C. Banquet On Friday Evening

Tom K. Eplin of Abilene and Rev. P. D. O'Brien of Floydada will be co-sponsors.

The annual banquet of the Munday Chamber of Commerce will be held on Friday evening of this week at the Klan hall, and a most interesting program will be arranged for the occasion by the program committee, consisting of Dr. E. J. Burns, Leland Hannah and J. J. Kennedy, and the committee pleased to announce that it has been successful in securing Judge Tom K. Eplin, County Judge of Taylor county, and a prominent member of the Abilene bar, as the principal speaker, and the Rev. P. D. O'Brien, formerly pastor of the Baptist church here, and now pastor at Floydada, as the second speaker.

In addition to the speakers the program committee has made arrangements for a delightful program to be given by two young ladies of Seymour, who are known as the "Sweethearts of the Seymour Lions Club." These young ladies have given a number of programs at Seymour and other points and always provide a bright spot on the programs on which they appear. Music will be provided throughout the evening by the Munday Chamber of Commerce band.

The arrangement committee, which is composed of F. A. Coxsey, Dr. E. M. Ammons, Carl Mahan, W. H. Chapman and R. T. Land have been busy this week getting everything in shape for the occasion, and plans are being made to make this a good-time occasion and no serious talks will be permitted by the toastmaster.

The banquet this year will be held at the Munday Hotel. The tickets for the banquet, heretofore the occasion has been handled by funds of the organization but the board of directors has decided to follow the custom that is followed by practically all organizations of this character and the price of the tickets has been set at $1.00 per plate. On occasions of this kind in years gone by there has been some confusion by non-members feeling that they should have an invitation to attend and in some few instances misunderstandings have arisen as to whether the members were supposed to bring their wives. On this occasion everyone, whether a member of the organization or not, is cordially invited to procure tickets for themselves and wives and be present.

While the time is very limited, the committee will make an effort to make a thorough canvass of the town and sell tickets, but in case you are not solicited by members of this committee there will be a supply of tickets at the three drug stores in the city up to Friday noon and you may procure tickets there. The program will begin promptly at 8 o'clock and everyone who contemplates attending should get tickets as early as possible in order that the committee may make arrangements for all who wish to attend.

MOVEMENT FROM CITY TO FARM AND FARM TO CITY IS SLOWING UP

Farm Population Is Now The Smallest in Twenty Years

Washington, March 28.—The movement from city to farm and farm to city has slowed up somewhat during 1928, according to figures revealed by the Department of Agriculture. 1,960,000 persons left farms during the last year, as compared with 1,978,000 persons during 1927 and 2,155,000 during 1926. The movement from cities to farms was 1,362,000 persons last year, 1,374,000 in 1927 and 1,335,000 in 1926. The farm population is now the smallest in twenty years, with 27,511,000 on the farms of the United States on January 1, compared with a peak of 32,000,000 in 1908. The January, 1929, figure may be compared to the January, 1928 figure of 27,699,000 population. This decrease came about de-

E. E. Brown Succumbs To Stroke Paralysis Thursday Afternoon

E. E. Brown, 61 years of age, and a resident of Munday for about three years, died at his home in this city Thursday at one o'clock after having suffered a stroke of paralysis on Wednesday morning.

Wednesday morning he was doing some work around his home and seemed in his usual health when he staggered to the back door and called to his wife and asked her assistance in getting into the house, advising her that he had fallen in the yard. His condition grew gradually worse until the end came Thursday afternoon.

Mr. Brown has been a resident of Munday for the past three years, during which time he has been engaged in the cotton business and has been associated with the Russell cotton interests of Seymour. He was born and reared at Alford, Texas, and resided there until a few years ago when he moved to Goree and from Goree to Munday.

Funeral arrangements have not yet been completed but members of the family stated that the remains would likely be shipped to Alford Friday morning for interment.

In addition to his wife he is survived by three daughters and two sons, Mrs. Carl Williamson of Wichita Falls, Homer Brown of Burk Burnett, and Thos. Buster and Woodrow, all of whom make their home with their parents here. He is also survived by one brother and three sisters, Willie Brown, Alford, Mrs. Coa Evans of Alford and Mrs. Docia Hudspeth, of Sentinel, Oklahoma.

The members of the family have the sincere sympathy of the entire community in their great sorrow.

Owen of the Hefner community, was instantly killed Thursday afternoon about four o'clock in an automobile accident on the road near Hefner. County Agent Urges Farmers to Attend Plainview Dairy Show

County Agent Wilson was over from Benjamin on Wednesday and in conversation with a Times representative stated that he would like very much for a number of farmers from Knox county to attend the Plainview Dairy Show at Plainview, which opens on Monday and continues for five days next week. Mr. Wilson states that if the farmers will go to this show and talk with the farmers of the plains country who have made a success of dairy-farming during the past few years that it will be of untold value to them. Here, according to Mr. Wilson, one may talk with the farmers and receive from them their own experiences and may learn some facts that will stimulate them into getting into the business more heavily and be of untold value to them when they have embarked in the business.

At this show there will be hundreds of purebred cattle of all varieties and there will be experts there to point out the various points in judging and it is hoped that a number of Knox county farmers will avail themselves of this opportunity to get valuable information in this line.

Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Ar buckle and children were in Haskell during the week end visiting in the home of his brother, and while there they met a brother of Mr. Arbuckle, whose home is in El Paso, and whom they had not seen in some six years and their visit was a most enjoyable event.

ing that in the movement of population from and to farms, 1,960,000 persons left farms during the year and 1,362,000 persons moved from cities to farms. The large farm birth rate of 23 births per 1,000 persons and small death rate of eight deaths per 1,000 persons has been a big factor offsetting the farm-to-city movement, so that the net loss of farm population last year was 188,000 persons, compared with 193,000 in 1927 and with 649,000 in 1926.

Officials of Lions International Guests Munday Lions Club

Members of the Munday Club were very agreeably surprised at their semi-monthly luncheon of Thursday when president E. Duval introduced two of the officials of the Lions International. The officials were Henry A. Hill, assistant secretary of Lions International, and C. A. Webb, field service representative of Lions International, both of Chicago. These officials were in this section and happened into Munday just in time for the luncheon and we can assure them that their visit was greatly enjoyed.

In brief talks to the local club these gentlemen told of some of the things the Lionism is doing over the country and pointed out that the Lions club is the largest and fastest growing service club in the world, having made more growth than all other similar organizations of its character combined.

Both Mr. Webb and Mr. Hill expressed great pleasure at the interest and complimented the personnel of the local club in the highest terms. Members of the family here have received encouraging word concerning M. O. Burnett, who is undergoing treatment at Mineral Wells for rheumatism. According to information received he is improving nicely and is now hopeful of regaining his health.

W. T. U. Co. Holds Monthly Safety Meet In Munday, Mar. 19

A large number of the employees of District "D" of the West Texas Utilities Company gathered here on March 19th for the regular monthly safety meeting, at which time the principal theme discussed was fire prevention.

Speaking on facts and figures compiled by this company, H. C. King, local manager at Haskell, gave a most interesting and instructive talk on the experiences of the company during the past five years. E. E. Morris, commercial agent of the district here, made a brief talk and gave an analysis of the fire damage sustained by the company here some months ago in which he brought out the fact that almost every fire could be prevented if the proper thought and precaution were taken by the employees of the company.

Jack Whitaker, line foreman of Munday, Texas, made a talk setting out specific measures for prevention of fires in the Utilities company's business among which were proper knowledge of the existing fire hazards and immediate application of measures to prevent same. A general discussion of the possible fire hazards in existence in the business at present that may be or become a hazard as to injury or fire, damage to property or personnel was carried out. Carl Mahan, District Superintendent of Munday, Texas, made a talk in which he told of the serious truck accident which happened to a company truck recently at Sagerton, Texas, at which time an employee was killed and three other employees injured.

Mrs. T. W. Rayburn Is Called By Death

Final Summons Comes Sunday Night; and Funeral Services Held Monday Afternoon

Suffering from a malady which she had been afflicted for some fifteen years, Mrs. T. W. Rayburn was called by death on Sunday night. For several days her condition had been such that no hope was held out for her recovery and despite the fact that she exhibited an almost unconquerable desire to overcome her affliction, and friends and loved ones were tireless in their efforts to render every aid possible, the end came peacefully on Sunday night.

The funeral services were held on Monday afternoon at the Church of Christ with Elder J. E. L. Harrison officiating and was attended by a large concourse of friends that filled the building to capacity. The pallbearers were Geo. Isbell, R. S. Boles, E. Duval, John Spann, Ben Guinn and R. B. Davy. The large concourse of friends and the beautiful floral offerings that covered the casket spoke in themselves for the high esteem in which she was held in the community. Though in ill health for many years she was ever in a pleasant mood both at home and elsewhere, and she bore her suffering so patiently that none but her closest friends knew of her illness, and in despite of which she always greeted her friends with a smile.

Deceased was a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Hopkins, pioneer citizens of Munday, and was born at Walnut, Mississippi. She came with her parents to Munday some twenty-five years ago. In 1908 she was married to T. W. (Wash) Rayburn and to them 13 children were born, seven of whom survive. To Mr. and Mrs. Rayburn came the misfortune to lose three sets of twins in infancy. The children who survive are George, James, Mrs. Lorene Everett, John R. Cecil, Harold and Glenn D., all of whom reside in Munday, except Mrs. Everett, who resides at Haskell. Mrs. Rayburn is survived by four sisters and one brother, Mrs. Drucilla McCoy of Walnut, Miss., Mrs. Effie Williamson of Wichita Falls, Texas, and Mrs. Mary Scott, who resides in California, and W. L. Hopkins of Stamford. The brother and sisters were present except Mrs. McCoy and Mrs. Woods. Other relatives present were Mr. Rayburn's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Rayburn of Justin, Texas, and his brother, C. A. Rayburn and wife, of Taboka, Texas.

Mrs. Rayburn obeyed the command of her Master when in young womanhood and had lived in close harmony with His teachings throughout the years since, which fact is a source of great consolation to the heart-broken father and sons and daughter, for when we are called upon to drink the bitter cup of sorrow there can be no other source of consolation than the promises found in His word. To the father and children, sisters and brother we extend our sincere sympathy and in this we are joined by the entire community.

The sermon subject for Sunday morning will be, "The Resurrection."

Another feature of the Sunday morning service will be that we will begin our Spring collection for Missions. Monday evening at 7:45 we will have our regular monthly meeting of the teachers and officers of the Sunday school. The church voted Sunday night to begin a revival campaign Sunday, April the 21st. ELDER SAM REDFORD Will Preach Here Week-End Services

We are requested to announce that Elder Sam Redford of South Texas will be here and will preach at the Primitive Baptist church on Friday, Saturday and Sunday of this week. Elder Redford is said to be a most able speaker and Bible student and those who have heard him are loud in their praise of him and assure the public that they will be benefited by hearing his messages.

CARD OF THANKS

There are no words at our command by which we might express our heartfelt thanks and gratitude to the many kind and true friends who so faithfully and unflinchingly stood by and assisted during the illness and upon the death of our dear one. We could not in words express our thanks for these many kindly deeds, and for the beautiful floral offerings that were heaped upon the casket as a tribute to the life that our dear wife and mother and sister has lived among you. The great sorrow that has come to us has revealed to us that we have the truest and best of friends and there shall ever remain in our hearts a feeling of gratitude to each and everyone who has contributed to her comfort in any manner during her illness and to us in the great sorrow that has come into our lives.

T. W. Rayburn and children, Mrs. Drucilla McCoy, Mrs. Effie Williamson, Mrs. Bessie Woods, W. L. Hopkins. The Munday country has received another good rain this week.

TEXAS SENATORS IN U. S. CONGRESS

John Henninger Reagan (1887-1891)

(Copyright 1928 by Alva O. Hearne)

born in Sevier County, Tennessee on October 3, 1818. His parents were very poor. In his youth his time was divided between assisting his father in a tan-yard and in going to school until he was about sixteen years old, when he was given permission to secure his own education. He commenced by working on a farm for nine dollars a month. Then, entering an academic school, he paid for his board by working mornings, evenings and Saturdays. He attended Southwestern College at Marysville, Tennessee for something over a year. For a few months after leaving college he sold goods in a country store. He was later offered favorable inducements to proceed to Texas and sell goods. The project ended in disappointment, but it landed Reagan in Texas without money or friends. When he reached Nacogdoches war was impending between the Cherokee and other Indian tribes and the people of Texas. He joined the Texan army, intending at the close of the campaign to return to the United States. He was in the battles of the 15th and 16th of July, 1839 and behaved so gallantly that on the morning of the second battle General Albert Sidney Johnston, then secretary of war for Texas, and acting-president Burnet requested his presence at headquarters and tendered him an appointment as junior second-lieutenant in the regular army.

He declined, however, and devoted himself to the study of surveying.

He was soon appointed deputy surveyor of public lands and did some work as such in what is now Angelina county. He later did considerable surveying in what is now Nacogdoches, Houston, Anderson, Henderson and Kaufman counties, and during the time participated in several campaigns against hostile Indians, did farm work, made rails and drove oxen.

In the fall of 1844 Reagan became one of the pioneer settlers in the present Kaufman county, having in the meantime been captain of a militia company and served as justice of the peace. He commenced reading law in 1845. In 1847 he was elected to the State legislature and took an active part in committee work and the proceedings of that body. In 1848 he received a permanent license to practice law. In 1852 he was chosen as judge of the Ninth Judicial District of Texas for six years, but in 1856 he resigned, only to be re-elected for a like term.

In 1857 Judge Reagan was elected to the United States Congress, defeating the Know Nothing or American candidate, the sitting member, by a good majority. He was re-elected in 1859. Before his last election he had taken a firm stand against filibustering and the opening of the African slave-trade. Though he was criticised bitterly by politicians and newspapers for his stand on these questions, he took the issue to the people and was re-elected by an overwhelming majority. This brought him into the midst of the fierce controversies of the four years immediately preceding the civil war of 1861-65.

In 1861 Judge Reagan was chosen a member of what was known as the Secession Convention of Texas and was later elected to the provisional congress of the Confederacy. In March, 1861, he was appointed postmaster-general of the Confederacy by President Davis and served until 1865. In the last months of the Confederacy, President Davis appointed him secretary of the treasury ad interim, at the same time insisting that he continue to perform the duties of postmaster-general.

In May, 1865 Reagan was made a prisoner of war along with President Davis and was taken to Hampton Roads, Virginia, and then Fort Warren, in Boston Harbor, Mass., where he was held until released by order of President Johnson in October, 1865. While in confinement he wrote to the people of Texas what is known as his "Fort Warren letter". Its object was to advise the people of Texas that it would be best for them to accept without reasonable delay the inevitable results of the war so as to avoid military government and the danger of universal negro suffrage.

But upon his return to Texas Reagan found the people unprepared to accept the principles urged in his letter, and his fidelity to his section was doubted for having written it. Seeing that any effort in that direction was at that time useless, he withdrew to his farm near Palestine, in Anderson county, hired some hands and went to work in the field with them. He later returned to the practice of law and kept up his farming interests and had a lucrative practice until 1847, when he was elected to Congress. He had continued disenfranchised under the reconstruction laws until a short time before his election to Congress. He was re-elected to the six succeeding Congresses.

In 1887 Judge Reagan was elected to the United States Senate for the term of six years. He was a sincere believer in the views of Thomas Jefferson as to the constitutional powers and rights and duties of the State and Federal governments, respectively. On June 10, 1891 he resigned his seat in the United States Senate to accept the chairmanship of the Railroad Commission of the State, thus relinquishing a position of great dignity and emolument for one of less. To quote his own words:

"I resigned my place in the Senate and accepted the chairmanship of the commission both from a sense of duty to the State and of gratitude to the people who have honored and trusted me so long and in so many ways."

Senator Reagan died at Palestine, Texas on March 6, 1905.

THE FUTURE LIFE

Luke 24:1-12; John 14:1-6
Rev. Samuel D. Price, D. D.
Usually a review comes at the end of a quarter but this time we have a preview of the life that is before every child of God as we come to the closing lesson in this series on "Some Great Christian Teachings." While some say we know nothing about the life that is beyond there are many great truths that we can depend on as we join in the observance of this Easter Day, which commemorates the resurrection of the body of Jesus.

Practically all religions reckon on a life in the future. The spirit in man is eternal and it is only the earthly body that dies. Since each one must journey along this highway, regardless of his personal belief, it is with great interest that we turn to the Scripture references that are indicated for study today. They are Matthew 25:31-46; Mark 12:26-27; Luke 24:1-12; John 14:1-6; 1 Corinthians 15:3-20, 50-58; 1 Thessalonians 4:13-18; Revelation 22:1-5. As you read these selections note the differences in the margin and you will find many additional details.

The events of that first Easter can be learned by reading the records in the Gospels. Certain women came early on the first day of the week to complete the embalming of His body for there was not a time for this after the entombing as the Jewish Sabbath began with sun down. They wondered how that heavy stone could be rolled back but God provided the way long before it was needed. We, too, are inclined to worry much about things that will resolve themselves in advance of our needs. Angels had many items of service during the earthly life of Jesus and now a heavenly messenger tells them that they are in the wrong place to accomplish their quest. No living soul has ever been entombed and it is useless to seek a person where there is only a dead body. Soon He appeared to them and to the disciples.

It was in the upper room on the previous Thursday that He gave them most comforting truths and told them plainly of the future life. Read the entire discourse in John 14, 15, 16, and then follow through that comprehensive prayer in chapter 17. "Let not your heart be troubled" was supported by a statement of His purpose in their behalf. He would prepare a place and in time come for them. An expressive name for Heaven is the Home Land of the Soul. It is a place as well as a state. Conditions there are given under far-reaching similes in Revelation. Heaven will be blessed even because of what is not there. No pain, sin, sorrow, separation, tears any more. "And they shall see His face."

Now, add the positive elements of joy, service, worship and a clear conscience forever. In the Old Testament the lamb is a type of Christ. By as much as He is greater than a lamb, by so much is Heaven beyond the types of golden streets and gates of precious stones. Our concern is to obey the Golden text: "Be thou faithful unto death, and I will give thee the crown of life."

SAME PRESCRIPTION HE WROTE IN 1892

When Dr. Caldwell started to practice medicine, back in 1875, the needs for a laxative were not as great as today. People lived normal lives, ate plain, wholesome food, and got plenty of fresh air. But even that early there were drastic physians and purges for the relief of constipation which Dr. Caldwell did not believe were good for human beings. The prescription for constipation that he used early in his practice, and which he put in drug stores in 1892 under the name of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, is a liquid vegetable remedy, intended for women, children and elderly people, and they need just such a mild, safe bowel stimulant. This prescription has proven its worth and is now the largest selling liquid laxative. It has won the confidence of people who needed it to get relief from headaches, dizziness, faintness, indigestion, loss of appetite and sleep, bad breath, dyspepsia, colds, fevers. At your druggist, or write "Syrup Pepsin," Dept. 33, Monticello, Illinois, for the retail bottle.

Benefits from never wasting anything are clearly emphasized if we, as a scientist would think, about the matter, consider our condition and possibilities of "arriving" if we are prudent.

The Age of Power

It is frequently stated that the age in which we live is a "machine age." This is only partially correct. Actually, the present age is a POWER AGE.

Its tempo, its achievements, its prosperity—all emanate to a very great degree from the abundance of cheap electrical power available in this country.

And West Texas realizes this fact, if not more, than any other part of the country. The growth and expansion of this section of the state within the past few years has been almost miraculous.

It is the happy privilege of the West Texas Utilities Company to contribute its part to the prosperity of West Texas. Its great metallic highways are carrying a new civilization to isolated villages, towns and hamlets. With 70,000 available horsepower of electrical energy from three big generating stations and 15 auxiliary plants this company provides uninterrupted service 24 hours a day, 365 days a year.

MUNDAY, TEXAS

Mrs. Brooks Campsey of Knox City was here on Friday of last week visiting in the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. S. Barton.

Mr. and Mrs. Ep Wilson, jr., and baby returned Monday from a visit with his sister at Dallas, Texas.

We note that H. A. Pendleton is offering his home for sale in Wichita Falls and when questioned concerning the matter stated that it was his intention to move back to Munday if he could make the sale.

Mr. Pendleton's family has been in Wichita Falls for the past few years, but Mr. Pendleton has spent the greater part of his time here looking after his business interests.

W. D. Pedigo of Dallas was in the city the latter part of last week on his annual rounds soliciting funds for the Salvation Army and succeeded in raising $78.25 in Munday. George contributed $18.00 to the cause. Mr. Pedigo states that the call on the Salvation Army is growing in the large cities each year, and in many instances the calls come for aid from boys and girls who have gone to the cities and find that they encounter many difficulties in mounting the ladder of success, and in hence it is the duty of the small towns and rural communities to help support the organization in carrying on the great work among the poor. Mr. Pedigo requests that we extend to the citizens of Munday his sincere thanks for the courteous treatment accorded him here.

Local music lovers have started a movement to bring Prof. Stamps and his corps of teachers here for a three week period sometime during the summer to conduct a singing school. There are some folks in this jazz age who believe that the old time singing school is out of date and old-fashioned, but we are glad that there are still those in this community who appreciate and enjoy good singing and we hope that the citizens of Munday will bring Mr. Stamps and his corps of teachers to Munday and that interest may be revived in the old-fashioned singing.

PUBLISHED WEEKLY EVERY THURSDAY
GOVERNOR MOODY AND THE LEGISLATURE

The legislature adjourned a few days ago after a session that accomplished nothing worth while for the people of Texas. The members of this body drew their pay and their per diem and departed for their respective homes after having turned a deaf ear to every constructive suggestion that has been made by Gov. Moody. They refused to reduce the automobile license fee. They refused to give the people of Texas an opportunity to vote upon a state-wide bond issue for building highways which would have placed the burden of building highways on the traffic—where it belongs—instead of on the property.

The various excuses that they will have to offer for their failure to accomplish anything will be interesting only to themselves, and every session that is held which is so unproductive of constructive legislation gives additional grounds for the common everyday comment that this body is made up largely of "molly-coddles" who have no conception of governmental affairs. To say the least of it, too much time was consumed by politicians down there trying to solve the problems that are of real concern to the people of Texas.

They spent several days on a bill that would keep some 300,000 good democrats out of the democratic primaries because they could not conscientiously vote for the democratic nominee last November, all because Barry Miller wants to be governor and Tom Love wants the same job.

We note that one member announced upon his arrival back home that Gov. Moody did not know how to handle a legislature. Well, perhaps he doesn't. Who does? Gov. Moody merely pointed out and pled for constructive legislation and the members of the legislature just were not interested. Gov. Moody made a plea for a civil service law that would have displaced the spoils system that we now have. Gov. Moody pled for the enactment of a law that would have placed the burden of building highways on the traffic that uses them and would have taken the bonded indebtedness off of the farms and homes.

Anyway, the various members of that body can go back home with the satisfaction of knowing that they accomplished nothing for the people.

If we seem a little cheery or uppity these days it's all because we have been placed on the "sucker list". Our name has been on the list before and we have as a gentle reminder of that fact some very beautifully lithographed certificates tucked away in almost forgotten places. These certificates are beautiful and impressive looking and the companies which issued them were very promising (promising is correct) This time we are offered Russian rubles on a basis of $48.00 for 1000 rubles (par value, if any, $500). The concern offering these bonds for sale state that they have seemingly been overlooked by the general public. 'Tis said that opportunity knocks but once in a lifetime, and we were knocked for a row of goals back in the oil boom days, hence are interested in only one phase of the offer and that is to know how come my name on their "sucker list."

WELL, JOHN D. WON. NOW, THEREFORE, I. THE QUICK HOOVER MIND. GOODBYE, TOM TAGGART.

John D. Rockefeller, Jr. wins his fight in the Standard Oil Company of Indiana and Colonel Stewart is defeated.

On Tuesday John H. Ferry learned editor of Reading, Pennsylvania, Jacksonville, Florida, and other places, predicting the loss and result, said:

"It is hard to fight dollars. In fact, you can't do it."

He added as an afterthought "It is absolutely impossible to fight dollars when they happen to be right."

Colonel Coblenz, of San Francisco and New York, remarked: "To the victor belong the oils."

Colonel Stewart, bidding farewell to Standard Oil in Indiana and probably preparing to run some other big oil company had the satisfaction of reporting financial success for 1928.

In the last year Standard Oil of Indiana has earned more than eighty-three million dollars profit, or 16.76 per cent on its capital. Earnings of the company increased more than fifty millions, as compared with 1927.

President Hoover, who summons the extra session of Congress to meet on April 15, is not an emotional man. But he must have been moved on writing the words, "Now, therefore, I, Herbert Hoover, President of the United States of America, do hereby proclaim and declare" etc.

After you have done farm chores as a small boy there must be considerable satisfaction in writing, "Now, therefore, I, President."

On April 15 farmers will have their day and Congress will tell them, if it can, how to put a disorganized industry on a substantial, paying basis.

No manufacturer could make his plant pay if he had to close down all Winter. The farmer must do that, and it is part of the problem.

President Hoover has a quality more important to executives than any, except sound judgment. HE MAKES UP HIS MIND QUICKLY. No "wait a day or two."

When told of the Mexican revolution, the President did not wait a week. In five minutes he had his Cabinet "our business in the world and duty demand support of the existing Mexican Government."

He shipped guns and ammunition from army stores to President Porfirio Gil, stopped shipments of ammunition, guns and airplanes to the revolutionists, and arranged for shipment of fighting planes to Mexico's Government.

This does not imply complete approval of all that the Mexican Government has done, or disapproval of the revolutionary cause, but it means that the President meant to uphold stability of government.

Tom Taggart of Indiana is dead. He had an interesting life while it lasted, and it lasted seventy-two years. He was a political boss for a generation, controlling his State and the United States. He was the great-grandfather of Woodrow Wilson for the presidency.

Now, let him be in heaven, and presumably knows everything, Mr. Taggart knows just how useful he was when his influence came to Woodrow Wilson the presidency.

GUIDEPOSTS TO Health and Happiness

By Bernarr Macfadden

HEALTH & HAPPINESS—SELECTING A WIFE

Young men like to think that they select their wives; it caters to their vanity. But actually, it is often the wives who do the selecting. For example: A girl decides she wants a certain chap for her husband—and she sets out to get him. He may not be willing, or he may not, but girls have a way of knowing how to win over the reluctant male, and in the end he usually succumbs.

But there are young men who really select their wives, and it is to them that this little talk is directed.

There are many standards of course by which the ideal wife can be measured; tastes vary. But there are also certain innate qualities that a girl must possess in order to be a good wife to any man. And these are among them:

First of all, she must possess a splendidly vigorous body. The more vital she is the better your chance for marital happiness.

She should be a natural, wholesome, vivacious girl, who will be honest and above-board in all her dealings with you. The painted, sexy little vamp is not the one to choose for your life partner; she is usually a "fair-weather" friend.

She should love you for what you are and not for what you have.

She should have a background of wholesome family life in which she has learned to respect the rights of others, along with unselfishness.

"Handsome is as handsome does," is a trite old saying, but like many old sayings it has its foundation in truth. Beautifully molded features while pleasant to look upon, are not all-important because the impressive march of Time changes them. But a beautifully molded character lasts as long as the spirit is in the body. And no character can be called beautiful that does not count among its dearest possessions a fine set of moral principles.

In choosing your wife, it must be remembered that you are choosing the mother of your children, and unfortunately this is not always given enough consideration. Your wife should be fitted to bring in to the world children of whom you can be proud. They should be a living, lusty, glowing tribute to your love. Scrawny, spindle-legged children are anything but this.

But even though you agree heartily to this advice—watch out. Many a bright young man has said: "Oh, I'm just killing a little time. I have no serious intentions." But how about the girl's intentions? She may be serious and if she does not measure up to your ideals, you are in danger.

Sometimes it is painful in the extreme to break off an association of this kind; like a painful surgical operation. But if you do not break it off now, it will break you up later on—when your hopes and dreams of a blissful married life have gone to pieces on the rocks of disillusion.

Hilda's Cookies

Cream $\frac{1}{2}$ cup butter and 1 cup sugar, add 1 egg, well beaten, then dry ingredients as follows: 2 cups flour, 1 teaspoon baking powder, pinch salt, all sifted together. Add three tablespoons of rich cream and flavoring. Roll thin and cut in fancy shapes; bake in hot oven until light brown.

The telephone bell was ringing and Br'er Rabbit answered it. "Hello! Yes—who are you—why certainly—what's that—you don't mean it—bring the children?—Only two—only two—come at once."

Br'er Rabbit hung up the receiver. "It's Mr. White Rabbit who wants us to come over and bring the children. I think he wants to have a game of bridge but I'm not sure. Anyway, if we take the children, they will amuse themselves with the White Rabbit children and we will have a swell time."

"Children" shouted Mother Rabbit. "Come here and get dressed as fast as ever you can."

Billie Bunny and Bibbie Bunnies rushed into their rooms and soon came a splashing of water as the two began to scrub their necks.

In less time than it takes to tell it, Br'er Rabbit's family was on its way to see the White Rabbits. The two youngsters led the way and old Br'er Rabbit and his good wife came behind.

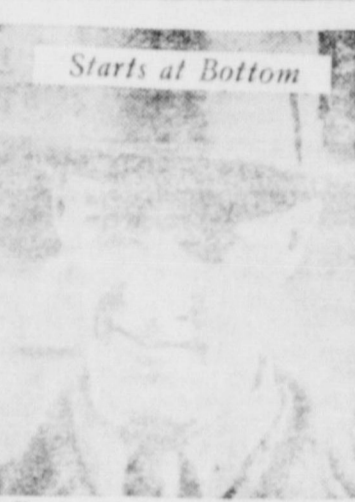

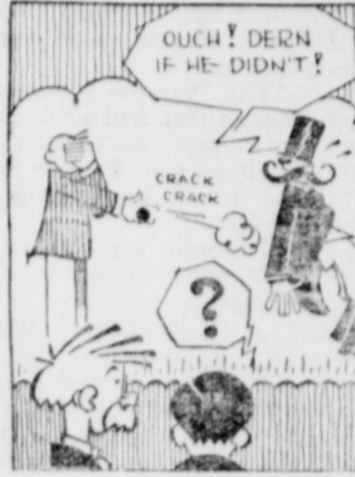

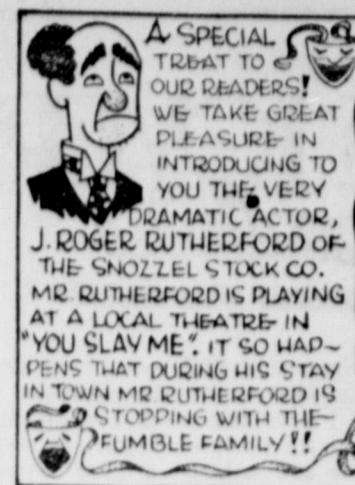

By and bye the game was over and Br'er Rabbit began to look for his darlings.

"They were in the pantry with the White Rabbits," Mother Rabbit exclaimed. "These children are all covered with fat."

"But we had a good time!" exclaimed Bibbie.

"Delighted to see you," said Br'er Rabbit, with a merry laugh.

GRATITUDE

I doubt if people are born with this admirable quality. If an infant smiles at his admirer, he just feels good about something pleasing—that's all; he hardly renders the smile as a recompense; his symptom is one of amusement, when we come to think about it.

I gave my very small grandson some small coins. He hurried with them to his toy-bank and put them in apparently much pleased at the increase in his wealth. His mother, who saw the transaction, asked firmly, "Now, what do you say?" A very conventional "Thank you" came, wholly meaningless.

Not that I expected something in return for my very trifling generosity—no, not that—but I have always been a student of human nature, accustomed to drawing inferences therefrom.

There are a great many grown-up children in the same category with my little grandson; they are the recipients of gifts of many times more value than the pennies I bestowed, yet—they forget to say anything.

We are richly blessed in priceless days; in food, clothing, health, loved ones and social contacts with our fellow-men. I cannot think of anything good that may not be mine, if I set about obtaining it in the right way. The wonder is, why do I forget the golden privilege of being grateful, and of saying so.

I could not live a single hour without this wholesome environment of mine. Light illumines my pathway; air revives the weariness from humble though faithful effort; moisture and dryness preserve my physical balance; gentle night affords its balmy sources; friends and loved ones awaken the best within me. Who so indifferent as to harbor ingratitude? What do you say?

THE DESPERATE LOVER

By E. Phillips Oppenheim

TENTH INSTALLMENT
Letter from Margharita Briscoe to the Count Leonardo di Marioni, care of the Princess di Carlotti, Palazzo Carlotti, Rome.

"My Dear, Dear Uncle: I am inclined to scold you for your letter, for it made me very sad. Why should you be so sure of dying just as the vengeance which is your due becomes yours? You are not very old, and you can nurse your even as I did before. Think how lonely I should be without you. No, you must not think of leaving me. I forbid it. It is morbid. Banish that fancy for my sake, and try and think of a quiet happy life together, away in some southern city, where the sea and the sky are blue, and the sun is warm, and the breezes are soft and laden with the perfume of sweet flowers. We would never live in this country, would we? I do not like it. It is cold and damp, and it chills me, chills even my heart. Oh! I know just the life we could live together, and be very, very happy. Write to me no more of death.

"I am quite settled down here, waiting. My duties are light, and I do not find them irksome. Every day I realize that I did well in coming here as a governess, and not as one seeking a home. They think that it is because of my pride that I have willed it so. They do not know. "Lady St. Maurice tries to be kind to me in her way; but when the honeyed words are upon her lips, I think of you and my heart is steel. She must have been a very beautiful woman—may, she is beautiful now! You asked me in your first letter to watch and to tell you whether they were happy together. You asked me and I tell you the truth.

"Yes! I think that of all the women whom I have ever seen, her life seems to have flown along the most calmly and peacefully. I have never seen a cloud upon her brow; I hate her for it. She has no right to be happy; she, who by such treachery condemned you to a living death. Once my anger struck her, and I had to hurry myself before the time. Truly she deserves punishment, and my hand shall not shrink from inflicting it.

"Yet, after all, is death the most complete form of punishment. Sometimes I doubt it. I would mar the beauty of her face for ever, and laugh. I would strike her blind gladly; I would make her a cripple for life, without remorse, without hesitation. To see her suffer would please me. I should have no pity!

"But death, uncle! If anything of our religion be true, the would death be so terrible a thing? Against my will I see that her life is good. She has made her home what it should be, and her husband happy. She is a devoted Christian, and, wet it, though this it may not be, or fine, every Sunday morning before breakfast, she goes to the little church in the village and kneels before the altar and visits the sick and the poor, and they love her. For me, religion has become something yet, alas, been successful. Think of a dream. I was brought up a Roman Catholic. What I am now I do not know! When I vowed my life to its present purpose I filled it with new thoughts; I put my religion away from me. I could not kneel with hate in my heart; I could not confess with the desire to kill in my bosom.

"Let that pass. Supposing there be a heaven, if we kill her for her treachery to you and will not that sin be wiped out? May she not gain heaven? And if so, what of our vengeance? Death is swift! What will she suffer? It will be those who are left behind who will feel the pain, for her, there will be happiness beyond even the happiness of earth. She will be shriven for her sin by our vengeance.

"Think of this, my dear uncle! Do not imagine that I am growing faint-hearted; do not imagine that I am drawing back from the task which I now claim as my right. Death, or some other sort of punishment, shall surely fall upon her; she shall not escape! Only think what is best.

"Write to me all that is in your heart. Fear not to speak out! I would know all. Farewell! Your loving

"MARGHARITA."

Letter from the Count Leonardo di Marioni, the Palazzo Carlotti, Rome, to Miss Margharita Briscoe, Mallyory Grange, Lincolnshire.
"Beloved Margharita: I will confess that your letter troubles me. If there be heaven for the woman who wrecked my life, there be no heaven for me, no religion, no God. You say that she is a good woman. She is then a good woman through fear. She seeks to atone, but she can never atone. She won a boy's passionate love; she wore his heart upon her sleeve; she cast it away at the moment of her pleasure. She broke the vows of an order, which should have been as sacred to her as the face of God to the angels; and she sent a Marioni to rot through a useless life in a miserable heart she broke, and the man struck her, and I had to hurry myself before the time. Truly she deserves punishment, and my hand shall not shrink from inflicting it.

"That is how I would have yet speak to me not of any before breakfast, she goes to the little church in the village and kneels before the altar and visits the sick and the poor, and they love her. For me, religion has become something yet, alas, been successful. Think —then!

"Margharita, I am coming to you. Nay, do not be alarmed. I run no risk. I shall come disguised, and no one will know me, but I must see something of the end with my own eyes, or half its sweetness would be untasted. I would see her face and die! I would trace, day by day, the workings of the poison; and in the last moments of her agony I would reveal myself, and would point to my withered frame, and the hand of death upon my forehead, and cry out to her that the Order of the White Hyacinth had kept its vow. I would have her eyes meet mine as the mists of death closed in upon her. I would have her know that the oath of a Marioni, in friendship or in hate, in protection or in vengeance, is one with his honor. This may not be, Margharita! I cannot see all this! I cannot even stand by her bedside for a moment and show her my face, that she might know whose hand it is which has stricken her down. Yet, I must be near! Fear not but that I shall manage it safely! I would not bring danger or the shadow of danger upon you, my beloved.

"I leave Rome to-night, and I leave it with joy. You cannot imagine how inexpressibly sad it has been for me to find myself in the place where the greater part of my youth—my too ambitious youth was spent. All is changed and strange to me. There are new streets and many innovations which puzzle me; and although my friends are kind, twenty-five years have crushed our sympathies. To them I am like a sad figure from a bygone world, a Banquet of the feast, something to pity, little beyond that. I am a weary, old man, whose mind is a blank, and who only cumber the way. Ah, well, it is not long. The day of my desire is at hand, and God has given me you, Margharita, to accomplish it, and to close my eyes in peace. Bless you, my dear, dear child! You have sweetened the end of a marred and wretched life! Yours has been an angel's task, and you will have an angel's reward.

"Leonardo di Marioni."
"Palezzo Carlotti, Rome."
"Margharita, — Beloved. Success! My search is over, my purpose is accomplished. I have found Paschuli. Enclosed in this letter you will find a smaller envelope. It contains the powder.

"Can you wonder that my hand is shaking, and that there is a mist before my eyes? I am an old man, and great joy is hard to bear; harder still after a weary, wretched life, such as mine. You will understand, though—you will be able to decipher this faint, uncertain handwriting, and you will forgive me if it tires you. Ay, you will do that, Margharita. I know!

"Let me tell you how I found him. It was by the purest accident. I turned aside into an old cigar shop to buy some trifle for you. I saw a man, and it was Paschuli, himself who served me. Thus you see how indirectly even your star always shines over mine and leads me aright. If it had not been for you I should never have dreamed of entering the place, but I thought of you and your taste for Roman jewelry, and behold, I found myself in the presence of the man for whom I was making vain search. My Margharita! My good angel! I have you to thank even for the successful accomplishment of my part in that edict of our Order which you and I are bound together to carry out.

"At first, Paschuli did not recognize me, and it was long before I could make him believe that I was indeed that most unfortunate of men, Leonardo di Marioni. But when he was convinced, he promised me what I sought. That same evening he gave it to me.

"Margharita, there is no poison in the world like that which I send you in this letter. The merest grain of it is sufficient in wine or water, or food of any sort. There is no art of medicine which could detect it—no fevered to linger lest they might ask what it was that alarmed you, and seek for me. And although I fancy that I am after ed past recognition, yet I would run no risks.

SOME SPEED

Major Seagrave ran an auto 231 miles an hour on a Florida track, and the entire world was thrilled by the news of the accomplishment. Some speed!

Far be it from us to detract from the importance of Major Seagrave's feat.

But let us analyze it thoroughly from the standpoint of its usefulness.

There's no public highway where autos can be allowed to go at that speed. Therefore why build expensive motors that cannot be used when built?

It's dangerous even to look at a car going that speed, the slightest deflection in its course being able to send it toward its spectators at a speed of 340 feet per second.

Increased speed is certainly not a desirable improvement in an automobile. Car designers should create products winning their laurels in other ways.

Sure, it's thrilling to hear about this feat and others like it. But such accomplishments have nothing to do with the progress of car production—it would be a tragedy more than anything else if the ordinary motorist were to be given the means to travel any quicker than he does now. The high-speed car is merely an expensive sporting-toy with no practical value, in our opinion.

EASTER TIME

Easter is a season of loveliness and thankfulness, a holiday beautiful beyond words. It is at this time that flowers come to bloom and all nature takes on the aspect of Spring. It is at this time that men with faith the world over rejoice in the contentment engendered by that faith.

On Easter Sunday we take our afternoon drives, dressed in the modes of the moment. Just as the very ground beneath us is bedecking itself for the occasion, so do we put on our prettiest to mark this significant day.

But our observance of Easter must not be only an exterior one, apparent only in the garments that we don. To be really in line in the Easter parade, it is necessary to feel inwardly the great emotions that Easter should create. The hallowed traditions of the holiday must permeate us—we should not alone dress better, but should also be higher spiritually on this day of days.

More important than all, we should on this day go to our churches and bow our heads in prayer to the Master whose blessings follow us at every step.

WEST TEXAS NEEDS A SPANKING, EH?

By Richard McCarty, in The Albany News.

The West Texas crowd have been quite wrought up this week down at Austin. To start with, governor Moody vetoed their pet bill and then some one told them they could not secede from Texas without a real reason. If there is any bunch in Texas that are spoiled, it is the West Texas crowd. They are fine fellows, they have some wonderful organizers in charge of their work, some of the best executives, in the state, but sometimes we feel like they need a good spanking, like the spoiled boy, and put to bed without their bottle for one night at least.—Richardson Echo.

The above clipping is from the facile pen of the Hon. Sam P. Harben, editor and proprietor of the Richardson Echo and secretary of the Texas Press Association. He is large mentally as well as physically—Yes, some boys, but he has stirred up a hornet's nest and he's going to get his feet wet when he jumps on West Texas. Oh, yes, he says that West Texas needs a spanking, but what we want to know is, who in the hell is going to do the spanking—Says that we were mightily wrought up about Governor Dan Moody vetoing that land bill—Well boy did you notice how we spanked the red headed governor of Texas, yes, just as soon as the giants came down from the West to storm the State Capitol, to register their protest, and the doggoned lawmakers dove tailed, fell into line, and gosh we swamped that red headed governor of Texas—Oh, yes, it was a regular landslide, passed it over his veto, and West Texas got what was coming to her—De it said that it has ever been thus, West Texas has had to scrap for what she wants, and by doggies we know how to strike back—Of course you darn "fellars" down there in the sticks think of West Texas as a waste, howling wilderness, inhabited by wild animals, rattle snakes, mule eared rabbits and mottle cotton tails and long horned cattle—And they think that just because we wear ten gallon hats, bell-spurs and leather leggins that we are wild and woolly and simple. But get this boy, when West Texas puts on a show, they rush the ticket office for front seats in the grand stand—Actors? Why Lordy yes—Did you notice that Simmons Cowboy Band in the tour of the eastern states—Why doggone they like to have stampeeded the Inauguration proceedings, and Washington city declared a holiday to flirt with these western giants—Put on a show, why bless your soul boy, we went after Herbert, wanted to fetch him west and show him a sure enough to God country—Why yes, we bait our hooks for big fish, and by gosh he said he would come—Yes, captured the President of the United States, general of our armies and the Admiral of our navies coming west to be our guest this coming May at El-Paso during the annual meeting of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce, the largest regional commercial body in the world, and you think of it, the Commander-in-chief of the armies of the greatest Republic on earth has sat up and taken notice, and agreed to visit this great Empire. Spank West Texas, Eh? Why boy she is a giant, and if you ever undertake it you will sure get stung. Stuck up eh? Why hell, who wouldn't be, living in a country like this, some five or six hundred miles across it from east to west and about a thousand miles long, play Eh?

FLYERS

On the wall near my desk hangs a first-rate picture of Colonel Lindbergh—America's there because it lends me inspiration. This more boy ranks with the world's greatest men—and bravest.

Many youths pass my door during the day. They seem to possess the same physical equipment as my air hero—and many of them look more robust than he; but I do not know the names of the youths that pass my door; they may not have tried to do any very big things.

Not that there aren't big things waiting to be done—not that; these boys here just haven't stopped to take an invoice of their capabilities. And I doubt if they have ever thought seriously of doing things that would make the best people in America applaud them.

I have heard that this Lindbergh boy is very devoted to his mother. Just that one little thing, which any boy can accomplish without much effort, sets me to praising him with all my might. One thing; I never knew a boy who really adored his mother, who wasn't worthy to stand before the King.

This Lindbergh face is my inspiration. It seems to say "Onward—Upward." There are a thousand paths to fame aside from the air and the marvellous flight therein. Every human brain is a storehouse of unparalleled energy. What an example to others of our youth, is this Lindbergh!

"Let's go—let's go," the picture seems to be saying. Ah, the dauntless bravery—the boundless courage depicted here! I wouldn't part with this picture for any reasonable sum. But there are those who look at a portrait time and again, and never see it.

The boys are still passing my door; they're going to the park to watch the game.

WHY MEN AVOID JURY SERVICE

We often hear it said that it is the duty of every good citizen to serve on the jury whenever called upon. Judges often take it upon themselves to lecture on this subject, calling attention to the responsibilities of citizenship.

In theory it is the duty of snow ball up in the northern part in the early morn, hop across this vast domain, and lunch on oranges and grape fruit in the Magic valley at noon, and bathe our feet in the Gulf of Mexico at even-tide—And here comes you "fellars" from down in the sticks and talk about spanking West Texas and putting her to bed without her bottle—Yes, we are sassy and stuck up, have a right to be, living in the greatest country on earth, and with our varied interests out here, we have a right to some of the rich, ripe political melons being cut down at the State Capitol. Spanking West Texas eh? Roll up your britches and wade in boys, the water is warm and the swimming is good, shed your duds and get in, the fracas is on—Oh yes, it's a great country Sam, and the richest in the world—It's white-faced cattle, Jersey cows, sheep, and goats, copper mines and oil wells, fertile valleys and undulating hills, green grasses and babbling brooks, fructified breezes, where the ozone puts kick in the blood and takes the hills out of your system—Pretty women and handsome men—And scappers did you say? Come on you darn fellars down there in the sticks and put on that spanking stunt. Eh?

every man to take his turn in serving on the jury. It is a responsibility of good citizenship, and we doubt that good citizens would hesitate in assuming this responsibility if they were treated with fairness and consideration. But they are not. Men are not always selected to serve on the jury because they are good citizens. They are not always selected because they are intelligent, honest, and fair. Under our methods, men are frequently selected because some lawyer believes they are already prejudiced in favor of his side of the case; because he believes they can be easily influenced or because of circumstances in their lives that would tend to cause the juryman to consider the evidence from some angle not altogether in keeping with facts and the law. It is not a compliment to be selected by a trickster lawyer to serve on the jury. It does not flatter a man in any way. True, many good men, honest, intelligent and fair, do serve on juries, but generally they are selected after the lawyers have about run out of challenges or because of other reasons which the lawyer does not care to make public.

There are other objectionable features that should be done away with in selection of jury-men. Only recently it was announced that 500 men would be called on a special venire from which an attempt would be made to select twelve men to form a jury. The fact that our method of selecting jury-men requires taking 200 to 1,000 men away from their business and their employment in order to select twelve men to try a case condemns the system. To make matters worse, these men, often times at large financial loss, are instructed to be at the courthouse on a certain day, and there they sit around for hours and sometimes days while lawyers argue alleged illegal points before the judge. After these lengthy preliminaries are over, then it takes days to make the selection. After the jury is in the box ready to hear the evidence, they are frequently sent out of the room while the lawyers argue matters before the judge which should have been settled before the jury was called.

If common sense were used in handling matters in court, good citizens would not seek for excuses to keep off the jury. This was one of the matters related to court reform which the Texas Legislature, in committee, dismissed without giving it a minute's consideration.—Farm and Ranch.

Retire from beauty. Make approach to ugliness? —Browning.

Today, in finishing my series of talks on the different types of skin texture, I want to touch a little (and that is all I can do at this time) on the importance of giving added thought and attention to skins that are sluggish and inclined to discoloration which may be the result of an upset internal condition.

This type of skin is often possessed by women of forty or more. And many do not seem to realize the importance of counteracting this condition before the evil becomes so deeply rooted that it requires just that much additional effort and care to get it back to normal.

It is a great pity to behold women of perhaps thirty-five, forty or forty-five years of age—able to afford the best the world offers in clothes and all the luxuries dear to the feminine heart, appearing in public dressed in the height of fashion—yet with skins that are yellow and blotchy. The entire appearance is spoiled by a poor complexion. For no matter how smart the frock or hat, it loses a great deal of its charm if the wearer's skin shows plainly the marks of neglect.

The sluggish skin is the skin that is sub-normal in its ability to throw off its own impurities, which function is the "active skin's" secret of beauty. An "active skin" responds at once to fresh air, even to very cold air, and will brighten and glow under its influence, while an inactive skin either remains unaffected or becomes pinched and blue, or chapped and roughened.

The sub-normal, inactive skin which, as I said before, troubles so many women, must be stimulated by the use of extraneous aids, and much more strenuous methods are necessary for it than for the normal, active skin.

The stimulating creams must be still more active, also the lotions and astringents. Most important of all—there must be a constant daily and even twice daily application of some stimulating preparations which contain certain ingredients that whip the blood to the face with the utmost rapidity—and then, massage.

The necessary massage includes vigorous slapping and vibrating of the face. For those who have not the perseverance or patience to do this with their own hands, or cannot place themselves in the care of an expert for treatments, assistance may be obtained by using an electric vibrator.

There is, strictly speaking, no rest for the woman who possesses a sluggish skin. She must be ever on the alert to provide stimulation, activity, never allowing the complexion to relapse into unwholesome ways.

A bedroom in French gray—how good it sounds; how difficult to develop in just the right shades to give life and interest to the gray scheme!

A charming effect can be obtained with walls tinted the softest shade of gray and rug of plain gray in a deeper harmonizing shade. Then paint the furniture pale French gray with a soft shade of blue wined into the carving.

For draperies and spreads use taffeta in a watermelon pink tone with tiny ruching of turquoise blue for trimming. Or one of the mercerized cotton taffetas in these shades would be effective. Slip-covers for upholstered chair or chaise could be of chintz having a soft turquoise blue background and a classic pattern in gray. For side chairs use pink taffeta cushions in watermelon pink.

VERY LATEST

By Cecile

In line with the advance toward feminine frills is the latest fancy for lace used in quantities and in most bewildering ways upon new negligees.

DOROTHY DRUM, one of the stars of "Pleasure Bound," shows us one of these new models combining an odd mixture of lace motifs in shapes both square and round. Among several lace-trimmed negligees seen through Fifth Avenue windows was one whose black Chantilly flounces fell in graceful swoops from skirt and neckline of a white chiffon foundation; another robe of flesh chiffon carried slanting tiers of black lace trailing off gracefully in the distance.

Black lace is even found on a number of new pyjamas. On one, a deep gathered ruffle of black lace finishes trouser legs and sleeves of pyjamas in charcoal chiffon. On another, a band of insertion turns back as a cuff at the bottom of trousers; finishes the bottom of the jacket and sleeves.

YOUNG MEN AND WOMEN WHO THINK CLEARLY THE GREATEST DEMAND OF AMERICAN BUSINESS

Bankers Association President Gives the Five Essentials of Sound Thinking in Business—Greater Opportunity Than Ever Before for Young People With Educational Training and Power to Analyze Problems.

By CRAIG B. HAZLEWOOD
President American Bankers Association

ONLY half a century ago Michael Pupin, a shepherd boy, guarded his flocks by night among the fields of Serbia. Thieves often lurked in the bordering cornfields awaiting an opportunity to make off with a part of the herd. Serbian boys were taught a method of signaling one another for warning and help. Each carried a knife with a long wooden handle which he would thrust deep into the ground and in case cattle thieves approached he would strike the wooden handle. The sound would be transmitted through the ground to other boys some distance away who could hear and interpret the message.

"Why is it," Pupin asked his mother, "that we can signal this way? Why is it the sound can be heard through the ground, but not through the air? Why is it the signals can be heard in the pasture land so much better than in the plowed fields?" The boy's mother could not answer his questions, nor could the village teacher. However, having an eager mind and great determination, the boy decided to go to America, where he might win an education and find out the answers to these and other perplexing questions. Hundreds of other boys under the same circumstances and with the same set of conditions merely accepted those things without once questioning them just because they had always done them that way.

The Land of Education and Success
So a penniless immigrant boy from Serbia at the age of fifteen landed in New York in 1874 and, years later, having worked his way through Columbia University, concentrated the wonder and simplicity of his mind upon the problem of sound, which had puzzled him as a shepherd boy. The results of his thinking—what he has accomplished for the long distance telephone and for radio communication by his inventions—are known the world over. "If during the past twenty-two years this country had been compelled to do without one invention of Michael Pupin," an official of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company once said, "and yet give the same service it is giving today it would have had to spend at least $100,000,000 more than it has expended."

These inventions, in which millions of dollars of capital have been invested, were the result of the thinking of a mere country lad who had the simplicity to wonder, the determination to know and the power to apply what he learned.

Stimulating the imagination and thinking is the greatest purpose of education. What American business needs more than anything else is young men and women to think—individuals who are not mentally anchored to tradition, who do not merely appropriate other people's ideas, but who are hard, purposeful thinkers, independent and unprejudiced, with the ability to concentrate and strike straight for the heart of a problem.

Business Needs Folk Who Think
America has outdone the world by its readiness in exacting aside traditional viewpoints, disregarding traditional difficulties and pioneering new shortcut formulas in the realm of business. Business is undergoing special changes.

Business problems are crowding in upon us so rapidly that the executive knows not where to look for adequate help or relief. With the enormous increase in size and intricacy of business affairs the problems have become so complicated and the mass of information necessary to their solution so great that the "days are not long enough." The demand for managerial and executive ability is rushing ahead—the opportunity for young men and women who have the professional training and who develop genuine thinking power is greater than ever.

All business feels the same crying need for the men who see clearly and think conclusively. Wherever we look—manufacturing, wholesaling, retailing, banking, financing—new forces are at work. Vast movements are under way and executives are seeking light upon perplexing problems daily. Let us consider briefly the five essentials of a sound thinker. If I were looking for a young man of exceptional promise I should hope, first, to find in him the simplicity to wonder. Every great advancement in business has been made by men who dared to wonder, who had the courage to inquire into present procedure and who had the audacity to ask whether something that had been done a certain way for a long time might not be wrong. Although the history of America's progress from its very discovery to the present time has shown the value of an inquiring mind, there is still an inevitable tendency in most men to accept in a docile manner the opinions, methods, supposed facts, procedures and processes of the past. With due reverence to the effort, the spirit, the accomplishments of the past, let us make it our rule that everything be looked at with the clear questioning mind of the scientist.

The figures covering high schools show that 47 cents 100 per cent of the attendance in this class are school savers.
