NAVY FLYING DEATHS

During the past ten months Navy aviators have figured in 188 crashes with 26 deaths, while flying only 84,478 hours. One man died for every 3,249 hours in the air. Sixteen were killed in five weeks.

The Navy records show that in the past six years one man was killed for approximately 3,000 hours in the air. Based on this record, if an aviator were to fly only two hours a day and only 300 days a year, he could expect an average of only five years of life.

In contrast with this frightful Navy record, the government air mail pilots last year flew 2,700,000 miles, or at least 30,000 hours without a single fatality. In other words, 26 Navy fliers were killed in 84,487 hours, while no mail flyers were killed in more than 30,000 hours. More than one-third of the mail pilots flying was done at night, and they carried the mails in all kinds of weather, while military flying is usually in daylight and in good weather.

No matter how the Navy may try to explain away this miserable showing as compared with civilian aviators, the shameful fact remains that there must be something radically wrong with naval aviation. Is it that the planes are defective, the personnel improperly trained, or the direction incompetent? Or is it a combination of the three?

PLATFORM OF INDUSTRY

According to a recent announcement by President J. E. Edgington of the National Association of Manufacturers, that organization in co-operation with other industrial leaders will shortly formulate what is to be known as a "Platform of American Industry," in which plans for continuing industrial prosperity in the United States will be presented to the public.

The idea, as we understand it, is to enlist the support of the people at large for such governmental policies as will enable this country to maintain its commanding economic position.

While the movement is to some extent political, it is obviously not partisan, as the industrial leaders concerned in it are drawn from all the various political parties and groups. Its purpose appears to be to foster American prosperity by a greater measure of co-operation among all the elements which make up our economic life.

Many problems are continually arising on account of adjustments and changes in world trade conditions. These problems can only be met satisfactorily, from the American standpoint, by the adoption of sound and well-considered policies, such as will give stability to industry and provide suitable markets for products of farm and factory alike. Any plan to accomplish these purposes should have strong support.

WHO DARE ADVERTISE?

Usually the argument is made that every business concern should advertise. Generally speaking, this is true, but there are exceptions. In fact, some concerns hardly dare to advertise, because they can not make good according to the requirements of modern business practices.

When advertising is untruthful or misleading it does more harm than good. Only an enterprise which fulfills the promises made in its advertising can stand the spotlight of publicity. Hence, when we find a store or other business establishments boldly advertising its wares or service, month after month and year after year, we may generally conclude that it can and does give real values.

Observing the advertised businesses of any community, large or small, will enable one to identify the most dependable concerns in that community. Only efficient and reputable establishments dare to advertise.

NEGRO SAMARITANS

Deeds of heroism and self-sacrifice have been common during the terrible flood which has devastated a large area in the valleys of the Mississippi and its tributaries. A few instances of high courage and devotion to humanity have appeared in the dispatches, but in hundreds of cases the heroes will never be known beyond the scene of their activity.

One outstanding example is that of Samuel White, a negro of a New Orleans suburb, employed at the railroad stockyards. When 25 families were marooned in their homes by the flood and in imminent danger of drowning, White hastily built a crude raft and making trip after trip, rescued every one.

He found straw to make beds for them in box cars, while his wife provided hot coffee and food for the storm-drenched unfortunates, providing for them thus for three days, until other relief appeared. They also assisted in nursing a family sick with measles.

This incident once more illustrates that fact that a black skin may cover a noble heart. To some of us it recalls the exploit of Tom Lee, another negro, who saved nearly two score men and women when a government steamer sank near Memphis a couple of years ago, taking them three or four at a time to safety on his small skiff.

It is well to remember that no race has a monopoly of courage or kindness, and that one can not identify a Good Samaritan by his complexion.

TO GIVE AWAY FORTUNE

Another great captain of industry who has amassed a large fortune during his 68 years of active life, is planning to give it away for the benefit of humanity.

John Markle, one of America's leading coal operators, will shortly retire from business life and devote his millions to educational and philanthropic purposes, through the medium of the John and May R. Markel Foundation, the principal objects of which are stated to be:

To aid schools, colleges and libraries; to aid scientific and medical research; to establish industrial, recreational and welfare activities; to aid hospitals, and to provide necessities of life for the needy and worthy poor.

Mr. Markle's action is in line with that of an increasing number of American millionaires, who, after playing the game of business successfully for many years, take pleasure in giving back their winnings for the benefit of mankind.

Much of our educational and scientific advancement is due to the philanthropy of such men, many of whom denounced as greedy "money-grubbers."

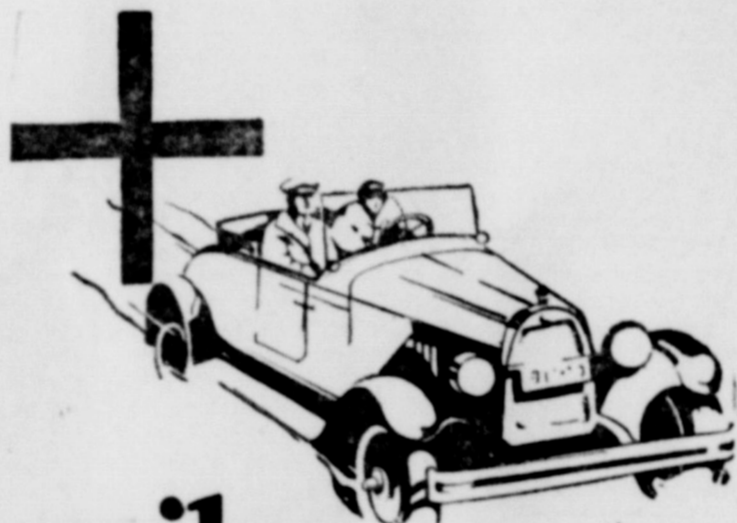

QUEER FAMILY MUDDLE

A case is reported which presents an unusual problem of relationship among the members of a certain California family. The man in the case has found a solution of the problem by giving himself up for bigamy.

Ten years ago he married a supposed widow, a Mrs. Stapleton, who had a 16-year-old daughter. Hearing later that his wife had a living husband in Texas, he left her and married the daughter, who has since borne him three children.

Recently he learned that Stapleton had really died before the widow's remarriage, consequently he finds himself with two wives on his hands, one of whom is his mother-in-law and the other his step-daughter, while his three children are the grandchildren of his first wife. A rather awkward situation for all concerned, we should say.

Many shy at Judge Lindsey's "companionate marriage" idea, probably through fear that it means husband and wife must be companions.

Buy Your Oil with Your Eyes Open

See the golden color as it pours

Many motorists do no more when buying oil than drive up and say "two quarts." Some go a step further and buy their oil by name. But the motorist who wants Texaco, and knows why he wants it, goes still further and proves that the oil he gets is the oil he pays for. He identifies it by the clean, clear, golden color of Texaco Motor Oil which is as distinctive and easily recognizable as the trade-mark on a sealed can.

See the golden color in the Texaco Comparoscope. Watch the golden stream as it pours. From then on—so long as you continue to buy golden Texaco—your engine will be free from carbon troubles and excessive wear. Consult the Texaco Lubrication Chart for the right grade to use.

TEXACO MOTOR OIL

Buy gasoline by name—TEXACO—the new and better gasoline that forms a dry gas

June 10th is Texaco Motor Oil Day, and you'll be pleased with your oil for the other 365 days in the year if you use Texaco Motor Oils, and there is a grade for every demand—and then you'll want to fill your fuel tank with New and Better Texaco Gasoline—it gives lower cost per mile and you'll be sure of quicker pick-up in traffic, quicker acceleration, more power and an engine free from knocks and carbon.

NEW and BETTER TEXACO GASOLINE

—Forms a dry gas, vaporizes at lower temperature, ignites instantly and burns completely in the cylinders, leaving no heavy ends to dilute the crank case oil. New and Better Texaco Gasoline is high test.

HEART, HEAD, HAND AND HOME CLUB HOLDS MEETING AT GILLESPIE

The girls' "Head, Hands, Heart and Health" Club met on Wednesday, May 25th in the club room at the school building for a lesson in cooking and table etiquette. Two members arrived in time to have a battle with "dusty sand", but we easily won the battle with the aid of Mr. C. R. Lail, superintendent of the Gillespie school. We thought he'd better held else "dusty sand" would get victory. Many thanks for the help, Mr. Lail.

Soon, however, other members began to arrive and we began to worry why Miss Maxwell was delayed. When we telephoned her and asked her to hurry she came in a hurry in her car and it half running, because we couldn't miss the meeting.

When she arrived we immediately began preparing lunch. We cooked English peas with white sauce, escalloped corn, shirred eggs, creamed eggs on toast, cottage cheese and wiches, soft cooked custard and punket. These, with bread and well water as a beverage made a very appetizing lunch.

Miss Maxwell gave us instructions as to how to set the table. The lunch was less appetizing to Miss Maxwell because of the shower of questions on table etiquette, but now we feel we could attend a banquet and know exactly how to act.

Those attending this meeting were Faye Alvey, president; Olive Mae Partridge, yell leader; Lorene Smedley, reporter;

Flora Lee Hunter, Elizabeth Hunter, Dorothy Gray, and Pearl Hudson.

Our next meeting is to be held June 8th at the school house. Visitors welcome, we'll be glad to have you with us. Lorene Smedley, Reporter.

Why we sell the DUNLOP TIRE

FOR 39 YEARS Dunlop has been building the world's supreme tire. Dunlops wear longer because Dunlop knows how to build better at each vital point.

Take the hidden carcass beneath the tread. Dunlop owns its own cotton mills for no other purpose than to spin the best long-fibre cotton into the famous cable-twist cord that goes into this carcass.

The extra strength in these cords means an added factor of safety against constant load and pounding of roads—longer life and greater mileage.

The extra "stretch" enables the carcass to give under severe blows, and to come back into its original position without internal injury.

The Dunlop tread—the toughest rubber development known—wears slowly and smoothly, making sure that you get out of your Dunlops, all the extra mileage that added care and longer experience have built into them. We recommend that you put Dunlops on your car.
