Munday Store Gets Award For Selling Gold Flame Coffee

The annual banquet of the wholesale grocery division of the Bryant-Link Company was held on Monday evening of this week at Spout, and invitations were extended to the Baker-Campbell store to attend, however, employees here were prevented from attending on account of the rain. However, the local firm was pleased when Mr. George S. Link, superintendent, announced that the Munday store had won first prize in the sale of Gold Flame coffee during the thirty day period in competition with 15 stores of the two counties, which fact affords much satisfaction to E. S. Bales, manager of the grocery department.

New Brick Building Under Construction Here By G. L. Beck

Grady L. Beck has started work on the construction of a new brick building on his property just north of the White Filling Station, and materials are being rapidly assembled. The building will be 20x26 feet at present but Mr. Beck has the confidence to build for a much larger building and will likely erect an addition to the present building within the next few months.

FARMERS' WIVES DIRECT BIG MARKETING ORGANIZATION

"Mere Man" Hasn't The Monopoly In Western Canada Farm Pool. Regina, Saskatchewan, March 14.—Mere man have not the monopoly for directing large and successful farmers' cooperative marketing organizations in Western Canada, where there are several such. Indeed they haven't! The Saskatchewan Egg and Poultry Producers, Ltd., with a total membership of over 19,000 and doing a gross annual turnover of approximately $600,000, was organized by a number of farmers' wives less than three years ago. The first president was Mrs. John Holmes, of Asquith, Saskatchewan, and she still holds the office by popular choice. Only two of the six members of the Board of Directors are men. They were elected probably to prove that there is no sex superiority complex and by the overwhelmingly large number of women in the membership of the Pool.

Heads Farm Pool

The Saskatchewan Egg and Poultry Pool was organized because the farmers' wives regarded the system of individual marketing inefficient and under it they were the losers. ## SEVENTH INSTALLMENT

What Happened Before

Palermo is the scene. There an ex-Countess of Marioni, has come for love of Adrienne Cartuccio, who spurns him. He meets an Englishman, Lord St. Maurice, who falls in love with Adrienne on sight. Leonardo sees his sister Margarita, who tells him his love for Adrienne is hopeless. But he pleads with her to arrange an accidental meeting, to say farewell, between Adrienne and him. She consents. That night the Englishman is informed of an attempt being made to carry off Signorina Cartuccio, and Margarita, who are walking by brigands employed by a rejected suitor on a lonely road. He rushes to the scene, and proves able to rescue the ladies.

Inflamed by the failure of his scheme, Leonardo sees Margarita who shows him she knows that she is the instigator of the attempted attack. The Englishman now sees Adrienne often. The Englishman, sitting in the hotel, finds a dagger at his feet. Looking up he sees the Sicilian, and scents trouble. "We sat here a week ago," recalls Leonardo, Lord St. Maurice notes.

Leonardo and the Englishman quarrel. The Englishman at first refused to accept a challenge to duel, then when the Italian slaps him, consents. The two men fight each other ready to die.

Adrienne stuns the duke by coming just in the nick of time to save the Englishman from his fate, with two officers who arrest the exile Leonardo. Leonardo vows vengeance. After 25 years in jail he is again at his hotel, an old, broken man with only memories left to him.

At his hotel the proprietor, worried about him, advertises for his friends and Leonardo is first visited by the woman he had loved, whom he shows out of his sight. Then there comes to him the daughter of his sister, whom he greets in great surprise. He learns that his sisters is dead.

Now Go On With The Story

He sighed, and his tearless eyes looked thoughtfully into the fire. Memories of other days were rising up and passing before him in swift succession. He saw himself and her, orphan brother and sister, wandering hand in hand over their beautiful island home, with the sea wind blowing in their faces, and the spirit of the mountains which towered around them entering into their hearts. Dear to them had been that home, dear that close and precious companionship. They had talked of the life which lay before them—rose-colored and joyous, pregnant with glorious opportunities and possibilities. For their island and the larger continent close at hand were consulted at that time in certain patriotic efforts, the history of which has been written into the history of Europe, and no one desired more ardently to bear a hand in the struggle than young Leonardo di Marioni. Loyal, hearted, romantic, and with an imagination easily fired, he was from the first a dreamer, and Margarita had ever been ready to share his dreams. The blood of kings was in their veins, to lead him on to great things; and she, Margarita, his sister, his beloved sister, should be the mistress of his destinies. Thus they had talked, thus they had dreamed, and now from the other side of the gulf he looked backward, and saw in his own life, in the place of those great deeds which he had hoped to accomplish, one black miserable chasm, and in hers, forgetfulness of her high descent—for she had married this English merchant's son—and the grave. Ah! it was sad, very sad!

"Child!" he cried, "have you ever heard the story of my seizure and imprisonment? No, you have not. You shall hear it. You shall join between us and them. Listen! When I was a young man, Italy seemed trembling on the verge of a revolution. The history of it all you know. You know that the country was honey-combed with secret societies, more or less dangerous. To one of these I belonged. We called our Order the 'Order of the White Hyacinth.' We were all young, ardent and impetuous, and we imagined ourselves the apostles of the coming liberation. Yet we never advocated bloodshed; we never really transgressed the law. We gave lectures, we published pamphlets. We were a set of boy dreamers with wild theories—communists, most of us. But there was not one who would not have died to save our country, the memory of civil war—not one, not one! Even women were our flower, and very admitted associates of our Order. We professed ourselves that our work was bloodless. No society that ever existed was more bloodless than ours. I say it! I swear it! Hear me without, oh, my God, if what I say is not true!"

He was a strong man again. The apathy was gone; his reason was ached. He stood before this dark, tall girl, who, with clasped hands, was drinking in every word, and he spoke with all the swelling dignity of one who has suffered unjustly.

"By some means or other our society fell under the suspicion of the government. The edict went forth that we should be broken up. We heard the mandate with indignation. We were young and hot-blooded, and we were conscious that we had done no harm—that we were innocent of the things ascribed to us. We swore that we would carry on our society, but in secret. Before then, everything had been open; we had had a recognized meeting place, the public had attended our lectures, below had worn the white hyacinth openly at receptions and balls. Now, all was changed. We met in secret and under a ban. Still our aim was harmless. One clause alone was added to our rules of a different character, and we all subscribed to—"Vengeance upon traitors!" We swore it solemnly one to another—"Vengeance upon traitors!"

"Ah! if I had lived in those days I would have worn your flower at the court of the king," she cried, with glowing cheeks.

He pressed her hand in silence, and continued.

"As time went on, and things grew still more unsettled in the country, a species of inquisition was established. The eyes of the law were everywhere. They fell upon us. One night ten of us were arrested as we left our meeting place. We were all noble, and the families of my companions were powerful. I was looked upon as the ringleader; and upon me fell the most severe sentence. I was banished from Italian soil for ten years, with the solemn warning that death would be my lot if I ventured to return."

"It was atrocious!"

He held up his hand.

"Margarita, in those days I loved. Her name was Adrienne. She, too, was an orphan, and although she was of noble birth, she was poor, as we Marionis were poor also. She had a great gift; she was a singer, and sooner than be dependent upon her relatives, she had sung at concerts and operas, until all Europe knew of her fame. When I was exiled I was given seven days in which to make my adieux. I went to her, and declared my love. She did not absolutely reject me, nor did she accept me. She asked for time for consideration. I could give her none! I begged her to leave the country with me. Alas! she would not! Perhaps I was too passionate, too precipitate. It may have been so. I cannot say. I went away alone and left her. I plunged into the gay life at Paris; I dwelt among the loveliest mountains of Switzerland; I endured the dullness of this cold gray London, and the dissipation of Vienna. It was all in vain! One by one they pulled upon me. No manner of life, no change of scene, could cure me of my love. I fell ill, and I knew that my heart was breaking. You and I, Margarita, come of a race whose love and hatred are eternal!"

She crept into his arms; and he went on, holding her there.

"Back I came at the peril of my life; content to die, if it were only at her feet. I found her cold and changed; blaming me even for my rashness, desiring even my presence. Not a word of pity; not a word of hope to repay me for all that I had risked to see her again. Soon I knew the reason—another love had stolen away her heart. There was an Englishman visiting her daily at Palermo; and she told me calmly one day that she loved him, and intended to become his wife. She forgot my long years of devoted service; she forgot her own unspoken, yet understood, promise; she forgot all that I had suffered for her; she forgot that her words must sound to me as the death warrant of all joy and happiness in this world. And she forgot, too, that I was a Marioni! Was I wrong, wonder, Margarita, that I quarreled with him? You are a child, and yet my instinct tells me that you have a woman's judgement! Tell me, should I have stepped aside, and let him win her, without a blow?"

"You would have been a coward if you had!" she cried. "You fought him! Tell me what you fought him?"

"Margarita, you are a true daughter of your country!" the old man cried. "You are a Marioni! Listen! I insulted him! He declined to fight! I struck him across the face in a public restaurant, and forced him to accept my challenge. The thing was arranged. We stood face to face on the sand, sword in hand. The word had been given! His life was at my mercy; but mind, Margarita, I had no thought of taking it without giving him a fair chance. I intended to wait until my sword was at his throat, and then I would have said to him, 'Give up the woman whom I have loved all my life, and go unhurt!' He himself should have chosen. Was not that fair?"

"Fair! It was generous! Go on! Go on!"

"The word had been given; our swords were crossed. And at that moment, she, Adrienne, the woman whom I loved, stood before us. With her were Italian police come to arrest me! There was one letter alone of mine, written in a hasty moment, which could have been used in evidence against me at my former trial, and which would have secured for me a harsher sentence. That letter had fallen into her hands; and she had given it over to my bitter enemy, the chief of the Italian police. I was betrayed, betrayed by the woman whom I had loved all my life! I was betrayed, betrayed, betrayed! I was in a prison cell!"

Margarita freed herself from his arms. She was very pale, and her limbs were shaking. But what a fire in those dark, cruel eyes.

"Go on! Go on!" she cried. "Let me hear the rest."

"Then, as I stood there, Margarita, love shriveled up, and hate reigned in its place. The memory of the oath of our Order flashed into my mind. A curtain seemed raised before my eyes. I saw the long narrow room of our meeting place. I saw the dark, faithful faces of my comrades. I heard their firm voices—"Vengeance upon traitors, vengeance upon traitors!" She, too, this woman, who had betrayed me, had worn our flower upon her bosom and in her hair! She had come under the ban of that oath. Margarita, I threw my sword into the sea, and I raised my clasped hands to the sky, and I swore that, were it the last day of my life, the day of my release should see me avenged. Let them hide in the uttermost corners of the earth, I cried, that false woman and her English lover, still I would find them out, and they should taste of my vengeance! To my trial I went, with that oath written in my heart. I carried it with me into my prison cell, and day by day and year by year I repeated it to myself. It kept me alive; the desire of it grew into my being. Even now it burns in my heart!

"During my captivity I was allowed to see my lawyer, and I made over deed so much, to be paid every year to the funds of our Order at the London Branch, for our headquarters had been moved there after my first arrest. Day by day I dreamed of the time when I should stand, a martyr in their cause, before my old comrades, and demand of them the vengeance which was my due. I imagined them, one by one, grasping my hand, full of deep, silent sympathy with my long sufferings. I heard again the oath which we had sworn—"Vengeance upon traitors!" It was the music which kept me alive, the hope which nourished my life!"

"The dark eyes gazed upon him like stars, and her voice trembled with eagerness.

"You have been to them? You will be avenged! Tell me that it is so!"

A little choking sob escaped from him. The numbness was passing away from his heart and senses. His sorrows were becoming human, and demanding human expression.

"Alas, Margarita, alas!" he cried, with drooping head, "the bitterest disappointment of my life came upon me all unawares. While I have lain rotting in prison history has turned over many pages. The age for secret societies has gone by. The 'Order of the White Hyacinth' is no more—worse than that, its very name has been dragged through the dust. One by one the old members fell away; its sacred aims were forgotten. The story of its downward path will never be written. A few coarse, ignorant men meet in a pothouse, night by night, to spend the money I sent in been and foul tobacco. That is the end of the 'Order of the White Hyacinth'!"

Sentence Editorials

A man's success is measured by what he does and not by what he says.

The person who would be a leader of others must spend much time alone.

Some students take pride in being tough; they have failed to learn that there is no premium on such conduct.

It is difficult to please everyone. There are students here who have found fault with everything a person does or says.

Every time a boy talks disrespectfully of a girl, he lowers the respect he has for his own mother and sisters.

The world is looking for men who can produce; it has too many learners already.

The world does not owe you anything but the opportunity to serve.

A good way for one to enlarge his borders, broaden his horizon, is to do more than that which is required of him.

Be sure you hitch your wagon to a star and not a comet.

Many more things could we offer you, but if some of our students will follow some of these helpful hints, you will have an easy road to travel later in life. Remember those things when you try to get back at some schoolmate, and do your best to better your faults of saying things that are untrue or things that will darken someone's character. Remember that in the long run all of that which you do or say comes back to you and reflects on you.

Munday high school will be represented at the county meet that is to be held the last of this month at Knox City and Terrell. We are hoping to put in a string of athletics and literary contestants that will carry off the meet with a large number of points "to-be-had".

The annual chess tournament of basket ball will be played sometime after the county meet and to date the seniors are favored to win in the boys' division, while the Senior girls will have to tussle with the Junior and Sophomore girls.

Boys coming out for track are working every afternoon and expect to be in shape for the meet when it comes off. We have some of the most promising athletes in this part of the county, and we are sure that they will carry off many honors in the county meet.

Boys and girls tennis prospects look good. We expect to have the best in the county, and we are striving to better our playing by practicing each afternoon until it is too dark to see the tennis balls.

Several of our teachers attended the Ft. Worth Fat Stock Show in Ft. Worth this week end. However, Miss Paxton found something far matched, thus giving the side lines a thrilling event. The total score was 29-25. Leona "Henry" Ford slipped 27 of the 29 points and Clara made the other two points.

"CHAN'S CHATTER"

The class tournament of both the boys and the girls will be played in the near future. Much rivalry is expected, which will lead to better games. Trophies will be awarded to the class winning the championship both in boys and the girls games.

Nearly every one is busy preparing in some way to have a part in the "County Track Meet" to be held at Knox City, March 22 and 23.

Those coming out for tennis are: Joe Aycock, Rex Holder, "Wild Bill" Miller, Frank Greer, Elton Busby, and Earl Pruitt.

Lillian McGlothlin is the only one so far that has been practicing for the girls tennis match.

Those coming out for track events are: Earl Pruitt, Chester Jones, Joe Aycock, Frank Greer, Elton Busby, Earl Pruitt, Icky Pruitt, Everett Thompson, Cecil Parker, Nolan Phillips, Fayette Edwards, Gilbert Myers, and others for different kinds of events.

Icky is going to run the mile, which will be easy for him.

QUEENS WIN OVER HASKELL GIRLS

Last Thursday night the Munday Queens out pointed the Haskell girls by three points, in a hard fought battle. The two teams were equally stimulant and some smelling salts.

On Friday last week Mr. Rhodes called the seniors to an important class meeting, in which we definitely decided the date for graduation, Sunday, May 19th was officially named Baccalaureate Sunday, and Friday, May 24th graduation night. According to this arrangement, graduation exercises will be completed by the time the rest of the school turns out. We also learned, to our great consternation, that several Seniors did not have enough credits to graduate. We did not come to any satisfactory conclusion about the engagement of speakers for the addresses.

Did you know that it's only 72,000 minutes (4,320,000 seconds) until school closes?

The class tournaments have been postponed until after the county track meet. We hate to delay defeating our honorable opponents, but it is probably the best plan. We will need all possible time to prepare for track, field and literary events, because we can't let Knox City keep the cup this year.

The seniors are supporting the drive made by the Latin club to secure funds for club pins.

Who ever heard of cars ruining the younger generation? Why it's the other way around.

We are expecting Monday to come out winners in county track meet.

JUNIOR FLASHES!

Do Dreams Ever Come True?

On Tuesday, March 5, the Juniors entertained with a "42" party at the home of Clara Tillman, honoring our classmate, Mrs. Ted Carter, formerly Fay Edwards. A number of games of "42" were played, after which a china breakfast set was presented to the honored guest by Chandler Hughes, in behalf of the Junior class. Refreshments were served, Vela Phillips then read "A Leap Year Leap." Each guest wrote in the bride's book. Those present were members of the Junior class, and Misses Kennedy, Thornton, Watson, Paxton, Newton, and Mr. and Mrs. Ted Carter.

Are You a Believer of Dreams?

Much enthusiasm is being shown over the class tournament in basket ball, which will be held immediately after the declamations and track work are over. The Junior girls have high hopes of capturing the prize given to the undefeated team, for they have three men on the regular basket ball team. Much competition will be furnished by our boys, too. Although we haven't enough men to enter by themselves we will borrow some that will make our team shine. Just watch the Juniors!

Would you like to live your dream?

We were asked to write an editorial in English on something that our school needed and the following was selected to be printed. It was written by Arlene Kendall:

Public Speaking for our School

The demand for good public speaking is now greater than it ever was for the magic of the spoken word from the lips of living is the most effective power of shaping men's opinions and influencing their actions. For this reason alone, public speech is of supreme importance in a democracy.

Oratory is a supreme art that is alive, for the eloquence of speech is chiefly character put into words.

Since public speaking is so much used, high schools should foster its teaching and guard its quality. Not only would this training aid students when they have passed on to higher concerns, but it would also enable them to be more fitted for carrying their school to victory in debating contests and dramatic clubs. Younger or older students have a prompt and healthy interest in these things, and if properly prepared, they find something alluring in the art of public address.

Therefore, our school as well as all other schools, should supply this necessary element in the building of the leader that we must climb in order to reach our ideals. High schools are difficult of achievement, but not too difficult provided that we supply the necessary elements toward our goal. We cannot expect to reach our highest ideals at a single leap, but must gradually grow by coaching after them.

FRESHMEN BLAZES

The Freshmen certainly are improving in Sunday school attendance. There were thirty-seven who attended Sunday school last Sunday. We hope to improve more and win that prize.

Last week was the end of the last six weeks. Most of the Freshmen are dreading to see their report cards, but all are glad that they can start a new record of "demerits."

All the classes of high school are looking forward anxiously to the class basket ball tournament. The Freshmen are trying especially to have a good team of the Freshmen boys and girls.

The county tournament meets in about two weeks. We are all going to help Munday school win more points than any school in the county. The Freshmen certainly are helping!

SOPHOMORES

Glorious sand! We found that out last week, when the Sophomores went on a picnic. We had planned on having more fun than we've had this week, and we did! Just as we were coming up from the river, a gust of wind and an acre of sand poured down on our heads. Mr. Kunkel wanted to know who was stirring up all that sand noise. We had lots of good things to eat, including sand-wiches in a basket.

7 A

7 B says they are going to beat us in the Sunday school race. But you just see if we don't come up. There were only three out of our class who didn't go yesterday.

7 B is going to have a picnic Saturday and we are invited. Boy howdy! I guess you think we won't have a good time.

We don't have much to say this time, because we can't bear to think about anything but our report cards. So we will sign off for the day.

7 B

We have decided upon some class rings and expect to be wearing them in a week or two.

We have missed Herchal Thompson the last few days. He is at the Fat Stock Show, expecting to get a prize.

Some of us have been very busy getting ready for the county meet. We expect to be well represented in everything. We are practicing daily.

We had a very good Sunday school report last Sunday. We expect to be in the lead before long.

We are going on a picnic Saturday, to the new bridge near Vera. We hope to have a fine time.

Things That Make Life Worth Living

Electricity and electrical appliances are to the American home what religion is to man. They make life worth living.

Nothing is more wonderful than a comfortable chair, a good book and the soft rays of an electric lamp. For the American Home Electricity has done many things. It has placed pleasures in the house where only drudgery had existed.

The vacuum cleaner, electric range, electric washer, electric ironer, toaster and refrigerator have brought many conveniences and pleasures.

Every one should have electricity and electrical appliances in their home, for when drudgery is abolished, then Life is Worth Living!

THE CHRISTIAN SABBATH

Exodus 20:8-11; Matthew 12:1-8;
Revelation 1:10.

Rev. Samuel D. Price, D. D.

One sacred day a week is not peculiar to the Christian. The Mohammedan observes Friday and the Hebrew keeps the seventh day is distinct from the other days of the week. From the very beginning the followers of Jehovah kept this day for worship and other religious purposes. It began in recognition of the God's completed work in creation. When the Ten Commandments were promulgated at Mount Sinai new principles were not enumerated but formal attention was called to that which had already been recognized in the right way of living. The Sabbath has ever been the day when special thought was given to the Almighty and man's relationship to him. Such meditation naturally expresses itself in worship and then in deeds in accord with our prayers.

In addition to the three passages indicated above refer to Genesis 2:2; Matthew 28:1-10; Acts 20:7; and the Romans 14:4-6. Then very helpful information will be found in your general or Bible dictionary under the words "Sabbath," "Sunday" and "Lord's Day."

All the principles in the Ten Commandments are binding for all time. "Remember the Sabbath Day, to keep it holy" was the direction of Jehovah to the Israelites through Moses. Not what man regards as convenient or personally pleasing is to be the content of this sacred day, but it is to be lived according to the intent of Him who demanded that it be kept "holy." One day of rest in seven is needed for the body and much more than that set apart time is required in which to nourish the soul, that eternal spirit in us that will live for ever. A budgeting of our time is called for and this is the only safe way to get in all that must be attended to. The lazy man has no comfort in this fourth commandment for the requirement is six days of sufficiently hard work to provide for the material things of life.

After the resurrection of our Lord the first day of the week was observed by common consent as the Christian's Sacred Day. Each first day of the week commemorates that resurrection even as does Easter. A study of the Acts of the Apostles given numerous references to this change of time and the reason is adequate.

The Sacred day had been robbed of much of its blessedness by the burdensome prohibitions. Criticism was heaped on the disciples because they picked and ate corn as they went through the fields on the Sabbath. Jesus defended them. There is place for works of necessity and mercy on this "pearl of all the days of the week." There is religion in service even more than in mere formal worship. One test for the right use of this day is the physical and spiritual condition with which we face the responsibilities of the working days of the week. The Lord's Day can be a blessed delight. John was "in the Spirit on the Lord's Day" when he had the wonderful vision on Patmos and we, too, should so use the Lord's Day that we will come into conscious contact with the spiritual relationship with Him.

Spring Evening Wraps Are Flaring are in keeping with those of the other room.

To accommodate the flaring hemline of formal evening gowns the new wraps are also modeled along these lines. Sometimes they adopt the circular effect; again fullness is achieved through the use of shirring which permits the bottom of the wrap to fall in a deep, full flounce over the gown.

Cream Beef Soup

Put 4 cups of strong beef stock and 2 cups of rich milk in double boiler and let simmer for five minutes. Add seasoning to taste, thicken with roux made of 1 tablespoon flour dissolved in cold milk; stir until it thickens. Add 2 well beaten eggs and cook 5 minutes longer, stirring all the while. Serve very hot, garnished with chopped parsley and cheese straws.

A Nice Company Dish

Put cooked or canned lobster through a meat grinder, season to taste, mix with a little cream to moisten and fill small hollowed to-be: A dull blue floor covering, furnitures with the mixture. Sprinkle mixture painted a soft French-gray; blue, with overcertain having a dull top with crumbs and dot with butter; canary or beige background and a lavender in the oval looking until the pattern whose design and coloring tonalities are tender.

Home Hints

When the breakfast room is in plain view from the dining room or off the kitchen it is pleasant to have its color scheme in harmony with the one so near it.

One attractive method of working out the scheme is to use reverse colors—that is, if the dining room scheme uses a beige rug with ivory walls and a great deal of soft blue in the draperies, a good combination for the breakfast room might be: A dull blue floor covering, furnitures with the mixture. Sprinkle mixture painted a soft French-gray; blue, with overcertain having a dull top with crumbs and dot with butter; canary or beige background and a lavender in the oval looking until the pattern whose design and coloring tonalities are tender.

Fried Carrots Are Good

If the family does not like carrots plain boiled, try boiling them until tender, then roll in egg and crumbs and fry in butter until a golden brown.

Ham and Apple Salad

A Laundry Hint

Never iron over snaps and buttons laid on a hard, flat board. Double seams of blanket or several thick garment button side down on this. The buttons will sink into the pad scrub well with soap and warm water. The stains will disappear like magic.

HUBB DIGGS COMPANY FORT WORTH, TEXAS

Ford Motor Co.

February 2nd, 1929.

Dallas, Texas.

Attention: Mr. W. C. Proctor.

Gentlemen:

We are mailing you today under separate cover, photograph of the Montgomery Ward car which they are using for testing Riverside Tires. At the time this picture was taken, the car had been 105,000 miles and is still in the best of running condition and appears to be good for more than another 100,000 miles. The morning the picture was made, we washed the car for the first time since delivery; to look at it, drive it and hear the motor run, you would think it had had no more than 15,000 miles.

It was purchased in Mansfield, Ohio, during May, 1928. The driver states that he is using on an average of about two quarts of oil each 500 miles, the car being driven 500 miles each day. It is driven 250 miles during the day by one driver and the same distance at night by another. They are using the second battery however. The manager of these test-cars states that the switch was left on over night, which he thinks is possibly the reason for having to purchase a new battery. They are changing oil every 1,000 miles; the same fan belt is being used and doesn't look worn. They have given the car a general greasing every 1750 miles and up to the first 100,000 miles had spent a little less than $150 no repairs, etc. The rear axle has never been down; they have used two sets of brake linings, one set of pistons and rings, re-placed clutch once, and have only used one extra hose connection.

The original speedometer was replaced by us yesterday, as it had registered 109,450 miles. It was reset correctly at the end of 100,000 miles but later began to skip or lose from twenty to twenty-five miles each day. The car has been driven at an average of forty miles an hour. The wheels are still tight and running true, and bearings have never been replaced. We have been unable to secure information as to how many miles the tires have been averaging.

We have permission from the Riverside Tire Company to use the picture and also the above information as an advertising feature, if so desired.

Yours very truly,

HERE'S TO SANDY McDONALD

A few months ago the majority of the citizens of this great country of ours appear to have given a strong vote of confidence to the eighteenth amendment; but there has come to our notice a letter addressed to a contemporary publication, "The Office Cat," which so clearly sets forth the opposing view of one Willie B. Fuller, that we take the liberty of here reproducing it for your edification.

"To the Editor:
"Dear Sir:
"You seem to take a good deal of delight in telling other people how to live, and perhaps that is your business; but it seems to me that you exceed your duty when you arrogate yourself the right to reform all of those who may happen to enjoy an occasional drink of 'Scotch' on occasions.

"I have been presented a fine bottle of Scotch whiskey by a friend, and it is before me as I sit at my typewriter and indite this letter to you. It bears the label of Sandy McDonald—a good, fair, well-bodied liquor which I am assured was bought before the war and has been in my friend's cellar ever since. What right has any form of law to make me a criminal if I partake of this gift as it was intended that I do by the giver?

"I claim that any such law is an invasion of my personal liberty. I cannot see where or how I am invading the rights of any other person on earth. I find it excellent. It warms my stomach; it inspires my thought; I cannot feel, Mr. Editor, that I have wronged the community or added to the lawlessness of the general society in so doing. It makes me tired to be classed as a criminal for any such occasion, and I notify you that before long there will be a revolt against the sort of stuff that you are writing.

"Just to show my independence of such truck as you are writing, I have taken another drink of the afore-said most jubilant Sandy McDonald, and I will say to you that it is about as smooth a drink as a criminal ever put into his system. The second drink, which I shall soon follow by a third, makes me more certain that those who feel their systems require stimulant should hand together, organize and start a campaign to floor this Volstead business if it can be done.

"Now, Mr. Editor, I am no bum and you can't make me a bum. I like a little drink now and then and I have taken a third or maybe its is a fourth and I am more than ever convinced that any man who doesn't is a big idiot. You say that this evasion of the law is producing state of affairs in our Great and Glorious Country. You are wrong. This country is just as good as it ever was and was a great deal better country and I will leave it to you if it wasn't when we had free rum.

"I want to say to you that this Scotch is all right. A lot of it wouldn't do us any harm. When we need stimulant we need it. My granfather was brought up on rum. They drank it freely and even the mainstay drink when he came into our country. It's a pretty kind of a country when a grandson is better than his grandfather. I can drink this sort of Scotch all day and not be no worse citizen than I was before. I could drink this whole quiet and nigger quiber an etelash.

"But why I wreat a o f yiu is to remind yiu once again that you are dead wrong in consensin'g evert long why drinks as a boukm.

BY JOHN JOSEPH GAINES, M.D.

This is an era of changes. And we relish them to the point of hearty welcome in most instances. Those who do not change once in a while gradually drift into that lethargic state of mind which we call a rut—and everybody resents that.

The same suit of clothes worn for too long a time grows tiresome to our neighbors, if not to ourselves, though the garments are by no means worn out. People relish contrasts, especially when the change is for the brighter, the newer, the more attractive. And this applies to our reading matter, I think, fully as much as to mere physical appearances.

So the readers of this paper will notice our abandonment of things and words with the medical tang. Ever alert for the best at his disposal, our editor believes that an inspiration diet will be relished for awhile; he believes, and I agree with him, that the mind should be refreshed as well as the body; so it is with no little satisfaction that I take up the pleasant duty to which I am assigned.

There has never been a time when the thinkers of our beloved country have been sought with such positive energy. We are interested in everything good; the bad forces itself upon us, whether we will or no. "Prove all things; hold fast to that which is good." I don't know of any better advice than that.

I heartily wish I could hear all of the comments that may be aroused by the things I shall try to say to you, dear friends, during the next year. Maybe some of you will differ with me; and some of my personal friends may even slip out something of mine—and put it in the scrapbook; I shall dread that way, at any rate. And I fully appreciate the honor of taking the place of a beloved writer who has lately been called to the higher sphere.

May I hope that there is just a little corner somewhere in your heart for me to creep into and be happy?

The parentheses around your mouth—and most women ever contracted through the same methods. The dimple that is bewitching at twenty is far too often a line or a hollow at forty.

The Modern Mode in Mouths
When your mouth begins to lose its mobility you are showing an inevitable sign of age. To retain the youth and beauty of your face I beg you then—look to the mobility of the mouth. The lips themselves will not grow old if they are kept soft and pliable through constant lubrication.

Either white or pink lip pomade will keep the flesh soft and even, and prevent chapping, as well. The aging of the mouth, however, shows in line rather than in texture. A loss of elasticity in the muscles of the face is likely to develop puckers at the corners of the mouth. There is no mistaking this unbecoming sign of the years, but, like everything else, it is far easier to prevent than to correct.

If no more than the tendency is established, to massage the mouth from the center of the chin upward, sure type, feel that lip make-up is

Wickets Man Endorses Orgatone After Taking Two Bottles, Feels Fine Now

"Anyone can't say enough for Orgatone or praise it too highly, if it does for everybody what it did in my case," said Mr. M. A. Stevent, residing at 3406 Grant St., a prominent and well known local man, who is employed by the school organization on the board of education, and while talking with an Orgatone representative recently, he says:

"I was in a very run-down condition and couldn't seem to find anything that would do me much good. I was severely constipated and had heart trouble caused from the gas forming on my stomach and crowding my heart. I didn't have any appetite at all for everything I ate would hurt me so I didn't eat only just when I had to. I was surely worried about my heart for sometimes it would palpitate so fast, it would nearly run away from me.

"Orgatone was advertised so highly and every one that I had talked with who had taken it got very good results and so I bought a bottle. I am getting wonderful results and will continue taking it as long as it helps me. I now eat anything I want, food does not bother me, and the gas formation is a thing of the past now. My heart does not beat as it did and seems to be perfectly normal. Orgatone has certainly proven remarkable in my case."

Orgatone is not a so-called patent remedy but a new scientific treatment containing no false stimulating drugs and may be obtained in Munday, Texas, at Eiland's Drug Store.

too artificial and too extreme to become them. I grant you that some make-up is dreadful; but I also contend that it is just as dreadful for sixteen as it would be for sixty. Your mouth should be most carefully treated. Should you be the wet-man in the thousand who can "get away with it," very highly colored lips may be interesting. If this be your type (and you cannot afford to guess about it; you must know), your cheeks should be pale and vivid lips the one bright spot of contrasting color in your face.

The average make-up requires both lipstick and rouge, but these should be sparingly and discreetly applied.

T. M. CAMPBELL

It was so that everybody in Texas knew about this wonderful medicine. "No matter how careful I was about my eating, I suffered after every meal with gas pains and indigestion. I had no relief for even the most tempting dishes. My liver was inactive and I had to take strong laxatives continually. I felt tired and run-down, and became so nervous I would roll and toss about for hours every night before I could get to sleep.

"Sargon went right to my trouble after everything else had failed. It put my stomach in perfect condition and I got real pleasure out of my meals now for I eat everything I want and I have such a fine appetite I relish every bite. I even eat between meals and at night, and never have a moment's trouble from indigestion. My nerves are strong as steel again and I sleep like a top from the time I hit the pillow until time to get up in the morning. I have gained weight and I feel fine all the time.

OLD FOLKS SAY DR. CALDWELL WAS RIGHT

The basis of treating sickness has not changed since Dr. Caldwell left Medical College in 1875, nor since he placed on the market the laxative prescription he had used in his practice. He treated constipation, biliousness, headaches, mental depression, indigestion, sour stomach and other indispositions entirely by means of simple vegetable laxatives, herbs and roots. These are still the basis of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, a combination ofenna and other mild herbs, with pepsin.

The simpler the remedy for constipation, the safer for the child and for you. And as you can get results in a mild and safe way by using Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, why take a dose with strong drugs? A bottle will last several months, and all can use it. It is pleasant to the taste, gentle in action, and free from narcotics. Slightly people find it ideal. All drug stores have the generous bottles, or write "Syrup Pepsin," Dept. 113, Monticello, Illinois, for free trial bottle.

Count Leonie tells his niece the story of love for Margharita. She is sympathetic.

Now Go On With The Story
Margharita looked like a beautiful wild animal in her passion. Her hair had fallen all over her face, and was streaming down her back. Her small white hand was clenched and upraised, and her straight, supple figure, panther-like in its grace, was extended until she towered over the little shrunken form before her. Terrible was the gleam in her eyes, and terrible the fixed rigidity of her features. Yet she was as beautiful as a young goddess in her wrath.

"No!" she cried fiercely. "The Order shal' not die! You belong to it still, and I—I, too, swear the oath of vengeance! Together we will hunt her down—this woman she shall suffer."

A night, almost passed across the girl's face, but she repeated his words.

"She shall die! But, uncle, you are ill. What is it?"

"She clasped his hands and held him up. He had fainted.

"Where am I, Margharita?"

"You leaned over him, and drew a long deep breath of relief. It was the reward of many weary days and nights of constant watching and careful nursing. His reason was saved.

"In your own room at the hotel," she whispered. "Don't you remember? You were taken ill."

He looked at her, helpless and puzzled. Slowly the mists began to roll away.

"Yes, you were with me," he murmured softly. "I remember now. I was telling you the story of the past — my past. You are Margharita's child. Yes, I remember. Was it this afternoon?"

She kissed his forehead, and then drew back suddenly, lest the warm tear which was quivering on her eyelid should fall back upon his face. "It was three weeks ago!"

"Three weeks ago!" He looked wonderingly around — at the little table at his side, where a huge bowl of sweet-scented roses was surrounded by a little army of empty medicine bottles. "At Margharita's side, was fair, and at a couch drawn up to the bedside. "And you have been nursing me all the time?" he whispered.

She smiled brightly through the tears which she could not hide. "Of course I have. Who has a better right, I should like to know?"

He sighed and closed his eyes. In a few minutes he was asleep.

For a fortnight his life had hung upon a thread, and even when the doctor declared him out of danger, the question of his sanity or insanity quivered upon the balance for another week. He would either be perfectly reasonable, in all respects his old self, or he would open his eyes upon a world, the keynote to which he would either awake a perfectly sane man, or hopelessly and incurably insane. There would be no middle course. That was the doctor's verdict.

And through all those long days and nights Margharita had watched over him as though he had been her own father. All the passionate sympathy of her warm southern nature had been kindled by the story of his wrongs. By day the sight of his helpless suffering had increased her indignation toward those whom she really believed to have bitterly wronged him. Through those long quiet days and silent nights, she had brooded upon them. She never for one moment repented of having acted herself to that wild oath of vengeance, whose echoes often at dead of night seemed to still ring in her ears. Her only fear was that he would emerge from the 2-year illness under which he was laboring, as weakened and shaken, that the desire of his life should have passed from him. She had grown to love this slumbering old man, to her girlhood she had heard stories of him from her nurse, and many times the tears had stood in her eyes as she conjured up to herself that pathetic figure, waiting and waiting, year by year, for that liberty which was to come only with old age. She had thought of him, sad-eyed and weary, pacing his lonely prison cell, and ever watching through his bars and window the E. E. segment of blue sky and sunlight which penetrated into the high-walled court. How he must long for the scent of flowers, the fresh open air, the rustle of leaves, and the hum of moving insects. How his heart must ache for the sound of men's voices, the touch of their hands, some sense of loving or friendly companionship to break the icy monotony of his weary, stagnant existence. Her imagination had been touched, and she had been all ready to sacrifice and to love him as a hero and a martyr, even if he had appealed to her in no other way.

But when she had seen his stricken down and helpless, with that look of ineffable sadness in his weak, dark eyes, it was more than her sympathy which was aroused, more than her imagination which was stirred.

Her large pitying heart became his absolutely. She was alone in the world, and she must needs love some one. For good or for evil, fate had brought this strange old man to her, and woven this tie between them.

He held out his hands; she grasped them fondly.

"Margharita, she came here!" he whispered.

"What, here? Here in this room?"

He nodded.

"It was two days before you came. I was sitting alone in the twilight. The door opened. I thought I was dreaming. It was she, as beautiful as ever, richly dressed, happy, comely. She came to pity, to sue for pardon. I let her talk, and then, when I had gathered strength, I stood up and cursed her. I thrust her away; I cursed her with the fiercest and cruellest words which my lips could utter. I drove the warm color from her cheeks, and till her heart sick with fear, she stumbled out of the room a stricken woman."

"Tell me her name!"

"It was her name. It is now Lady Margharita."

"The Lady, Margharita! She was my mother's friend then?"

"Yes."

Margharita's eyes were bright, and her voice trembled.
