This work being carried on by the county agents, as outlined by the A. & M. and the farmers and ranchmen, but is of vital importance to every business of our town and county.

This work has no favorites and is the work of the people. The county agent is your servant and the work only prospers or progresses as you support it. The work is your work and deserves your active support and co-operation.

Let us one and all get behind the plan of work in Knox City and her trade territory and help place Knox City on the map in an agricultural and livestock way.

It is important that one and all help to organize the Agricultural and Livestock Clubs to begin the work for 1923. Why not a corn, maize, peanut, cotton, baby beef, dairy calf or a pig club? They are all to the State and United States Departments of Agriculture, is to be highly appreciated. It is a work not only to assist in teaching the boys and girls of our county to become more efficient benefit of the boys and girls and the community. The progress of any community or county is only as the producer progresses. All these clubs are essential—which one are we most interested in? Ask your county agent about these clubs.

Last year Knox County spent over fifty thousand dollars for field seeds. Part of this is a waste can be overcome through these clubs.

NEWS REVIEW OF CURRENT EVENTS

Shopmen's Strike Is Broken By Separate Agreements With Many of the Roads.

MEN GO BACK AT OLD WAGES

Senators Lodge, Townsend and Poindexter Renominated—Republicans Win Maine Election by Fair Majority—Danger of New War in the Balkans.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

SEPARATE agreements entered into by striking shopmen and railways representing about one-fifth of the country's mileage last week brought about a break in the strike that has lasted for some 75 days and threatened the nation's transportation facilities with demoralization. It is believed some other railways will soon make the same arrangement with the men, these including the Rock Island, the Burlington and the Northern Pacific.

SOME of the big lines, notably the Pennsylvania, have not adopted the settlement plan. They assert they already have won the strike and will not make terms with the men who went out. Of the roads accepting the agreements the most important are: New York Central lines and subsidiaries, including Michigan, Central, Boston and Albany, and Big Four; Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul; Erie; Chicago and Northwestern and its subsidiary, the Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis and Omaha; Baltimore and Ohio; Seaboard Air line; Southern railway; New York, Chicago and St. Louis; The Monon; Wheeling and Lake Erie.

THE agreements are, as they should be, a compromise. All the strikers, except those proven guilty of acts of violence, are to be taken back within thirty days at the prevailing pay prescribed by the federal railway labor board, and in the shops where they were formerly employed, but not necessarily at the same jobs. There is no specific provision regarding the matter of seniority rights, but it is believed this issue can be worked out satisfactorily after the men are back at work. Any controversies arising from the strike that cannot be settled otherwise are to be referred to a commission to be established, consisting of six representatives of the labor organizations involved and six representatives of the railroads. This commission is to remain in existence only until May 31, 1923, and none of its decisions nor the agreement in general "shall be used or cited in any controversy between these parties or between the railroads signing the same or any other class or classes of their employees in any other controversy that may hereafter arise." There is to be no intimidation nor oppression of the employees who remained at work or those who took the places of strikers, and all law suits pending as a result of the strike are to be dismissed.

CREDIT for arranging this agreement is evidently due mainly to S. Davies Warfield, president of the Seaboard Air line and head of a securities concern which owns large amounts of railway bonds. President Willard of the Baltimore and Ohio also was prominent in the peace negotiations; and H. M. Jewell, head of the striking organizations, proved amenable to all suggestions looking toward a fair and reasonable settlement.

Mr. Warfield, in a statement concerning the agreement, made this pertinent suggestion:

"Regional railroad labor boards should be properly and promptly established; a board named by each group of railroads that operate in each of the four rate-making districts into which the commission has divided the country; the men of each group of railroads to also organize boards to confer with the regional railroad boards. Negotiations could be successfully carried on and disputed questions settled if approached in good faith."

HEARING on the motion to have the strike injunction obtained by Attorney General Daugherty changed into a preliminary restraining order until a trial began last week before Federal Judge Wilkerson in Chicago, and the attorney general announced that it would proceed despite the partial agreements reached. The temporary injunction was extended ten days, but the court warned the government forces it would not be further extended. The government presented many thousands of affidavits telling of acts of violence and threats and other circumstances, all tending to prove its theory that a conspiracy existed, which in effect obstructed interstate commerce.

IT IS true, as Mr. Davis says, that the disturbances in the coal mining industry are ended, but the disturbances in the minds of the consumers of coal are just beginning. The dealers, greedy, unscrupulous and conscienceless, are demanding exorbitant prices for coal and the people are wailing, with little prospect of relief except in some states where the authorities have both the power and the will to check the profiteering. Meanwhile the congressional conferees have been disputing over the Cummins-Winslow coal distribution and price control bill, disagreeing as to its application to interstate as well as interstate shipments. Henry Ford is the most vociferous of the big coal consumers, and according to the latest reports he had not altered his intention to shut down the Ford plants. He charges that the interstate commerce commission, through its control over empty coal cars, "is playing into the hands of coal profiteers under guise of regulations for the public good."

CONSIDERABLY battered by results in recent primaries, the "old guard" of the Republican party resumed its smiling appearance last week after the primary elections were held in Massachusetts, Michigan and Washington. Senator Henry Cabot Lodge won over Joseph Walker by a three to one vote, and will have to contest the election with William A. Gaston, who defeated Sherman L. Whipple for the Democratic nomination. Senator Townsend of Michigan, who was opposed by three candidates, won his renomination by a plurality of about 25,000—a notable victory since he was hampered by the issue of "Newberryism." Out in Washington Miles Poindexter had little difficulty in obtaining a renomination for the senate. The Democratic nominee is C. C. Dill.

Two Democratic gubernatorial primaries in the South were of general interest. In South Carolina T. G. McLeod defeated Governor Blease, and the state is to be congratulated. In Georgia Governor Hardwick was beaten by Clifford W. Walker. Hardwick has opposed the Ku Klux Klan, which probably accounts for his defeat.

Maine's election, which used to be considered a reliable indication of results in the nation generally in November, took place Monday, and the Republicans won by what the party leaders professed to regard as satisfactory majorities, though naturally they were far below those of 1920. Senator Frederick Hale's majority over Curtis, Democrat, was about 27,000, and Governor Baxter had a slightly larger margin over Pattangall. The four Republican congressional candidates were elected, but the Democrats increased their membership in the state assembly from 15 to 40 and in the state senate from none to three. Republican leaders in Washington called the Maine results an endorsement of the administration, while the Democratic chiefs found satisfaction in the reduced size of the Republican majorities.

THE Greek debacle in Asia Minor was complete. Constantine's troops—those that were not captured—were withdrawn from the mainland in a hurry and the Turkish Nationalists occupied Smyrna in orderly manner. Then looting broke out, and on Thursday someone started a conflagration that destroyed the western part of the city. The Kemalists also occupied Bursa, burned by the fleeing Greeks, and announced that their capital would be moved to Konia. Their rejoicings over the victory were participated in by their countrymen who adhere to the Constantinople government, and there was much talk among them of recovering that city from alien dominance and of again possessing Thrace and the Dardanelles. This brought a warning from all the allies that an attack against the neutral zones of Ismid and the Dardanelles would mean war with the allies, and British and Italian troops were concentrated in those regions.

Probably the allies can restrain the Turks, but the danger in the Near East does not stop there and many wise statesmen are shaking their heads over the prospects of a new war in the Balkans. Bulgaria is massing her forces on the Thracian frontier, while Jugo-Slavia and her ally Rumania are mobilizing to give the Bulgars battle. The Serbs, who themselves want possession of Scionica, are determined that Bulgaria shall not grab Thrace and thus re-establish contact with the Turks. The Bulgarian press is urging the government to abandon diplomacy and to fight. England, which has been the friend of Greece, will not permit Turkey or Bulgaria to get Thrace and has a powerful naval force guarding the waters between the continents. Italy is most desirous of peace and is urging England to consent to a new conference on the Near East. France rejoices over the victory of the Turks, but joins with England in the determination that Constantinople and the Dardanelles shall remain neutral and under international control. All in all, British diplomacy seems to have made a mess of it, but a layman at this distance has no right to pass judgment yet. Britain's course may have been influenced greatly by the ever-existent and now increasing fear of a general Mohammedan uprising against Christian domination.

ALL the country shared with President Harding his anxiety over the serious illness of Mrs. Harding, and everyone rejoiced when the news came from the White House that the crisis was passed and the gracious lady's recovery was virtually assured.

THE house sent the tariff bill back to conference because it objected to the proposed duty on potash and the provision continuing for one year the dye embargo act. The changes demanded by the house were made, and the bill was then approved by the representatives after a very brief debate.

WARM CAMPAIGNS ARE IN PROSPECT

MEMBERS NOW GO BACK HOME TO DEFEND RECORD OF 12 MONTHS' SESSION.

SIX VERY IMPORTANT LAWS

Issues in Coming Elections Are Confused and Localized in Many Instances.

Washington—Congress has adjourned after continuous sessions for more than eighteen months—the duration of the Harding administration. The political "open season" has arrived.

Congressmen and Senators, struggling reluctantly through a routine calendar during the last few weeks, except for the tariff and bonus surpluses, and the administration strike bills, are at last free to defend their record personally before the home folks as an argument for re-election. And, by virtue of the Harding landslide, the period of post-war deflation, and attendant industrial crises, and the seating of Senator Newberry, the home folks may look forward to a congressional campaign seldom equalled for its variety and confusion of issues.

Between now and the first Monday in December, when Congress returns for the regular short session, those issues will have been fought over and the score tallied. If the primaries are a guide, the score is likely to reveal much new blood, but also several old faces in the Sixty-Eighth Congress, which convenes next March.

The variety and confusion of issues takes its origin from the record of this Sixty-Eighth Congress to date. That record, as revealed in the more important legislative activities during the long session, is briefly as follows:

Ratification of the seven arms conference treaties.

Enactment of the emergency tariff and the Fordney-Cumber permanent protective tariff.

Enactment of the five budget system, where the government claims a saving of 600,000,000 in one year ending 1923.

Establishment of a debt fund, and the time of the $11,000,000,000 all incurred during the World War.

Passage of the new revenue act, completely revising the war revenue acts.

The soldier bonus bill, "Interest" now merely as inspiring a record of sympathies of individual Congressmen and Senators by World War veterans.

REPUBLICANS ARE BLAMED BY BLANTON

He Says They Should Defend Attorney General Daugherty From Criticism.

Washington.—Attempts to impeach Attorney General Daugherty for seeking an injunction against striking railway employes and lack of defense of Mr. Daugherty by House Republicans were criticised in the House by Representative Blanton (Dem.) of Texas.

"When the Attorney General has performed his duty—has taken action to have the law enforced in behalf of the people," said Mr. Blanton, "there comes to this House a resolution to impeach him, to discredit his efforts before the country, and the administration with its big majority has not placed a single member on the floor to defend him."

"With railroads tied up, bridges dynamited and the people of the United States appealing to the administration to enforce the law, the Attorney General seeks to act and then there is a cry to impeach. Not a member of his party has dared get up here and defend him."

Mr. Blanton said people might talk all they pleased about Turkish atrocities, but that he could think of no "atrocities" greater than that at Herria, Ill.

Rheumatism Disappears Sooner

Victims of stomach trouble and rheumatism often find that when the stomach is set in order, the rheumatism disappears. Thousands of people everywhere have testified that they have freed them of both troubles simultaneously. Mr. Robert Trotter, State St., St. Paul, Minn., says: "About a year ago I began to get down hill. Sour stomach and rheumatism in my arms and shoulders kept me in misery all the time. Since taking Tanlac all my aches and pains have gone, and my stomach is in shape. I'm glad to endorse your medicine."

Badly digested food fills the system with poisons. Rheumatism and many other complaints not generally recognized as having their origin in the stomach quickly respond to the right treatment. Get a bottle today at any good druggist.—Advertisement.

MOTHERS AND DAUGHTERS

Read This Letter from W. S. Hughes

Greenville, Del.—"I was under the impression that my eldest daughter had some internal trouble as ever since the first time her sickness appeared she had to go to bed and even had to quit school one for a week. I always take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound myself. I gave it to her and she has recovered. You can use this letter for a testimonial if you wish, as I cannot say too much about what your medicine has done for me and for my daughter."—Mrs. Wm. S. Hughes, Greenville, Delaware.

Mothers and oftentimes grandmothers have taken and have learned the value of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. So they recommend the medicine to others.

The best test of any medicine is what it has done for others. For nearly 30 years we have published letters from mothers, daughters, and women, young and old, recommending the Vegetable Compound. They know what it did for them and are glad to tell others. In your own neighborhood are women who know of its great value.

Mothers—daughters, why not try it?

"In yonder. Say, are you going back to the city tonight?"

"Yes," Gramont regarded him. "Why?"

"Take me back, will you? I've missed the last up train, and if you're going back anyhow I won't have to hire a car. I can drive for you, and we'll make it in a couple of hours, before midnight sure."

"Hop in," said Gramont, nodding toward the car. "I'll be back as soon as I've had a word with Hammond. No danger of his getting lynched, I hope?"

"Not a chance," said the other, conclusively. "Six deputies up there now, and quite a bunch of ex-soldiers comin' to stand guard. You goin' to fight the case?"

"No," said Gramont. "Can't fight a sure thing, can you? I'm sorry for him, though."

Chacherre shrugged his shoulders and got into the car.

Gramont was much relieved to find that there was no danger of lynching, which had been his one fear. It was with much persuasion that he got past the guard and into the courthouse, where he was received by a number of deputies in charge of the situation.

After conferring with them at some length, he was grudgingly taken to the cell occupied by Hammond. The latter received him with a wide grin, and gave no sign of the grueling ordeal through which he had passed.

"Listen, old man," said Gramont, earnestly. "Will you play out the game hard to the end? I'll have to leave you here for two days. At the end of that time you'll be free."

The listening deputies snickered, but Hammond merely grinned again and put a hand through the bars.

"Whatever you say, cap'n," he responded cheerfully. "I've happened since you've got the real

"Your escape was too narrow to joke over, Henry," she reproved him, gravely.

"I'm not joking, my dear Lucie. I learned nothing about the tragedy until late last night. From what I can find in the papers, it seems agreed that Bob was not the real Masquer, but had assumed that guise for a joke. A tragic joke! Since he was undoubtedly drunk at the time, his story can't be relied upon as very convincing. And yet, it's frightfully hard to believe that, even by accident, a son should have shot down his own father—"

"Don't!" Lucie winced a little. "In spite of all the evidence against him, in spite of the way he was found with that aviation uniform, it's still awful to believe. I can't realize that it has actually happened."

"According to the papers, poor Mrs. Maillard has gone to pieces. No wonder."

"Yes. I was there with her all day yesterday, and shall go again today. They say Bob is terribly broken up. He sent for his mother, and she refused to see him. I don't know how it is all going to end! Do you think his story might be true—that somebody else might have acted as the Masquer that night?"

Gramont shook his head.

"It's possible," he said, reluctantly, "yet it hardly seems very probable. And now, Lucie, I'm very sorry indeed to say it—but you must prepare yourself against another shock in the near future."

"What do you mean? About the oil?"

"No. It's too long a story to tell you now; here we are at the Maison Blanche. Just remember my words, please. It's something that I can't go into now."

"Very well, Henry! Do you think that it's possible your chauffeur, Hammond, could have learned about the drinking party, and could have—"

Gramont started. "Hammond? No. The answer for him beyond any question, Lucie. By the way, does Fell know anything about Hammond having been the first Masquer?"

"Not from me," said the girl, watching him.

"Very well. Hammond got into a bit of trouble at Houma, and I had to leave him there. It was none of his fault, and he'll get out of it all right. Well, come along up to our old meeting! Forget your troubles, and don't let my croakings about a new shock cause you any worry just yet."

He was thinking of Jachin Fell, and the girl's closeness to him. Had he not known that Fell was responsible for Hammond's being in jail, he might have felt differently. As it was, he was now forewarned and forearmed, although he could not see what animus Fell could possibly have against Hammond.

It was lucky, he reflected grimly, that he had never breathed to a soul except Lucie the fact that Hammond had been the first Masquer! Had Fell known this fact, his desire to lay Hammond by the heels might have been easily fulfilled—and Hammond would probably have found himself charged with Maillard's murder.

They found Jachin Fell dictating to a stenographer. He greeted them warmly, ushering them at once into his private office.

Gramont found it difficult to convince himself that his experiences of the previous afternoon had been real. It was almost impossible to believe that this shy, apologetic little man in gray was in reality the "man higher up!" Yet he knew it to be the case—knew it beyond any escape.

"By the way," and Fell turned to Gramont, "if you'll dictate a brief statement concerning that oil seepage, I'd be obliged! Merely give the facts. I may have need of such a statement from you."

Gramont nodded and joined the stenographer in the outer office, where he dictated a brief statement. It did not occur to him that there might be danger in this; at the moment, he was rather off his guard. He was thinking so much about his future assault on Fell that he quite ignored the possibility of being placed on the defensive.

Within five minutes he had returned to Lucie and Jachin Fell, who were discussing the condition of Mrs. Maillard. Gramont signed the statement and handed it to Fell, who laid it with other papers at his elbow.

"I suppose we may proceed to business?" began Fell. "I have drawn up articles of partnership; if we can apply for incorporation later if we so desire, Lucie, both Henry Gramont and I are putting twenty-five thousand dollars into this company, while you are putting in your land, which I am valuing at an equal amount. The stock, therefore, will be divided equally among us. That is understood?"

"Yes. It's very good of you, Uncle Jachin," said the girl, quietly. "I'll leave everything to your judgment."

The little gray man smiled.

"Judgment is a poor horse to ride. Here's everything in black and white. I suggest that you both glance over the articles, sign up, and we will then hold our first meeting."

Gramont and Lucie read over the partnership agreement, and found it perfectly correct.

The American Refining Company has filed suit in the Travis County District Court against Secretary of State L. S. Staples for recovery of $1,001 of alleged excess franchise tax. WOMEN NEED SWAMP-ROOT

Thousands of women have kidney and bladder trouble and never suspect it. Women's complaints often prove to be nothing else but kidney trouble, or the result of kidney or bladder disease. If the kidneys are not in a healthy condition, they may cause the other organs to become diseased. Pain in the back, headache, loss of ambition, nervousness, are often times symptoms of kidney trouble. Don't delay starting treatment. Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, a physician's prescription, obtained at any drug store, may be just the remedy needed to overcome such conditions. Get a medium or large size bottle immediately from any drug store. However, if you wish first to test this great preparation send ten cents to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. MURINE Night - Morning - Keep Your Eyes Clean - Clear - Healthy

Get the Best Eye Care. Best Results. From the Murine.

"Did Lucie Ledanois dream such a thing? No, Gramont dismissed the question at once. Fell was not an unusual type of man. There were many Jachin Fells throughout the country," he reflected. Men who applied their hands to crooked work, who put themselves above any actual share in the work, and who profited highly by the money from every crooked or illegitimate crime.

"The following morning Gramont called both Jachin Fell and Lucie Ledanois over the telephone. He acquainted them briefly with the result of his oil investigation, and arranged a meeting for ten o'clock, at Fell's office.

It was slightly before ten when Gramont called with the car for Lucie. Under the spell of her smiling eagerness, the harshness vanished from his face; it returned again a moment later, for he saw that she, too, was changed. There was above them both a cloud. That of Gramont was secret and brooding. As for Lucie, she was in mourning. The murder of Joseph Maillard, the arrest and undoubted guilt of Bob Maillard, dwarfed all else in her mind. Even the news of the oil seepage, and the fact that she was probably now on the road to wealth, appeared to make little impression upon her.

"Thank heaven," she said, earnestly, as they drove toward Canal street, "that so far as you are concerned, Henry, the Midnight Masquer affair was all cleared up before this tragedy took place! It was fearfully imprudent of you—"

"Yes," answered Gramont, soberly, reading her thought. "I can realize my own folly now. If this affair were to be laid at my door, some kind of a might be made up against me. It would seem plausible. But, fortunately, I was out of it in time. We merely characters in a dramatized detective story, I suppose. I was arrested and deluged with questions and clues and so forth."

The Ultimatum.

RIDE SERVED FOR OLD SCOT

Airplane Trip Gave Pleasure to Aged Man and Brought Sister to His Knowledge.

William Dick went out from Scotland to Australia 70 years ago, and returned in the commonwealth over a century ago. The great age has made him feeble, and when, one day last week, he expressed a wish to see his home, it was felt that he ought to be given that pleasure. More; when some public spirited airmen flew their machine over the mountains he lived, they took the old man up for a ride, to his great delight, and showed him his home from a height of 3,000 feet.

The newspapers of course told the story, and proud fellow Scots say that it was sent home, as well they might, for even Scotland has not many sons using airplanes at the age of one hundred and three.

And so the news of William Dick's existence and whereabouts reached a house in Dundee where lived a lady who thought he might be her long-lost brother, who had left Scotland before she was born.

Letters followed, and the two proved to be in truth brother and sister. Thus the brave old man's ride in the clouds found him a sister across the earth.

AN ENGLISH SCHOOLGIRL

A Jeffersonville young woman has among her correspondents an English "schoolmarm," a teacher in a girls' private school. She sent this gem in a recent letter:

"Some weeks ago I told one of my classes the story of Cincinnatus, and mentioned how each soldier was ordered to carry five 'stakes' with him as well as provisions. One child, slightly mixed, reproduced my simple words as 'sandwiches' and proceeded to tell, in a very interesting way, how the Romans were 'staked' around the camp to protect their camp. I corrected my narrative and mentioned the 'stakes.'"
