C. of C. Banquet Tuesday Evening

Excellent Program Being Arranged, Hon. Chas. E. Coombs Will Be Principal Speaker

The annual banquet of the Munday Chamber of Commerce will be held on Tuesday evening of next week at the dining hall of the Masonic hall, and those in charge of arrangements have outlined a most entertaining and interesting program, which will include an address by the Hon. Chas. E. Coombs of Stamford and possibly a talk from Homer D. Wade, manager of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce, and other out of town as well as local speakers will be on the program for brief talks. At this meeting the annual report of the secretary will also be read and the accomplishments of the organization outlined.

At a meeting of the directors on Monday evening the details of the annual affair were worked out and committees appointed to look after every feature, and since this will be the first get-together the organization has had in several months it is hoped that every one who is interested in the welfare of the organization will be present on Tuesday evening.

Plans are being made by which it is hoped to have the Rhineland Band play for the occasion.

Be there—bring the wife!

T. W. (Wash) Rayburn Is Candidate For the Office Public Weigher

Now comes T. W. (Wash) Rayburn, who states that he has been a resident of this community for the past thirty-three years, during which time he has never asked for public office, and who now seeks the suffrage of the voters of this precinct in behalf of his candidacy for the office of Public Weigher, Precinct No. 6, Knox County, subject to the action of the democratic primaries.

In making his announcement Mr. Rayburn states that he is qualified in every respect to discharge the duties of the office in a manner that will be entirely satisfactory to the citizens of the community, and that his principal reason for seeking the office is the remuneration that he expects to derive from the office, and he respectfully asks that his candidacy be given due consideration at the polls.

Wash states that it is his intention to see every voter in the precinct and present his claim for the office.

SPECIAL SERMONS TO CLOSE

The last of a series of sermons on the "Second Coming of Christ", will be given next Sunday night, at the Baptist church. The subject for this message will be: "The Results of His Second Coming."

Declamation Contests For Munday Schools Were Held Tuesday

The declamation contests to determine who should represent the Munday Public Schools in the county contests to be held in Knox City the latter part of next week were held on Tuesday afternoon and night at the Methodist church, and the competition was far more keen than has ever been before in practically every division.

On Tuesday afternoon the contest was held for the seniors, in which there were entered thirteen boys and a like number of girls, and the placing of honors in this division certainly must have been a difficult problem for the judges, for every one of the little tots did exceedingly well, and the winners were as follows: Girls: 1st, Marie O'Brien; 2nd, Helen Francis Mauldin; 3rd, Ophie Pruitt. Boys: 1st, Joe McMahon; 2nd, G. R. Elland, Jr.; 3rd, Glenn Wallace Kennedy.

In both the junior and senior girls division there was competition of the keenest kind and we are confident that any of the girls who entered this contest could make a most excellent showing in the county contest, but as it was necessary for the judges to eliminate only the three coming first in the minds of the judges could be given places in each division, and the results of these contests were as follows: Junior girls: 1st, Rosalyn Houser; 2nd, Mildred Burnett; 3rd, Francis Thompson. Senior girls: 1st, Vera Tate; 2nd, Vela Phillips; 3rd, Louise Aycock.

There was only one entry in the Junior boys contest, Hubert Isbell, who has carried away the honors in the classes in which he has entered for a number of years, and who has entered in the state wide oratorical contest, and we know that he will make a most excellent showing in competition with declaimers from all sections of the state.

The contest of the Junior boys was postponed until next week due to a misunderstanding of the rules of the contest.

H. V. STANDLEY ELECTED SUPT. KIRKLAND SCHOOLS

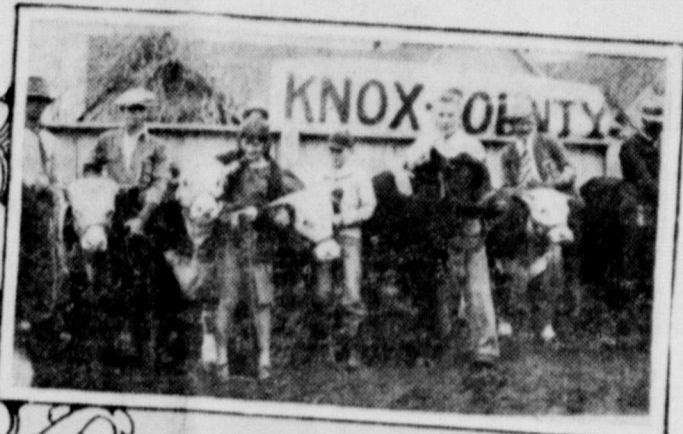

Prof. H. V. Standley, principal of the Munday high schools, has accepted the superintendency of the Kirkland schools, and he and Mrs. Standley will not be associated with the Munday schools for another year. This announcement was received with much regret here, for both Mr. and Mrs. Standley have made a large host of friends during the time they have resided in Munday, and their work as members of the faculty of the local schools has been of the most satisfactory nature, and they will carry with them the best wishes of a large host of friends when they make their departure from Munday at the close of the present school year.

Subject of the entire series, and we hope to have a full house. There will be special music at both services Sunday.

P. D. O'BRIEN, Pastor.

Walter Harris Makes Announcement For The Office of Commissioner

We are authorized to announce the candidacy of Walter Harris for the office of County Commissioner, Precinct No. 4, Knox county, subject to the action of the democratic primaries.

Mr. Harris has been a resident of this community for the past twenty-four years, and has had much practical experience in road building and maintenance, and he promises the voters of the precinct that if they elect him to this important post he will see to it that the tax payers get full value for every dollar expended for road work or for any other purpose, and will insist that those engaged in road work give a full day's work for a full day's pay, and states that if competent help is not available when the roads need attention that he will take charge of the grader himself and see that the roads of the precinct are kept in the best of condition.

With reference to the financial transactions that come before the Commissioner's Court Mr. Harris states that he will weigh all matters carefully and his first and only consideration will be that of getting full value for every dollar of the tax payer's money that is spent for any purpose, and upon these principles he places his candidacy before the voters of the precinct.

MASTERPIECES IN ART REPRODUCTION ON HEROIC SCALE

Da Vinci's "The Last Supper" Among Great Paintings Recreated for Film

The first opportunity to view in motion and color the magnificent Lew Wallace classic of "Ben-Hur" comes to the Peoples Theatre April 4 and 5, where Metro-Goldwyn-Myer's $4,000,000 picturization in arrangement with A. L. Erlanger, C. B. Dillingham and F. Ziegfeld, Jr., will be presented on April 4 and 5th. The novel, subtitled "A Tale of the Christ," was the world's most popular book; the stage spectacle toured America for twenty-two years. Now, in the greater art of the motion picture, are offered the famous Sea Fight and Chariot Race as thrilling out-of-doors events; the lovely romance of Judah, Prince of Hur, and Esther, and replicas of Old World masterpieces, often in color. We see the beautiful Procession of Palms; da Vinci's "The Last Supper," a marvelous color replica; "The Pool of Siloam," and the Vale of Hinnom.

group include a selection to be rendered, "Eyes of the Blind" by Adele St. John. Selection used must not exceed ten minutes. Also two poems should be prepared not to exceed four minutes each, one of which the judges will designate to be rendered.

Approximately $1,500 in prizes are to be awarded. To solo contest winners, first prize to each a $100 scholarship, second prize to each a $50 scholarship, in the school of fine arts, Texas Woman's College.

The fine arts contest is sponsored by Texas Woman's College under the direction of Dr. J. O. Leath, vice-president and director of public relations. This is the second annual contest.

Alex Branch was a visitor to Ft. Worth the latter part of last week, where he visited a cousin, who is manager of the radio department of the Fort Worth Star-Telegram, and Alex states that he inspected all the mysteries of this great organization on his visit.

Luncheon Club Will Be Organized Here Within Next Few Days

That Munday will soon have a live-wire luncheon club now seems an assured fact, for at a recent meeting of a number of business and professional men the nucleus of an organization was formed and a membership committee composed of F. N. Warren, W. H. Chapman and J. A. Kennedy was selected to make a campaign for members. It is planned to have a luncheon every two weeks, and while it is not the intention of those promoting the organization to have elaborate luncheons, it is hoped that they may provide an opportunity for the business and professional men of the community to come together and discuss matters of current interest, and in every way possible promote the growth and welfare of the city.

This organization will have no direct connection with the Munday Chamber of Commerce or any other organization, but will work in harmony with all the organizations of the city that have for their purpose the general welfare of the community.

The membership committee will make a round within a few days to secure members and outline the plans of the organization, and if you are interested in a movement of this kind we shall be glad if you will notify any one of the members of this committee and we shall be glad to explain the plans of the organization. Those who have enrolled already are as follows: Dr. Wm. P. Farrington, W. H. Chapman, W. R. Moore, E. E. Akers, W. A. Campbell, Geo. Isbell, Fred N. Warren, G. W. Tate, J. A. Kennedy, J. E. Rhodes, L. E. Loveless, and R. T. Land.

J. W. Melton Seeks Re-election to Office Sheriff and Tax Col.

We are authorized to place the announcement of J. W. Melton, for Sheriff and Tax Collector of Knox County, subject to the action of the Democratic Primary.

Mr. Melton has always stood for law enforcement and in the discharge of the duties of his office has sought no reward other than the satisfaction of work well done. We will continue this policy if elected with favoritism to none and justice to all. His record shows him to be worthy and he solicits the consideration of the voters of the county.

E. W. Parremore left on Friday of last week for Dallas, where he went as a delegate from the Munday Lodge, I. O. O. F. to the Grand Lodge, which convened in that city on March 19.

Knox Club Boys Are Show Winners

Awarded Fourth Place in Club Show and Third Place Against All Exhibitors

The Knox County Club Boys and Girls have again brought home some of the honors from the Fat Stock Show at Fort Worth, having been awarded fourth place in competition with all other clubs entering exhibits, and third place in competition against all exhibitors.

In the Black Angus class in groups of three they were awarded second and fourth places and in this class they won fourth, fifth and seventh as individuals.

In individual competition, with more than 200 calves competing they won fifteen and sixteenth places.

Those making individual winnings were Ila Masterson, Truscott; Weldon Parker, Munday; Cecil Connor, Knox City; Earl Pruitt, Munday and Chandler Hughes, Munday.

In addition to the premium awards won by the Knox county boys and girls each member entering Black Angus calves will receive $5.00 in cash from the Black Angus Breeders association.

The Knox county calves were sold for $13.75, which was a better price than that paid to some of the counties whose exhibits ranked above that of this county in the show, and will bring the members a neat sum, regardless of whether they were in the winning or not, and we are sure that each and every one of the boys and girls who have fed a calf have received some very valuable experience, and we know that County Agent W. O. Logan has worked faithfully with them in assisting them and in looking after the many details that were necessary in shipping them to the show and looking after them after their arrival there.

G. M. Bryan Enters Race For Office of Dist. Clerk, Knox Co.

We are authorized to announce the candidacy of G. M. Bryan for the office of District Clerk, Knox County, subject to the action of the democratic primaries.

Mr. Bryan is well known to the people of this county, having before aspired for public office, and he states that he will make a very thorough campaign and try to see most every voter in the county and present his claims for this office. He states that he is in every way qualified to discharge the duties of the office and promises that if he is honored with the place he will give it his very best attention.

"I Am A Democrat"

"I am a Democrat and agree to support the nominees of the party." Thus runs the pledge dictated by the friends of Al Smith in Texas.

When we take this pledge these friends of Al Smith who hope to profit by it will, we hope, pardon us if we remember that four years ago the kind of Democrats who elected Al Smith governor of New York by a large majority also helped roll up an even larger majority in New York for Mr. Coolidge. Apparently they are Republicans in everything, except a thirst.

As further evidence tending to support this view, we recall that Dr. Copeland, a United States senator from New York, and a member of Tammany Hall, elected to the Senate by Tammany Hall votes, was a former Republican, and in the debate on the McMasters resolution asserted his belief in a protective tariff. Now down here in Texas we are willing to admit that many Democrats have a thirst, but we are not willing to admit that a Democrat can believe all the doctrines of the Republican party and base his sole claim to Democracy upon the fact that he possesses a thirst. Dr. Copeland is said to be Mr. Al Smith's spokesman in Congress. If then Al Smith's Democratic party can only be differentiated from the Republican party by the degree of its desire for intoxicating liquors, Texas Democrats can logically and honestly conclude that a Democracy dominated by Al and his supporters is not the Democratic party.

Mr. Smith is a strong believer in state rights. According to the doctrine of state rights, the Texas Democracy may secede from the Al Smith brand and head a Confederacy of its own and still legally and honestly carry the name, Democrats. To secede may be the best way out, for the prohibition forces of Texas, not only for them, but for those Democrats, who, like myself, are not prohibitionists in the accepted sense but most certainly object to seeing the party turned over to those whose sole claim to Democracy is opposition to prohibition.

Tariff revision should be one of the leading issues this time. If Al is elected, the anti-prohibition friends of Al from the Northeast will have charge of the important committees in Congress and will dictate the revision. Texas had some experience with a tariff law written by the Northeastern Democrats during Mr. Cleveland's administration. That tariff law gave adequate protection to the factories of New York and Massachusetts and gave Texas no trade. Mr. Cleveland was a New York Democrat, just like Al is. Mr. Cleveland's administration broke the sheep men in Texas. The same policy applied now by Al Smith and his Northeastern Democrats will break the sheep men again, and this time, in addition to breaking the sheep men, will break the Texas cow men. New York wants cheap beef because it has to buy. When cattle are put on the free list, Texas cows will go down to the world price and sell about like hogs are selling now. If this happens, Texas farms, Texas cities, Texas business and Texas labor will be hurt as badly as they were hurt by the eight cent cotton of 1926.

If Texas can't keep Al Smith from securing the nomination at Houston it ought to bolt on the tariff question if for no other reason. As individuals we cannot bolt after we enter the convention, even if we could afford to indorse the Collidge administration. As a state we can do as we please and violate no pledge.

But if the Texas Democracy is going to the convention with the feeling that a bolt may be not only desirable, but maybe so absolutely imperative, let's be careful.

If it becomes necessary to bolt to keep the Northeastern tail from wagging the Democratic donkey, and we do it in a way that Al Smith's friends can cry "religious intolerance," "the Klan spirit," then we are lost.

We should clear ourselves of that charge, and adopt a tariff plank patterned after the McMasters resolution. The McMasters resolution, as recently passed by the voters of the Southern and Western Senators, enunciated a tariff policy that can be used to serve well the people of Texas. In effect it demands that the tariff on manufactured goods be lowered and the tariff on raw materials be raised.

The situation lies in the control of the prohibition forces in Texas. If they will only clear the Texas delegation of the charge that Texas is religiously intolerant, then Al's opposition can get an unprejudiced, unbiased hearing on the issues.

There is a simple way to clear the Texas opposition to Al of the charge that it is religiously intolerant and Klan-ridden.

Here it is: Support Thomas B. Walsh of Montana for president and Dan Moody for vice-president. After you have done that and eliminated the religious issue, argue the real issues and the people will hear and applaud. Until that is done, many will say, "Only another manifestation of the thing that was wrong in 1924, when we had to elect ma."

NOTICE OF ELECTION OF CO. SCHOOL TRUSTEES

State of Texas
County of Knox.

To all whom it may concern: By virtue of authority vested in the County Judge by the Laws of the State of Texas, I hereby order, and notice is hereby given, that there will be an election held on Saturday, April 7, A. D. 1928, by the qualified voters of Commissioner's Precinct No. 4 of Knox County, Texas, at the school houses or other customary voting places in and for each Common School District, and in Independent School Districts having less than 500 scholastics, as shown by the last preceding scholastic census, as follows:

In Goree Independent School District, at the School Building in Goree; in Common School District No. 5, at Hefner School Building; in Common School District No. 11, at the Rhineland Common School Building; in Common School District No. 14, at Hood School Building; in Common School District No. 22, at Washburn School Building;

How to Play BRIDGE

Series 1927-28 by Wynne Ferguson
Author of "PRACTICAL AUCTION BRIDGE"

Copyright 1927, by Hayle, Jr.

ARTICLE No. 13

It frequently happens that a player has both good help for his partner's bid and also a strong suit of his own. The question then confronts him: "Shall I help my partner's bid or show my own suit?" The answer to that question is really very simple: If your partner bids a major suit and you have good help for the bid, you should show support for his suit first, before you bid your own, even if such suit is also a major suit.

To bid your own suit first and then support your partner, doesn't give him a correct picture of your hand. On the other hand, if you first support his hand and then bid your own suit, you have given him accurate information. He should know that your bid of your own suit, after supporting him, is not intended as a denial but simply as a means of informing him of the character of your hand, so that the best bid of 26 cards can be obtained, rather than of thirteen. The clever bidder always tries for that result; that is, the best bid of the combined hands of himself and his partner, and any method accurately obtaining that result should be encouraged.

Example Hand
Hearts—5
Clubs—A, 8, 4, 3
Diamonds—K, Q, J, 10, 9
Spades—Q, J, 7

Y : A B :
Z :

Hearts—10, 8, 3, 2
Clubs—9
Diamonds—A, 8, 5, 2
Spades—A, K, 10, 9

No score, rubber game. Z dealt, bid one spade and A bid two hearts. Should Y bid two spades, thus showing support for his partner's spade suit or should he bid three diamonds? There is no question but that Y should first show support for his partner's spade bid. Y's bid of two spades is overbid by B with three hearts. Z and A pass and now Y should bid four diamonds. By this kind of bidding he has given his partner Z the choice of trying for game in either spades or diamonds, and thus has increased their chances of winning.

It happens that Z's spade bid was based on a four-card suit, so that when his partner shows a big diamond suit, Z should allow him to play the hand at diamonds. He has great help for that suit and a sure game should result. If Z, however, had no support for the diamond suit and a strong spade holding, he should have bid four spades over the four diamonds. In bidding of this kind you must use your common sense. Give only information that is accurate and can be of help to your partner. Try to remember that sound bidding should produce the best bid for the combined hands of the partnership: the best bid for 26 cards—not for thirteen.

Possibly you hear the expert speak of the "squeeze" or the "double squeeze" without understanding what is meant. Suppose, for example, in the play of a no-trump hand, you have a long line of high cards and play them out, forcing your opponents to discard. Very frequently, these discards are very embarrassing and at times actually force one or both opponents to discard winning cards. To force one opponent to discard winning cards thus, is the so-called "squeeze." To force both opponents to do so, is the so-called "double squeeze."

The following hand is an excellent example of the "double squeeze" so try your luck with it:

Problem No. 15
Hearts—J, 10
Clubs—A, 7, 6
Diamonds—7, 6
Spades—10, 9, 7

Y : A B :
Z :

Hearts—6
Clubs—K, 8
Diamonds—Q, J, 10, 9, 7, 4
Spades—none

Diamonds are trumps and Z is in the lead. How can Z play the hand so that he can win all of the tricks against any defense? Solution is the next article.

Doctor Found What is Best for Thin, Constipated People

As a family doctor at Monticello, Illinois, the whole human body, not any small part of it, was Dr. Caldwell's practice. More than half his "cure" were on women, children and babies. They are the ones most often sick. But their illnesses were usually of a minor nature—colds, fevers, headaches, biliousness—and all of them required first a thorough evacuation. They were constipated.

Every drug store sells Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. Keep a bottle in your home,—where many live someone is sure to need it quickly. We would be glad to have you prove at our expense how much Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin can mean to you and yours. Just write "Syrup Pepsin," Monticello, Illinois, and we will send you prepaid a FREE SAMPLE BOTTLE.

The preparation immediately had a great success in the drug stores as it previously had in his private practice. Now, the third generation is using it. Mothers are giving it to their children who were given it by their mothers. Every second of the working day someone somewhere is going into a drug store to buy it. Millions of bottles of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin are being used a year.

Its great success is based on merit, on repeated buying, on one satisfied customer telling another. There are thousands of homes in this country that can never without a bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, and you

CHAPTER V

Back ashore, where the moment of Palmira Tree's abduction had found her fiancé so afraid of wounding the girl that he could not raise a rifle in her defense, every passing circumstance was carrying forward the revelation of two characters.

Van, as he saw his betrothed thus torn from him, stood, staring after the schooner, his face convulsed. He had been thrust back into a despair tenfold that whence the Pigeon of Noah had first raised him.

Not so, however, John Thurston. As well as Van he knew nothing could be done. But he would not accede. Burke's crime had thrown him into a frenzy.

He ran across to Captain Pederson. "Captain," he demanded, "what can we do? At once?"

The deposed sailing master looked back at his haggardly, "Nothing."

"But, but we must. I tell you we must. Man, we've got to get to sea. Today—now!"

Pederson groaned. "I wish to God we could, Mr. Thurston. I'm as broke up as you. But there just ain't no use. Looks now, if we're ever to get off, we'll have to knock together some sort of craft from the wreck."

Thurston cried out in protest. "Weeks, months. No! You, with an year's sea experience, you must know some way. I, I demand."

But Pederson shook his head. Nothing whatever could be done.

Suddenly Thurston's face lighted. He stood in thought, his features taking on a more definite tinge of elation. "I've got it!" he cried, and whirled away.

The sailing canoes in which the Polynesian navigators of a bygone day covered the Pacific were catamarans. The explorers built two hulls, so narrow that neither, by itself, would float. But when the two were fixed, perhaps ten feet apart, by timbers lashed athwart their gunwales amidships, the double canoe became staunch enough—though boasting in all its parts no nail or bolt or rivet, its joints held by nothing stronger than breadfruit gum and twists of cord, its sails no more substantial than plaited leaf—to traffic all away and across the broad Pacific.

It was Thurston's idea now that, placing his four separately worthless boats in tandem, two on each side, he could lash them under a framework of the lighter spars into a machine which would carry a considerable spread of sail.

"If those old catamarans could hold together for a thousand miles," he explained, "ours ought to make the next island."

Work had been going on perhaps an hour when he appeared for the first time to become aware of Van Buren Rutger's drooping figure. John had completely forgotten the other man. Convicted, he ran over to him.

But Thurston attempted no explanation. He said that the best, the only way out, was to sketch the plan of action, seem to consult the other's judgment. He spoke briefly. "What do you think, Van?" he concluded. "Isn't that as well as we can hope to do?"

Van was silent for a long time; then, unexpectedly, laughed. "As, as good as any," he said. "Go on your raft, and drown, stay, and starve. 'What's the difference? As regards her—' he caught his breath in a broken exhalation—'she's gone.'"

Thurston gazed at his somberly. "You, you mean you won't raise a hand for her?"

"I won't," Van answered wearily, "and neither will you. We can't."

Thurston's face was resolute. "Perhaps you're right," he acknowledged. Very likely so. But for me, I prefer to die—trying."

He would have hurried away but the other detained him.

"I'm not your kind of an ass," Van said. "You feel you know there's no hope. Yet, by this silly work, you can kid yourself into a sort of relief. Me!"

It was as if he looked upon the girl lying dead. But he tore himself from this vision, became defiant. "You, you still think I'm yellow. Very well, then, I'll show you. I'll help now; and when you sail, I, too, shall go."

Thurston urged the men to work as the first color of the dawn touched the eastern sky 'the last of the stores and gear was lashed into place.

Thurston stooped over Van, who had fallen in the sleep of exhaustion, and waked him. "Say the word," he announced. "We're ready."

Van roused but slowly; then turned upon the stronger man in a futile rage at circumstance. "Damn you," he cried. "I'd rather stay here and die like a gentleman—clean and dry. But a moment later he sprang up with his old laugh. "After all, it's got to be the fish or the birds. I'm a braver man than you, you optimistic ass, because I know

He did not finish his thought. "Come on. Let's get it over."

Twenty minutes later they were at sea.

Twenty hours later the catamaran was drifting, dismantled.

And Van Buren Rutger's fault. He had been given the steering oar. But, sunk in dejection, he had, in a moment of inattention, allowed the too-heavy boom to gybe, carrying away the improvised tackle, and snatch the mast overboard. As a result Burke's rotten boat and the raft floated of its lashings and the raft floated a wreck.

Doomed never to rescue Palmira from the villain Burke, John Thurston had yet gladly staked life itself upon a thousandth chance.

The Pigeon of Noah was flying into the unknown.

The face of the man Burke was a thing to wonder at. Under the exaltation of a master idea it had grown strange, compelling. His eyes gleamed, his tongue stumbled in its eagerness. For the first time in life he was to voice that which long had hidden in his evil mind. What had been only a vision of power was now to become an actuality. And so much, so very much, depended on kindling that wild spark he felt to glow within the soul of this girl he had seized for his own—his woman.

"Tanna!" he cried. "Tanna! Ever hear tell o' that island, Palm?" and I've took good care 't make y' acquainted."

"Tis for Tanna we'll be laying a course, you and me," he went on, with exuberant gesture acquired from the natives. "Tanna, where we'll lord it like born king and queen."

"What a people! What a people 't work with!" He fingers opened and closed anticipatorily, with a cat-like zestfulness. "What can't we do 't them Papuan wildmen," he cried, "and what can't we make 'em do for us. That's the ticket, Palm; what we can make 'em do for us!"

"Why, kid," he was expostulating a moment later, "this here big idea ain't something that popped into m' head just recent. Gosh, no. Had it in mind for years. But " He hesitated, diffident; a thing so foreign to his usual brazen assurance as to seem histrionic. "But the fact is I was a-waiting for, for you!"

She was once more aware of how very real his infatuation. "I just had 't have a dame for this stunt," he went on passionately. "A real dame, a sure enough queen. And then I meets you. The very first watch I sees y' got the shape for it. And when y' lets out about pirate blood, I knows y' got the heart for it. 'Cause yer talk's on the square; more on the square than you yerself realizes."

The girl was increasingly understanding how irrevocably, on the Rainbow, he had been misled by her caprice. Listening at first in a pleased surprise, he had been eagerly self-deceived. Sure that the lawless strain, persisting through environment, had at last roused, he was now convinced she was already in love with the life he typified—though she herself did not as yet perceive the fact—and that, in the glamour this life cast upon himself, she would in time willingly come to be his own.

"And, girl," Pompee Burke was shouting, "there never, never was no King had such a Queen as you. Yer hair!" He exulted in the wonder of it. "That's how y' beat 'em all. For, didn't I tell y' the Tannamen saw red—grabbed at red calico, smeared their faces bright and gay, rouged up the dead warrior gaudy 't meet his maker, wound their own heads all over with red vine 't cover the wool?"

"Don't y' understand? That's what I was waiting on. The queen o' my devil's own mission had 't have red hair. And, Palm, them Tannamen'll go plumb crazy with pious pagan joy when they sees yer locks a-lighting up, as the sun hits 'em, like a stove full o' coals busting into flame. Hair, I tell you, same as that o' some o' the big buck gods o' Melanesia themselves. Yes, I say it, girl—heathen hair!"

"Why, Palm, I wish 't the Lord y' could see yerself. I wish y' could understand yourself. Y' was plain born for the life. When I've waked y' up, you'll be eager for Tanna; for Tanna, where a man can be a man, where there's never a law but the law o' the cookpot and the sun and the wind—and the will o' you and me."

Pompee Burke did a jig step or two across the deck.

"Say, Palm, girl," he exclaimed; "say—you and yer heathen hair! Did I, or did I not, mention as how I was going 't make y' a real sure-enough queen?"

It was Burke's continuing delight in her every show of angry spirit, his self-straining sense of competence to bring the comedy to an end any moment he chose, that most intimidated Palmira.

"Wait 'till I've tamed you," he would laugh. "Then we'll get along fine. And you'll sure like Tanna when y' get the taste o' power in yer pretty mouth."

Only once had he laid a hand on her. That was when, in a fury, she had flown at him, clawing his face. He had held her away, loudly hilarious. I'd steal a kiss," he cried, "if 'twasn't for my sore arm. But, no. I can wait till y' come free, poking out yer lips and begging me 't take a smack. 'Twon't be long."

Nor was her situation made easier by Burke's evil sense of humor. Possibly to hasten her surrender, more probably in a mere cruel amusement, it played upon her fears.

There was, for instance, the occasion when Olive, for the first time aboard the Pigeon of Noah, spoke to her.

Had it not been for those brown-shot eyes, always so stealthily upon her, she would sometimes have thought of this savage as a machine. There was sort of unhuman precision about him.

And now, in this wise, the moment Burke had gone below, the brown man materialized himself at her side. She was never prepared for the exceeding change from his statuesque silence into the gesticular animation of his speech. He had mon. Then, realizing, he stopped his mouth, apparently forgetting as on the Rainbow that they knew no word in common at a loss.

The girl shrank back, fled, in panic at the very nearness of him, toward the companionway. But there she recollected that Burke was at the foot of the ladder, and stood helpless.

Then the white man came climbing up. "Y' little vixen," he warned in a malicious enjoyment of the situation, "push me overboard." He interrupted himself with a burst of laughter. "Gad," he cried, "but I'd hate 't give y' the chance! Push me overboard, and I'm gone. But—Olive's left. Remember that. I'm what stands between you. I ain't a-saying as how he'd love a red-headed goddess all his own. Oh, no! But I do see he's got his eye on y' like a wolf following a nice fat little lamb off into the timber."

The girl shuddered. Burke or Olive? White savage or brown? A cry of despair rose to her lips but she fought it back. Her hand stole up toward the opening of her dress, lingered, fell again to her side.

Since that event—it was now her third day aboard the Lupea-Non—she had been wondering whether Pompee Burke really did stand between her and his man. She had not forgotten Burke saying that Olive, if he knew his power, could snap his master's back across one of those big brown knees like a deck. But tonight... There's a lock."

The girl had sprung, trembling, panting, for the companion, had slammed it shut and shot home the bolts. Then she had stumbled down the steps and thrown herself, sobbing, upon the bunk. She had borne up bravely so long as the sun remained, but on the closing in of night, with all its sinister implications, she had given way. Sleep impossible, the night

PUBLISHED WEEKLY - EVERY THURSDAY

The Times office is indebted to Mrs. G. T. Hughes for a very beautiful bouquet of jonquils and other species of flowers, the fragrance of which reminded us that spring time was at hand, and to us spring is the most lovely season of the year, but we've never yet so completely lost control of our sentiments as to attempt spring poetry, however, with the fragrance of such flowers in the air it is indeed difficult to refrain.

We have received two worthwhile communications this week for publication that we have been forced to carry over until next week due to the fact our mechanical department has been overcrowded with work. One of these is a history of the Gillespie church since its organization, written by J. B. Jones and read at the home-coming celebration of the church on last Sunday, and the other is the annual address of Mrs. J. W. Melton, president of the County Federated Clubs. We shall give these in our next issue.

We are pleased to report that Walter Brannan, son of Jess Brannan, who has been critically ill with pneumonia, is improving, and trust that he may continue to improve until he has completely recovered. Mr. and Mrs. Mart Hardin have been entertaining a fine boy in their home since the 6th of March.

Ring King's Romance?

Rumors that Gene Tunney, heavyweight champion, and Miss Carolyn Bishop of Beverly Hills, Cal., shown in photo above, are engaged to be married were neither confirmed nor denied when newspaper men pined Mr. Tunney with questions. Miss Bishop, a film actress, said she found the champion "one of the most admirable men of our time."

J. L. Wilson, alias Geo. Lamber, who was arrested here last week by City Marshal C. R. Elliott in connection with the passing of several checks upon which the name of Sheriff J. W. Melton had been forged, pleaded guilty in district court at Benjamin the latter part of last week and was assessed a four year sentence in the penitentiary.

W. R. Condon of Goree was in town on Tuesday and stated that he had just returned from the Fat Stock Show at Fort Worth and was strongly in favor of having a county fair in Knox county, where the many fine cattle and other products of the county could be shown.

Otha C. Cass spent the week end visiting relatives and friends in Temple, Belton and other points in that section of the state.

Mr. Carl Mahan, who has recently been transferred to Munday as district superintendent for the West Texas Utilities Co. has arrived in the city from Hamblin, where he has been assistant superintendent. Mr. Mahan is a young man without family ties and residence now occupied by W. G. Owsley will be occupied by Bud Reynolds and family when the Owsleys move to Stamford, which will be about April 1st.

The Rev. P. D. O'Brien has accepted an invitation from the Cisco Commandery Knights Templar to deliver the Easter sermon for that body on Easter Sunday, April 8th at the High School auditorium at Moran. This is quite a compliment to Rev. O'Brien, since he was selected from a large number of ministers who were available for the occasion, and since it comes from the community in which he grew to manhood, and it is safe to say that those who hear him will be pleased with the message that he will deliver.

"COHENS AND KELLYS IN PARIS" REACHES EXTREMES OF MIRTH

If life was made for laughter, whoever attends the Peoples Theatre while "The Cohens and Kellys in Paris," the Universal-William Beaudine production, is the feature, will live a complete life during the run of the picture.

"The Cohens and Kellys in Paris" is life jammed with wholesome human touches of pathos and comedy. It is a beautiful painting from the delicate brush of the great artist, William Beaudine, director of "Little Annie Rooney," "Sparrows" and "Hold That Lion."

Each member of the all-star cast is admirably chosen. It is not a farce comedy, but it is drama of the relations between the Irishman and the Jew told with an eye always on the comic possibilities of the tale. George Sidney, who was featured in the role of Cohen in the first "Cohens and Kellys," headlines in the screamingly funny adventures of the Irish and Jewish families in Paris. J. Farrell MacDonald is co-featured as Kelly and gives an inimitable portrayal. Vera Gordon and Kate Price are back again in their original roles of Mrs. Cohen and Mrs. Kelly, louder and funnier than ever. Gertrude Astor furnishes

Mrs. W. R. Moore Hostess Study Club Members.

The Munday Study Club in regular session, March 16th, observed a very pleasing program on "The Indian in Fine Arts," with Mrs. W. R. Moore as hostess and Mrs. R. H. Neff as leader. Mrs. Jesse Burnison gave a splendid and instructive report on the Indian's totem pole; Mrs. Leland Hannah gave an enjoyable talk on "The Indian contributor to our Native Literature." Mrs. Land ably discussed the sculpture of Charles Dallin, especially regarding the Indian, and Mrs. Wilson Davy gave an interesting review of the Indian painting of George De Forest Brush and illustrated with copies of original. This program was indeed unique and gave each one present a new view of the Indian. Mrs. Donna David was a welcome visitor.

The study club has had many interesting programs throughout the year. Texas Independence day was observed March 2nd, with a very fitting program at the home of Mrs. Langford. Hubert Isbell and Vera Tate read two very pleasing numbers on Texas. The club surely does appreciate the work Mrs. Barnes' pupils have done the past three years in helping with the programs.

On January 20th, study club members decided to see how much they could make one dollar grow by March 16th, but as many dollars had not as yet reached the proportions their owners wished, the time was extended to April 27th, at which time every member must bring her increased dollar and tell how she earned it.

Members of the Thursday Luncheon Club met on Thursday of last week at the home of Mrs. F. L. Those enjoying the delightful occasion were Mesdames R. E. Alexander, Fred Broach, T. G. Benze, C. R. Elliott, D. C. Fritz, H. H. Langford, F. N. Warren, A. A. Smith, S. E. McStay, P. D. O'Brien, W. R. Moore and R. H. Neff.

One of the good ladies called at this office the other day and requested that we write a strong article demanding that her neighbor keep her chickens in her own back yard. This lady had spent much time in preparing her yard for flowers and shrubbery, but as fast as she worked the neighbor's chickens worked—one doing and the other undoing. Of course we're not calling any names in this article, but it might have been your neighbor, so we will suggest that you pen 'em up, for your failure to do so subjects you to a fine—and you might be called upon to contribute to the exchequer of the city.

Lure of Cows and Chickens Draws Many Back to Farm

Exodus From Farms to Cities Slackened in 1927, While Move- ment Cities to Farms Grew

By Robert Fuller

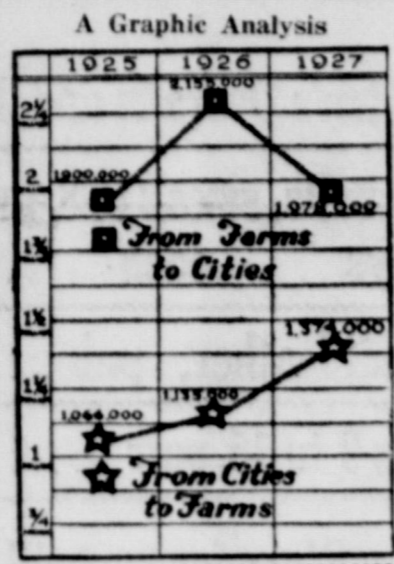

Washington, D. C., March 19.—The fascination of farm life has reasserted itself, to judge from new statistics available here. The siren call of the barnyard animals and the open farmland spaces is responsible for the fact that the movement of population from farms to cities has slackened. There is a very marked tendency now for persons not only to "stay on the farm," but also to go back to it.

W. M. Jardine, the Secretary of Agriculture, has stated that 3,250,000 people were lost to the farm population during the past eight years. The Bureau of Agricultural Economics has announced that while the movement from the farms to cities continued in 1927, it was considered decreased.

The bureau estimates that 1,978,000 persons left farms last year, compared with 2,155,000 in 1926 and 1,900,000 in 1925.

Offsetting this movement, 1,374,000 persons moved from cities to farms last year, compared with 1,135,000 in 1926 and 1,066,000 in 1925.

The figures show that in the

"A study of 2,745 persons leaving the farms for the city during the period since 1920 indicates that 38 per cent left the farm for economic reasons," declared the Secretary in an oral statement. Physical disability caused 25 per cent to leave. 11 per cent left to get better schooling for children and 2.5 per cent left after having attained a competency.

"There is a high degree of probability that the farm population in certain states, some Eastern and some Western, had begun to decrease in or two decades before 1910. The drop therefore, in farm population is phenomenon which had begun in some states before the war."

Secretary Jardine declared that after a study of 1,167 persons leaving the city for farms during the same eight-year period, it was found that 87 per cent, had previously had some farm experience.

"This would indicate," said the Secretary, "that the movement from city to farm is very largely the movement back to farms of people discontented for one reason or another with city life and work. There is no way of knowing except by inference whether the loss of farm population to cities is leaving a poorer class of farms on the farm, or a better class."

lected the general policies of the General Federation of Women's Clubs will move right along upward and as it has always done. There will be no great political upheaval. No tearing down of everything that has been done in the past and a brand new machine built for the future. Women's organizations may have opposing factions, but they do not have opposing parties who waste their time and the people's money tearing down and rebuilding what the other party has done.

When the time comes for the General Federation of Women's Clubs to elect a new president they do not worry for years over whether their candidates are wet or dry, whether they are catholic or protestant, whether they are republicans or democrats. What a relief! They just look out over the nation and pick out a couple of women who have done the most good for all the women in the world. Sometimes they do not even pick them out but wait until some women feel it in her heart to give two or four more years of her rich experience and life to the cause of the betterment of all women. And then her State Federation offers her service to the General Federation. These candidates are usually selected from different sections of the country in order to give all sections a better chance to be represented. And then it is not a question of which party is the weakest or the strongest. It is simply a question of which of the two best qualified women in the nation is the better qualified woman for the great responsibility of directing the work of three million club women in the United States for the advancement of all the women of the world.

And when the election and the convention is over, there may be, there always are many personal disappointments, but that makes no difference. Everybody goes home and goes to work and most of them are soon forgotten. Because the cause itself was not lost or even disturbed. When the General Federation of Women's Clubs elects a new president, thank God, it does not cause a slump in the cattle market of the world. It does not cause a break in the wheat market. It does not change the price of corn, or raisins, or yeast. It does not even effect the price of beans.

You don't have to turn off all the Post matters from Washington, D. C. to Claude, Texas. You don't have to put out all the superintendents of the deaf and dumb and blind, the reform schools the penitentiaries and the asylums and break in a whole new national force that don't know anything about the business.

No Sir! The General Federation just goes back home and goes to work harder than ever to eliminate all these miserable institutions by building up a nation of wiser mothers, better homes and more intelligent, law-abiding citizenship.

There are many valuable lessons that our American politicians could learn from the General Federation if they would like to know them. For this reason every visiting politician as well as all our home candidates is cordially invited to attend the Biennial Convention of the General Federation of Women's Clubs which convenes May 28 to June 7, in San Antonio. You might get some new ideas there on how to solve national problems, or how to swing your own election.

This will interest farmers' wives, Mrs. James Hamilton, of Pawhuska, Okla., not satisfied with thirty cents a dozen for fresh eggs, developed this idea. She knew how to make good angel cake. Eleven eggs make a cake that sells for a dollar. Cost of other ingredients amount to little. Mrs. Hamilton put her eggs in angel cake and got nearly one dollar a dozen.

Many farm wives, however, far from any angel cake market, can sympathize with an Irish farmer asked by an agent to sell his cow. "Do you know what the ducks swimming in that mudhole would be worth in London?" "I do," replied the farmer, "and have you any idea what the puddle of water would be worth in hell if I had it there?" The market is the problem.

Stefansson, Arctic explorer, tests in a hospital, under medical supervision, a diet consisting exclusively of fresh meat and water. Thousands within the Arctic Circle live on such a diet for months at a time, some of them eating as much as twenty pounds of fresh meat in a day. But it is not a good diet. Men were out on the earth to cultivate it and should eat all the vegetables, choose the meat.

You probably will not live as long, but you will think more. A vegetable diet is not good for thinking.

1928 Sure 'Nuff Campaign Year

By Phebe K. Warner

Never has Texas had such a big campaign calendar as 1928 presents. Besides all our own State, county and precinct campaigns, and elections there are all our big Texas reared BOYS who want to go to Washington for a while. And some of them are dandies too. And we ought to send them.

But the folks who are going to shove our home folks off the front page this year in Texas are those national DEMOCRATS and WOMEN. I can't help but feel sort of sorry for our home candidates this year for they are going to miss a lot of little courtesies and teas and luncheons and banquets and flowers and taffy. Even with the extra day this year there just won't be time enough to pass all these nice things around to all our state and national candidates.

Texas has plenty of money to do all these things. That's not it. She could give every national candidate an oil well for a Texas souvenir and never miss them. Or a gas well. But no doubt many of them will bring their gas supply with them.

How often have we all sung "The Eyes of Texas are Upon You." But this year that song should say, "The Eyes of the World are on Texas." And it is the happy privilege of every citizen of our state this year to present Texas in all her beauty and glory and genuine hospitality to our national guests who will attend the National Democratic Convention, the National American Legion Convention, and the Biennial Convent of the General Federation of Women's Clubs.

The unusual feature that enters into two of these national conventions is the fact that they both involve a national presidential campaign. The chief difference in these conventions is that one is seeking a man for the presidency of the United States and the other is selecting a woman president for the General Federation of Women's Clubs. One will open the democratic presidential campaign for president of the U. S. A. and the other will close the presidential campaign for the presidency of the greatest body of organized women in the world. One will fire the first gun and the other will fire the last gun in the cause of national democracy for both men and women in America.

What the final outcome will be the Democratic National Convention no one can definitely predict as yet. But one thing seems sure for the General Federation Convention. And that is either Mrs. Franklin White of Indianapolis, or Mrs. John F. Sappel of Baltimore will be the next president of the General Federation of Women's Clubs. And either way it goes, the General Federation of Women's Clubs, is sure of a wonderful president. And no matter which one of these most capable women is

Good Manners

One of the first stepping stones to a happy life is what we call good manners, and they are within the reach of all.

The best life that we can live is the life of love, a warm outpouring of the heart toward others and a natural drawing of the hearts of others toward ourselves. There can be no real success unless our hearts are right with others and unless our lives draw others to us.

How can we start most easily and practically on the way to this goal? Some people would give lofty advice at once, difficult to follow, but the easiest to understand is the best, and it is this: Try to get good manners, and to understand why they are good.

Some will think it is far too simple, but we will try to prove that they are wrong. "What about cleverness, genius, ambition?" they will ask. "What about strength of will, determination, perseverance, courage?" All are very praiseworthy, if well said, and we are not condemning them, but there is a better start.

A very wise and good Irishman, Prof. W. E. H. Lecky, wrote a book of advice which he called, "The Map of Life," and in it he said that on the way to real success, "good manners and tact, allied with sound judgment, would help us more than intellectual qualities or imperious strength of will."

That is not what many people who would like to be right, really think. They imagine that the finest thing of all is to command the world, to win a way by strength and power; and they wish that they might be clever, educated, forceful, rich and hold a high position.

Now, very few people can do that, and they are not like the happiest people when they have done it. The better course is to win a way by attractiveness which comes naturally out of the heart. That way is open to all of us, and the first step is good manners.

If we are to prove our claim for the great importance of good manners, we must begin by understanding what they are.

They are not a system of behaving that may be learned from a book of etiquette, though outward manners are important, and usually extraordinarily wise. Conventional manners—that is, the right thing to do according to social notions and practices—are not mere fashions, adopted like the changing forms of dress that last only for a brief time; they are the wisdom left from the experience of generations. Their object is to tone down whatever might be objectionable to other people, and to make our living with other people smooth and agreeable. So etiquette is good, but it is not actually essential to good manners.

Good manners do not come out of books on etiquette that tell us how to behave. They are born out of our own hearts. They spring from quick sympathy for others. They are our actions when we are warned against doing what would be objectionable to other people, and when we follow an impulse to do in a natural way, what would be felt by other people to be kind and graceful.

Good manners are the habit of being thoughtfully in making others happy and at ease in our presence, and not thrusting ourselves carelessly or selfishly upon them. Consideration is their keynote.

Some of the best manners in the world are shown by people who have never had a lesson in formal manners in their lives, quite simple country people, with but little education, yet self-possessed, and extraordinarily quick in feeling what is exactly the right thing to say and do under circumstances that are new to them. Their hearts speak, and speak with truth, kindness and dignity.

Now, apply this view of good manners—the product of the thoughtful heart—to the career of a boy or girl, and you will see how extraordinarily helpful it is. For good manners win a welcome everywhere. Wise Sir Francis Bacon said of them that they "are letters of perpetual recommendation," and Emerson, a still wiser seer, said, "Give a boy address and you will give him the mastery of palaces"—meaning that right manners will carry him anywhere.

There is but one way to the acquirement of really good manners, and that is by having the kind and considerate heart which suggests instinctively the kind and considerate act. Sham manners are worse than honest bluntness; fine manners often only conceal insincerity. But really good manners are the best of all the starts in life, and they never wear out, but become ingrained in our lives.

On Monday afternoon the Senior boys' and girls' tennis try-outs were held. We feel that Munday has a very good chance to win county championship in tennis, as well as other events this year.

Declamation try-outs were held at the Methodist church, Tuesday afternoon and evening. In past years the declamators have had more competition in the home town than in the county. This year will probably not prove an exception to the rule. There is more competition in the senior girl division than in any other.

For practice the Senior girls spoke before the high school Friday afternoon.

Mrs. Mann and Miss Bowden were absent from school last Friday. Mrs. Mann went home to attend court, and Miss Bowden made a business trip to Ft. Worth. Bro. O'Brien and Mrs. Chester Bowden substituted for these teachers.

Seniors

On last Friday evening the Seniors and Juniors were delightfully entertained in the home of Mildred Guinn. The rooms were beautifully decorated in green and gold, to carry out St. Patrick's Day. Forty-two was the diversion of the evening. The room in which the tables were arranged was a garden of Shamrocks. Delicious refreshments consisting of salad, chocolate, sandwiches and olives was served to about sixteen.

—Elton Busby—

Our beloved class-mate, Elton, hailed from Gillespie. Elton was prominent on the athletic field before he came to Munday. He was an outstanding member of our football team. He was a valuable member of the basketball team. Let it be remembered that on the athletic field Elton always showed his colors. We have learned from all accounts that Elton won for himself a reputation as an actor in the senior play at Gillespie last year. Elton is a general favorite of the school. He is one member of our class that can be depended on at all times. Elton will probably be a farmer or a great inventor. Occupation—Teasing girls.

—Evelyn Curry—

Evelyn Curry came to Munday from O'Donnell, Texas last gets along with everyone. She is quiet and reserved. Every year, Evelyn is a student that lyn is a good student, and is admired by all of her classmates. She intends to make a school teacher. She is planning to enter W. T. S. T. C. next year. Occupation—Listening to other students' gossip.

—Lucille Collins—

Lucille entered the Munday public school in 1915. She went through and made average grades. In 1925 she left school with the intentions of quitting, but thanks to her better self she is with us this year. Lucille is a good student and a real sport. Lucille plans to go to Belton and attend the Baylor Female College. She intends to make a domestic science teacher. Here's wishing her luck. Occupation—Whispering to neighboring students.

—Odell Freeman—

Odell came here this year from Ardmore, Oklahoma. We are indeed proud of Odell, because she is an excellent student and a favorite among our class. Her record in the Ardmore schools was almost a straight A.

In the Munday schools, she has proved that she is above the average.

Odell has not fully made up her mind where she will attend school. She has permanently decided to be an old maid school teacher, with a hopeful mind. She got this last idea from Mrs. Warkentin. We all wish Odell a bright and successful future. Odell is a good sport, and dearly loved by all of her fellow class-mates. Occupation—Anything but talking.

Juniors

"The Old New Hampshire Home", is progressing nicely. Don't fail to see it. It is going to be worth your money.

Madge Smith was absent Friday on account of illness, but she was back at her post of duty Monday.

A number of Juniors went to Haskell Sunday to see "Ben Hur." All reports in English show that they enjoyed the show!

"Icky" and "Sebo" win first prizes in the Blue Overall Parade as most handsome boys.

Earl Pruett is back from the Fat Stock Show and he reports a good time. We are glad to see him back.

Freshmen

We are awake while others sleep.

Our motto was certainly true Monday night. We lost one of our best members and, of course, we gave him a farewell party. We planned to go on a picnic, but after we met and discussed the matters, we decided to stay and have a party at the tabernacle. Everyone, except a few too dignified girls, played basket ball. After the basketball games grew monotonous, we made a flag. While the flag was driving, we ate our lunches that we had brought for the picnic. Several swung and see-sawed. We pinned our flag on the back of a car and paraded for about two hours. The party was in honor of Mansfield Childress, who has moved to Arizona. Miss Mills and Mrs. Burns were our chaperons.

Say, Sophs, we just want you to know that we brought your sponsor back in good shape, except for a slight headache, which was better than when she came.

Miss Mills says she is superstitious about black cats! We have cause to believe it, too.

Lela Brock was a visitor to Haskell Sunday. She had a most enjoyable time.

In history we were talking about superstitious people. Miss Mills asked Nolan Phillips to name some popular superstitions.

Nolan: "An apple a day keeps the doctor away."

Miss Mills, surprised: "Why, Nolan, that is as true as anything I ever heard. Isn't it, Hubert?"

Hubert: "No Maam. An onion a day keeps everybody away, is true."

Madeline Spelce was a visitor to Benjamin Sunday.

Gilbert Myers has been absent from school lately. He was at Fort Worth attending the Fat Stock Show.

Paul Pruitt also was a visitor to the Fat Stock Show.

Hefner Items

Splendid rains fell over this community last Thursday and Friday.

Mr. Lish Jones is on the sick list this week and the last report he was on the road to recovery.

Sunday School at the Methodist church last Sunday was poorly attended on account of cool weather.

John Bates, our expert paper hanger, is putting the finishing touch on the Lee McCulough old home residence, now occupied by Mr. Harris and family.

Mr. Gay Trimble, one of our prominent young men of Hefner community, was calling at Mr. Tom Owen's last Sunday.

Mr. Clyde Warren was in Munday last Saturday on business.

Mrs. John Bates and Mrs. M. H. Stone were visiting in Haskell last Monday.

The Hefner P. T. A. failed to meet on its last usual meeting day due to bad weather. Altho as the school missed the program it's looking forward for a better one next meeting on the first Friday in April, at 3:00 o'clock p. m.

Our term review has just begun in our school and the pupils are looking forward for a busy time for the two months as a review either means a failure or a success in their promotion.

Mr. Hervey Buttler and family were attending Sunday school at the Methodist church last Sunday.

The musical was well attended at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Bates last Saturday night. Music was furnished by Hefner string band.

Mr. Henry Warren, a pupil of Munday High School, was visiting home folks last Saturday and Sunday.

Hefner is preparing for one of the largest crowds, next Sunday, 25th, as that is the regular 4th Sunday County Singing convention day. Everybody is invited.

Mr. and Mrs. Louie Jones were visiting in Electra, Texas, last week. Mr. Roy Jones has remodeled his residence. It is of the best modern houses in the county, supplied with electrical heating, freezing and lighting systems.

Mr. Bob Hicks was in Munday last Saturday on business.

Miss Mattie Atkins, the primary instructor of Hefner school, was shopping in Munday last Saturday.

Elder Lockhart filled his regular appointment at the Friendship church last Sunday.

We fear that the fruit crop has been damaged by the late freeze, although it is too early to make a prediction as to what extent. The peach orchards throughout the county were in full bloom.

Mrs. J. M. Macon and Mr. E. D. David came up from Gorman the latter part of last week for a brief visit in the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Akers. They returned home on Sunday and were accompanied by Mrs. David, who had spent several days here with her parents.

This and that

Mayor Grover Jones of Routen City was in the city on Saturday and in conversation with the Times man stated that Munday should have a rodeo, as she did for many years. It is indeed a lamentable fact that we have no suitable place to hold affairs of this character, and we believe that steps should be taken to provide a park in which various kinds of entertainment can be held.

And since we've mentioned the need for a park, we have recently received a communication from John Henson of Wichita Falls, who is sponsoring a crack semi-pro baseball club to represent Wichita Falls and to be known as "Henson Pirates." Mr. Henson states that he is arranging a regular schedule throughout the Wichita Falls territory and would like to arrange to include Munday in his schedule, but, without a park it seems impractical to try to have a baseball club. We have plenty of local talent for a good team, but no place to play.

Folks are not coming to Munday from a great distance just to buy a few necessities and walk the streets. If we want people to come to Munday we should offer them something in the way of amusement, as well as full value for their dollars. People go where they are offered amusement. They may buy groceries and dry goods from the cross-roads store, but if they're offered good values and some kind of amusement, they're more then likely to go a little out of their way to come to our town.

Victor Edwards of the Piggly Wiggly store will tell you that the Times is read by the people of the Munday country, and that advertising in these columns will bring the desired results. His page ad last week announcing the opening of the Piggly Wiggly in Munday resulted in the store being crowded with customers throughout the entire day, and no other means of advertising were used in getting this result. His sales for the day far exceeded his fondest expectations.

We've heard quite a bit of comment during recent months regarding the price of gasoline in Munday, and had about concluded that this commodity was somewhat higher in Munday than in other towns, but upon making a trip to Fort Worth recently and passing through a number of towns going and coming we found that the price of gas in all of these towns were the same as in Munday and we paid 20 cents for the fluid in both Fort Worth and Breckenridge, and observed only two signs enroute where it was offered for less. We are making this statement in justice to local filling station men, who have been charged with holding the price above that of other towns, and if that is the case, we've failed to find it in our ramblings.

Mesdames T. G. Bengé and C. L. Mayes were visitors to the Fat Stock Show at Ft. Worth some days ago, and enroute to Fort Worth, they visited Eastland and saw the much talked of horned toad, and spent the night at the McLemore Hotel at Albany on the night that hotel was threatened by fire, and Mrs. Bengé telling a story about Mrs. Mayes' hesitancy in being carried down the fire-escape, however, Mrs. Mayes retaliates with one concerning Mrs. Bengé in which she states that after passing from the poultry exhibit at the stock show, where she had just viewed the fine exhibit of Black Minorca fowls, and into the livestock exhibit, where she referred to the black cows as "Black Minorca cows," so we're not attempting to say who the joke is really on.
