Most Successful Term Munday Public Schools Completed

Twenty-two Graduates Are Given Diplomas at Closing Exercises On Monday Evening

The 1927-28 term of the Munday Public Schools is history. The grand finale was written on Monday evening when in the presence of a large audience at the community auditorium diplomas were given to twenty-two boys and girls.

The various exercises that have been held during the closing days of the term have all been most enjoyable occasions and have been up to the high standard that has been maintained by our public schools in years gone by, and the general verdict of the citizenship of Munday and vicinity is that the faculty of the Munday Public Schools for the term that has just come to a close can go into the vacation season with the knowledge that they have performed their tasks in a most satisfactory manner.

The Baccalaureate services were held on Sunday morning at the community auditorium, at which time the Rev. P. D. O'Brien, pastor of the Baptist church of this city, delivered the address for the occasion, using for his text the passage of scripture which reads, "Seek ye first the Kingdom of Heaven and all these things shall be added unto you," and from which he delivered a most eloquent and forceful message.

The seventh grade graduating exercises were held on Thursday evening of last week at the community auditorium, at which time the Rev. R. B. Freeman, pastor of the Methodist church delivered a forceful address, and one which was enjoyed by a large and attentive audience.

The speaker for the graduating exercises on Monday evening was Dr. D. M. Wiggins, a member of the faculty of Simmons University, and his address was indeed a masterpiece. Brief though it was, it was filled from beginning to end with food for thought and meditation and his appeal to the youth was ever toward greater things in educational life. To our mind Dr. Wiggins' address was one of the best that we have ever had the privilege of hearing on an occasion of this kind or upon a subject of this character.

Each of the programs were interspersed with special numbers by local artists, and never have the closing exercises of our schools been more perfectly and beautifully arranged than this year, and we congratulate Supt. Rhodes and his corps of teachers upon this work in this and all other things pertaining to the year's work that has just come to a close.

Miss Erstena Lane has gone to Dallas, where she will be a student in Southern Methodist University during the summer months.

E. W. McGlothlin went to Benjamin on Wednesday to attend the meeting of the Knox-Haskell-Baylor Bankers convention.

ALBERT LORAN MAKES FINE RECORD IN ST. EDWARD'S ATHLETICS

Loran, sophomore in the school of engineering of St. Edward's has lettered in baseball for the past two years. He has held down the left field position during both seasons. He has a batting average of about .285 for the season just closed. His outstanding fielding quality is the speed and accuracy with which he gets the ball to the infield. Loran has also been a member of the St. Edward's football squad for the past two years.

Loran, a graduate of the 1926 St. Edward's Preparatory school, lettered in baseball, basketball, and football, at a prep student.

Excerpts from Opening Speech

"The industrial sections have been made prosperous at the expense of the farmer. The stock market is prosperous. Securities of the great corporations are active. The manufacturing centers are growing richer and richer. The farming sections have been growing poorer and poorer. The discrimination against agriculture must be destroyed. The Connally bill takes the tariff off the farmer's back and gives him sound and real and workable relief."

"In the World War American boys from every section of the Republic answered the summons, and on every fighting field in Europe, from Cantigny to the forests and ravines, and wire entanglements of the Argonne, blazed a pathway of glory. They gathered up the richest garlands of victory and laid them at their country's feet. Thousands sleep on the hillsides where they fell. Other thousands, in their maimed and broken bodies will bear all the way to the tomb the badge of their courage and their sacrifice for their country. Others are infirm and ill from the seeds of disease contracted in camp and in the trenches. In times of peace we must adequately provide for those who served and suffered in times of war. Our great Republic must not be ungrateful to its heroic defenders."

"I would not give the life of one American boy from an American home for all the concessions in Nicaragua. The blood of American boys is too dear to pour it out in the wilderness of Nicaragua in Guerilla warfare."

"Powerful lobbies, through propaganda, through political pressure and by the seductive blandishments of personal and political assistance and advantage, seek to influence members of the House and Senate. As your Senator, I shall oppose the granting of special favors and shall resist the efforts of the paid or secret lobbyist to secure them."

"I am a Democrat. I shall support the nominee for President of the Democratic National Convention at Houston, whoever he may be. It has been my uniform practice to support the nominee of my party."

SAVINGS CLUB FOR LEGION MEMBERS

Announcement of plans for the formation of American Legion savings club for attending the tenth national convention of the organization, to be held in San Antonio, Texas, October 8 to 12, was made here today by E. Duval, president of the First State Bank, member of the Save-to-Travel association, a national organization co-operating with the Legion in the organization of the savings clubs.

Local World War veterans are urged to get in touch at once with the bank and start their clubs so that they will have ample funds for attending the convention, which is expected to be the greatest in the history of the organization, even surpassing the epoch-making gathering in Paris last year.

Special railroad rates of a one-way fare for the round trip with diverse routing west of the Mississippi river have been granted by all the railroad associations of the United States. It was announced.

An attendance of more than 100,000 is expected at San Antonio, National Commander Edward E. Spafford has predicted that the figure may reach 150,000, in view of the fact that tens of thousands who usually attend the national gatherings of the Legion were unable to make the trip to France last year.

The greatest, most elaborate program of entertainment ever devised for a national gathering of any organization is being prepared by the convention bureau at San Antonio, according to information received by the local bank.

Headlining the program is the leading rodeo of the year, a decision prize fight, a Broadway musical show, a Mexican revue, the City of Mexico Police Band, the greatest air circus ever staged and spectacular battle exercises by the famous Second Division, of World war fame.

In addition to the entertainment at San Antonio, there will be side trips to the Mexican border and the Magic Valley of

Large Attendance At Knox County Singing Convention On Sunday

A large attendance and some mighty fine singing were the big features of the monthly meeting of Knox County singers here on Sunday afternoon, and one of the most enjoyable features of the occasion was the special numbers given by Mr. W. M. Free and three daughters of Haskell, who are ever favorites of gatherings of this character throughout this section. Gifted with most excellent voices which have been trained, this quartette fascinates audiences wherever they appear.

Then there were special numbers by local talent, of which we have an abundance, which added to the pleasure of the gathering, and those who are in the custom of attending these singing conventions say that this was one of the best that has been held in many moons.

Munday Band Getting Excellent Start For New Organization

The Munday band is meeting every Monday evening for rehearsals and is getting off to a good start under the able leadership of Prof. John Hoffman. At present there are about twelve members and all of them are getting down to work in earnest and a number of new members have made arrangements with Prof. Hoffman to receive private lessons, and it is safe to say that the band will be heard from one of these days before long.

Prof. Clayborne Harvey in a recent letter to the editor of this paper heartily commended the action of the band in securing the services of Prof. Hoffman. "You are making a wise choice, I believe, in getting Prof. Hoffman. He is a real musician and is especially capable in band music," wrote Mr. Harvey.

Mr. Hoffman is very anxious to get the instrumentation of the band thoroughly organized at the earliest date possible and if there are any musicians in the community that would like to have a part in building a good band in Munday they will receive a warm welcome from the organization.

The band meets each Monday evening at 8:30 in the Tull Hall.

THE TIGER TRAIL

by Edison Marshall Illustrations by PAUL FREHM

"The cub grew into a beautiful, tawny, full-grown tiger, seemingly as gentle as a collie. But one night when the wind blew it seemed to go mad. It attacked the Hindu woman, and she was badly torn before my father drove the creature off. In the condition that she was, her wounds were even more dangerous than they otherwise would have been. It was unquestionably the brute's intention to carry her off—and maybe you know something about tigers."

"They say that they will play for literally hours with their human prey—just as a cat plays with a mouse, with the most terrible cruelty than can be imagined. The beast attacked my father then, and leaped through the window and escaped into the marshes."

"When morning came all the negroes and my father and the Hindu tracked the tiger down—and finally killed him in the thickets. And when they got back Ahmad Das was born. On the very day, and the same hour, that the tiger died."

"Of course that's just a detail. The legend that has grown up deals with the stories that the colored people told—about something they saw thereafter."

"She paused, and in the little silence we heard some night bird give its sleepy call from the marsh."

"At first the stories were rather vague. Now and again they would get a glimpse of something tawny and alive in the thickets. Everybody laughed at first. But as time went on it got increasingly hard to laugh. Too many people told the same story. And one night a traveler stopped at the house, simply speechless with fright. He said that a tiger, clear and tawny in the moonlight, had followed his horse."

"The stories all agreed on one point. The beast was always seen either on or about this hill on which the house is built. And then, one midnight, a negro came with a candle on some errand into the library, the room we are now in. He told rather a straight story afterward. He couldn't see at first. He just heard something bounding about in the shadows—playing with the curtains. His candle-light showed him something big as an enormous hound—and yellow and black in color."

"That is substantially the legend, Dr. Long. Of course I don't want you to think twice about it—if you do you would take your bag and go. For years and years the story was just told at intervals, and not even the negroes were afraid. But two years ago—But you've heard enough. Let's talk of something else."

"If I'm to cure this house of its troubles, you'd better tell me all." I told her.

"She braced herself and continued. She was a sensible, cool-headed American girl; and I had no doubt but that the story was hard for her to tell. Already I was groping for some natural explanation for the legends."

"Two years ago Sam, one of our colored men, came wild-eyed into the house and said that he had seen the thing just below our veranda—and all of us laughed at him. Perhaps a month later one of the housemaids came with almost an identical story—she and one of the young colored men had been walking about the hillside, and the shrubbery. It makes such a story particularly disquieting, doctor, to have two people verify it."

CHAPTER III

"My father and some of the servants went out—both Ernest and I were away at school. They couldn't see in the shadows—but my father says that beyond all chance of doubt some living creature bounded through the thickets in front of them. It might have been a calf—or even a large dog."

"A few weeks ago the details began to vary. It was after my father's old friend, Mr. Hayward, and his son came to visit us. But tell me this first. Would you say the younger Mr. Hayward would be troubled with faulty nerves?"

"I saw him jump tonight when the owl hooted."

"Remember, he has spent nearly a month in this house. After a month in it, you'll jump, too. I mean, under ordinary conditions, away from the atmosphere."

"I would certainly say that Vilas Hayward had no nerves to trouble him."

"Just a few nights after his arrival, Vilas Hayward came in to dinner with a curious look of question on his face. He said he had seen something."

Josephine's eyes were full and intent upon mine, and the sentence died away. The silence of the vast room was the kind to be listened to in remote deserts, or in the mountain nights."

"Yes? I urged her.

"It isn't very pleasant," she warned.

"A doctor has the right to know all the symptoms." "He said when he came through the long hall that leads from the drawing-room something walked before him. It was in the shadows, and he could not see it plain. He asked us if we kept a great yellow and black dog, a hound as large, or larger, than a Great Dane."

"The elder Hayward and I were strolling on the course, and a few minutes before our host had been with us. He had gone into the house on some errand. Josephine was with Vilas on the veranda, and his chair was drawn close to hers. At first I wasn't thinking about Hayward or Ahmad either. I was remembering with what astonishing fortune Vilas and Josephine always seemed to be alone together."

It was a baffling thing. I couldn't think of any conscious effort in that direction. Yet seemingly powers in the sky were always throwing them together. In one instant, all the occupants of Southley Downs would be on the veranda together; in the next, a group of us would have wandered off, and Vilas and Josephine would be alone."

I wondered how much of this curious development was engineered by Josephine herself. It wasn't a particularly pleasant thing to think about. Of course, girls in this age have a right to play all their cards to win the love of a desirable man. It was all legitimate—all fair. But sometimes it seemed to me that she would have preferred to stay with the rest of us, but that some inscrutable power, mysterious and immutable, denied it. That power was either Josephine's aged father, the elder Hayward, or both."

Hayward and I were having a good night cigar together. My wrist watch indicated a few minutes after ten. And then Hayward saw a shadow waver in the moonlight of the golf green."

It was hard to see at first. Some living creature was advancing along the slope toward us—something that seemed dark and not very tall. We stood still and waited. There was nothing else to do."

Then all at once the creature's form seemed to change. I can't describe it except to say that upon one instant it appealed to me as being low and rather long, and on the next tall and narrow. The change was so abrupt that the creature seemed fairly to leap. Yet it easily could have been the effect of the moonlight or the shadows. It might have been simply a matter of perspective. At once we saw the advancing form that before had seemingly had the dimensions and outline of a huge dog was just the form of a man. But I had been enough in the mountains to know that the moon and the darkness and the jungles play strange tricks on fancy and vision."

It was Ahmad Das. He was coming in from one of his long walks. Hayward gasped behind me, and as I moved back the back of our hands touched. Hayward's felt cold. What ever had been fancy and wrong perspective before, this was the truth. His blood wasn't in his hands, as it should have been. Evidently it had all gone up to his brain, playing strange tricks with it."

Ahmad bowed to us as he passed.

"Good Lord!" Hayward breathed. "I wasn't looking for that wretch."

"He was just coming in from one of his walks."

"Those walks of his! Why don't Southley forbid 'em? I will if he don't. I'll be damned if I'll have him walking through those jungles and creeping up on us this way!"

"Creeping up on us?" I echoed. "What way?"

"Besides, what would a man want to walk around in those jungles for?" he went on, unheeding me. "Tell me that?" Then his voice changed—dropped to a whisper. "And tell me this, too, Long—and tell me the truth."

"Yes."

"Did—did you see anything curious about—about Ahmad's posture as he came up the hill? Of course, it was probably just the moonlight—yet there was something puzzling about it."

"I'll confess I didn't recognize him at once."

"That isn't it. That isn't quite it, Long. Oh, the devil! It's nonsense, anyway."

We walked up the veranda and halted for an instant on the steps for a last look over the marsh. There was a ring around the moon that promised rain. We listened to the night birds and the noise of the insect world, like the strum of a banjo infinitely remote, above the dear, gray wastes. Then Hayward touched my arm.

"If you'd go in, Long, and look at Ahmad's hands," he told me, "you'd find 'em with mud on 'em."

"Why, Mr. Hayward?"

"Because he was crawling up that hill—on hands and feet!"

Then his face grew into a scowl, and he entered the house. I had a pipe by myself after ed with her to the little sofa at the side of the room where the two had evidently been sitting; then turned to meet the man. He had followed me across the room, and not six feet was between us."

"I think, Dr. Long," Vilas cried, "that you're altogether too officious. You'd better keep out of this."

I am not just sure what I answered him. But primal passions had awakened in me, too, and the words were straight. He leaped at me, and I met him with a blow."

He recoiled, then caught at the table. And his hand reached for the silken bag on the table."

I knew that the girl was screaming. The sound rose above the noise of the storm. I leaped for him, but he whirled about the table before I could reach him. He tore the pistol from the bag. It glittered in his hand."

I had no delusions about what he would do with it. The drawn face, the smouldering eyes, told all too plainly. He was too far for me to leap at him. So I struck out the candle. The dark fell over us. The sound of the storm obliterated his breathing. It was the truce of darkness—a truce remembered from primal days."

I don't know how long it had continued when Hayward and Southley came. Their forms suddenly appeared in the open door; and each of them carried candles."

Vilas still held the pistol; and it gleamed in the candle-light."

"Vilas!" his father called. "Put down that thing!"

He hastened about the table, and my aged host leaped in front of me. I tried to push him away; and his answer was a laugh—one grim syllable of laughter, ironical."

"He won't kill me," he said. "I'm the goose—that lays the golden eggs. He won't kill me." Vilas screamed at us. The murder-madness was on him yet."

"He struck me," he cried. "The devil struck me. He's got to apologize. He found me with Josephine, and he struck me as if I were a log."

Mr. and Mrs. M. H. Reeves and children and Mr. and Mrs. Leland Hannah and little daughter left Monday for a fishing expedition on the San Saba river, and will return home the latter part of the week, and we're listening for some real fish stories upon their return.

Mr. and Mrs. R. T. Land and children spent the week end in Childress visiting relatives and friends, and from there went to Dallas and returned home with a new Ford car, which was delivered to Tom Haney.

Mr. and Mrs. Latham Bevers of Dallas are guests this week of Mr. Bevers' parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Bevers. In company with his parents they went to Wichita Falls on Tuesday for a visit with their daughter, Mrs. Frank Albright.

Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Rhodes and Miss Hulett Rhodes left Wednesday for Grand Saline, where they will visit relatives for a few days before taking up their studies again for the summer. Mr. Rhodes was undecided as to whether he would attend the State Teachers College at Denton or the University of Texas during the summer.

Pierce Voss, who is a student in Draughons Business College at Abilene, was here during the week end visiting in the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Voss.

Mrs. Tom Haney had as her guests during the week end her father, Mr. John Moore, her sister, Mrs. J. H. Sides, a niece, Miss Francis Palmer Sides and a cousin, Richard Moore, all of Wichita Falls. All of them returned home Sunday afternoon except Miss Sides, who will remain for a more extended visit.

Mrs. A. J. Glasgow has returned from Cisco, where she has been at the bedside of her daughter, Mrs. E. F. Sparks, who underwent an operation some time ago, and who has sufficiently recovered to be returned to her home at Rising Star.

Mr. and Mrs. H. V. Standley left first of the week for Abilene where Mr. Standley will teach for some weeks in the summer school at Abilene Christian College. In September they will go to Kirkland, Texas, where Mr. Standley has been elected to the superintendency of the schools.

The W. M. S. of the Methodist Church South met in the home of Mrs. P. V. Williams Monday afternoon in a business meeting. Devotional reading, Luke 15, was given by Mrs. D. T. Mauldin; Ellen Francis Mauldin read, "Nellies Gift," "God Made Manifest," was read by Mrs. Jno. Lane. Mrs. Maples and Mrs. P. V. Williams sang a duet. Missionary work, Mrs. McStay. Business was attended to and Mrs. McStay requested that we rid ourselves of the "White Elephant" just as soon as possible.

Mrs. Hulme, Mrs. G. L. Beck, Mrs. Jno Mims, Mrs. G. L. Pruitt and Miss Shaws were visitors. In our social hour, we were highly entertained. The hostesses were Mrs. P. V. Williams, Mrs. Maples and Mrs. R. B. Freeman.

Miss Lillian goes back to Goree and Miss Jewel has accepted a place in the Munday schools. She was elected to her former place at Royse City, but declined for the school at Munday. A Great Short Course

By Phebe K. Warner

When this little message reaches you this week, the greatest Educational Short Course ever held in Texas will be in full swing down in San Antonio. Tonight, as I write these lines, passenger trains from every state in this Union are headed toward Texas and San Antonio, and thousands of women from every corner of every state are speeding toward our Alamo City.

No more interesting spot in all Texas could have been selected to hold this Great Short Course. In San Antonio our world wide guests will meet the oldest and the newest in our grand old State. Rich in our earliest history of our State, beautiful in the natural setting God made for her San Antonio will also present for the comfort and convenience of the delegates of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, the very latest and best. In no other city in the whole Southwest could the women of the nation find the antique and the modern so beautifully blended. The home of those grand old Missions, first emblems of a new Christian civilization, San Antonio is also the gate-way to a new and undeveloped Western world filled with future possibilities and opportunities for millions of homeless people to yet own a spot called home. It will be almost unbelievable to thousands of our national guests how perfectly our glorious past, our progressive present and our hopeful future are linked together in beautiful San Antonio.

VIVID YOUTH, DULL AGE. MAKING THE MISSISSIPPI SAFE. DEPEW WISE MAN COULD COOLIDGE SAY NO?

In youth impressions are vivid, and last into old age. Therefore, the manuscript of "Alice in Wonderland" sells for $75,250, a record price, more than would have been paid for the manuscript of Dante's "Inferno," or of Voltaire's "Zadig," each worth a thousand "Alice in Wonderland" manuscripts.

Years dull imagination. Millions that remember "Robinson Crusoe," "Swiss Family Robinson," "Gulliver's Travels" vividly have a faint impression of more important books read later.

Washington reporters say, probably inaccurately, that President Coolidge is "shocked" at the suggestion of $750,000,000 to make the Mississippi River safe.

A country that could give TEN THOUSAND MILLIONS TO EUROPE, add half a billion a year to railroad receipts, and plan, wisely, to cut $200,000,000 a year from corporation taxes, need not shudder at the thought of spending part of a billion to make the Mississippi safe.

CHAUNCEY M. DEPEW, dead in his ninety-fourth year, older than the Republican party, which he served long and faithfully, said: "I have lived long because I could laugh at anything."

Of Napoleon, it was said that in his youth "no one ever saw him laugh." He didn't live ninety-three years, but he did live more in one day than available Mr. Dewey in all his ninety-four years.

Chauncey Dewey attended 8,000 banquets and never let boredom drive him into eating too much. That's wisdom.

He campaigned for Lincoln, got $1.75 for his first legal services, lived under twenty-four Presidents, from Andrew Jackson to Calvin Coolidge, and knew thirteen of them personally. How many can name the twenty-four from Jackson on?

Mr. Darrow of the House Naval Affairs Committee, told President Coolidge his friends "still hoped he would be a candidate." The President replied: "I am afraid they will have to be disappointed."

Die-hard Coolidge enthusiasts will find SOME comfort in that word "afraid." A man cannot help being persuaded if arguments are good.

Suppose the President were convinced, as he may be, that his re-nomination and re-election, a second time, would boom business, increase Never since Texas became the Lone Star State has there been so many interesting and interested women on their way to her historic center as there are tonight. I just love to sit here by myself and think about them. And wonder what it will all mean. First of all, what will it all mean to Texas. And last, what will Texas mean to all her visitors. A great exchange of thought and interest and sentiment is going on in Texas this week. Literally car load lots of life long local prejudices are being wiped out entirely. What a joyous awakening it will be to thousands of our club sisters to discover that the women of Texas are just like women expect, perhaps a wee bit friendlier. Just the plain, natural human spirit of Texas is the most beautiful thing in the state and how appropriately this spirit will fit into the spirit of the nineteenth biennial. "The Fine Art of Living." Nor will this wholesale elimination of social prejudice be a one sided, mental house cleaning. Forever after the nineteenth biennial has passed into history there will be not only a more wholesome understanding of the Spirit of Texas by the women of our nation, but our own Texas women will have discovered by this beautiful contact with other women of the nation that all women are bigger and better and more sympathetic and kindly than we had ever known. And another thing that many of us will observe is that the bigger and more influential any woman is the more human and natural she is.

After all, women are just women, the wide world over, and like men, the better we know one another and the better we understand ourselves the more patience and sympathy we will have for all women. And it is simply marvelous what women have discovered about themselves the past six years since they first began an intensive study of their own natures, possibilities and opportunities.

And that is just what the women of the General Federation are needing for in San Antonio. It is to take one more general lesson on their life problems. Review the past employment, stabilize prosperity, and free his party from oil stain danger, could he continue to say no?

Aviation is a reality, says General Atterbury, and railroads should know it. He is said to plan for the Pennsylvania a part railroad, part flying machine service from the Atlantic to the Pacific.

The traveler would spend daylight in the flying machine, night hours on the train, cross the continent in forty-eight hours, avoiding mountain flying. This rumor is not guaranteed.

New York merchants report business excellent in women's apparel. They buy more of it and less of it, more garments, less material in them. "Fiber underwear for ladies makes its appearance in several stores. Silk of wood, underwear of paper—not pleasant news for cotton growers.

Old British builders of wooden ships who said ships made of steel would sink in heavy storms would be interested in the Leviathan's latest trip.

She reached New York with her fore-castle deck smashed, deck structures badly twisted by a wave said to be 150 feet high, that dropped 1,000,000 pounds of water on her deck at once.

Men build ships that the ocean cannot sink. Water waves are heavier than air waves. Airships will soon be built that no air wave will worry.

In Seattle a tiny Pomeranian barked too much. Its owner wanted the vocal chords removed, reducing the bark to a gesture, but humane societies said "No."

Dog Trainer Sanderlin removed the bark in two weeks by training. "Obedience is the secret," says he. "I taught Darke (the Pomeranian) the meaning of the words 'Shut up.' That trainer might make a fortune in politics.

progress, correct and improve methods and take a sane look into the future and then go home to get ready for that future. And the future means any and all time from this second on into eternity.

But while there are only a few thousand women who are conducting and attending this great short course on human problems there are twenty-six million women in our nation whose lives will be touched by the work they will do, and one million of these women live right here in Texas. It is to you, the larger part of the General Federation, both in and out of Texas, this message is sent. You are the women who will have to put the program over after the Biennial is over. You are the people who will have to carry on else there would never be another biennial. What are you going to get out of this greatest meeting of women ever held in Texas?

We have only one suggestion to make. Get the scissors and a little box. Keep them close to you all week and clip everything you see in any paper about the biennial, and you will have piles of material for your club programs for years. Or at least until all the ideas of today have gone out of date. It will be impossible for any of us to remember or even hear if we were there a small part of the fine lessons that will be taught at this short course. But we can collect them and save them and when we need something on education, citizenship, legislation, literature, fine arts, junior membership, or the American home, go to your biennial box and you'll find it. The work of salvaging this convention to use in the future is one of the greatest opportunities for all of us. You will never know how badly you will need these clippings until some day you will be called on to do something in your club and then you will say: "Oh if I had only saved that article I saw during the biennial."

This is the only sure way to bring the biennial home to you. Don't miss it. No matter whether you are a club woman or not. You may be some day. Anyway there will be food for thought for every woman in these biennial reports. This biennial is not just for the club women of the world but for all women and every home in America.

A lot of us have been busy for the past two years trying to tell ourselves and others what the biennial was going to be. Today it really is. The time has come and the club women of the world are in our state at San Antonio. The greatest compliment we can pay them is to get all the last good possible out of their coming to our state.

TO THE CITIZENS OF THIS COMMUNITY:

I wish to express my appreciation in having had the privilege of residing among you. Never before have I felt such a close friendship of a people within such a short time as I have here at Munday and at Rhineland. But we cannot live on that alone. We must establish and maintain something that will help us in the future. The following explains our leaving. As the State of Texas has no chiropractic Board, it is rather difficult to proceed with a practice, as a Chiropractor should and would desire to have. Oklahoma has a license for Chiropractic—one that is strong and reliable. Twenty-six other states will recognize this license. Under an efficient and progressive Chiropractic organization as that of Oklahoma, the Chiropractors are allowed to manifest their successful works in obstetrical cases and acute abnormalities, such as typhoid fever, scarletina, smallpox, pneumonia, etc. Startling results have been experienced in such occurrences. Let me not cause you to misunderstand me. I do not think that Chiropractic is the only thing in everything. Every science has its place. But Chiropractic should not be judged only by the results it has had with chronic cases given up by all other sciences.

I have been asked to locate at a place in Oklahoma where there is no doctor of any kind. Where people have had real experience with Chiropractic, want the services of a Chiropractor in their territory.

I want to thank you for your patronage to me, both socially and professionally.

Dr. J. Kelly Warkentin.

HINTS FOR THE HOME

How much extra freshness can be given to the home in summer by the addition of a few colorful prints, chosen with special care to have them suggest all that is cool and delightful.

A Corot landscape; one of Hein's forest lanes; a wide stretch of sandy beach with whitecaps rolling in; perhaps the foundation corner of a lovely French garden, or a group of old-fashioned flower prints—Can't you see these pictures dressing up the old familiar corners until they seem like entirely different rooms?

We need to remember that exquisite color prints of the world's best pictures are within the reach of all of us today. We are quite ready to invest in new slip covers and draperies when summertime comes. Let us not forget that fresh, colorful pictures are equally important in planning enjoyable summer homes.

Washing Milk Glasses
Tumblers or pitchers that have held milk should never be put directly into hot water. Rinse first with cold water to prevent cloudiness.

Prevents Tarnish
If a lump of camphor is put in the chest or drawer where silver is kept it will prevent the silver from tarnishing.

Removes Scorch Marks
If you scorch garments when ironing, just remember to lay the scorched part in the strong sunlight, and the discoloration will soon disappear.

When Locks Won't Unlock
Often the out-of-order lock only needs a little oil to put it in a good humor again. Instead of pouring it into the lock, however—just dip the key in oil.

Borax Removes Coffee Stains
To remove old stains of chocolate, coon, coffee and tea, moisten the spot with cold water, cover with borax, and let stand for a few minutes. Rinse with boiling water.

For the Small Room
Hang a large mirror at one end of the very small room and you will greatly increase its feeling of size and space. This also brightens the room, for the mirror will catch and multiply each ray of light.

We read that in the days of Good Queen Bess dinner guests brought their own knives and spoons to the table. Nowadays hostesses are lucky if the guests do not carry away some of hers as souvenirs.

Cash Notice

We wish to announce that after June 1st we will operate our business on a strictly cash basis. This move is made necessary by the fact that our merchandise is sold on a small margin of profit and our expense of doing business will not permit us making charge accounts and collections.

We appreciate your business and trust that we may be favored with a continuance of the patronage that has been accorded us in the past, and assure you that the change of policy is not the result of mistrust, but is made simply as a matter of necessity.

Very respectfully,

A Garage Is An Interesting Place!

Some twenty years ago there wasn't a garage in Munday! And it took all day to go from here to Abilene in a horse and buggy.

But in this year of 1928 A. D. Munday has sixteen good garages. It is an astonishing growth for a space of twenty years or less—but there's a real reason for that growth.

Automobiles have become a necessary part of the busy man's life. They save him years of time, and with the improvement they have undergone in the past year, particularly, they promise to become more and more necessary.

Munday is fortunate in its garages! Our garage men know the automobile game. They handle only the most reliable makes of cars, and the service they offer with those cars is invaluable.

It will pay you to talk to our garage men about the automobile business. They can tell you some interesting things.

YOUR FIDELITY TO THE CHURCH

The church is the power house of the christian religion. Paul said: "The church is the fullness of Him that filleth all in all." What are you doing for this power house of Christianity? A filled church doubles the power of the preacher; empty pews take the heart out of him. Are you adding power Sunday morning and evening by your presence or are you holding back the work of your church by your carelessness and absence? The man who spends no time at home is disloyal to his family; the man who stays away from church is disloyal to his church, for if all were like him there would be no church.

God cannot lie and will not say, "Well done," if you have not done well. You are not dealing fairly with your brothers and sisters in the church, if you stay away from the services, and let them do your work as well as their own. Your absence weakens and belittles the work of the minister. "I beseech you, brethren, that you present your bodies a living sacrifice, holy, acceptable unto God, which is your reasonable service."

The character and influence of a church are determined by the number and character of the persons who attend its services. Small audiences mean a minimum of influence. Crowd a church with people and the sowing and reaping will be wonderfully effective at almost every service. Neglect of the church by all of its members (doing just like you are doing, if they do not attend) would soon destroy the church from the face of the earth, and the result would be terrible to think of. Do you really want to be on record as favoring what your actions or lack of action tend to show? Every time you are absent from the church unnecessarily you vote against the church, and your church in particular. No church member can grow in grace and usefulness who does not attend the church regularly. No one else can grow in grace and usefulness who does not attend the church regularly. No one else can ever accomplish the particular good that would result from your attendance. Nobody else can fill your place; it is always empty when you are not there.

"Remember the Sabbath day and keep it holy." The auto is a blessing if it brings you to church, but a curse if it takes you away from the place in which God expects to find you. Bring your company with you; let them know that God and your church are first on the Lord's day and they will honor you for it. If not, they are not worthy of your friendship. At any rate, God's friendship comes first. You are almost sure to backslide if you stay away from church when it is possible for you to come, for the very fact that you are not there means that you have lost some of our zeal for God. Our church needs you Sunday morning and evening and the Lord is sorely disappointed when you are absent. Think of what old age and death will mean to you, if you continue to be unfaithful. "Be thou faithful upon death and I will give thee a crown of life," but what if we are not faithful?—Methodist Reporter.

ITALY'S FISTIC HERO A BILL FOR THOUGHT THE PLACE FOR SPEED MEDALS FOR FLYERS

Italy's heavyweight champion is here, 22 years old, 6 feet 2 inches tall, weight 235 pounds. Boxing two and a half years, each of his ten opponents kindly became unconscious in four rounds or less. This descendant of Roman gladiators, Umberto Torrisio, is artistic, sings, plays several musical instruments and could lecture on Verdi. He seems to be the natural, physical and mental opponent for Tunney.

Torrisio would interest local talent by offering to revive the old Roman boxing with the cestus, a glove of heavy things loaded with iron or brass, making it unnecessary for the referee to count.

The McNary-Haugen bill is enthusiastically passed by the Senate. There are customs existing. The House will pass it also, many that vote for it counting on the President's veto to counteract their vote. That the President will veto the bill is probable and that it will be passed over his veto is probable.

According to wise men, some "best minds" far removed from farming, now approve the bill. Anything to make the farmers more prosperous would be welcome, but the so-called "farmers bill" may surprise farmers when understood.

According to wise ones, the Government would tell packers at what price they must buy wheat and tell flour men at what price they must buy wheat. And the Government would guarantee profits to packers and flour men. After they had sold all the American public would buy, at prices most increased, of course, packers, millers, cotton men, etc., would "dump" the balance in foreign markets at any price obtainable.

And whatever the "processors" lost by dumping, the Government would make up in hard cash taken from taxpayers. There is an equalization plan of doubtful value.

Another feature of the bill would be complicated bookkeeping and inspection, involving gigantic armies of additional public servants. When a packer buys a pig he changes it into scores of products. He would report profits and losses to the Government, and the Government would have to investigate every detail. The prospect of Government price-fixing, with guarantees and inflation, worries some men that think Racing on the sand at Daytona Beach, in his Black Hawk Special speed car, going more than 200 miles an hour, Frank Lockhart blew out a rear tire. His car bounced 300 feet, "turned several somersaults" and landed upside down. Lockhart was killed.

This unfortunate death of a daring automobile racer is a warning to those that indulge in excessive speed. The air, not the ground, is the place for speeding.

President Coolidge will give medals to six heroes—three recently arrived, the Frenchmen, Costes and Lebrun, and the able Italian the Marquis de Pinedo.

He might add one medal for Miss Junkers, daughter of the man that made the westward flying airplane, responsible for the trip's success. Through all the excitement she has kept out of the limelight, and that deserves a medal.

A German scientist proposes "one clock for the entire scientific world." The exact time would be broadcast throughout the world by radio. It would be correct within one-one-hundred-thousandth part of a second, which seems excessive accuracy to the layman.

One "in a star synchronizer" would do the work for the whole world.

Thinking Out Loud!

The democratic convention at Beaumont is history, and contrary to the pre-convention prognostications of many political wisecracks Gov. Dan Moody came through with flying colors, and failed to place his feet in political traps that were skillfully laid by conniving politicians. Dan may not have done things just as he would like to have done them, but it must be remembered that he was surrounded on both sides by certain politicians that would have gloried in his downfall. On one side was Tom Love and certain political henchmen, who for no visible cause were opposing him, and on the other were the Smith-Ferguson faction, who were opposed to him for certain very visible reasons, and considering all things, Dan Moody has accomplished what few men in Texas could have done.

Politicians make strange bedfellows, anyway. Can one imagine Little Oscar Colquitt lining up with the Tom Love ultra-dry faction? And there's Bob Henry, who only a few short years ago was extolling the principles of the Klan, was down at Beaumont fighting for an instructed delegation for Al Smith.

Personally the editor of this paper will take very little stock in politics. We've never been a fanatic on politics, and are usually content to go to the polls and vote our convictions without trying to influence anyone. But we shall support Hon. Tom Connally for United States Senator and are glad to commend him to our friends. Connally is fifty years of age and fifty years in Texas. Farm reared and farm trained. Educated in the rural schools and at Baylor University and University of Texas. Left the university to join the army in war with Spain. Left his seat in Congress to serve as a soldier in Congress has advocated farm relief measures and the regulation of cotton exchanges. AUTO PRODUCTION

Production of automobiles and trucks in the United States during 1927 was approximately 20 per cent below that of 1926, principally due to the curtailment at the Ford plant in preparation for the new model.

Even with this reduction the United States produced last year 81.6 per cent of world's output, followed by England with 5.5 per cent, France with 4.6, Canada with 4.3 and all other countries combined only 4 per cent.

Automobiles ranked third among all United States exports, the greatest number going to any single country being taken by Australia. Cotton and petroleum were the only products exceeding automobiles in export value. Only 635 motor vehicles were imported during the year.

Kansas and California have one car for each three persons, having the highest percentage according to population. Alabama and Georgia have the lowest, with one car for each twelve persons. The total number of motor vehicles in use in the United States at the end of 1927 was 23,127,315 and the industry ranked first in the total value of its output, with meat packing second, steel third, petroleum fourth and printing and publishing fifth.

The number of motor vehicles in use today is four times as great as that of only ten years ago. And we thought we had some automobiles in 1918.

AIR RECORD BREAKING

So rapidly are new air records being made that it is difficult to keep pace with them. Before a magazine article recounting some wonderful feat has gotten into print a still more wonderful one is told in the newspapers.

In his ordinary routine of taking persons on airplane flights for hire, he was engaged by one Clarence Frechett of Detroit to make a trip to Pontiac. As they neared their destination, Frechett seized a hammer and began striking Anderson over the head, knocking the pilot unconscious. After the plane had dived about 1,800 feet Anderson recovered consciousness in time to make a very rough landing in which both were injured, but not seriously.

Appropriately, the landing happened to be made in the grounds of the Pontiac insane asylum, which was a very suitable destination for Frechett, who was raving crazy.

The moral of this seems to be that when piloting a plane for a stranger it would be a wise precaution to see that he is securely shackled before taking off. Or the pilot should wear heavy armor.

TOURISTS IN CANADA

In a recent speech in Vancouver, Hon. William Phillips, United States minister to Canada, made the rather surprising statement that American tourists spent about $260,000,000 in the Dominion last year.

He predicted that this amount may be doubled in the next ten years and lauded the scenic beauties and other attractions of Canada, which he termed "a giant Switzerland," with an all the year appeal for those who seek the joys of outdoor life.

There is no doubt that thousands of Americans who now spend much time in Europe would devote more attention to Canada if its attractions were better known throughout the states. And an increased intermingling of the two populations would tend to still more strongly cement the traditional friendship between them.

have accomplished thrilling feats in the air.

But Lindbergh holds a record that is still unique in two respects. He is the only person to fly across the Atlantic alone and the only one to cross it in an airplane who picked his exact destination in advance and landed there without a stop. Someone may duplicate his feat some day, but his record has stood for a year—and that is a long time in these days of new records overnight.

WHY HE WENT CRAZY

This story, with various modifications, has been doing duty for a good while, but for the benefit of the younger generation who have not chanced to run across it we tell it again.

It concerns an inmate of a lunatic asylum, who on being asked by a visitor how he got that way, replied:

"It all started when I married a widow with a grown-up daughter. Then my father, being a widower, married the daughter. That made my step-daughter my step-mother, and my father became my step-son; my wife also becoming the mother-in-law of her father-in-law.

"Then my step-mother had a son, who was my brother, being my father's son; but as the boy was the grandson of my wife, he was also my grandson.

"Then my wife and I had a son. My father's wife is my son's half-sister and also his grandmother. Now, it is easy to see that my father became my step-son by marrying my step-daughter. Therefore, being my father's father, I am my own grandfather."

The visitor stopped the lunatic at this point, thoroughly satisfied as to why he went crazy.

MANIAC IN A PLANE

Ordinary hazards of flying are sufficient to keep a pilot fairly occupied, but Henry Anderson of Roseville, Mich., encountered a most unusual one a few days ago which might well have turned his brain to correspond with that of his passenger.

In his ordinary routine of taking persons on airplane flights for hire, he was engaged by one Clarence Frechett of Detroit to make a trip to Pontiac. As they neared their destination, Frechett seized a hammer and began striking Anderson over the head, knocking the pilot unconscious. After the plane had dived about 1,800 feet Anderson recovered consciousness in time to make a very rough landing in which both were injured, but not seriously.

Make her home pleasant, so that she will not be anxious to leave it for an inferior one.

Encourage her to attend church, Sunday school, club meetings and other places where the right kind of people may be met, urging her to be particularly careful in choosing her girl associates.

These are all excellent suggestions, even though they do not always secure the desired results, and the mother who follows them will have done about all that it is possible to do for her daughter.

Some years ago when Eugene Diendenne of Paris was sentenced to life imprisonment on Devil's Island he persuaded his wife to secure a divorce in order to escape the humiliation his conviction had brought her. He later escaped, was finally pardoned and has now re-married his wife. There is the germ of a movie plot or something in that story.

The most superstitious man recently heard from is I. S. Berlin of Chicago. He was issued motor license number 13, but sent it back for exchange. Next he got number 58, but noting that the sum of the two figures was 13, he returned that. Then he received number 67, the sum of those digits also produced the fatal number. He will try again.

BOYS AND SCIENCE

Boys of the present generation are popularly supposed to be rather wild, just as girls and older folks are supposed to be. To hear the pessimists tell it, nearly everybody is on the down grade.

This being a quite widespread belief, it is reassuring to read a bit of news from Odenville, Alabama, where the boys of the St. Clair high school have organized the Lindbergh Science Club. Its object is stated by the boys to be "to develop more interest in science and actually prove it by experiments." Members pay a small monthly fee for the purchase of apparatus and books. Meetings are held weekly.

This is certainly a fine idea, worthy of wide imitation. And it shows that all boys are not thinking exclusively of jazz and its modern accomplishments.

ARTICLE No. 21

Here are three interesting hands that came up in play the other evening and caused considerable difference of opinion. See what you think of them and compare results with the analysis that will be given in the next article.

Problem No. 23

Hearts—K, Q, 7
Clubs—K, J, 8, 4
Diamonds—J, 7, 6, 2
Spades—K, J

No score, first game. If Z dealt the foregoing hand, what is his proper opening bid, if any?

Problem No. 24

Hearts—K, Q, 10, 4
Clubs—9
Diamonds—6
Spades—K, Q, J, 10, 9, 8, 6

No score, rubber game. Z dealt and passed. A bid one club, Y bid four spades and B bid five clubs. Z doubled. A passed, Y bid five spades and B bid six clubs. Z doubled and all passed. What is Y's proper opening lead?

Problem No. 25

Hearts—Q, J, 9, 8, 5, 2
Clubs—8, 3
Diamonds—A, K, J, 9, 7
Spades—none

No score, A-B a game in. What should Z as dealer bid with the foregoing hand?

Answer to Problem No. 22

Hearts—5	Clubs—A, 10, 5, 3	Diamonds—none	Spades—5, 4
Hearts—4	Clubs—J, 8	Diamonds—5, 4	Spades—J, 9
Hearts—Q, 3	Clubs—K	Diamonds—K, Q	Spades—10, 8

Hearts are trumps and Z is in the lead. How can Y-Z win six of the seven tricks against any defense? Z should lead the king of clubs, all following suit. He should then lead the king of diamonds, all following suit except Y, who should discard a spade. Z should then lead the queen of diamonds, all following suit except Y who should trump with the five of hearts. Y should now lead the five of clubs, all following suit except Z who should trump with the queen of hearts. Z should now lead the ace of hearts, all following suit except Y who should discard his last spade. Y discarding his last spade leads clubs up to Y's last trick, having queen nine.

This is a very and its solution the queen of hearts enables Z to lead

In the preceding article the following problem hand was given as an illustration of the value of sizing up your hand and planning your line of play at the first trick. Unless you do so then, it may be "everlastingly too late."

Answer to Problem No. 21

Hearts—K, 3
Clubs—K, 7, 3
Diamonds—A, J, 9, 5, 2
Spades—Q, 5, 3

Hearts—A, J, 10
Clubs—A, 6, 4
Diamonds—Q, 10, 3
Spades—K, J, 9, 6

No score, rubber game. Z dealt, bid one no-trump and all passed. A opened the six of hearts, B played the king and Z won the trick with the ace. How should Z plan the play of the hand? The point of this hand should be very evident. Z has two suits to play for, spades and diamonds, and must decide at the first trick which suit to play for. The natural play is to try to set up the diamond suit for it is longer and stronger than the spade suit. Z should realize, however, that if B holds the king of diamonds he will win the second trick and lead back his partner's heart suit. Then, after the hearts are cleared, A, if he holds the ace of spades, can get back in the lead with it, make his set-up hearts and thus prevent Z from scoring game.

Therefore, Z's proper play at trick two is to play for the spade suit and force A to play the ace if he holds it. If he doesn't, no harm is done. The ace of spades in A's hand is a positive re-entry and must be got out of the way before his heart suit is set up. Played in this manner, Z cannot help but go game, no matter how the cards lie.
