Truscott Cagers Made Excellent Showing at Colorado City Meet

The Truscott basketball team, which last week carried the Knox county banner into the district meet at Colorado, made a valiant fight to bring the honors of the championship to Knox county, and stayed in the running until the very last, when they were defeated by the champion Eagles of the Abilene High school.

That the Truscott team was feared as a "dark horse" in the tournament was feared from the very beginning, when the boys rolled up the largest score of the series against one of the contenders, and they continued the process of elimination until they encountered the Abilene Eagles, and it was due to the unequal size of the boys on the two teams that Truscott suffered defeat in the finals—and that by a very small margin—they having held the Eagles to a 19-29 score.

We congratulate the Truscott boys and the Truscott coach upon the excellent showing they made, and our only regret is that they were not able to emerge victorious in the final event.

BAPTIST CHURCH ANNOUNCEMENT

Last Sunday was a high day in our church and Sunday school. The house was well filled at all services and the day was in every way pleasant and profitable. With the coming of warm weather we are very anxious to increase our program in every way. Practical messages in the main will be given each Sunday morning, and intensely evangelistic services will characterize the evening hour for the next few weeks.

We are thinking of having a revival late in March or early in April.

The studies in church history are attracting large crowds this week, and we feel that good is being done. The pastor expects to preach at both hours next Sunday.

We had a large number of visitors last Sunday morning and evening, all such are always welcome at our church.

P. D. O'BRIEN, Pastor.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to express our sincere thanks and deep appreciation for the many kind deeds shown us during the illness and upon the death of our loved one, and assure each and every one that we shall always remember them with the kindest of thoughts, and for the beautiful floral offerings that came as a tribute to our deceased loved one we shall ever feel grateful.

Mrs. J. W. (Mike) McGraw.
Mr. and Mrs. J. P. McGraw.
Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Dobbs.
Mr. and Mrs. H. O. Love.

C. R. Elliott Enters Race For Sheriff and Tax Collector Knox Co.

Yielding to solicitations from friends from all parts of the county, C. R. Elliott has authorized us to announce his candidacy for the office of Sheriff and Tax Collector of Knox county, subject to the action of the democratic primaries.

For some sixteen years Mr. Elliott has served the City of Munday as city marshal, and during these years he has given his fullest cooperation to all county officials in the enforcement of the laws of the state, and upon innumerable occasions he has gone beyond the limits of the city to render assistance in the enforcement of the laws, and he is recognized, both at home and throughout this entire section of the state as a most competent peace officer. Prior to coming to Munday he served as deputy sheriff in McLennan county, and it might be said that he has devoted a greater portion of his life since reaching manhood to the enforcement of the laws.

In making his announcement for the office Mr. Elliott states that it will be his policy to solicit the support of the voters of the county only upon his merits as an officer, and will not seek to discredit any who may choose to seek the same office, and to those who are not familiar with his records as an officer he asks that they make investigation of same, and should they find him worthy of the trust, he promises to give the duties of the office his very best attention and will appreciate your support and influence.

John Fisher of Silverton was here first of the week shaking hands with his many friends. John states that the Silverton country is in fine condition since the recent snows and rains have given them a good season and wheat is very promising, and with the railroad headed toward his town the outlook could not be brighter for a prosperous year out that way.

Income Tax Deputy to Visit Munday to Help In Making Out Returns

Munday Times, Munday, Texas.

For the convenience of those who are required by law to file Federal Tax Returns, a Deputy Collector of Internal Revenue will be at First National Bank, Munday, on February 28 and 29, 1928, to assist taxpayers in preparing their returns. No charge will be made for this service. The matter of filing Income Tax Returns should be given immediate attention, in order to avoid penalty and interest.

The U. S. Civil Service will conduct an examination in the postoffice at Munday on an early date, and notices have been posted advising all who desire to enter into the competition to file their application with the local postmaster not later than March 7th, as no applications will be received after that date.

All persons wishing to take this examination should secure blanks and file their applications with the Secretary Tenth Civil Service District, New Orleans, La., and the date of assembling for competition will be stated on the admission card mailed applicant after the close of receipt of applications.

N. S. Kilgore Makes Announcement For The Office of County Judge

We are authorized to announce the candidacy of N. S. Kilgore of Benjamin for the office of County Judge, subject to the action of the democratic primaries.

Judge Kilgore has served the county in this capacity for two terms in the past, and he points with pride to his administration, and asks that the voters of the county give his candidacy due consideration at the polls. He states that he will endeavor to see most of the voters of the county personally and place his claim before them, and will fully discuss the issues that are of

KNOX COUNTY SINGING CONVENTION WILL MEET AT HOOD ON FEB. 26TH

We are requested to announce that the Knox County Singing Convention will convene at Hood on Sunday afternoon, February 26th at 2:30 o'clock and all singers are urged to be present, and a cordial invitation is extended to the public to be there, for there will be some good singing, and several special number.

N. E. A. Wilson, secretary of the Lamesa Chamber of Commerce, was a visitor here on Saturday of last week, having come from Anson, where he had brought Mrs. Wilson and the little Wilsons for a visit with relatives. Mr. Wilson, as usual, was very optimistic over the outlook in the Lamesa country, and stated that "notwithstanding the unfavorable conditions that had prevailed throughout that section, that the people were in excellent condition and that Lamesa continued to grow, and the fact that he has added about thirty pounds in weight bore mute evidence that the Lamesa country is agreeing with him. He was accompanied on his visit here by J. Horace Bass of Haskell, and they enjoyed some hours shaking hands with friends.

Jake Morris and Carrol Hopkins of the merchandising department of the West Texas Utilities Company went to Dallas the latter part of last week to attend a meeting of those interested in the sale of "Frigidaire," and report a most enthusiastic gathering and a profitable meeting.

A. J. Manuel and daughter, Dora Etta, were visitors here over the week-end from Jayton.

Mrs. and Mrs. J. Elmer Smith of Rotan were here Tuesday visiting relatives and friends.

Jennings Barton is serving as a juror in the district court at Benjamin this week.

Home of Foy Easley Is Destroyed By Fire Late Tuesday Afternoon

At about six o'clock Tuesday afternoon the fire department was called to the home of Foy Easley, where fire originated from an oil stove had gained considerable headway, before it was discovered, and despite the fact that the firemen made a quick run to the blaze, the home and contents were almost a total loss, which was partially covered by insurance.

Mr. and Mrs. Russell Land returned the latter part of last week from Waxahachie to join Mr. Wyche in making their home in Munday. They will reside in the Dr. Joe Davis home place.

The stork visited the homes of both Joe and Victor Redder on Saturday night of last week and left a fine son in both homes, and throughout their lives the two boys will be able to celebrate their birthdays simultaneously.

Ruth, the nine year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Garland Burns, who has been quite ill for some time with pneumonia, is reported well on the road to recovery.

Mesdames J. M. Macon and E. Donna David of Gorman have been here for some days visiting in the home of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Akers, and Mr. David came up on Tuesday evening to spend the day Wednesday here, that being a holiday.

Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Houser and daughter of Texarkana are here this week visiting in the home of his brother, U. R. Houser.

Mr. and Mrs. Ardell Spelee have been entertaining a new daughter in their home, the little lady having made her appearance on the scene of action on February 16th.

Mrs. W. E. Hammack has purchased the farming equipment of C. N. Childers and will operate that farm during the coming year. She and her sons have recently moved to Munday from Hedley, Texas, and she is a sister to H. W. Stogner. Mr. Childers states that he will move within a few days to Arizona.

We failed to make mention in our last week's issue of the removal of W. A. Wyche and family from our city to Anson, where Mr. Wyche will engage in farming. While we regret to lose this estimable family as citizens of Munday, we join their many friends in wishing for them a full measure of success in their new home, and can commend them as citizens of the very highest type to their new neighbors.

"THE GAUCHO"

"What will be the outstanding characteristic of Douglas Fairbanks in 'The Gaucho'?"
"Charm," replies P. V. Williams, manager of the Peoples Theatre, at which the new Fairbanks production is scheduled to open on Wednesday 29.

"The romantic mood of this story of the South American pampas is ideal," he states. "The role of The Gaucho is fine for Doug Fairbanks. The Gaucho, like the frontiersman of the old American West, is one of a dying race. He reminds you of the last of the Incas and the old legends of our early civilizations."

"What is charm in a photographic story? It depends upon something original. It depends also upon contrasting moods. All the big successes of the films prove this. Douglas Fairbanks as The Gaucho carries charm, and more cannot be said of it, except that it's a great story."

Lives of Great Men

February is not a big month from the standpoint of size, but measured by its priceless gifts of Washington and Lincoln, our greatest Americans, it is indeed a memorable month.

Here were two great men so unlike in many ways—heritage, birthplace, culture, environment. The one coming from a log cabin and the other from a home of abundance. Yet, each became a great man, each serving his country in his own way, according to the special work God had given him.

Abraham Lincoln seems more close to us than does Washington, though both are dear to the hearts of all Americans. One seems to us a stirring, robust character, colossal in intellect and commanding in form and manner—the kind of statesman to build a great nation upon. The other seems to us a towering genius, full of the homely virtues that all souls admire, but bent with a heart load that gave gravity to his countenance, and a pathos to his voice, even when humor played upon his lips. The soul of Lincoln seems more open to us than that of Washington. Yet, could we all try to get, even now and then, into their steps, what different citizens we might be.

These two great men exemplify the truth of the poet's words:

"Honor and fame from no condition rise.

Act well your part, there all the honor lies."

Each enacted well his part on life's great stage, and when at last the bell of death rang down the curtain on the drama of their life, they had won everlasting renown and the heartfelt gratitude of a great nation which honors them both this month of February.

Let each of us learn from them to make the most of ourselves—of what we are and have and of the opportunities that come to us—whether from log cabin or spacious mansion, for that is ever the true road to development, recognition and advancement.

"Lives of great men all remind us
 We can make our lives sublime,
 And when dying, leaves behind us
 Footprints on the sand of time."

The public is already aware of the fact that Miss Mills' father was buried on last Friday, February 17, at Canton, Texas. This is not an announcement of his death, but a feeble expression of our deep and sincere sympathy for her.

Miss Mills was back in school Monday morning.

The Rev. P. D. O'Brien taught in the high school last week during the absence of Miss Mills. Friday afternoon he gave a very interesting devotional.

The students of Munday High School could not have been more surprised Wednesday morning if we had come to long and happy married life.

We wish to express to Miss Mills our deep and sincere sympathy for her in her great trouble.

Juniors
 "Less Quality but More Quantity."

The snow looked good Thursday afternoon when it began coming down in big flakes and looked as though it wasn't going to stop. Mr. and Mrs. Rhodes had planned the Junior-Senior party that night and it looked as if it were going to snow the party under, but quite a number of us were there, on time and had a grand time.

"Sebo" is for moving to Mineral Wells, Texas, after seeing a paper from that city. Sebo tells us of the "Harvard Colleges" and "Woolworth" buildings that are going to be built in the near future. We hate to lose Sebo but we're sure that little place will be glad to get him.

Plans have been made, papers have been sent for, salaries discussed and "Iky" is almost in South America, but not quite. "Iky" isn't quite now like he used to be. All he is planning on is to go to South America, make his fortune and live happily ever after—as they do in fairy stories!

"Iky" is so stubborn that he won't eat anything that agrees with him.

A mule has 2 legs B hind, And 2 legs he has B 4, U stand B hind B 4 U find What 2 legs B hind B 4. —By "Agnes"

The Juniors are getting ready to "pull off" the Junior-Senior Banquet that is to come in the next few weeks. This is going to be one of the biggest events of the year so the Juniors are going to put it over in grand style.

Sophs.
 "Climb, Though the Rocks Be Rugged!"

We are very glad to have Miss Mills, our sponsor and English teacher, back to perform her old tasks.

Last Monday night Naomi Freeman, Vela Phillips and Henrietta Isbell gave Clara Tillinghast a farewell party, at the home of Mrs. R. B. Freeman. Those invited were Clara's friends. Everyone had a fine time, and enjoyed Clara's farewell speech.

Freshmen
 On Friday night at the home of Mary Hope Smith, the Freshmen showered Mrs. Warkentin. We played forty-two for some time and then were asked to move our tables. Virginia Smith then came in with a hat, coat, and umbrella. She said: "I believe there is going to be a shower." This was the first Mrs. Warkentin knew of the shower. The gifts were then brought to her, after which Dr. Warkentin was called upon for a speech.

Burl, hearing of Miss Compton's marriage: "Well, what of it? She followed the Bible." Aristel: "In what way?" Burl: "Well, in the Bible we read: 'He was a stranger, and she took him in.'"

Few knew the anxiety of the Freshmen when we heard of the accident in which two of our boys were involved. Jim Isbell was scarcely hurt, but John R. Rayburn received quite a few bruises. It was reported that he was badly hurt, so we ordered flowers. At noon John R. was in school again, so we were delighted to give the flowers to J. C. and to wish him a speedy recovery.

SECTION 2. Permit required: No walls, structure, buildings, or part thereof, shall hereafter be built, enlarged or altered, until a plan of the proposed work together with a statement of the materials to be used, shall have been submitted to the Water Superintendent, who shall in accordance with the provisions, herein contained, issue a permit for the proposed construction. Structures hereafter erected without permit or not in conformity with this ordinance shall be removed.

No building shall be moved from one location to another within the fire limits until a permit has been obtained therefor. Permits shall be issued only in case the construction is in accordance with this ordinance. (Each building permit shall recite this complete section.)

SECTION 3. Incombustible Construction Required within Fire Limits: Every building hereafter erected, altered or enlarged within the fire limits, shall be enclosed on all sides with walls constructed wholly of stone, well burned brick, or reinforced concrete, and shall the roof, also the roof and sides of all roof structures, covered with incombustible material. All cornices shall be of incombustible material. (Note: the purpose of this section is to prohibit the erection within the fire limits of wooden, iron clad, stucco, and veneer buildings.)

are wholly or in part, constructed of wood, shall hereafter, be built or moved into the fire limits as herein designated or as they may hereafter be established except as follows:

(a) Temporary one story frame building for the use of builders.
 (b) Small out houses not exceeding 100 square feet in area and 8 feet in height, not located within 30 feet of any other building nor within 5 feet of any lot line.

Any existing frame or iron clad building within the fire limits, which may hereafter be damaged by fire, decay or otherwise to an amount greater than one-half its present value exclusive of the foundation shall not be repaired or rebuilt, but shall be removed.

SECTION 5. Gas Connections: Gas connections to stoves and similar heating devices shall be made of rigid metal pipes. For small portable gas heating devices, flexible metal or rubber tubing may be used when there is no valve or shut off on the device.

SECTION 6. Fees Required: A fee of $3.00 shall accompany each application for a building permit.

SECTION 7. Penalty for Violations: Any and all persons who shall violate any of the provisions of this ordinance or fail to comply therewith, or who violate or fails to comply with any order or regulation made thereunder or who shall build in violation of any detail statement or specifications or plans submitted and approved thereunder, or any certificate or permit issued thereunder shall severally for such and every such violation and non compliance, respectively, upon conviction, be fined in sum not less than ten nor more than one hundred dollars. The imposition of any penalty for any violation of this ordinance shall not excuse the violation nor permit it to continue and all such persons shall be required to correct or remedy such violations or defects with in a reasonable time and when not otherwise specified, each ten days that prohibited conditions are maintained shall constitute a separate offense. The application of the above penalty shall not be held to prevent the enforced removal of prohibitive conditions as provided in Section 4 of this ordinance.

The matter of fire protection being of great importance to the Citizenship of the City in the fact that fire hazard is costing the Citizens of the City an enormous amount each year and that proper restrictions will result in great benefit creates an emergency and requires that the rule requiring three separate readings be suspended and that this ordinance shall take effect from and after its passage and it is so ordained.

Done and passed this the 9th day of February A. D. 1928.

Doctor Found Women and Children Sick More Often than Men

As a family doctor at Monticello, Illinois, the whole human body, not any small part of it, was Dr. Caldwell's practice. More than half his "calls" were on women, children and babies. They are the ones most often sick. But their illnesses were usually of a minor nature—colds, fevers, headaches, biliousness—and all of them required first a thorough evacuation. They were constipated.

J. C. Caldwell, M.D.
 AT AGE 83

In the course of Dr. Caldwell's 47 years' practice (he was graduated from Rush Medical College back in 1875), he found a good deal of success in such cases with a prescription of his own containing simple laxative herbs with pepsin. In 1892 he decided to use this formula in the manufacture of a medicine to be known as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, and in that year his prescription was first placed on the market.

The preparation immediately had as great a success in the drug stores as it previously had in Dr. Caldwell's private practice. Now, the third generation is using it. Mothers are giving it to their children who were given it by their mothers. Every second of the working day someone somewhere is going into a drug store to buy it. Millions of bottles of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin are being used a year.

Its great success is based on merit, on repeated buying, on one satisfied user telling another. There are thousands of homes in this country that are never without a bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, and we have gotten many hundreds of letters from grateful people telling us that it helped them when everything else failed.

While women, children and elderly people are especially benefited by Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, it is promptly effective on the most obstinate cases, and in the most delicate cases. It is mild and gentle in its action and does not cause griping and strain. Containing neither opiates nor narcotics, it is safe for the tiniest baby. Children like it and take it willingly. Every drug store sells Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. Keep a bottle in your home—where many lives someone is sure to need it quickly. We would be glad to have you prove at our expense how much Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin can mean to you and yours. Just write "Syrup Pepsin," Monticello, Illinois, and we will send you prepaid a FREE SAMPLE BOTTLE.

CHAPTER I Hand of the Genii

When the square sun-brown hand with the lace mitt upon it was thrust from the outer darkness in through the port of her cabin aboard the yacht Rainbow, Miss Palmyra Tree had been lying for sometime, with eyes closed.

And then, when she opened her eyes at last, it was to discover the snowy sun-brown hand with the black lace mitt upon it. The hand had come thrusting in from outside the yacht. The girl became aware only just in time to see it raised, seemingly in benediction. For an instant the hand remained thus. Then it receded, grasped the lower edge of the opening as if supporting a body, let go and disappeared.

The girl sat back, seriously disturbed. Her first thought had been that a scoundrel was over her on some dangerous duty, that he was swept away. She would have given the alarm, but she had restrained herself on a positive perception that the hand was not torn from its grasp. It had deliberately let go. And there had been no cry.

The girl laughed uncertainly in a growing appreciation of the best circumstance. The apparition had been silent as a ghost. Was it really a hand at all, or only a device? It seemed very real, but she had only an instant.

Again Palmyra laughed; this time in musical mirth.

Yes, when one thought it over the whole thing had been that exaggerated impression common to dreams. As she opened her eyes the hand appeared to be solemn, warning, a something of ineffable portent.

Palmyra shivered once again in the chill air. She slammed shut the port. Then she dived back into her covers; drew them up to her chin.

With the chiming of five bells of the morning watch—half past six o'clock—the girl awoke to a serious mood.

Why this voyage?

She could not doubt it had, in some way, to do with Van Buren Rutger, John Thurston. For she had seen a great deal of these two while the family, from Boston, had been in Southern California.

When Mrs. Crawford and the Wampolds and Dennis McCarthy and Obstance Crow had had come flying up the coast in the Rainbow, the girl had not suspected. But five days later her parents were bustling her aboard—without any explanation that explained —and the family was bound, at least for Honolulu, perhaps even Japan. Had Van alone been asked as a fellow voyager she would have understood. But with John also here, she was at a loss.

She was inclined to look upon this yachting as indelicate, brutal, penning her up, as on a stage, to play for them all an endless triangle for courtship.

As if in protest there rose from the main cabin the earnest voice of John Thurston, following by the gay laugh of Van Buren Rutger. Before her the strong interesting face of Thurston formed itself. What a splendid quality of brain and will and courage; to have forced oneself up, at thirty, from nothing at all to recognition in one's profession. But shortly his features were replaced by the handsome highbred visage of his rival, Van, she defended, had done none of this because there was some to do. And her parents, in favoring him, had her happiness as their sole consideration.

Warned by the voices that it was time to dress, Palmyra jumped out. And only now, did she think of the hand she had seen.

She had dismissed the appearance as a dream, but it seemed so real now that when she had clothed herself she climbed upon the berth for another look through the port.

Bending down to gaze out, she became aware of a something on the polished metal of the opening that caused her to start back in surprise: the print of moist and dirty fingers.

She sat, astonished. The hand, then, had been no dream, but real flesh and blood?

Palmyra had an unexpected sense of evil. She jumped down and hurried for the companionway to investigate.

The girl was only a moment in verifying her impression of the evening before.

She shot a glance toward Captain Pederson's hands. Big and square enough, heaven knew, but fiery red and flaxen bristled. At the wheel stood one Johannsen, his huge paws gripped on the spokes. A scarlet ballet girl danced, disqualifyingly, on the back of one and of the other, the index finger was missing.

Presently seven bells came, with breakfast for the whole crew, so that she was able to scrutinize, not only the men who had been on deck, but also those of the watch below.

"But Captain Pederson," she asked at last—the apparition of the cabin had seemed very dark skinned—haven't we still a Jap or a Mexican aboard, or maybe a colored chef?"

The sailing master shook his head.

The girl hurried away to her cabin to make sure those prints had been real. The normality of everything on deck had quieted her alarm. She was glad now that some instinct had kept her from explaining. Of all on board, she alone knew.

Palmyra began to giggle in the most juvenile fashion. "Never before," thought she, except in the theatre or between the covers of a book, have I come within hailing distance of adventure. But now with the yacht scarcely out of sight of sight of land, fascinating mystery makes its presence known.

In the net remote past this girl had been a devoted reader of Treasure Island. And today, startled by her sudden realization of responsibility in this new and adult problem of Van and John, she was in a mood to flee away back to these irresponsible days.

So, as she jumped up on the berth again, she was demanding that pirates lurk aboard. "Yes, undoubtedly," she affirmed, "they have mistaken the yacht for a treasure seeker."

The girl sat staring at the finger-prints. She was serious again.

Ought she to tell Captain Pederson, Mrs. Crawford? She sat for a time, disturbed. Then, all at once, a laugh. Her expression became ominously mischievous.

"I must," she announced, "see our pirate chief at once and alone, for a very special and secret reason."

Palmyra was searching the Rainbow. She had penetrated as far, in the 'tween-decks, as the space set aside for the heavy baggage of the guests.

Van and John and the Wampolds, who had followed her, stood clinging one to another, laughingly puzzled at the way she had poked and peered into dark corners.

Van regarded her severely. "Really," he said: "really I marvel at anyone trying to examine the fabric of a yacht without a microscope. Such superficiality. Deplorable."

The others laughed, but not the girl.

As she had reached out for a big trunk a dip of the Rainbow drove her extended hand on and down over. Her fingers came, rather awfully, into contact with a something warm and furry, but solid. And—something moved!

"Last night," she said a little breathlessly, "I felt like Aladdin. But now, now it's Ali Baba. Ali Baba, and a thief—I mean a pirate—behind every one of these trunks. Everyone."

"A pirate?" Van was commenting. "Then let's go. I shouldn't want to walk the plank till I'd had my tea."

The tone was light. But he was, for the second time in five minutes, dealing with a handkerchief at his hands. Born to the American aristocracy, he had an almost hereditary distaste for the dinginess and grime of the under places. Give him ever the unprepared and proper stage of life. There, indeed, he could be a sure and gracious figure.

Palmyra assented. "I go," she said, "but I shall return. I like these lower regions; so still, so dark, so mysterious. I shall return—tonight, I shall come back."

"She means," interpreted Van, "to sneak pickles and ham, chicken and jam for one real uninterrupted."

The girl laughed. "As you have said: with food and drink, I shall return at the sacred hour of midnight."

She gave them a covert glance. But, unaware of the hand, of that hidden presence, neither Thurston nor the others realized that her, to them, idle chatter held any purpose of return.

They moved to go.

And once more there came from out the dark that stealthy wraith of sound—intimidating, sinister.

Midnight.

Palmyra swung the blukhead door open.

Now that she was alone, how different it was down here; the darkness menacing, alive with groaned whispers of sound, yet empty save for the unseen presence. She was, unexpectedly, a little afraid.

But she had her definite purpose.

Palmyra entered, placed sandwiches, a bottle of water, an electric torch on the deck. Then she shut the heavy door.

"Here I am," she announced cheerily.

Silence.

She got up, waited, the torch casting a moon of light upon the food and water.

In the center of the spotlight were two feet. They were small, encased in button shoes. They dangled, juvenily, six inches from the deck. For a moment she thought that here was a boy.

But as the disk of illumination moved upward it revealed the body of a man, small, plump; dressed in a way one might associate with the race-track, ringside. The checked suit, fancy vest, bright tan gloves, above all the walking stick, were ludicrously unattractive.

The face now broke into a grin and the man said: "I ask you, lady, is it fair to keep me here to under yer light, when I can't make out a line o' yer rig?"

She took up the water and sandwiches and put these on the trunk next to that on which he sat. Then she backed away to a seat opposite, turned the torch upon them.

One of the gloved hands snatched up the water, and he drank eagerly.

"Not every lady," he went on admiringly, "would lay below at midnight 't ferret out a stow-away."

As the Rainbow drove into another sea there came again that fettered clink and clank of iron away somewhere in the dark. At the sound Palmyra stirred with a returning disquiet, vague but insistent, that could scarcely have been a response to anything in the man's tone.

She shifted the light to his face. "Why are you aboard?" she demanded.

He hesitated. "Because," he explained presently, "I'd sooner be here than in the cold, cold grave. Not," he added with a shiver which set the plump cheeks a tremble, "that I ain't cold here, too."

"Grave?" inquired Palmyra.

"Bullet," explained the stowaway.

The girl smiled invisibly. She did not think anyone would feel it necessary to shoot such a plump little man.

"As for who I am," he continued, "I'm asking you, lady, do y'know the Line? The Line islands, I mean—the Gilberts, Marshalls, Carolines?"

She shook her head. Then realizing he could not see, added a spoken negative.

"If y'was knowing t' the Line, lady, you'd savvy Pomape Burke. Named after the biggest of the Carolines by admirers—is a titter—and also them as is not so admiring. As I says before, I follow the sea. Master o' my own craft."

Palmyra was amused, sceptical. But why—

"I'm stowed away 'cause I had t' make my westing quiet! If this yacht puts back with me," he added, "I'm a corpse. That's why I thank you. Y'kept still and those hours counted. Now, she'll more likely hold her course."

The girl smiled delightedly. Once again, Arabian Nights, ahoy!

There had been, it seemed, a Chinese merchant of Bagdad—a no, Honolulu—who was sending a cargo to California that would go under the hatches rice and tea, but come out coolies and opium. He wanted just the right sort of man along to smuggle them through, and Pomape Burke, who had been idling about the town, was chosen.

"But, lady," he explained earnestly, "don't mistake I sure meant t' play fair and square with Uncle Sam. I planned both t' make a piece o' side money and do my plumb duty as a citizen by tipping off the contraband."

His countenance beamed with enjoyment of the intended coup; innocuous of any slightest perception of the shame of bad faith.

As he went on, however, his features turned ugly with disgust. "Uncle Sam had proved an unbelieveable flathead, and the Orientals had discovered Burke's attempt. They had set guano after I'm. A! for a reason"—which the man did not explain—he was conspicuous.

Palmyra thought it safe to believe he might really have been robbed. "So, then," she inquired in a tone of regret, "you're not, after all, a pirate?" I felt you might have heard the Rainbow was sailing buried treasure."

Pomape Burke shot a look of interest in her direction. Then, apparently annoyed that, for even a moment, he could have taken her seriously, he voiced a protest.

Presently: "Miss, why did y' lay below here?"

She had lain below mischievously to consult a baccanier. So, "I'm sorry you don't smack more of the Spanish Main," was what she said.

Then he asked: "But what did y' have in mind? Maybe we could do better'n y' think."

Palmyra shook her head invisibly. "Oh, no," said, you're not at all the sort." But she explained. When she had found there was someone aboard, she recalled a popular comedy: a burglar entrapped, all unknown to the others, with a house party under guard in quarantine; no end of mystery, excitement, before he'd been discovered. "An' I hop'd," she concluded, "we could get up a little plot. Something piratical, thrilly. But," she added resignedly, "not a one would be scared at you."

From the dark there came a prolonged chuckle. "Well," hesitated Burke at length, "if y' insist on pirates—But why not some stunt a little more genteel? A concert say? Know a lot o' native songs?"

In sample he gave her a phrase, a chanting fragment, rhythm without music; low-voiced words, mellifluous, polysyllabic.

"There," he concluded with a touch of pride. "Something like that."

But the girl scorned him.

Frigidaire saves average of $105³⁶ a year over ice refrigeration

Amazing facts reported by FRIGIDAIRE users.

Low cost of operation an achievement of FRIGIDAIRE engineering

MANY still regard electric refrigeration as expensive. To prove that this is not true of Frigidaire, we sought the opinion of some frugal users.

Saves $105.36 per Year

The answers were startling. They indicated savings even greater than we anticipated. According to carefully tabulated records, an average of $105.36 per year—over and above all operating costs! These amazing economies are due to two things: (1) No ice bills. (2) No food waste.

A Scientific Achievement

Frigidaire represents years of research and development on the part of Frigidaire Engineers, and the Research Department of General Motors—the largest organization of electrical, chemical and mechanical engineers in the world. In Frigidaire modern science has incorporated elements that the exterior of the cabinet can't reveal.

New, Low Prices

To the wealth of evidence in favor of Frigidaire, add the new low prices—the lowest in Frigidaire history. A complete model with Duco-finished enamel-lined steel cabinet—all ready to attach and operate from any convenient electric outlet—for the amazing price of only $180 f.o.b. Dayton.

Few Dollars Puts It in Your Home

Frigidaire is used each day in the year. The whole family enjoys it. And it pays for itself with the money it saves, as proved by the signed reports of users. Visit our display room and see the new models. A small deposit puts one in your home. Then pay a little each month under liberal General Motors terms. Come in today.

PERFORMANCE as different as the car itself

Were greater beauty their only advantage, the new engineering principles of Dodge Brothers Victory Six would still be revolutionary.

Were greater safety The Victory's only advantage, it would still command the gratitude of a life-loving world.

Were greater economy its paramount feature, the fact would still remain that The Victory has made possible 21 miles per gallon at 25 miles per hour FOR A SIX.

But these are incidental to the basic Victory achievement. You must DRIVE the car to know about that!

You must take a corner faster than you ought, a cobble pavement faster than you thought, before The Victory secret begins to reveal itself.

And you must unleash the full, sustained speed of the car before the idea takes full hold!

Victory design is unlike that of any other vehicle in the world—and Victory performance is equally radical and remarkable.

To examine the one and experience the other will prove an event that we urge you not to postpone.

LINCOLN'S BIRTHDAY

The 119th anniversary of Abraham Lincoln's birth on February 12 recalls afresh the greatness of our first martyred President, whose memory is revered by North and South alike, even as that of the peerless Southern chieftain, Lee.

While it is futile to speculate concerning what might have been, it is safe to say that had Lincoln been permitted to live until the end of his second term, much of the bitterness engendered during reconstruction days would have been avoided. His attitude throughout the Civil War was summed up in one single phrase of his second inaugural address: "With malice toward none; with charity for all."

Lincoln was opposed to slavery on principle, but his plan was to abolish it gradually, and compensate slave-owners as slaves were set free. He proposed such a plan as early as 1849 when a Congressman, and renewed the proposal as President in 1862, after the war had been in progress nearly a year. Congress passed a resolution offering the plan, but without result except in the District of Columbia.

Throughout the war Lincoln's chief aim was to preserve the Union intact, the slavery question being secondary in his mind, as was evidenced by his famous reply to Greeley wherein he said:

"My paramount object is to save the Union, and not either to save or destroy slavery. If I could save the Union without freeing any slave, I would do it; if I could save it by freeing all the slaves, I would do it; and, if I could do it by freeing some and leaving others alone, I would also do that."

Now, after more than 65 years, there are few in any part of the United States who will not concede that a united nation without slavery is best. It is well for America and for the world that on February 12, 1809, such a man as Abraham Lincoln was born.

Mrs. Fred Broach Hostess To Thursday Luncheon Club.

Mrs. Fred Broach entertained the members of the Thursday Luncheon Club with their husbands and guests at her home on last Friday evening with a buffet luncheon. Six small tables were covered with pretty luncheon cloths and a vase containing red carnations was on each. The second course was a plate with cherry pie topped with cream and miniature hatchets for favors.

After a pleasing luncheon the tables were cleared and arranged for games of "42". Onto the score cards miniature hatchets were tied with red, white and blue ribbons.

Those enjoying this delightful evening were: Mr. and Mrs. T. G. Bengt, Mr. and Mrs. C. R. Elliott, Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Langford, Mr. and Mrs. F. L. Decker, Mr. and Mrs. S. E. McStay, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Warren, Mr. and Mrs. R. B. Davy, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Chapman, Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Bauman, Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Eiland, Mr. and Mrs. Atkinson, Miss Mary Langford, Mr. Broach and the hostess.

Houser Twins Celebrate Fifth Birthday.

On last Saturday afternoon Mrs. U. R. Houser entertained with a little party in her home celebrating the fifth birthday of her daughters, Ioleen and Kathleen. There was a fishing pond arranged and each little girl was allowed to fish. To her delight each "caught" a pretty little paper hat, no two of which were alike, and a bag of pink, yellow, red and white pop corn. Kodak pictures were taken of the little tots wearing their "fished for" paper hats, and after many games such as children love to play refreshments of angle cake, jello and cream were served to the well pleased guests who were Mary Moore, Virginia Sue Duval, Genevieve Decker, Margaret Jean Williams, Mary Zell Spann, Margery Spain, Lillian Lair, Dixie Atkinson, Anne Atkinson, and Ioleen and Kathleen Houser.

Munday H. D. Club to Meet in Home Mrs. Chas. Matlock.

 1 tablespoon corn starch
 1 cup sugar
 1 tablespoon butter
 1 box cocunut
 1 cup sweet milk
 Whites 5 eggs
 1 teaspoon vanilla
 Cream sugar, cornstarch and butter, then add whites of eggs well beaten then cocunut, the last the milk. This makes two pies with no upper crust. Transparent Pies

 1 cup butter
 2 cups sugar
 2 tablespoons corn starch (or flour)
 Yolks 4 eggs.
 1/4 teaspoon grated nutmeg.
 1 tablespoon corn meal.

Cream butter, sugar and flour, add meal, yolks and nutmeg, stir thoroughly. Bake in moderate oven. Beat white for frosting on top. This makes two pies with no upper crusts. 1 cup of chopped nuts can be added in pies if liked. —Reporter.

SENIOR B. Y. P. U.

Senior B. Y. P. U. met in a most delightful social in the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Henderson on last Friday evening, and after some games were played they were served with a bushel of popped corn, which quickly disappeared, after which refreshments were served to the following: Maggie Keel, Evelyn Curry, Marvin Warren, Leona Keel, Troy Warren, Nina Collins, Maxie Dingus, Walter Counts, Lorene Parker, Christine Burton, Ozela Brock, H. D. Warren, Virginia Curry, Leonard, Mayes, Ilene Bowden, Belva Curry, Earl Clayburn, and Lois Bowden.

Mrs. Hulme Entertains Thorp League Members.

On Tuesday evening, February 14, Mrs. A. G. Hulme entertained the Thorp Epworth League with a Valentine party, at the parsonage. Each guest was requested to bring a Valentine, which was put in a box and later distributed so each one present received a Valentine. Games were enjoyed throughout the evening.

Refreshments and plate favors carrying out the Valentine theme were served to eighteen guests.

Thorp Missionary Women Entertained by Mrs. Hulme.

Last Wednesday the Missionary ladies of the Thorp M. E. Church met in a social at the parsonage with Mrs. A. G. Hulme as hostess.

Song 292 was sung in opening our devotional period, after which fifteen chapters of St. John was read for our scripture lesson.

Prayer was offered by Mrs. R. G. Freeman. Talks were made by Mrs. F. O. Campbell and Mrs. Freeman. Then we were favored with a delightful reading by Miss Naomi Freeman. We were dismissed with prayer by Mrs. Campbell. Refreshments were served to 14 guests. Valentine favors were used.

At 4:30 we returned to our homes feeling in our hearts that we had had a real entertainer in our pastor's wife. —Reporter.

She remained unconvinced and he laughed again. There was silence for an interval. Then, "D'y' know where the gangway is y'came in at?" he asked unexpectedly.

But the girl scorned inwardly; turned her gaze in the direction of the door. "Yes," she said wonderingly, "I know exactly where it is."

"Then," said Ponape Burke, "just give it one flash with yer torch."

The girl was, suddenly again, a little afraid. "Hark? Was that a sound of Burke moving. Her thumb touched the torch. As a lightning flash, it rayed.
