METHODIST CHURCH

Regular attendance at a house of worship is an outer sign of inner loyalty to one's faith.

Before absenting oneself from the house of worship of one's faith, one ought to apply the Kantain Principle of universalization and ask, "Am I willing for all to do likewise?" In other words, "Am I willing to close the church?" If not then you must do as you would have others do; that is the golden rule of church attendance.

A house of worship is more than an incentive to worship; it is also a source of inspiration.

Inspiration comes through groups, rather than individuals that seek common ends faced by common obstacles and difficulties.

The church serves not only for inspiration but for information as well. This information not only pertains to the principle involved in the historic past but to their applications to the demands and exigencies of the present.

Sermons are really preached in the pew, rather than from the pulpit. Intelligent eyes and attentive ears elicit from the minister his best and deepest. Empty pews are devastating.

Attendance at the house of worship also invites the individual to probe the depths of his soul, to commune with God, and to have, as it were, a dramatic rehearsal of his ideals.

Here man projects ideals that in turn beckons him onward and upward. The Methodist church invites you to attend services next Sunday. The pastors subject will be "The Hall of Fame." Hear the sermon at 11 a.m. and at 8 p.m. Sunday School at 9:45 each Sunday morning.

—Allen A. Peacock, Pastor

GOSSETT BELIEVES WE CAN STAY OUT EUROPEAN WAR

Olney, Sept. 13.—"America need not become involved in the present war, and in no event should American soldiers be sent to fight in European battlefields," said Congressman Ed Gossett as he spoke to members of the Olney Rotary club at noon Wednesday.

Speaking on "American Neutrality," Gossett said the United States must preserve a neutral position, although the nation had a moral responsibility in world affairs.

Discussing the history of the present neutrality legislation, Gossett said all of the Texas delegation in Congress supported the administration in the neutrality bill. His opinion is that the delegation from this state will again support a cash and carry policy, and will vote to repeal the present embargo.

When he was informed during the luncheon at noon Wednesday the president had issued a proclamation calling congress into session, Gossett predicted quick action on the neutrality measure. He also predicted the congress would remain in special session until the regular meeting date in January. He said he would be in Washington when congress convened Sept. 21.

FIRE DAMAGES FAVORS RESIDENCE

Friday afternoon the fire department answered a call to the residence of Uncle Sam Favors in the south part of town, when it was discovered that his beautiful residence was on fire. The blaze started in the north room upstairs and had gained great headway before it was discovered. The fire boys made a quick run and were lucky to save the building.

The damages will reach several hundred dollars and carpenters have already begun repairing. All the furniture in the rooms downstairs was saved, but was damaged some by water. There was no insurance.

Curtiss Coates of Munday was here yesterday visiting his wife, who is real sick at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Bradberry.

County Agent Rice of Benjamin was here this morning and informed us that Knox county farmers had received this week checks totaling $8,705.90. This should stimulate business for a few weeks.

Guy Barretti, who is in the insurance business in Stamford, spent Wednesday in Knox City looking after his mother's farm south of town.

Mrs. E. R. Branch expected to leave tomorrow for Dallas for a ten-day visit with friends and relatives.

Mrs. Guy Milford, who has been visiting her son and family at Odessa, returned home Monday.

Cotton is rolling into Knox City at the rate of more than 100 bales a day since Tuesday, and some of the gins are running late into the night. The yield will be much better than was expected last week and almost every farmer will begin picking Monday. It is hard to estimate how many bales will be ginned here this season at this time, as thousands of acres have not yet been picked.

Up to Wednesday night 784 bales had been ginned by the local gins. Seed was selling for $20 per ton and cotton was bringing 8.75 to 9 cents.

Herald Sold To Oklahomans

A deal was made this week whereby the Knox County Herald has been sold to Messrs. R. E. Hughes and J. T. Daniel of Ryan, Oklahoma, who will assume charge next Monday.

Mr. Hughes, who will be the editor, is a newspaper man with more than fifteen years experience, being associated with his father in publishing the Ryan Leader. He is a young man who knows the newspaper game well and will give the people of Knox City and Knox county a first class newspaper. Mr. Daniel, who is associated with Mr. Hughes, is now owner and editor of the Ryan Leader and is one of the best known men in that section of Oklahoma. He served several terms in the Oklahoma legislature and was Speaker of the House of Representatives two years ago.

The present editor takes this method of expressing his sincere thanks to the people of Knox City and Knox county for the liberal patronage received while a resident of this little city, and it is with regret that we leave here, but we have a number of attractive offers and we believe it is to our best interest to make the change. We have labored hard in making the Knox County Herald one of the best weekly papers in this section of the state and feel sure that if the merchants and other citizens will patronize Mr. Hughes as they have us we will continue to give you the same class of paper.

Mr. Hughes and his wife are already here and invite the public to call at the Herald office and get acquainted. It is quite hard for a stranger to come into a town and get all the news the first two or three weeks and we urge you to give them all the local and personal news you may have from time to time.

The present management assumes all outstanding indebtedness of the Knox County Herald up to Monday, Sept. 18, and all bills due said plant are payable to W. L. Garner. We will be in Knox City possibly thirty or forty days winding up our affairs, and we urge all who know themselves indebted to the Herald to call at this office or see us on the streets.

Assuring you that the Herald is in competent hands and assuming that you will assist the new management as much as possible, we are, sincerely,
W. L. Garner

J. H. Hughes, Abilene architect, has won a $1,000 prize for designing one of the most completely gas equipped homes in the country. He entered the American Gas Association's All Gas Home competition conducted among architects and builders of the United States and Canada and took one of the five first prizes. The design, which won the award was that of the home of M. L. Bird of Abilene, which is equipped throughout with modern gas appliances—gas range, gas refrigerator, gas water heater, gas heating equipment. ## THINKING OUT LOUD

By Lynn Landrum in Dallas News

Injunctive Veto

Jerry Mann has grasped with a firm hand the nettlesome problem of enforcing statutes having to do with state control of truck and motorbus transportation over Texas highways. At some political risk to himself he has moved to squelch the activities of the celebrated H. Fountain Kirby, Judge of the Honorable Seventy-Seventh District Court in Limestone county.

Judge Kirby for some years, by his repeated issuance of injunctions to suspend the operation of statutes under attack, has done as much as perhaps any District Judge in Texas to extend the area of district judicial jurisdiction to the boundaries of the state. The practice amounts to a temporary veto of state-wide legislation by a local official.

If this practice grows into an accepted power on the part of a District Judge, we have a hundred and twenty-odd locally chosen functionaries who by a stroke of the pen can wipe out the action of the legislature and the Governor.

Too Much Jurisdiction

Most of our District Judges are slow to exercise more bench power than is absolutely necessary to the determination of the cause immediately submitted to them for decision. They have followed a policy of moderation in this regard and that is why our system of overlapping jurisdiction has proved as workable as it has.

But suppose every District Judge in the state took the official view of his own powers that the Judge of the Seventy-Seventh District Court took in the matter of granting injunctions suspending the statutes of the state at points remote from his geographical area? With hundreds of writs being issued throughout the state—with El Paso enjoining Texarkana, and Amarillo enjoining Corpus Christi, and Dallas enjoining severally and in contradictory terms from the four quarters of the state, where would we be then? Where would the majesty of the law be?

It is apparent that appealing to the Supreme Court to suppress some of our more notable injunctionists is not a sufficient remedy for the reason that one court, however high, could not possibly keep up with a jurisdictional tangle as exaggerated as our present setup makes possible.

Multiple Courts

In counties where there are several District Courts Texas relies upon the common sense and fraternal comity of the District Court judiciary to obviate friction and conflict in authority. Yet every once in a while a clash of authority does occur, with awkward involvements for litigants and for quite innocent third parties.

Dallas county records will furnish examples where a Dallas man is in receipt of bench orders from two different District Courts under which he is judicially warned that he is damned if he does and he is damned if he doesn't. At one time we had two judges on the point of putting each other in jail. It was a case of the irresistible force and the immovable body. It took no little adjustment to get everything ironed out.

There ought to be a limit—a de-limiting if you please—which will fence off areas of judicial authority with something approximating definition.

Reform Needed

Nothing that has been said herein is intended to reflect upon the integrity of Judge Kirby or any other member of the judiciary, or to encourage any person subject to lawful jurisdiction in any pending case to disregard any lawful order from any duly constituted and empowered bench. The point is that there is too much no-man's-land and too much twilight-zoning in the field of overlapping jurisdiction.

Attorney General Mann has gone up stairs for an overriding injunction in one case. But it will take more sweeping reform than that to get at the system itself and bring it to a workable basis.

We stand in need of that reform.

YOUTH'S OPPORTUNITY

With so many avenues of assistance open to them, it would seem that any young person, with even a modicum of initiative, could obtain educational opportunities in this day and time.

Private student loans and part time jobs in college towns offer advantages. In fact, there is the National Youth Administration—a movement that has made it possible for many youngsters to continue their studies into higher branches of learning.

NYA employs two methods of opitulation.

For those working toward a college degree, work projects are provided. For the few hours of daily employment an average monthly compensation of fifteen dollars is available.

Those who have dropped out of school for some time, but who can meet the requirements for a trade or craft have vocational training available to them for the improvement of their talents. For the benefit of this group, a number of state colleges, in designated districts, are cooperating by offering a special nine months course with academic credits.

In return for the training, the student works from three and one-half to four hours a day for the school. The cash wage averages $28 per month. Basic expenses run about $18; leaving as a rule about ten dollars for other needed items. Only those between the ages of 18 and 24 years are accepted in these groups.

That this vocational training plan is feasible is evidenced by the number completing the course last year who were able to secure and hold jobs afterwards.

Most of us know very little about the machinations of the oil game, but most publishers know that Ernest O. Thompson pulled a stunt in closing down wells that caused one company to advertise in the newspapers. The radio failed to get the job done. When the corporations really want to speak directly to the people, they know no method succeeds like newspaper advertising. (P. S. ## THE GOVERNOR'S MOVE

Under the title "SJR 12 and the 46th Texas Legislature," W. H. Gallagher, writing in the July Southern Railway Journal, favors a called session of the legislature and places the responsibility for the next move squarely on the desk of the Governor. His conclusions are interesting. Among other comments he concludes his extended remarks as follows:

The 10 members of the Senate who voted against SJR 12 can be depended upon to vote for a statutory tax law. Two members of the Senate State Affairs Committee who voted for SJR 12 voted for HB 340. 8 others of the 21 Senators who voted for SJR 12, judging from their past records on similar questions, would vote for a statutory tax law if given an opportunity. The Lieutenant Governor, in his inaugural address, declared that a Constitutional Amendment was not necessary.

"If the Governor is sincere as he claims to be, he will call upon the members of the Senate to public declare whether they would vote for a statutory tax law or not. If 16 or more say they will, he should announce a date for convening an extra session and set it far enough away to give members of the legislature time to find out what their constituents want."

"If the Governor really thinks a Constitutional Amendment is necessary, he can recommend that any tax measure passed at the called session be considered an emergency measure and have written into it a two-year life limit. He can then carry the question of writing a sales tax into the Constitution to the people as an issue in his campaign for reelection. By such action he will provide for the present emergency, preserve what he claims he thinks is a principle and give the people an opportunity to hear the proposed amendment discussed in a campaign and to act more intelligently upon it before voting, than if it was submitted as proposed during the regular session."

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Dobbins and Mrs. C. A. Dulaney of Haskell spent Monday with the editor and wife.

Henry Stewart was transacting business in Benjamin and Seymour Monday.

Yankee Stars in Television Broadcast

Joe DiMaggio (left) and Joe McCarthy, of the world champion New York Yankees, watch a telecast of the official 1939 American League sound motion picture, "First Century of Baseball", in the dugout at Yankee stadium. Both play stellar roles in the film, which is being distributed without charge by the Fleher Body division of General Motors in celebration of the baseball centennial. Other feature pictures are soon to be broadcast by television from New York on a regular weekly schedule, it has been announced.

One of the most picturesque stories in Texas is that of Breckenridge, out in West Texas — while, by the way, is planning to hold a homecoming on Friday and Saturday, September 22 and 23, marking the twentieth anniversary of the big oil boom.

Breckenridge, at first, was a frontier trading post with silent Indians in bright blankets stalking through the streets and buffalo killers filling the saloons. Sam Bass, hotly pressed in the more populous part of the state after a series of bold train and bank robberies, hid out near Breckenridge. They can still show you the bullet marks on the trees as evidence that the bandits kept in practice while there. And there are men yet living who remember Bass and can tell you tales connected with his stay in Stephens county. He went about openly, and folks who he was, bought supplies with gold pieces and refrained from robbery. It was, no doubt, an idyllic vacation for the outlaw who was shot to death not long afterward at Round Rock.

In 1919, the population of Breckenridge was 700 and there was no railroad, supplibeing freighted from Albany and Ranger and the mail being hauled from Eastland, thirty miles south. And then a gusher was drilled and, in a very few months, the population had increased to perhaps 30,000 and Breckenridge was the largest town in the United States without a railroad. But not for long, because such a race as the country had never seen took place as four lines were built at frantic speed to see which would be the first to tap the inland metropolis.

The history of Breckenridge was typified in the career of one man — the late Breck Walker. The first white child born in the county, as a young man he had driven a stagecoach. He became a merchant and banker. When the boom came, he and his partner, C. M. Caldwell, built the water works, established the daily newspaper, built modern business structures and drilled dozens of big wells — four coming in within the space of 24 hours.

In an enjoyable session recently with J. D. Sandifer, Jr., chairman of the homecoming, and other prominent Breckenridge citizens, this columnist was laden with authentic tales of the oil field.

There was the fellow who applied to an operator for a job as a driller. Under questioning, the applicant admitted that he had never done any kind of work around a well.

"And yet you wanted me to turn over to you a drilling oil well and jeopardize an investment of many thousands of dollars," the operator exclaimed. "Why did you ask for a job as driller?"

"Don't the driller get the biggest pay?" the tenderfoot inquired.

And there was the officer who liked to play poker.

"When he entered a gambling place, nobody ever knew for a minute or so whether he was going to make a raid or get in the game," someone related.

That reminded somebody, else of the district representative of a company who had made his rounds, collecting. It was Saturday night and he had several thousand dollars which he could not put in a bank till Monday morning. Fond of poker, he dropped by his favorite gambling place but the tables were full. He lay across a bed in the corner and fell asleep.

When he awoke, he learned that a gang of hijackers had come in and robbed the house but didn't disturb him. One of the hijackers had remarked, "There's a poor devil they've cleaned and he's forgotten his troubles; let's be quiet and not wake him up."

Speaking of sleep, an oil company executive called up another official to get a lease man fired.

"It's almost noon and he hasn't got up yet," the executive complained.

"That's all right; the longer he sleeps, the less time he'll have to buy us worthless leases," the other official said. (His company had had the misfortune to drill mainly dry holes.) And so the lease man wasn't fired.

All these, and a thousand other incidents, will be relived as the boom-day inhabitants return to Breckenridge for the homecoming. There'll be a parade, golf tournament for the visitors, a hall of memories (where hundreds of old-time photographs will be displayed) domino and checker tournaments, high school band concerts, ex-students' reunion at the high school, a square dance and a football game between Abilene and Breckenridge high schools, traditional rivals.

Thousands of people are expected to attend the celebration and the blare and color and excitement will be worth crossing the state to see.

Congratulations to H. B. Fox of the Madisonville Meteor, winner over 4,600 competitors in a national contest to select the "best country newspaper writer of 1939." A $500 prize and a trip to New York went with the honor. And congratulations also to Harold Severson of the Beeville Bee-Picayune who won $250 for the best news writing.

THE FUTURE OF LABOR

By Representative Bryan Bradbury

As we close another Labor Day, we reflect upon the activity of labor forces and contemplate the future.

During 1933 and 1934 and to some extent in later years, labor made many gains. Favorable legislation was passed, government officials gave a helping hand, and the public had a sympathetic understanding. Hours were shortened, wages raised, working conditions improved, and in some instances, management divided profits with labor.

During the past two or three years, public opinion has not been so sympathetic, and as a result, legislation relative to labor has slowed considerably. This has been brought about to a large extent by the division and warring factions of the AFL and the CIO. In some instances labor had tried to go too far and make too many demands all too quick. The reaction to all of this has not helped labor. This has not been labor's fault altogether, but it has been a contributing factor. A misunderstanding public and propaganda by management has also contributed.

The cause of labor has not been completely won. Although there are six or seven million members of various unions, at the same time, there are other things they need to do. The average income of one third our population is $460 per year. This is not enough. Labor has been endeavoring to improve this situation. We hope they will succeed in an orderly manner. Labor should continue its program of getting safe working conditions, proper heat, light, air and modern safety devices. A fair wage scale and reasonable working hours could be materially improved. Management should lend a co-operative hand in bringing this about. Above all, the factions of labor should settle their differences and quit fighting among themselves.

WORLD'S SAFEST SHIP INSULATED LIKE MODERN AMERICAN HOUSE

The new SS Panama, called by experts, the safest ship in the world, is a streamlined, sea-going queen.

Outside walls and ceiling of this stateroom are fully insulated with mineral wool to keep it comfortably cool.

Insulation, which is an indispensable part of every modern house, has recently been adopted by naval architects to give added safety and comfort to deluxe passenger liners.

One of the first of such insulated liners—the SS Panama, called the safest ship in the world—arrived in New York recently fresh from her builders' yards in Quincy, Mass.

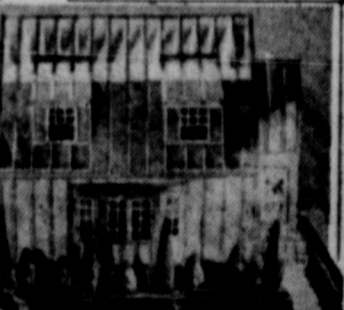

The insulation in the Panama has been used exactly as it is used in house construction. Outside walls and ceilings of its staterooms are filled with mineral wool, a fluffy, fibrous insulation made from blown minerals. It was selected because of its stability under the moist air conditions that prevail at sea and because of its resistance to settling and packing under constant movement. The engine room is also protected with mineral wool to keep its heat and noise from discomforting passengers.

The Panama is fireproof, smokeproof and sinkproof. It is the first all-fireproof ship to be built according to the new specifications of the Bureau of Marine Inspection and Navigation which were adopted following the tragic loss of the Morro Castle. Because of their stringency, new American ships will lead the world in safety at sea provisions.

The Panama was designed jointly by George Sharp, naval archi-

Capt. Erik Eriksen, shown with some of the marine safety devices that help make the Panama sink-proof, smokeproof and fireproof.

This typical house has had its outside wall stripped down to the studs to show its insulation in place. This heat shield will keep it ten to fifteen degrees cooler than outdoors during the hottest part of the summer, and warmer in winter.

tect, and Raymond Loewy, industrial designer. Walls, floors, ceilings, doors and even furniture are made of incombustible materials, which, with the steel hull and frame provide no ready tinder for fire. The mineral wool insulation, which is the only insulation ever to receive a fire rating by the National Bureau of Standards, is not only fireproof, but also prevents the spread of fire through walls, ceilings and air ducts. The Panama is the first of three sister ships. The two others, the Ancon and the Cristobal, are now under construction in the Fore River yards of the Bethlehem Steel Company. Costing $4,000,000 each to build, they are 493 feet in length and 84 feet in beam. They will have a top speed of 19 knots.

ONE VARIETY COTTON COMMUNITIES SET UP BROKERAGE HOUSE

The one variety cotton communities of Baylor, Haskell, Knox and Stonewall counties have set up a cotton brokerage house in Munday. The one variety communities in these counties have elected five directors, who have met and selected their sales manager. The directors are A. J. Bunts, Munday, O. C. Carothers, Rochester, W. C. Loe, Bomarton, Clyde Grace, Old Glory, and S. N. Reed, O'Brien. They met last week and selected Ray Kelly to be their sales manager.

Mr. Kelly is a Federal licensed cotton classifier and has bought cotton in Munday for the past 12 years. The Munday producers are having a meeting Thursday in Munday, at which time the operation of the brokerage house will be explained to them.

The sales will be made from samples, which will be taken at the gin. The cotton will be put in uniform classes and sold to the highest bidder. Mr. Kelly will charge the farmer 40 cents for his services.

The growing of better cotton will not benefit the grower unless he can sell it for its real value, and it seems this is more in the right direction, stated County Agent W. W. Rice.

The new superintendent will assume her duties September 21, directors said. Appointment of other employees on the hospital staff remains to be made.

Editorial

Once again there's a ring in our ears and this time we don't fool ourselves as to its cause. We've known for three months. So sure enough, on the fourth day of September, A. D. 1959, the old school bell rang once more (if there had been a bell). The farmers and farmerettes dropped their plows, washed off the collected dirt, and came to town. The local boys typed their last mistake, lassoed their last cow, or summoned up energy enough to drag over to our new location.

After going for the last few years, the students seemed not in the least bashful. In fact, they went in, took their seats, and with an expectant grin on their faces waited for what might come. After much friction, our schedule was made out; and there being no further excuse for idleness, the students blew the dust off of their books and looked at the pictures in them.

But seriously, though we are somewhat limited for proper space, we expect to do much this coming year.

Since classes are being conducted in the business section of our city, new traffic regulations have been passed.

Pedestrians (which is just a big name for those people who do not or cannot ride) are required to walk in designated lanes which have been marked off. During recess hours of school the cars stop at these lanes in order to let the students cross. Also, those who drive cars are required to go around the turns in the streets, drive slowly in the school zone, stop at all intersections and obey every other regulation set out in the ordinance passed by the city council. These ordinances are tacked in conspicuous places, and failure to obey them may entail serious results. So far, splendid cooperation has been shown, and we hope it will continue.

I might add that as a whole the student body has cooperated splendidly with all requirements. Unfortunately our building has been torn down, and for that reason it is no easy job for us to keep our minds on our work. Of course, a few of us have cricks in our necks from watching the traffic, but soon even this will become old. However, the student body realizes that this year will be just what we make it, and judging from the present attitude, this will be the most closely knitted and capable student body in the history of our school.

We have been given heavier responsibilities, and each person is taking it upon himself to overcome the disadvantages and replace them with advantages by a contagious air of light heartedness and true American citizenship.

Present School Conditions

Due to the building of a new school, the students of Benjamin school are forced to attend school in different buildings in town. The high school students, including the seventh grade, are located in the old Beavers building south of the court house. The study hall and two of the classes, English and Science, are located here. The adjoining building on the west, which is the Moorhouse building, is used for the math and history classes. West of the Moorhouse building is the old barber shop, in which home economics and typing are taught. The old cafe east of the hardware store is used for the first and second grades. There being no more vacant buildings close to these, the other grades are attending school in the Club House. The first floor of the Club House is the only one in use. The west side of the building is used for the third and fourth grades. On the east side are the fifth and sixth grades. This year, the fifth and sixth grades are taught in the same room under different teachers.

The enrollment this year is not so great, because the Vera students are not attending this school as they have in preceding years. There are fifty-one enrolled in high school.

Because of the inconvenient school system, play grounds have not yet been established but will be in the near future. The football boys are now playing at the old school playground, but the other students have a play period rather than a play period.

The New Building

The latest reports on the new school building tell us that progress is gradually being made. The old building has been completely demolished, all bricks have been cleaned and stacked, and other materials have been assembled. Three-fourths of the excavation is completed, and pouring of the cement for the foundation is scheduled for next week.

The total cost of the building including the labor and material, will be $86,000.

At the present time there are 78 WPA workers employed. These men are from various parts of the county and are divided into two shifts.

The date for completion of the building is scheduled for the latter part of May.

"He kept us out of war" was the battle cry in the Woodrow Wilson re-election campaign. It is now hoped that this will be the same message carried in the next presidential election, namely, that both of the major parties, the Democrats and the Republicans are responsible for the U. S. not being drawn into the orgy of wholesale murder called War and they are pledged to keep us out of war.

The Texas department of the American Legion held its state convention just recently in Waco. It was common to hear high notes of patriotism there, and in the same breath you could hear old front line vets declare that do not want any more of it, "for ourselves or for our sons, or for the sons of our fellow citizens, if future wars can be honorably avoided."

With the sound of war ringing in Europe and with a memory of the last war in which Texas boys participated alongside of their buddies from neighboring and all other states of the union, our country should continue its policy of not permitting loans to any nation which is at present in default in its indebtedness to America. We should not make the mistake of loaning billions to other countries at war, in order to enable them to purchase various commodities and thus create a false prosperity, accompanied by inflation and followed by deflation, with the extended credit destined possibly never to be repaid.

The United States should not enter into any agreement or any foreign entanglement which might result in sending armed forces to fight in some other country. Let's be truly Neutral and hold our heads while others seem to be losing theirs. Let us heed the words of the great Master who said, "Blessed are the Peacemakers" and let us observe the rules that promote peace and good will.

In the meantime, let's not forget our old folk and lend a helping hand to Adam Johnson, the recently appointed head of State Welfare Work in Texas. He has a big job to keep our aged fathers and mothers out of the war against Want.

HAMSTRINGING OF BUSINESS OPPOSED

The Institute of Distribution recently issued a large book containing the opinions of responsible persons and groups in this country which have gone on record as being "opposed to hamstringing chain stores."

It is truly a remarkable record, for it lists hundreds of views, by individuals and organizations representing every conceivable sector of our national life. Prominent publicists, high government officials, newspapers and magazines—large and small, press associations, union labor, agricultural associations, property owners, consumer organizations—these are but some of those who have added their telling voices to the mounting chorus of protest against laws and taxes which would destroy an essential and legitimate industry, artificially inflate the cost of living, lead to widespread unemployment and collapse of property values, and establish the dangerous principle of "class taxation" in this country.

The American Federation of Labor, at its 1938 annual convention, passed a resolution saying: "The destruction of chain store operation would dislocate upwards of 1,000,000 wage earners... an increasing number of whom are members of union labor." The Consumers Council of Colorado states that "legislation which seeks to hamper or put out of business any legitimate system of distribution is harmful to the best interests of wage earners, farmers and all consumers." The American Farm Bureau Federation condemns "discriminatory and punitive taxes of all types designed to favor or penalize a selected group." The Texas Press Association stands militantly opposed to "all efforts calculated to substitute restrictive regimentation for the American System." This is real America speaking. The interest of the chains is the least of the problem. The real issues are honest government, the preservation of free enterprise, and a decent break for worker, producer and consumer.

SUDDEN DEATH

A majority of automobile accidents during June occurred at the time when there was the least excuse—broad daylight. Not only that but they occurred in clear weather, on straight, level roads of concrete or asphalt in which there were no defects.

The explanation is that the drivers lessened their vigilance on these long straight stretches, gazed at the countryside—or in some cases took a drink—and imagined they were secure.

Had it been at night, a crooked road, or rainy weather, they would have been more vigilant, thus avoiding the clearly avoidable accidents which claimed lives and mangled cripples.

These facts are convincing proof that the human element is the most important factor in motor transportation.

The summary for June, according to Pierce Brooks, president of the Texas Safety Council and runner-up last year for Lieutenant Governor, shows 654 accidents in daylight hours, 915 in clear weather, 797 on straight roads, 291 on concrete and 700 on asphalt, 927 where there were no defects in the roads, 608 at no intersection out of a total of 1,299 accidents.

Seeking to fix cause for the fatal accidents, Brooks pointed out it was found that of the 119 fatalities, 22 occurred with the collision of a motor vehicle with a pedestrian; 40 from the collision of two vehicles; one from a collision with a train, 4 bicycles were struck; one car collided with a horse drawn vehicle; 17 cars collided with fixed objects and 34 of the fatal accidents involved no collision.

Further analysis showed that 26 drivers had been drinking; 23 driving too fast; 12 were chargeable to pedestrians, and the rest were bunched under primary causes.

COMBAT TRAFFIC DEATHS

Austin, September 13.—Department of Public Safety officers today prepared to combat pedestrian deaths with renewed activity as schools opened over the state, shopping increased and public gatherings became more numerous.

Recalling that the pedestrian death list rose disastrously to 291 from last September to June while 1,335 others were seriously injured, state police warned that a repetition of that toll is likely unless walking precautions are taken. Seventy-four school age persons were injured fatally when struck by vehicles in that period. This, safety officials pointed out, shows the need for pedestrian drills among students, more precaution on the part of parents and increased pedestrian and driver vigilance.

Preliminary to its autumn, winter and spring campaign for pedestrian safety state police offered rules for the walking public, violations of which have caused the greatest number of deaths and injuries. The rules are:

1. Cross only at intersections and then only when the signal light favors you and traffic has cleared.
2. Look in all directions while crossing streets and highways.
3. Discharge passengers at curbs and have them alight from the side of the vehicle nearest the curb. Discharge school children at the curb on school sides of streets so they will not have to cross streets.
4. Do not stand off curbs but remain on sidewalks.
5. Face oncoming traffic when necessary to walk on streets or highways.
6. Pedestrians should carry flashlights at night to warn approaching vehicles of their presence.

Band Expects to Do Big Things

The band had its first business meeting with the new director, Mr. Farrar, Monday. A few rules were made and officers were elected. George Wall was elected president and E. N. Bridges vice president. Their duties will be to get the boys interested in the band and to make the speeches when speeches are needed. John H. Atterbury was made secretary, having charge of ordering the music, carrying on all the business correspondence and making the reports. Paul Hoge was elected treasurer. He will have charge of all the band's finances. At the suggestion and approval of Mr. Farrar and the approval of the band a new system for caring for the band funds has been arranged. The band's librarian and assistant librarian, Margaret Dutton and Henry Jean Jones, will have the responsibility of caring for the band's library. They will see to keeping the music in order so that it can be conveniently passed out and taken up and replaced. Also a program committee composed of Dickie Mullins, Ernestine Teaff and Doris Clonts was chosen. It will be their job to plan the band's entertainments and help plan the band's trips. It will also be their job to take care of the scrap book, which will contain pictures and clippings of the band. After the election, the officers made speeches. Everyone seemed to have renewed interest in the band and work proposed by the director.

A business meeting will be held every two weeks. The students in the band are expecting lots of work and lots of fun this year.

"Musical Notes"

With the beginning of the second week of school the musical activities under direction of Mrs. E. Q. Warren are beginning regular work.

Private lessons on various instruments, group work for children in the lower grades, which is valuable as pre-band work at a minimum cost, and class work for pre-school children to begin, are some of the courses offered.

On September 4th and 5th Mrs. Warren attended a series of lectures given in Lubbock by Stanley Chapple of the Mottley School of Music, London. These lectures were very valuable aids to better musical education along all lines and for better correlation with other subjects.

Other activities such as chorus trios and orchestra will be begun at times for them can be worked out and a director decided upon.

Juniors Prepare For Future School Year

Wednesday morning the Junior class met in their first meeting of the school year.

During this meeting they elected their class sponsor and class officers. They believe they made a good selection in unanimously electing Miss Reagan as their sponsor. They feel very lucky, since Miss Reagan is one of the most popular members of the high school faculty. For president they elected Clem Ball. They feel that Clem was a good choice and will be a good leader. Doris Clonts was elected secretary. The other officers will be elected at a future date.

Sophomores Organize

At its first class meeting the Sophomore class elected Mr. J. Bud Farrar as its sponsor. The officers elected were:

President, Emma Jean Shaver; vice president, Clifford Cornett; secretary, Jack Varrell, and treasurer, Billy Jean Hamner.

The class has decided to give a skating party Friday night, provided Mr. Whitis' permission can be secured.

Ambitious Seniors

The Seniors met, with spirits high, in their first meeting as a Senior class, Tuesday. They elected their sponsor and class officers for the school year.

For their sponsor they chose Mr. Whitis. They felt that, as Seniors, they needed someone who would guide them and help them hitch their wagon to a star. They believe Mr. Whitis will fulfill these requirements.

The following officers were elected: President, Margaret Dutton; vice president, Dickie Mullins; secretary - treasurer, DeAlva Hammons, and reporter, Ernestine Teaff.

The Seniors are looking forward to a very active year, both in studies and entertainment.

Basketball News

Basketball practice got under way Monday afternoon. The team is the same as last year with the exception of the loss of two star players, Odell Carver and R. E. Humphries. The new coach, Mr. L. G. Cook, is expected to take the boys to victory this year, as Craig Walling, coach last year, almost did. The boys are determined to have a winning team this year, and with cooperation between them and Mr. Cook it is a certain fact that they will have one. Power to them.

Personals

The high school girls trio sang at the Junior Book Club Friday, September 8, at the home of Mrs. Jimmy Ashcroft. The trio is composed of Faye Heath, Margaret Dutton and Marjorie Propps. They were accompanied by Ken Frizzell on the accordion.

The majority of the 1959 Seniors of K. C. H. S. left last week end for their respective schools. The high school wishes to extend to them best wishes for success and happiness.

Paul Hoge made a trip to Fort Worth Monday to take his sister, who enrolled in T.W.C. Marjorie Propps had the pleasure of a visit from her sister over the week end. Her sister is working in Abilene.

Enthusiasm in Speech Class

A very interesting and new class has been added to the schedule of subjects taught in high school. The subject is Speech, taught by Mr. Farrar. The class has about 24 members.

The first three days the class studied informal introductions and informal speech and how to present it. For the past week the class has been especially interesting, because they have been discussing the war situation — pro and con. Each pupil has done research work on the subject and presented his own ideas as to what the outcome will be.

The latter part of this week a debate will be held between the boys and the girls. The topic for discussion will be "Is Hitler Right?"

The public is cordially invited to attend the class at any time.
