

How to Play BRIDGE

Series 1927-28 by Wynne Ferguson
Author of "PRACTICAL AUCTION BRIDGE"

Copyright 1927, by Wynne J. Ferguson

It is really surprising what simple mistakes are made by players who think they play a pretty fair game. Here are several examples that the writer noticed in a recent game:

Hearts—K, 6, 3
Clubs—J, 4
Diamonds—K, 7, 6, 3, 2
Spades—J, 10, 8

Y :
A B :
Z :

Hearts—Q, 9, 4
Clubs—A, 10, 7
Diamonds—A, 8
Spades—A, Q, 7, 6, 2

Z dealt, hid one spade, A and Y passed and B bid two hearts. Z led two spades, all pass. A and A opened the ten of hearts. Z copper play, of course, in the king of hearts in dummy. B must either win this trick with the ace or allow the king to hold. If he wins the trick, Z must win the next two heart tricks, for he holds the queen nine of hearts cover his jack. If B should fail to play the ace, Z must win one more trick with the queen of hearts. In either event, Z wins, by playing the king of hearts at trick one. Z is sure of two tricks, no matter how B plays. In the actual play, however, Z made a serious mistake.

When the ten of hearts was led, he played the ten of hearts from Y's hand and B also played low. Z was thus forced to win the trick with the queen and it now held the ace jack of hearts over Y's king and was, therefore, assured of two tricks.

Z's mistake in this hand, however, was not over. Z, on winning the first heart trick with the queen, led a low diamond and won the trick in Y's hand with the king. He now had two possible plays. He could lead the jack of spades or the low club, with the purpose in view of finessing in either case. His proper lead was the jack of spades. If this house should lose, he would have a re-entry in Y's hand with the ten of spades. If B should cover with the king of spades, Z should play his ace and win. If B should not cover, Z should lead the low club and play the queen from his own hand. If this house loses, he will thus have a re-entry with the jack of clubs in Y's hand.

Z, however, thought of none of these facts. He proceeded to lead the jack of clubs from Y's hand and A won the trick with the king. He returned a low heart and B won two heart tricks with the ace jack. B then led a low club which Z was obliged to win with the queen of clubs in his own hand. He now had no way to get Y's hand in the lead except by trumping a club. He trumped with the eight of spades and B over-trumped with the nine. As B originally held the K, 9, 5 of spades, he also made the king of spades so that Y-Z scored only two odd.

On the other hand, if Z had played his finesses correctly he would have scored four odd and game, provided, of course, that he had played the king of hearts at trick one. It is mistakes such as Z made in this hand that lose so many games, and the sad part of it is that they are all so easy to avoid. Let us think out your plays in advance and select the one that gives you the best chance for game.

Here is another hand that illustrates the value of planning your finesses so that you will get a double chance for game, instead of a single one:

Hearts—J, 7, 6, 2
Clubs—J, 10
Diamonds—none
Spades—9, 8

Y :
A B :
Z :

Hearts—K, 10
Clubs—K, 8, 7
Diamonds—5
Spades—K, 4

Hearts—none
Clubs—A, Q, 9, 5, 4
Diamonds—none
Spades—A, Q, 10

Y-Z can win all of the tricks. He has two possible finesses, one in clubs and one in spades. If he leads the jack of clubs, he is sure of the balance of the tricks. If B covers with the king, Z will play low and put Y's hand again in the lead with the ten of clubs. He can then finesse the spades. If B doesn't cover the jack of clubs, Z should then play the low spade and finesse the queen. He should then play first the ace of clubs and then a small club and trump in Y's hand. He can then trump a heart, lead the ace of spades and his clubs are good. Played in either of these ways, as the game started, afraid he might get wet, like some of the upper classmen did, but we saw the game through, that is until the rain stopped it. No matter if five Sophomores did have to come home on the train, we have one consolation, we stayed behind our team until the finish. Lucille Price spent the week-end with her parents.

ROUNDHOUSE

The players, we were the best represented class there. You can judge the enthusiasm of a class by the representation at these games. The Sophs went to Haskell full of enthusiasm and pep, determined to stand by their team, until the finish. We did not come home as soon who live at Pleasant View.

Antecedents of pronouns

Always been rather difficult for us, and we could not help feeling a little sympathetic for J. C. last week when he gave the sentence: When Godfrey got close to the horse, he saw that it was not Squire Cass' son. It took the whole class to convince him that "it" referred to the horse and not to the man.

Freshmen

The Freshmen may be the youngest in high school, but we are not doing the least. The upper classmen certainly poured it on us in the Round-house last week, but most of us are good natured, and let little things like this pass.

Being Freshmen is not the most agreeable thing in the world, but there's one consolation, one can always out grow it. Especially when they have the brains and ambition that we have.

All our boys are crippled this week from playing football, but just the same they aren't the kind to give up.

Miss Mills has quite a time with us, as we think the curtains are such nice play things. They make such funny noises when they are pulled up and down.

Our boys certainly showed their stuff at Haskell Friday. Freshmen who played in the game were: Paul Pruitt, Elmo Wilson, Gilbert Myers and Howard Kyle.

Our girls help in athletic feats also. Most of them are in the pep squad and they can sure use their voices in boosting our team. Freshmen have more pep, than the upper class men, and of course, make better pep squad members, and football players.

Latin Club

The Latin Club met Thursday, September 29, 1927, in a regular meeting. The roll was called and the minutes were read, after which all new and old business was disposed of in a brief business session. A committee was appointed to decide the place for our next meeting.

The program was then turned over to Christine Chapman, chairman of the program committee, and we were entertained by an interesting program on Roman subjects. We then had the critic's report of the program.

Following the program we sang several Latin songs, one being "America", which we have adopted for our club song.

The meeting was then adjourned.

'N We Laughed

Kind old lady (who had just given J. C. some sweets: "And now, my little man, what do you say?"
J. C.: "Got any more?"

Mrs. Standley: "Just think, we have been married twelve years today."

Mr. Standley: "Yes, for twelve years we have fought."

Mrs. Standley: "What?"
Mr. Standley: "— life's battles together, my dear."

Chandler: "A penny for your thoughts."
Madge: "Darn it; just my luck not to be thinking."

Hubert: "Did you ever notice how a woman lowers her voice when she asks a favor?"
Paul: "Yeh, and raises it when she doesn't get it?"

Miss Kennedy (telling the story of the burglary): "I was aroused from sleep one night by footsteps in the hall. I heard the creak of a door, and saw two burglars step into the room; just then the clock struck one."
Mr. Elliott: "Which one?"

Earl: "I'm going to marry a girl who can take a joke."
Joe: "That's the only kind you could get."

Mr. Palmer (in history class): "What caused the Era of Good Feeling?"
Roy (a brilliant student): "Little Wonder Liver Pills."

Miss Mills: "Give me a definition for matrimony, Madeline."
Madeline: "Well, when a woman does housework at six dollars a week, that's domestic service; but when she does it for nothing, that's matrimony."

Mrs. McHunt: "Dead! Dead!"
Dear me! Poor Mrs. Shorter has gone to join the great majority."

Mr. McHunt: "Now my dear, I wouldn't say that! She was a good woman, so far as we know."

Mr. Rhodes: "My dear, why don't you ask me for advice on the matter?"
Mrs. Rhodes: "I intend to just as soon as I decide what I'm going to do."

Miss Lane: "Johnny, what is a mouth organ?"

Always Boosting For

A Small Town Man

Big men grow in small towns and frequently move to the city.

It seems to me that the small town boy and man develops character and personality because in the smaller groups there is time for close personal contacts, for meditation and for the seasoning of the finer things inside one's self. There is not the frenzied bustle that leaves little time for turning one's thoughts in on one's self. City life tends to make men all alike—mill-run, standardized automations who know how to catch cars, talk shop, race and run to and from work, to live and die in a hurry.

In a city a man may live pretty much as he pleases and few may know of his goings and comings. In a small town everybody knows everybody's business. A small town person must be a real man or a real woman—or be classified otherwise by that untiring and most observant small town public opinion. A man in a small town must live his life for all his little world to see. He must be himself—and that is a rare privilege in modern city life today. In being himself he grows big—as big as his God-given talents fit him for. He is an individual.

And then the call of opportunity, more money, fame, success, comes from the larger centers—the men who stand out above the crowd in the smaller places hear and frequently answer that call.

In the smaller towns of America today so many men are struggling to make money with the thought in mind of going to some city to spend it and also to spend that rich period of their maturer years.

Would it not be better for America if the small town man of ability would devote some of his energy to the task of making his home town a better, brighter, happier place to live and stay there with his friends of a lifetime than to look upon that little town merely as a place to gather gold with which to go somewhere else and enjoy life—or what years may be left of it?

"A Good Place to Trade"

A TRUE MEMORIAL

By Phebe K. Warner

In a low, green valley down in Crosby County stands the famous Old Rock House of the South Plains of Texas. This beautiful valley of several hundred acres is artistically framed by the circular cap rock of Blanco Canyon.

Fifty years ago, September 20, 1877, Hank Smith, then a young man in the prime of life, drove his ox team, hitched to a wagon load of supplies, down through the canyon and brought them to a halt at the front door of this historic home.

That was a great event. But no one knew it then because no one knew what that event was to mean in the history of the great commonwealth of Texas. The Old Rock House was new that day. As new as the country it was so soon to dedicate to a land of homes. And like the canyon in which it stood, all it possessed was its four walls and a floor. All the rest was an empty space without even a memory in it. Even the partitions had not been built that were soon to convert that empty space into a happy home with its wholesome kitchen, its big cheery living room, its cow-boy quarters and that upstairs room specially equipped for every sick boy or man who passed that way. The new rock house was then an empty shell. Today the Old Rock House is an historic shrine whose every nook and corner it filled with sacred memories. "It takes a heap of livin' in a house to make it home." And this dear old home has had a whole half-century of "livin'" and "lovin'" under its kind old roof.

On that eventful day in September, 1877, Hank Smith was alone except for some cowboy companions. He had left Mrs. Smith and the children, George and Lelia, back at Old Ft. Griffin in Shackelford County until he could complete their new home and get ready for them.

Mr. and Mrs. Smith were not known as Uncle Hank and Aunt Hank in that day. They were known as plain Mr. and Mrs. Henry Smith of Fort Griffin, Texas, the proud parents of two little children for whom they were not afraid to do, dare or die if need be.

A few weeks later when Mrs. Smith and the children arrived and little George and Lelia scrambled out of the old covered wagon and with their mother took possession of the big rock house, the wails of Blanco Canyon echoed for the first time with the voice of little children of the yelping of coyotes and Indians and the great South Plains of Texas ceased to be a wilderness of waste lands, inhabited by wild animals and wild men; to become the home of hundreds of thousands of happy children, boys, women and the wisest race of men and the wisest race of men the world is ever known. And the patter of little children's feet has silenced forever the thunderous roar of millions of stampeding buffalo.

1927, dawns bright and beautiful on the same Old Rock House, a monument of pioneer hospitality. But Uncle Hank and Aunt Hank were not there. They are sleeping above the caprock in the little cemetery at Old Emma, the first county seat of Crosby county. But on that fiftieth anniversary of the founding of the first home on the South Plains of Texas, Robert Burns Smith and his family, George Smith, Lelia Smith Wheeler, and Mary Smith Kirk, and their families, children of this old home, met at the Old Rock House where Robert Smith still lives to welcome back to their old home the two thousand old friends who came that day to celebrate with them the

Then over in the corner of a downstairs room was the place where Aunt Hank used to keep the post office until the business grew so big Uncle Hank was compelled to build a little post office out in the yard where Aunt Hank handed out sunshine and sorrow for nearly fiftieth birthday of their home and to take part in dedicating to the memory of their parents, Uncle Hank and Aunt Hank Smith, the beautiful State Park which Robert Smith has given to the State of Texas as a memorial to his parents.

The park includes a portion of that beautiful valley in which the Old Rock House stands and it is to be used forever as a meeting place for the Old Settlers Association of West Texas, and a playground for all the children that are yet to live in this great country. Could any other monument have expressed the beautiful lives of service and sacrifice that Uncle Hank and Aunt Hank Smith lived so perfectly as the gift of a part of their old home estate back to all their old neighbors who struggled with them to lay the foundation of the glorious South Plains, to be perpetuated as a happy meeting place not only for their old friends while they lived but as a great social center for all their children and grandchildren as long as time lasts?

Instead of the lone ox team and wagon driving up to the Old Rock House that day, five hundred automobiles were parked in the valley below the caprock, and hundreds of people visited the old home which was thrown wide open for every one to enjoy.

There was the old living room with its modern furnishings, but its great fireplace, closed for the summer. If a radio could speak to us from out of the past from that old fireplace what thrilling stories it would tell! There is the dear old kitchen where it is said by her friends, Aunt Hank Smith fed more hungry men free than any other woman in Texas history. There was the little narrow stairs that lead from the kitchen to the sleeping rooms and the sick room above and another great fireplace where every cowboy and every sick man on the plains found rest and cheer and protection. Picture if you can the army of men that have wended their way up that old stairway in the fifty years that have gone. For the Old Rock House was more than a home. It was also a free hotel and a free hospital. What would it mean today if Aunt Hank had kept a register of all her guests?

And on the outside you may visit the sheds, the old rock walled well that the children used to holler down, the old the visible dreams of the first fashioned flowers and big pecan trees. All and everything home-builders of the South Plains. What a challenge to the home-builders of the next fifty years.

Miss Helen Smith, who is attending Simmons University at Abilene, will keep posted on happenings in Munday through the columns of The Times, her mother, Mrs. J. R. Smith, having placed her name on our mailing list, for which she has our thanks.

The many friends of Mr. A. U. Hathaway will be pleased to know that he has recovered from his recent illness and is again able to be about his duties.

"Uncle Happy" has asked that another appeal be made for funds for the cemetery through the columns of this paper. He states that there are some obligations that are due within a few days and as there are no funds in the treasury from which they can be paid it is necessary that those interested in the upkeep of the cemetery help out in a financial way. The call is urgent and he asks that the contributions be as liberal as possible.

Music Lures High School Students

One in Three of Denver Pupils Trained by Private Instructors

Elkhart, Ind.—More boys and girls of high school age are seriously studying music today than ever before. Information reaching the Conn Music Center here indicates an unusually high degree of interest in music by secondary school pupils.

An example of conditions said to be representative of the country is to be found in Denver, according to the Music Center, where the ratio of students studying music is one in three. A report on 1,746 high school pupils by J. C. Kende, director of music in the Denver schools, showed that 623 were studying music under private instructors.

There are 2,292 musical instruments in the families from which these boys and girls come, and in 61 of the homes there is a definite musical organization such as an instrumental trio, a quartette or a small band. The Livestock Situation

Meat food animals pass through three principal channels; their production, their marketing and turning the raw product into meat foods and their by-products followed by distribution to the consuming public.

The outlets represented by the metropolitan consuming centers of the country are of great importance to the producer. The growth of consumer demand on the Pacific Coast has made itself felt in livestock producer circles as far east as the Missouri River, and the Coast states have changed from exporters to meat food animals to importers.

An immense meat packing center is taking shape in Los Angeles to meet the requirements, the extent of which may be gauged by considering that the population has more than doubled in the past ten years, which now in excess of five million people in the state to supply.

There are many reasons for the gathering together of meat packing plants at a chosen point. The principal one is that through centralization of packing plants adjacent to a central livestock market and with the proper strategic location as to best serve the needs of consumer demand, the movement of meat food animals may best be sustained in a regular flow. This accomplishes distribution and conversion into food products to the best advantage of the producer, the packer and finally the ultimate consumer.

Through bringing together many packing plants at a central point, the value of by-products can best be utilized in the building up of a sufficient volume to make their value of consequence. Whereas, if the operation were attempted at widely scattered points, much of this advantage would be lost.

The marketing opportunity afforded the producer on the south Pacific Coast may well be appreciated when the constantly increasing packer demand shown by the figures below is taken into consideration:

Cattle 1922, 212,596; 1923, 251,401; 1924, 289,149; 1925, 293,747; and 1926, 300,518; Calves: 1922, 86,106; 1923, 113,401; 1924, 120,758; 1925, 156,164; 1926, 148,596.

Decrease in calf shipments due to retention of young stock on the ranges in replenishing herds. The value of live animals received by producers in supplying these requirements runs around Fifty Million Dollars per year, and for the past four years the value of packer purchases at the Los Angeles market follows: 1923, $18,000,000; 1924, $20,000,000; 1925, $22,000,000 and 1926, $25,000,000.

A feature worthy of consideration by the livestock producer is that the outlet in this territory is not limited to local consumption, although that is increasing annually through the coming of hundreds of thousands of new residents.

The local packing industry in the future is destined to grow steadily in the volume of products handled, not only to meet local requirements, but from increased business in stocking ships and in supplying the trade of Pacific Ocean Points, as well as shipments of dressed meats by water to the Atlantic Seaboard.

AL LORAN MAY

FILL VACANCY ON ST. EDWARD'S TEAM

Austin, Texas, Sept. 30.—Al Loran, who hails from Munday, Texas, and who is a former star St. Edward's Prep athlete, and who lettered in Varsity baseball last year, stands a good chance of filling the vacancy left on the St. Edward's university football team by Durrenberger, the all-star T. I. A. A. end.

Although in keen competition with two other prospective ends, Loran handles himself well, is fast and shifty and is in the best of physical condition. He reported early this fall for football practice, and Coach Meagher has been working him consistently at the end position. Because of illness in the early part of his freshman year, Loran was unable to compete in football, but when the baseball season opened he stepped into a pair of shoes and lettered, playing right field.

During his early high school career he attended Subiaco college of Arkansas. He graduated from St. Edward's academy in 1926. As a Prep, he was a star athlete, lettering in football and baseball, and winning a beautiful silver loving cup.

SCIENCE NOTES

German chemists have developed a process for arresting decay in poles, posts and other wood products by injecting special chemicals under pressure. A first treatment is designed to kill fungus growths and the second, to provide an antiseptic against decay bacteria.

Killing moths with electricity and kerosene has been successful on a truck farm near Danville, Va. The gardens are wired for electric lights to attract the tomato-worm moths and, as they fly close to the blubs, they fall into pans of kerosene placed below the lamps. Before this trapping method was adopted, approximately half of the crop was lost. The farm owner estimates that a saving of from $2,000 to $4,000 has been realized yearly.

Visible as 200 miles the beam of a giant searchlight can produce the effect of sunburn at two miles and will blister the skin of a person 1,000 feet away. It is of 1,385,000,000 candlepower, much more powerful than any beacon heretofore in use. Engineers estimate that the crater of its arc is the hottest spot on earth, about 38,000 degrees Fahrenheit, and as bright as the sun at noon. One engineer declared that if the Mt. Wilson observatory were on Mars, it would be possible for a person looking through it there to tell the minute and the hour the huge light was turned on.—Popular Mechanics Magazine.

Eight-tenths of the pianos in this country are always out of tune, according to the president of the national association of piano tuners, with the result that many thousand dollars of the 900,000,000 spent annually for musical education, are wasted. He explains that when the instrument is out of tune, the student's ear is likely to be harmfully affected.

A Birthday Party

Little Miss Evelyn June McGraw entertained a number of her little friends last Saturday afternoon at the home of her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. S. A. Bowden with a party. The occasion being her third birthday.

Games were enjoyed on the lawn till a late hour, then refreshments of delicious ice cream and cake was served to the following little guests:

Ruth Campbell, Dickie Ford, Pauline Harlan, Glenn Dobbs, Jr.; Bobbie Dobbs, Ellen Francis, Kate Nell and Belva Murel Mauldin, D. E. Holder, Jr.; Virginia Duval, Dan Billingsley, Ludell and C. H. McKinney, Morene Bowden and Willie Mack and Flora Alice Haymes.

Mrs. Fannie Roberts has returned to her home at Oklahoma City after a very pleasant visit with her sister, Mrs. H. T. Maples.

S. A. Crume of route 2 came in on Saturday of last week and shaved his dating up a year on the Times, for which he has our sincere thanks. Mr. Crume stated that he was on the lookout for a farm for another year, members of the Walling family having decided to work the farm he is on the coming year, and we sincerely trust that he will succeed in getting located in this community, for we can ill afford to lose good people like he and his family.

SORE GUMS—PYORRHEA

Foul breath, loose teeth, or their irrigated parts. In connection with these experiments, Superintendent E. J. Wilson at the Iowa Park Station is trying out rice growing on these plots. Rice requires that the land be flooded during much of the growing season. Rice is a fibrous rooted plant and is not subject to root rot. It is, therefore, considered among the possibilities that irrigating farmers may, by growing a crop or so of rice, incidentally cure sore gums. "The Child's First School is the Family"—Froebel.

WISE WATCHFULNESS
Mrs. Florence Milner

Hilma was just at the age when she could walk alone and, like all other children, enjoyed the independence of it. To indulge her in the new pleasure, he father took her to the park where there were no automobiles to dodge. But there were other difficulties to be encountered—curbs against which little feet might stumble, people to be passed without collision and deep holes to be avoided.

I had watched other people "taking care" of children about Hilma's age. Many of them would repeatedly seize the child by arm or garment, whichever came first, shouting, "Look out!" "Take care!" There, I told you you'd fall if you went there! Just look at your clean dress, now. It's all covered with dirt! Aren't you ashamed?" "There! if you can't stand up alone, you'll have to keep hold of my hand all the time." And the poor child would be dragged along, resisting every step and trying to pull away.

Today one mother was fussing at her child's clothes every minute. "Here, let me pull up your stocking, Mary dear." But "Mary dear" had just sighted a brilliant yellow dandelion in the grass, and, in her haste to reach it before her mother's forceful hand could imprison her she fell on her face and was dragged to her feet and made to regard, ruefully, the grass stain on her white dress.

Two other little children were frolicking happily on the grass, rolling about like two healthy puppies. Children, don't do that; it isn't pretty. Sit up and play nicely together." They sat up obediently but, having no idea how to "play nicely," they sat primly looking at each other and, no doubt, wondered vaguely why what they had been doing wasn't "pretty" when it was such fun. I wondered, too. "Come here, Henry," called another anxious mother. Henry left his digging in the sand regretfully. So far as I could see all the mother wanted was to brush back the stray lock that fell picturesquely over his moist forehead and to give his blouse a needless pull.

In happy contrast to all of these of Hilma and her father. He never uttered one single "don't," never touched her except when her hand crept trustfully into his own. But this father was more watchful of Hilma than any of the nagging parents were of their offspring. If she veered toward some unsuspected danger, he stepped between it and her, turning her toward safety as if of her own will. Once she stumbled and fell. Her father did not run to pick her up and stir her emotions with pity. He let her alone to manage a return to the upright which she did with no apparent expectation of outside assistance. She was used to meeting her own personal difficulties alone.

And is there anything we older people desire more than to be let alone in the pursuit of our own innocent desires? We resent interference. Why should we expect our children to feel different? Don't for a moment think I am preaching against parental discipline and a definite exercising of authority when necessary. I am merely advocating less unnecessary interference. Many restraints and reproofs are of no importance whatever. A little added watchfulness such as Hilma's father gave, will avoid the need for many reproofs. A little restraint on the part of parents will eliminate many needless and irritating "do's" as well as "don't's."

FARICAL FILM FLASHING WITH FUN AT PEOPLES

"The Whole Town's Talking" Opens Mirthfully—Horton the Star

For those who cannot take their drama straight and for all the other unhappy folk on this earth, there is "The Whole Town's Talking" at the Peoples Theatre, Wednesday and Thursday.

It is recommended without breath of reservation. Refashioned from a moderately successful stage play by John Emerson and Anita Loos it has been alchemized into pure, fine-working platinum and has been set with a jewel to boot.

To keep right on shouting it has become as graceful as a lady's waving fan and as radiantly playful as a light breeze. It is suave, polished comedy, creamy to the taste and soothing to the seat of comfort.

Little plot is written over the face of this effete nonsense, which, since the world is sick of plots, criticism and the word "Sex-appeal" is everything in its favor.

It takes the formless form of a twinkling mass of colored lights, flashing with the charm of Edward Everett Horton and Virginia Lee Corbin, involuted through wealths of delightful, high comedy clowning.

The acting is all high light.

Mr. Horton has never been more wistful nor Miss Corbin ever more delighted and inspired. The surrounding persons are gifted too with special praise to Otis Harlin, Trixie Friganza, Dolores Del Rio and Margaret Quimby.

UP HILL

Does the road wind up-hill all the way?
 Yes, to the very end.
 Will the days journey take the whole day?
 From morn till night, my friend.
 But is there for the night a resting place?
 A roof for when the slow dark hours begin.
 May not the darkness hide it from my face?
 You cannot miss that inn.
 Shall it see other wayfarers at night?
 Those who have gone before.
 Tien must at knock, or call when just in sight?
 They will not keep you standing at the door.
 Shall it find comfort, trouble-sole and weak?
 Of labor you shall find the sum.
 Will there be beds for me and all who seek?
 Yea, beds for all who come.
 —Christine Possetti.

School life is very much like this poem. The road is all up-hill. But unlike the poem, it does not take all the day. Life does that, and school is only the beginning of life.

There is a resting place at the end, however. When a student has pushed himself upward to the peak of the hill "Education," and stands looking back over his work that is reward enough. To know he has done his work well should be his greatest reward. But, this is only one. As the years roll by, his success or failure in life depends wholly upon his willingness and ability to do the work he has chosen. His ability depends entirely upon his education.

Many students become tired of the constant climb and leave school in hopes of succeeding without an education. If those students would look at the records of the successful people and see how few succeed without one, many would remain in school.

To every student who completes his education and then begin the real "climb," there is a reward. But while we are climbing toward this goal we must not forget the great goal, we must be ready to receive "The Great Reward" at the close of the day.

The pep squad met the first of the week and announced the intentions of working out some "stunts" for the next game. We are also trying to enroll at least five new members this week, girls or boys. Boys are especially welcome. Twenty girls have bought sweaters and practically all of those girls went to Haskell. Our few loyal boys were also present. We are proud of our pep squad, but we want "more" members.

Miss Rhodes, our sponsor, we have learned, has that one great habit of her brother's, "consulting the Almanac," and she says it predicts an entertainment for the pep squad and football boys soon.

Moguls Fight Haskell to Scoreless Tie.

In a hard fought battle that was ended by rain the Moguls held the Haskell Indians to a 0-0 score last Friday.
 The game began with the Moguls defending the north goal with the wind behind them. Haskell kicked off and White ran the ball back to the Moguls 40 yard line. Paul Pruitt failed to gain through right tackle, Paul Pruitt gained 4 yards over right tackle. Aycock punted to Haskell's 10 yard line. Haskell gained 4 yards over right guard, Haskell failed to gain through center. On an end run Haskell lost 4 yards. Haskell then punted to Munday's 45 yards line. Earl Pruitt gained 3 yds around right end. Aycock gained 2 yards over right tackle. White plunged through the line for 2 yards. Aycock punted to Haskell's 25 yard line. Haskell plunged the line for one yard, and then went through center for 3 yards. Loys Wilson took Richardson's place at left tackle for the Moguls. Haskell gained 10 yards and a first down around right end. Haskell gained 1 yd. over center. Haskell made a 2-yd. gain over right tackle. Haskell punted to the Moguls 35 yard line. A pass, Pruitt to Aycock was incomplete.

Second Quarter

Moguls failed to gain by plunging the line. Aycock punted to Haskell's 40 yard line. Haskell carried ball back to midfield. Haskell made 5 yards by plunging line. Haskell made 18 yards and first down; around right end Haskell gained 3 yards over left yard. The ball was fumbled and Earl Pruitt recovered. Aycock made 1 yard around right end. White gained 1 yards over center. Aycock punted to 50 yards line. Haskell punted and Aycock ran the ball back to the Moguls 35 yard line. Moguls failed to gain. Aycock punted to Haskell's 40 yard line. Haskell fumbled and recovered the ball on the 30 yard line. Haskell gained 15 yards and a first down through right guard. Haskell failed to gain over right tackle. Time out for the Moguls (Paul Pruitt). Haskell made another first down around right end. Haskell gained 3 yards over left guard. Haskell gained 4 yards over left tackle. Haskell gained 3 yards over center, making a first down. Haskell failed to gain over right guard.

Half

Aycock kicked and Aycock ran the ball back to 50 yard line. Haskell gained 2 yards around right end. Haskell gained 1 yards over center. Haskell gained 5 yards over left tackle, as the game was called on account of rain.

Athletic Notes

It was a happy bunch of football players that returned to Munday last Friday after the Haskell game. Although held to a scoreless tie, the game was a moral victory for Munday. The Indians lineup was not composed of all first string men, but they were experienced players and clearly outweighed the Moguls. When the game started, however, the Munday lads proved their mettle by fighting the heavier Indians to a standstill.

The game was marred by the usual ragged play and fumbles of early season contests. But with another week or two of practice the Moguls will look like a real football machine.

It is reported on reliable authority that some of our Haskell friends were deeply sympathetic for us in what was to be a crushing defeat. This was before the game. After the game not a single one of our friends could be found.

Most of the pep squad turned out for the game and what a fine showing they made. Their costumes are very attractive and their work as pep enthusiasts leaves nothing to be desired.

ed. In fact we think they would compare favorably with any like organization in the state.

A big pep rally was held around a bonfire on the campus last Thursday night. A majority of the High School students were present and as Uncle Jake would say, "A great time was had by all."

The Moguls play the Papposes from McMurry College on the local gridiron Friday of this week. This aggregation is composed of boys that are too young and inexperienced to make the first team, but who, nevertheless, always put up a good fight. Don't fail to come out and see the Moguls in action against this team.

Seniors

Oneita Blanton will soon be back with us. We are indeed glad to know that our beloved class-mate is doing so nicely.

The Seniors have been extremely busy buying rings and other important artillery. You Juniors will someday know what great responsibilities a Senior has.

The Seniors were well represented at the football game in Haskell. Those that saw the game were, Mildred Guinn, Delphine Hendrix, Theda Mae Brewer, Arva Harris, Ruby Manuel, Annie Matt Tate, Evelyn Curry, Truman Mann, Otis Burnett, Martin Pickard and Elton Busby.

To prove that the Senior class has more pep, the leaders of the pep squad are dignified Seniors, Mildred Guinn and Truman Mann.

The Juniors claim as the manager of the gridiron squad Sebern Jones, one of the "Junior Saps." But we Seniors have not acknowledged his authority. Sorry "Sebo."

"Readers of the Roundhouse," you will notice how we Seniors set the example for the Juniors. You will recall some weeks ago that we called ourselves the best looking class in High School, now the Juniors think they are. Laugh! folks. The joke is on them. We still believe we are the best looking. This is our firm opinion. We hope you don't feel hurt.

Football team, we are behind you! Stay in there and fight!

Juniors

"Less Quantity but More Quality."

Everyone in the Junior class seems to be in "midseason" form though it is only the fourth week of school. This applies to the best looking class of the 1927-28 term—the Juniors.

Our boys showed up real well in the game against Haskell Friday, though they were a bit stiff and sore. We are proud of them as they are real football representatives from the Junior class!

We feel honored in having a member of the Junior class as "manager" of the football squad. As a Junior, we believe that Sebern Jones can fill this place. Do it for the Juniors "Sebo!"

The members of the Junior class who saw the football game at Haskell Friday were: Thelma Newsom, Madge and Mauryse Smith, Loys Wilson, Joe Aycock, Earl Pruitt, Raymond Richardson, W. A. Wyche, Sebern Jones and Virgil Craig. How is that for class representation?

Sophomores

AGREEMENT

I GUARANTEE TO PAY for any injuries that my automobile may cause, whether it be to a person, or to a man's property, real or personal, REGARDLESS OF WHETHER I AM DRIVING IT, AND REGARDLESS OF WHETHER I AM IN THE CAR AT THE TIME OF THE ACCIDENT.

In this I agree to pay all HOSPITAL BILLS, DOCTOR BILLS, COST OF JUDICIAL PROCEEDINGS, LAWYER'S FEES, AND ANY OTHER COST OR EXPENSE, AS WELL AS ANY JUDGEMENT, REGARDLESS OF AMOUNT, that grows out of any injury produced by my car.

AS A FURTHER GUARANTEE TO THIS CONTRACT I PLEDGE AS SECURITY ALL MY REAL ESTATE, chattels, and property of any kind which I now own; and I STILL FURTHER GUARANTEE to the performance of this contract, all real estate, personal, chattels, and property of any kind, which I MAY HEREAFTER ACQUIRE, ACCUMULATE, OR POSSESS.

A Public Liability and Property Damage Insurance Policy written at a very nominal cost in the UNIVERSAL AUTOMOBILE INSURANCE COMPANY would eliminate the obligations imposed by such an agreement. If you do not have such a policy you've already signed such an agreement.

Ordinary canoes can be quickly transformed into "unsinkable" boats by attaching inflated rubber supports to the sides. The bags are of cloth and rubber, about four feet long and six inches wide and can easily be blown up with the breath. When deflated, they fit in the pocket.

More effective aid for aviators while landing in fogs is promised in a beacon light being developed by eastern engineers. It is a neon-gas type of lamp, affording illumination through the glow of the vapor rather than by a filament, and the pinkish color of the light is said to be much more successful in penetrating fogs and mists.

Press a button, a grease is forced from a protable receptacle into stubborn shackles, bolts, bearings and other parts of an automobile in an instant and at a saving of unimportant work. The "gun" is operated from an ordinary air tank, such as is used for inflating tires, and is equipped with a "booster" unit, inside which the pressure may be raised as high as 10,000 pounds if desired. This is employed only when the gun is to be used. The outfit is moved about easily on a three-wheeled carriage holds fifty pounds of lubricant and is readily refilled.

Designed especially for the automobile driver, a pair of very wide-rimmed glasses, now on the market, has a small mirror on each side so that the wearer can see the road behind him. The reflectors do not interfere with the vision ahead and are backed by material like that of the farnie.

To maintain a supply of hot water for the home, an electric belt has been introduced in England. It is simply strapped about the tank and warms the water above it by heat caused by the resistance to the passage of the current through the conductor, which is adapted to 500, 750 or 1,000 watts. An asbestos-lined cover insulates the heating element, and if desired, two belts may be used on the same container to insure a more abundant supply of heat.

Work that ordinarily requires several men is quickly and efficiently done with a pavement-finishing outfit, recently introduced.

duced. It is pulled along on rails, tamping the layer of concrete below with electric-driven pounders and smoothing off the finer mixture that raises to the top.

Reduction of driving risks is anticipated in a supplementary wheel on the steering post. It controls the headlight changes and the horn so that the hands do not have to be removed from the main wheel in making adjustments. The attachment was introduced recently in France.

Rocking the baby by motor is now possible in an attachment fitted to the carriage. It rocks the body of the buggy from side to side and also rolls the entire vehicle alternately forward and backward. Controls are provided for regulating the action and, once started, the outfit requires no attention.

Soot and rubbish accumulating in the stovepipe elbow are usually removed only with considerable trouble and constitute a fire hazard but can now be quickly taken out through a safety flue, an opening in front of the elbow. It eliminates the necessity of lifting the pipe out and also serves as a check damper for use in case the pipe becomes too hot. In addition, by insuring a constantly clean opening, it saves fuel.

To keep mud from soiling the backs of women's shoes, a French shoemaker has introduced a guard that is quickly attached to the rear of the heel and may be removed before entering the house. It is made of transparent material so that it is hardly noticeable, and is shaped to keep the mud down off the shoe even if the heel sinks in. The guard is also adaptable to men's shoes and helps keep the trouser bottoms from becoming soiled and, consequently, worn out quickly.

Rubber walls in office buildings to decrease vibrations, and streets and sidewalks paved with rubber, are among the recent uses chemists have found for the product. They have also adapted the material to the making of interior decorations.

11,105* doctors give written opinion

"Roxy," a favorite in Radio-land, writes:

"During a strenuous rehearsal, with the work entailed in opening the World's Largest Theatre, my nervous system is working under great pressure, there is nothing quite like a Lucky Strike cigarette. It does not impair the voice, and gives the mental faculties so essential to carry on."

WHAT is the quality that Giuseppe Danise, Adam Didur, Queena Mario, Antonio Cortis, Lenore Ulric, Nanette Guilford, Wilton Lackaye, "Roxy," and other famous singers, actors, broadcasters and public speakers have found that makes LUCKY STRIKES delightful and of no possible injury to their voices?

For the answer we turned to medical men and asked them this question:

Do you think from your experience with LUCKY STRIKE cigarettes that they are less irritating to sensitive or tender throats than other cigarettes, whatever the reason?

11,105* doctors answered this question "YES."

These figures represent the opinion and experience of doctors, those whose business it is to know.
