Bush signs eradication bill - state stamping out boll weevil boll weevil appears to be back in confidence of cotton growers," business.

Governor George W. Bush signed legislation Friday to resume the war against the biggest enemy to the state's important cotton production.

The Boll Weevil Eradication Program bill, which both the House and Senate approved unanimously, provides for a referendum in the South Plains on August 1 to activate the program.

The Texas Supreme Court struck down the state's existing program earlier this year, responding to a lawsuit by 130 cotton farmers in South Texas and West Texas who challenged the way fees were assessed for the pesticide spraying program.

"Our top priority with this legislation was to develop a statewide program that will eliminate the boll weevil. Texas needs to have policy in place to fight this major threat to our economy," said the bill's author, Senator Robert Duncan, R-Lubbock.

He headed a delegation of legislators who attended the signing.

The suing farmers argued that the Legislature delegated broad governmental authority improperly to a private foundation administering the program.

The new law give Texas Agriculture Commissioner Rick Perry more direct control of the program, including approval of its budget. "We went through the bill and made the changes that were necessary to address the concerns of the court. We also resolved the issues that have been ongoing in

The state effort to stamp out the these eradication zones to gain the Duncan said.

Texas is the nation's leading cotton producer. The boll weevil has caused an estimated $20 million a year in crop losses, officials said. The boll weevil destroys cotton by puncturing and laying its eggs in the squares and bolls of the plant.

"We really approached this from a grower-friendly approach," Duncan said. "We realize it's a growers' program. It's for growers, and we want to make sure that the growers have input, and that it works."

Duncan said the program is valuable and that to not revive it would have led to massive crop losses.

He said the program will be monitored closely to see whether changes should be made when the Legislature next meets in regular session in 1999.

Proponents said the legislation will:

Provide for the agriculture commissioner to establish an interim advisory committee in each eradication zone, including at least one grower in each county;

Require public hearing in the zones;

Eliminate the power to destroy the cotton crop of farmers who fail to pay assessments;

Require the commissioner to appoint a new board of directors for the foundation;

Small business, big results -National Small Business Week

Business Week." So what comes to mind when you hear the words "small business?" Usually it's a specific and familiar image - a place or person - that pops in your head: your neighborhood grocery, your day-care provider or plumber... perhaps the place that gave you your first job.

Individually, small business presents a familiar face. But most of us have no idea how much they mean, collectively, to our home-

June 1 - 7 is "National Small towns and our nation. If you pause to look beyond the numerous "trees" of local small-businesses, you will find a vast "forest" of business owners that stands tall as a world-class economic power. Consider these facts:

Virtually all business is small business - nearly 90 percent of all U.S. businesses have fewer than 20 employees, and more than 99 percent have fewer than 500;

Small businesses produce about 40 percent of U.S. goods and services, and account for nearly 60 percent of all private-sector jobs;

Over the past 25 years, small businesses have created two of every three net new jobs. During the last recession, firms employing fewer than 20 people accounted for all job growth. (Larger companies cut more jobs than they added.);

American small businesses rank as the world's third greatest economic power, trailing only the U.S. (as a whole) and Japan.

Of course, small business means much more than "just" jobs, growth and opportunity. Small business is the mainstay of community life in virtually every town and city in Texas. It's small-business owners who underwrite the school plays and newspapers, who sponsor the Little League teams and Fourth of July celebrations, who donate the prizes and materials for church and school fundraisers, who give their time,

His college choices, for now, include the University of Tennessee in Knoxville or Chattanooga, both minutes away from crags to climb.

Now, Jim climbs outdoors on the weekends at popular climbing spots like Foster Falls in Marion County and Kentucky's Red River Gorge.

During the week, he trains about fiteen hours in the climbing gym to improve his endurance and technique in foot placement and body alignment. His training regimen also includes pure power training (climbing at maximum capacity) and power endurance.

The sport of rock climbing dates back to the 1960s but appears to be in a boom now, particularly in the Southeast.

"It's hard to explain why you climb," he said. "It's fun. You're outside. I like...being high and away from everything else.

Only fellow climbers would understand, he said.

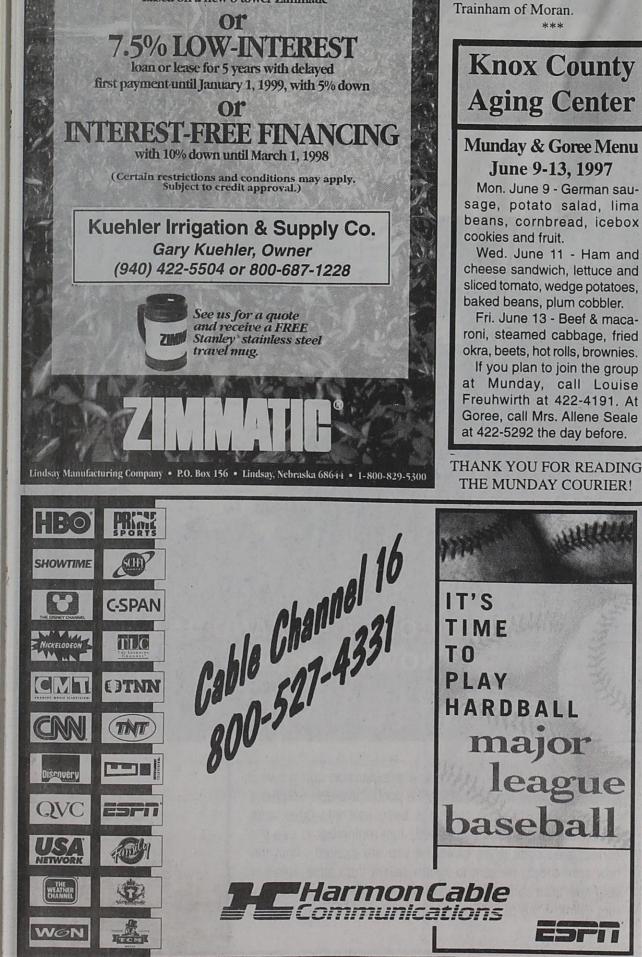

"You get on a hard climb and get pumped. You're totally whipped and keep going. It's the feeling of making it to the top; the feeling of doing a climb you'd never climbed before."

This summer Jim plans to spend more time training and in competitions, as well as visiting out-ofstate climbing spots.

noney and materials to any numher of charitable and "civic booster" causes.

Small business owners give a lot back to their communities and "National Small Business Week" is just one way of giving these business's some well-deserved recognition. The campaign aims to help people have a fuller appreciation of just how - and how much small business contributes to the American way of life and the quality of life in every city, town and county. There are many small-business owners out there - more than 14 million nationwide, over 300,000 in Texas alone. Most of them are putting in 60-hour weeks (or more) all year long, working hard to make a living for their families and provide a livelihood for their employees.

While Small Business Week lasts only seven days, it's long enough to give these hardworking business owners our thanks. Then, during the rest of the year, let's give them our support. Munday is made up of small business owners and their employees - remember to SHOP MUNDAY!

Who will teach the children?

by Cynthia White

Munday Independent School District are fortunate indeed.

Did you know that a recent study found that twelve percent of the teaching positions in Texas are filled by persons who lack the proper credentials for the courses they have been assigned to teach? Thankfully this is not the case in our small but very professional school district.

ton ISD and other ISD's in the state or parent conferences. The state hundreds of teaching positions are vacant each year, leaving hundreds of classrooms without any kind of a teacher in them? And also a recent publication by the Texas Association of School Boards bemoaned the fact that school districts are finding it tougher and tougher to staff their classrooms with qualified teachers.

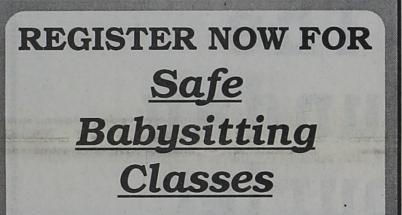

Lionel Meno reports that 500,000 Texans below retirement age are currently holding valid teaching certificates, about twice the number needed to fill our classroom needs. With so many qualified teachers, why are we facing this critical teacher shortage in our state classrooms and how are we going to encourage top-quality professionals to be the future teachers of our young children and grandchildren?

the conditions that our teachers are ents need to quit bashing teachers faced with. In Munday we are for- and start treating them with respect tunate to have small numbers in so that their children will do the each class which allows our teach- same. Teachers should be allowed

We who have children in the volved in each students learning goes on in their classrooms. abilities. The environment in our schools enables our teachers to get to know their students personally but more parent involvement is definitely needed. When our teachers request a need from the parents it should be met with enthusiasm - whether that need is help with a project in the classroom, help with the few parties that the students are allowed to Did you know that in the Hous- enjoy, or homework assignments can do much to improve the conditions of the classroom but parental involvement can also do the same.

We must also teach our children respect for authority. No teacher can be expected to be able to control the conduct of children if the parents do not back them up. When teachers tell a student that Former education commissioner they are going to have a conference with their parents over a particular situation it is a sad reflection on the home when the student answers with, "My mom and dad don't care how I behave at school and they don't care if I obey you or not." These words, or a similar rendition of them, are often heard even in our own classrooms. Children need to be taught to obey authorities and laws - these are put in place for the good of the entire population - not just for the good First of all we have to improve of those who choose to obey. Par-

Teachers' salaries and benefit packages should be lucrative enough for us to attract high-quality professional people. When people from other professions quit those jobs to become teachers because teaching is more lucrative, we won't have to fill more classrooms with unqualified people.

In recent years we have read more and more reports that compare achievement of American students with students from Japan, Germany, and other industrialized nations. However, teachers in these nations schools are valued, respected, and well rewarded for their work. In the countries that are outscoring us on student achievement tests, teachers are among the highest paid government employees in the nation.

Until the job of teaching becomes attractive enough in Texas to fill every classroom with a qualified, competent professional teacher, we may be putting our children and grandchildren in other school districts in a precarious position.

Foster/Adoptive parenting - a family experience

Does your family have a sense of humor, are you flexible, stable, and 21 years of age or older? Are you looking for a challenge to help children and have room in your home and your heart for one more child?

There are children in Texas communities whose families are in need of help as a result of abuse or neglect. While families are working on their problems many times the children need to be removed from the family setting and placed temporarily in a foster Haskell County Farm Bureau. home for their protection. If for some reason the family cannot be reunited the child will be in need of an adoptive family. Region 2 is in need of foster and adoptive families for sibling groups, children with emotional and physical problems and children just in need of a nurturing, caring environment in which to grow. Region 2 is a 30 county area that covers Knox County and all of the surrounding counties. There are currently 120 foster homes in this region, two foster families in Knox County and it is not enough to meet the needs of the children who are in need of a loving home. If you would be interested in hearing more about the need in the Knox County area for foster parenting and/or adoption, please call Debbie Welborn, Foster Home Developer, at 817-568-3524.

DIRECTORS

SECTION 4.01. NUMBER AND GENERAL POWERS. The business and affairs of the Cooperative shall be managed by a Board of seven (7) directors. The Board shall exercise all of the powers of the Cooperative except such as are by law or by the Cooperative's Articles of Incorporation or Bylaws conferred upon or reserved to the members.

SECTION 4.02. QUALIFICATIONS. No member shall be eligible to become a director or to hold any position of trust in the Cooperative who is not a member receiving service from the Cooperative at his primary residential abode in the area served by the Cooperative, or is in any way employed by or financially interested in a competing enterprise or a business selling electric energy or supplies to the Cooperative, or a business primarily engaged in selling electrical or plumbing appliances, fixtures or supplies to the members of the Cooperative, and no person shall take or hold office as a director who is the incumbent of or candidate for an elective public office in connection with which a salary is paid. When a membership is held jointly by a husband and wife, either one, but not both may be elected as director, provided however, that neither one shall be eligible to become or remain a director or to hold a position of trust in the Cooperative unless both shall meet the qualifications herein above set forth. Any director who shall miss three (3) Board of Directors' meetings in a row, without an excuse duly accepted and noted by the Board, shall lack eligibility to further serve and it shall be the duty of the Board of Directors to remove him from the Board. No former employee whose employment has been terminated by the Cooperative may be eligible to serve as director. Any employee who resigns or retires from employment by the Cooperative shall not be eligible to serve as a director for a period of ten (10) years following such resignation or retirement. Nothing contained in this Section shall, or shall be construed to, affect in any manner whatsoever the validity of any action taken at any meeting of the Board of Directors, unless such action is taken with respect to a matter which is affected by the provisions of this Section and in which one or more of the directors have an interest adverse to that of the Cooperative.

In the event an incumbent director, having served on the Board of Directors a minimum of six years, ceases to meet the requirement of receiving service from the Cooperative at his primary residential abode, such incumbent director shall nevertheless be qualified to continue to serve as director so long as he remains a member of the Cooperative and his primary residential abode is located within the area served by the Cooperative, or in close proximity thereto.

SECTION 4.03. ELECTION. At each annual meeting of the members, directors shall be elected by secret written ballot by the members and from among those members who are natural persons; provided however, that when the number of nominees does not exceed the number of directors to be elected, and if there is no objection, secret written balloting may be dispensed with and voting may be conducted in any other proper manner. Directors shall be elected by a plurality of the votes cast unless the members in advance of any balloting resolve that a majority of the votes cast shall be required to elect, and this Bylaw provision shall be drawn to the attention of the members and explained to them prior to any balloting. Drawing by lot shall resolve, where necessary, any tic vote.

SECTION 4.04. TENURE. The business and affairs of the Cooperative shall be managed by a Board of seven (7) directors which shall exercise all of the powers of the Cooperative except such that are by law, or by the Articles of Incorporation of the Cooperative, or by these Bylaws conferred upon or reserved to the members. Beginning with the Annual Meeting of the members of the Cooperative held on August 21, 1954, two (2) members of the Board of Directors shall serve for a period of one year, two (2) members shall serve for two years, and three (3) members shall serve for three years, and that lots be cast as to the length of time each director shall serve; and beginning with the Annual Meeting of the members held in 1954, those directors whose terms expire, such vacancy shall be filled for a period of three years.

COMMENT

ften in the course of a poker game it becomes necessary to call another player's bluff. It seems that Congress has reached the stage in the welfare reform debate where a little bluff-calling is in order.

For 11 months the Clinton administration has refused to grant the Texas a welfare waiver, holding the cards close to its vest and revealing very little information. One can only surmise that the administration thought Texas would fold. But this president doesn't know how we Texans play poker.

Rather than fold, we have upped the ante. On May 22 Senator Phil Gramm and I introduced legislation to give states the right to make the process of determining social services eligibility more efficient.

In October of 1996 Congress enacted and the President signed into law landmark legislation billed as a plan to "end welfare as we know it." Congress' intent, which the President endorsed throughout the entire debate, was to allow states to set up more effective, accessible welfare systems.

Congress asked the states to do a job, and Texas was quick off the mark to comply. State officials requested a waiver from the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services (HHS) that would permit us to establish public/ private partnerships to run one- stop eligibility centers for welfare, food stamp and Medicaid claims. (What the state formally requested was permission to take bids on such services.) This sat on the President's desk for five months.

The plan, which goes by the acronym TIES, for Texas Integrated Enrollment Services, would consolidate 20 separate application processes for public assistance. State officials estimate TIES will save Texas taxpayers at least $120 million a year in administrative overhead. With those savings, the state intended to provide health care coverage to an additional 150,000 needy Texas children.

The current conflict over welfare reform between Texas and the federal government is simple: Congress gave states the authority to experiment, to run their systems more efficiently. Texas did just that - and federal biggovernment said, "No."

Welfare as we know it remains the same wasteful mess that it was the day the welfare reform bill was signed - thanks to the administration's refusal to let Texas play the hand Congress dealt it.

I have arrived at the reluctant conclusion that the only way to rectify this. situation is to pass a law that will allow Texans to run Texas' welfare system. Congress' clear intent in the 1996 welfare reform bill was to give states the flexibility to design welfare systems best suited to their own needs.

Congress will have to call the executive branch's bluff. The administration can honor the law and allow plans such as the TIES proposal to go forward unimpeded. But if the administration is going to thwart the law of the land, Congress must act. No other outcome is in the cards.
