Electric Power and Automatic Switch Installed By City

The city has recently installed an electric motor at the city well which, with its equipment, insures the citizens of Munday a full and unlimited supply of water at every hour of the day or night.

The system which was installed under the direction of Carl Mahan, superintendent of District D, is operated by a 25-horsepower motor, which is mounted on a rigid foundation in the city well. The switch which operates the motor is connected with the float valve in the elevated tower, and float valve which when the water in the tower gets 16 inches from the top of the tank the switch is automatically thrown and the motor starts. The motor is directly connected with a centrifugal pump with a pumping capacity of 250 gallons per minute, hence it will be seen that there is very little likelihood of there ever being a shortage of water in the tower at any time. When the tank is filled the float valve automatically cuts off the electric current to the motor.

It is the purpose of the city to keep two large gas engines that have served for pumping since the system was installed ready to go on a moment's notice, and in case of a fire these engines, together with the electric power now available, would have sufficient pumping capacity to fill every requirement that might come in the most trying emergency, and our city duds are to be congratulated upon the protective measures that have been taken along this line.

The electrical equipment is not only dependable, but requires no attention. It is said that the motor is oiled sufficiently to run for a year without further attention on that score, and the city will practically eliminate the necessity of a pumper by the installation of the electrical equipment. But the most satisfying feature that can be found in the new system is the knowledge that the tower tank is completely filled at all times.

First Distribution of Prizes By Munday Merchants Saturday

Following the same line that was followed some two years ago the merchants of Munday through the Retail Merchants Association have made plans for the distribution of premium money each Saturday that amounts to $40.00, and the first distribution on this plan was made Saturday afternoon. The premiums are divided into five parts as follows: first $15.00; second $10.00; third $7.50; fourth $5.00; fifth $2.50.

In the distribution Saturday little Evelyn Offutt, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. H. Offutt, was selected to draw the tickets from the box, while J. E. Edwards and T. L. Thompson acted as judges. The ones to which premiums were awarded were: Uchel Morrow, $10.00, on ticket from Baker-Campbell Co.; Walter Moore $10.00, on ticket from Guinn Hardware Co.; Grace Hutchens, $7.00, on ticket from E. E. Akers Dry Goods Co.; Floyd Stearns, $5.00; A. W. Lomley, $2.50, on ticket from Lovelace Drug Company.

It will be noted that the name of the firm which presented the winning ticket is given in all but one instance, and this information is made possible by reason of the fact that a number of the business concerns giving the tickets have stamped their name on the back thereof, thereby enabling the winner to determine just where they received the winning ticket.

SIMMONS 'COWBOYS' AND S. M. U. TO CLASH AT WICHITA FALLS OCT. 13.

Wichita Falls, Sept. 26.—All indications point to an unusually interesting football game here when the Simmons University Cowboys meet the S. M. U. Mustangs on October 13, in what is considered to be the hardest game of the season for them.

The Wichita Falls Chamber of Commerce agreed to sponsor this game about a year ago when the managers of the two teams were making up their schedules for this year. It is the desire of this organization to make available, not only for citizens of Wichita Falls but for all of this section, the best in athletics, shows, music, speakers and other forms of entertainment both in the way of amusement and education, according to a statement of officials of the chamber.

The Rev. S. L. Jenkins of Gore and the Rev. W. H. Albertson of this city were in Abilene from of the week watching the opening exercises of Simmons University.

Mrs. C. G. Yost Is Called By Death At Early Hour Sunday

Mrs. Julia Yost, wife of C. G. Yost, passed away at the family home near Munday on Sunday morning at two o'clock after an illness of about two hours duration, and her death was attributed to an attack of apoplexy.

Funeral services were held at the First Baptist church in this city on Monday afternoon at three o'clock with the Reverend C. E. Stovall, pastor of the Gillespie Baptist church officiating, assisted by the Reverend Curry and the Reverend W. H. Albertson, after which interment was made in Johnson cemetery.

Deceased was born in Tennessee on August 5, 1866. She had been three times married. Her first marriage was to Mr. Pryor, in Tennessee, and to this union four children were born, as follows: Mrs. Vada Smith of Munday; Mrs. Geo. Burns of Munday; Mrs. Vada Kendall of Wichita Falls; and Ezra Pryor of Munday. She was married to Mr. Ely Buckles following the death of Mr. Pryor and with him came to Texas some twenty years ago. To this union one child was born, Pearl Buckles, who is now Mrs. P. G. McPherson, of Frederick, Oklahoma. Some years ago she was married to C. G. Yost, who is left to mourn her going.

Early in life Mrs. Yost was converted and associated herself with the Baptist church and had been a faithful member throughout the intervening years, and her faithfulness to the church is attested to by her pastor.

To the bereaved husband and the sorrowing children we extend our sincere sympathy in their great sorrow.

County Council P. T. A. Holds Interesting and Helpful Meeting

The County Council of the Parent-Teachers Association of Knox County met at Benjamin on last Tuesday afternoon Sept. 18, 1928. The meeting was held in the club rooms of the Sorosis Club.

The Council was organized in February of this year, the following officers being elected: Mrs. Fred Warren of Munday, president; Mrs. Oran Driver of Benjamin, vice-president; and Mrs. Orland Jamison of Knox City, sec'y.

The meeting here this week proved to be an enthusiastic rally for the work. Clubs from the following schools were well represented; Knox City, Munday, Gilliland, Truscott, Dixon, Gillespie and a good crowd from our local organization.

In the absence of Mrs. Warren, Mrs. Driver presided over the meeting. The following program was given:

A talk on Health by Mrs. Frank Moorehouse, of Benjamin.
Fire Prevention by Mrs. Hogue of Knox City.
How we may co-operate with the District and State P. T. A. by Mrs. Edwards of Knox City.

Extension work of the P. T. A. by Mrs. Boyd Gillespie, Truscott.
Mrs. P'Pool gave a brief summary of the work covered, following with a discussion of ways and means of securing a visiting nurse for the schools of the county. A decision was made to secure one.

All talks and papers were fine. At the conclusion of the program a dainty refreshment course was served by the ladies of the Methodist Missionary society. An enjoyable hour was spent in social intercourse and getting acquainted with the neighboring club members.

The next meeting and place will be announced later.

Tom Haney, who has been confined to his bed for some time in a Wichita Falls hospital, has recovered sufficiently to return home and take up his duties, and his many friends are glad to see him on the job again.

Miss Helen Smith left on Wednesday morning for Abilene, where she will be a student in Simmons University for the ensuing term.

Gete Moore Died On Sunday Morning at Greenville, Texas

A message was received here Sunday morning announcing the death of Gete Moore at Greenville, Texas, and Mr. and Mrs. Jim Isbell left immediately for Wichita Falls, where they were joined by Mrs. Moore and the children, and proceeded on to Greenville.

Mr. Moore has been in failing health for the past two years, he having been compelled to resign his position as night policeman here about that time on account of failing health. He moved with his family to Wichita Falls, where they have resided since.

In addition to his wife he is survived by several children to whom we extend our sincere sympathy in their great sorrow.

Wichita Womans Forum To Stage 'Naughty Marietta'

Wichita Falls, Sept. 26.—The Womans Forum of Wichita Falls which includes many women from other cities nearby, will present the first attraction of the season at the Memorial Auditorium on October 8th, the event being the comic opera, "Naughty Marietta," with a Broadway cast.

The Forum has arranged for a number of speakers of national prominence to appear in Wichita Falls this winter for various other plays and musical attractions, according to Mrs. Ben G. O'Neal, president, who said, we hope these entertainments will be enjoyed by many people from all over this section as well as by our own folks in Wichita Falls.

Haskell Citizens Pay Visit to Munday to Tell of Coming Fair

A party of Haskell boosters headed by the Haskell Band came over on Friday evening of last week to tell the citizens of Munday and the Munday country about their big fair, which is to be held in Haskell Oct. 4-5-6. About fifty cars made up the caravan that came over to spread the exciting news about the fair and they were received by a large delegation of Munday citizens who gave them a hearty welcome to Munday.

After a concert by the Jand J. A. Kennedy extended them a welcome to Munday, and incidentally set at ease any misapprehension that might have existed that there existed here the slightest desire to move the Haskell county courthouse to Munday, and who introduced Mr. Henry Alexander, president of the Haskell County Fair Association.

Mr. Alexander stated that due to the fact that a number of fairs had been called off this year the Haskell fair offered greater attractions than ever before, and he extended a cordial invitation to the citizens of Munday to come over and participate in the exhibits and in the festivities of the occasion.

The band played a number of selections throughout the evening and these numbers were intermingled with brief talks by various members of the delegation, including Mr. French Robertson, Chas. Connor, and the Rev. Forrester.

Mr. Alexander expressed himself as being highly pleased with the cordial reception that they received in Munday and expressed a desire that Munday citizens in large numbers attend the fair and enjoy the entertainment that has been provided.

77th Anniversary of The Rebekah Degree Is Observed Sept. 20

The local Rebekah lodge observed the 77th anniversary of that order on Thursday evening of last week when, with local members of the Odd Fellows and their families they rendered a very interesting program and served refreshments.

Invitations had been extended to several neighboring lodges but due to the fact that the busy season is upon the people there were no visitors from a distance present, which fact occasioned keen disappointment on the part of the membership of the lodge.

Mrs. A. J. Bunts, noble grand, gave a very interesting and instructive address dealing with the origin, history and teachings of the Rebekah degree, in which she brought out the fact that this was the oldest ladies fraternal organization in existence, and bears the distinction of not being an auxiliary but a part of the Independent Order of Odd Fellows, an order which has encircled the globe with the flaming story of Friendship, Love and Truth.

Going further into the history of the order Mrs. Bunts said, "The history of the Rebekah degree began as does every great movement—a general demand for more or less definite object—the desire for some method by which the wives of Odd Fellows could participate in the pleasures and benefits of Odd Fellowship became apparent after about twenty-five years of the order's existence, and with pride and honor we revere the principles of Odd Fellowship, which have a tendency to enlarge and develop the emmette benevolence of woman's heart, and like Rebekah of old, it is still the privilege of daughters to minister in deeds and kindness to the wearied traveler and to the stranger within our gates."

Following the program, which included a number of songs and piano solos, and also a reading by Little Gayle Reynolds, refreshments, consisting of ice cream and cake were served, and the evening was pronounced a most enjoyable one by all present.

At the conclusion of her address Mrs. Bunts presented certificates of perfection to Mrs. J. E. Edwards and Miss Lucille Collins. These certificates are issued by the grand lodge of Texas and are awarded only to members who have mastered the secret work of the order.

New Idea To Be Put Into Operation At City at Sewage Plant

D. T. Mauldin, city secretary, was recently sent to Austin and Cleburne to look into a new idea that has been developed recently for the abolishing of all odors arising from sewage plants such as Munday has, and he is confident that with the installation of the new system that all objections to the plant will have been removed.

The system applied is that of burning all the gases arising from the sewage plant, which can be done by making the tanks air-tight and allowing only a small opening for the gases to escape. In the larger plants sufficient gas is formed in these tanks to burn freely, and in at least one instance sufficient gas has been procured from this source to operate a gas engine.

The only obstacle that is contemplated in making the idea workable in the local plant is the fact that the plant is so small that it is a matter of doubt whether sufficient gas will form to burn on its own fuel, however, if it is found that this plan will not work it is the intention of the city to pipe natural gas to the disposal plant and burn the gases by means of a natural gas burner.

We wish to thank our many friends for the kindness they have shown us in this hour of grief, in the passing of our beloved wife and mother. May God's richest blessings reward you all.

HINTS FOR THE HOME
By Nancy Hart

Speaking of ultra-violet ray treatments for children and grown-ups—Did you know forty million hens now use these same rays and prove their efficacy by yielding 40 to 50 percent more eggs?

Science has discovered hens lay best when exposed directly to the sun's ultra-violet rays which they receive in ample quantity during summer. In fall and winter, however, little or none reaches them, for violet rays cannot penetrate through ordinary glass into the hen houses.

Therefore, Science presents the hens with special windows of a translucent material that does transmit the health-giving rays. And presto—the deed is done. The new "windows" are strongly constructed over a wire base, can be bought by the foot, and installed without expert help.

To the many farm women who have experimented long with egg-laying formulas, this knowledge that concentrated sunlight is all a good hen needs is most encouraging.

Paper Towels for Kitchen

A roll of paper toweling should be in every kitchen, for it has many economical uses such as wiping out pans, cleaning the sink, cleaning the stove, etc.; use it also to give a quick final polish to glassware.

Ripe Pear Jam

Peel and core about three pounds ripe pears; chop or slice very thin and measure four solid cups fruit into large kettle. Add seven and a half level cups of sugar and mix well. Use hottest fire, bring to a rolling boil and boil hard one minute. Remove from fire and stir in one bottle liquid pectin.

Skin, pour and seal at once.

An Easy Remembrance

A birthday card from the Sunday School, a greeting card of sympathy from the congregational organizations in time of illness or affliction, a welcome to new members—all help to keep up the spirit of friendliness and serve and do not make too great a demand upon the time of pastor and committee members.

Simple Salads Best

Salads need not be elaborate in order to be delicious and wholesome. In fact, a number of the most satisfying salads are the simplest. Iced lettuce hearts with Roquefort or Russian dressing, apple and celery salad, shredded cabbage, green pepper and onion with plain cream dressing, left-over vegetables moulded in lemon-flavored gelatin—all these are easy to prepare and all are favorites with the family.

The employer was very annoyed at an accident that had damped one of his moving vans.

"Look here, Leary," he said, "just tell me what happened."

"Well, replied the driver, "I was driving my van up the street when a car shot out of a side turning. I pulled up dead, and a chap in a big car ran into the back of my van."

The employer nodded briefly.

"He jumped out," continued the other, "and shouted, 'why didn't you put your hand out?'"

"Put my hand out," I says, "if you couldn't see the van, how could you see my hand?"

ADVENTURES IN THE KITCHEN!

WELL, girls, you've helped me keep my cook," said Mrs. Foster to the assembled members of the Kitchen Club. "Martha told me the other day she was going to leave, and I asked her if she wouldn't stay through today, as you were going to come over and help me dress up my kitchen. I haven't heard a word since about her going. And she's been planning some of her own dishes for you all day. You must help me to make the kitchen pleasant, so I can keep her."

The Foster kitchen was, if the truth be told, gloomy enough to make any cook dissatisfied. And, at that, it would probably have been an average sort of kitchen, a few years ago, before women began to get their eyes open about the possibilities of kitchen decoration. Dugy walls, dingy floor, black stove, dull brown cupboards, two left-over chairs—all these in a room with the cold, harsh light of a north exposure!

Any psychologist could have told Mrs. Foster that the sunniest disposition must change to bad temper in such surroundings. For color has a real and definite effect on people. Its influence for good or bad is just beginning to be realized. And we may hope that as our kitchens grow more colorful, both our cooks and ourselves will come to enjoy more greatly our stay in them.

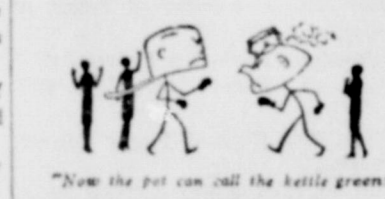

LEAVES FROM NANCY'S KITCHEN CLUB NOTEBOOK

As Mrs. Foster's kitchen has a north exposure which she can't very well change, we suggested that she get sunshine into the room with color. This is the color scheme we worked out: Deep cream walls, yellow curtains, floor painted golden tan with bright-colored linoleum rug, white porcelain enamel oil stove, white porcelain enamel top, kitchen cabinet and cupboards in golden tan, refrigerator, white.

Color for the Cook, Too!

Mrs. Foster said she was going to one better: as she was going to beautify her cook, too, with chintz aprons in brilliant flower designs. That's a good idea, to make yourself or your cook part of the color scheme! If the kitchen is in solid colors, flowered aprons may be used. If the kitchen decorations are in large flowers or figures, plain colors will be better for the aprons. "Set" the colors in salt water before washing the aprons, and they will keep their brilliance much longer.

Colorful Pots and Pans

Mrs. Foster is planning to make the rounds of the hardware and furniture stores to find kitchen vessels that will harmonize with her new color scheme. I have seen them in the most gorgeous yellows and greens and reds and blues, as well as gray and white which will look well with any color.

New Toaster

I want a toaster like Mrs. Foster's. It's the only one I ever saw that will toast four slices of bread evenly over one burner of an oil or gas stove. It has a tray that catches all the crumbs.

Butterscotch Tarts

1 cup brown sugar
Lump of butter size of an egg
Yolks of 2 eggs
1/4 cup sweet cream
2 tablespoons flour
Teaspoon of vanilla

Cook all ingredients together until mixture thickens. Bake muffin tins with pie crust. Bake crusts separately. Fill with butterscotch mixture, top with meringue made with whites of two eggs and three tablespoons of sugar. Brown meringue in slow oven.

Iced and Frosted Coffee

Martha served us the tarts with iced coffee which she made with a half-cup of coffee, a half-cup of milk and a half-cup of cream to each glass. Whipped cream on top. Frosted coffee is made in almost the same way, but has only half the amount of coffee and twice the milk with a tablespoon of ice cream beaten up in it before serving.

Chemists of the United States Bureau of Standard have developed a new process using electricity heated platinum wires for quickly analyzing the gases persons exhale in breathing.

For calking or applying glazing materials a tool has been invented that can be used with one hand, a trigger releasing its contents.

"Very Latest"

Smart sports frocks of worsted, jersey and heavy bengal are among the offerings for the school girl's autumn wardrobe. And those who are wise will look them over carefully, for there are subtle differences that mark them as very latest—or not. New collar and belt effects, for example.

One adaptation of both features Gwen Lee (with Metro Goldwyn) shows us in the frock illustrated. It is the pet sports costume of her wardrobe—a soft rose-red Jersey that buttons to the neck with red pearl buttons and has an odd double belt effect fastening across the center front with red pearl buckles. Similar straps and buckles also trim the sleeves.

And what do you think Gwen Lee wears with this frock? The newest sports socks in deep red silk, cut out at the front and laced like old-fashioned high shoes! They give just the right finishing touch to the costume, however, and—we think—are extremely interesting.

The Way With Eton Effects

Since trimming has slipped to the back this season, the Eton effect has decided to be a bit backward, too—and we find it expressed in this way only on several recent importations. The front of one frock so treated was smooth and plain, while the center of the e-ton back was opened to the shoulder and finished with a softly tied bow.

A New Silhouette for the Hat

Among the new French felts are models with noticeably wider side brims, short fronts and backs. And brims in general seem wider and more inclined to "scoop."

Materials of the Millinery Mode

While the felt will undoubtedly remain the favorite for the tailored mode and velvet for dressier occasions, there is an interesting showing of felt and velvet combined, with a tendency to use two colors together. Velvets are of the panne variety; felts are very pliable, often of the long, silky-haired type that is so durable. Royal blue, pinkish brown and light wine red are the outstanding color notes just now.

WORKED BOTH WAYS

The rich girl had married a poor poet. She had been attracted by his wavy hair and wide trousers.

"Lawrence, dear," she said at breakfast a day or two after the ceremony, "does my wealth make any difference in your feeling for me?"

"It does, Della," answered the poet.

The girl was hurt. She sobbed.

"Don't you see that if anything happens to me I shall be happy in the knowledge that you are provided for?" explained the young husband.

"But if I should die first, Lawrence. What then?"

"Oh, well in that case, I shall be provided for," was the calm reply.

Young Wife: "Before we were married you said you'd be willing to go through anything for me."

Husband: "So I am, dearest, but the way you hold on to your fortune is a caution."

County Federation Met In Goree

The Knox County Federation met Wednesday, September 19, at 2:30 p. m., at the Methodist church of Goree. The church was decorated throughout with ferns and cut flowers. Representatives from Benjamin, Munday and Goree clubs were present.

The president, Mrs. Melton, of Benjamin had the meeting in charge and much business was discussed. Mrs. Patton of Benjamin and Mrs. Campbell of Munday brought us an enjoyable hour when they gave reports on the Biennial which met at San Antonio during June. Miss Dancow read "Home," by Edgar A. Guest. Fruit punch was served to the guests by Misses Sadie Morton and Mary Isbell Heard.

The next Federation will meet at Knox City the third Tuesday of November.

SEVENTH INSTALLMENT

What Happened Before
 Since Judd, amateur detective, and William Hart, an undertaker, are visiting John Drane, eccentric man of wealth, at the Drane estate. Suddenly the household is shocked to find that John Drane has been murdered. The dead man is first seen by Judd the maid, then by Amy Drane and Simon Judd. The latter faints. Police officers call and investigations begin. Dr. Blessington is called, and after seeing the murdered man makes the astounding revelation to Amy Drane that her "uncle" is not a man but a woman.

Dr. Blessington discounts the theory of suicide, saying that Drane was definitely murdered. Dr. Blessington comments on the fact that all the servants in the household of Drane are sick, and that Drane has never discharged a servant for ill health. Dick Brennan, the detective, arrives to investigate the case.

Brennan questions the persons in the house, asking Amy if anyone had any reasons to kill her "uncle."

Amy says no one had any reasons to kill her uncle. After further questioning she is asked about Dart. Meanwhile Judd has told the story of his acquaintance with the actual John Drane in Riverbank.

Now Go On With the Story

"No, nothing. He was uncle John's friend for a long time—long before I came here," Amy said. "They have played cards together many evenings."

"Never quarrelled?"

"No."

"You've not noticed anything queer about the servants?" Brennan asked after a moment.

"Do you mean that they were sickly?" Amy asked.

"Are they?"

"Yes; I think they are all sickly. I don't know why uncle John had such sickly servants, unless he was so kind hearted. Dr. Blessington is here nearly every day for one, or another of them, some one of them is always in bed. It makes it very hard for Mrs. Vincent, the housekeeper, but I'm afraid she's the sickest of any."

"But aside from that you've not noticed anything queer in them. Anything you might call craziness, any mania?"

"Oh, no, never anything like that," Amy said.

"You don't know of any enemies your uncle had?"

"No; he never spoke of any."

"He had business in New York, hadn't he? Had an office there?"

"Yes, Amy said, and told him the address, which Brennan jotted down in his notebook. "He was a speculator, I think. He would wait and buy a great lot of some one kind of stocks and then they would go up and he would sell. I think he always made a great deal of money that way. I don't really know much about that. They can tell you more at his office. His manager there is Rufus Ledermann. He is quite an old man and he has been with uncle for a long while, I think."

Brennan jotted down this name in his notebook.

"Who else is there? You don't know? No matter—I can look that up," the detective said, putting his book in his pocket again. "And I think that is all I have to ask you now, Miss Drane, unless you can tell me something about the servants—who they are and where they came from."

"I think Mrs. Vincent, the housekeeper, can tell you more about that," Amy said. "I've really not paid much attention to that; I've always felt I wasn't wanted to interfere. Mrs. Vincent had been here quite a while when I came, and uncle was old and liked to have things as they were. He didn't seem to want to have me do anything but enjoy myself."

"But you were always ready to do your share if anything turned up," said Brennan smiling. "I can see that, Miss Drane."

"Of course," Amy said. "It wasn't that I didn't want to."

"Mr. Drane just did not seem to want you to bother with the servants and the household affairs and so on; that was it, wasn't it?"

"Yes, he never said much but that was what I felt," she replied.

"I'm trying not to be unpleasant, asking so many questions," Brennan said, "but this whole thing is queerish, as you understand—John Drane being a woman and being murdered this way—and I have to get into my head the best picture of the household as it was, the best picture I can. How was your uncle about money?"

Amy wrinkled her brow, trying to get the meaning of the question.

"Do you mean with me?" she asked. "He paid me an allowance, always on the first of the month. It was fifty dollars while I was at school, but when I came here he gave me a hundred dollars a month. I haven't used nearly all of it. I asked him what I should do with the rest and he told me I could put it in a savings bank, and I did. The house expense he settled with Mrs. Vincent—once a month I think. I've heard them going over the bills. He seemed particular about them."

"He was a woman," suggested Brennan, "and household bills were in his line, possibly. Did he keep much money in the house? Had he a safe here? Did he bring securities home, do you know?"

"No, nothing like that. He used checks almost always."

"No jewelry to amount to anything?"

"He never wore jewelry at all, not even a ring."

"There was a scarf pin," Brennan reminded her.

"Yes; that was all the jewelry he had," Amy said.

"I thought, perhaps, as he was a woman," Brennan explained, "he might have a woman's usual liking for jewels. Suppose we see Mrs. Vincent?"

Bob Carter volunteered to find Mrs. Vincent and while he was on his way Brennan lit a cigarette. He leaned forward with his elbows on his knees and looked out over the lawn.

"You come purty near bein' a first class detective, don't you?" Simon Judd asked, hitching forward in his chair he filled to overflowing.

"I'm not the worst in the world," Brennan said. "There are better. We've some fine men over in New York. Our men are a lot better than we're given credit for being. We have lots of crimes and we don't get every crook, but it's a bad mess over there. I do well enough. It's not so bad here as it is in Manhattan."

"That's so; that's likely," Simon Judd agreed. "And we ain't got it near as bad out in Riverbank. If you was out there you wouldn't have trouble at all, I reckon."

"There are tough problems everywhere," Brennan said. "Any place may turn out a hard problem at any time."

"That's how I think about it," Simon Judd said. "That's why I kept pestering them out there until they said they'd make me chief of police. 'Black my cats!' I says to them; 'The ain't no telling when you're going to need first class detective ability,' I guess," he chuckled, "they don't think overly much of me at that! Think I'm some sort of fat old fool, mostly. And I don't know but what I am. The ain't no fool like an old fool, is the? What you think? Am I a fool to go takin' up detectin' as a life work when I'm along past seventy years old?"

"I'll reserve my opinion on that, Mr. Judd," Brennan smiled. "I can't remember any man who took up investigating work at that age, but I've known some men who took up crime as old as that and did quite well at it."

"A detective has to be slicker than a criminal, that's the best of it," Simon Judd said. "And it's so blame hard for them folks to take a fat man serious out there to home. Especially a man that's mostly clung to livery-stablin' as long as I could, and that's a fact, but these here automobiles has given the business a black eye, and if a man goes into the garage business he's got to be lively and wide awake all the time. Now, a detective—in a town like Riverbank, Iowa—"

"Can sleep most of the time," laughed Brennan.

"That's the idea!" Simon Judd chuckled. "Particular if he's not on the force. If he's just a policeman he's got to be out and around, but if he's chief of police and detective he's got to spend quite a lot of time in meditation—sittin' in his office in a chair tipped back against the wall with his eyes closed. Looked like a good job for me, so I got shut of my livery stable and pestered the life out of 'em until I got me this job, startin' January first, next."

"Good job," smiled Brennan.

"Yes, or I wouldn't have wanted it," said Simon Judd. "But the main thing when a man hammers down a job like that is to be able to hang onto it, and that's why I figured I'd come East here and learn the detective business from A to Z. I says to myself, if I can get them slick New York detectives to let me help hunt up some number or something I'll learn a lot, and when I come back and catch a couple of crooks right here in Riverbank the folks ain't ever goin' to let nobody throw me out."

Brennan looked up at the old man's face suddenly, but all he saw was good nature and smiling cheerfulness. "This murder occurred very opportunely," Brennan said.

"That's what I was going to say," Simon Judd replied. "Just like it was made to order for me. It couldn't have been handier. So that fetches me to what I'm going to say—what'd you say if I was to go sort of partners with you and the two of us to gether hunt out who done this crime?"

"We're always glad to have any assistance we can from any source whatever," Brennan told Judd.

"Yes, I reckon," said the fat man. "Only that ain't my idee. I want you should say we'll work together so's I can get the inside of how you fellows go at it. What say to it?"

Once more Brennan looked Simon Judd in the face. What he sought was the eye of an insane man—the eye of a man who might have come to this house and murdered John Drane to make a case worth solving. Or, perhaps, the eye of a man who had held a grudge against John Drane and had come here to satisfy it. What he saw, if he could judge, was the keen eye of a man who was not such a fool as he looked, the keen laughing eye of a man who, possibly was laughing at the detective good naturedly while laughing at himself. "This," Brennan said to himself, "is a man who is laughing at me because he knows something I don't know!"

"I won't be no more trouble to you than need be," Simon Judd said. "Only thing is it would be quite an experience to me to work hand in hand, so to say with a real detective like you are."

"I think we can manage it," Brennan said.

"Black my cats, that's fine!" Simon Judd exclaimed. "Amy, that fixes that fine! I'm going to pitch right in and work at this thing until we get it cleaned up and the murdering person put right where he ought to be. Fine! Now, first off, girl, you go up to my room and, if them officers has got through rummagin' in my baggage, fetch me down a note book I've got in my valise up there. It's a blank one, Amy, without anything wrote in it yet. I didn't know whether real detectives used note books or not, but I see Brennan does, and I want to do this thing right. It's right down in the bottom of the valise, Amy."

The girl went into the house and Simon Judd looked after her. When he saw she was gone he drew closer to Brennan.

"Now that you and me are in cahoots on this business, partner," he said, "we want to start off clean and clear of no favors. What I know you want to know, if not nothin's no good. And there's something wrong here right at the start."

"It being—?" Brennan asked.

"The girl, Amy, here," Simon Judd whispered. "She ain't what she says she is."

Jokes

As the result of a motor accident, a lady being removed to hospital was attended by a doctor, who remarked: "I'll sew that scalp wound for you for four pounds."

Patient: "Good heavens, doctor, I only want plain sewing, you know, not hemstitching and embroidery."

"Oh, my dear madame, she fell into a cataleptic fit and woke up in the middle of the funeral. The noise of the organ and the choir awakened her."

"That settles it. There'll be no music at my mother-in-law's funeral."

With breathless interest the class listened to the teachers account of her encounter with the tramp.

With a dramatic gesture she reached the climax of her story and then concluded, saying, "And then I fainted."

Little Bobbie gazed with awe and admiration at his teacher, and was the first to break the silence.

"With yer left or yer right?" he asked.

The wife: "Hubby, who kept you out so late last night?"

Hubby (intoxicated): "I (hic) been out with a chiffonier."

The Wife: "Chiffonier? Why you don't even know what you're talking about. A chiffonier is a swell little dresser."

Hubby: "Yes, that's her."

An elderly lady entered a shop and asked to be shown some table cloths.

The salesman brought some, but nothing seemed to suit her.

"Haven't you anything new?" she asked. The perspiring shopman brought another pile and said:

"These are the newest pattern, madam. You will notice the edge runs right around the border and the center is in the middle."

"Dear me, yes, so it does. I will take half a dozen of those," said the lady.

The Stamford Leader came out last week a la Chevrolet, in other words, bigger 'n better. In fact Editor George English boldly states that the new Goss Comet Press installed by that publication is to the newspaper game what the Cadillac automobile is to the automobile game. In fact, Editor English admits that it's an aristocrat. It prints from a roll, eight columns to the page and counts, folds and delivers the finished product. Stamford will have to snap into it to keep pace with George English and his Stamford Leader.

The Munday public schools opened with the largest enrollment it ever had. The record-breaker disclosed 154 pupils and it is believed the number will reach between 175 and 200 during the year. The Times says among new courses added this year are: typewriting and domestic science, and the school board has recently placed orders for eight new typewriters.—Graham Leader.

Now, Editor Kelly, you've gone and ruined things! You've gone and made Munday look like a flag station on the Boll Weevil route. You've unintentionally diminished the proportions of our town and our school, and we're enthusiastic about both. The figures quoted above, which were taken from our paper of recent date referred only to enrollment in the HIGH SCHOOL. Fact is, Kelly, the total enrollment at the opening of the Munday Public schools was about 600 students, and these figures will be increased by about 100 within the next few weeks when more rural students enroll.

Some weeks ago when the Northwest Texas Press Association held its annual meeting in Wichita Falls Sam P. Harben, secretary of the Texas Press Association informed the editors that a special feature of the next annual meeting of the Texas Press in Mineral Wells would be the presentation to each member of a book containing the picture and a brief history of each editor, whereupon several of the editors protested against the use of the likeness of O. C. Harrison of the Baylor County Banner that has been used for the past quarter century. They insisted that Editor Harrison be called upon for a new photo—one minus the long flowing auburn locks—one that will reveal the handiwork of Father Time. They want a photo of O. C. that will bring out that broad and expansive smile—that self-confident expression that has come from years of faithful and efficient service to Seymour and Baylor county. The auburn locks are thinner now, but the years have worked wonders in bringing out the lofty ideals that have characterized his life and implanting them upon his radiant face, and we are sure that the photo which he had made at Wichita Falls will bring them out. Anyway, when the aforesaid book is published it will be possible for he who runs to see what O. C. Harrison looks like—today!

ROALD AMUNDSEN

Of all the heroes who have perished in the Arctic and Antarctic, Roald Amundsen was the most distinguished, and while the date and manner of his death may never be known, he will be remembered not only as a great explorer, but as one who died in an effort to rescue his fellow-men, one of whom was a former enemy.

Amundsen's record is unique in that he discovered the South Pole and the magnetic pole, and also attained the North Pole. Having accomplished these feats of daring, he retired to his native Norway at the age of 56 to spend the remainder of his life in quiet.

But the plight of Nobile, his companion of the Norge flight across the North Pole, with whom he had had a spirited controversy roused the dauntless Amundsen, who immediately came from his seclusion to join in the search. While Nobile was rescued by others, Amundsen perished. At any event he has not been heard from, and a bit of wreckage from his plane, found weeks later, apparently leaves no doubt as to his tragic fate.

His record as a polar explorer can never be duplicated, so far as pioneering is concerned. He is the only one to reach three poles—North, South and magnetic—and although others may in future attain all three Amundsen's priority will stand for all time.

The world mourns with Norway for the loss of her intrepid son.

WATCH YOUR MACHINE

Every prudent person who owns and operates a piece of machinery is careful to see that it is kept in good condition. This is generally done through frequent inspections to detect unusual wear and tear, so as to have the necessary repairs made before the machine actually breaks down.

The most important piece of machinery of all, however, is often sadly neglected. We refer to the human body, the machine upon which all joy of living depends.

It is well that people are more and more getting the habit of having periodical physical examinations, even though they be apparently in good health. By these examinations incipient disease may often be detected long before the person examined would have felt any discomfort from it. This is particularly true of diseases which attack the internal organs such as the heart, lungs and liver and kidneys.

Every person, especially those getting along toward middle age, should have a thorough physical examination at least once a year, whether they feel any symptoms of disease or not. If no disease is found, it is a great satisfaction to know that one is sound physically, while a warning of disease in its first stages enables one to obtain treatment which may check its progress and materially prolong his life.

Most large life insurance companies now afford their policyholders free medical examinations once a year and this privilege should be taken advantage of by all means. If no insurance policy is carried, the fee for such an examination is small and may save much suffering and expense in the future. Watch your human machine.

WILL ROGERS SAYS—

The voters now go to the polls in an automobile but they don't carry any more in their heads than the old timer that went there on a mule, so the old Bunk that you cannot fool the voter is the biggest Bunk there is, he has been fooled all his life and he will always be fooled.

As the presidential candidate for the "Anti-Bunk" party I refuse to employ such old party campaign methods. I am Frank and Earnest.

The politician tells the people that "I don't have to tell you people what our party stands for. We rely on your sober judgment. We rest our case on your intelligence." Then he goes on for two hours more telling them what his party stands for.

I don't care how smart their audience was, they couldn't possibly know "What their party stood for." The Supreme Court with all its divided knowledge couldn't tell you what either party "stood for."

How to Play BRIDGE

Series 1927-28 by Wynne Ferguson
Author of "PRACTICAL AUCTION BRIDGE"

ARTICLE No. 28

One of the laws of Auction Bridge that causes many arguments is the one covering insufficient bids—Law No. 20, which states that any bid or double is an insufficient bid, unless it be higher than the last previous bid. Such an insufficient bid may be corrected before attention is called to the error. If attention is called to the insufficient bid, however, the penalty is very severe. It is as follows:

"If any player, other than the insufficient bidder, all attention to the insufficiency before the insufficient bidder has corrected his bid and before the next player has declared, the bidder must make his bid sufficient and his partner is barred from further participation in the auction. In such case, the bid may be made sufficient by substituting a higher bid in any suit or no-trump."

The tremendous loss that may result from the application of this law was well exemplified the other night in a duplicate game at one of the New York Clubs:

Hearts—K
Clubs—8, 4
Diamonds—A, K, 6
Spades—A, K, 10, 7, 5, 3, 2

No score. Z dealt and passed. A bid one club, Y bid one heart and B bid one spade. Z bid two hearts and A bid two clubs, an insufficient bid. Y immediately called attention to the error and B was thereupon barred from further bidding. Mr. A. J. Alexander, of New York City, held B's hand and was so affected by the incident that he wrote the following description of the disaster:

"In every game there are many penalties for not playing exactly according to rule, but in no sport are the penalties as severe as in this ancient and honorable game of bridge. There's many a slip 'twixt the bid and the lip, and all such slips are a great pain to one's opponents. Bidding out of turn is more costly than driving a golf ball out of bounds, and revoking is much worse for a dealer than outside play is for a tacker. A bridge player must guard almost every word he says with his very life, or an alert opponent will proudly open the book of rules, and impose a penalty that may cost him several hundred points. In a recent hand of duplicate at the Knickerbocker Whist Club, a slip of the tongue caused a penalty that made me think that life was no longer worth living.

"It was at the last table and our opponents were determined to fight us to the hilt. I picked up my hand, I was overjoyed because it was a sure game, almost fool-proof and offering opportunities for a small slam. I was B and bid: Spades: ace, king, ten and four others; diamonds, ace, king and another; two small clubs and the lone king of hearts. Z dealt and passed with little enthusiasm. A bid one club, which gave me beautiful visions of a slam. Y bid a heart, and I bid a spade, expecting to get the contract very quickly.

Z said two hearts, and then came the crushing disaster. My partner A, for some unknown reason, bid two clubs, whereupon Y burst into a joyous smile, and quickly shouted, 'You have made an insufficient bid. Your partner cannot bid any more.'

"I was stunned, but rules are rules, and I kept silent, although I was inwardly boiling with all kinds of emotions. The result was tragic. Y played the hand in hearts, making four odd, and scoring 187 points. The terrible word 'if' filled my thoughts and I cursed up what we would have scored. If that awful penalty had not shattered my beautiful hand, we would have made a little slam in either spades or clubs, scoring 269 in spades or 291 in clubs. So it made a maximum loss of 478 points, all on account of a tiny bit of carelessness and an accidental slip of the tongue."

Be on the lookout for such slips and guard against them. On the other hand, if your opponents slip, know the penalty and apply it.

The bluff bidder is with us again. A correspondent has just sent in the following fine example of the bluff bid:

Hearts—7, 6
Clubs—A, K, Q, J, 10, 5, 4 : A B
Diamonds—5, 2 : A B
Spades—9, 7 : Z

No score, rubber game. Z dealt and bid one no-trump. The usual player with A's hand would have passed and hoped that Z's no-trump bid would not be disturbed. A, however, was one of those players who love to take chances, so he bid two hearts. This bid was made in the hope of fooling Y-Z, his opponents, into believing that hearts was his suit and so beguile them into a two no-trump bid if they had the hearts stopped. Or, if his two heart bid were doubled, he could shift his bid to three clubs and have a good chance to make it even if his partner had nothing at all.

Fortunately for A, however, Y had only one stopper in the hearts but a good outside hand, so he bid two no-trumps, instead of doubling two hearts. B, however, also was fooled, and, with strong help for A's bid, proceeded to bid three hearts, much to A's regret. It was A's lucky day, however, for Z, with a big outside hand and also a stopper in hearts, decided to bid three no-trump rather than double three hearts. It was the rubber game and he preferred the rubber to a more or less doubtful penalty. A now had Y-Z where he wanted them, so he doubled three no-trumps. Y and B passed but Z, who was still fooled by A's bluff bid, thought the latter was doubling on heart strength, so he doubled A's bid. A then proceeded to lay down his seven set up club tricks. Z lost three tricks redoubled or 600 points. After the hand was over, Z, who was much upset, said: "If I thought I was playing Auction Bridge but I see my mistake. We are playing poker and as I don't like poker, I will not play after this rubber."

A's poker bid worked—but don't emulate his example. He was lucky in this hand but if his opponents had been more alert they could have doubled three hearts and beaten A's bid at least 300 points. Bluff bids, therefore, are great when they work; but nine times out of ten they go wrong.

Problem No. 22
Hearts—A, J, 10, 9, 7, 5
Clubs—10
Diamonds—A, Q, 9, 8, 6, 4
Spades—none

Hearts—K, 8, 4
Clubs—A, 9, 8, 5, 4, 2
Diamonds—5
Spades—Q, 4, 2

No score, rubber game. Z dealt and bid one club. Figure out the proper bidding of the other hands and compare results with analysis that will be given in the next article.

ADVENTURES ON THE SEA OF LIFE

By Mauryse Smith

There comes a day in the life of every boy when it becomes necessary to leave the shelter of the home and go out into the world to seek his fortune. Such an occasion is the setting of the following tale.

Everyboy, the eldest son of Average Parent, decides that the time has come when he can no longer be dependent on his father. Instead, he must go out into the Sea of Life to seek his fortune. Average Parent, after giving his son excellent advice, hands him a basket of provisions. In this basket are the following foods of life: Faith, Ambition, Determination, Faith, Hope, Good Will and Honest Energy. He tells Everyboy to use the first three sparsely, that too much is worse than none, but he tells him to use the last four as much as possible. Everyboy loads these on the good ship, Hard Work and after many tearful good-byes, lifts anchor and sails out of the Port of Home onto the Sea of Life.

He watches the familiar scenes as he sails past them, and turns back for one last look at his old home. He watches it until it becomes a tiny speck in the horizon and finally disappears from view. A sigh escapes his lips, and a feeling of loneliness steals over him. He soon forgets them, however, in the new scenes and experiences which he finds all along the way.

There are many other boys who are also new sailors on the Sea of Life, so he is not as lonesome as he thought he would be. His ship, Hard Work, proves sea-worthy, and he calmly drifts along with the tide. When he is well out at sea, he finds that the way is becoming rougher and the ship troublesome. He becomes discontented and wishes that he could not a ship that could be handled more easily, for he has seen his fellow voyagers drift through the tide in ships require little or no work.

One night when he is not watching, a terrible storm arises. The Winds of Bad Associates grow stronger and the Waves of Liquor lash the sides of the boat, which is merely a plaything left to the will of the elements. They change the course of the ship and send it in the direction of the Harbor of Destruction. On the way it is wrecked on the Rock of Temptation. Everyboy is carried by the current near to the Harbor of Destruction. Not far from this harbor is the Whirlpool of Degradation, and Everyboy is on the edge of it. A piece of wreckage floats down stream, and on it is Faith, the last food of life in the basket which Average Parent gave him. It comes nearer, and Everyboy reaches for it, and it draws him away from danger. He clings to this bit of wreckage until the ship Respectability catches sight of him and carries him with her to the end of the voyage of life.

Although the home economics course was not ready at the beginning of school, the clothing laboratory has been completed and classes have been meeting in it since last Monday. Needless to say the entire school is very proud of this new addition to our beloved instruction. Moreover, the girls seem to be very enthusiastic about the work. Clothing and related subjects will be studied the first term while the foods will be taught the last term. Mrs. Rhodes states that she will be glad for the mothers and any others who are interested to visit her classes at any time.

Miss Paxton journeyed to Wichita Falls over the week end. We do not know her object for going to such a large city, but she didn't get lost while there. She was ready to begin work early Monday morning.

We are elated over the splendid crowd that turned out for the football game last Friday. Not only a majority of the high school students but a good representation of town "fans" were on hand to cheer the Moguls on to victory. Although said cheering did not result in a victory, we feel sure that the crowd felt well repaid for the time and money spent. With the splendid showing the Moguls made and the sportsmanlike way in which the game went off we have every reason to expect this continued support. And if we get it—just watch those Moguls.

Odell Freeman, a graduate of last year's class, has been employed to act as librarian for the high school this year. This was necessitated because of the crowded condition of the high school and lack of time for each work by the teachers. It will be a great improvement in that the library can now be kept open at all periods of the day.

The daily routine of school work is now being run off with machine-like precision. The freshmen have survived the usual excitement attendant to high school enrollment, conflicts in schedule ironed out and other details settled that caused confusion the first few days. We hope it won't be the proverbial "hard winter" that we sometimes hear about.

"CHAN'S CHATTER"
 We found out in the game last Friday, that most of Crowell's team were good sportsmen, and played a clean game. And that's the kind of men we like.

"We believe in fair play, and good sportsmanship."
 The referee informed us not to hurt Crowell's "little" fullback, "Moco" when we fell on him, because he was just a "kid," only weighing "250 pounds."

Our first two games this season have ended in scoreless ties, but we hope the third time will be a charm, and we have resolved that Friday we will beat Seymour.

We have a reason to believe that our coach has been taking "expression lessons" at night, because he goes to see the teacher nearly every night.

The Moguls will journey over to Seymour Friday, and are going to fight to bring home "the bacon."
 "Come help us do it!"

Moguls First Home Game Ends In Scoreless Tie

The Moguls showed their colors on the gridiron field last Friday, when they held the Crowell team for a 0-0 game.

The fray began with the Moguls kicking to Crowell. The ball was downed on their 25 yard line. On the first play Crowell tried a pass, but Aycock caught the ball, and ran to Crowell's 20 yard line. On a fumble Crowell recovered the ball, carrying it to their 40 yard line.

The rest of the game was played mostly in Crowell's territory. Although Crowell out weighed the Moguls, the advantage was not noticed in the results of the game. In fact the Crowell team was out played at every turn, because we gained more first downs, more yardage from scrimmage, more yardage on punts, more completed passes, and played almost the entire game with the ball in Crowell's territory.

 Twice the Moguls came dangerously near scoring, only to lose the ball by the touch-back route.

SENIORS
 The Senior class was well represented at the game with Throckmorton last Friday. Five members of our class are on the team. They are: Earl Pruitt, Ishmall Walling, Joe Aycock, Frank Greer and Clovis Stevens. We are justly proud of them, for they all played a good game. Stay in there and fight, boys, we're backing you!

Virgil Craig missed school the first of last week for some unknown reason, but we won't ask questions. We are glad to see him back in his usual place and wearing that charming (?) smile.

Frank Greer journeyed to Haskell Sunday. He reported a large time, but we've an idea that it wasn't the town that he found so interesting. Tell us about her, Frank.

The Senior class has several budding geniuses in the field of literature. Among the foremost of these are Frank Greer, famous author of "Who Says Nobody Loves a Fat Man?" and Virgil Craig, prominent for his "The Big Cloud Reins." Others are Joe Aycock, Icky Pruitt, and Myrl Lowe. Don't be surprised if you see their names in "The History of American Literature" for these masterpieces. Mrs. Kunkel will testify to this.

Quite a few of the Seniors heard from our old friend and classmate, Sebern Jones last week. He is favorably impressed with Mineral Wells and is having a grand time, but, of course, he had rather live in Munday (so he tells us.) We surely hated to lose him this year, but parents will be parents.

The Seniors haven't done anything yet, but the year isn't over. Watch this column!

JUNIOR FLASHES

23rd Psalm of the Juniors
 Mr. Rhodes is my teacher, I shall not pass.
 He maketh me explain hard propositions.
 He exposeth my ignorance before the class.
 He restoreth my sorrow, he causeth me to give rules for my grade's sake.
 Yes, though I study until midnight, I shall gain no knowledge, for propositions and originals sorely trouble me.
 He prepareth a test for me in the presence of the whole class.
 He giveth me a low grade, my sorrow runneth over.
 Surely sadness and gloom shall follow me all the days of my life, and I shall remain in the Geometry class forever.

The Juniors are very glad to see one of their classmates, Vela Phillips, back in school again. She has been absent since the first few days of school on account of illness.

Concerning Friday's game, we're proud of Chandler and Earl, the Junior part of our team, and we want the world to know it. They played a splendid game, and although Earl was taken from the field on account of injury, he served hold that line while he was in there.

As an aid to the Freshmen in our midst we have prepared the following rules and punishments for their November:

1. Taking a bath or brushing teeth (no shaving for 3 parties.)
2. Failure to attend in the hall without permission (2 spots.)
3. Dynamiting the library during study hour (2 whoops.)
4. Accidental shooting of teacher with paper wads (no punishment.)
5. Washing socks in the drinking fountain (tight tap.)
6. Jumping from flagpole, (Indefinite burial.)

"CHAPEL"

A Tragedy in One Act
 The scene opens upon the assembly at Chapel period. The student body rolled in and is peacefully settled down to intensive gum-chewing and fidgeting. The faculty is scattered not, weary and bored.

Mr. Rhodes: It seems that no program has been prepared for this afternoon, so we shall proceed with announcements and sing a few of our favorite songs.

Song: "Hail, Hail, the gang's all here."

Mr. Palmer: "Will the person who took my book from my desk, please return it at once."

Song: "Was that Somebody You?"

Mrs. Rhodes: "We shall entertain the Faculty Friday from 4 to 6."

Song: "Old Folks at Home."

Mr. Rhodes: "The faculty will hold its usual meeting this afternoon at four."

Song: "Just before the Battle Mothec."

Mr. Rhodes: "Something has caught the hands of the clock and we've run into the 3rd period."

Song: "Blest Be the Tie that Binds."

SOPHOMORES
 "The Sophs, like you, they love

you,
 They'll stick to you tight,
 But, oh, you Moguls,
 Fight, fight, fight!"

AND HOW YOU DID FIGHT!
 The Crowell boys were a little overweight, but our boys did their "stuff." It took all their wind and then some, "to hold that line," but no one can say that they didn't fight. Paul, you deserve the highest of honors, and as Dr. Ferrington said, "That boy will make some college a star," and how! Keep it up, Paul, keep it up.

The pep squad was peppy last week. They held two meetings, and afterward, the community auditorium roof was found on the ball field. Fifteen Rafts for our Pep squad.

Our class held a meeting Monday and elected the following officers: Gilbert Myers, president; Paul Pruitt, sec'y-treas. Mrs. Kunkel is our sponsor.

With these officers we expect to have good times and then some more. So watch our smoke!

International Sunday School Lesson for September 30.

The REVIEW—Devotional Reading Philippians 4:4-8, 19,20.

By Rev. Samuel D. Price, D. D.

Pause is given during a six months course on the life of Paul to relate the lessons of the first quarter. From the vantage point of a review lesson you can fix the general events in your mind after having studied each lesson in detail. Begin by reading from Acts 9 through chapter 15. There will be decided advantage in having a map before you or in drawing your own outline map, indicating each place named and tracing a journey line connecting the various cities in the three itineraries. Keep in mind that the Sunday School is a school and the best possible equipment should be at hand to help in the teaching process. Since many are irregular in their attendance at the Sunday School during the summer the utmost should be made of this particular review lesson.

Effective lives do not just merely happen. There must be a possibility of development and then a training that is made the most of. Saul of Tarsus, in Cilicia, was such a man. The home, the synagogue and special teachers of repute contributed their full part to his success. The Jewish law received most careful instructions in the Law, much of which he memorized. He belonged to the sect in his observance of all the requirements, both in the Law and the added teachings. He was specially privileged in being a Roman citizen by birth-right.

A never to be forgotten impression came in his contact with Stephen, a Christian in Jerusalem, whom he helped to persecute even unto death. In doing this and in persecuting other believers in Jesus Christ Paul thought he was doing right but learned that he was absolutely wrong at the time of his conversion, which occurred near Damascus whether he went to harass the new Christian community there. The explanation for the new man, or Paul, as he was later called, is the vision of the Christ and his response thereto. A changed life evidenced the new birth.

Being a Christian carries with it the obligation to impart the saving truths to others. Soon Paul and Barnabas were set apart by the Holy Spirit for the first missionary journey which took them through Cyprus and into the highland of Asia Minor. There were many successes and also countless sufferings, some of which are catalogued in II Cor. 7:23-26. Repeatedly his persecutors thought he was dead from stoning but by a miracle he would rise up and go forward in his mission.

Very important principles of procedure were settled at the Jerusalem Council in A. D. 50. Soon thereafter Paul joined with Silas and Timothy in making the second journey, while Barnabas and Mark returned to Cyprus. At Troas Paul accepted the message in a vision which summoned him to begin Gospel work in Europe. Then came Philippi, Athens and Corinth in turn. No matter what the problems might be Paul sought to go forward in his service, just as any real engineer faces his situation and meets it.

The many churches that Paul established and then nurtured have long since ceased to exist but the influence from the many letters that he wrote to some of these churches continues, for we have the thirteen epistles which teach, exhort and encourage. They meet the daily needs of humanity today as well as those who lived 1900 years ago.

Mrs. D. D. Collins and children and Mrs. E. C. Looney and baby have returned from Amarillo, where they count of the illness of her brother was called to Pampa, Texas, on a visit for some days. Mrs. Looney Mr. Porter, who met with a serious accident some days ago.

BIG MEM FROM SMALL TOWNS

Charles M. Schwab

One of the outstanding figures in American business and public life is Charles M. Schwab. He is respected and admired throughout the civilized world. He was born in an American small town, Williamsburg, Pa., in 1862. He holds many honorary college degrees, and has been honored here and abroad in hundreds of ways; he is one of the richest and most influential men alive today.

How did Schwab start his career? He was educated at the village school at Loretto, Pa., where his family moved when he was five years old, and at St. Francis College. He drove a stage coach from Loretto to Cresson, Pa., a distance of five miles, when a boy. Later he entered the service of the Carnegie Company as a stake-driver in the Engineering Corps of the Edgar Thompson Steel Works, finally becoming chief engineer and assistant manager.

His rise in the steel industry was rapid; in 1897 he became president of the Carnegie Steel Company; four years after he headed the United States Steel Corporation. Later his business activities became so varied that it would be impossible to enumerate them here. It may be said, however, that he became a dominant figure in the great steel industry at Bethlehem, Pa.

Think of it! This little boy from Williamsburg, Pa., who drove a stage coach and was educated in a "little red school house," is the directing genius of one of America's greatest industries. Truly it is an inspiring story.

"7TH HEAVEN" IS ACCLAIMED BY CRITICS AS ONE OF THE GREATEST SCREEN DRAMAS

Courage, the Theme Exemplified by Two Youthful Players, Janet Gaynor and Charles Farrell, in One of the Most Human of All Pictures. Directed by Borzage.

"7th Heaven" has been brought to the screen and will be shown for the first time in Monday and Thursday Theatre Wednesday and Thursday October 3 and 4.

This picture, based on the play by Austin Strong, is said by all critics to be one of the finest productions of any type ever presented. Taken from every angle it is perfect, and more than that it has just some of the appeal or beauty of the original play. The atmosphere of the Paris Montmartre, where the plot of the story is laid, is accurately carried out in the settings and the photographic effects. The story follows the play itself, but bringing into actual use those things that could only be talked about in the play, thereby heightening the interest and adding greatly to the entertaining value of the picture.

The characterizations of the players are said to be inspired, particularly that of Janet Gaynor, who appears as the sensitive, frightened and finally glorified heroine, and Charles Farrell, who is the handsome, optimistic, generous and thoroughly lovable "Chico."

"7th Heaven" is the story of two of the loveliest types of Parisians, a worker in the sewers of Paris and a waif of the Paris streets. But because of the glorious doctrine of courage which it preaches and the marvelous things it does to both of their characters it has been called one of the greatest and one of the most beautiful love stories ever written. The play created a sensation when produced for a record run on Broadway, and the picture is surpassing the reputation established by the play.

Besides the two principals, the cast includes Ben Bard, David Butler, Albert Gran, Gladys Brockwell, George Stone, Smile Chautard, Marie Moquini and Brandon Hurst.

Frank Borzage directed the production.

And even more inspiring is the thought of his work as the director general of the United States Shipping Board Emergency Fleet Corporation, when he contributed valuable services to the American Government during the World War.

Inspiring also, are his numerous charitable and philanthropic activities. He built a new Catholic church costing $150,000, at Loretto, Pa., where he spent his early formative years. He established an industrial school at Homestead, Pa., an auditorium for the Pennsylvania State College, a Catholic School at Braddock, Pa., a home for children at Staten Island, New York, and a school at Weatherly, Pa., and numerous other worthy projects have had his financial support.

He has a great personal charm and is an excellent speaker on public questions. His business sagacity and endearing personal qualities have won him universal praise. The career of the former stage coach driver and stake-driver who by dint of tremendous talent and capacity for work became a great steel king should prove of genuine inspiration to the small town boys of America.

CAN anyone give me the name and address of one old soldier who served in Shelby's brigade during the Civil War? I will give any person $5.00 who will give me the above information.—J. W. Jones, Alpine, Texas.

Prescription He Wrote in 1892 is the World's Most Popular Laxative

When Dr. Caldwell started to practice medicine, back in 1875, the needs for a laxative were not as great as they are today. People lived normal, quiet lives, ate plain, wholesome food, and got plenty of fresh air and sunshine. But even that early there were drastic physics and purges for the relief of constipation which Dr. Caldwell did not believe were good for human beings to put into their system. So he wrote a prescription for a laxative to be used by his patients.

The prescription for constipation that he used early in his practice, and which he put in drug stores in 1892 under the name of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, is a liquid vegetable remedy, intended for women, children and elderly people, and they need just such a mild, safe, gentle bowel stimulant as Syrup Pepsin.

Under successful management this prescription has proven its worth and is now the largest selling liquid laxative in the world. The fact that millions of bottles are used a year proves that it has won the confidence of people who needed it to get relief from headache, biliousness, flatulence, indigestion, loss of appetite and sleep, bad breath, dyspepsia, colds and fevers.

Millions of families are now happier without Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, and if you will once start using it you will also always have a bottle handy for emergencies.

J. C. Caldwell M.D. AT AGE 83

It is particularly pleasing to know that the most of it is bought by mothers for themselves and the children, though Syrup Pepsin is just as valuable for elderly people. All drug stores have the generous bottles.

We would be glad to have you prove at our expense how much Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin can mean to you and yours. Just write "Syrup Pepsin," Monticello, Illinois, and we will send you prepaid a FREE SAMPLE BOTTLE.

AND LO! IT WAS THUSLY!

New there was a certain city and in this city the people did work together and did gather many shekels and pieces of silver.

And it came to pass the citizens of that town did rise up and say, "Behold! we are a mighty city and must have ways paved with brick and concrete and gravel, for our oxen and asses and chariots of fire," which they called automobiles. "We must have new schools for our young and our youthful sheiks and shebas; aye, even the flappers. We must have storm sewers, so when the rains descendeth and the floods come our houses will fall not and we will be sitting pretty. We must have great churches, baseball uniforms, drinking fountains and fire trucks; parks for the land and kids to play in, tourists to tour in and the carnivals to carnival in; and oodles and oodles of bond issues for this, that and the other thing."

And it was so.

And when these things did come to pass, lo, there was a mighty increase in the tax rate. But the merchants rejoiced and cared not, for the citizens of that town were loyal and did shower them with business, blessings and much yen. And all that lived therein did wax fat.

But it was not long so.

"Alas," spake the baker, "Many merchants and their wives and their neighbors eat not my daily bread; but purchase pan and various makes wrapped in paper of enticing colors with pictures thereon, Weissbrodt and Schwartzbrodt alike."

"More, alas," spake the butcher who bartered in cow, horse, dog, cat and fish meat, "neither will the five thousand eat my fish—nor the ninety and nine feast upon my fatted calves."

And likewise did the dealer who dealt in silks and cloaks and fine linens rise up on his hind legs and spat a large sized spit and said unto them, "I have fine wares for certain small pieces of silver and the people journey into other lands to buy, and so do your neighbors and maids and servants, and so does your old man."

And, likewise did the hardware dealer get exceedingly hot under his celluloid collar and kick like unto a bay state steer as he spake these words unto them, "Ya, you give me the glad go by and purchase thy new stove, flat irons and barbed wire fence and screw-drivers over in distant city of catalogues. And it is I who must pay your preacher and the teacher of thy young."

Dealer wept.

And he swore a large sized swear. Then the rich merchant who did offer fine raiment for young men

Now Pick Your Winner In Each State

Here's a good game to play. Just study the chart above. It shows how the different states in the union voted during the years between 1888 and 1892.

Ten states show an unbroken black line, indicating that since 1888 they have not once voted for any other than the Democratic party. These states are Alabama, Arkansas, Florida, Georgia, Louisiana, Mississippi, North Carolina, South Carolina, Texas and Virginia. These states have a total electoral vote in 1928 of 114.

Tennessee voted other than a Democratic ticket only once, in 1920.

Connecticut, Delaware, Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Maine, Michigan, Minnesota, Oregon, Pennsylvania and Rhode Island among other states have been mostly Republican, while Vermont has been solidly Republican since 1888.

Now mark in the spaces headed "Your estimate 1928" how you think each state will go in 1928. Then after the election compare the actual results with your prophecies and find out what sort of a political prophet you are!

Fascinating, isn't it?

who sought to appear young in the eyes of the femininity of the village, got himself up on his toes and smote his fists with great potency, saying, "Hark ye unto me, ye, though I walk through the valley of the shadow of bankruptcy, you answer not to my calling, but throw kopecks and shekels and yen with lavish hands for mail-order boots and shoes and radio sets and what have you? And in the same time it is I who must pay the fiddler in the band."

And when the young of the city, and the children of the tillers of the soil had got themselves much education from the taxes of the merchants; they did themselves hence to other cities of that region, and did come back with costly raiment and new shoes, cosmetics, handkerchiefs, stater of roses, perfume and hair tonic.

Now it came to pass, after the setting of the sun, the Chamber of Commerce, Ad Club, Rotary Club and its Anns, Elks, and their Ooes, Masons and their stars, Knights of Columbus and their daughters, didst awaken. And they did join themselves unto the preachers and doctors and merchants and farmers and laborers, saying:

"Verily, verily, I say unto you, YOU TRADE WITH ME SO I CAN TRADE WITH HIM. THEN HE WILL TRADE WITH THEM. SO THEY CAN TRADE WITH THEE."

And lo, and alas and alack, when the baker with the merchant did trade, and the merchant from the butcher did buy, and the coal man from the clothier, et cetera, it came to pass there was harmony among them, and much glee.

And the weekly news-sheet ceased to use the boiler plate patent insides and added to its columns of gossip and scandal and political hokum and coming and going, and added more pages and multitudes rejoiced and rushed madly into print that the dozens and scores and hundreds of new readers might know that they were with them even unto the end. And ye editor began to smoke sheroots and sported a new 15c bow tie, for verily he, too, prospered and was full of harmony and good cheer and three square-meals per. And the devil and the compos saw the ghost walking every Saturday night with effervescent oejat.

And also much filthy lucre, gold, yep, mazzuma and the necessary conque.

And they blew upon the rams horn and cornet and swinet and the French horn and flute and bass drum.

And, henceforth they lived in the land of condensed milk and strained honey.

And it was so.—Swiped.

"DADDY IS MY PARTNER"

He was a bright-eyed little chap, just old enough to join the young people's clubs. He had just started to double back with the disk, having gone over his acre once, and was ready to cross disk his acre of land when he saw him. He looked small to be driving two large mules and doing the work of a 200 pound man but he was doing it better than many do.

This youngster had just become of the age, the tender age, at which boys may become club members. He was at work on the biggest job he ever tackled. No one had discouraged him. His father had permitted the county agent to select the best acre on a farm and was furnishing the best seed he could buy, the land, fertilizer, implements, team and had offered to help with the work. But little had wanted to do all the work himself. "Waddy, it is corn patch? Do the land, please, the land, harrowed it, and was now double disking it. In a few days he would be planting his ten and then cultivating it. Later on will come the harvest.

D. H. Weaver Jr., who has been in Corpus Christi for some time, has gone to Abilene to attend a business school.

I. L. West of route 2 came in Saturday and had his figures shoved up for another year and also had us to send the paper to his daughter, Mrs. Arthur Clark, at Dallas, for a year, which reminds us that there are many others who live at a distance who would rather receive the home paper each week than most anything that could be given them, for it always contains many items of news that cannot be crowded into personal letters.

"Sho" Jones came in the latter part of last week and had us send The Times to Mrs. Clem Wilson at McKinney, Texas, for a year.

"Sho" Jones came in the latter part of last week and had us send The Times to Mrs. Clem Wilson at McKinney, Texas, for a year. "Sho" derived his nickname years ago while punching cattle in New Mexico, whereby he bangs a tale. In telling of the origin of his nickname, Mr. Jones states that in that part water was about as scarce as hens teeth, and he was assisting the cook in filling a water barrel at a windmill. For some reason the wind refused to blow and it became necessary for some of the cowboys to climb the windmill tower and turn the mill by hand-power. In some manner the water leaked out of the barrel and the boys affixed the name of "sho" to Mr. Jones, and the name has followed him throughout the intervening years.

C. A. Reagan of Knox City route 1 has enrolled his name as a Times reader. Mr. Reagan was formerly a subscriber but allowed his time to expire some months ago and feels that he cannot get along without it another year, and here's hoping that he and his family get full measure of pleasure from reading it throughout the coming year.

Most all of the students going away to school will keep up with the happenings at home through the columns of The Times. Chase Eiland will get it at Austin, Mildred Quinn will receive it at T. C. U., Fort Worth, and the various other students who have gone away to school will read it each week and keep in close touch with what's going on here at home.

R. L. Brownlee is one Times reader who never allows his time to expire. He is always paid in advance on our list, and our only regret is that we do not have more subscribers who look after their small matter each year with the promptness of Mr. Brownlee. Life would be just one sweet song for the editor if things went thusly.

Last Thursday we had a class meeting and elected Thelma Langford as vice-president, Mesdames Briggs, secretary, Maxine Davidson treasurer and Miss Newton as the Freshmen sponsor. (We had already elected Dick Bayburn president.)

Gladys Kegley was absent last Thursday and Friday on account of sickness, but we are glad to see her back in school again this morning.

(Monday.)

Ruby McAfee will be absent this week, or longer on account of weak eyes. We hope that the treatments she is going to take for her eyes will help them and she will get to come back to school soon.

A number of Freshmen attended the football game last Friday afternoon to boost the "Moguls" and help them win, but we are very sorry to say that neither the "Moguls" or the Crowell team won, "but just wait and see."

Of course "in Poor Fish" are getting the "razes," but we have to be Freshmen sometimes and we would just as soon be one now, as we are going to be good sports and sit up and take our medicine!

"Freshmen" "Let's it open" that a freshman will have a part in the final score.

Each is given a bag of tools. A hapless mouse, and a book of rules. And we hope to make our life a flower. Not a stumbling block but a stepping stone."

CLASS '28 We are all very glad to get back to school. Our class is almost the same as the EA of last year. We are looking forward to a happy year. Officers were elected Tuesday of last week. They were as follows: President—Lowery Blesby Vice-Pres.—Lucile Hunter Secretary—Walter Warren Treasurer—Francis Thompson Reporter—Jesse Geo. Kennedy Social Committee: Hazel Webb, John Pison, Irene Martin, James Galtier and Katherine Milan.

"WE LAUGHED Mr. Kunkle: "When is the season for shooting stars?" Fayette: "I don't know, sir. I am not acquainted with the state game laws."

Joe: "I am very fond of honey." Virgil: "Who is Honey?"

First, God made the Chinese language. That was for practice. Then he made Latin.

Mr. Rhodes: "A straight line is the shortest distance between two points."

Frank: "Yes and a detour is the longest distance between two different points."
