1928-29 TERM MUNDAY PUBLIC SCHOOLS WILL OPEN MONDAY MORNING, SEPT. 10

Additional Credits Have Been Given on Fourth Year English and General Science; Typewriting Also Added to Curriculum.

The 1928-29 term of the Munday Public Schools opens next Monday, Sept. 10, in what promises to be one of the best school years of its history. Ten new credits of affiliation (fourth year English and General Science) were secured from the State Department of Education last year. This gives full affiliation in every subject offered in the high school, which is a record that few schools of this size can boast of. However, the Board of Education and Superintendent are not satisfied and have been busy this summer adding room and equipment for several new courses.

The most interesting of these, perhaps, will be home economics, which is to be housed in the new cottage near the high school. The work will be offered through the State and Federal plan, and its value in the scientific training of home makers stands out as one of the great developments in the field of public education. The addition of this work is being made at the expenditure of several thousand dollars and the school administration is to be congratulated on the enterprise. Mrs. J. E. Rhodes, whose B. S. degree is based on four years of special work in this field, will have charge of the department.

Another new course of much practical value will be typewriting. The board has purchased a number of new machines and expects to buy more if the demands for the course justify it. Owing to the high cost of the equipment a small tuition charge will be made to defray the expense of the machines. Miss Phelma Newton, who has had three years of commercial training, will teach the typing.

Physiology will replace Agriculture in the high school science department. This change is made on the recommendation of the high school supervisor, who believes that a general agricultural course as it is offered in the public schools, is of little value.

Commercial geography will probably be added in the tenth or eleventh grades. Both sections of the lower grades have been moved back to the grammar school building. This was done in order to make room for a twenty percent increase in the enrollment in the high school which is occasioned by the large graduating class in the seventh grade last year.

The Rev. W. H. Albertson and family of Wichita Falls arrived in the city on Monday afternoon to make their home, he having been called to the local church as pastor to succeed the Rev. P. D. O'Brien, who resigned some weeks ago to accept the pastorate at Floydada.

Jake Atz and His Cats Will Tangle With Truscott Tuesday

Posters have been received here announcing a ball game between Jake Atz's cats and the Truscott team at Truscott on Tuesday afternoon, Sept. 11th, and it is believed that a large number of local fans will go over, and the Munday delegation will likely be headed by Dr. R. B. Davy, ex-Cat fan.

Haskell Baptist Ass'n in Session

The Rev. W. H. Albertson, pastor of the Munday church was elected as moderator of the meeting and also for the ensuing year, while Joe Burton was elected clerk.

S. F. Hancock was one of the speakers on the opening day, his discourse was pertaining to the Texas Baptist Sanitarium, while Dr. J. D. Sandefer spoke on Christian Education and gave an outline of the great work that is being done by Simmons University.

LARGER BODIES ANNOUNCED FOR THE VICTORY SIX LINE

Longer and roomier bodies affording greater vision in all closed models of the Victory Six line have been announced by Dodge Brothers. The new type bodies now in the hands of all dealers are available in the sedan, sport sedan, coupe and coupe-brougham. In designing the changes, engineers have retained the Victory Six roadability featured by its low center of gravity and sweeping, graceful appearance.

Mechanical changes of the improved Victory Six models include an engine temperature indicator on the dash board, grouped under the glass panel with gas gauge, oil pressure indicator, speedometer and ammeter, and the location of the starting button on the dash board within easy reach of the driver.

Maximum vision for the driver and occupants of the front seat has been effected by an increase of 76 square inches in the area of the windshield. The height and length of the sedan models and coupe-brougham have been increased to the greatest head and leg room for all passengers.

Doors of the sedans have been widened approximately three inches, and are built higher. Glass area of each front window has been increased by 80 square inches. In each rear door window, the glass area has been increased 52 square inches.

Improved interior appointments of all bodies have been matched with additional attractive color combinations and trimmings. No change in prices will be made.

Tri-County Bankers Hold Meeting Here

Largest Attendance in History of Association Gathers Here for Labor Day Meet

Bankers from various points in Baylor, Haskell and Knox counties gathered here on Monday to attend the meeting of the Bankers' association comprising the three counties, and it was said that the attendance at the meeting here was the largest that has ever been in attendance at a meeting of the association, and it was further stated that this was one of the most interesting meetings that has ever been held.

Local bankers had made elaborate arrangements for the entertainment of the visitors, their program including a banquet at the Munday Hotel at noon, a theatre party at The Roxy in the afternoon while those who enjoy the popular game of golf were given an opportunity to do their stuff on the local course.

The business meeting of the association was held at the Roxy theatre and among the other actions taken by the association was a resolution extending the bankers of Jones and Throckmorton counties an invitation to join the association, thereby making it a five-county association.

Officers elected for the ensuing year at this meeting were as follows: Geo. S. Plants, vice president First National Bank, Seymour, president; I. B. Lee, cashier First State Bank, Rochester, vice president; L. D. Jones, cashier First State Bank, Seymour, secretary-treasurer.

Those in attendance at the meeting here were: G. R. Couch, cashier Weinert State Bank; F. H. Bunkley, vice president First State Bank, Seymour; J. T. Holman, Farmers National, Seymour; C. A. Doss, Rochester; Tom Isbell, First National, Goree; K. E. Baskin, Seymour; Joe L. Cooper, Haskell; Geo. S. Plants, Seymour; T. E. Robbins, Knox City; A. C. McGlothlin, Benjamin.

In addition to the visitors there were a large number of the local doctors and the entire forces of the two local banks present, bringing the total attendance to more than sixty.

The Times family has been remembered by a number of good friends recently. Mr. A. J. Bunts has remembered us with some excellent melons from his patch, Wash Rayburn, brought in a nice bunch of roasting ears the other day and some days ago Walter Harris stepped in and handed us a fine jar of preserved peaches, which were very delicious, and we are grateful to each of them for their kind remembrance.

Sen. Sheppard Says Smith Stand Sound

TEXARKANA, Sept. 3.—In a letter written by him to Mrs. Claude de Van Watts, Senator Morris Sheppard, Texas, Monday defended his stand in announcing some time ago that he would support the candidacy of the Democratic national ticket, for which statement Mrs. De Van Watts recently criticized the senior Texas Senator.

Sheppard's statement in full follows: My Dear Mrs. Watts: I am in receipt of your letter of Aug. 30.

You state that Governor Smith's action in signing the bill which the New York Legislature had passed for the repeal of a state prohibition enforcement act left the State since that time practically without prohibition enforcement. Permit me to respectfully suggest that you are laboring under a misapprehension. The federal prohibition enforcement law, known as the Volstead Act, remained in operation throughout the State of New York after the state enforcement measure was repealed and continues in that and every other State today.

Urges Law Enforcement Governor Smith announced at the time he signed the act repealing the state enforcement law that on every state peace officer would continue to rest—now use his exact words—"the sacred responsibility of sustaining the Volstead Act with as much force and as much vigor as they would enforce any state law or local ordinance," and that he would expect again I employ his own language—"the discharge of that duty in the fullest measure by every peace officer in the State."

This shows that Governor Smith's attitude was not one of nullification. I see nothing in his action in connection with the repeal of the state enforcement act on which to base your contention that he would be consistent in interpreting his oath as President in permitting his office to use his office to secure either the repeal or the practical nullification of national prohibition. He would have the right, without violating the Democratic platform, to advocate repeal or modification through legislative and constitutional enactment and has told us frankly that he favors modification of both the Eighteenth Amendment and the Volstead Act, pointing out exactly in what respects he would modify.

This advocacy, however, would be in no way inconsistent with, and would have no relation to, his oath to enforce these measures as long as they remained in the status—an oath which I believe he will live up to, as he assures us, to the last degree. Nullification means refusal to enforce an existing law.

"Saturated with Corruption" You quote Oswald Garrison Villard's assertion in an article in The Nation of Nov. 30, 1927, to the effect that he was frankly informed that Governor Smith drinks every day. Mr. Villard does not give his authority. Before I pass upon the question you raise in this connection I must have better proof than the hearsay evidence submitted by Mr. Villard.

My stand is that without modifying our vigilance or our views as to prohibition we must immediately restore the Democratic party to control in order that it may apply Democratic principles to such other questions as the condition of agriculture, integrity and efficiency of government, equal opportunity for all, justice in taxation, aggressions of trusts, monopolies and other forms of lawless wealth. To say that the Democratic party is to be excluded from power because its nominee for President, although thoroughly sound on these other questions and in active sympathy with true democratic solutions fair to all concerned, has personal views opposed to prohibition views he can never carry out, is in my judgment to imperil the welfare and freedom of America.

You say that you regret my present stand. You can not regret my stand for democracy more than I regret your stand for the Republican party whose continued rule, hopelessly saturated with corruption, in my judgment will destroy the integrity of free government, undermine prohibition and every other safeguard of our civilization.

With highest personal regard, I am Yours very sincerely, MORRIS SHEPPARD.

ADVENTURES IN THE KITCHEN!
I THINK we women are inclined to let ourselves get stamped, declared Mrs. Griffin to the members of the Kitchen Club. Mrs. Griffin, be it remarked, had a tongue noted for its sharpness. But as she was also known as the best cook in town, her remarks were listened to with respect, if not affection. "We seem to have gone wild over the subject of saving time! If we keep on at the rate we are going, we'll be getting our meals done before we've started them! It's all right to arrange our kitchens so that they save as much work as possible; but let's spend more time on the cooking. You can't go anywhere, for instance, and find cake as fine-textured and delicate in flavor as our mothers used to make it. Do you know why? It's because Mother beat the butter and sugar together for a solid hour before she put any other ingredients in."

"Do you know why we are called a nation of can openers? Because we try to serve some foods just as they come from the can, instead of seasoning them as we would if they were fresh foods. Canned foods can be delicious if they are treated right. I'm going to give you some hints on cooking them today; and in return, I want you to help me make my kitchen pretty. It's already about as conveniently arranged as it could be, I think."

LEAVES FROM NANCY'S KITCHEN CLUB NOTEBOOK

Mrs. Griffin is a farmer's daughter, and it is not surprising that she is starved for country flowers and colors. We worked out a delightful color-scheme for her kitchen, which will make her think she's back on her beautiful farm!

"Country-Colored" Kitchen
Floor, green and brown linoleum; walls, from the floor to the height of your shoulder, yellow-buff wallboard tile; from tile to ceiling, sky-blue wallpaper border of wild flowers at ceiling. Tables, chairs, cabinet, refrigerator, etc., light green; white porcelain enamel stove; white curtains with wild flower design.

Canned Peas

Restore the fresh taste with a half-teaspoon of sugar. Put peas on to cook with the sugar, salt and pepper to taste, a lump of butter and a half-cup of milk. Allow to cook for 10 minutes, or until peas are well-flavored with the seasoning.

Canned Beans

Buy the tiny, uncut beans. Season them with a tablespoon of butter, a taste of sugar and salt. Bring to boil. Put in a half-cup of milk. Reheat but do not boil.

Canned Soups

These can be made delicious if they are used as the base soups to which other ingredients are to be added. Put a cup or two of milk into all cream soups. Evaporated milk can be used instead of fresh, if desired. Put a cup or two of meat stock into all vegetable soups. Dilute other soups with a little water and season to taste.

Cream of Corn Soup

1 cup canned corn
3 cups milk
1 tablespoon chopped onion
1 teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon fat
1 tablespoon flour

Cook together all ingredients except milk for 30 minutes. Unless double boiler is used, add enough water to keep from burning until done. Heat milk, add slowly, stirring to keep mixture smooth.

A dash of celery salt adds piquancy to this soup.

Hints on "French Fries"

French fried potatoes are crispier if cooked over a moderate, instead of a brisk fire. If you are using a gas or a modern oil stove, don't use the full flame; keep it moderately low. Use a deep kettle with plenty of fat. Dry potatoes in a cloth before frying.

Miss Winnie Langford has returned from Boulder, Colorado, where she has been attending the University of Colorado during the summer months, and received her M. A. degree. She will go to Dallas in a few days to take up her duties as a member of the faculty of the Dallas schools, which position she has held for a number of years.

PAUL IN ATHENS AND CORINTH
Acts 18:1-11; Timothy 2:3-7

Rev. Samuel D. Price, D. D.

Admiration for boldness in carrying out a great purpose must be accorded to Paul as we follow him on his journey through Athens, that incomparable city in Greece. He was alone, for Silas and Timothy had been left in Berea at the time of the recent hurried departure. Such men as Pericles, Socrates and Plato had been teachers in Athens. Art had reached a summit of expression in the Parthenon, Propylaea and Erechtheum that crowned the Acropolis. The most casual survey of the statues that lined the great streets indicated that the Athenians had more gods already than they could keep track of, and lest some supposed deity might feel neglected for lack of a shrine there was an idol to "the unknown god."

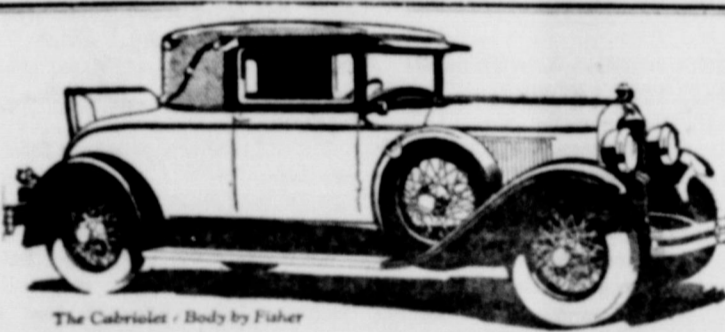

But Paul came on a mission and he could carry out his purpose wherever he might find people. A real insurance man is not disturbed at the number of agents who are already on the ground; he believes in insurance and just starts out to sell another policy. The Evangelist pitied the people who believed so many things that were not so and began to tell them, singly and in groups about the one God and His Son Jesus Christ.

Like many others, the writer had the privilege a few years ago of standing on Mars Hill and reading to a large audience of fellow travelers Acts 17:16-32, which is the record of Paul's words and work on that very eminence, just opposite the Acropolis.

Corinth came next in the itinerary. That city was the playground for Romans and was as immoral as any city imagination can picture. Here again Paul was not deterred by adverse conditions but proceeded with his mission. The worse the people were, the more they needed the soul cure that he had come to proclaim. One can easily find what he likes in any new city. This Apostle to the Gentiles sought out those with whom he could fellowship in purity and discovered Aquilla and Priscilla, recently put out of Rome because they were Jews. They were also tentmakers. Paul's well-learned trade. This couple were taken to Ephesus and did fine missionary work in that city.

Work started, as was customary, in the synagogue where both Jews and Greeks formed the audience. Soon Silas and Timothy came from Macedonia. Their arrival seemed to have given still greater courage to Paul who was still bolder in "testifying to the Jews that Jesus was the Christ." Those who would not believe began to blaspheme.

Again we note the purposeful and resourceful Paul, who can be an inspiration to any quitter, as he plans a new method of campaign in carrying forward his consuming purpose. In the time he made use of the home of Titus

A Word to Patrons and Students of the Munday Public Schools

We are again on the threshold of another school year. I trust that our students have spent a pleasant and profitable summer and are again ready and anxious to take up the serious business of getting an education. Much has been done during the summer to improve the buildings and equipment. We should have a great school year.

We are happy to remember that the relationship of our patrons with the school has always been a most congenial and wholesome one. We expect this splendid spirit of loyalty and co-operation to ever grow and develop. As a means toward this end I herewith list for your consideration a few suggestions in connection with the opening of school.

First: Students and teachers will assemble Monday morning at nine o'clock in the community auditorium for announcements, etc. No formal program will be attempted at this time.

Second: After general assembly students will report to their respective rooms for the purpose of being classified and receiving text books. It is expected that this preliminary organization will be over by twelve o'clock, and then the students will be dismissed for the day.

Third: A rigid attempt will be made this year to follow the law in connection with the issuing of text books. Students should therefore bring their last year's book cards to avoid possible trouble and delay in receiving their books. This is especially true of new students transferring from other schools, because we have no duplicate records to assist them.

Fourth: It is very necessary that each new student coming here from some other school bring his or her last year's report card or a transcript of work in order to be properly classified.

Fifth: Parents should arrange to enroll their children at the beginning of school. Students entering late invariably do unsatisfactory work and most often fail at the end of the year.

Sixth: Tuition rates will remain unchanged from former years. They are—First to third grades inclusive, $2.50 per month; fourth to seventh grades inclusive, $3.50; high school, $5.00. All tuition, both for unders and transfers, is due and payable at the end of each school month. These accounts should be paid to Mr. D. T. Mauldin at the City Hall.

Seventh: Parents sometimes question the wisdom of students purchasing so many notebooks and other supplementary working material. This is explained by the fact that our modern school system everywhere requires much more of this material than in the past. Even so, students are sometimes indiscreet in their buying, and parents should visit and confer with the teacher to see for themselves if extravagance is being practiced.

Pledging all of my ability and my very best efforts for the administration of an efficient school term, I am Very cordially yours,
J. E. RHODES, Supt.

FOURTH INSTALLMENT
WHAT HAPPENED BEFORE
Simon Judd, amateur detective, and William Dart, an undertaker, are visiting John Drane, eccentric man of wealth, at the Drane place. Suddenly the household is shocked to find that John Drane has been murdered. The dead man is first seen by Josie, the maid, then by Amy Drane and Simon Judd. The latter faints. Police officers call and investigations begin. Dr. Blessington is called, and after seeing the murdered John Drane, makes the astounding revelation to Amy Drane that her "uncle" is not a man but a woman.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY
The announcement of Dr. Blessington that the body of the murdered person above stairs was the body of a woman and not of a man did not shock Amy Drane as much as cause her amazement. The shock had come when she faced the blood stained body of her supposed Uncle John and her mind was still so dulled by that shock that she did not immediately grasp what the doctor was telling her.

"A woman? Uncle John was a woman?" she repeated groggily. "But that couldn't be, you know. Why, he's always been a man. I don't know what you mean, doctor."

"The murdered person in the bed upstairs there," the doctor said, "is—or was—a woman. I am merely stating the fact. I thought you should know it immediately as you are, I understand, the only relative here."

"I don't understand it," Amy said. "Why, it's dreadful, isn't it! Oh, it is horrible! It's like some frightful nightmare! It doesn't seem as if it could be true, any of it."

"It is only too true," the doctor said. He looked at the girl with keen professional eyes. "You don't feel that this is too much for you? The shock and the strain must be considerable, but you seem a normal sort of person. What I mean exactly is that if you feel too nervous over this I can give you a simple bromide until your nerves recover from the shock."

"No, thank you," she said. "I think I'll be all right."

"Are you going to be here awhile?" he asked Simon Judd. "I suppose you will," he added with a slight smile, "considering the circumstances and that the police will have to be finding a murderer. Just keep an eye on this young lady, will you? I'll leave my card; it has my telephone number. If she seems to be about to flop just send for me. Not," he added, "that I think you'll have to. Have you anyone, by the way," he asked Amy, "who could stay here with you a few days?"

"I'm not afraid to stay here, I think," Amy said. "No, Mr. Judd will be here; I'll not be afraid. I'll have Mr. Carter stay here during the days."

"That's Bob Carter?" the doctor asked.

"Yes. He's—our great friends. I expect him to come this morning."

"You've not had breakfast yet?"

"No; I was waiting for it when—when I heard Josie, the maid, scream."

"Well, my prescription for you is that you go in now and eat a good breakfast. That will help you more than anything I could give you. And as for the things to be attended to in such cases as this, you may leave them to me. What is your name?" he asked Simon Judd, and Judd told him. "Mr. Judd, I'm sure will act for you as far as necessary. There can be no funeral," he added, to Simon Judd, "until the law has gone through its formalities. However, if I might just speak to you a moment or two."

Amy, as she had been advised, entered the house to try to eat a breakfast, and Dr. Blessington led Simon Judd to the far end of the veranda.

"The funeral arrangements can all be attended to later," he said; "it was not that I wanted to speak about. As soon as possible I will get a proper death certificate, and I suppose William Dart is the man Miss Drane will want to have. He is an old friend of Drane's—of the dead person; one of the few close friends the dead man—woman—had, I think."

"Hold on, now!" Simon Judd said.

"Wait a minute now! Is that the little fellow with the beard that was here yesterday?"

"I don't know that he was here—"

"Dart—William Dart—that's the name. Old fellow about seventy years old or so, aint he? All dressed in black. That the man?"

"You have described him."

"Well, black my cats!" Simon Judd exclaimed. "I was trying to think what that fellow looked like, and all I could think of was undertaker. And he is one, is he? Well, now, maybe we won't want him after all. I don't know but what maybe he's mixed up in this some way, doc. I don't want to keep trade away from any friend of John's—or whoever it is up there—but you might give me the name of another funeral man while you're about it."

"Later, if necessary," the doctor said. "There will be ample time. What I wanted to urge was that you keep your eye on this girl. I don't want to alarm you needlessly but until we know more about this affair it is best to try to be safe. What I mean is that we don't know yet that this murder is not the work of a maniac; perhaps a maniac here in this house. If one murder has been done another may be attempted, you see? Probably there is nothing in the idea, but keep an eye on Miss Drane. Don't let her be another victim, Judd."

"I'll look out for her the best I can, doc," Simon Judd said, "and you can bet on that. She's a nice kid, this Amy is. But how about it being a murder all so sure? You talk like you knew it wasn't a suicide."

"It was no suicide," said the doctor positively. "There are good reasons for knowing it was not. The blow that drove the knife into the heart was a far more powerful blow than that old woman could have struck; death was so instantaneous that a suicide could not have withdrawn the knife from the wound, and, finally, there was no knife in the room. It was murder, no doubt about that, sir."

"Ain't that a shame, now?" Simon Judd exclaimed.

"When this man Brennan comes," the doctor continued, "you can tell him I will be back in an hour or so—I have a call I must make now. You had better get some breakfast yourself; you're apt to have a long and hard day."

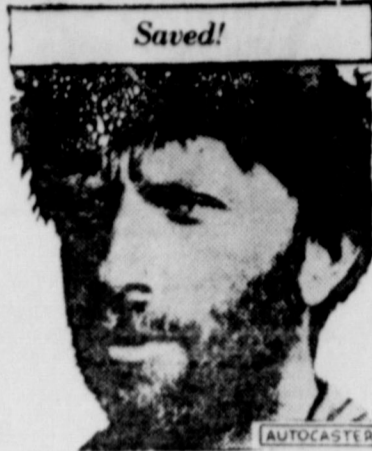

Dr. Blessington turned away, but Simon Judd called him back.

"What I don't get, doc," he said, "is how you didn't know this was a woman all the while. You're the family doctor, ain't you?"

"That's rather peculiar, too," he said, frowning a little. "I am the family doctor here; I have a larger bill here each month than with any house in Westport. Im called here again and again. But I've never been asked to see such a fellow as John Drane's pulse or look at his tongue! The man—or woman—has never been sick, or if she has she never called me. The servants have had all my attention, and plenty of it, too."

"That colored man sure has a bad cough," said Simon Judd.

"They're all sick," said Dr. Blessington. "I never know such a household of sick help. It's as bad as a hospital; I don't see how a person can bear to have so much sickness around. But John Drane—or this woman who pretended to be John Drane—has certainly been good to them. I've never known her to discharge a servant for ill health; she's had me here twenty times a month. A good woman, even if she did choose to masquerade as a man."

"Well, I've read of such doin's before," Simon Judd said philosophically "and I don't know that I blame some of 'em for wantin' to wear man clothes and let on they're men. Sort of queer, though, somehow."

"It is queer," said the doctor. "It is apt to be queerer than we imagine."

Dick Brennan, the detective, arrived by that universal vehicle, the taxicab, while Amy Drane and Simon Judd were at breakfast. As he turned from the cab, after having slammed the door, he cast his eye over the Drane house, registering certain salient features: "Three story mansard-roofed house—painted white—vzanda full width of house in front—fluted pillars, approximately six feet in diameter supporting the third floor mansard projection—"

His brain registered physical objects in this way, a result of his innumerable appearances on the witness stand against criminals he had tracked down. A silver watch was never a silver watch to Brennan—it was "one white metal watch, hunting case No. 1,249,563, fourteen jewel movement No. 985,002." For Brennan no one ever lived at seven hundred and sixty-five South Street but at "seven six five South Street" and for Brennan no one ever stood on the corner of Elm Street and Grand Avenue, he stood on "South-west corner of intersection of Elm Street and Grand Avenue." For Brennan gold was "yellow metal" and brass was "yellow metal"; it was not for Brennan to decide which was which. Not on the witness stand.

In no respect, except that he resembled thousands of detectives, did Dick Brennan resemble a detective. He resembled no one in particular except himself; you were apt to say to yourself when you saw him "I know that man!" and then, immediately, "No, I'm wrong—I know someone who looks quite a little like that man." You say this of people resembling the clerk who waits on you in a grocery, or of people resembling the clerk who waits on you in the grocery. Dick Brennan's face was so like thousands of other faces that it was hard to remember. Not infrequently this was of value to him in his work. A man who so nearly resembled many other men could easily make himself look unlike himself.

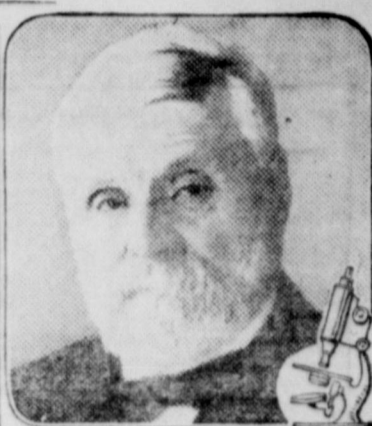

Dick Brennan was forty-two, but he looked not over thirty. For twenty years he had been picking up criminals. He had never "studied" crime, but the ways and habits of criminals had soaked into him; an understanding of their probable actions and reactions had become instinctive in him; this was one reason why he was so valuable; another reason was that he had a brain that was able to recognize the times when a criminal was not acting according to rule. He could think when he had to.

Brennan was not particularly annoyed because he had been put on this case on a Sunday morning. He had

Prescription He Wrote in 1892 is the World's Most Popular Laxative

When Dr. Caldwell started to practice medicine, back in 1875, the needs for a laxative were not as great as they are today. People lived normal, quiet lives, ate plain, wholesome food, and got plenty of fresh air and sunshine. But even that early there were drastic physices and purges for the relief of constipation which Dr. Caldwell did not believe were good for human beings to put into their system. So he wrote a prescription for a laxative to be used by his patients.

J. C. Caldwell, M.D.
AT AGE 83

The prescription for constipation that he used early in his practice, and which he put in drug stores in 1892 under the name of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, is a liquid vegetable remedy, intended for women, children and elderly people, and they need just such a mild, safe, gentle bowel stimulant as Syrup Pepsin.

Under successful management this prescription has proven its worth and is now the largest selling liquid laxative in the world. The fact that millions of bottles are used a year proves that it has won the confidence of people who needed it to get relief from headaches, biliousness, flatulence, indigestion, loss of appetite and sleep, bad breath, dyspepsia, colds and fevers.

Millions of families are now never without Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, and if you will once start using it you will also always have a bottle handy for emergencies.

It is particularly pleasing to know that the most of it is bought by mothers for themselves and the children, though Syrup Pepsin is just as valuable for elderly people. All drug stores have the generous bottles.

We would be glad to have you prove at our expense how much Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin can mean to you and yours. Just write "Syrup Pepsin," Monticello, Illinois, and we will send you prepaid a FREE SAMPLE BOTTLE.

Curbing the Growth of Weeds

This picture illustrates a process invented by a Hawaiian planter that may bring the weedless garden to every yard. The up-to-date crop producer applies paper to the floor of his garden, which shuts off the growth of weeds between rows and permits the real crops to obtain the full benefit of the moisture and plant food contained within the soil. Charles J. Eckart is the inventor of the unique method shown in this picture. The heavy paper is impregnated with asphalt. Among other advantages, this process eliminates the hoe.

BEATING THE MOON. SINKABLE LIFE GUARDS. A NOBLE EFFORT. A WOMAN AT 49.

Men have already beaten the moon in its journey around the earth. The moon's trip takes a little more than twenty-seven days. Fliers have made the trip in twenty-three days.

Beating the moon around the earth is one achievement. The next will be to TIE the sun in its apparent journey around the earth. With machines flying 1,000 miles an hour, gentlemen waiting a prolonged sun bath will be able to fly directly under the sun, following it around the earth for twenty-four hours or longer.

New York's Civil Service Commission investigated the qualities of life guards, hired by politicians to protect New York City's beaches. They were supposed to dash into the boiling surf and save the drowning. It was found that of 163 guards 15 couldn't swim a stroke. 18 more refused to "risk the swimming test in the water." They thought it too dangerous. In the words of Mr. Cook, of Los Angeles, imagine their embarrassment when anyone cried "help." There may be something in the statement that politicians are not to be trusted in any kind of business. In New York they certainly are not to be trusted to select life guards.

When a gasoline launch exploded on North Bay, Ontario, a priest, a nun and wife and their two children were thrown into the water. All but the father perished.

With his two little children, one aged two years, one only a month old, in his arms, the father endeavored to swim to the shore, a mile away.

But, exhausted, he was obliged to drop the children. He reached the shore.

THE COUNTRY NEWSPAPER

J. B. Holton, Mississippi State Commissioner of Agriculture, recently paid a worthy tribute to newspapers that expresses graphically the general public feeling for the press.

"I have always appreciated the power of the press, more especially the 'country' press," said Mr. Holton. "The home papers carry the home news, and are read from cover to cover by those whose first interest is in home affairs. They reach the people and constitute a powerful influence on public sentiment."

"A wonderful factor for good is the country newspaper; worthy of the pride and support of folks at home, an avenue of commercial entrance to those who would sell their goods to our people. President P. L. Turner in his annual address eloquently described its importance in these words:

"Out yonder stands a locomotive on the railroad track. Everything about it is in order; water in the boiler, coal in the tender, engineer at the throttle; but it can't move. All it lacks is steam. Remove the newspapers from Mississippi, take away the 'steam,' and this state would soon be a state of idle people; its credit gone. Weeds would grow in the streets; our farmers would look for pastures newer, manufacturers would depart from us, and our people would seek new fields of labor."

The "home town" paper is an integral part of the lives of the people it serves. It has been a tremendous factor in building up an American spirit and consciousness, and in turning public opinion into wise avenues.

MEATS IN SUMMER

A dog may eat meats all his life, and die of old age. The ox may do the same thing on vegetarian diet exclusively. But man is a very complex, highly-organized being, and requires wide variety to properly nourish his body. He must have both animal and vegetable food, properly balanced; meat is not the only animal food; all dairy products are animal.

Fresh meats must be diminished, or eaten with great care during the hot months. I saw a fat old man buying two pounds of fresh pork sausage the other evening, for his breakfast next morning. I bought ten cents worth of chipped beef—and I am a fat old man myself! I had as left swallow a hot flatiron on a warm morning as two or three "pats" of fresh pork sausage!

Cured meats are preferable in hot weather; my reason for this belief is, the curing takes much of the nitrogenous element out of it, and leaves the lean cells, which are provided with enough blood-restoring elements to restore energies that have been in part exhausted by the daily toil. Meats, from the amount of combustion necessary to appropriate them to our needs, are heat-producers, and fresh meats produce more heat than cured meats. It requires more syteatic outlay to digest fresh meats—more of potential energy; and this is not conducive to good feeling in hot weather. A moderate portion of cured meat, once a day, supplies the need of the body, and is much more comfortably borne.

Another argument against excess of fresh meats is the strong juices in meats—those characteristic of the animal slaughtered—are harmful, if not inadaptable to the human body. The more of the native juices that are removed by curing, the better for us.

How to Play BRIDGE.

Series 1927-28 by Wynne Ferguson
 Author of "PRACTICAL AUCTION BRIDGE"

Copyright 1927, by Wynne Ferguson, Jr.

One of the novelties of recent bidding is the great attention being paid to distribution. If a player bids no-trump and second hand passes, many take-outs are possible and justifiable from the point of view of distribution that would not have been considered sound under old practice and theories. For example:

Hearts—7, 4
 Clubs—Q, J, 9, 7, 6, 2
 Diamonds—A, 7, 5, 3
 Spades—8

Y :
 A B :
 Z :

No score, rubber game. Z dealt, bid one no-trump and A passed. Y noted that he held a badly balanced hand—six clubs, four diamonds, two hearts and one spade, the so-called 6-4-2-1 distribution. He was a very good player and knew that any hand containing a singleton or void suit and one very long suit is very seldom of any help for a no-trump. On the other hand, if played at a suit, it holds great possibilities of game. Y, therefore, bid two clubs, all passed and he made five odd, game and rubber. If he had disregarded the distribution of his hand and passed his partner's no-trump bid, Z could only have made the odd at no-trump. Be on the lookout for this type of take-out.

There is another side to this theory of distribution take-outs. If partner bids no-trump and you have a well-balanced hand, evenly distributed among the four suits, there is no reason for a take-out. For the same reason, if partner bids a suit, second hand passes and you have a fairly strong and evenly distributed hand, and no more than three of your partner's suit, bid one no-trump. With this type of hand, the so-called 4-3-3-3 type of distribution, there is a better chance for game at no-trump than at the suit bid. For example:

Hearts—8, 4, 3
 Clubs—A, 7, 6
 Diamonds—10, 8, 5
 Spades—A, Q, 7, 2

Y :
 A B :
 Z :

No score, rubber game. Z dealt, bid one heart and A passed. Y noted that he had an evenly distributed hand and knew that with this type of hand it is just as easy to make three odd no-trump as three odd in hearts. As the former score means game and the latter does not, a good player should bid no-trump and thus better his chances for game. Y, therefore, bid one no-trump and all passed. In the play of the hand he made three odd, game and rubber, while at hearts Z could have scored only three odd.

It is on hands of this type that the progressive player, the one who is constantly trying to improve his game, has such an advantage over one of the old school. If this analysis hasn't convinced you, try out the theories presented in these two hands and the result will speak for itself.

A great deal has been written about the duties of fourth hand and the type of hand that justifies a bid in this position after three hands have passed. Very little, however, has been said about third hand and what he should do when the first two players have passed. The following example hand is a good illustration:

An analysis of this hand and of the principles underlying third hand bids will be given in the next article.

HINTS FOR THE HOME

Most of us who have tried breakfasting in bed remember, not the luxury of it, but the inconvenience of the wabbling tray balanced precariously on our knees—or at best the awkward reach required by its location on a table beside the bed.

Now, in the name of invalids and luxurious folk, a novel tray has been designed to fit over the knees, with its sides resting solidly on the mattress. The table top is broad and firm, and there are side pockets to hold the morning paper and personal mail.

You may have your choice of pink, blue, mauve, or pale green or ivory. In these trays—and usually there is a delicate flower motif by way of additional decoration.

A. D. Class Entertains Boomerang Class

On Monday evening of this week the A. D. Class of the First Baptist Church was hostess to the Boomerang Class. Mrs. Reynolds was considerate and kind enough to offer them her beautiful and spacious lawn for the evening's entertainment. It is indeed an ideal place for such functions and a more suitable or convenient one could not have been had in this city. She very graciously had the lawn lighted and decorated for this occasion and is to receive the hearty thanks and appreciation of both classes for her extreme kindness.

The party was given in honor of the various members of the Boomerang Class who are either going to college or going to teach and under the supervision of their more than able and efficient teacher Mrs. Ammons, a plan of entertainment to correspond with this idea was closely adhered to.

It is the consensus of opinion among those present that this was the most enjoyable evening of entertainment scheduled on the social calendar this past season, and the Boomerang Class is waiting to welcome future socials which are being planned for the entertainment of this fast growing and ever appreciative class.

The following is a list of those who are contemplating school life in the various schools of the State or will teach in the public schools: Oneita Blanton, Annie Matt Tate, Chase Eiland, Wallace Reid, Lloyd Rowden, Arva Harris, Lucile Collins, Nina Collins, Alice Rogers, Dolphine Hendrix, and Earle Morgan.

All Genius Starts In Country, Say Singers

MARY and BILLIE LEE

Sisters Declare City Offers No Room for Dreams

New York City—Out of childhood dreams come the adult ambition and careers that make the world move on—that make evolution in music, art, drama, literature and science—and often invention. Children of the city are left with no achievement, no goal to dream of. Everything has happened so much of the superlative in human effort as seen about them, that the incentive to create is taken away.

Mary Lee, singer, of the team of Lee Sisters, backs up this theory with the assertion that most successful people of today come from the country.

Surveys Leaders

"This is especially true of the stage and music world," declares Miss Lee, who with her sister Billie, hails from Grand Island, Nebraska.

"A survey of the leaders today in practically every profession would, I am sure, show that they spent their early lives in the country."

MILAM-BROACH

P. B. Broach and Miss Lillian Milam, both of this city, were united in marriage at Knox City on Thursday evening of last week, the ceremony having been performed by the Rev. Cummings of that city.

The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Milam of this city, and was for a number of years a popular member of the student body of the Munday high school, after which she attended Baylor College at Belton.

The groom is a son of Mrs. P. B. Broach, and is a member of one of the pioneer families of this section, his father, the late P. B. Broach, being for a number of years one of Munday's leading business men.

We join the many friends of these young people in wishing for them a long and happy married life.

Tom Haney was carried to Wichita Falls on Saturday afternoon of last week in a very serious condition. Physicians pronounced his ailment as gallstones, and it was believed for a time that an operation would be necessary. However, later reports were to the effect that he was improving some and it was hoped that the necessity of an operation would be averted.

A VANISHED BUGABOO SOME REAL CALVINISTS JAILERS AND CRIMINALS THE TALKING MOVIES

Dread of big business fades. Raskob, financial head of the four billion dollar General Motors Company, is Democratic National Chairman. Owen D. Young, chairman of the Board of the General Electric Company, one of the great corporations in America, is asked to run for Governor by Democrats in New York.

William Jennings Bryan, where he dwells in bliss, doubtless shudders at all this. But these are practical days; big business is practical, and it is well to recognize things as they are.

Some Calvinists, it seems, are still Calvinists like old John. Queen Wilhelmina, of Holland, will not attend the Olympic games. Calvinists in Holland are urged to stay away from what stern preachers call "a carnival of the flesh."

Dutch Calvinists say the Olympic games turn men away from Gogtha to Greco-Roman paganism. A majority of human beings have abandoned the John Calvin theory, which included the burning alive of Dr. Servetus on slight provocation, believing that the good Lord wants people to enjoy themselves occasionally.

Crime organization seems to reach a vast everywhere. One Sunday morning two dangerous man-killing gunmen escaped from Sing Sing Prison.

The same morning two Sing Sing Prison guards were arrested, accused of blackmailing motorists on the highway.

No wonder prisoners escape, when the jailers by night are highway blackmailers by day. A fine example to the prisoners, in "reforming" prison atmosphere.

Dr. Ira S. Wile says the population is "growing older." It lives longer, the birth rate is lower. But old people, he says, are no longer proud of their age and little reverence is paid it. Today the number of those past fifty is fifty per cent greater than in 1870.

Age is nothing to be proud of, since we grow old in spite of ourselves. But to be hard at work when you are old, and EFFICIENTLY at work, is something

Young ladies that "don't seem to get any proposals" will marvel on hearing that our Peggy Joyce is about to be married again.

This will be her fifth husband and her second nobleman. Once Miss Joyce was the Countess Gosta Moerner, but she gave that up. The Countesses had "good money." Happy No. 5, if everything goes smoothly, will be Lark Northesk, whose wife, formerly Miss Jessica Brown, is now divorcing him.

Mr. and Mrs. D. T. Mauldin attended the Shrine ceremonial at Stamford on Monday.

planned to see a football game that afternoon but his intention had been to pick up a couple of pickpockets there, if they were still working the football crowds, and a murder was apt to be more interesting. He followed the circular drive to the veranda, glancing past the house toward the back where the drive curved farthest and when he had mounted to the veranda he rang the bell. Norbert, the colored houseman, came to the door.

"I'm the detective assigned to this case," he said without flourish. The body upstairs or downstairs?"

"Upstairs, sir; yes sir," Norbert assured him. "Two cops up there; you can go right on up. Should I take your hat, sir? No; you goin' take it with you. Right up those stairs. Yes, sir!"

At the head of the stairs one of the officers greeted him with a "Hello, Dick!" and Brennan replied "Hello, Joe!"

"Mean piece of business this is, Dick," the officer said.

"Stabbing, is it? What was that about it being an old lady?"

Mount Rokotinda, on the Island of Paloweh, Dutch East Indies, blew up in a volcanic eruption. Half the island, six villages were destroyed, a thousand killed.

Yesterday news came that three more villages were wiped out by a tidal wave caused by a submarine earthquake.

We pay little attention to these deaths far away, a thousand or fifty thousand, little difference. But we ought to observe with gratitude how many things might happen to us that do not happen.

Raditch, Croatian statesman, murdered leader of peasants, is found to have a brain of abnormal weight, 1,459 grammes.

The average for eleven thousand human brains was 1,361 grammes.

All things being equal, a heavier brain is better than a lighter brain. But one of the heaviest brains ever weighed, that of Currier, the great naturalist, was lighter than that of a man who died in a British poorhouse.

Possibly the man in the poorhouse was also a genius, but never had a chance.

Andrew Carnegie made his first $400 without spending a cent. That's how big fortunes often start.

Carnegie bought $400 of insurance stock, gave his note in payment, paid for the stock with its dividends, owned it for nothing.

Joseph P. Day, learned land scientist, says the three greatest letters in the alphabet are "O. P. M.," meaning "Other People's Money."

A quicker way to make money without capital is to have a good idea and push it. A way to plate metallic surfaces with aluminum, something hitherto found impossible, is discovered and involves actually billions of dollars to be saved.

The invention will be applied to countless uses, from kitchenware to locomotives, and is expected to give automobiles a finish defying time and weather.

There are as good ideas in the human brain as ever came out of it. Try and find one.

Sears, Roebuck stockholders yesterday voted to increase capital stock by $500,000 shares. At market prices that company is worth more than $500,000,000. Julius Rosenwald hardly expected that when he took hold of the company a few years ago.

Compared with other companies, General Motors, Standard Oil, U. S. Steel, etc., Sears, Roebuck is only a baby. We have the four billion dollar stock company. When will the 100 billion company arrive?

The death of Chang Tso-Lin, dynamited in his railway carriage, is attributed by a British writer, Lenox Simpson, to the Japanese "Black Dragon Society," which interests itself in patriotic Japanese affairs, and is said to have had a hand in the death of the Queen of Korea in 1895. In spite of the romantic name and the patriotism, the Japanese will probably dig out the facts.

They don't like any organization exercising powers outside of government, such as are tolerated, some times, in other countries.

SHRINERS VISIT MUNDAY

Munday was favored with a brief visit from the Maskat Temple Shrine on Monday morning, when the band and drum corps together with a number of members of the order stopped here and paraded through the main street of the city. They were en route to Stamford where they staged a ceremonial during the evening, and many local members of the order went over and enjoyed the festivities of the occasion.

J. W. Harris of Crosbyton, Texas, was here the latter part of last week, visiting in the home of his son, Walter Harris. The senior Mr. Harris was for many years a resident of the Munday country and has many friends throughout the section.

J. P. Kennedy returned on Tuesday from a visit to relatives at Hamilton, Waco, Sulphur Springs, and other points.

Misses Lois Wyche and Velma Hanks of Anson were guests of friends and relatives here during the week-end.

and told him the story, and asked him why it was that I who flattered myself on being an intelligent man could not understand what kind of a thing a sine wave was.
"Why," he replied, "that is very simple. A sine isn't anything at all."
"I know," I answered, "but why put it in the dictionary?" He said: "A sine is not a thing. It is a relation between two things."

STRAW VOTES TAKEN OVER COUNTRY INDICATE CLOSE BATTLE IN NOVEMBER

Nationwide Poll Results Give 499,284 to Hoover and 489,708 to Smith; Many Switches Attributed to Dry Question.

The general consensus of opinion is that many switches in sentiment being revealed in the Straw Vote this year, it is believed, voting for the man who pleases them most in reference to this one matter rather than voting for a candidate because of party affiliations.

In the Nationwide Presidential Poll taken by this newspaper in co-operation with 2,000 others the country over, it has been revealed that 499,284 former Democrats are to vote for Hoover and 489,708 former Republicans are to vote for Smith. The showing of party lines, political opinions, is due to the wide difference of opinion on the prohibition question.

Hoover's lead is well nigh impossible. Hoover still retains his lead in the poll, but it is constantly narrowing, and everything points to a severe battle in November.

"VERY LATESTS" By Ceble

One thing you may be certain about this fall—and that is—if the costume's velvet, it's smart.

The novelties of the season, of course, are printed velvets. And there's a pattern for every purpose—dots and bubble patterns; geometric and floral designs; patterns futuristic and demure designs to please the most retiring.

The printed velvet illustrated belongs to Grace Brinkley, the winsome star of "White Lilacs"—and its gold-bedecked background with design of plume forms a lovely color harmony for her blond hair and fair skin. A band of matching plain velvet trims the V-neck; shoes of suede in prune shade complete the costume.

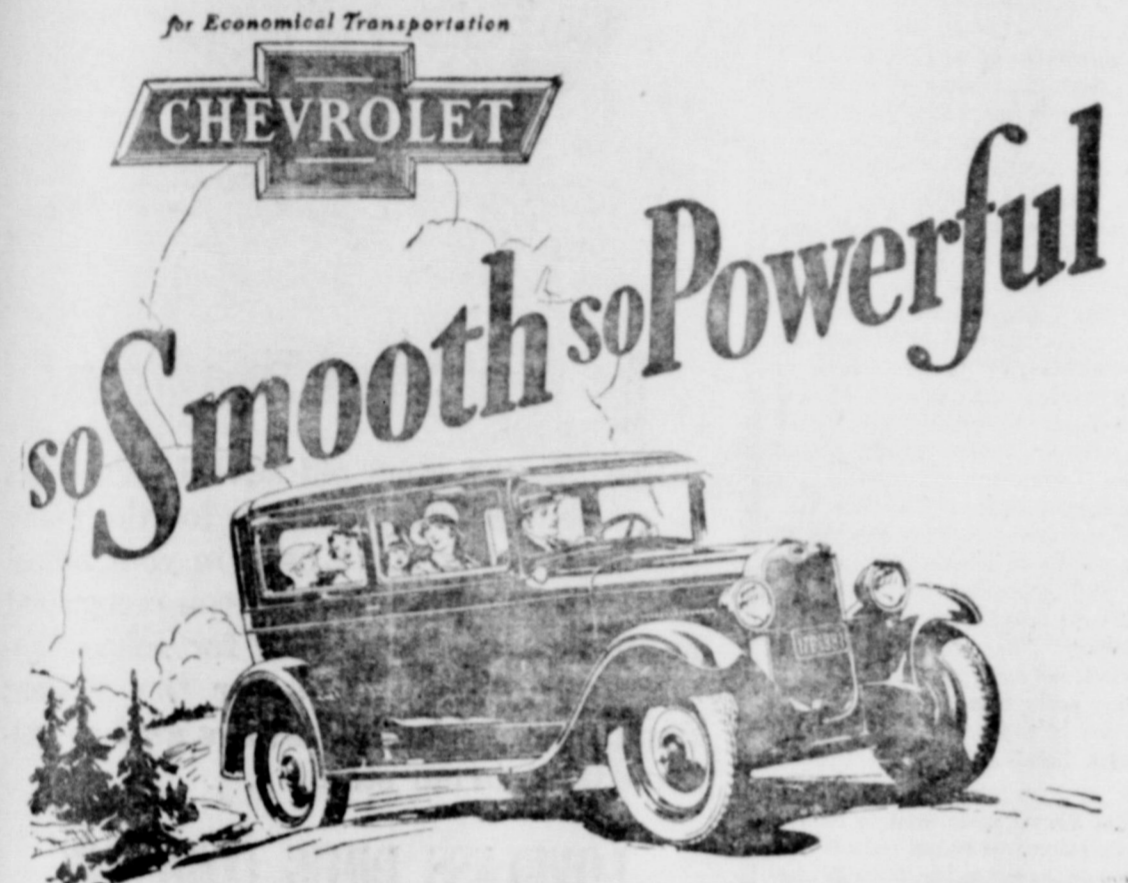

Although interest seems to center about printed velvet frocks, you may have your own way with velvet—plain, printed, transparent or shot with metal threads—and use it for frock, coat, evening wrap, sports costume, or separate blouse. This season 'would be hard to make a mistake—if it's velvet.

The Normal Waist Line? Many newer sports costumes feature the normal waistline. And a number of recent models, designed for autumn evening wear also show this tendency. Sometimes the waists of these frocks droop toward the back, in harmony with the longer back lines that are so distinctive. But more often they are practically normal "all the way around."

"Skirts Longer—Says Paris" "Very latest" skirt lengths will be, in some cases, four and five hem-degths below the knee, says a famous French designer. Just how quickly America will adopt the change is not predicted, although the belief is that the skirt of Paris will be accepted—as usual.

Details Must Not Be Neglected No matter how much is involved in the purchase of frock or coat, one cannot afford to neglect the finishing touches of the costume—the hat, gloves, shoes and bag. It is very smart, just now to wear a bag and shoes that match, and many shoe shops have planned their stocks so that they can show you made or antelope, snakeskin or colored kid shoes and bags that harmonize perfectly.

THE NEW FARMING ACCOUNT SCHOOL

The good business farmer today watches his farm accounts carefully in respect to his labor, his farm stock and his soil, he knows what they can do and how they can be most profitably handled. He knows the mathematics of growing feed from the soil, pigs and poultry from the feed and such profits from pigs and poultry. He knows whether he is milking the cow for paying returns or the cow is milking him out of his invested capital. Wherever his accounts show a deficit or insufficient profit on one or more items, he immediately studies to overcome the handicap and correct any mistakes that have been made.

The Agricultural Commission of the American Farm Bureau Association is conducting a nationwide educational campaign in better methods of farm accounting. The commission has been stressing the wisdom of country boys, through cooperation of county agents, calling farmers together, and holding account schools where instruction is given on the use of the farm account books.

Each person is led through the various steps in keeping accounts and each scores his own inventory which he has previously been instructed to take and bring to school. This gives a good start and when properly followed up by letters and an occasional visit by the specialist in charge, great results are to be expected.

HOW TO GO BROKE FARMING

1. Grow only one crop.
2. Keep no livestock.
3. Regard chickens and a garden as necessities.
4. Take everything from the soil and return nothing.
5. Don't stop gullies or grow cover crops—let the top soil wash away, then you will have "bottom" land.
6. Don't plan your farm operations on hard work thinking—trust to luck.
7. Regard your woodland as you would a coal mine, cut every tree, sell the timber and use the cleared land for cultivation, if it corn.
8. Hold fast to the idea that the methods of farming employed by your grandfather are good enough for you.
9. Be independent—don't join with your neighbors in any form of cooperation.
10. Mortgage your farm for every dollar it will stand to buy things you would have the cash to buy if you followed a good system of farming—University of Extension, University of Tennessee.

THE RUDEST BOY IN TOWN

Willis and Lenora Bailey

"Would you believe it, Mrs. White had the nerve to tell me that David is the rudest boy in town," said Mrs. Elliott, who was taking Mrs. Shirley out driving in her new Willys-Knight. After a few minutes' silence due to traffic demands she continued, "But I'm not sure her beloved little Jack is any better."

She had forgotten how frank Mrs. Shirley was until she heard her say: "I do not agree with you in regard to Jack. Mrs. White's children are deservedly called the most courteous in town."

"Oh, dear! I know David is bad, but I don't think anyone for telling me so. We try to make him mind. I know we punish him enough."

"That is true, Mrs. Bailey, but at the same time you frequently say in David's presence that you cannot control him. You call him incorrigible, yet when David can't get along with the other children at school you listen to his story and uphold him while you censure the others. Then when he played in the little band, he really was the cause of its disbanding because the other little boys would not come to practice and he roughly and rudely treated by David. You listened to David and felt sorry that all the boys dropped out without good cause when Mr. Wood did so much for them."

"Merry me! is all that true, Lois? I know I have always tried to see as much good as possible in David for his faults are so big and glaring I couldn't fail to see a great many of them. What shall I do with him? I'm sure I am trying."

"You are indeed, and if punishing is trying you try hard for you certainly do punish him very severely—but I fear I cannot say it is always judiciously."

"I do not understand what you mean."

"Well, a few minutes ago when you stopped the car and made David get out and walk two miles back to town, the punishment was deserved but from the way you gave it he will always think it was because he hurt you, physically, when he so rudely illustrated in detail what Bill had done to him."

"Why, I made him get out not only because his actions were crude but because by grabbing me around the neck so suddenly he might have caused me to wreck the car."

"All true enough, dear, but you were angry and he knew it and thinks it was because he hurt you. As he trudges back he may even find it in

Have A Good Laugh With The Camera Man

Don't run for a doctor—you're not seeing things,—the camera man did. Calm down. Pretty Lillix Metzger, at the extreme right, seems to have made the camera man go wrong. The first picture is of a film beauty, Raquel Torres—it's easy to see where the naughty camera man was looking. Johnny Brown, also of the films, is the only male sufferer in this cameraman's spite. His legs are certainly long enough to reach the ground. The second picture is of a young lady who may have got that way sitting at board-ing houses. When Tex Rickard sees this, he may try to sign her up—her reach beats anything he ever "seed" before. No, you don't need new eyeglasses—but somebody needs a new camera.

He must be glad he did it because you hurt him."

"Well, what else could I have done?"

"Controlled yourself absolutely, first. Self-discipline must come first if we would control others. The great trouble with David is he has never been punished except by an angry parent. He draws this conclusion: When angry strike and hurt some one. So he does it."

"I didn't have time to think when he acted as he did a while ago, but I might have been calmer in appearance."

"It will take more than appearance. It must be real, true calmness to be effective. Children see through pretense at once. David's offenses are so outright, usually, that you could soon show him that he needs discipline for his own sake, and that you are not giving it just because you are angry."

With the assistance of this frank friend of the family, David soon became thoroughly manageable.

It is surprising but entirely true that very many so-called incorrigible children have been made so by parents who use poor judgment in controlling them.

Mrs. J. S. Fisher of Silverton was here several days the latter part of last week visiting friends. Mrs. Fisher states that Silverton is experiencing much growth since the arrival of the railroad, there being a number of brick business houses under construction there at present.

THE LIVESTOCK SITUATION

Students of economics have for some time felt that there should not be a difficult marketing problem in the United States, insofar as meats are concerned. It has been felt that through a strong campaign carried out in all parts of the country, similar to that of certain other food articles, a market could be built up which would not only take care of all of the available supplies of beef, pork and lamb but that the demand could be greatly broadened so as to consume our surpluses under ordinary conditions.

The advanced prices of meat foods result from the natural working out of the law of supply and demand and the fact that prices for a considerable period did not yield a living wage, so to speak. As a consequence, capital and labor retired from animal husbandry causing a decreased supply. The effect of this situation brought about a reaction of price which under the same laws will continue on the high level until capital and labor are again attracted to production.

Competent authorities vary in opinion as to the length of time necessary to reach the apex of high values and start on the downward trend to lower levels, but we can reckon pretty accurately when we consider that beginning with the period of restriction, a lapse of nine months occurs before the calf is dropped. We can add six to seven months for weaning and an additional six to twelve months as the least possible time in which the critter may be brought up to beef maturity so that we have a total period, gestation to beef of approximately twenty-four months and the ordinary Western process of raising the young animal until it makes its growth, an additional twelve months is about right for beef maturity. The saving of heifer calves is an important factor in the present situation as the practice followed in this respect goes directly to the matter of increased beef production.

Undoubtedly much of our difficulty can be overcome by anticipating at this time the swinging of the pendulum to the point of increased production. There are two things to consider—quality and quantity. The latter is the danger element and the former is the beneficial result to strive for, for quality sells first.

The sheep flocks in this country have been increasing in recent years. There were many who believed that the country had reached the saturation point some time ago and that the larger offerings this year would be taken at lower price levels. There continues, however, to be a broad outlet for lambs without the anticipated diminution in price because the public has been told in an effective way of the value of lamb as a meat diet and the product has been placed before the consumer in an attractive manner, selecting the tops out of the different bands; the cut backs going to the feed lots for additional flesh so that with larger supplies and lowering prices staring the industry in the face, leaders banded together and through the aid of organized packer and retail effort initiated a country-wide campaign to interest the consumer to eat more lamb. Last fall the idea was tested out in three middle western cities, small consumers of lamb; in fact, places where lamb had been a scarce article in the retail meat shop, this despite the fact that thousands of western range lambs were marketed at those points as well as the thousands which were fattened on immediately adjoining farms.

Through the medium of practical advertising, special cooking classes to devise and demonstrate new ways of preparing lamb, carcass cutting demonstrations, the various especially were sold on the idea of including lamb as part of the daily menu. Incidentally the campaign was put on in such a way that no opposing voices were heard from grocers or distributors of other food products. Similar demonstrations will be carried out in principal cities throughout the country although the intensive work will be in the sections where lamb has never before been seriously considered in the diet.

The same possibilities are within the reach of beef, veal and pork producers. Production beyond the immediate demands and worrying about exceeding the saturation point are nothing new and have been overcome in a great many instances by intelligent merchandising with advertising and displaying an important role. The public is interested in an improved product, attractively presented, and, seemingly, with more than one hundred and twenty million mouths to feed, we should approach the proposition with enthusiasm and the will to do it well, rather than with fear and trembling. The problem before the livestock and meat producing and consuming public is not to rush to a restriction of production but rather to broaden distribution.
