't give them nothing but book learning. I want him to get something practical. I don't see no sense in book learning; I didn't have none and I guess I'm doing all right." For his daughter he will say, "There ain't no point in getting her head all filled with that foolishness. It'll keep her from being a good wife to some man." That man fails to understand the value of modern education. It is in the race of such sentiment that the educational institutions of Texas have had to march. Can they be blamed if their growth has been to a certain extent slower than in other states?

It would be unwise to send every child in Texas to college. The outcome of such a plan would be to flood the market with college graduates, or to cause a great deal of heartaches to students who, lacking the ability to graduate, failed out. It is far better not to send a student to college who is weak in school than to send him and force him to stand the disgrace of failing out of school. This has a more telling effect on his character than if he does not go. Business colleges provide an excellent opportunity for students who do not desire the purely cultural fields, but who are adept at the practical side of life.

The matter of picking a career is an unfortunate feature of our system. Many parents make the mistake of deciding what little Mortimer will be when he has cutting his first teeth. And in spite of the development of all his talent in a field other than the one which they had chosen, they send him away to college when he reaches the proper age to study in the chosen field. He does poorly in his work. They send him letters scolding him for not taking advantage of the splendid opportunity they are giving him. Do you call it an opportunity to take castor oil? Perhaps the subject they have chosen for him is that distasteful to Mortimer. Mortimer becomes disgusted with their attitude. Someone tells him how to change his subjects to the field he wants without telling his parents. Mortimer tries and gets so far along in this new field that if he were forced to go back to the field that his parents had chosen, he would lose many hours of work and so he is allowed to continue in his new field. The sympathetic understanding between parents and child are forever shaken by this misunderstanding. Let the child pick the field that he wants. Only a happy worker can be a satisfied and prosperous worker. Parents should remember this fact when they peep over the edge of the cradle at two day old Mortimer, and exclaim in a properly proud parental phrase, "He'll be a lawyer like his daddy."

To the graduate, go to college and if you are not sure what you want to take—make a judicious investigation into your likes and dislikes, and try to match a course of studies to them. Do not take law because your best friend is. Or medicine because your Loy friend is. Or history, although you hate it, because you think it is easy. Choose the field that you are good in and like to work in.

Mrs. R. H. White has been real sick the past week with a bad throat infection.

The Home Demonstration Club met with Miss Oleta Humphries on May 17. A very interesting demonstration of fruit desserts was given by Miss Astin. Miss Reagan was a pleasant visitor, introduced to the ladies by Dollie B. Hodges. Refreshments were served to Miss Astin, fourteen members and three visitors.

Mr. and Mrs. Delton Lewis are proud to announce the arrival of a baby boy, born on May 22.

Uncle Lat Lea is still confined to his home following his operation some time ago. The entire community wishes him a speedy recovery.

Kanova Loper, who has been visiting her sister, Mrs. Fred Jones, in Goree for some time, has returned home.

Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Hodges and family spent the week end on the Plains.

Z. C. Williams and family spent Sunday in the A. L. Dutton home.

HOME BURNS MONDAY

The home of Mrs. H. M. Sumnerlain, who resides in the northeast part of town, was destroyed by fire late Monday evening. The cause of the fire was the explosion of an oil stove. The fire boys reached the scene shortly after the alarm was sounded, but the flames were so strong that they were unable to save the building. However, the damage will not be over four hundred dollars. The majority of the furnishings were carried out of the building and were badly damaged, but can possibly be used again.

This lady recently purchased the home from Mrs. Rutledge, and has lived there but a few months. There was no insurance, but the citizens have already made up about eighty dollars to assist her in having it repaired, and several men are now giving their work on the building. It is said that the donations will probably reach one hundred dollars by the last of the week. Those who desire to assist this lady can leave the money at the Woodridge lumber company.

Mrs. T. J. Smith and little son left Saturday for Mineral Wells where they will visit two weeks with her mother and other relatives.

ICE CREAM

Every Day--on the Ranch!

I sure wouldn't 'take' for that!"
--says Miss Zona Ciare Koy, of Eldorado, Tex.

"For 5 years, our kerosene Servel Electrolux has furnished us ice cream and frozen salads practically every day. It takes such a short time to freeze them in our Servel Electrolux. It keeps foods in perfect condition; we have never had any trouble with it. It costs around 2 cents per day for oil, which is reasonable for keeping such large amounts of food; such as lamb, fresh vegetables, milk and salads. It is the perfect refrigerator for ranchmen."

METHODIST CHURCH
Allen A. Peacock, Pastor

In the ritual for reception of members into the church are these words, "Brethren the church is of God, and will be preserved to the end of time." These are great words. They have a dignity like deep thunder.

I sometimes wonder if we realize what these words mean. When we are too busy with other things to care for His church, it seems that we think little of God's business. Some are going every night, but it is too much trouble to go to a class meeting, board of stewards or prayer meeting. Is the church of God? If so what part are we taking in the church.

Mighty empires have come and gone, but the church of the living God continues. It has lived through social change, ages of doubt, and centuries of darkness. It has been imperfect and sinful, but it is the only institution which has had power within itself with which to purify itself. It may change its form, as it has in centuries past, but it will be preserved to the end of time. The church is founded upon the believing heart, and the gates of Death nor Hell shall prevail

If you do not go to church
you are on the defensive; you will have to give some reason for your indifference to it. The church is not on trial, but we are. We are judged by our attitude toward it.

Go to church Sunday and relate yourself in that way to the eternal concern for the deep needs of men through centuries past and centuries to come.
Membership in it is one of the highest privileges of life.

Sunday morning the pastor's subject will be "A Confession of Sin." Hear this soul-stirring message. Pray that souls will be born again.

At the evening hour we will worship with the Christian church in the closing hours of their revival. Come to church Sunday morning.
