Knox Prairie Philosopher Has Been Studying Up on The Russian Problem, Reports On His Findings

Editor's note: The Knox Prairie Philosopher on his Johnson grass farm on Miller Creek seems to be in a solemn mood this week. He'd probably be as well off worrying about the state of his own farm instead of the world, but somebody else can tell him, not us.

Dear editor: For months now I been neglectin my plannin for spring plantin just to study the Russian situation, combin this area thoroughly for every newspaper that turned up, even includin yours, as I was desperat to figure out what the trouble is, and after considerable meditatn and reflectn I have come to the conclusion that while nobody knows what's happenin, Russia is out-smartin us for the time bein, in a diplomatic sort of way.

That is, we don't know what Russia is gonna do, don't even know what we're gonna do, but Russia knows what we're gonna do and herself to boot.

That is, we got different systems. Before this country could declare a war, we got to think it over and debate it in congress and find out how everybody feels about it, which is a good thing, but in Russia it's different. Over there the people can wake up some mornin thinkin about spring plantin and turn on their radios and discover they're at war. Just one man, or two or three at the most, has to make up his mind over there.

Russia knows, for example, that we ain't gonna start no war. We ain't gonna attack nobody unless they jump on us first. But Russia ain't got no such rules.

For that reason, Stalin figures he has a marked deck and is playin the game like he pleases. For example, there ain't been a newspaper editorial writer or a radio commentator or any statesman yet who can explain to me why, if the United States wants to haul food into Berlin, which we captured, from a hundred miles away, it has to do it by airplanes at the risk of American lives instead of haulin it in by truck or train, just because Russia says the ground belongs to her. I'll admit after weeks of careful study and thought on this problem, at the neglect of my entire farmin program, I can't figure it out, and haven't found anybody else who can tell me why this country can't just loap up some trucks and tear out for Berlin. It seems to me it would be a good opportunity to find out who's bluffin, and I'll bet my next year's crop against next year's loan to England that Russia wouldn't start no shootin war, and if she did, now's a better time to find out she means bullets than later on. But I'm sorry to say this country seems to be bogged down in diplomatic maneuvers which don't mean nothin to you and me, although one commentator did hint this country might, if driven to it, stiffen its backbone and take the extreme step of ignorin for six weeks a Russian diplomat in Washington, not even invite him to tea parties, to teach his country a lesson.

It's out of my provice, but if you ask me, this is a good time to throw away them diplomatic top hats and silk gloves and polite sneakin around and use hard common sense. There ain't nobody left to fight but Russia. If we have to fight her, which I doubt, now's the best time on earth to find it out. If a man is bent on causin trouble, I'd rather find it out while he's out of breath than after he builds up his strength and resources by hoggin half my farm.

Yours faithfully,
J. A.

Wind Erosion Is Hindered By Early Moisture

FORT WORTH—Good soil moisture has given western Texas and Oklahoma temporary rest from wind erosion although large acreages are still without enough cover to prevent blowing when the soil's surface dries.

Regional Soil Conservation Service Director Louis P. Merrill pointed out that the principal benefit from the recent rains and snow is that farmers now can produce a crop that, with a good cropping pattern and properly managed stubble, will help to prevent blowing on a large scale next year.

Mid-January reports from soil conservation field men in Oklahoma and Texas show 4,612,934 acres in the two states without good enough plant cover to prevent blowing when the soil's surface dries. Of this, 3,119,853 acres are in Texas. Merrill explained that this two-state figure, which represents the main blow hazard in the United States, can be out sharply as farmers and ranchers take advantage of the opportunity to get and keep good plant cover on their lands.

"Farmers and ranchers who are cooperating with their soil conservation districts already know the measures they need to take to prevent wind erosion next year," Merrill said. "The others can use a few basic practices and aid greatly in reducing the erosion hazard. The supervising boards of soil conservation districts can make good use of this opportunity to get general cooperation among landowners and land operators to cut down next year's blowing. It's a job that must be done a year ahead."

The immediate value of recent rains and snow, Merrill explained, is that farmers are able to list and chisel their lands to offer a cloddy or furrowed surface prepare against possible soil movement. The moisture means that farmers in most areas can prepare their land for spring planting with the assurance that they will be able to get a crop up.

The rain and snow of course will give new impetus to young stands of small grain and in some areas already have assured good soil cover, Merrill said. Grasslands have suffered greatly from drought and the new moisture will mean good early growth where the more desirable plants are still in good condition and some cover from winter weeds and grasses.

Grass seeding on damaged lands now can be carried on with moisture present to insure germination. A better than usual supply of grass seed will help to speed up this part of the soil conservation program.

On the deep sandy soils a dead cover of sorghum or sudan in which to seed grass is needed. These crops can now be planted to give cover for seeding the grass in the spring of 1950.

In row crop areas soil conservationists are recommending a field strip type of farming which, when the winds blow next fall, will lessen damage from wind erosion. In peanuts and cotton producing areas such a pattern would include strips of sorghum with stalks left high, to protect fields of cotton and peanuts. Merrill said that reports from field representatives of the Soil Conservation Service show that many soil conservation districts are working hard on campaigns to protect land in their districts next year. Some of these boards are conducting tours to show farmers the value of field strips and residue management practices. They are carrying on information programs through newspapers and radio channels to urge farmers to apply preventive measures.

Reports show that little or no damage has occurred this year on land where stubble and other crop residue had been left on the surface. Merrill pointed out that experiences of the last two years have impressed upon many farmers the values of crop residue management, strip cropping, crop rotations, cover crops and other good soil practices.

"We in the Soil Conservation Service feel much encouraged by the evidence of interest on the part of many farmers who previously had felt they could get along without some of the practices soil conservation districts and SCS were recommending," Merrill said. "I am convinced that wind erosion will not be as widespread even if we do have another dry summer and fall. Farmers are learning that they must leave crop residue on their land until they have enough soil moisture to get another crop up."

Cemetery—

here and were buried here. More and more grave markers and marble tombstones were erected, and as the years passed the original grant for Johnson cemetery was being filled up. More land was added, then as it became evident the cemetery would be fenced, Kelly Johnson remembered the terms of his father's deed.

He agreed that if an equal amount of land was supplied in Munday and the Primitive Baptist church moved there, then the church would "cease to function" at this location, and the land would divert to the heirs; the church in its new location would be better located, so Kelly Johnson consummated this deal with members of the cemetery association and the City of Munday. The church was moved some two years ago.

Kelly Johnson then contacted all of the heirs and got their consent for the original church land to become a part of the cemetery. The cemetery then became a square block of land, and the fence was erected last year.

But Kelly Johnson was not yet satisfied. The cemetery with its new fence seemed to have something lacking. Then, too, he had the belief that future generations might see fit to change the name to Munday Cemetery, and the memory of his beloved father, the late Uncle Jack Johnson, would become lost in that hallowed soil. He wanted the Johnson name to always be connected with this small plot of ground.

Kelly Johnson, John B. Reneau, whose interest in the cemetery is second only to that of Mr. Johnson, and others went about the task of securing two large arches for the entrance gates to the cemetery. All members of the cemetery association were interested, and Kelly Johnson, after much writing and thinking, closed the deal with a party in Wichita Falls to build the arches.

The arches were constructed with large letters, "Johnson Memorial Cemetery" forming the arch. They cost $350.00 each. Kelly Johnson paid for one of them; the cemetery association purchased the other.

They've been erected on concrete pillars at the south and east entrances to the cemetery. All that remains is to have them painted. This will be done this spring.

The struggle to keep it from growing up in grass and weeds—to keep this hallowed piece of ground clean and attractive—has been, and will continue to be, an endless one. It's being done chiefly through contributions from those whose loved ones are buried there, through personal solicitation of funds, through voluntary contributions.

Recently a drive was started for funds. It's met with some success, but not enough success to insure the upkeep of the cemetery for the remainder of this year. John Reneau has worked hard at the job—harder than he could have, because his health isn't as good as it was years ago.

He's grateful for the cooperation he has received from most people he's contacted.

People like Kelly Johnson and John B. Reneau will do everything they can to see that this piece of soil does not divert back to the prairie grass sod it was when Uncle Jack Johnson first camped there. It's hallowed ground to them—their loved ones are buried there! What does it mean to you? What will you do to help?

COUSINS PAYS TRIBUTE TO UNCLE JACK JOHNSON

I cannot refrain from attempting to pay a tribute to the good man who has just passed to the realm of the great beyond. It is with a pang of regret that I read of his passing. Uncle Jackie Johnson was a man of a type that is too scarce today. His simple life, his rugged honesty and his frankness made him one of the most lovable characters that it has ever been my good fortune to meet.

His great heart throbbed for all mankind, he was good in side. No unfortunate ever left him empty-handed, no neighborly charity was ever passed by him. His heart and his home were open to the world, and many of us who knew Knox County in the 90's knew his home as an oasis in the prairie desert to which the weary traveler was not only admitted but was welcome.

As a citizen, a better one never lived in any country or clime. A bond backed by a million dollars in gold was no better than Uncle Jackie's word. He was a personification of the words, "Nature's Noblemen". Educated in the school of experience, his teachers were the battles of life, from whose fires he emerged pure gold.

He was not an educated man as the world of today understands, but in nature's school a more learned man could not be found. He was a man ready to fight for his principles and die by his faith. He was the kind of man, who, in his day, was the foundation of our civilization and it is a regrettable fact that our foundation is not as secure today because there are fewer of his-kind in the world.

He lived a long and useful life, he rendered a service to the world, he was a pioneer who conquered the untamed wilds of the new country. He turned the desert prairie into a field of golden grain to feed the millions. He helped to make possible that gem of the west—the Knox County of today. His silvery locks, his wrinkled face and his bent form told that years were creeping upon him, and finally he came to the place where he laid life's burdens down and meekly as he gazed into the mystic beyond he felt the breath of life eternal and heard the waves breaking on the other shore.

No nobler impulse could thrill the hearts of we men of this age than to emulate the prowess and follow in the footsteps of this grand old pioneer who laid an example and set a pattern in work, honesty, morals and religion than any of us can afford to follow.

No chiseled granite or fashioned bronze, although it pierce the blue dome of heaven, can compare with the monument Uncle Jackie erected to himself in the hearts of his neighbors. The sturdy sons and daughters who are left behind are not the only ones to mourn the death of this good man who has gone to his reward provided by the Prince of Peace, who in gethsemane paid the greatest debt that mankind ever owed.

Stilled is the brain of a Godly man; Stilled is the hand of a friend; Stilled is the great throbbing heart

That beat for all manner of men. Unafraid he answered the summons; Undaunted he crossed the dark stream;

For fear was no part of his nature; His passing an untroubled dream. He saw the better side of mankind; He was conscious of joys untold.

As he watched life's lowering sunset Turn the ocean's blue to gold May we cherish and revere his memory

To our lift's sun's dying day; May his life be an inspiration To you and to me today. —W. H. Cousins.

Cappy Miller's young son, Squint, is forever coming up with new ideas. Now they're not all world beaters, but Cappy is usually willing to give them a try.

That's why things go so well at the Miller farm. Cappy is open-minded, tolerant of new ideas and new ways of doing. He doesn't think his way is the only way.

From where I sit, a little tolerance will make things go better for all of us. You respect my views and I'll respect yours—whether it's on farming, politics, or choosing between an ice cream soda or a temperate glass of beer.

Goree Bible Class Meets Monday In Coffman Home

The Goree Bible Study Class met Monday night, February 21, in the home of Mrs. Walter Coffman. The meeting opened with a song and a prayer, led by Mrs. Billie Hutchens.

Paul's Journeys were studied by the group, after which a number of songs were sung and enjoyed by all. The next meeting will be in the home of Mrs. Barton Carl.

A refreshment plate was served to the following members and one guest:

Mmes. E. F. Heard, Orman Moore, Billie Hutchens, Buster Coffman, Les Jameson, James Carver, Reuben Bates, Clarence Powell and the hostess, Mrs. Walter Coffman.

Mr. and Mrs. D. E. Holder, Sr. and Mr. and Mrs. D. E. Holder, Jr., and daughter, Dianna Dee, accompanied Mrs. Hattie Williams to Abilene last Sunday. Mrs. Williams has been visiting in the Holder home for several days.

Range Management Pays Big Dividend

About 40 percent of the Texas agricultural income is derived from livestock and livestock products. Some 93.5 million acres or about 60 percent of the total area of the state is devoted to the grazing of livestock, says A. H. Walker, extension range specialist of Texas A&M College.

Range demonstrations have shown that livestock live longer and produce bigger offspring when plenty of good grass is available for them.

Programs are now underway that have as their objective a sound and practical approach to the problems of range management. Two range management schools for county agents were held by the A&M department of range and forestry the past two summers, and the class rooms used were the ranges where something was wrong. Demonstrations have been established to show what can be done if proper stocking rates are observed and if the good grasses are given a chance to reseed.

The record drought has forced many ranchmen to reduce their herds from 25-75 percent and still supplemental feeding is necessary. Too many livestock for too long has caught up with the livestock man and this added to the recent drought has further aggravated the situation. Those demonstrators who have prac-

McCormack Speaks On 1949 Farm Problems.

What is ahead in agriculture? In answering this question for New York elected farmer-committeemen at the State PMA Conference held in New York, January 26 and 27, Alvin V. McCormack, Director, Agricultural Conservation Program Branch of PMA, said, "I don't think we are heading into any easy period. This abundant harvest of 1948 and the outlook for similar production of many crops in 1949 poses a number of serious problems. When the bins and cribs are full, what then?" He then asked this significant question, "When we have to start adjusting acreage, what crops can we turn to?"

"If the corn acreage needs to be reduced, what use will we make of the land taken out of corn? There's too many potatoes we say—well, what other crop can we grow?"

"Our machinery and our farming operations are geared to a certain economic unit of production—the size of the tractor—the layout of the land—labor—When we have to turn to some other crop—Well, I think you can see the problem." And then he added, "You can see the need for a National Program—a program in which you have a voice, but which considers the agricultural economy on a national basis."

He then asked what would happen to conservation if farm prices and income should be allowed to drop "way down below parity," and added that he thinks price supports and conservation are a part of the same program for the production of feed and fiber—for the use of people.

These problems were discussed after he drew attention to the two divergent philosophies on the question of whether enough food can be produced to feed the ever-increasing population of the world—and the United States. On the one hand there is the tragic loss of land through erosion and depletion but on the other the increase in per-acre yields resulting from conservation and improved methods of combating insects and disease.

He pointed out that per-acre yields for 1948 were up 51 percent from the 1923-32 period. But this increased production itself is bringing a whole host of new farm problems.

On this point he said, "This production problem is on us now. I don't know just how soon we'll be talking 'surpluses' again, but whether we use that term or something that means the same thing—we are going to have to face it. "Certainly, everything that can be done will be done to dispose of excess production. The Secretary of Agriculture has committed the Department of Agriculture to that policy—a policy of 'putting a floor under consumption.' And I believe in it."

"But to think that we can get by without at least some adjustments in production, I think, is expecting too much. And to think we can get conservation without price supports to protect our farmers—well, you can't do it. Of course, conditions we can't see now may arise and all this may be needless worry, but I can't accept that as a reason for not being concerned about what seems to be plainly showing up. And I think we need to do more than be concerned. I think we should be ready."

Veterans News

World War II veterans receiving education or training under the GI Bill are urged by the Veterans Administration to include the name and address of their school or training establishment in all correspondence with VA.

This information should be included in addition to the clearly legible, complete name and address of the veteran and the extremely important claim number.

Student-veterans and job-trainees who follow this advice will expedite any action on their case by VA and avoid delays often caused by lack of sufficient information contained in correspondence from veterans.

Veterans Administration has conducted a training program for corrective therapists at the Winter VA hospital in Topeka, Kansas, to broaden their understanding of the needs and problems of neuropsychiatric patients.

The course—the sixth given for corrective therapy personnel in VA hospitals—was a joint program of the Division of Physical Medicine Rehabilitation of VA's Department of Medicine and Surgery, and the Division of Adjunctive Therapy of the Institute of Psychological Medicine.

Training programs previously were conducted at VA general medical and surgical hospitals in Richmond, Virginia; Hines, Illinois, and Los Angeles, California. Two previous courses also were held at the Topeka hospitals.

Future training programs are planned for the Topeka VA hospital and for other general medical and surgical hospitals, to keep corrective personnel informed of the latest developments in their field.

Questions and Answers
Q. I am a World War II veteran. Is my wife eligible for treatment at a VA hospital?

A. Not unless your wife is an ex-service woman. Dependents of veterans are not entitled to hospitalization under the VA.

Q. I want to give the beneficiary of my NSLI the right of choosing in the event of my death, either a lump sum settlement or any of the available monthly payment plans. If I designate no option, will she have this right?

A. No. Payment in a lump sum may be designated only by the insured. However, if you provide for lump sum payment, she may have her choice of available plans.

Q. The automobile furnished me by VA was totally wrecked in an unavoidable accident. Will VA give me another one?

A. There is no provision under the law to provide more than one automobile to an eligible veteran.

Q. Must a disabled veteran go to a vocational school or may he go to a liberal arts college, a high school, or similar institution under the Vocational Rehabilitation Act?

A. He may enroll in any VA-approved educational institution or training establishment offering the course of training which Veterans Administration has found that he needs to insure his proper rehabilitation in line with his own desires.

Weekly Health LETTER

Issued by Dr. Geo. W. Cox M. D., State Health Officer of Texas

AUSTIN — Throughout the United States the week of February 14-21, will be observed as National Heart Week, and Dr. Geo. W. Cox, State Health Officer has announced that the State Health Department will cooperate to the fullest extent in stressing to the public the necessity for full information and intelligent action in attempting to control this nation's major killer, heart disease.

From a national level, heart disease is the leading cause of death, and yearly takes a greater total number of lives than the next five leading causes of death combined. One out of every three deaths in the United States is due to diseases of the heart and blood vessels, and it is estimated that one out of every twenty persons suffer from some form of heart or blood vessel disease.

A great amount of research in the causes and treatment of the heart diseases has established the fact that some of them can be materially helped by certain drugs, or even surgery, and it has been proved beyond doubt that the heart patient who places himself early under competent medical care, has by far the best chance of survival. In many instances the patient can, under competent care, lead an almost normal life, with only certain restrictions as to activities and indulgences which might adver-

Making Democracy Work

De Witt Wallace, left, editor of The Reader's Digest, hears George I. Hall, Grand Exalted Ruler of the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks, outline the Order's campaign to help the nation's schools teach democracy. Elks lodges are equipping their local schools with sets of "Our American Heritage", filmstrips that dramatize the birth and development of our democratic freedoms from Magna Charta to the present, bring the Freedom Train right into school rooms. The campaign is part of Elks' program to "make democracy work." The Digest produced "Our American Heritage" at request of the National Education Association and The American Heritage Foundation, sponsor of Freedom Train.

American Red Cross Gives Aid To Texans When Disaster Strikes Home

With beginning of the annual Red Cross Roll Call, March 1-31, but a few days off, here are some thoughts concerning the work of the Red Cross which have been submitted for your consideration:

The American Red Cross has taken its place in the hearts and lives of our countrymen. Its faith in men and its concern for their welfare have made it a valiant defender of democracy in a shattered world. Its services in disaster, in aiding servicemen and their dependents, in promoting health and safety through its first aid, accident prevention, nursing and national blood programs, in its Junior Red Cross and varied service contribute to the making of a better world.

Your Red Cross maintains, in six Texas veterans' hospitals—at Amarillo, Dallas, Legion, McKinney, Temple and Waco—full time Red Cross workers who coordinate volunteer work on behalf of patients in cooperation with hospital authorities. Stations in hospitals at the request of the veterans administration, they are the leaders to whom hundreds of chapter workers look for guidance in planning recreation for the sick men, crafts and hobby classes that ease the tedium of hospital life for the men occupying over 4,000 beds in Texas veterans hospitals.

Last year, 17 major disasters meant rebuilt homes, furniture, medical care, food, clothing, support for orphaned and maimed. By the time the last vestiges of the McKinney tornado had been removed, for example, it meant an expenditure of $198,894.74 on this relief operation alone. At year's end, similar catastrophes had accounted for some $335,000 in this state alone.

Your Red Cross is congressionally charged with being a medium of communication between the armed forces and the people at home. The phrase includes a multitude of duties coming under Home Services. It takes in social welfare for servicemen.

the majority of them seeking help in personal or family problems, the minority needing emergency financial help.

Some of the cases in which Red Cross action is called for are getting medical histories for the sick, social histories for the guidance of the poorly adjusted, domestic problems needing personal attention, reports from homes to relieve anxieties about family conditions, help with discharges, claims, money or home management problems.

It is interesting to observe the increase in welfare work on behalf of these men, due to the youth of last year's soldiers and to their comparative inexperience in meeting the problems of separation from homes and family.

In locating the next of kin of one Knox county serviceman killed in action, your chapter alone sent seven telegrams, made three long-distance telephone calls, one local telephone call, wrote five letters and made six personal contacts.

Your Knox county chapter, with Merick McGaughey as chairman, has a part in all this. Mrs. O. D. Propolis is vice-chairman; M. L. Wiggins, treasurer; L. W. Graham, home service chairman, and Mrs. W. E. Braly, executive secretary in charge of Home Service.

Claude Hill visited his brother-in-law, R. T. Parramore, in Dallas the first of this week. Mr. Parramore has been very ill for some time.

government very much. We need a federal building—a U. S. Post Office, if you please.

We might get a federal building by 1951, too, if we set out about it now. The government's lease on the present building expires in 1951.

Some are pulling for a post office to be located right on our city square. This might be done, too, if we start working on it.

We've heard a proposal from one person to build a new post office building.

The post office department will be seeking bids for a post office location in Munday next year. Looks like we should start working this year toward getting one.

A post office building in 1951. A street sweeper after 1951. We've still got something to live for, haven't we?

I. V. Cook, H. E. Egenbacher of Knox City, and R. D. Atkison, were in Dallas last Monday to attend the preview showing of the new 1949 DeSoto automobiles. The new cars will go on display on March 5th.
