diversion decisions that farmers themselves are making.

"Signup in the week ending March 1 was smaller than anticipated both in terms of producers and acreage. Neither workload in ASC Committee offices nor weather accounts for the relatively low totals. Unless new market influences develop - which are not now in sight - low corn prices will result from a low level of participation in the feed grain program.

By participating in the 1968 feed grain program, farmers will both help increase their prices this summer and next year. They also will augment their incomes with diversion and price support payments, which do not depend upon the weather as crops do. They will

The University Interscholastic League Region II Meet was held at North Texas State University Gym in Denton.

However, the second quarter, Knox City scored only 5 points to Cross Plains' 12, ending the first half 13-29. The Houndettes scored 8 points to their 5 in the 3rd quarter, and each team scored 8 points in the final period of play.

Donna Railstack, KCHS junior, was high point with 13. Diane Thomas and Lou Ann McGaughey each had 6, and Elois Jordan scored 4.

Many loyal fans accompanied the team and its coach, O'Neal Weaver, to Denton and all agreed that our girls should be pleased with their record. They have had a wonderful season, and the town is proud of them!

HS Seniors Should Apply For College Admission Now

Texas high school seniors were reminded today that if they want to go to college this fall they should apply for admission now. A student who needs financial assistance should also apply to the financial aid officer at the college of his choice for any help for which he may be eligible.

This advice came from Dr. C. V. Galbreath, Higher Education Director for Region VII of the U. S. Department of Health, Education, and Welfare. The region includes Texas, Arkansas, Louisiana, New Mexico and Oklahoma.

Dr. Galbreath pointed out that Federally supported programs of loans, grants, and jobs are available through the colleges, but that many students are either not aware of them or do not realize that they should apply for them as soon as possible.

Throughout the Nation during this academic year, more than a million students are receiving assistance totaling over a billion dollars through four programs administered by the U. S. Office of Education, an operating agency of DHEW.

"The financial aid officer at a college frequently will put together a 'package' of aids for financially needy students", Dr. Galbreath said.

"Early planning helps the student know just where he stands, and it helps the college plan wise use of its resources for students."

The four major Federally supported programs, available for students in any field of study, are: The National Defense Student Loan Program, the College Work-Study Program, the College Work-Study Program. The Federal government's next major forward move for students came with the College Work-Study Program authorized by the Economic Opportunity Act of 1964. Any student who needs a job to help pay college costs is eligible to participate.

This academic year some $7,582,000 in Federal funds has been allocated to provide employment for about 18,600 students in Texas. Federal funds pay 85 percent of the wages of student employees, and the colleges pay the rest.

Students may work for their college in dining halls, laboratories, or libraries, or in any job that advances the purposes of the college. Or they may work off-campus in public or non-profit organizations, such as those in health, education, welfare, or recreation. Generally, students may work an average of 15 hours a week while attending classes full time and 40 hours a week during summer or other vacation period.

EDUCATION OPPORTUNITY GRANTS. The Educational Opportunity Grants Program, which began operation in the fall of 1966 under the Higher Education Act of 1965, provides outright grants from colleges to students in such extreme financial need that without the grants they could not attend college. The grants range from $200 to $800 a year.

During this academic year about 12,000 students in Texas will receive grants totaling approximately $5,934,000. Colleges are required to match educational opportunity grants with other forms of student assistance.

INSURED LOAN PROGRAMS. The Higher Education Act of 1965 also authorized a loan program for college students. The National Vocational Student Loan Insurance Act of 1965 authorized a similar program of borrowing for students in business, trade, technical, or other vocational schools.

Under these programs, students borrow directly from their bank, credit union, savings and loan association, or other eligible lender. If a student's adjusted family income is less than $15,000 a year, the Federal government pays the entire interest (6 percent) during his school years and half the interest (3 percent) during the repayment period, which begins 9 months to a year after studies are terminated and may extend up to 10 years for college loans, six years for vocational loans. Lenders are protected against loss by a State agency, a private non-profit agency designated by the State, or by the Federal government.

During the first quarter of the current fiscal year (July, August, and September, 1967) some 6,331 students in Texas borrowed $3,596,274.

Dr. Galbreath noted that during the past ten years tuition and fees along have increased nearly 50 percent for public colleges, and over 95 percent for private colleges. Today it costs students an average of $1,068 a year, including living costs, to attend public colleges and $2,232 a year to attend private colleges.

"This assistance to students arrives on the American educational scene none too soon," he said.

NATIONAL DEFENSE STUDENT LOAN PROGRAM

Most colleges and universities participate in the National Defense Student Loan Program, under which students borrow directly from the college they are attending. This loan program was the first Federally supported effort through the U. S. Office of Education to assist an individual student pay college expenses. Since the beginning of the program, authorized by 1958 legislation, more than a million students have borrowed over $1 billion. In Texas about 15,600 students are borrowing about $8,155,000 this year to help pay college expenses. Institutions provide $1 in matching funds for every $9 in Federal funds.

An undergraduate student may borrow up to $1,000 each academic year to a total of $5,000. Graduate students may borrow as much as $2,500 a year. The maximum for both graduate and undergraduate education is $10,000. Repayment and interest do not begin until after the student has ended his studies and may be extended over a 10-year period. Borrowers who become teachers may have all or part of their debt cancelled.

COLLEGE WORK-STUDY PROGRAM

The Federal government's next major forward move for students came with the College Work-Study Program authorized by the Economic Opportunity Act of 1964. Any student who needs a job to help pay college costs is eligible to participate.

This academic year some $7,582,000 in Federal funds has been allocated to provide employment for about 18,600 students in Texas. Federal funds pay 85 percent of the wages of student employees, and the colleges pay the rest.

ASCS Operates In Many Various Fields

Food and fiber in abundance with fair prices for all are dual objectives of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service, an agency of the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

Working with farmer committees at State, county and community levels, ASCS operates generally in the fields of production adjustment, soil and water conservation, and stabilization of prices, markets and farm income.

Production adjustment seeks to balance supply and demand as related to farm products. This is done through acreage allotments, marketing quotas and diversion of land from production of commodities that are in excessive supply.

The agency, through its Agricultural Conservation Program, helps farmers make land use adjustments and carry out soil and water conservation practices through a system of cost-sharing. Farmers invest their own money, time, labor and machinery, amounting to about half the cost of installing conservation measures. In this way, ASCS helps insure the availability of fertile land and clean water for future needs.

USDA efforts to stabilize market prices and protect farm income center around an ASCA-administered price-support program. Support is achieved partly through commodity loans to farmers and partly through direct purchases from both farmers and processors. Price-support payments on such crops as cotton, wheat, feed grains and butterfat also have stabilizing effects.

Another important job of ASCS is the management of commodities acquired under price-support programs. Responsibility includes needed processing, shipping, storage and final disposition. The latter is accomplished through sales and donations, both domestic and foreign, and through export payment-in-kind.

Cooperative Extension Work in Agriculture and Home Economics, Texas A&M University and the United States Department of Agriculture cooperating. Distributed in furtherance of the Acts of Congress of May 8, 1914, as amended, and June 30, 1914.

Texas is one of 24 states sharing in payments under a sugar program operated by ASCS. The program objectives to assure consumers a plentiful supply of sugar at a reasonable price. It also bolsters national security by encouraging domestic production of a substantial portion of U. S. needs and by enabling friendly countries to participate equitably in supplying national needs.

Like other agencies of the Department, ASCS is active in providing assistance for victims of natural disasters and shares a wide range of defense responsibilities. Its personnel work as a team with other agencies in reporting emergency situations to the Secretary of Agriculture and in recommending needed assistance. Help in disaster-designated areas may be in the form of permission to utilize forage on land retired from crop production. When needed, feed grains from commodity stockpiles are made available at low prices or, in extreme situations, at no cost. Other assistance includes the cost-sharing of practices needed to rehabilitate damaged farmland.

In the national defense picture, ASCS is responsible for programs related to farm production, conservation and stabilization. It also operates emergency defense programs relating to handling, storing and distributing grains before processing or export.

Other defense activities include the consolidation of claims for manpower; coordination of attack analysis and damage assessment; maintenance of emergency record systems; and the preparation of defense reports for USDA.

America's farmers in recent years have achieved a revolution in food and fiber production, showing the way to freedom from hunger and want. Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service programs are intended to help farmers and ranchers maintain productive ability now and for future generations and, at the same time, they seek to prevent producers from being penalized by their own success.

Drivers Warned To Stay Alert

A trucking industry spokesman today warned that improving weather and longer hours of daylight do not mean that drivers can start relaxing behind the wheel.

"With the amount of traffic there is today, a driver cannot afford to relax at any season of the year, even without the increase in the number of drivers that venture out in the Spring after a winter of avoiding all but essential driving," said Mr. Belton Duckett, President of the Texas Motor Transportation Association in connection with the Texas trucking industry's March Courtesy and

1968 C Of C Meets Scheduled In Mar.

Local chamber of commerce president, committee chairmen, officers, directors, committee members and chamber executives have been invited to the annual Leaders' Workshops conducted by the West Texas Chamber of Commerce.

Dates and locations for 1968 meetings are March 19 in Amarillo; March 20 in Midland; March 21, Brownwood and March 22, Mineral Wells.

Subject matter for each of the workshops is identical, but different discussion leaders have been named for each of the sessions. Frank Mueller, State Chamber of Commerce department manager of the U. S. Chamber of Commerce, Washington, D. C., will be the keynote speaker at each meeting.

Group meetings will be held each morning following the keynote speaker's address. These groups will be divided into three sessions: one for presidents, officers and directors; one for committee chairmen and members and one for chamber executives.

Following the luncheon there will be a session lasting one hour and it will cover such subjects as program of work, budget and finance.

These annual workshops are arranged by Ralph Duncan, community services department manager of the WTCC, and the host chamber of commerce in each of the cities holding the meeting.

Special handbooks and guides have been prepared for those who attend the meetings. These are considered vital tools for the proper operation of a local chamber of commerce and, when used with other information made available at the meeting, will provide the new officers and directors of the local organizations assistance which will be invaluable, according to Jack G. Springer, executive vice-president of the WTCC.

Mrs. Doris Crownover, local Chamber manager and several directors are planning to attend the Mineal Wells meet on March 22.

Safety Campaign, "Spring Hazards".

Addressing himself to those drivers who bloom in the Spring, Mr. Duckett pointed out that the actions of one driver can have far-reaching effects on many others.

"If your purpose in driving is to enjoy the fresh air and sunshine," he went on, "I would like to suggest that you confine your activities to lightly-traveled roads where you will offer a minimum of interference to other drivers. On a main road, one driver loafing along can tie up long lines of fretting and fuming drivers who can't get by. Of course, the situation is at its worst on two-lane roads, but even on roads with four or more lanes, a driver who tries to stick way under the speed limit can disrupt the orderly flow of traffic by forcing almost every other driver to go around him."

"On main highways in rural areas, and on main streets in the city," he suggested, "You should try to drive within 5 miles per hour of the posted speed limit to do your part to keep traffic moving. While you're at it, keep your mind on your driving and your eyes on traffic conditions to avoid accidents."

"No man is an island unto himself," Mr. Duckett concluded. "And nowhere is this more true than in traffic."

Medical insurance claims under Medicare for July - Sept. '66 services must be filed by 3/31/68; for Oct. '66 - Sept. '67, by 12/31/68.

LENTE MEDITATION
On looking back at the prophecies of our Lord we hear Isaiah as he began to unfold the real message of his book, the coming of the Messiah, Servant of Jehovah. He introduced a character known simply as "a voice". The voice of him that crieth in the wilderness — this is the voice to be the herald of Jesus Christ. Down on the banks of the Jordan River we hear the voice, "Repent ye for the kingdom of heaven is at hand. For this is he that was spoken of by the prophet Isaiah saying the voice of one crying in the wilderness prepare ye the way of the Lord, make his paths straight." It is here we see Jesus stopping from his personal and private life into his public ministry. The Father put his benediction upon him at his baptism. He was anointed with the Holy Ghost. The Father said, "This is my beloved son in whom I am well pleased."

Tax Man Sam Sez:
The best time to file your income tax return is NOW. (If you filed on the first day of January, congratulations!) The good tax people feel that the 1/3 of the taxpayers who wait until midnight hour on April 15 to file their tax returns make many more errors than the early filers. Since these taxpayers cost themselves money by forgetting valuable deductions, you may find the advice of the friendly tax collector worth listening to.

PLAN PARTY

The Truscott 4-H Foods groups met Thursday to plan 4-H foods parties. They also discussed plans for a group project show the last week of March.

ATTEND STOCK SHOW

Those who entered the stock show at Crowell Saturday from Truscott were Alan Tapp, Joe and Michael Tomanek, and Ruth Brown. Jackie Daniel helped Ruth show one of her lambs in the ring.

RE-ASSIGNMENT

Bill Dodd, Santa Fe agent, reports a change in his re-assignment to another town when the Truscott - Benjamin Santa Fe Offices close at the end of March. He will not be going to Alpine and at present is not positive of his new assignment. The railroad came to Truscott and Benjamin 60 years ago. At one time nearly all area cattle and farm products were shipped by rail but the improvements in highways and trucking have caused a great decline in railroad traffic. It is hard to believe now that 20 years ago there were two passenger trains daily between Truscott and Benjamin.

HONOR ROLL

Truscott students who made the Crowell Grade School honor roll for this six weeks were Nancy Looney, Christy Shaw, Ruth Brown and Harold Myers.

Leonard Riebe, who works with the U. S. Geological Survey is presently working out of Crowell, from Childress to Silverton and south as far as Cisco. He is writing the final field survey report for topographic maps which will be published soon. He will probably move from Knox City to Crowell soon. He was making surveys in Truscott last week.

The horse had it's day again last week at Truscott. Joe Barton of Benjamin had cattle ready to ship near Gilliland but could not get trucks in due to muddy roads, so he drove the 170 head 10 miles to the Santa Fe pens at Truscott where the trucks picked them up. He had a muddy, tired looking crew of cowboys when they left town Thursday evening.

The weather here has not been typical the last two months. We are supposed to be praying for rain at this time of year, not dry weather.

Hospitals And You

"The admitting office is frequently referred to as the nerve center of the hospital," Lyndol Cypert, administrator of the Knox County Hospital, said in a discussion of hospital admission procedures. "This identification," he explained, "results from the increasing scope and complexity of this department, which is charged with governing the flow of patients in accordance with hospital policies and serving as a screening point through which all patients must pass."

Mr. Cypert said, "A patient's first impression of a hospital remains with him and conditions his feelings during his entire stay. This impression is often influenced," he added, "by the feeling of apprehension and fear many patients experience when faced with the necessity of becoming a hospital patient. Hospitals generally strive to put the patient at ease from the moment he arrives."

"It is a surprising fact that many people do not realize it is necessary for a physician to refer them to the hospital for admission," Mr. Cypert said. "In other words, a patient cannot admit himself without a doctor's request. Therefore, it is very wise for everyone to have a personal physician."

"Many hospitals expedite non-emergency and scheduled admissions of patients," Mr. Cypert continued, "through pre-admission forms sent to the patient in advance and confirmed by telephone. This procedure eliminates any unnecessary delay when the patient arrives."

"A patient can be of great assistance to the hospital and to himself," Mr. Cypert pointed out, "by bringing with him his hospitalization insurance policy or policies, or complete insurance information including name of company and policy number, also his personal identification. If the patient is covered by Medicare, he should also bring his Medicare card with him. It is wise for an individual to carry with him at all times a complete listing (including policy numbers) of all hospital insurance coverage." "In fact," he added, "this information is quite valuable in emergency situations such as an accident."

On the other hand, the patient is advised not to bring valuables to the hospital such as large sums of money, jewelry, furs, etc. If he comes with these items they should either be sent home with members of the family or a friend, or given to the hospital for safekeeping during his hospital stay. They should never be taken to the patient's room because hospital personnel are too busy tending patients to assume responsibility for safe-guarding personal property.

The patient should advise his physician the type of hospital room he desires. The physician, in turn will make the request of the hospital. There are times, however, when the need for hospitalization is immediate and the desired accommodation is not available. In these cases the need is met in the best possible manner at the time and the patient is transferred as soon as his request can be granted.

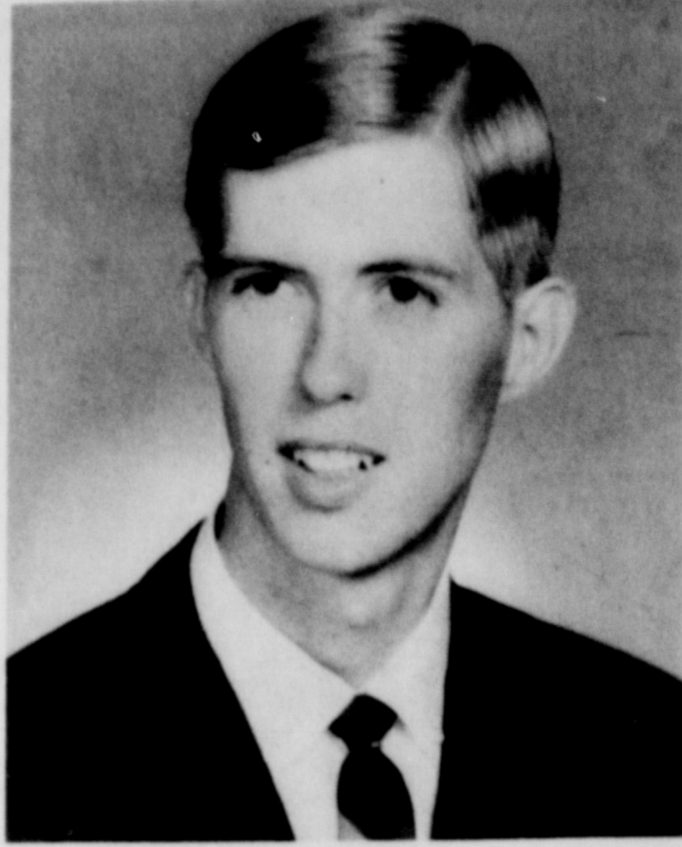

Mr. Cypert concluded... "Hospitals are dedicated to the provision of good patient care. They are anxious to assist the patient in every way from the first moment he comes into the hospital. I would urge everyone to acquaint himself with hospitals in his community before he has need of their services, and to select a personal physician before a hospital admission becomes necessary. By observing these simple, but important suggestions, you can make your hospital admission, when it comes, a simple and satisfactory experience."

Week Theme, "Learn To Live With Nature"

The California Creek and Wichita-Brazos Soil and Water Conservation Districts are joining with the National Wildlife Federation and other Conservation groups in sponsoring Wildlife Week 1968, March 17-23. The Theme, "Learn to Live With Nature," stresses the need for conservation education.

"People are sold on the idea of enjoying nature, but we must also sell them on the idea of learning to appreciate and care for all our natural resources," according to H. Birger Haterius and Jack Idol, Chairman of the Boards of Supervisors of the two local conservation districts.

"Conservation education," they said, "is an impor-

MACK STANDLEE

Mack Standlee Is Initiated February 24

Mack Standlee, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Standlee, was initiated on February 24 into Alpha Kappa Psi, professional business fraternity at Texas Tech in Lubbock.

The initiation followed a three month pledge period in which Mack and twelve other pledges mastered requirements and standards set out by the fraternity. The initiation was highlighted by a banquet in the evening at the Johnson Speaker Restaurant. Principal speaker at the banquet was Dr. Robert Bell of the University of Arkansas, who is regional director for the Tech chapter of the fraternity.

Alpha Kappa Psi is the oldest professional fraternity in business. It is of national rank and tant part of any school program. It can also be a community project. People young and old should learn that they can help solve conservation problems such as erosion, water and air pollution, litter, endangered wildlife, and waste."

Television and motion picture star Dick Van Dyke is national honorary chairman for Wildlife Week. In announcing the observance, Van Dyke said that the amount of resources we have is limited, and every day more demands are placed upon them - that is why we must learn to live with nature - not in spite of it.

"One of the most important Wildlife Week themes we've ever had is this one of conservation education," Van Dyke said. "Everyone should learn to care for our natural resources. If we do not appreciate the value of clean water, fresh air, and a beautiful countryside, these things may disappear."

Tell me, please, do door-to-door salesmen pass around lists of susceptible people. I suspect that written across the front of our house, by some ecstatic salesman, in big phosphorescent letters is SUCKER. Once I open the door to them, I'm lost.

Besides my other daily exercises, my husband makes me stand in front of the mirror and practice saying "No!" until it rings with absolute stubbornness.

When a person discovers that he has tuberculosis, he must leave his home, family, work and income to go to a sanatorium for about a year, often longer. He sees his family very seldom, maybe on weekends when they can afford to come. His days are filled to completion with hours of boredom. Cards and letters are his ties to sanity.

Before each patient can be released, he must pass many negative (free of tubercle germs) monthly tests proving that he has conquered the disease. One positive test sends the person back to the start to begin the series all over again. The number of negative tests varies with each patient, the condition of his lungs, his general health, etc.

Fertilize Your Pastures Early

Fertilize pastures early this spring. This advice comes from Neal Pratt, Extension agronomist-pastures at Texas A&M University, who calls attention to the very favorable statewide soil moisture situation.

He says the abundance of soil moisture will be better utilized by pasture plants if they are fertilized early and that moisture will also be conserved. There is plenty of moisture in practically every section of Texas to initiate good spring growth, he notes. And, he adds, plenty of plant food will help improve the quality as well as the quantity of forage produced whether for grazing or hay.

And as for hay, Pratt suggests that hay be made from the pasture by cutting the expected excess growth during the spring and early summer.

The pasture specialist emphasizes the need for a soil test for determining more accurately the fertilizer needs of a pasture. Then adds that by following the soil test recommendations more production will result since research and on-farm demonstrations have shown that fertilized pastures make better use of moisture and produce better quality forage for both grazing and hay.

Outpatient physical therapy services are now covered under Medicare when furnished by qualified agencies either at home of patient or at the outpatient facility.

Prevention Of Blindness Society Reaches 60th Year

Founded in 1908, the National Society for the Prevention of Blindness, Inc., the oldest voluntary health agency nationally engaged in blindness prevention through programs of community action services, professional and public education and research, has begun its 60th year of saving sight.

The announcement was made by John W. Ferree, M. D., executive director of the National Society. "According to a recent poll man fears blindness more than any disease except cancer," said Dr. Ferree. "Because there is still no cure for total blindness, prevention is still the only answer to thwarting this tragic loss to mankind," stated the Society's executive director.

The Society began its vision-saving history 60 years ago when it crusaded and fought for the legislation that would require that prophylactic drops such as silver nitrate be put in the eyes of every newborn baby. At that time 25 per cent of all children in the nation's schools for the blind had been needlessly blinded at birth by an infectious disease called ophthalmia neonatorum or "babies' sore eyes." It was known that by putting such drops in the newborn baby's eyes this blinding disease, could be prevented. Today, venereal diseases are on the rise again in this country, but "babies' sore eyes" has been virtually eliminated as a cause of blindness. In the 1940's a leading cause of blindness among children was called retrolental fibroplasia, a disease of the retina in which a mass of scar tissue forms in back of the lens of the eye. In 1950 the National Society participated in and supported a research project, the first in the United States, to attempt to find out why this was happening. In 1954, it was found that the dread RLF was due to the too liberal administration of oxygen for prolonged periods to low weight, premature babies. Since 1954 by cutting down and very carefully measuring the amount of oxygen each premature infant can tolerate, the incidence of this disease as a cause of blindness has taken a dramatic fall.

Says Dr. Ferree, "not many parents know that their child can be given an eye examination as early as the day he is born. A professional eye examination at birth, along with the regular physical check up for good lungs, limbs and sound heart, has been a longtime recommendation of the National Society for the Prevention of Blindness. In fact, the Society strongly recommends that eye examinations be included in all routine physicals given by pediatricians, obstetricians and other practicing physicians."
