Conventions To Be Held For Knox County Cultural Committees

Farmers in Knox County will receive notices within the next few days about annual elections of community and county farmer-committees, Emmett Partridge, chairman of the County Agricultural Committee said today.

Each of the county's seven farming communities will elect three committeemen and two alternates, as well as a delegate to the county convention where a three man county committee will be elected.

Mr. Partridge said that approximately 750 farmers are eligible to vote in the elections this year. Eligible farmers are those who are participating in the 1946 Agricultural Conservation Program, or who have a contract with the Federal Crop Insurance Corporation. This includes owners, operators, tenants and sharecroppers on farms where the conservation program is being carried out. Because of the community property law in Texas, the wife may vote if the husband is eligible, whether he be landlord, tenant or sharecropper.

In announcing the elections, Mr. Partridge urged that all farmers who are entitled to go to the polling places in the community and vote. Since the committeemen are responsible for developing, adapting and administering national form programs to meet local problems and needs, it is important that the men elected really represent the choice of the majority of the farmers in the community.

WTCC To Meet Friday In Abilene

ABILENE. — The 29th convention of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce, and the fifth of the directors' assembly type, will be held Friday at Abilene, headquarters city of the organization. Predicted is a record breaking attendance of directors and delegates from the 145 affiliated towns, at the one-day all-business session.

Governor-elect Beauford Jester will be among the 200 expected attendants. He will speak at the chamber's annual luncheon session at Hotel Wooten, given in his honor and for the West Texas delegation of 58 senators and representatives to serve in the 50th Legislature. Return cards indicate many will be on hand. Preceding the lunch the legislative group, with Rep. Harley Sadler of Sweetwater as chairman, will stage an informal reception for the governor-elect in the Colonial room at the Wooten. Judge Chas. E. Coombes of Stamford, a past president of the WTCC, will be luncheon toastmaster and present the speaker.

Expected to attend the meeting from Knox City are Aceel Waldrip, local director of the WTCC, L. W. Graham and B. B. Campbell.

This year's WTCC referendum ballot contains eight proposals for 1947 policies and activities. All were submitted in advance at the chamber's district meetings in October for study and debate by town affiliates and will be finally voted on Friday. Generally the proposed program has aroused unprecedented interest and discussion around the territory, and on two issues active opposition has arisen.

The eight policy planks will be taken up in consecutive order and explained by chairmen of sponsoring committees, and other delegated spokesmen, as follows:

Dr. Williams will report a year in which accomplishments have outstripped all previous years in every field of endeavor. He will report state office receipts for all causes, totaling over $3,500,000. This figure is more than three millions above the receipts in 1935.

Letter of Thanks Received From Czechoslovakia

Some months ago when local women were sending bundles of clothing to the war-torn countries of Europe, Mrs. Ray Cullum of Knox City placed her name and address on several articles included in the packages. This week Mrs. Cullum received a letter of thanks from a recipient of part of the clothing in Czechoslovakia. Following is the letter, printed in its entirety and as it was written: My Dear Foreign Friend:

We all Czechoslovakian people thank you very much for the clothes you have sent to us. Everything we find very useful, especially for the cold time. We suffered and sorrowed dreadfully during the wartime. This terrible time is over, our good foreign friends helped us, God bless them for it.

Wouldn't you like to come overseas to see our country? Here we have mountains, forests, rivers. The chief town of Czechoslovakia is Prague, a nice city, where the World Students Congress takes place at this time. The foreign students shall visit our town soon.

This letter is written by the employer of the dispensary and child welfare.

I shall be very glad to hear from you and your country again. Yours sincerely, Detka Paradna.

Knox County Supports All Amendments

A cool, rainy day, combined with a general lack of interest held the local vote in the general election Tuesday to a small total. The usual landslide majorities were registered for all Democratic party candidates and wide margins were polled for all three constitutional amendments.

Unofficial returns on the constitutional amendments, with three boxes in the county not heard from, were:

Amendment No. 1 — Authorizing the legislature to pay off a $75,000 debt incurred for construction of a building at John Tarleton college; For, 274; against, 90.

Amendment No. 2 — Permitting the legislature to set up a retirement, disability and death compensation for state officers and employees; For, 203; against, 172.

Amendment No. 3 — Providing that the gasoline tax and automobile registration receipts now earmarked for good roads purposes shall not be diverted; For, 300; against, 77.

Greyhounds to Play Dickens for Bi-District Title

A touchdown-hungry squad of Knox City Greyhounds gave the O'Brien Bulldogs a 61-0 beating last Friday night, to prove that their first win over the O'Brien team was no fluke.

The Greyhounds scored fast all through the game, but the game remained exciting until the last.

The Greyhounds will meet Dickens in a bi-district title match some time this month, but as yet the date and place is unannounced.

Corner Shelf and Colorful Cookie Box

USE ACTUAL SIZE PATTERN TO CUT COOKIE BOX AND CORNER SHELF OF THIN WOOD. STENCIL PEASANT FIGURES AND LETTERING ON BOX.

THERE is magic in the flowing curves of this bracket shelf. Place it at eye-level in a corner of a small room and you have a feeling that the corner has melted away and the walls pushed back to add space.

The shelf is ten inches deep and fifteen wide. It will hold a number of small things or you can make a wooden cookie box for it like the one shown here.

Pattern 206 gives an actual-size cutting guide and directions for making the corner bracket shelf, also directions and large diagrams for making the box and a stencil pattern for decorating it in these quaint cookie-eating Tyrolean figures. To get these three patterns in one, send 15c with name and address direct to:

Few Americans realize that the protection of thousands of lives and billions of dollars' worth of property rests in the hands of the peacetime Regular Army. Army Engineers are constantly at work along our great rivers, building dams and levees, dredging channels and using the latest scientific methods to control flood waters.

Many of the nation's finest young men are joining the Regular Army, knowing that they will have an opportunity to work with the most modern equipment and do a constructive job, of utmost value to their country.

CHAPTER V. "Tell them they made a mistake," he said. "I'm not going to reward them for making a mistake. Next fall, when the work begins in earnest, I may consider a fifty cents raise. If they come back now, they come back at two dollars."

The Sweeping Tides by H.M. EGBERT W-N-U-SERVICE

Mark Darrell, young American lumberman, is boss of a lumber camp near St. Victor, Canada. Nat Page is his assistant. Madame Madeleine Kinross, the young widow who owns the timberland, is trying to persuade Mark to cancel the lease.

CHAPTER V. "Tell them they made a mistake," he said. "I'm not going to reward them for making a mistake. Next fall, when the work begins in earnest, I may consider a fifty cents raise. If they come back now, they come back at two dollars."

"You appear to have won, Mr. Darrell," he said. "My understanding was that there would be no opposition from you," said Mark.

"I want to ask you a question," said Broussac. "Just why do you attach so much value to your leasehold rights, if adequate compensation for them were allowed you?"

"I might ask you," Mark returned, "why you attach so much importance to getting me out of St. Victor. But I am not going to ask you that question. I prefer to answer yours. I have undertaken a job, and I have a liking for staying on it, Monsieur Broussac."

"Ah," said Broussac, "I thought you Americans regarded everything from the monetary point of view. But let me make my own position clearer. I was raised, a poor boy, in the slums of Quebec. All my life I have sought position, wealth, ease, a settled place in the world. I have gained these, for I am going to marry Madeleine Kinross."

Mark refused a tempting offer. Mark felt something like a stab at his heart as he looked into the lawyer's face. He had guessed it; but that didn't make it any the easier to take.

Mark shook his head. "Frankly, no," he answered. "My backers have authorized me to go ahead. They would not understand any such arrangement, and they would withdraw their support from me. No, Monsieur Broussac, I am not prepared to accept your offer—or any other."

Broussac's mouth opened. He stared, then nodded his head gravely back toward St. Victor.

He leveled the old pistol at Mark's heart. Mark saw his finger trembling on the trigger, and leaped. There followed the roar of the discharge, and the heavy ball whirred over Mark's shoulder. Mark tore the weapon from the old man's hands and sent it crashing into the scrub.

Old Andre's face was convulsed with terror. "Ah, mon Dieu!" he muttered. "The seigneur is dead, and you—you come here to—"

Mark passed on, leaving the old man muttering by the roadside. The cause of his hostility was utterly meaningless to him, but it made it the more imperative to try to come to an understanding with Madeleine Kinross.

Broussac's smart rig was standing at the door of her cottage. Broussac and Madeleine were standing in the doorway. They were so absorbed in conversation that neither was aware of Mark's approach.

"I'm sorry to interfere," said Mark. "I called to see Madame Kinross."

"It might occur to you that Madame Kinross and I have some important business to discuss," sneered Broussac.

"No!" cried the girl. "I have nothing more to discuss with you, Cousin Horace. I ask you to go!"

"Then I guess I'm not interfering as much as I thought I might be," said Mark.

Broussac whirled upon him. "You have done nothing but interfere," he shouted. "You are not wanted in St. Victor. I have offered you a good sum of money to rescind the contract. I shall not go any higher. Now you are interfering in a wholly private matter concerning Madame Kinross and myself. You will go! You will go at once!"

Why Madeleine Believes Her Husband Still Lives. "Meanwhile," said Mark, indicating his decision with a very vigorous gesture of his fists.

Broussac leaped into his rig and slapped the reins across the back of the horse, which started off up the hill.

Mark watched the lawyer drive away, turned back toward Madeleine Kinross, who was staring at him with frightened eyes.

"He made love to me. He wanted me to be his wife. And I had trusted him."

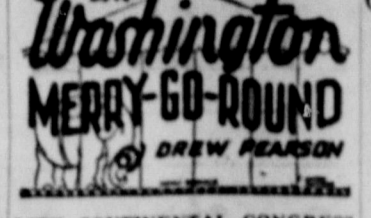

"I've got to admit," said Mark, "I can't altogether blame him for that."

"You don't understand. This summer, he threatened me that I should lose everything I have."

"You're twenty-one, aren't you?" asked Mark.

"Then, if he was your guardian, it was his duty to give you an accounting for your property. Didn't he give you one?"

"He gave me nothing. Everything is involved. You see, the seigneur had lost a great sum of money speculating on the Quebec market. Ever since his death, Horace Broussac has been trying to regain what my husband lost. You see, he is not dead!"

Washington Merry-Go-Round

LIKE CONTINENTAL CONGRESS. WASHINGTON. — The American people are now beginning to realize that the road to peace after war is never easy. Beating our swords back into plowshares sometimes is more difficult than forging the swords of battle.

But one encouraging milestone on the road to peace now is under way in New York where the smaller nations of the allied world, who for months have had to sit and take it from the Big Four, now debate on an almost equal footing.

Many may have forgotten it, but this issue of free debate caused a bitter battle at the San Francisco conference. Molotov then wanted to stifle free debate. He proposed that the general assembly of the United Nations not even be permitted to discuss or to criticize decisions of the big powers sitting on the security council.

Australian Foreign Minister Evatt, spokesman for the little powers, opposed. He went further and demanded that the general assembly under the recognized principles of democracy have the power to overrule the security council. He was rebuffed, not only by his own "mother diplomats" from London, but also by the isolationist-grounded senators of the U. S. delegation.

In the end, the general assembly was given the power to debate, discuss, criticize, and recommend—but not to carry out. That is what it is doing at the present sessions.

Behind the iron curtain, public opinion still is tightly controlled. When it is decontrolled, then we need no longer worry about war between the USA and the USSR.

Meanwhile, the sessions in New York are like the first struggling but healthy debates of the Continental congress and of the United States congress which grew therefrom. They won't achieve much at the moment, but they should pave the way to great and hopeful things.

Study Club Meets With Mrs. Frizzell

The Knox City Study Club met Saturday afternoon, Nov. 2, in the home of Mrs. T. P. Frizzell, Sr., with 21 club members present. Guests of the club for Saturday's meeting were: Mrs. Bob Wilson of Hereford, who is Mrs. Ulric Lea's sister, and the three men speakers for the afternoon program, Roy Baker, T. E. Holcomb and Rev. V. N. Henderson.

The club president, Mrs. C. C. Hoge, called the club to order and asked Rev. Henderson to direct the opening prayer.

Mrs. S. M. Clonts, as program leader, introduced the program subject, "Citizenship," and defined the word according to Webster.

Mr. Baker discussed "Knox City and Its Needs," as seen by the town mayor. He asked especially for more voting interest in government affairs and more expressed moral support for city projects and regulations.

Mr. Holcomb talked on "Knox City and Its Needs," as seen by the school superintendent. He asked for more territorial expansion in order that the curriculum might be enlarged to fit the needs of more boys and girls; for more recreational activities for boys and girls, and for needed legislation concerning school improvement and teacher salary advancement. He also asked for an attendance officer to enforce our now dormant attendance law.

Rev. Henderson's subject was "Knox City and Its Needs," as seen by the minister. He asked for a full-time resident minister for each church in town, resulting in a ministers' alliance; unified oyalty to church and religious work; better home life for boys and girls, and parents' responsibility in spiritual guidance.

Mrs. Joe Averitt discussed "Knox City and Its Needs," as seen by the club woman. She envisioned a Federated Club-miles traveled in delivering agricultural and livestock products. By W. R. Cusenbary, Sonora.

Plank 8, on reduction of federal and state expenditures and containing a proposed "Taxpayers' Code of Ethics." The plank is recommended by the Executive Board and will be presented by John D. Mitchell, Odessa, and C. E. Coombes.

Plank 9, on providing building funds for all state institutions of higher learning. This plank more than any other has brought lengthy debate at the district meetings and is opposed by the administrative heads and boards of the 16 colleges. In it the WTCC committee, W. G. Alderson of Lubbock, chairman, recommends, first, "that we oppose any constitutional 5 cent ad valorem tax to create a building fund for state colleges of agricultural products and other raw materials. By R. E. Wertz, Amarillo.

Plank 7, proposing that in allocations for farm to market roads equal weight be given to county-to-state ratios of rural population, area, miles of rural and star routes, and vehicle tonnage, and second, "that we support a constitutional amendment for dividing revenues from the University Land Fund on basis of 40 per cent to the University of Texas and the Agricultural and Mechanical College of Texas, and 60 per cent to the remainder of the state colleges." There are 14 of these, 7 in the West-Texas area.

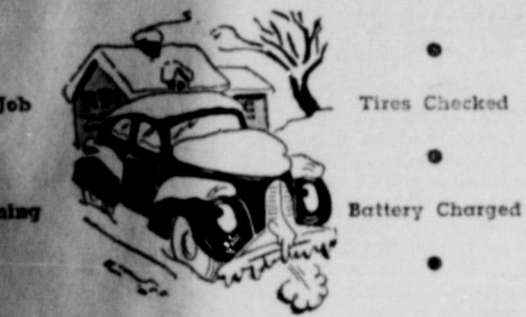

This plank will be presented and defended by Representative Preston Smith and Senator Sterling Parrish, both of Lubbock. I. Thos. Davis, dean emeritus of John Tarleton College of Stephenville, and his successor there, Dean E. J. Howell, will speak against it. At seven of the eight WTCC district meetings in October Dean Davis appeared against the plank.

Mr. and Mrs. Bobby Simpson of Abilene spent the week end in the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. C. McGee.

Corner Shelf and Colorful Cookie Box

USE ACTUAL SIZE PATTERN TO CUT COOKIE BOX AND CORNER SHELF OF THIN WOOD

THERE is magic in the flowing curves of this bracket shelf. Place it at eye-level in a corner of a small room and you have a feeling that the corner has melted away and the walls pushed back to add space.

The shelf is ten inches deep and fifteen wide. It will hold a number of small things or you can make a wooden cookie box for it like the one shown here.

Pattern 366 gives an actual-size cutting guide and directions for making the corner bracket shelf, also directions and large diagrams for making the box and a stencil pattern for decorating it in these quaint cookie-eating Tyrolean figures.

YOUR REGULAR ARMY SERVES THE NATION AND MANKIND IN WAR AND PEACE

The Sweeping Tides by H.M. EGBERT W-N-U-SERVICE

Mark Darrell, young American lumberman, is boss of a lumber camp near St. Victor, Canada. Nat Page is his assistant.

"Tell them they made a mistake," he said. "I'm not going to reward them for making a mistake. Next fall, when the work begins in earnest, I may consider a fifty cents raise.

Louis interpreted rapidly. "If they want to come back," Mark continued, "tell them they can move back into their cabins as soon as possible, and get that load of lumber put through the mill."

Mark shook his head. "I'm here to stay," he answered. And then he knew that he was thinking of Madeleine Kinross.

Broussac didn't delay. He came next morning, driving up in a rig with a spirited horse. In the mill the dynamos were revolving, the barkers whirring, the chain drag traveling up the flume, carrying its load of logs.

"You appear to have won, Mr. Darrell," he said. "My understanding was that there would be no opposition from you," said Mark.

"Violence," corrected Broussac. "I guaranteed that St. Victor should treat you with the consideration due to you. I should make it plain to you that it is not my own opposition you had to encounter, but that of the whole town, which is loyal to the wife of its late seigneur."

"Ah," said Broussac. "I thought you Americans regarded everything from the monetary point of view. But let me make my own position clearer. I was raised, a poor boy, in the slums of Quebec.

Mark shook his head. "Frankly, no," he answered. "My backers have authorized me to go ahead. They would not understand any such arrangement, and they would withdraw their support from me. No, Monsieur Broussac, I am not prepared to accept your offer—or any other."

Broussac's mouth opened. He started, then nodded his head gravefuriously back toward St. Victor. Mark left Nat to take charge of the operations. He packed a blanket and a little food, and started out alone to look over his limits, with the intention of spending a night or two in the open.

Mark wondered whether Broussac's explanation of his motives was actually true. And then he discovered that he wasn't thinking about that. He was thinking about Broussac's declared intention of marrying Madeleine Kinross, his enemy, who had nevertheless saved his lumber for him.

Mark hadn't thought much about love for three or four years. Of course, he had gone through his experiences, but the woods had become an absorbing passion with him, the desire to tame the wilds, as a horseman tames some wild steed.

The woods had become an absorbing passion with him.

He awoke at dawn, stretched himself, and realized how good life was, and how petty were the things that had been troubling him.

The river ran on his right, foaming down to the flume. On his left, to his surprise, he saw the natural bridge that connected the seigniory with the all-but-island on which stood the lighthouse.

Madeleine Tells Cousin Broussac to Get Out

Suddenly again the remembrance of Madeleine Kinross flooded him with tenderness. The idea came to Mark to go and see the girl, and try to make his peace with her.

Then down the roughly terraced steps toward the lighthouse and Madeleine's cottage.

Then a roughly dressed figure emerged from the scrub and stood confronting him, an ancient pistol in his hand. It was Andre Galpeault, the lighthouse-keeper, his face convulsed with fury.

detective. The seigneur is dead. He died in the fog, when the piece of ice broke away and he was left on it. I protect the lady of the seigneur!

He leveled the old pistol at Mark's heart. Mark saw his finger trembling upon the trigger, and leaped. There followed the roar of the discharge, and the heavy ball whirred over Mark's shoulder. Mark tore the weapon from the old man's hands and sent it crashing into the scrub.

Broussac's smart rig was standing at the door of her cottage. Broussac and Madeleine were standing in the doorway. They were so absorbed in conversation that neither was aware of Mark's approach.

"You married Kinross in order to save your father's little property," came Broussac's taunting voice. "Now you can marry me, to save the seigniory."

"I tell you no, no, no!" cried the girl. "A thousand times no, never! I trusted you as my guardian, because you were related to the seigneur, and now you come to me like this."

"It might occur to you that Madame Kinross and I have some important business to discuss," sneered Broussac.

"Not!" cried the girl. "I have nothing more to discuss with you, Cousin Horace. I ask you to go!"

"Of course I'd go," said Mark. "only I've got an idea that Madame Kinross doesn't want you."

"Meanwhile—" said Mark, indicating his decision with a very vigorous gesture of his fist.

"I've got to admit," said Mark. "I can't altogether blame him for that!"

Mark looked at her in silence. "If he had died I should have felt it here—here! He is not dead. He was rescued from that live-bait, he became insane, and he is being cared for somewhere."

Washington Merry-go-round

LIKE CONTINENTAL CONGRESS WASHINGTON. — The American people are now beginning to realize that the road to peace after war is never easy.

But one encouraging milestone on the road to peace now is under way in New York where the smaller nations of the allied world, who for months have had to sit and take it from the Big Four, now debate on an almost equal footing.

Australian Foreign Minister Evatt, spokesman for the little powers, opposed. He went further and demanded that the general assembly under the recognized principles of democracy have the power to overrule the security council.

Behind the iron curtain, public opinion still is tightly controlled. When it is decolored, then we need no longer worry about war between the USA and the USSR.

HARRY TRUMAN'S PRESS If Harry Truman could place an ad in the papers, probably it would read something like this:

There are few weaker spots in the White House staff than Truman's press aides. Venerable Charlie Ross, the President's secretary, simply isn't filling the bill.

EXIT "32-30 CLUB" The "32-30 club" is folding up for many veterans and Gen. Omar Bradley, the Veterans' administrator, is deeply concerned over their ability to readjust themselves.

Of 1,500,000 claimants on the rolls last April, only 48,122 had exhausted all their claims up until August. However, between now and the end of the year from 150,000 to 200,000 will join them.

Study Club Meets With Mrs. Frizzell

The Knox City Study Club met Saturday afternoon, Nov. 2, in the home of Mrs. T. P. Frizzell, Sr., with 21 club members present. Guests of the club for Saturday's meeting were: Mrs. Bob Wilson of Hereford, who is Mrs. Ulric Lea's sister, and the three men speakers for the afternoon program, Roy Baker, T. E. Holcomb and Rev. V. N. Henderson.

The club president, Mrs. C. C. Hoge, called the club to order and asked Rev. Henderson to direct the opening prayer.

Mrs. S. M. Clonts, as program leader, introduced the program subject, "Citizenship," and defined the word according to Webster.

Mr. Baker discussed "Knox City and Its Needs," as seen by the town mayor. He asked especially for more voting interest in government affairs and more expressed moral support for city projects and regulations.

Mr. Holcomb talked on "Knox City and Its Needs," as seen by the school superintendent. He asked for more territorial expansion in order that the curriculum might be enlarged to fit the needs of more boys and girls; for more recreational activities for boys and girls, and for needed legislation concerning school improvement and teacher salary advancement. He also asked for an attendance officer to enforce our now dormant attendance law.

Rev. Henderson's subject was "Knox City and Its Needs" as seen by the minister. He asked for a full-time resident minister for each church in town, resulting in a ministers' alliance; unified oyalty to church and religious work; better home life for boys and girls, and parents' responsibility in spiritual guidance.

Mrs. Joe Averitt discussed "Knox City and Its Needs" as seen by the club woman. She envisioned a Federated Clubhouse, park beautification and care, home beautification with better lawns and more shrubs, better parking on our streets, naming our streets and numbering our houses, and more and better housing facilities for our townspeople.

A quartet, Mrs. L. W. Graham, Mrs. Ross Griffith, Mrs. George Zachary and Mrs. Johnny Joiner, accompanied by Mrs. Geo. T. Hardberger at the piano, sang "Faith of Our Fathers."

The next meeting of the club will be the Education Program Friday evening, November 15, at the Knox City school auditorium, at 8 p. m. At that time, Chas. H. Tennyson, Director of Public Relations, Texas State Teachers Association of Austin, will discuss the subject "Work and Progress in Our Schools."

Plank 7, proposing that in allocations for farm to market roads equal weight be given to county-to-state ratios of rural population, area, miles of rural and star routes, and vehicle ton miles, and second, "that we support a constitutional amendment for dividing revenues from the University Land Fund on basis of 40 per cent to the University of Texas and the Agricultural and Mechanical College of Texas, and 60 per cent to the remainder of the state colleges." There are 14 of these in the West-Texas area.

New B.F. Goodrich Silvertown owners are our best salesmen! And there's just no stopping them from telling about the improved skid resistance they are getting from the wider, flatter tread which puts more rubber on the road... why this new tire outwears prewar tires. To match the performance of this broader tread a 35% sturdier tire body was developed with tougher cords and more of them. This means safety worth waiting for.

We're truly grateful that so many of our customers have been so understanding about our delivery problem on new tires.

After 40 years, time is running out for the cattle fever tick, according to the U. S. Department of Agriculture. The work of eradicating the tick from the Southern States, in progress since 1906 under direction of the Bureau of Animal Industry, and later undertaken in Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands, is now nearing completion.

Probably no section of the United States has enjoyed any greater benefits from a BAI project than tick eradication has brought to the Southern states. The beneficial results of this work are felt throughout the South in the way of better herds of beef cattle and the fostering of a rapidly growing dairy industry. Annual losses from the disease have been reduced from $40,000,000 to less than $100,000 last year.

The eradication campaign, which in the early days aroused such skepticism and even violent opposition, has been carried out with the close cooperation of State and county authorities and cattle owners. When the work began, the cattle disease, then commonly known as Texas fever, transmitted through the bite of the tick, was one of the most serious diseases of livestock. For many years the cattle industry of the South was retarded and hampered by this parasite and the resulting poor condition and quality of the cattle raised in the tick-infested areas. The marketing of cattle from nearly one-quarter of the country was impeded owing to quarantine restrictions necessary in handling ticky cattle in separate portions of public stockyards, and the requirement that such cattle be sold for slaughter only. These embargoes were essential, as the infestation of northern cattle with the cattle-fever tick produced in them the fatal disease known as splenic or tick fever. The quarantine area is now much less than one per cent of its original size.

Does it take to run a baby?

enty—and plenty of electricity, too. A hungry baby needs food—lots of it—often. That food needs preparation—refrigeration—reheating.

Baby needs hot water—lots of it—often. So does his wardrobe. And because Mother worries about germs, she boils practically everything but Baby himself.

Clocks must be dependable when there's a baby in the house. Lights must go on—quick—when he cries out in his sleep. Rooms must be kept warm—the list is endless.

Today's mothers are luckier than those of 20 years ago. With electricity ready at all times—in any quantity—to help with the household chores, mothers have more time to enjoy their youngsters. Never before has electricity done so many tasks for so little cost. Actually, the average family today gets twice as much electricity for its money as it did 20 years ago. And neighbors in this company—and your household—helped make that possible.

Who Gets Off Easiest—Men or Women?

Maybe you saw that poll on who has the easiest life—men or women? Of course, the men voted that the women did, and the women vice versa.

It would be the same in our town—take any family. Thad Phibbs envies his Missus spending the day at home, with no hot office to attend to. And Sue envies Thad his luncheons with the boys; and his evening glass of beer with friends (while she cleans up the dishes in the kitchen).

Of course, none of it goes very deep. Thad knows way deep down that the Missus has plenty of work running a house; and Sue knows Thad's friendly glass of beer is well-deserved relaxation after a long hard day's work.

From where I sit, most husbands and wives may grumble now and then—but they know in their hearts it's a case of live and let live, give and take, that comes out pretty even in the end.

MCCORMICK-BEERING MACHINES PARTS AND SERVICE

The Once Over by H.I. Phillips

That 'Voice of America' Idea

David Sarnoff announces plans for using the radio for world peace through the establishment of a "The Voice of America" program to be broadcast to all peoples everywhere. We understand it already has progressed to the point where "Accord" will be spelled backwards and "Brotherly Love" sideways for 59 nations. The only point offering a problem at the minute is whether to give Russia more than five silver dollars if she answers the question, "Is The Old Oaken Bucket a brokerage office, a nightclub or a song?"

Those behind "The Voice of America" are hard at work on the features which radio believes to be the heart of mass appeal, those radio jingles. But up to the moment they have not found any quite silly enough to reach all nations. The only two accepted so far are: World wide order! That's a lot! Love and kisses hit the spot! Our world peace pills always work—Uncle Sam is your prescription clerk!

Hi diddle diddle and rinky dink! All hard feeling we must sink; If you'd cure all this world's ills Ask for "U. S. Headache Pills!"

They're not really silly enough, but they may do for a start. Of course, on any international radio program from America we will have to work on the importance of the vitamin in eliminating international distrust, and the advantages of the right "regulator" in creating better understandings. But there are certain dangers. Suppose the American program cures Germany of pink toothbrush but does nothing for Romania? What if we show India how to cure dandruff, but it still feels quarrelsome?

Couldn't more ill will, instead of less, develop? How will Russia feel if the quiz program jackpots are won by other countries, and will the British like it if Ireland gets the $12 for answering the question "Who wrote Alexander's Rag Time Band?"

A lot depends on the nature of the program used by "The Voice of America." Our idea would include:

- (1) Let the kiddies solve it. (Six children between the ages of three and seven constitute an international tribunal and answer any question sent in by any nation.)
- (2) Telo-test. (Our secretary of state calls up the secretaries of state of other countries, hit or miss, from a phone book every morning and gives them a chance to win a jackpot by giving the first name of Hildegarda, the night club performer.)
- (3) A "Mr. and Mrs. Breakfast Hour." (We might let Dorothy and Dick, or Tex and Jinx make a direct appeal to the Russian people for better understanding, with eggs on toast.)
- (4) International guest star hour. (Bessie Beatty can get Joe Stalin on her program, Mary Margaret McBride can do her stuff with Mahatma Gandhi and Maggie McNellis can spring Tito on her listeners.)
- (5) Global Information Pleasie. (Clifton Truman, John LaGuardia, Franklin P. Wallace.)
- (6) Ginny Simms, Jack Armstrong, the All-American boy, A. L. Alexander, Fred Allen, Finnegan, Charlie McCarthy, Jimmy Durante, the football scores and the correct time in radio liaison with Jimmy Byrnes. Senator Vandenberg, the White House and U. N.

There never was but one Jolson, although there always were dozens of imitators. IMPROVE YOURSELF
Men who went to war suffered much, and endured harrowing experiences. They came back changed. That has been said so often it would seem that everyone, particularly wives of veterans, would know it. They also have been told that most of these men will recover their prewar personalities if given time and sympathetic help. Today's story is a little different. Catherine has been married for 13 years to a wealthy, handsome man. Everyone envied her, and for a few years they were "idyllically happy." They have 3 children, the eldest 10, the youngest 4. Fred, impelled by patriotism, entered the navy and served as an officer. Meanwhile Catherine had to carry on the household as best she could, without servants. Her mother lived with her during the war.

Now that Fred has returned, he seems curiously detached and silent. He stays away many evenings, and seems bored with the town and with his old friends. Catherine wants to know how she can win him back and how to find new interests for him.

shrugs, goes away. I am becoming maddened with nerves and doubts, do help me if you can!"

To this bewildered cry I can only say what I have said in this column before; as long as you are living Fred's life, Catherine, you will indeed be maddened with nerves and doubts. You are one human being. Fred is another. To make your life a mirror of his or a pale copy of his, to let him know that he has the power to render you completely miserable is to hurt yourself, destroy the very thing you are trying to accomplish, and, moreover, do him a grave injustice.

Make Yourself Interesting.
It isn't fair to Fred to burden his homecoming after the four terrible years that have demoralized the entire world, and expect him to fall quietly into line.

Leave Fred alone. Work on yourself. Make your nervous, dissatisfied, unchanged self into something more thrilling. Try experiments in meals—out in the garden, or sandwiches taken to the shore. Start table games with the children that will absorb them and you and Grandma, leaving Fred to think that he has a mighty pretty, gay and self-sufficient family, and a pretty pleasant home. Don't give parties, but invite an old friend or two to come in "unexpectedly" now and then; dress your part—not expensively, but in those slack-and-blouse effects that make a small woman of 32 look like a nice boy.

Never question him, criticize or complain. Don't be Fred's parasite; be a person in your own right. You had your good times early; the spoiled little beauty who made the big match. Now grow up to yourself in a more sober atmosphere, remembering what Lowell said so long ago; "earth has its price for what earth gives us." Happiness fought for, and won, is better than the merely "lucky" brand every time.

PAUL FOUNDS THE CHURCH AT PHILIPPI

LESSON TEXT—Acts 16:11-15; Philippians 2:5-11.
MEMORY SELECTION—I can do all things through Christ which strengtheneth me.—Philippians 4:13.

Missionary zeal keeps a Christian in action for God. After a time at the church in Antioch, the urge to preach the gospel sent Paul out on his second missionary journey. This time his partner was Silas, because he and Barnabas had separated over taking Mark along, since he had turned back in the midst of the first missionary journey. Timothy took his place (Acts 16:1-5).

Our lesson is of unusual import because it tells us how the gospel first came to Europe, from whence it later came to America. Paul's efforts to continue his ministry in Asia were hindered by the Holy Spirit (Acts 16:6, 7). It was then that he was given a heaven-sent vision of a man in Macedonia crying out for help. At once the party set out to obey the leading of the Holy Spirit (Acts 16:9, 10).

I. Paul's Ministry to the Philippians (Acts 16:11-15).
Philippi was an important city, a Roman colony and outpost. Apparently the Jews who had come there to live had not felt any strong desire for religious fellowship, for they had built no synagogue. Certain godly women met on the Sabbath by the riverside for prayer. Here was Paul's opportunity and he took it.

The story of the conversion of Lydia has many elements of special interest. It presents the turning point in the progress of the gospel, which by the grace and leading of God brought it northward to Europe rather than southward into Africa or eastward through Asia. Many of us have heard because of the way Paul was led, and one wonders if Europe and America might not otherwise have been the "dark continents" rather than Africa and India. We are what we are by the grace of God. He sent us the gospel through Paul that day at Philippi.

Then we note that the first convert was a woman. She was not the last woman to give an attentive ear and a believing heart to the gospel message. The church through all its history has been blessed by the readiness of women to bear and heed the gospel.

We like to note that Lydia set a pattern of hospitality and service which her sisters in the church have maintained (see v. 15). She "constrained" the visiting preachers to enjoy the comforts of her home, and thus put forward the work of Christ (see III John 5-8).

It is encouraging to observe how perfectly the leading of the Holy Spirit worked out in the experience of Paul and his brethren. The Lord sent his prepared messenger to the place where there was a prepared heart waiting to receive the Word.

We may confidently go on the errands of our God, knowing that when he leads he goes before and prepares the way. That does not mean that there will be no trials and difficulties. Paul had plenty of them (see II Cor. 11:23-33). But it does mean that we may go with the assurance of blessed results, in his name, and with the grace to bear whatever comes along the way for his glory.

The second Scripture portion of our lesson is not related to the first except that it gives a portion of the letter which Paul, by the inspiration of the Holy Spirit, wrote to the church which he had helped to establish at Philippi about 12 years later.

II. Paul's Message to the Philippians (Phil. 2:5-11).
Although after Lydia's conversion Paul met opposition and suffered imprisonment (Acts 16:16-40), that was only the beginning of a blessed ministry there.

The church at Philippi though poor and persecuted was loyal and warmhearted. They sent a generous gift to Paul, who was in prison in Rome. He wrote to thank them, and his letter became a real hymn of joy and assurance. It discusses Christian experience, its principle, pattern, purpose and power.

Chapter 2 presents the mind of Christ as the pattern of true Christian living. Nothing is to be done for vain glory (v. 3), but in the spirit of Christ, who willingly gave up his glory with the Father that he might become our Saviour. It has well been said that if he had not done so, we should have been amazed at his glory, but we should never have been saved.

He who might have "grasped" (v. 6, R. V.) his equality with God, laid it aside that as a man he might die for the salvation of lost mankind (v. 8).

Little wonder that God has given him such a high and exalted position (vv. 9-11). One day every tongue
