

C. H. Keck Buys Grocery And Market

One of the most important business changes made here recently was the sale made this week by George Zachary, transferring his grocery store and meat market to Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Keck. The new owners assumed charge Wednesday of this week and will operate the store as the C. H. Keck Food Store.

Mr. and Mrs. Keck have lived in Knox City since 1929, operating their own business from 1934 to 1943, when Mr. Keck entered Naval service. During the time he was in the service he was stationed at San Diego, and Mrs. Keck was with him there. They returned to Knox City upon his discharge in April, 1946.

Among Mr. Keck's employees will be L. V. Dodd, who has been associated with grocery stores in Knox City for several years, and at one time operated his own grocery business here. Bud Thompson will remain in charge of the market, and V. Buckley will also be employed in the store.

Their many friends welcome "Charlie and Georgia" back to Knox City and wish them success in their enterprise.

Greyhounds Beat Vera

The Knox City Greyhounds kept their title last Friday night by defeating the Vera Pilots, 40-0.

In the first few minutes of the game, Jack Teaff made a touchdown. After that the Greyhounds began running quick yardage, and kept it up all through the game.

Vera lost the ball and our team recovered it within fifteen yards of the pay dirt, and in three plays, Bobby Hackfield scored our second touchdown. He followed it up in the second quarter by running another one over.

At the beginning of the second half, Jack Teaff caught a long pass and ran 30 yards for a touchdown.

Vera tightened up and nearly got a touchdown, but was stopped. Regardless of Vera's tight play, Richard Buckley rang up a touchdown as did Jimmy Robinson.

Every man on the Greyhound squad played in the game. O. L. Knight, a first year player, got in a good tackle. Bud Reynolds, another first timer, got in a good pass.

Vera's opposition was not as tough as had been expected—the pilots were fast but not flying low enough.

The Greyhounds meet Benjamin here this Friday night, October 11, in their fifth conference game of the season. And they will be bucking for the title they have upheld thus far.

Good Roads Meet To Be Held in Austin

AUSTIN (Sp.) — Approximately 500 Texas roads enthusiasts will meet here Monday evening, October 14, to open the active campaign for adoption of the Good Roads Constitutional Amendment at the November General Election. The proposal will appear as Amendment Number three on the November 5th ballot.

Speakers will include Governor-nominee Beauford H. Jester, Lieutenant Gov. nominee Allan Shivers, Congressman O. C. Fisher of San Angelo, John S. Redditt, Chairman of the State Highway Commission, and State Representative Neveille Colson. Congressman Fisher is the only Texas member of the House Roads Committee. Mrs. Colson is the author of the Good Roads Constitutional Amendment and has the distinction of being the only woman member of the House of Representatives in Texas history to obtain submission of a Constitutional Amendment and also has the honor of being the only woman legislator in the United States to sponsor such a proposal. A similar amendment has been approved by the voters of 18 states and has been initiated in three states in addition to Texas.

Col. Ike Ashburn, Houston, will serve as master of ceremonies for the rally. Col. Ashburn, long associated with good roads movements in Texas, was the first manager of the Texas Good Roads Association after its organization by the late Judge W. O. Huggins, editor of the Houston Chronicle.

Judge Sid Caillavet, president of the County Judges and Commissioners Association, and Bun Raley, chairman of the Roads Committee, Rural Letter Carriers' Association, along with representatives of farm organizations and users of farm roads strongly backing the amendment, will participate in the program.

J. G. showed his medium-weight steer weighing 1000 pounds against 70 entries from all over the state and won 10th place for a prize of $25.00 plus a ribbon. This calf, named "Lazy Bones," was bred by the League Ranch at Benjamin and fed by J. G.

Harold A. Davidson To Speak at K. C. School Auditorium

On Thursday, October 22 at 7:30 p. m., Southern School Assemblies will present Harold B. Davidson, professional deep sea diver, in a lecture on "Men Undersea."

Mr. Davidson is said to be a man of achievement. He has a remarkable background from which to speak, and his underwater work has brought him many thrills which are better to hear about than to try to live through.

He has "followed disaster," with shipwrecks his meat, and earthquakes and hurricanes meaning money in his pocket and adventure in his life. But there has been constructive work, too—as when he helped lay a pipeline across the New Haven harbor; when he explored and collected marine specimens in furthering of scientific knowledge, and when he assisted in filming of the motion picture "Titans of the Deep." He is one of the few to survive the dreaded "squeeze."

At a salvage expert, in the Navy, Davidson was with the first crew to go below when work on the foundered Normandie was begun. Also with the Navy, he saw service in Northern Africa, Casablanca, and other places where his knowledge and skill were needed. It is no small satisfaction to him that the Navy has patented and is now using a device he invented for salvaging oil from sunken ships.

He spent the past summer diving on some of the torpedoed wrecks off the Florida Coast. He will bring a thrilling story of adventure and work under water, and will do a complete diving suit to explain how a diver works in it.

Southern School Assemblies will also present The Klitties, a male quartet, to Knox City on Thursday, November 21, and Reupert L. Hawkinson, who will lecture on sports, on Friday, February 14. Admission to the affairs is 25 cents and 50 cents.

Mrs. Nash Is Guest Speaker at Knox City Study Club "Federation Day" Meeting

The Knox City Study Club opened its club year with a "Federation Day" program Saturday afternoon, Oct. 5, in the basement of the Baptist Church, with some fifty local and visiting club women present.

At 3:00 o'clock the receiving line formed just inside the basement hall to welcome the guests. Mrs. C. C. Hoge, local president, Mrs. H. L. White, 1946 Study Club representative, Mrs. B. B. Campbell, Mrs. Herschel Nash, guest speaker for the afternoon, Mrs. Otis Cash, Mrs. S. M. Clonts, Mrs. E. R. Carpenter, Mrs. Uric Lea, and Mrs. E. F. Branton greeted the guests while Mrs. Johnny Joiner entertained them with piano music.

Everyone enjoyed Mrs. Nash's message, and the Knox City Study Club members felt truly honored at being able to present her as their guest.

As a token of friendship and gratitude from the club, Mrs. E. R. Carpenter presented Mrs. Nash an English Bone China demitasse cup and saucer which she said would fit perfectly with her cup collection.

Following Mrs. Nash's talk, Mrs. George Zachary, accompanied by Mrs. E. Q. Warren at the piano, played Toselli's "Serenade" as a violin number.

Mrs. J. U. Fields of Haskell expressed her happiness at being able to sit back as a guest and enjoy the meeting. Mrs. Fields has been called the "Mother of the Knox City Study Club," since it was she who helped them to organize some 22 years ago.

Mrs. J. S. Leonard announced the next meeting of the club, Oct. 19, at which time the Horizon Club members of Knox City will have charge of the entire program. They will present Mrs. Fred Stockdale of Haskell as a guest speaker and entertain the club with a social hour following their program.

Mrs. Leroy Melton of Benjamin, who is chairman of State Highway Beautification, announced that all towns of the district are urged to adopt a shrub or tree and plant the highways through the towns and out to the city limits. She also announced that there will be a general clean-up campaign immediately. Since Knox City's shrub is the Crepe Myrtle, there will probably be a number of them planted.

Mrs. Joiner again entertained with piano numbers for the social hour following Saturday's program. Rolled chicken salad and butter - nut sandwiches, stuffed sliced pickles, ice box cookies, home made marshmallows and hot spiced apple cider were served to those present. The club colors were used in the tiny plate favor corsages of orange pylacantha berries tied with red ribbon-bows.

Hostesses for Saturday's meeting were Mmes. E. F. Branton, R. M. Almanrode, Uric Lea, C. C. Hoge, S. M. Clonts and Otis Cash.

Complications Mark Soviet Approach

Friendly Russian Element Holds Out Hope for Peace

By BAUKHAGE, News Analyst and Commentator.

WNU Service, 1616 Eye Street, N.W., Washington, D. C.—"America has no foreign policy!"

That is one of the bromides which has always been popular among critics of government. I don't know on what the remark is based. If we haven't any foreign policy today, then many hundreds of thousands of words have been expended in comment on nothing.

Baukhage

While the recent Byrnes-Wallace controversy was raging I spent many hours trying to find out what our foreign policy toward Russia was supposed to be, and if so, why. I shall report as nearly as I can what I have heard. The report will not be in the formal language of diplomacy, in which, we have been told, words are used to conceal thoughts. I report it, compressed, of course, but as nearly as possible in the phraseology used by gentlemen who ought to know what they are talking about.

We start with the not-too-startling revelation that American negotiations with Russia are complicated and difficult.

They are complicated because it appears the approach must be made along two separate paths, each leading to a separate Russian group.

They are difficult because there are unusual obstacles put in the way of the diplomat, especially our representatives in Moscow; obstacles which, I am assured, must be encountered at close quarters to be appreciated.

The two groups, since neither is homogeneous nor closely identifiable, might better be referred to as two elements. One comprises that great indefinable and inarticulate body, roughly classified as "the Russian people." Americans who have spent some time in Russia and who have enjoyed such contact as is permitted with the Russian people, say they are devoted to their country with a Spartan loyalty, sensitive to its shortcomings, proud of its achievements.

Many in this group, especially those who have met Americans, like us. All want to know more about us. For example, they devour the big propaganda, picture magazine "Amerika" printed in their language and distributed by our embassy. Formerly we distributed 35,000 copies. Later we were permitted to increase the printing to 50,000 copies. It is estimated that a hundred Russians read each copy of Amerika; it is black-marketed at a high price and read to tatters.

This group admires and respects mechanical know-how, our industries, our technical skills. Officially there has been no propaganda to cry down American achievement in the production fields, but rather exhortations to emulate and surpass us.

Soviet Officials Hate America

The other Russian element which we have to consider and with which we deal directly is composed of the leaders, the party bureaucrats, the secret police. They hate America with an almost incredible hatred. Their attitude is so extreme that it does not seem real; it appears to be prompted by a policy, rather than a normal, human, emotional reaction.

If either of these two elements existed alone it would be simpler to establish a line of procedure. But, my informant points out, each element requires a separate and different approach, since the two contradict each other.

Because the only visible hope for an understanding with Russia depends on the semi-friendly group, nothing must be said or done in our relations with the other (now in power) which would make it seem that we are building a wall against Russia. That impression would alienate any potential sympathy the semi-friendly ones might feel for us.

This dual approach was exemplified by the Byrnes speech calling for the unification of Germany, under a single government, with all four occupying countries acting together as co-directors of the whole. Byrnes made the proposal inclusive. Russia would participate equally with the rest. The intention of the United States was firmly stated. There would be union of British and Americans, presumably the French, and the Russians too, if they consented. If the Russians refused, the United States would go ahead with the plan but it would not slam the door on Russia.

We are to be friendly but we must be firm. That is what makes negotiations so difficult. To convince the "haters" we mean what we say, the United States must state its decisions firmly and emphatically, outline exactly what we will do and will not do; what we will permit Russia to do and not do. Our firmness has to depend on our words. We cannot use force, because we have not the force available to us.

This, however, does not mean we cannot succeed, because I am optimistically assured the Russians are weaker than we are. Although their military forces on the continent of Europe are stronger than those of the Allies, it is believed that the Russians lack the economic, physical or moral strength to engage in a major war and they know that in the long run the rest of the world can develop a greater power.

Politically they have not the influence, either, to risk withdrawal from the United Nations. They know they could not take a sufficient number of other nations out with them and thus, withdrawal would mean ostracism and threats from the rest of the world. This the Russians know as well as we do.

'GENERAL' REDEEMS PROMISE... In Johns Hopkins hospital, Baltimore, where he submitted to a sight-saving operation, nine-year-old Juliano Cabbia, known during the war as "The General" to several American fighting divisions which adopted him, said he hoped the children of Feltre, especially 60 orphans, would be given aid. Now back in Italy, Juliano, still wearing his army uniform, is the hero of his village.

Strife Rages in Greece; More War Profits Bared

GREECE: Civil Strife

King George II of Greece faced no happy return to his homeland as open civil war raged in the mountainous northwestern border region and the Red-dominated Albanian and Yugoslav governments were charged with actively aiding the rebels.

Premier Constantin Tsaldaris bluntly attributed the strife to Russian efforts to tighten their grip on the Near East. Said he: "It is as clear as noon-day that this is... for the benefit of those who aim to take advantage of our troubles with a view of securing an outlet to the Aegean sea."

As a last resort, 40,000 British troops encamped in Greece were being readied for intervention in the dispute if the government forces failed to check the left-wing uprising. With the country occupying a strategic position near the Dardanelles and Suez canal, Britain and Russia have been waging a bitter diplomatic war for control—the British to protect their lifeline to the East, the Russians to weaken their rivals and to extend their own dominance over the rich area.

SHIPBUILDERS: Probe War Profits

Figures, figures and more figures featured the house merchant marine committee's investigation of wartime shipbuilding profits, with these prominent facts emerging after the mathematical smoke had cleared away:

- 1. Because of applying shipbuilding profits against losses of its Fontana steel mill, Kaiser company showed a deficit of 13 million dollars on its wartime operations. Another Kaiser-controlled company used shipbuilding profits to pay off a 26 million dollar magnesium plant in full.

2. The government's general accounting office's charge that California Shipbuilding corporation had realized a 44 million dollar profit failed to take into account funds captured by the U. S. through renegotiation and taxes. After these reductions, the firm showed a five-year profit of $3,782,863.

3. Failure of the accounting office to include renegotiation and taxes resulted in its estimate that New England Shipbuilding corporation had made a 1 1/2 million dollar profit instead of approximately 1 1/2 million.

LABOR: Defy Injunction

Always jealous of its right to strike to enforce wage and other demands, organized labor presented a united front against a county court's anti-strike injunction against the Independent Association of Employees of Duquesne Light company in Pittsburgh, Pa.

In issuing the injunction, the three-judge court heeded the city solicitor's plea to act in the public interest in preventing a costly power strike. Though the order later was dissolved when the solicitor declared that it had served to force a resumption of bargaining between the disputants, IAE members remained adamant about returning to work as long as it stayed in effect.

Apprehensive of the no-strike and no-picketing features of the injunction, AFL and CIO unions supported the IAE walkout. Labor charged that the court order was in violation of both the state and federal anti-injunction laws and there was no law requiring men to work against their wish.

MEAT: Dems Differ

Heightening of the meat crisis found Democratic leaders at odds over the retention of controls, with President Truman calling for continuation of regulations and other party heads favoring a relaxation, if necessary.

Declaring there was a shortage but no famine in meat, Mr. Truman looked to a fall run of grass-fed cattle to relieve the nation-wide scarcity. Attributing the current shortage to heavy livestock marketings during the recent suspension of OPA, the President asserted that removal of controls now would add to difficulties later.

Mr. Truman spoke shortly after the Democratic national executive committee took cognizance of the meat situation and instructed Chairman Hannegan to discuss higher prices, decontrol or other remedial measures with government authorities. The committee's action came close upon Democratic House Leader McCormack's plea for a 60 day suspension of meat control.

Evolution of Typewriter Continues

If there had been a word-counting device on my typewriter, I would not be writing this end-piece now. But it is just as well authors haven't adopted these wordometers or they might find their thoughts being regimented.

The typewriter has already advanced far in its evolution. There is now a typewriter for the Chinese with their 5,400 (believe-it-or-not) characters. It is a product of the miracle working International Business Machines corporation. But it is no miracle for IBM which built a gadget used at the Nuernberg trials whose dial we could twist to produce with equal fluency, English, French, Russian or German, regardless of what language was being spoken. Of course human beings — lightning translators — are cogs in its works. The Nuernberg trials lasted too long as it was—but they would have lasted four times as long, if it hadn't been for IBM.

I understand a typewriter is being perfected into which you talk and which obligingly types the words you speak with no manual effort on your part. How, I wonder, would this recording typewriter spell: If you spell the word "house" on the ordinary keyboard it comes out that way, h-o-u-s-e. But if the machine operated by sound, "house", depending on where the speaker was born, might come out "ha-ows"; "idea" might appear as "idear"; For my part I should be very happy if a gadget were invented which would spell better than my typewriter can or even if the gadget would produce a synonym now and then after I had repeated the same shopworn word three times.

American air force men are teaching German youngsters to sing "The Star Spangled Banner" in laborious German translation. Consider the difficulties even local anthem, this new lesson in democracy must be a little hard to take.

When the "ins" have been in as long as most of them have, about all the "outs" have to do is pick a candidate not quite bad enough to make the people feel they have to vote against him.

Tin cans are 93 1/2 per cent steel, but that doesn't spoil the favor of what they contain. Some of the distillers seem to be shooting at the same proportion of "neutral spirits" in some of their products—but not with same results.

No two people think or act alike, but that fact doesn't cause fights on every street corner. (United Nations please copy).

All Debt in U.S. Shows Increase

WASHINGTON. — Total private and public debt in the United States climbed 35 billion 400 million dollars in 1945 to reach a record figure of 400 billion 500 million dollars, it is revealed in a department of commerce report.

The increase last year, representing the final war period, fell far below that of the record 62 billion dollar rise in 1944 when the war was in full swing.

Main item in the increase was the federal debt, which rose 42 billion dollars last year. Offsetting this gain, declines were reported in other debt spheres.

Declines Noted. Corporate short-term debt de-during 1945, totaling 46 billion, 500 million dollars at the end of the year.

Other declines were listed as follows: State and local government debt, 349 million dollars; long-term corporate debt, 950 million dollars; 39 billion 300 million dollars; farm mortgages, 190 million dollars to 5 billion 100 million dollars for the lowest level since 1915.

Increases reported for the year 1945 included: Non-corporate urban mortgage debt, up to 162 billion dollars; short-term commercial and financial debt, up to 2 billion, 541 million dollars; and short-term govern-

Production Gains

During the four-year war period between 1941 and 1945 there was a net increase in all debt from 202 billion 400 million dollars to 400 billion 500 million dollars. During the same period the gross national product—the total of goods and services produced—rose from 129 billion dollars to 196 billion dollars.

The downward trend in farm mortgage debt, which has been continuous since the early 1920s, soon may be halted, the department predicts. In 1945, according to the summary, farm mortgage debt increased in 20 states, compared with increases in only eight states in 1944.

Memos to All Editors:

The anti-Roosevelts are using this: A Republican (Chicago) paper's reporter asked Bob Hannegan: "Who'll be your candidate in '48—Truman?"

"Nope," Hannegan replied (don't forget this is an alleged joke), "not strong enough. The public apparently no like."

"Could it be Wallace?" pumped the reporter.

"Hell, no! Can't take chances with him. They think he's a Red."

"Well," said the scribe, "if it ain't Truman or Wallace, who do you think it might be?"

"Oh," said Hannegan, "I dunno! There's plenty of time. We'll dig up someone."

"Oh, NO!" roared the Republican, "not HIM!"

Prof. Manne Siegbahn's trip here is for several confs with Einstein. He's Sweden's top atomian (collaborer of Lise Meitner). . . . The influential members on Eisenhower's staff are for "complete remobilization."

Dr. Paul Scheffer (see clips in morgue) was once chief of nazi spy ring in Russia. Now very active here. One of the top propagandists for "getting the U. S. into a war with Russia soon as possible."

When Field Marshal Montgomery was honor-guest (at the Barbi-Zona) a man, en route to the 30th floor, was hauled back into the elevator and made to identify himself before the law in the foyer. Said to be J. D. Rockefeller Jr.!

Add significant Russ-U. S. notes: The Russian purchasing commission in Washington (which numbers about 300 expert Soviet engineers and technicians) is discharging its U. S. employees, preparatory to shutting down Jan. 1. That means, I'm told, the Russians do not expect to buy from us any more the way things stand now, etc.

Reminder: Great Britain and Russia signed a non-aggression treaty in 1941. Which side would British be on in event of conflict, considering treaties are pieces of papyrus? . . . Big news expected from Puerto Rico during next few months. Break said to come between Luis Munos Marin, president of the senate there and most-powerful political figure in islands—and Jesus Pinero, Truman's appointment for the governorship. . . . Cost of stombs are down to a mere million each. That sounds expensive, but look at it this way: The entire civilized world can now be destroyed for less than the war cost the U. S., 70 billion.

Reason Russians so cocky lately is they allegedly have cosmic ray bomb. Plan inviting Americans and other nations to a demonstration of their "war of nerves." . . . Insiders unimpressed, claiming we have a weapon that makes the Atomb obsolete. . . . Senator Bob La Follette made a non-gov't committee to study all phases of modernizing the federal gov't. This new outfit will be financed by wealthy citizens, some of whom held high gov't posts during the war.

N. Y. Navelette: The ABC network had a correspondent in Tokyo. His name, Joe Julian. . . . He went to Hiroshima to do a broadcast months after the atom fell. . . . As Julian walked along rubble-strewn streets he met a man on a bike, who introduced himself. . . . "I'm the Reverend Tanimoto," he said. . . . He was of great help to the broadcaster in getting material, etc. . . . A year later Julian (who is also an actor) found himself jobless. . . . Last week, while wandering about Radio city he was spotted by the director of the John Hersey-Hiroshima broadcast. Julian was engaged to read one of the parts. . . . It was the role of the stranger Joe met in Hiroshima—the Rev. Tanimoto!

The Late Watch: Elliott got 25 Gs for that mag series. . . . Truman (as we first hinted long ago) personally doesn't want to run again. If he does, they'll have to drag him via the draft. That explains why he is so "candid" . . . The White House is spreading happiness to the Germans in Germany and to the Republicans in America. . . . Our foreign policy is about as clear as the mud diplomats have been throwing at each other. . . . Too many American leaders are arguing about our foreign policy instead of explaining it.

Mr. Peron's Austrian friend, Fritz Mandl, reported inquiring about possibilities of buying a newspaper here or Philly. His Buenos Aires office is working with experts on preparations for a news syndicate and newspaper chain for Latin America. . . . Are Returning Veterans "Different"?

During the war you heard a lot about how hard it was going to be for returning veterans to get adjusted to civilian life... how they'd be "different."

Well, plenty of them have returned to our town, and a finer, steadier bunch you couldn't ask for. Most of them are back at the same jobs... going with the same nice home-town girls (getting married, some of them, and setting up families)... renewing the same old friendships.

Even their amusements are the same. Nothing more exciting than fishing Seward's creek or pitching horseshoes... enjoying an outdoor barbecue with friendly wholesome beer and pleasant talk.

If they've changed at all it's in the direction of maturity and tolerance... tolerance for everything except dictators, and those who would destroy our democratic principles of live and let live. And from where I sit, that's another reason to be proud of them.

CROSS TOWN

The Once Over
By H.I. Phillips

THE CUSTOMER IS ALWAYS A PAIN IN THE NECK

What's become of the old-fashioned American who wanted more work? The fellow who was out to increase his business? The man who wanted to hold his customers?

Have you tried to get anything done lately? Have you needed a paperhanger, a painter, a plumber, an electrician, a mason or even somebody to cut the lawn? If so, you know what we're driving at.

Nothing seems to startle a business man like the prospect of some new business. "Can you do it right away?" has become a phrase from a dead language. "Immediately" has become the most futile word in English. "Soon" is almost as meaningless.

Once every community was full of alert, good-natured proprietors of their own businesses, all eager for customers. You could get the pipes fixed, the walls papered, the porch repaired, the roof shingled and the lights fixed any time.

Today these very same people put on a sourpuss at your approach, freeze if you enter the office and register a complete lack of interest if you start telling them that you are in a jam and want something done.

The plumber tells the help, when the phone rings, "If it's an old customer, hang up." The electrician exclaims "You mean this year!" when Mrs. Trooksey phones and says: "All my lights are out! Will you please come over and fix them?"

Your chimney collapses and you rush to the mason. There's a young lady reading a book. She looks up after the book begins to bore her. You tell her you have a chimney emergency and would like to get the boss. Her expression tells you "Haven't you heard? Mr. Spinelio isn't interested in new chimney troubles. He has a waiting list."

The water pipes spring a leak. You phone your old friend Gus Hofnagle, who was your first plumber. You have been giving him your work for years. Good old Gus Hofnagle.

"Gus, there's two feet of water in the living room, I'm sinking," you say.

"What is the name again?" asks Gus.

You have to spell it for him. He says languidly that there are 18 flooded living rooms ahead of you and that he couldn't possibly get around to an old reliable customer before Christmas Eve.

And carpenters! You can get only as far as "One of my front stairs needs a . . ." before he pulls his whole head and neck in like a turtle and starts backing away across country.

This "Customers are such pests" attitude is sweeping the country. Only this morning we watched a waitress in a chain restaurant perform in the 1946 pattern. She glared at you as you took a table; she put on a "Dare give me an order" expression; she took it down reluctantly, and when she returned after an hour or so she slammed the food in front of you and seemed to say "I'll teach customers not to come in this place twice!"

What's come over people? Are they all sore doing what they are doing? We pause for a reply. And we expect an insult!

Juvenile Delinquency, Didja Say?

There will be a national conference on the control of—guess what?—juvenile delinquency in Washington next month. President Truman has declared that "juvenile delinquency is of serious concern to the whole country," and Attorney-General Tom Clark, who has called the conference, says 500 delegates from 48 states will "pool their forces to meet squarely this grave problem."

We will bet right now that within a stone's throw of the conference hall there will be at least six movie theaters instructing the kiddies in the fine art of murder, gunplay and general lawlessness. In technicolor!

Heigh ho and alackaday! Also a heigh nonny nonny and a hot cha cha. (Is Eric Johnson, the chief of the board of movie censorship, in the house. And if so, what for?)

Household Hints

Enameled bathtubs and wash bowls that have become yellow may be restored by washing them with salt and turpentine.

When ironing sheets and tablecloths, place a card table in front of your ironing board. This will catch the sheet or tablecloth before it falls to the floor and gets soiled.

An iron heats more rapidly than it cools. With that fact in mind, start out with fabrics that require low temperatures and progress to those that require higher ones. Arrange dampened clothes in the laundry basket accordingly with those that come first placed on top.

When disconnecting the cord on your electric iron, pull on the plug that fits into the outlet, never the cord.

If a door sags, just a wee bit, throwing the bolt out of line with the striker plate, you can correct the difficulty quickly by filing the striker plate.

Save the material from the children's worn out cloth-covered rain coats. These can be made into serviceable aprons or handy capes to wear when applying make-up.

Students May Still Enroll at McMurry

ABILENE.—In spite of an enrollment figure that doubles any previous year in the history of McMurry College, present facilities are still available for late enrollees, according to Dean W. B. McDaniel. "It is probable that many who want to enroll this semester are under the impression that no more students are being accepted at this time," continued McDaniel. ...

a would-be student has a place to stay, there is nothing to prevent his enrollment at McMurry this late hour. As a matter of fact, there are still a number of housing facilities in Abilene available in the immediate vicinity of the campus, both for single and married students, concluded Dean McDaniel. As of Oct. 1 the enrollment figure totaled 582. To care for this large increase over previous years, 15 additional faculty members have been added to the staff.

Senior News

The seniors are looking forward to the senior trip and are planning ways to make money. It was voted in a class meeting to have a rummage sale and everyone worked hard all week gathering up rummage. Saturday the sale was held and quite a bit of money was taken in. Also a ball throwing contest was held.

Pep Squad Report

Friday evening the pep girls were all dressed in their red and blue uniforms and marched to town in a parade to pep things up a bit. After marching to town they gave some yells and returned to the school.

The girls had been practicing on marching all week and were anxious to get started Friday night. At the half the Vera pep squad marched on the field and formed a P for Pilots and a G for Greyhounds. Then the Knox City pep squad marched on the field, formed a V for Vera, all the lights were turned off and each girl turned on a flashlight which made a lighted V. Then the girls gave a yell for Vera. Next they formed a K. C. and lights were turned off and the flashlights turned on, and a yell was given for the Greyhounds. They all enjoyed the game and had some good reasons to do some good yelling.

This Friday the Greyhounds play Benjamin, and everyone is looking forward to a good crowd and a good game.

Fish News

Well, six weeks exams are finally here and as this is our first experience in high school we hope to come out in flying colors. Most of the freshmen are sore from trying to skate. We are all slow but sure—to fall.

Soph News

The Sophomores said their poetry Monday. Forty-eight lines—"Wow!" Mrs. Carpenter left it printed on the blackboard. I wonder how we could all remember the poem so well. Maybe we are getting smart after all.

This is six weeks exam week. We will see how smart the sophomores are after we get our report cards. We might be disappointed at the result.

We are all still in high hopes that the boys will be bi-district champions in football again this year. They have done good so far.

The sophs are really proud of Jimmy Robinson. He made his first touchdown Friday.

Home Ec Chat

We have gone about as far as we can with our aprons. Our machine heads are being repaired and we can't finish our aprons until they come back. We hope they are back soon because we are very anxious to see how they turn out.

Our rummage sale went off with a "bang." We made a good profit and wish to thank the people who were kind enough to give the rummage to us.

Later on we plan to sell our own handwork. We are going to make pot holders, aprons, dollies, scarves, etc., and sell them.

On Friday we made candy and sold it. It was very good. We hope to make more when we get sugar. We make three kinds of candy: caramel, chocolate and cocoanut. We also gathered all our rummage together and got ready for our sale.

Saturday we had the rummage sale. There was not much rummage, but we hope to have more. We closed at 2:00 because of the rain. We wish to thank Mr. Reeder for letting us use the lumber yard porch.

Mrs. A. B. Robertson returned Tuesday from Canyon where she had spent the past two weeks with her sister, Mrs. Tom Lair, Jr., and family.

OUTWEARS PREWAR TIRES

The better the tire, the faster it sells . . . and we've never seen a tire sell as fast as the new postwar B.F. Goodrich Silvertown that outwears and outlasts tires of prewar construction. That's why, in the face of outstanding production, we've had to ask so many of our customers to wait just a little longer for this tire.

It's Extra Safety that caused the Extra Demand for B.F. GOODRICH SILVERTOWNS

● Extra safety is an engineered factor in the new B.F. Goodrich tires . . . extra safety and greater resistance to "road shock" from the 35% stronger body with more cords and an entirely new and stronger cord . . . extra safety and greater protection against skidding from the wider, flatter surface that spreads the wear more evenly, gives you many more miles of service than prewar passenger car tires.

The Sweeping Tides

W.N.U. SERVICE

CHAPTER I

Mark Darrell crouched beside his timber-cruiser, Nat Page, at the engine of the motor-boat, peering out through the storm.

Through the great clouds of spray that went sweeping past them, everything was alternately as black as pitch and suddenly illumined again by the one-two, one-two of the lighthouse beam, as it clove the night.

The foghorn, which had been intermittently sounding its dull note for the past hour, had ceased; evidently the fog had lifted, though that fact was not apparent to the two men in the boat, cutting her swath through mountainous seas that threatened each instant to capsize her.

The drenching rain showed no sign of lessening, and the howling of the wind had become an inferno as they approached the lighthouse point, a long ridge of land projecting from the black, rugged coastline of the northern St. Lawrence. The little boat, apparently heading straight for the rocks beneath the lighthouse, seemed doomed to swift destruction.

Nat Page turned and shouted in Mark's ear, "No hope of rounding the point. But there's the little cove among the rocks at the point. We'll make her."

"We'll make her," Mark shouted back.

And neither man believed it, for here, off the point, the seas were frightful. Huddled up in their drenched furs, the two watched the treacherous, black, shifting panorama of shore and rocks, while the boat, already growing water-logged, rolled crazily in the troughs, and barely seemed to surmount the towering crests above her.

It had been a foolish act to start across the St. Lawrence that treacherous noon in spring, when the ice had only lately gone out of the river, and the first ocean liners had but a week before forged their way upstream to Montreal. But those logs in the icebound St. Victor would be ready for running in a week or so, and that would mean a little more cash for the new enterprise. And Horace Broussac's curt note from Montreal, demanding that the sale of the mill and lumber rights be canceled, had disturbed Mark a good deal.

It was disturbing Mark even now, though their lives seemed a matter of seconds rather than of minutes. The thud of the breakers on the rocks was louder than the wind. Straight ahead, visible only when the one-two of the light gleamed, was the tall lighthouse tower, all about it the black implacable silence of the cliffs; underneath the rush and roar of the cross-currents about the point, the dash of the waves, the back-suction of the undertow, the blinding spray.

Mark gripped the side of the boat as a great ledge of rocks rose almost beside them. They had escaped that by a miracle of luck. At the wheel Nat Page was fighting with all his might to keep the little craft head-on, to save her from being battered against the rocks like a swirling log in the St. Victor.

charge. She wouldn't see him, and Mark had sensed an indescribable hostility among the sullen habitations. They lived by fishing, and each spring they joined the sealing squadrons off Newfoundland. They were not woodmen, like the people of the upper St. Lawrence, probably resented the presence of an American, even though Mark could speak French with fair fluency.

The landlord of the tiny hotel, patronized only by traveling salesmen, had been dour and uncommunicative, a Frenchman of Scots ancestry, like so many of the people. But Broussac had been with Mark, and Broussac had been effusive, conciliatory and evidently the one man whose word counted in the tiny settlement, where he had a summer home.

The cheap little milling outfit would serve as a start. Loggers, brought from higher up the river, were hard at work along the banks of the St. Victor. Broussac had promised two thousand cords of logs at the runways before spring. Mark was satisfied with his purchase, still more so with the fine growth of heavy timber. For the first time in his life he was his own master.

It was Broussac's curt letter from Montreal that had decided Mark to take Nat Page to St. Victor at once, and look into the situation. There was no transportation in April, except by motor-boat from the south shore. They should have reached derly man and a boy, clothed in sleek, dripping slickers, were approaching them, a coil of rope in their hands. Behind them, clothed also in a slicker, a girl was standing.

"They are all right, Madame!" the elderly man shouted to her.

"Bring them up to the cottage immediately!"

She turned, and next moment Mark and Nat were being assisted up a long gravel trail, then up two flights of concrete steps, to the plateau on which the lighthouse stood.

Here were other structures too, presumably housing the stores, the dynamo and the apparatus for the foghorn, and opposite them was a long, single-story cottage, with a light shining in one room.

The girl turned, holding up a lantern, and inspecting the two young men. She looked about one-and-twenty, her dark hair was tumbled about her face, her hood dripped, and Mark noticed, by the lantern light, the firm setting of the corners of her mouth, odd in so young and beautiful a girl.

"Bring them here, Andre; I will question them," she said. Again Mark thought that odd.

She addressed Mark in French, "Monsieur, we have been watching your boat half the afternoon, and were afraid you would never make the landing. You owe your thanks to God," she said. "There is but one question. Is either of you the Monsieur Darrell, who was here last fall?"

"It is he—this one!" cried old Andre suddenly.

"I am Mark Darrell, and this is Mr. Page," Mark replied. "You must be Madame Kinross, whose lands I have leased."

A growl like a bear's came from old Andre's throat. For a moment he looked as if he was about to hurl himself at Mark. Madeline Kinross' quiet, level tones restrained him.

"Be quiet, Andre!" she commanded. "These men are guests. They cannot go back until tomorrow. Put some more logs into the stove in the spare room. And bring them dry clothes. I, Messieurs, shall heat you some soup and coffee."

She disappeared into the back of the house and old Andre viciously flung open the door of the room that occupied the other wing of the one-story house. It was damp and cold inside, but a flicker of fire came from a stove. Andre lit a candle and placed it on a table. He thrust two logs into the stove and turned, grinning malevolently at Dan and Nat through his gray beard.

"It was the devil saved you from the sea," he growled. "Tomorrow you can go back to him."

There were two cots in the room. From a closet the old man pulled some clothes—trousers, pullovers, mackinaws and socks.

"It is because she told me to do so," he snarled. "We do not want you here!"

"Well, there's a nice, pleasant customer for you, Mark," grumbled Nat, as the old man stamped out of the room. "I had a hunch folks weren't so friendly hereabouts when I looked over your timber last fall, but if they're all like him—"

Tons of green-white water hurled him forward.

Profits in Pulpwood Interest Mark

With six years' experience working for a company on the second-growth logging lands high up the St. Lawrence, and with the increasing price of pulpwood, Mark had realized that the time had come to take toll of the huge, untapped forest resources further east, a hundred miles beyond Tadoussac and the Saguenay, where summer tourists fish and play golf. With his little capital, and two backers who believed in him, he had seen the profits to be made out of the timber lease on the Kinross Seigniory.

And there was something more to it than the profits. There was the sense of mastery in the taming of the great forests and harnessing of the streams, driving runways, building corduroys, sending the logs swirling down the rapids into the flume. It meant accomplishment, it meant life itself.

The lease of that waterfront section of the Kinross Seigniory had been in the market for three years. None of the big companies had been ready to negotiate. The fall previously, Mark had closed with Horace Broussac, the Quebec lawyer, acting on behalf of his ward, the widow of the late seigneur, who had been drowned at sea with the sealing fleet five years before.

Broussac, smooth, suave, ingratiating, had struck Mark as the type of customer who required watching. But Mark had satisfied himself that the rights were indisputable, and had seen Madame Kinross' signature authorizing her guardian, Horace Broussac, to make the lease on her behalf.

She had been a widow five years and she was not yet twenty-one! Mark hadn't seen her the previous fall, when he visited St. Victor.

His hands clutched gravel. He drew in a deep breath and clung, while the undertow grasped him and buffeted him; then another surge swept him forward again, and, in the double light of the eye overhead, he saw Nat's figure doubled up on the shingle ahead of him.

On hands and knees he crawled forward, over the groaning shingle, still wave-swept, dazed, feeling as if his whole body had been beaten into pulp. But Nat was on his feet now, and staggering toward him. His hand grasped his. The two young men stood silent, motionless, suddenly aware of the miracle that had befallen them.

PAUL MAKES A NEW START

LESSON TEXT—Acts 26:9-12; I Corinthians 15:8-10.

MEMORY SELECTION—This is a faithful saying, and worthy of all acceptance, that Christ Jesus came into the world to save sinners.—I Timothy 1:15.

All that a man has by nature is not enough. We saw last week the preparation by heredity, education and environment which Paul had for a place of leadership. But it was not enough. The capable, well-born, well-trained young Jewish aristocrat had to be born again spiritually before he could do God's work.

Careful Bible students regard the conversion of Paul and the resurrection of Christ as the two outstanding events of the New Testament. Without the resurrection of Jesus, the conversion of Saul of Tarsus (whom we know as Paul the apostle) would not have been possible, and at the same time his conversion is one of the strongest proofs of the resurrection.

We find him in three relationships.

I. By Nature—Contrary to Christ (Acts 26:9-12).

It is not enough, as some of us suppose, that a man be sincere. Paul was entirely sincere in his conviction that he ought to persecute the Christians. He did it with a good conscience (Acts 23:1), for a man's conscience commends him for doing what he believes to be right, even though he may be wrong in his thinking.

He was sincere, but he was anti-Christian. By nature man is at enmity with God. No good thing dwells in the flesh apart from the redeeming grace of God (Rom. 8:7; James 4:4; Rom. 7:18).

Stirred, probably by the faithful testimony of Stephen, to even greater zeal against the followers of Christ, Paul had to find new worlds to conquer, so he set out "breathing out threatenings and slaughter to destroy the church in Damascus" as he had sought to do in Jerusalem.

He was a bold persecutor, doing all he could "contrary to the name of Jesus" (v. 9), until he met the Lord himself on the Damascus road. Ah, that meeting made him a different man and he became

II. By Faith—Converted to Christ (Acts 26:13-16).

Stricken down by a brilliant heavenly light, he found himself talking to the Lord Jesus. He heard from his holy lips the solemn indictment of those who persecute God's people—"Why persecutest thou me?" He who lays unkind hands upon, or brings untrue accusations against, God's children had better beware, for so closely is our Lord identified with his people that when they suffer, it is he who bears the hurt.

In a single sentence the Lord disposed of the persecuting zeal and the sinful skepticism of this proud young Pharisee, and Saul entered into Damascus not as the haughty persecutor, but as a man trembling and astonished. He spent three days shut in with his own soul and God; not seeing, not caring to eat, but entering into communion with God. By God's grace the old life was pulled up by the roots as it was displaced by the new life in Christ Jesus.

God had a great commission awaiting Paul as soon as he was ready for it (vv. 16-18). He was to be the apostle to the Gentiles, and that includes so many of us. The gospel which had come first to the Jews, was now to go out into all the world and to all people.

The change in Paul was a drastic one. He was one who was alive from the dead. It was not a case of adjusting or refurbishing the old persecutor Saul—here was a new creature in Christ, ordained to good works (Eph. 2:8-10).

III. By Grace—Confessing Christ (I Cor. 15:8-10).

Twenty years had passed since Paul's conversion. He had been out serving Christ, in season and out of season. He had known persecution, suffering and opposition. Now he was writing, by inspiration of the Holy Spirit, about the resurrection, telling of those who had seen the risen Christ. He included himself as one born out of his time.

It is a personal vision of the living Saviour which vitalizes the spirit of a witness and makes his testimony ring true. Paul saw Christ. We too may see Him with the eye of faith, and by His grace become witnesses.

Effort and labor are involved. This matter of witnessing is not something which automatically does itself. "I labored more abundantly," said Paul, and yet he knew that it was the grace of God in him which accomplished the result (see v. 10 and Phil. 2:13).

That is it! The grace of God working on and in and through a man. And at the same time, that man laboring diligently that the grace bestowed upon him should not
